CONGRESSIONAL RECORD:

42094

CONTAINING

THE PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES

OF THE

FIFTY-SECOND CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION.

VOLUME XXIV.

WASHINGTON:
GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE.
1893.

VOLUME XXIV, PART I.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD,

FIFTY-SECOND CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE FIFTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE.

MONDAY, December 5, 1892.

The first Monday of December being the day prescribed by the Constitution of the United States for the annual meeting of Congress, the second session of the Fifty-second Congress commenced this day.

The Senate assembled in its Chamber at the Capitol.

The Vice-President of the United States (Mr. LEVI P. MORTON, of the State of New York) took the chair and called the Senate to order at 12 o'clock noon.

PRAYER.

Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D., Chaplain to the Senate, offered the following prayer:

O God, we gather devoutly at Thy feet amid unnumbered mercies to us as individuals in our families and upon our land. Thy kind hand has led us during these months of separation. We thank Thee that we live. Remember very tenderly those who are sick. Grant them healing, if it please Thee, and prepare the dying for death.

We look to Thee as we come to these responsibilities, asking Thy guidance and Thy rich blessing. O God, the God of our fathers, in whom we have ever trusted, may we ever rely upon the Word of Thy promise and the abiding presence of Thy Spirit.

Bless our Government in all its departments, legislative, judicial, and executive. Remember very tenderly Thy servant, the President of the United States. We thank Thee for his faith and fortitude. We pray Thee sanctify to him and to his household Thy sore chastening. Touch our hearts in sympathy with suffering, and help us day by day to walk as the children of God ought to walk, conscious of our own mortality, with our faces ever set toward the heavenly city.

Bless abundantly, we pray Thee, these Thy servants, dwelling in each heart by Thy Spirit. Upon the other House of Congress pour very richly of heaven's benediction. Bless all the people of this land, O Lord, whose industries Thou hast so richly rewarded. Exalt us more and more in righteousness among the nations. Preserve to us our Sabbath and our sanctuaries. Continue to bless all the agencies employed to enlighten and educate and elevate this great nation, hastening the time when the reign of the Prince of Peace shall come and men shall learn war no more.

Guide us by Thy divine counsel. Have us in Thy holy keeping. Give unto us richly of Thy peace. A Father's benediction we crave from day to day, and we ask all in the name of Christ, who hath taught us when we pray to say: "Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done upon earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, forever. Amen."

SENATORS PRESENT.

The following Senators were present:

From the State of—

Alabama—John T. Morgan and James L. Pugh.
Arkansas—James H. Berry and James K. Jones.
California—Charles N. Felton.
Colorado—Henry M. Teller and Edward O. Wolcott.
Connecticut—Orville H. Platt.
Delaware—Anthony Higgins.
Florida—Wilkinson Call and Samuel Pasco.
Georgia—John B. Gordon.
Idaho—Fred. T. Dubois and George L. Shoup.
Illinois—Shelby M. Cullom and John M. Palmer.
Indiana—Daniel W. Voorhees.
Iowa—James F. Wilson.
Kansas—William A. Peffer.
Kentucky—Joseph C. S. Blackburn and John G. Carlisle.
Louisiana—Edward D. White.
Maine—William P. Frye and Eugene Hale.
Maryland—Arthur P. Gorman.
Massachusetts—Henry L. Dawes and George F. Hoar.
Michigan—James McMillan and Francis B. Stockbridge.
Minnesota—Cushman K. Davis and William D. Washburn.
Mississippi—James Z. George and Edward C. Walthall.
Missouri—Francis M. Cockrell and George G. Vest.
Montana—Thomas C. Power.
Nebraska—Charles F. Manderson and Algernon S. Paddock.
Nevada—William M. Stewart.
New Hampshire—William E. Chandler and Jacob H. Gallinger.
New Jersey—Rufus Blodgett and John R. McPherson.
North Carolina—Zebulon B. Vance.
North Dakota—Lyman R. Casey and Henry C. Hansbrough.
Ohio—Calvin S. Brice and John Sherman.
Oregon—Joseph N. Dolph and John H. Mitchell.
Pennsylvania—James Donald Cameron and Matthew S. Quay.
Rhode Island—Nelson W. Aldrich and Nathan F. Dixon.
South Carolina—M. C. Butler.
South Dakota—James H. Kyle and R. F. Pettigrew
Tennessee—William B. Bate and Isham G. Harris.
Texas—Richard Coke and Roger Q. Mills.
Vermont—Justin S. Morrill.
Virginia—John W. Daniel and Eppa Hutton.
Washington—John B. Allen.
West Virginia—Charles J. Faulkner.
Wisconsin—Philetus Sawyer and William F. Vilas.
Wyoming—Joseph M. Carey.

SENATOR FROM VERMONT.

Mr. MORRILL presented the credentials of REDFIELD PROCTOR, chosen by the Legislature of the State of Vermont a Senator from that State to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of George F. Edmunds in the term ending March 3, 1893.

The credentials were read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator-elect will please come forward and take the oath of office.

Mr. PROCTOR was escorted to the Vice-President's desk by Mr. MORRILL, and the oath prescribed by law having been administered to him he took his seat in the Senate.

Mr. MORRILL presented the credentials of REDFIELD PROCTOR, elected by the Legislature of the State of Vermont a Senator from that State for the term beginning March 4, 1893; which were read and ordered to be filed.

NOTIFICATION TO THE HOUSE.

Mr. SHERMAN submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary inform the House of Representatives that a quorum of the Senate is assembled, and that the Senate is ready to proceed to business.

NOTIFICATION TO THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. HALE submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That a committee consisting of two members be appointed, to join such committee as may be appointed by the House of Representatives, to wait upon the President of the United States and inform him that a quorum of each House is assembled, and that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make.

By unanimous consent, the Vice-President was authorized to appoint the committee on the part of the Senate; and Mr. HALE and Mr. GORMAN were appointed.

HOUR OF MEETING.

Mr. MORRILL submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the hour of the daily meeting of the Senate be 12 o'clock meridian until otherwise ordered.

RECESS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. What is the pleasure of the Senate?

Mr. SHERMAN. I think, under the circumstances, in view of the probability that the President's message will not come in to-day, that the Senate had better adjourn until to-morrow. I make that motion.

Mr. HARRIS. Does the Senator from Ohio think it is proper to adjourn until the committee has waited upon the President and we have received his answer?

Mr. SHERMAN. As we are practically assured, by information in the public prints, that no message will come in to-day, I thought it hardly worth while to go through the form of remaining in session.

Mr. HARRIS. I do not know that we can rely upon the information derived from the public prints. I suggest that we take a recess and allow the committee to wait upon the President and make its report.

Mr. SHERMAN. Very well; I will substitute that motion for the other. I move that the Senate take a recess until 1 o'clock.

The VICE-PRESIDENT (at 12 o'clock and 10 minutes p. m.). The Senator from Ohio moves that the Senate take a recess until 1 o'clock.

The motion was agreed to; and at the expiration of the recess (at 1 o'clock p. m.) the Senate resumed its session.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

At 1 o'clock and 2 minutes p. m., Mr. JAMES KERR, the Clerk of the House of Representatives, appeared below the bar of the Senate and delivered the following message:

Mr. President, I am directed by the House of Representatives to inform the Senate that a quorum of the House of Representatives has appeared and that the House is ready to proceed to business.

I am further directed to inform the Senate that the House has passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That a committee of three members be appointed on the part of the House, to join the committee appointed by the Senate, to wait on the President and inform him that a quorum of the two Houses has assembled, and that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may have to make.

Ordered, That Mr. SPRINGER, Mr. FORNEY, and Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania be appointed such committee on the part of the House.

NOTIFICATION TO THE PRESIDENT.

At 1 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m., Mr. HALE and Mr. GORMAN, the committee appointed in conjunction with a similar committee of the House of Representatives to wait upon the President of the United States, appeared below the bar, and

Mr. HALE said: Mr. President, the committee appointed by the Senate, in company with a similar committee of the House of Representatives, to wait upon the President of the United States and inform him that a quorum of the two Houses of Congress has assembled, have attended to that duty, and the President was pleased to say that he would communicate to the two Houses by a message in writing at the opening of to-morrow's session.

Mr. SHERMAN. I move that the Senate adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 1 o'clock and 31 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday, December 6, 1892, at 12 o'clock m.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY, December 5, 1892.

This being the day designated by the Constitution for the annual meeting of Congress, the members of the House of Representatives assembled in their Hall for the second session of the Fifty-second Congress.

At 12 o'clock noon, the Speaker, Hon. CHARLES F. CRISP, a Representative from the State of Georgia, called the House to order.

PRAYER.

The Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, we devoutly bless Thee that through Thy good providence so many of the members of this House are brought back to their places in safety and in health. Let Thy peace be theirs, the peace of God which passeth understanding, controlling their tempers and their tongues, keeping their minds and hearts in Thy knowledge and Thy love. Lift their thoughts and wills to a level with the high dignity of the position to which they have been called, and grant that they may be enabled to act wisely as they are summoned to enact laws and to adopt measures for the safety, honor, and welfare of this great nation. Protect them and their families from all perils to person, property, and reputation, and prosper them in all their ways: We humbly beg through Jesus Christ, our Saviour. Amen.

CALL OF THE ROLL.

The SPEAKER directed that the roll be called, when the following-named Members and Delegates responded:

ALABAMA.

Hilary A. Herbert.
William C. Oates.
John H. Bankhead.
William H. Forney.
Joseph Wheeler.
J. E. Cobb.

ARKANSAS.

William H. Cate.
Clifton R. Breckinridge.
Thomas C. McRae.
William L. Terry.
Samuel W. Peel.

CALIFORNIA.

Eugene F. Loud.
William W. Bowers.

CONNECTICUT.

Lewis Sperry.
Charles A. Russell.
Robert E. De Forest.

FLORIDA.

Stephen R. Mallory.
Robert Bullock.

GEORGIA.

Rufus E. Lester.
Henry G. Turner.
Charles F. Crisp.
Leonidas F. Livingston.
James H. Blount.
R. William Everett.
Thomas G. Lawson.
Thomas E. Winn.
Thomas E. Watson.

IDAHO.

Willis Sweet.

ILLINOIS.

Abner Taylor.
Lawrence E. McGann.
Allan C. Durborow, jr.
A. J. Hopkins.
Robert R. Hitt.
Thomas J. Henderson.
Lewis Steward.
Herman W. Snow.
Philip S. Post.
Scott Wike.
William M. Springer.
Owen Scott.
Samuel T. Busey.
George W. Fithian.
Edward Lane.
William S. Forman.
James R. Williams.
George W. Smith.

INDIANA.

John L. Bretz.
Jason B. Brown.
William S. Holman.
George W. Cooper.
Henry U. Johnson.
William D. Bynum.
Elijah V. Brookshire.
David H. Patton.
Augustus N. Martin.
Charles A. O. McClellan.
Benjamin F. Shively.

IOWA.

John J. Scerley.
Walter I. Hayes.
David B. Henderson.
Walt H. Butler.
Frederick E. White.
Thomas Bowman.
Jonathan P. Dolliver.
George D. Perkins.

KANSAS.

Case Broderick.
Benjamin H. Clover.
John G. Otis.
John Davis.
William Baker.
Jerry Simpson.

KENTUCKY.

William J. Stone.
William T. Ellis.
Asher G. Caruth.
Worth W. Dickerson.
William C. P. Breckinridge.
Joseph M. Kendall.

LOUISIANA.

Matthew D. Lagan.
Newton C. Blanchard.

MAINE.

Thomas B. Reed.
Nelson Dingley, jr.
Charles A. Boutelle.

MARYLAND.

Herman Stump.
Harry Welles Rusk.
Isidor Rayner.
Barnes Compton.
William M. McKaig.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN.

FOR BOOKS USED IN THE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY.

AUTHOR.	TITLE.	VOL.	SHELF NO.

Date ..... 189....

(OVER.)

..... Signature.

Directions and Information for Readers.

1. Write in a plain hand the title ot the work desired, with name of author.
2. Books are not to be taken from the reading room. Readers will return them to the delivery desk before leaving the room.
3. The Library is open daily from 8:15 a. m. to 6 p. m. and from 7 to 9:30 p. m., except on Sundays and legal holidays. The summer vacation is subject to special action.
4. Free to all persons who observe good order.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Charles S. Randall.
John F. Andrew.
Joseph H. O'Neil.
Henry Cabot Lodge.
William Cogswell.
Moses T. Stevens.
George Fred. Williams.
Joseph H. Walker.
Frederick S. Coolidge.

MICHIGAN.

J. Logan Chipman.
James O'Donnell.
Julius C. Burrows.
Byron G. Stout.
Justin R. Whiting.
Henry M. Youmans.
Harrison H. Wheeler.

MINNESOTA.

William H. Harries.
John Lind.
Osee M. Hall.
James N. Castle.
Kittel Halvorson.

MISSISSIPPI.

John M. Allen.
John C. Kyle.
Thomas C. Catchings.
Clarke Lewis.
Charles E. Hooker.

MISSOURI.

Charles H. Mansur.
Alexander M. Dockery.
Robert P. C. Wilson.
John C. Tarsney.
John T. Heard.
John J. O'Neill.
Seth W. Cobb.
Richard P. Bland.
Robert W. Fyan.
Marshall Arnold.

MONTANA.

William W. Dixon.

NEBRASKA.

Omer M. Kem.

NEVADA.

Horace F. Bartine.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Luther F. McKinney.
Warren F. Daniell.

NEW JERSEY.

Christopher A. Bergen.
Jacob A. Geissenhainer.
Cornelius A. Cadmus.
Thomas Dunn English.

NEW YORK.

James W. Covert.
William J. Coombs.
John M. Clancy.
Thomas F. Magner.
Edward J. Dunphy.
Timothy J. Campbell.
Amos J. Cummings.
John DeWitt Warner.
Joseph J. Little.
Ashbel P. Fitch.
Henry Bacon.
John H. Ketcham.
Charles Tracey.
N. Martin Curtis.
Henry W. Bentley.
George Van Horn.
George W. Ray.
Sereno E. Payne.
Hosea H. Rockwell.
John Raines.
Halbert S. Greenleaf.
James W. Wadsworth.
Warren B. Hooker.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Henry P. Cheatham.
John S. Henderson.
William T. Crawford.

OHIO.

Bellamy Storer.
John A. Caldwell.
George W. Houk.
Martin K. Gantz.
Fernando C. Layton.
Darius D. Hare.
Joseph H. Outhwaite.
John M. Pattison.
William H. Enochs.
James W. Owens.
Michael D. Harter.
Joseph D. Taylor.
Ezra B. Taylor.
Tom L. Johnson.

OREGON.

Binger Hermann.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Henry H. Bingham.
Charles O'Neill.
William McAleer.
Alfred C. Harmer.
John B. Robinson.
Edwin Hallowell.
William Mutchler.
David B. Brunner.
Marriott Brosius.
Lemuel Amerman.
George W. Shonk.
James B. Reilly.
John W. Rife.
Myron B. Wright.
Albert C. Hopkins.
Simon P. Wolverton.
Louis E. Atkinson.
Frank E. Beltzhoover.
Edward Scull.
George F. Huff.
John Dalzell.
William A. Stone.
Charles W. Stone.
George F. Kribbs.

RHODE ISLAND.

Oscar Lapham.
Charles H. Page.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

William H. Brawley.
George D. Tillman.
William Elliott.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

John A. Pickler.
John L. Jolley.

TENNESSEE.

Henry C. Snodgrass.
Benton McMillin.
James D. Richardson.
Nicholas N. Cox.
Josiah Patterson.

TEXAS.

John B. Long.
C. Buckley Kilgore.
Joseph W. Bailey.
Jo Abbott.
William H. Crain.
Littleton W. Moore.
E. L. Antony.
Joseph D. Sayers.
Samuel W. T. Lanham.

VERMONT.

H. Henry Powers.

VIRGINIA.

William A. Jones.
John W. Lawson.
Paul C. Edmunds.
Charles T. O'Ferrall.
John A. Buchanan.

WASHINGTON.

John L. Wilson.

WEST VIRGINIA.

John O. Pendleton.
William L. Wilson.
John D. Alderson.
James Capehart.

WISCONSIN.

Clinton Babbitt.
Charles Barwig.
John L. Mitchell.
George H. Brickner.
Lucas M. Miller.
Frank P. Coburn.
Nils P. Haugen.
Thomas Lynch.

WYOMING.

Clarence D. Clark.

DELEGATES FROM TERRITORIES.

ARIZONA.

Marcus A. Smith.

NEW MEXICO.

Antonio Joseph.

UTAH.

John T. Caine.

The SPEAKER. Two hundred and forty-one members have answered to their names. A quorum is present.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. MCCOOK, its Secretary, announced that a quorum of the Senate was assembled, and that the Senate was ready to proceed to business.

The message also communicated the following resolution of the Senate, with the information that the Vice-President had appointed as the committee thereunder on the part of the Senate, Mr. HALE and Mr. GORMAN:

Resolved, That a committee consisting of two members be appointed, to join such committee as may be appointed by the House of Representatives, to wait upon the President of the United States and inform him that a quorum of each House is assembled and that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make.

NOTIFICATION TO THE SENATE.

Mr. HOLMAN submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and adopted:

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House inform the Senate that a quorum of the House of Representatives has appeared, and that the House is ready to proceed to business.

NOTIFICATION TO THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. SPRINGER submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and adopted:

Resolved, That a committee of three members be appointed on the part of the House, to join the committee appointed by the Senate, to wait upon the President and inform him that a quorum of the two Houses is assembled, and that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may have to make.

The SPEAKER announced the appointment of Mr. SPRINGER, Mr. FORNEY, and Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania as the committee on the part of the House under the resolution just adopted.

SWEARING IN OF NEWLY ELECTED MEMBERS.

Mr. BRAWLEY. Mr. Speaker, Hon. John L. McLaurin, member-elect from the Sixth Congressional district of the State of South Carolina, is now present. I ask that the oath of office be administered to him.

The SPEAKER. The credentials of the member-elect from South Carolina will be read.

The Clerk read as follows:

THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA—BY THE SECRETARY OF THE STATE.

To the honorable the House of Representatives of the United States of America in the Fifty-second Congress:

Whereas, in pursuance of the constitution and laws of the State of South Carolina and the Constitution and laws of the United States of America, an election was duly holden on the 8th day of November, in the year of our Lord 1892, in the said State of South Carolina, in the Sixth Congressional district thereof, for Representative of the said State of South Carolina, from the said Sixth Congressional district thereof, in the House of Representatives of the United States of America in the Fifty-second Congress, to fill the unexpired term of E. T. Stackhouse; and

Whereas, upon the examination of the returns of the said election, and by the determination and declaration of the board of State canvassers of the said State, filed and of record in my office, it appears that John L. McLaurin was duly elected at the said election, by the highest number of votes, Representative of the State of South Carolina from the said Sixth Congressional district thereof in the House of Representatives in the United States of America in the Fifty-second Congress:

Now, therefore, I, the secretary of state of the said State of South Carolina, by virtue of the power in me vested by the acts of the General Assembly of the said State in such case made and provided, do hereby certify that the said John L. McLaurin, at the election aforesaid, was duly elected Representative of the State of South Carolina from the Sixth Congressional district thereof in the House of Representatives of the United States of America in the Fifty-second Congress.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the State of South Carolina, in Columbia, this 17th day of November, in the year of our Lord 1892, and in the one hundred and seventeenth year of the Independence of the United States of America.

[SEAL.]

J. E. TINDAL,
Secretary of the State of South Carolina.

The SPEAKER. The credentials of such other members-elect as may be present will be read, after which the oath of office will be administered to all of them.

Mr. LOUD. Mr. Speaker, Hon. S. G. Hilborn, member-elect from the Third Congressional district of the State of California, is now present, and I ask that he be sworn in.

The credentials of Mr. Hilborn were read, as follows:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, Executive Department.

To all to whom these presents shall come, greeting:

I, H. H. Markham, governor of the State of California, do hereby certify, pursuant to the laws of the United States and the State of California, that a general election was duly held in accordance with law in the State of California on Tuesday, the 8th day of November, A. D. 1892, for Representatives to the Congress of the United States, and that the secretary of state of the State of California has compared and estimated the votes given for such Representatives to Congress at said general election and has duly certified to me that S. G. Hilborn has received the highest number of votes for Representative to the Congress of the United States for the Third Congressional district of the State of California for the unexpired term; and that said S. G. Hilborn has been duly elected as a Representative to the Congress of the United States for the said Third Congressional district of the State of California for said unexpired term.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of state to be affixed at Sacramento, this 26th day of November, A. D. 1892.

[SEAL.] H. H. MARKHAM, Governor.

Attest.

E. G. WAITE, Secretary of State.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, the member-elect from the Sixteenth Congressional district of the State of Ohio, Hon. Lewis P. Ohliger, is present, and I ask that the oath of office be administered to him.

The credentials of Mr. Ohliger were read, as follows:

IN THE NAME AND BY THE AUTHORITY OF THE STATE OF OHIO.

William McKinley, jr., governor of said State, to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting:

Know ye, that whereas at a general election held in pursuance of law on the 8th day of November, A. D. 1892, in the Sixteenth Congressional district of said State of Ohio, under apportionment of March 11, 1890, for the election of a Representative for said district in the Fifty-second Congress of the United States for the unexpired part of the term of John G. Warwick, deceased, Lewis P. Ohliger was duly elected Representative in Congress, as aforesaid, as appears from the official returns of said election, duly made and canvassed as the law provides, and now on file in the office of the secretary of state of Ohio.

Now therefore I, William McKinley, jr., governor of said State, do hereby certify that said Lewis P. Ohliger was duly elected Representative in Congress, as aforesaid, for the unexpired part of the term of two years commencing on the 4th day of March, A. D. 1891.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my name and caused the great seal of the State of Ohio to be affixed, at Columbus, on the 30th day of November, in the year of our Lord 1892, and in the one hundred and seventeenth year of the Independence of the United States of America.

[SEAL.] WM. McKINLEY, JR.

By the governor.

C. L. POORMAN, Secretary of State.

Mr. STUMP. I present the credentials of Hon. John B. Brown, member-elect from the First Congressional district of Maryland, and ask that he be sworn in.

The credentials of Mr. Brown were read, as follows:

THE STATE OF MARYLAND, Executive Department.

I, Frank Brown, governor of Maryland, do hereby certify that it appears from the official returns, now on file in this department, of an election held in this State on Tuesday, the 8th day of November, instant, for a Representative from the First Congressional district of Maryland, in the Fifty-second Congress of the United States, for the unexpired term of Hon. Henry Page, resigned, that Hon. John B. Brown was duly and regularly elected, in accordance with the laws of this State, as the Representative from the First Congressional district of Maryland in the Fifty-second Congress of the United States for the unexpired term of Hon. Henry Page, resigned.

Given under my hand and the great seal of Maryland.

Done at the city of Annapolis on the 21st day of November, in the year of our Lord 1892, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and seventeenth.

[SEAL.] FRANK BROWN.

By the governor.

E. W. LE COMPTE, Secretary of State.

Mr. MUTCHLER. Mr. Speaker, at the recent election Hon. W. A. Sipe was duly chosen in the Twenty-fourth district of Pennsylvania to fill, for the unexpired term, the vacancy created by the death of Hon. Alexander K. Craig. The credentials of Mr. Sipe have not yet been forwarded to the Clerk, but I believe there is no doubt about his election, and I therefore ask unanimous consent that he be permitted to take the oath of office and enter upon his duties.

Mr. DALZELL. Mr. Speaker, having some knowledge in regard to the election in the district referred to, I wish to say that there is no doubt of the election of the gentleman who my colleague asks may be sworn in, and I hope there will be no objection.

The SPEAKER. The request is made that the member-elect from the Twenty-fourth district of Pennsylvania, whose credentials have not yet arrived, may be sworn in at this time. This can not be done except by unanimous consent. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. John L. McLaurin, Mr. S. G. Hilborn, Mr. Lewis P. Ohliger, Mr. John B. Brown, and Mr. W. A. Sipe came forward and were duly qualified by taking the oath prescribed by law.

DAILY HOUR OF MEETING.

Mr. McMILLIN submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to:

Resolved, That until otherwise ordered the daily hour of meeting of the House be 12 o'clock m.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. ALEXANDER, indefinitely, on account of sickness in his family.

To Mr. PAYNTER, indefinitely, on account of sickness.

To Mr. MORSE, for two weeks, on account of sickness.

To Mr. ELLIS, until the 24th instant, on account of important business.

To Mr. CAMINETTI, indefinitely, on account of sickness in his family.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Clerk of the House of Representatives, submitting a detailed report, showing the names of the employés of the House, the disbursements made by him from the 8th day of December, 1891, to June, 1892, the amounts drawn from the Treasury, balances on hand, expenditures for stationery, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on Accounts, and ordered to be printed.

PROPERTY IN HANDS OF THE CLERK.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the Clerk of the House, transmitting an inventory of the property of the United States in his possession on the 1st day of December, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Accounts, and ordered to be printed.

ANNUAL REPORT OF UTAH COMMISSION.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the Utah Commissioners, transmitting their annual report to Congress; which was referred to the Committee on the Territories.

EXPENDITURES OF SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, transmitting a detailed statement of expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

REPORT OF BOARD OF MANAGERS OF SOLDIERS' HOME.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the report of the Board of Managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer at this time a resolution concerning the report which has just been handed down.

The SPEAKER. The resolution will be read subject to objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That there be printed of the report of the Board of Managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers for the year ending June 30, 1892, as follows: 500 copies of the full report of the Board, 500 copies of the report proper; 500 copies of the report of the inspector of National and State homes, and 150 copies of the record of members.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I will state, Mr. Speaker, that this provides for the same number that was printed by authority of this Congress at its last session after the subject had been carefully considered and reported upon by the Committee on Printing to the House. This proposes to print exactly the same number then provided for.

The reason for asking immediate action is in order that the Managers may have the report, which has been prepared for some time, for use and distribution. It does not involve an expense beyond the sum provided heretofore for this purpose.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask that the resolution be again reported. I was unable to hear the reading of it.

The resolution was again read.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The difficulty, I will suggest to my friend from Ohio, is that this is only a House resolution. Under the rules and the law, if the printing of a document involves an expense exceeding $500, it requires the concurrent action of the two Houses. This is simply a House resolution, and I submit, in view of the fact that the cost may exceed $500, that the gentleman had better withdraw it and make it in the shape of a concurrent resolution.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. It does not exceed $500. It is exactly the same as was provided for in the first session of this Congress, and the matter was then considered and reported upon by your committee.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Does the gentleman know that it did not exceed $500?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. My recollection is that the report of the Committee on Printing shows that it did not exceed even $300. I may be in error in that regard, but that is my recollection.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I shall not object, but I think the gentleman would probably save time by amending the resolution, if it requires concurrent action.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I do not think that will be required.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

There being no objection, the resolution was agreed to.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. McMILLIN. I move that the House take a recess for thirty minutes, to await the report of the committee appointed to wait upon the President.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 45 minutes p. m.) the House took a recess until 1 o'clock and 15 minutes p. m.

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker.

The members of the committee appointed to wait upon the President having appeared at the bar of the House—

Mr. SPRINGER said:

Mr. Speaker, the committee appointed on the part of the House of Representatives to coöperate with the committee on the part of the Senate, to wait upon the President and inform him that the two Houses had organized and were ready to receive any communication that he desired to make, have performed that duty, and beg leave to report that the President informs the committee that he will communicate with the two Houses to-morrow on their reassembling at 12 o'clock.

DEATH OF HON. EDWARD F. M'DONALD.

Mr. ENGLISH. Mr. Speaker, I rise to perform the painful duty of announcing the death of the Hon. Edward F. McDonald, lately a Representative in this House from the State of New Jersey.

I shall not at the present time say anything concerning the merits of the dead, but at an early date I shall ask this House to fix a day on which his friends may express in proper terms their sense of his merit and their grief at his loss.

I offer the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk, for which I ask immediate consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That this House has heard with deep sorrow of the death of the Hon. Edward F. McDonald, late a Representative from the State of New Jersey.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing resolution be transmitted to the family of the dead member.

Resolved, That as a further mark of respect for the memory of the dead this House do now adjourn.

The resolutions were agreed to.

Accordingly (at 1 o'clock and 37 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until to-morrow at 12 o'clock noon.

BILLS, MEMORIALS, AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills of the following titles were introduced, severally read twice, and referred as follows:

By Mr. WHEELER of Alabama: A bill (H. R. 9728) to make it unlawful for an officer of the Federal Government to interfere with the elections in States and repealing all laws which authorize officers of the United States Government to interfere with elections in States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. CUMMINGS: A bill (H. R. 9729) to provide communication from light-ships and outlying light-houses to the shore—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. RICHARDSON: A bill (H. R. 9730) to amend the charter of the Brightwood Railway Company of the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi: A bill (H. R. 9731) to change the time for meeting of the Congress of the United States to the first Monday after the 4th day of March in each and every year—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. OATES: A bill (H. R. 9732) to repeal the laws of the United States providing for supervisors and deputy marshals at elections—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. COMPTON: A bill (H. R. 9733) to incorporate the East End Electric Railway Company of the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. AMERMAN: A bill (H. R. 9734) to authorize the issue and sale of United States bonds to be known as the United States Treasury deficiency bonds—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MUTCHLER: A bill (H. R. 9735) to transfer the Bureau of Pensions to the War Department—to the Committee on the Revision of the Laws.

By Mr. ANDREW: A bill (H. R. 9736) to make works of art free of duty—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DURBOROW: A joint resolution (H. Res. 163) to provide for opening the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. RICHARDSON: A concurrent resolution to print 4,000 copies of the ninth annual report of the Civil Service Commission—to the Committee on Printing.

By Mr. DOCKERY: A resolution requiring the Committee on Appropriations to investigate and report to the House the actual condition of the Treasury—to the Committee on Rules.

Also, a resolution creating a commission to investigate the departmental service—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. OUTHWAITE: A resolution for the appointment of an assistant clerk—to the Committee on Accounts.

PRIVATE BILLS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills of the following titles were presented and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. COGSWELL: A bill (H. R. 9737) granting an increase of pension to Mary A. L. Eastman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9738) granting a pension to Hannah Flanders—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9739) granting a pension to Sally G. Alley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9740) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of William H. Austin—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 9741) to increase the pension of Capt. E. R. Chase from $20 to $72 a month—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KEM (by request): A bill (H. R. 9742) for the relief of John Palmier, Pine Ridge, Shannon County, S. Dak.—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also (by request), a bill (H. R. 9743) for the relief of George H. Jewett, Arlington, Washington County, Nebr.—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. PATTISON of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 9744) to remove the charge of desertion against Restine Tumbleson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9745) to remove the charge of desertion against Arthur B. Spader—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. CHARLES W. STONE: A bill (H. R. 9746) to authorize the payment to Rear-Admiral John H. Russell of the highest pay of his grade—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. SPRINGER: A bill (H. R. 9747) for the relief of Augustus G. Kellogg—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. TRACEY: A bill (H. R. 9748) granting a pension to Patience H. Turnbull—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By Mr. BELTZHOOVER: Petition of the members of the medical profession of York County, Pa., asking Congress for an appropriation to assist in defraying the expenses of the Pan-American Medical Congress to be held in Washington, D. C., September 5, 6, 7, and 8, 1893—to the Committee on Appropriations.

Also, a statement to accompany the bill for the relief of W. B. Horner—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of Frederick Bentry, of York, Pa., for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BERGEN: Petition of the Camden County Medical Society, for appropriation for the Medical Congress—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. BINGHAM: Petition of the bishops of the African Methodist Episcopal Church and of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, representing four million colored people of the United States, that the moral, intellectual, and industrial progress and development of the colored people during the first quarter century of their freedom should be made to form a part of the Government's exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. CASTLE: Petition against closing the Columbian Exposition on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. CHIPMAN: Two petitions, one of Parker, Davis & Co. and others and the other of F. H. Frazer and others, for application of the metric system heretofore adopted by Congress to the transactions in all custom-houses—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

By Mr. DALZELL: Petition of F. B. Corey, of Pittsburg, Pa., for repeal of the law increasing the President's salary from $25,000 to $50,000 per annum and for legislation reducing official salaries generally—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. ENGLISH: Petition of a number of citizens of Newark, N. J., asking for the appropriation of $43,983 to assist in defraying the expenses of the Pan-American Medical Congress of the United States—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. GANTZ: Petition of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Eaton, Ohio, against opening the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa: Petition of Hyde Clark Post, Grand Army of the Republic, of Dubuque, Iowa, and others, asking increase of pension for total disability to E. R. Chase—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HERMANN: Resolutions of Portland (Oregon) Federated Trade Assembly, for a committee of investigation as to troubles in Cœur d' Alene troubles—to the Committee on Labor.

By Mr. HOOKER of New York: Petition of the Ellington Political Equality Club, asking that a bill be passed enabling women citizens of the United States to vote for members of the House of Representatives—to the Select Committee on Election of President and Vice-President and Representatives in Congress.

By Mr. McRAE: Petition of Searborn J. Gearin, with evidence concerning his alleged desertion, and asking for relief—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MARTIN: Papers to accompany House bill granting an increase of pension to Mary A. L. Eastman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUSSELL: Petition of citizens of Norwich, Conn., in favor of the exclusive use of the metric system of weights and measures in the customs service of the United States—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

By Mr. STEVENS: Petition of Nancy E. Hardy, for relief—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE: Petition of R. E. Simpson and others, of Pennsylvania, for the passage of House bill 9350, to promote the safety of railroad employés—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. STORER: Memorial of John Arther Lynch, relative to certain portraits of Louis XVI, King of France, and of his queen, Marie Antoinette, procured at the solicitation of the Continental Congress—to the Committee on the Library.

Also, petition of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States, for a sixteenth amendment to the Constitution—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois: Two petitions, one of W. B. Lewis and others, of Chicago, Ill., and the other of John A. Grantham, of the same place, against imposing conditions either as to keeping open or closing on Sundays the World's Columbian Exposition to be held in 1893—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, petition of R. E. Barrett and others, of the same place and for the same purpose—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. VINCENT A. TAYLOR: Two petitions of citizens of Ohio, one of Rev. B. F. Fritz and 90 citizens of Greenwich, and the other of 285 citizens of Richfield, against the repeal of legislation closing the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: Protest of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church of Del Norte, Colo., against closing the World's Fair on Sunday, or in any way committing the Government to religious legislation—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. TRACEY: Petition and evidence for a special act in favor of Patience H. Turnbull, widow of Charles Turnbull, of Company M, Seventh Regiment New York Heavy Artillery Volunteers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, December 6, 1892.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.

GEORGE GRAY, a Senator from the State of Delaware, JOSEPH R. HAWLEY, a Senator from the State of Connecticut, DAVID B. HILL, a Senator from the State of New York, BISHOP W. PERKINS, a Senator from the State of Kansas, MATT W. RANSOM, a Senator from the State of North Carolina, and WILBUR F. SANDERS, a Senator from the State of Montana, appeared in their seats to-day.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL MESSAGE.

At 12 o'clock and 7 minutes p. m., Mr. O. L. PRUDEN, one of the secretaries of the President of the United States, appeared below the bar, and said:

Mr. President, I am directed by the President of the United States to deliver to the Senate a message in writing.

The message was received from the secretary, and handed to the Vice-President.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the annual message of the President of the United States, which the Secretary will read.

The Secretary of the Senate (Mr. ANSON G. MCCOOK) read the message, as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In submitting my annual message to Congress, I have great satisfaction in being able to say that the general conditions affecting the commercial and industrial interests of the United States are in the highest degree favorable. A comparison of the existing conditions with those of the most favored period in the history of the country will, I believe, show that so high a degree of prosperity and so general a diffusion of the comforts of life were never before enjoyed by our people.

The total wealth of the country in 1860 was $16,159,616,068. In 1890 it amounted to $62,610,000,000, an increase of 287 per cent.

The total mileage of railways in the United Stutes in 1860 was 30,626; in 1890 it was 167,741, an increase of 448 per cent; and it is estimated that there will be about 4,000 miles of track added by the close of the year 1892.

The official returns of the Eleventh Census and those of the Tenth Census for seventy-five leading cities furnish the basis for the following comparisons:

In 1880 the capital invested in manufacturing was $1,232,839,670.
In 1890 the capital invested in manufacturing was $2,900,735,884.
In 1880 the number of employés was 1,301,388.
In 1890 the number of employés was 2,251,134.
In 1880 the wages earned were $501,965,778.
In 1890 the wages earned were $1,221,170,454.
In 1880 the value of the product was $2,711,579,899.
In 1890 the value of the product was $4,860,286,837.

I am informed by the Superintendent of the Census that the omission of certain industries in 1880, which were included in 1890, accounts in part for the remarkable increase thus shown. But, after making full allowance for differences of method and deducting the returns for all industries not included in the census of 1880, there remain in the reports from these seventy-five cities an increase in the capital employed of $1,522,745,604; in the value of the product of $2,024,236,166; in wages earned of $677,943,929, and in the number of wage-earners employed of 856,029. The wage earnings not only show an increased aggregate, but an increase per capita from $386 in 1880 to $547 in 1890, or 41.71 per cent.

The new industrial plants established since October 6, 1890, and up to October 22, 1892, as partially reported in the American Economist, number 345, and the extension of existing plants, 108; the new capital invested amounts to $40,449,050, and the number of additional employés to 37,285.

The Textile World for July, 1892, states that during the first six months of the present calendar year 135 new factories were built, of which 40 are cotton mills, 48 knitting mills, 26 woolen mills, 15 silk mills, 4 plush mills, and 2 linen mills. Of the 40 cotton mills 21 have been built in the Southern States. Mr. A. B. Shepperson, of the New York Cotton Exchange, estimates the number of working spindles in the United States on September 1, 1892, at 15,200,000, an increase of 660,000 over the year 1891. The consumption of cotton by American mills in 1891 was 2,396,000 bales, and in 1892 2,584,000 bales, an increase of 188,000 bales. From the year 1869 to 1892, inclusive, there has been an increase in the consumption of cotton in Europe of 92 per cent, while during the same period the increased consumption in the United States has been about 150 per cent.

The report of Ira Ayer, special agent of the Treasury Department, shows that at the date of September 30, 1892, there were 32 companies manufacturing tin and terne plate in the United States and 14 companies building new works for such manufacture. The estimated investment in buildings and plants at the close of the fiscal year, June 30, 1893, if existing conditions were to be continued, was $5,000,000, and the estimated rate of production 200,000,000 pounds per annum. The actual production for the quarter ending September 30, 1892, was 10,952,725 pounds.

The report of Labor Commissioner Peck, of New York, shows that during the year 1891, in about 6,000 manufacturing establishments in that State embraced within the special inquiry made by him, and representing 67 different industries, there was a net increase over the year 1890 of $31,315,130.68 in the value of the product, and of $6,377,925.09 in the amount of wages paid. The report of the commissioner of labor for the State of Massachusetts shows that 3,745 industries in that State paid $129,416,248 in wages during the year 1891, against $126,030,303 in 1890, an increase of $3,335,945, and that there was an increase of $9,932,490 in the amount of capital and of 7,346 in the number of persons employed in the same period.

During the last six months of the year 1891 and the first six months of 1892 the total production of pig iron was 9,710,819 tons, as against 9,202,703 tons in the year 1890, which was the largest annual production ever attained. For the same twelve months of 1891–'92 the production of Bessemer ingots was 3,878,581 tons, an increase of 189,710 gross tons over the previously unprecedented yearly production of 3,688,871 gross tons in 1890. The production of Bessemer steel rails for the first six months of 1892 was 772,436 gross tons, as against 702,080 gross tons during the last six months of the year 1891.

The total value of our foreign trade (exports and imports of merchandise) during the last fiscal year was $1,857,680,610, an increase of $128,283,604 over the previous fiscal year. The average annual value of our imports and exports of merchandise for the ten fiscal years prior to 1891 was $1,457,322,019. It will be observed that our foreign trade for 1892 exceeded this annual average value by $400,358,591, an increase of 27.47 per cent. The significance and value of this increase are shown by the fact that the excess in the trade of 1892 over 1891 was wholly in the value of exports, for there was a decrease in the value of imports of $17,513,754.

The value of our exports during the fiscal year 1892 reached the highest figure in the history of the Government, amounting to $1,030,278,148, exceeding by $145,797,338 the exports of 1891 and exceeding the value of the imports by $202,875,686. A comparison of the value of our exports for 1892 with the annual average for the ten years prior to 1891 shows an excess of $265,142,651 or of 34.65 per cent. The value of our imports of merchandise for 1892, which was $829,402,462, also exceeded the annual average value of the ten years prior to 1891 by $135,215,940. During the fiscal year 1892 the value of imports free of duty amounted to $457,999,658, the largest aggregate in the history of our commerce. The value of the imports of merchandise entered free of duty in 1892 was 55.35 per cent of the total value of imports, as compared with 43.35 per cent in 1891 and 33.66 per cent in 1890.

In our coastwise trade a most encouraging development is in progress, there having been in the last four years an increase of 16 per cent. In internal commerce the statistics show that no such period of prosperity has ever before existed. The freight carried in the coastwise trade of the Great Lakes in 1890 aggregated 28,295,959 tons. On the Mississippi, Missouri, and Ohio Rivers and tributaries in the same year the traffic aggregated 29,405,046 tons, and the total vessel tonnage passing through the Detroit River during that year was 21,684,000 tons. The vessel tonnage entered and cleared in the foreign trade of London during 1890 amounted to 13,480,767 tons, and of Liverpool 10,941,800 tons, a total for these two great shipping ports of 24,422,568 tons, only slightly in excess of the vessel tonnage passing through the Detroit River. And it should be said that the season for the Detroit River was but 228 days, while, of course, in London and Liverpool the season was for the entire year. The vessel tonnage passing through the St. Marys Canal for the fiscal year 1892 amounted to 9,828,874 tons, and the freight tonnage of the Detroit River is estimated for that year at 25,000,000 tons, against 23,209,619 tons in 1891. The aggregate traffic on our railroads for the year 1891 amounted to 704,398,609 tons of freight, compared with 691,344,437 tons in 1890, an increase of 13,054,172 tons.

Another indication of the general prosperity of the country is found in the fact that the number of depositors in savings banks increased from 693,870 in 1860 to 4,258,893 in 1890, an increase of 513 per cent, and the amount of deposits from $149,277,504 in 1860 to $1,524,844,506 in 1890, an increase of 921 per cent. In 1891 the amount of deposits in savings banks was $1,623,079,749. It is estimated that 90 per cent of these deposits represent the savings of wage-earners. The bank clearances for nine months ending September 30, 1891, amounted to $41,049,390,808. For the same months in 1892 they amounted to $45,189,601,947, an excess for the nine months of $4,140,211,139.

There never has been a time in our history when work was so abundant or when wages were as high, whether measured by the currency in which they are paid or by their power to supply the necessaries and comforts of life. It is true that the market prices of cotton and wheat have been low. It is one of the unfavorable incidents of agriculture that the farmer can not produce upon orders. He must sow and reap in ignorance of the aggregate production of the year, and is peculiarly subject to the depreciation which follows overproduction. But, while the fact I have stated is true as to the crops mentioned, the general average of prices has been such as to give to agriculture a fair participation in the general prosperity. The value of our total farm products has increased from $1,363,646,866 in 1860 to $4,500,000,000 in 1891, as estimated by statisticians, an increase of 230 per cent. The number of hogs January 1, 1891, was 50,625,106 and their value $210,193,925; on January 1, 1892, the number was 52,398,019 and the value $241,031,415. On January 1, 1891, the number of cattle was 36,875,648 and the value $544,127,908; on January 1, 1892, the number was 37,651,239 and the value $570,749,155.

If any are discontented with their state here; if any believe that wages or prices, the returns for honest toil, are inadequate, they should not fail to remember that there is no other country in the world where the conditions that seem to them hard would not be accepted as highly prosperous. The English agriculturist would be glad to exchange the returns of his labor for those of the American farmer, and the Manchester workmen their wages for those of their fellows at Fall River.

I believe that the protective system, which has now for something more than thirty years continuously prevailed in our legislation, has been a mighty instrument for the development of our national wealth and a most powerful agency in protecting the homes of our workingmen from the invasion of want. I have felt a most solicitous interest to preserve to our working people rates of wages that would not only give daily bread, but supply a comfortable margin for those home attractions and family comforts and enjoyments without which life is neither hopeful nor sweet. They are American citizens—a part of the great people for whom our Constitution and Government were framed and instituted—and it can not be a perversion of that Constitution to so legislate as to preserve in their homes the comfort, independence, loyalty, and sense of interest in the Government which are essential to good citizenship in peace, and which will bring this stalwart throng, as in 1861, to the defense of the flag when it is assailed.

It is not my purpose to renew here the argument in favor of a protective tariff. The result of the recent election must be accepted as having introduced a new policy. We must assume that the present tariff, constructed upon the lines of protection, is to be repealed, and that there is to be substituted for it a tariff law constructed solely with reference to revenue; that no duty is to be higher because the increase will keep open an American mill or keep up the wages of an American workman, but that in every case such a rate of duty is to be imposed as will bring to the Treasury of the United States the largest returns of revenue. The contention has not been between schedules, but between principles, and it would be offensive to suggest that the prevailing party will not carry into legislation the principles advocated by it and the pledges given to the people. The tariff bills passed by the House of Representatives at the last session were, as I suppose—even in the opinion of their promoters—inadequate, and justified only by the fact that the Senate and House of Representatives were not in accord, and that a general revision could not, therefore, be undertaken.

I recommend that the whole subject of tariff revision be left to the incoming Congress. It is matter of regret that this work must be delayed for at least three months; for the threat of great tariff changes introduces so much uncertainty that an amount, not easily estimated, of business inaction and of diminished production will necessarily result. It is possible also that this uncertainty may result in decreased revenues from customs duties, for our merchants will make cautious orders for foreign goods in view of the prospect of tariff reductions and the uncertainty as to when they will take effect. Those who have advocated a protective tariff can well afford to have their disastrous forecasts of a change of policy disappointed.

If a system of customs duties can be framed that will set the idle wheels and looms of Europe in motion and crowd our warehouses with foreign-made goods, and at the same time keep our own mills busy; that will give us an increased participation in the "markets of the world" of greater value than the home market we surrender; that will give increased work to foreign workmen upon products to be consumed by our people without diminishing the amount of work to be done here; that will enable the American manufacturer to pay to his workmen from fifty to a hundred per cent more in wages than is paid in the foreign mill and yet to compete in our market and in foreign markets with the foreign producer; that will further reduce the cost of articles of wear and food without reducing the wages of those who produce them; that can be celebrated, after its effects have been realized, as its expectation has been, in European as well as in American cities, the authors and promoters of it will be entitled to the highest praise. We have had in our history several experiences of the contrasted effects of a revenue and of a protective tariff; but this generation has not felt them, and the experience of one generation is not highly instructive to the next. The friends of the protective system, with undiminished confidence in the principles they have advocated, will await the results of the new experiment.

The strained and too often disturbed relations existing between the employés and the employers in our great manufacturing establishments have not been favorable to a calm consideration by the wage-earner of the effect upon wages of the protective system. The facts that his wages were the highest paid in like callings in the world and that a maintenance of this rate of wages, in the absence of protective duties upon the product of his labor, was impossible, were obscured by the passion evoked by these contests. He may now be able to review the question in the light of his personal experience under the operation of a tariff for revenue only. If that experience shall demonstrate that present rates of wages are thereby maintained or increased, either absolutely or in their purchasing power, and that the aggregate volume of work to be done in this country is increased, or even maintained, so that there are more or as many days' work in a year at as good or better wages for the American workman as has been the case under the protective system, everyone will rejoice.

A general process of wage reduction can not be contemplated by any patriotic citizen without the gravest apprehension. It may be, indeed I believe is, possible for the American manufacturer to compete successfully with his foreign rival in many branches of production without the defense of protective duties, if the pay rolls are equalized; but the conflict that stands between the producer and that result and the distress of our working people when it is attained are not pleasant to contemplate. The Society of the Unemployed, now holding its frequent and threatening parades in the streets of foreign cities, should not be allowed to acquire an American domicile.

The reports of the heads of the several Executive Departments, which are herewith submitted, have very naturally included a résumé of the whole work of the administration with the transactions of the last fiscal year. The attention not only of Congress but of the country is again invited to the methods of administration which have been pursued and to the results which have been attained. Public revenues amounting to $1,414,079,292.28 have been collected and disbursed without loss from misappropriation, without a single defalcation of such importance as to attract the public attention, and at a diminished per cent of cost for collection. The public business has been transacted not only with fidelity, but progressively, and with a view to giving to the people in the fullest possible degree the benefits of a service established and maintained for their protection and comfort.

Our relations with other nations are now undisturbed by any serious controversy. The complicated and threatening differences with Germany and England relating to Samoan affairs, with England in relation to the seal fisheries in the Bering Sea, and with Chile growing out of the Baltimore affair have been adjusted.

There have been negotiated and concluded, under section 3 of the tariff law, commercial agreements relating to reciprocal trade with the following countries: Brazil, Dominican Republic, Spain for Cuba and Puerto Rico, Guatemala, Salvador, the German Empire, Great Britain for certain West Indian colonies and British Guiana, Nicaragua, Honduras, and Austria-Hungary.

Of these, those with Guatemala, Salvador, the German Empire, Great Britain, Nicaragua, Honduras, and Austria-Hungary have been concluded since my last annual message. Under these trade arrangements a free or favored admission has been secured in every case for an important list of American products. Especial care has been taken to secure markets for farm products in order to relieve that great underlying industry of the depression which the lack of an adequate foreign market for our surplus often brings. An opening has also been made for manufactured products that will undoubtedly, if this policy is maintained, greatly augment our export trade. The full benefits of these arrangements can not be realized instantly. New lines of trade are to be opened. The commercial traveler must survey the field. The manufacturer must adapt his goods to the new markets and facilities for exchange must be established. This work has been well begun, our merchants and manufacturers having entered the new fields with courage and enterprise. In the case of food products, and especially with Cuba, the trade did not need to wait, and the immediate results have been most gratifying. If this policy and these trade arrangements can be continued in force and aided by the establishment of American steamship lines, I do not doubt that we shall, within a short period, secure fully one-third of the total trade of the countries of Central and South America, which now amounts to about $600,000,000 annually. In 1885 we had only 8 per cent of this trade.

The following statistics show the increase in our trade with the countries with which we have reciprocal trade agreements from the date when such agreements went into effect up to September 30, 1892, the increase being in some almost wholly and in others in an important degree the result of these agreements.

The domestic exports to Germany and Austria-Hungary have increased in value from $47,673,756 to $57,993,064, an increase of $10,319,308, or 21.63 per cent. With American countries the value of our exports has increased from $44,160,285 to $54,613,598, an increase of $10,453,313, or 23.67 per cent. The total increase in the value of exports to all the countries with which we have reciprocity agreements has been $20,772,621. This increase is chiefly in wheat, flour, meat, and dairy products, and in manufactures of iron and steel and lumber. There has been a large increase in the value of imports from all these countries since the commercial agreements went into effect, amounting to $74,294,525, but it has been entirely in imports from the American countries, consisting mostly of sugar, coffee, India rubber, and crude drugs. The alarmed attention of our European competitors for the South American market has been attracted to this new American policy, and to our acquisition and their loss of South American trade.

A treaty providing for the arbitration of the dispute between Great Britain and the United States as to the killing of seals in the Bering Sea was concluded on the 29th of February last. This treaty was accompanied by an agreement prohibiting pelagic sealing pending the arbitration, and a vigorous effort was made during this season to drive out all poaching sealers from the Bering Sea. Six naval vessels, three revenue cutters, and one vessel from the Fish Commission, all under the command of Commander Evans of the Navy, were sent into the sea, which was systematically patrolled. Some seizures were made, and it is believed that the catch in the Bering Sea by poachers amounted to less than five hundred seals. It is true, however, that in the North Pacific, while the seal herds were on their way to the passes between the Aleutian Islands, a very large number, probably 35,000, were taken. The existing statutes of the United States do not restrain our citizens from taking seals in the Pacific Ocean, and perhaps should not, unless the prohibition can be extended to the citizens of other nations. I recommend that power be given to the President, by proclamation, to prohibit the taking of seals in the North Pacific by American vessels, in case, either as the result of the findings of the tribunal of arbitration, or otherwise, the restraints can be applied to the vessels of all countries. The case of the United States for the tribunal of arbitration has been prepared with great care and industry by the Hon. John W. Foster, and the counsel who represent this Government express confidence that a result substantially establishing our claims and preserving this great industry for the benefit of all nations will be attained.

During the past year, a suggestion was received through the British minister that the Canadian Government would like to confer as to the possibility of enlarging, upon terms of mutual advantage, the commercial exchanges of Canada and of the United States, and a conference was held at Washington, with Mr. Blaine acting for this Government, and the British minister at this capital and three members of the Dominion cabinet acting as commissioners on the part of Great Britain. The conference developed the fact that the Canadian Government was only prepared to offer to the United States, in exchange for the concessions asked, the admission of natural products. The statement was frankly made that favored rates could not be given to the United States as against the mother country. This admission, which was foreseen, necessarily terminated the conference upon this question. The benefits of an exchange of natural products would be almost wholly with the people of Canada. Some other topics of interest were considered in the conference, and have resulted in the making of a convention for examining the Alaskan boundary and the waters of Passamaquoddy Bay adjacent to Eastport, Me., and in the initiation of an arrangement for the protection of fish life in the coterminous and neighboring waters of our northern border.

The controversy as to tolls upon the Welland Canal, which was presented to Congress at the last session by special message, having failed of adjustment, I felt constrained to exercise the authority conferred by the act of July 26, 1892, and to proclaim a suspension of the free use of St. Marys Falls Canal to cargoes in transit to ports in Canada. The Secretary of the Treasury established such tolls as were thought to be equivalent to the exactions unjustly levied upon our commerce in the Canadian canals.

If, as we must suppose, the political relations of Canada and the disposition of the Canadian government are to remain unchanged a somewhat radical revision of our trade relations should, I think, be made. Our relations must continue to be intimate, and they should be friendly. I regret to say, however, that in many of the controversies, notably those as to the fisheries on the Atlantic, the sealing interests on the Pacific, and the canal tolls, our negotiations with Great Britain have continuously been thwarted or retarded by unreasonable and unfriendly objections and protests from Canada. In the matter of the canal tolls our treaty rights were flagrantly disregarded. It is hardly too much to say that the Canadian Pacific and other railway lines which parallel our northern boundary are sustained by commerce having either its origin or terminus, or both, in the United States. Canadian railroads compete with those of the United States for our traffic, and without the restraints of our interstate-commerce act. Their cars pass almost without detention into and out of our territory.

The Canadian Pacific Railway brought into the United States from China and Japan, via British Columbia, during the year ended June 30, 1892, 23,239,689 pounds of freight, and it carried from the United States to be shipped to China and Japan, via British Columbia, 24,068,346 pounds of freight. There were also shipped from the United States over this road from eastern ports of the United States to our Pacific ports, during the same year, 13,912,073 pounds of freight, and there were received over this road at the United States eastern ports from ports on the Pacific coast 13,293,315 pounds of freight. Mr. Joseph Nimmo, jr., former chief of the Bureau of Statistics, when before the Senate Select Committee on Relations with Canada, April 26, 1890, said that "the value of goods thus transported between different points in the United States across Canadian territory probably amounts to $100,000,000 a year."

There is no disposition on the part of the people or Government of the United States to interfere in the smallest degree with the political relations of Canada. That question is wholly with her own people. It is time for us, however, to consider whether, if the present state of things and trend of things is to continue, our interchanges upon lines of land transportation should not be put upon a different basis, and our entire independence of Canadian canals and of the St. Lawrence as an outlet to the sea secured by the construction of an American canal around the Falls of Niagara and the opening of ship communication between the Great Lakes and one of our own seaports. We should not hesitate to avail ourselves of our great natural trade advantages. We should withdraw the support which is given to the railroads and steamship lines of Canada by a traffic that properly belongs to us, and no longer furnish the earnings which lighten the otherwise crushing weight of the enormous public subsidies that have been given to them. The subject of the power of the Treasury to deal with this matter without further legislation has been under consideration, but circumstances have postponed a conclusion. It is probable that a consideration of the propriety of a modification or abrogation of the article of the Treaty of Washington relating to the transit of goods in bond is involved in any complete solution of the question.

Congress at the last session was kept advised of the progress of the serious and for a time threatening differences between the United States and Chile. It gives me now great gratification to report that the Chilean Government, in a most friendly and honorable spirit, has tendered and paid as an indemnity to the families of the sailors of the Baltimore who were killed and to those who were injured in the outbreak in the city of Valparaiso the sum of $75,000. This has been accepted, not only as an indemnity for a wrong done, but as a most gratifying evidence that the Government of Chile rightly appreciates the disposition of this Government to act in a spirit of the most absolute fairness and friendliness in our intercourse with that brave people. A further and conclusive evidence of the mutual respect and confidence now existing is furnished by the fact that a convention submitting to arbitration the mutual claims of the citizens of the respective governments has been agreed upon. Some of these claims have been pending for many years and have been the occasion of much unsatisfactory diplomatic correspondence.

I have endeavored in every way to assure our sister republics of Central and South America that the United States Government and its people have only the most friendly disposition toward them all. We do not covet their territory. We have no disposition to be oppressive or exacting in our dealings with any of them, even the weakest. Our interests and our hopes for them all lie in the direction of stable governments by their people and of the largest development of their great commercial resources. The mutual benefits of enlarged commercial exchanges and of a more familiar and friendly intercourse between our peoples we do desire, and in this have sought their friendly coöperation.

I have believed, however, while holding these sentiments in the greatest sincerity, that we must insist upon a just responsibility for any injuries inflicted upon our official representatives or upon our citizens. This insistence, kindly and justly, but firmly made, will, I believe, promote peace and mutual respect.

Our relations with Hawaii have been such as to attract an increased interest, and must continue to do so. I deem it of great importance that the projected submarine cable, a survey for which has been made, should be promoted. Both for naval and commercial uses we should have quick communication with Honolulu. We should before this have availed ourselves of the concession, made many years ago to this Government, for a harbor and naval station at Pearl River. Many evidences of the friendliness of the Hawaiian Government have been given in the past, and it is gratifying to believe that the advantage and necessity of a continuance of very close relations is appreciated.

The friendly act of this Government in expressing to the Government of Italy its reprobation and abhorrence of the lynching of Italian subjects in New Orleans, by the payment of 125,000 francs, or $24,330.90, was accepted by the King of Italy with every manifestation of gracious appreciation, and the incident has been highly promotive of mutual respect and good will.

In consequence of the action of the French Government in proclaiming a protectorate over certain tribal districts of the west coast of Africa, eastward of the San Pedro River, which has long been regarded as the southeastern boundary of Liberia, I have felt constrained to make protest against this encroachment upon the territory of a republic which was founded by citizens of the United States and toward which this country has for many years held the intimate relation of a friendly counselor.

The recent disturbances of the public peace by lawless foreign marauders on the Mexican frontier have afforded this Government an opportunity to testify its good will for Mexico and its earnest purpose to fulfill the obligations of international friendship by pursuing and dispersing the evildoers. The work of relocating the boundary of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, westward from El Paso, is progressing favorably.

Our intercourse with Spain continues on a friendly footing. I regret, however, not to be able to report as yet the adjustment of the claims of the American missionaries arising from the disorders at Ponape, in the Caroline Islands, but I anticipate a satisfactory adjustment in view of renewed and urgent representations to the Government at Madrid.

The treatment of the religious and educational establishments of American citizens in Turkey has of late called for a more than usual share of attention. A tendency to curtail the toleration which has so beneficially prevailed is discernible and has called forth the earnest remonstrances of this Government. Harassing regulations in regard to schools and churches have been attempted in certain localities, but not without due protest and the assertion of the inherent and conventional rights of our countrymen. Violations of domicile and search of the persons and effects of citizens of the United States by apparently irresponsible officials in the Asiatic vilayets have from time to time been reported. An aggravated instance of injury to the property of an American missionary at Bourdour, in the province of Konia, called forth an urgent claim for reparation, which I am pleased to say was promptly heeded by the government of the Porte. Interference with the trading ventures of our citizens in Asia Minor is also reported, and the lack of consular representation in that region is a serious drawback to instant and effective protection. I can not believe that these incidents represent a settled policy, and shall not cease to urge the adoption of proper remedies.

International copyright has been extended to Italy by proclamation in conformity with the act of March 3, 1891, upon assurance being given that Italian law permits to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to subjects of Italy. By a special convention, proclaimed January 15, 1892, reciprocal provisions of copyright have been applied between the United States and Germany. Negotiations are in progress with other countries to the same end.

I repeat with great earnestness the recommendation which I have made in several previous messages that prompt and adequate support be given to the American company engaged in the construction of the Nicaragua Ship Canal. It is impossible to overstate the value from every standpoint of this great enterprise, and I hope that there may be time, even in this Congress, to give to it an impetus that will insure the early completion of the canal and secure to the United States its proper relation to it when completed.

The Congress has been already advised that the invitations of this Government for the assembling of an International Monetary Conference to consider the question of an enlarged use of silver were accepted by the nations to which they were addressed. The conference assembled at Brussels on the 22d of November and has entered upon the consideration of this great question. I have not doubted, and have taken occasion to express that belief, as well in the invitations issued for this conference as in my public messages, that the free coinage of silver upon an agreed international ratio would greatly promote the interests of our people and equally those of other nations. It is too early to predict what results may be accomplished by the conference. If any temporary check or delay intervenes, I believe that very soon commercial conditions will compel the now reluctant governments to unite with us in this movement to secure the enlargement of the volume of coined money needed for the transaction of the business of the world.

The report of the Secretary of the Treasury will attract especial interest in view of the many misleading statements that have been made as to the state of the public revenues. Three preliminary facts should not only be stated, but emphasized, before looking into details: First, that the public debt has been reduced since March 4, 1889, $259,074,200, and the annual interest charge $11,684,469; second, that there have been paid out for pensions during this administration up to November 1, 1892, $432,564,178.70, an excess of $114,466,386.09 over the sum expended during the period from March 1, 1885, to March 1, 1889; and, third, that under the existing tariff up to December 1, about $93,000,000 of revenue, which would have been collected upon imported sugars if the duty had been maintained, has gone into the pockets of the people and not into the public treasury, as before. If there are any who still think that the surplus should have been kept out of circulation by hoarding it in the Treasury, or deposited in favored banks without interest while the Government continued to pay to these very banks interest upon the bonds deposited as security for the deposits, or who think that the extended pension legislation was a public robbery, or that the duties upon sugar should have been maintained, I am content to leave the argument where it now rests, while we wait to see whether these criticisms will take the form of legislation.

The revenues for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, from all sources were $425,868,260.22, and the expenditures for all purposes were $415,953,806.56, leaving a balance of $9,914,453.66. There were paid during the year upon the public debt $40,570,467.98. The surplus in the Treasury and the bank redemption fund, passed by the act of July 14, 1890, to the general fund, furnished in large part the cash available and used for the payments made upon the public debt. Compared with the year 1891, our receipts from customs duties fell off $42,069,241.08, while our receipts from internal revenue increased $8,284,823.13, leaving the net loss of revenue from these principal sources $33,784,417.95. The net loss of revenue from all sources was $32,675,972.81.

The revenues, estimated and actual, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, are placed by the Secretary at $463,336,350.44 and the expenditures at $461,336,350.44, showing a surplus of receipts over expenditures of $2,000,000. The cash balance in the Treasury at the end of the fiscal year it is estimated will be $20,992,377.03.

So far as these figures are based upon estimates of receipts and expenditures for the remaining months of the current fiscal year, there are not only the usual elements of uncertainty, but some added elements. New revenue legislation, or even the expectation of it, may seriously reduce the public revenues during the period of uncertainty and during the process of business adjustment to the new conditions when they become known. But the Secretary has very wisely refrained from guessing as to the effect of possible changes in our revenue laws, since the scope of those changes and the time of their taking effect can not in any degree be forecast or foretold by him. His estimates must be based upon existing laws and upon a continuance of existing business conditions, except so far as these conditions may be affected by causes other than new legislation.

The estimated receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, are $490,121,365.38, and the estimated appropriations $457,261,335.33, leaving an estimated surplus of receipts over expenditures of $32,860,030.05. This does not include any payment to the sinking fund. In the recommendation of the Secretary that the sinking-fund law be repealed I concur. The redemption of bonds since the passage of the law to June 30, 1892, has already exceeded the requirements by the sum of $990,510,681.49. The retirement of bonds in the future before maturity should be a matter of convenience, not of compulsion. We should not collect revenue for that purpose, but only use any casual surplus. To the balance of $32,860,030.05 of receipts over expenditures for the year 1894 should be added the estimated surplus at the beginning of the year, $20,992,377.03; and from this aggregate there must be deducted, as stated by the Secretary, about $44,000,000 of estimated unexpended appropriations.

The public confidence in the purpose and ability of the Government to maintain the parity of all of our money issues, whether coin or paper, must remain unshaken. The demand for gold in Europe and the consequent calls upon us are in a considerable degree the result of the efforts of some of the European governments to increase their gold reserves, and these efforts should be met by appropriate legislation on our part. The conditions that have created this drain of the Treasury gold are in an important degree political and not commercial. In view of the fact that a general revision of our revenue laws in the near future seems to be probable, it would be better that any changes should be a part of that revision rather than of a temporary nature.

During the last fiscal year the Secretary purchased, under the act of July 14, 1890, 54,355,748 ounces of silver, and issued in payment therefor $51,106,608 in notes. The total purchases since the passage of the act have been 120,479,981 ounces, and the aggregate of notes issued $116,783,590. The average price paid for silver during the year was 94 cents per ounce, the highest price being $1.02¼, July 1, 1891, and the lowest 83 cents, March 21, 1892. In view of the fact that the monetary conference is now sitting and that no conclusion has yet been reached, I will hold any recommendation as to legislation upon this subject.

The report of the Secretary of War brings again to the attention of Congress some important suggestions as to the reorganization of the infantry and artillery arms of the service, which his predecessors have before urgently presented. Our Army is small, but its organization should all the more be put upon the most approved modern basis. The conditions upon what we have called the "frontier" have heretofore required the maintenance of many small posts, but now the policy of concentration is obviously the right one. The new posts should have the proper strategic relations to the only "frontiers" we now have, those of the seacoast and of our northern and part of our southern boundary. I do not think that any question of advantage to localities or to States should determine the location of the new posts. The reorganization and enlargement of the Bureau of Military Information which the Secretary has effected is a work the usefulness of which will become every year more apparent. The work of building heavy guns and the construction of coast defenses have been well begun and should be carried on without check.

The report of the Attorney-General is by law submitted directly to Congress, but I can not refrain from saying that he has conducted the increasing work of the Department of Justice with great professional skill. He has in several directions secured from the courts decisions giving increased protection to the officers of the United States and bringing some classes of crime that escaped local cognizance and punishment into the tribunals of the United States, where they could be tried with impartiality.

The numerous applications for Executive clemency presented in behalf of persons convicted in United States courts and given penitentiary sentences have called my attention to a fact referred to by the Attorney-General in his report, namely, that a time allowance for good behavior for such prisoners is prescribed by the Federal statutes only where the State in which the penitentiary is located has made no such provision. Prisoners are given the benefit of the provisions of the State law regulating the penitentiary to which they may be sent. These are various, some perhaps too liberal and some perhaps too illiberal. The result is that a sentence for five years means one thing if the prisoner is sent to one State for confinement and quite a different thing if he is sent to another. I recommend that a uniform credit for good behavior be prescribed by Congress.

I have before expressed my concurrence in the recommendation of the Attorney-General that degrees of murder should be recognized in the Federal statutes, as they are, I believe, in all the States. These grades are founded on correct distinctions in crime. The recognition of them would enable the courts to exercise some discretion in apportioning punishment, and would greatly relieve the Executive of what is coming to be a very heavy burden—the examination of these cases on application for commutation.

The aggregate of claims pending against the Government in the Court of Claims is enormous. Claims to the amount of nearly $400,000,000 for the taking of or injury to the property of persons claiming to be loyal during the war are now before that court for examination. When to these are added the Indian depredation claims and the French spoliation claims an aggregate is reached that is indeed startling. In the defense of all these cases the Government is at great disadvantage. The claimants have preserved their evidence, whereas the agents of the Government are sent into the field to rummage for what they can find. This difficulty is peculiarly great where the fact to be established is the disloyalty of the claimant during the war. If this great threat against our revenues is to have no other check certainly Congress should supply the Department of Justice with appropriations sufficiently liberal to secure the best legal talent in the defense of these claims and to pursue its vague search for evidence effectively.

The report of the Postmaster-General shows a most gratifying increase and a most efficient and progressive management of the great business of that Department. The remarkable increase in revenues, in the number of post-offices, and in the miles of mail carriage furnishes further evidence of the high state of prosperity which our people are enjoying. New offices mean new hamlets and towns; new routes mean the extension of our border settlements, and increased revenues mean an active commerce. The Postmaster-General reviews the whole period of his administration of the office and brings some of his statistics down to the month of November last. The postal revenues have increased during the last year nearly $5,000,000. The deficit for the year ending June 30, 1892, is $848,341 less than the deficiency of the preceding year. The deficiency of the present fiscal year it is estimated will be reduced to $1,552,423, which will not only be extinguished during the next fiscal year, but a surplus of nearly $1,000,000 should then be shown. In these calculations the payments to be made under the contracts for ocean mail service have not been included.

There have been added 1,590 new mail routes during the year, with a mileage of 8,563 miles; and the total number of new miles of mail trips added during the year is nearly 17,000,000. The number of miles of mail journeys added during the last four years is about 76,000,000, this addition being 21,000,000 of miles more than were in operation in the whole country in 1861.

The number of post-offices has been increased by 2,790 during the year; and during the past four years and up to October 29 last the total increase in the number of offices has been nearly 9,000. The number of free-delivery offices has been nearly doubled in the last four years, and the number of money-order offices more than doubled within that time.

For the three years ending June 30, 1892, the postal revenue amounted to $197,744,359, which was an increase of $52,263,150 over the revenue for the three years ending June 30, 1888, the increase during the last three years being more than three and a half times as great as the increase during the three years ending June 30, 1888. No such increase as that shown for these three years has ever previously appeared in the revenues of the Department. The Postmaster-General has extended to the post-offices in the larger cities the merit system of promotion, introduced by my direction into the Departments here, and it has resulted there, as in the Departments, in a larger volume of work, and that better done.

Ever since our merchant marine was driven from the sea by the rebel cruisers during the war of the rebellion the United States has been paying an enormous annual tribute to foreign countries in the shape of freight and passage moneys. Our grain and meats have been taken at our own docks and our large imports there laid down by foreign shipmasters. An increasing torrent of American travel to Europe has contributed a vast sum annually to the dividends of foreign shipowners. The balance of trade shown by the books of our custom-houses has been very largely reduced and in many years altogether extinguished by this constant drain. In the year 1892 only 12.3 per cent of our imports were brought in American vessels. These great foreign steamships maintained by our traffic are many of them under contracts with their respective governments by which in time of war they will become a part of their armed naval establishments. Profiting by our commerce in peace, they will become the most formidable destroyers of our commerce in time of war. I have felt and have before expressed the feeling that this condition of things was both intolerable and disgraceful. A wholesome change of policy and one having in it much promise, as it seems to me, was begun by the law of March 3, 1891. Under this law contracts have been made by the Postmaster-General for eleven mail routes. The expenditure involved by these contracts for the next fiscal year approximates $954,123.33. As one of the results already reached sixteen American steamships of an aggregate tonnage of 57,400 tons, costing $7,400,000, have been built or contracted to be built in American shipyards.

The estimated tonnage of all steamships required under existing contracts is 165,802, and when the full service required by these contracts is established there will be forty-one mail steamers under the American flag, with the probability of further necessary additions in the Brazilian and Argentine service. The contracts recently let for transatlantic service will result in the construction of five ships of 10,000 tons each, costing nine or ten million dollars, and will add, with the City of New York and City of Paris, to which the Treasury Department was authorized by legislation at the last session to give American registry, seven of the swiftest vessels upon the sea to our naval reserve. The contracts made with the lines sailing to Central and South American ports have increased the frequency and shortened the time of the trips, added new ports of call, and sustained some lines that otherwise would almost certainly have been withdrawn. The service to Buenos Ayres is the first to the Argentine Republic under the American flag. The service to Southampton, Boulogne, and Antwerp is also new, and is to be begun with the steamships City of New York and City of Paris in February next.

I earnestly urge a continuance of the policy inaugurated by this legislation and that the appropriations required to meet the obligations of the Government under the contracts may be made promptly, so that the lines that have entered into these engagements may not be embarrassed. We have had, by reason of connections with the transcontinental railway lines constructed through our own territory, some advantages in the ocean trade of the Pacific that we did not possess on the Atlantic. The construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the establishment under large subventions from Canada and England of fast steamship service from Vancouver with Japan and China seriously threaten our shipping interests in the Pacific. This line of English steamers receives, as is stated by the Commissioner of Navigation, a direct subsidy of $400,000 annually, or $30,767 per trip for thirteen voyages, in addition to some further aid from the admiralty in connection with contracts under which the vessels may be used for naval purposes. The competing American Pacific mail line, under the act of March 3, 1891, receives only $6,389 per round trip.

Efforts have been making within the last year, as I am informed, to establish under similar conditions a line between Vancouver and some Australian port, with a view of seizing there a trade in which we have had a large interest. The Commissioner of Navigation states that a very large per cent of our imports from Asia are now brought to us by English steamships and their connecting railways in Canada. With a view of promoting this trade, especially in tea, Canada has imposed a discriminating duty of 10 per cent upon tea and coffee brought into the Dominion from the United States. If this unequal contest between American lines without subsidy, or with diminished subsidies, and the English Canadian line to which I have referred is to continue, I think we should at least see that the facilities for customs entry and transportation across our territory are not such as to make the Canadian route a favored one, and that the discrimination as to duties, to which I have referred, is met by a like discrimination as to the importation of these articles from Canada.

No subject, I think, more nearly touches the pride, the power, and the prosperity of our country than this of the development of our merchant marine upon the sea. If we could enter into conference with other competitors and all would agree to withhold Government aid we could perhaps take our chances with the rest, but our great competitors have established and maintained their lines by Government subsidies until they now have practically excluded us from participation. In my opinion no choice is left to us but to pursue, moderately at least, the same lines.

The report of the Secretary of the Navy exhibits great progress in the construction of our new Navy. When the present Secretary entered upon his duties only three modern steel vessels were in commission. The vessels since put in commission and to be put in commission during the winter will make a total of nineteen during his administration of the Department. During the current year ten war vessels and three navy tugs have been launched, and during the four years twenty-five vessels will have been launched. Two other large ships and a torpedo boat are under contract and work upon them well advanced, and the four monitors are awaiting only the arrival of their armor, which has been unexpectedly delayed, or they would have been before this in commission.

Contracts have been let during this Administration, under the appropriations for the increase of the Navy, including new vessels and their appurtenances, to the amount of $35,000,000, and there has been expended during the same period for labor at navy-yards upon similar work $8,000,000 without the smallest scandal or charge of fraud or partiality. The enthusiasm and interest of our naval officers, both of the staff and line, have been greatly kindled. They have responded magnificently to the confidence of Congress, and have demonstrated to the world an unexcelled capacity in construction, in ordnance, and in everything involved in the building, equipping, and sailing of great war ships.

At the beginning of Secretary Tracy's administration several difficult problems remained to be grappled with and solved before the efficiency in action of our ships could be secured. It is believed that as the result of new processes in the construction of armor-plate our later ships will be clothed with defensive plates of higher resisting power than are found on any war vessels afloat. We were without torpedoes. Tests have been made to ascertain the relative efficiency of different constructions, a torpedo has been adopted, and the work of construction is now being carried on successfully. We were without armor-piercing shells, and without a shop instructed and equipped for the construction of them. We are now making what is believed to be a projectile superior to any before in use. A smokeless powder has been developed, and a slow-burning powder for guns of large caliber. A high explosive, capable of use in shells fired from service guns, has been found, and the manufacture of gun cotton has been developed so that the question of supply is no longer in doubt.

The development of a naval militia, which has been organized in eight States and brought into cordial and coöperative relations with the Navy, is another important achievement. There are now enlisted in these organizations 1,800 men, and they are likely to be greatly extended. I recommend such legislation and appropriations as will encourage and develop this movement. The recommendations of the Secretary will, I do not doubt, receive the friendly consideration of Congress, for he has enjoyed, as he has deserved, the confidence of all those interested in the development of our Navy, without any division upon partisan lines. I earnestly express the hope that a work which has made such noble progress may not now be stayed. The wholesome influence for peace and the increased sense of security which our citizens domiciled in other lands feel when these magnificent ships under the American flag appear is already most gratefully apparent. The ships from our Navy which will appear in the great naval parade next April in the harbor of New York will be a convincing demonstration to the world that the United States is again a naval power.

The work of the Interior Department, always very burdensome, has been larger than ever before during the administration of Secretary Noble. The disability pension law, the taking of the Eleventh Census, the opening of vast areas of Indian lands to settlement, the organization of Oklahoma, and the negotiations for the cession of Indian lands furnish some of the particulars of the increased work; and the results achieved testify to the ability, fidelity, and industry of the head of the Department and his efficient assistants.

Several important agreements for the cession of Indian lands negotiated by the Commission appointed under the act of March 2, 1889, are awaiting the action of Congress. Perhaps the most important of these is that for the cession of the Cherokee Strip. This region has been the source of great vexation to the executive department and of great friction and unrest between the settlers who desire to occupy it and the Indians who assert title. The agreement which has been made by the Commission is perhaps the most satisfactory that could have been reached. It will be noticed that it is conditioned upon its ratification by Congress before March 4, 1893. The Secretary of the Interior, who has given the subject very careful thought, recommends the ratification of the agreement, and I am inclined to follow his recommendation. Certain it is that some action by which this controversy shall be brought to an end and these lands opened to settlement is urgent.

The form of government provided by Congress on May 17, 1884, for Alaska was, in its frame and purpose, temporary. The increase of population and the development of some important mining and commercial interests make it imperative that the law should be revised and better provision made for the arrest and punishment of criminals.

The report of the Secretary shows a very gratifying state of facts as to the condition of the General Land Office. The work of issuing agricultural patents, which seemed to be hopelessly in arrear when the present Secretary undertook the duties of his office, has been so expedited that the Bureau is now upon current business. The relief thus afforded to honest and worthy settlers upon the public lands, by giving to them an assured title to their entries, has been of incalculable benefit in developing the new States and the Territories.

The Court of Private Land Claims established by Congress for the promotion of this policy of speedily settling contested land titles is making satisfactory progress in its work, and when the work is completed a great impetus will be given to the development of those regions where unsettled claims under Mexican grants have so long exercised their repressive influence. When to these results are added the enormous cessions of Indian lands which have been opened to settlement, aggregating during this Administration nearly 26,000,000 acres, and the agreements negotiated and now pending in Congress for ratification by which about 10,000,000 additional acres will be opened to settlement, it will be seen how much has been accomplished.

The work in the Indian Bureau, in the execution of the policy of recent legislation, has been largely directed to two chief purposes: First, the allotment of lands in severalty to the Indians and the cession to the United States of the surplus lands, and, secondly, to the work of educating the Indian for his own protection in his closer contact with the white man and for the intelligent exercise of his new citizenship. Allotments have been made and patents issued to 5,900 Indians under the present Secretary and Commissioner, and 7,600 additional allotments have been made for which patents are now in process of preparation. The school attendance of Indian children has been increased during that time over 13 per cent, the enrollment for 1892 being nearly twenty thousand. A uniform system of school text-books and of study has been adopted and the work in these national schools brought as near as may be to the basis of the free common schools of the States. These schools can be transferred and merged into the common-school systems of the States when the Indian has fully assumed his new relation to the organized civil community in which he resides, and the new States are able to assume the burden.

I have several times been called upon to remove Indian agents appointed by me, and have done so promptly upon every sustained complaint of unfitness or misconduct. I believe, however, that the Indian service at the agencies has been improved and is now administered on the whole with a good degree of efficiency. If any legislation is possible by which the selection of Indian agents can be wholly removed from all partisan suggestions or considerations, I am sure it would be a great relief to the Executive and a great benefit to the service. The appropriation for the subsistence of the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians made at the last session of Congress was inadequate. This smaller appropriation was estimated for by the Commissioner upon the theory that the large fund belonging to the tribe in the public Treasury could be and ought to be used for their support. In view, however, of the pending depredation claims against this fund and other considerations, the Secretary of the Interior on the 12th of April last submitted a supplemental estimate for $50,000. This appropriation was not made, as it should have been, and the oversight ought to be remedied at the earliest possible date.

In a special message to this Congress at the last session I stated the reasons why I had not approved the deed for the release to the United States by the Choctaws and Chickasaws of the lands formerly embraced in the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Reservation and remaining after allotments to that tribe. A resolution of the Senate expressing the opinion of that body that, notwithstanding the facts stated in my special message, the deed should be approved and the money, $2,991,450, paid over, was presented to me May 10, 1892. My special message was intended to call the attention of Congress to the subject, and in view of the fact that it is conceded that the appropriation proceeded upon a false basis as to the amount of lands to be paid for, and is by $50,000 in excess of the amount they are entitled to (even if their claim to the land is given full recognition at the rate agreed upon), I have not felt willing to approve the deed, and shall not do so, at least until both Houses of Congress have acted upon the subject. It has been informally proposed by the claimants to release this sum of $50,000, but I have no power to demand or accept such a release, and such an agreement would be without consideration and void.

I desire further to call the attention of Congress to the fact that the recent agreement concluded with the Kiowas and Comanches relates to lands which were a part of the "leased district," and to which the claim of the Choctaws and Chickasaws is precisely that recognized by Congress in the legislation I have referred to. The surplus lands to which this claim would attach in the Kiowa and Comanche Reservation is 2,500,000 acres, and at the same rate the Government will be called upon to pay to the Choctaws and Chickasaws for these lands $3,125,000. This sum will be further augmented, especially if the title of the Indians to the tract now Grier County, Tex., is established. The duty devolved upon me in this connection was simply to pass upon the form of the deed, but as in my opinion the facts mentioned in my special message were not adequately brought to the attention of Congress in connection with the legislation, I have felt that I would not be justified in acting without some new expression of the legislative will.

The report of the Commissioner of Pensions, to which extended notice is given by the Secretary of the Interior in his report, will attract great attention. Judged by the aggregate amount of work done, the last year has been the greatest in the history of the office. I believe that the organization of the office is efficient, and that the work has been done with fidelity. The passage of what is known as the disability bill has, as was foreseen, very largely increased the annual disbursements to the disabled veterans of the civil war. The estimate for this fiscal year was $144,956,000, and that amount was appropriated. A deficiency amounting to $10,508,621 must be provided for at this session. The estimate for pensions for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, is $165,000,000. The Commissioner of Pensions believes that, if the present legislation and methods are maintained and further additions to the pension laws are not made, the maximum expenditure for pensions will be reached June 30, 1894, and will be at the highest point $188,000,000 per annum.

I adhere to the views expressed in previous messages that the care of the disabled soldiers of the war of the rebellion is a matter of national concern and duty. Perhaps no emotion cools sooner than that of gratitude, but I can not believe that this process has yet reached a point with our people that would sustain the policy of remitting the care of these disabled veterans to the inadequate agencies provided by local laws. The parade on the 20th of September last, upon the streets of this capital, of 60,000 of the surviving Union veterans of the war of the rebellion was a most touching and thrilling episode, and the rich and gracious welcome extended to them by the District of Columbia and the applause that greeted their progress from tens of thousands of people from all the States did much to revive the glorious recollections of the grand review, when these men and many thousand others now in their graves were welcomed with grateful joy as victors in a struggle in which the national unity, honor, and wealth were all at issue.

In my last annual message I called attention to the fact that some legislative action was necessary in order to protect the interests of the Government in its relations with the Union Pacific Railway. The Commissioner of Railroads has submitted a very full report, giving exact information as to the debt, the liens upon the company's property, and its resources. We must deal with the question as we find it, and take that course which will, under existing conditions, best secure the interests of the United States. I recommended in my last annual message that a commission be appointed to deal with this question, and I renew that recommendation, and suggest that the commission be given full power.

The report of the Secretary of Agriculture contains not only a most interesting statement of the progressive and valuable work done under the administration of Secretary Rusk, but many suggestions for the enlarged usefulness of this important Department. In the successful effort to break down the restrictions to the free introduction of our meat products in the countries of Europe, the Secretary has been untiring from the first, stimulating and aiding all other Government officers, at home and abroad, whose official duties enabled them to participate in the work. The total trade in hog products with Europe in May, 1892, amounted to 82,000,000 pounds, against 46,900,000 in the same month of 1891; in June, 1892, the exports aggregated 85,700,000 pounds, against 46,500,000 pounds in the same month of the previous year; in July there was an increase of 41 per cent and in August of 55 per cent over the corresponding months of 1891.

Over 40,000,000 pounds of inspected pork have been exported since the law was put into operation, and a comparison of the four months of May, June, July, and August, 1892, with the same months of 1891 shows an increase in the number of pounds of our export of pork products of 62 per cent, and an increase in value of 66½ per cent. The exports of dressed beef increased from 137,900,000 pounds in 1889 to 220,500,000 pounds in 1892, or about 60 per cent. During the past year there have been exported 394,607 head of live cattle as against 205,786 exported in 1889. This increased exportation has been largely promoted by the inspection authorized by law and the faithful efforts of the Secretary and his efficient subordinates to make that inspection thorough and to carefully exclude from all cargoes diseased or suspected cattle. The requirement of the English regulations that live cattle arriving from the United States must be slaughtered at the docks had its origin in the claim that pleuropneumonia existed among American cattle and that the existence of the disease could only certainly be determined by a post-mortem inspection.

The Department of Agriculture has labored with great energy and faithfulness to extirpate this disease, and on the 26th day of September last a public announcement was made by the Secretary that the disease no longer existed anywhere within the United States. He is entirely satisfied, after the most searching inquiry, that this statement was justified, and that by a continuance of the inspection and quarantine now required of cattle brought into this country the disease can be prevented from again getting any foothold. The value to the cattle industry of the United States of this achievement can hardly be estimated. We can not, perhaps, at once insist that this evidence shall be accepted as satisfactory by other countries; but if the present exemption from the disease is maintained and the inspection of our cattle arriving at foreign ports, in which our own veterinarians participate, confirms it, we may justly expect that the requirement that our cattle shall be slaughtered at the docks will be revoked, as the sanitary restrictions upon our pork products have been. If our cattle can be taken alive to the interior the trade will be enormously increased.

Agricultural products constituted 78.1 per cent of our unprecedented exports for the fiscal year which closed June 30, 1892, the total exports being $1,030,278,030 and the value of the agricultural products $793,717,676, which exceeds by more than $150,000,000 the shipment of agricultural products in any previous year.

An interesting and a promising work for the benefit of the American farmer has been begun through agents of the Agricultural Department in Europe, and consists in efforts to introduce the various products of Indian corn as articles of human food. The high price of rye offered a favorable opportunity for the experiment in Germany of combining corn meal with rye to produce a cheaper bread. A fair degree of success has been attained, and some mills for grinding corn for food have been introduced. The Secretary is of the opinion that this new use of the products of corn has already stimulated exportations, and that if diligently prosecuted, large and important markets can presently be opened for this great American product.

The suggestions of the Secretary for an enlargement of the work of the Department are commended to your favorable consideration. It may, I think, be said without challenge that in no corresponding period has so much been done as during the last four years for the benefit of American agriculture.

The subject of quarantine regulations, inspection, and control was brought suddenly to my attention by the arrival at our ports in August last of vessels infected with cholera. Quarantine regulations should be uniform at all our ports. Under the Constitution they are plainly within the exclusive Federal jurisdiction when and so far as Congress shall legislate. In my opinion the whole subject should be taken into national control, and adequate power given to the Executive to protect our people against plague invasions. On the 1st of September last I approved regulations establishing a twenty-day quarantine for all vessels bringing immigrants from foreign ports. This order will be continued in force. Some loss and suffering have resulted to passengers, but a due care for the homes of our people justifies in such cases the utmost precaution. There is danger that with the coming of spring cholera will again appear, and a liberal appropriation should be made at this session to enable our quarantine and port officers to exclude the deadly plague.

But the most careful and stringent quarantine regulations may not be sufficient absolutely to exclude the disease. The progress of medical and sanitary science has been such, however, that if approved precautions are taken at once to put all of our cities and towns in the best sanitary condition, and provision is made for isolating any sporadic cases, and for a thorough disinfection, an epidemic can, I am sure, be avoided. This work appertains to the local authorities, and the responsibility and the penalty will be appalling if it is neglected or unduly delayed.

We are peculiarly subject in our great ports to the spread of infectious diseases by reason of the fact that unrestricted immigration brings to us out of European cities, in the overcrowded steerages of great steamships, a large number of persons whose surroundings make them the easy victims of the plague. This consideration, as well as those affecting the political, moral, and industrial interests of our country, lead me to renew the suggestion that admission to our country and to the high privileges of its citizenship should be more restricted and more careful. We have, I think, a right, and owe a duty to our own people, and especially to our working people, not only to keep out the vicious, the ignorant, the civil disturber, the pauper, and the contract laborer, but to check the too great flow of immigration now coming by further limitations.

The report of the World's Columbian Exposition has not yet been submitted. That of the Board of Management of the Government exhibit has been received and is herewith transmitted. The work of construction and of preparation for the opening of the Exposition in May next has progressed most satisfactorily and upon a scale of liberality and magnificence that will worthily sustain the honor of the United States.

The District of Columbia is left, by a decision of the supreme court of the District, without any law regulating the liquor traffic. An old statute of the legislature of the District, relating to the licensing of various vocations, has hitherto been treated by the Commissioners as giving them power to grant or refuse licenses to sell intoxicating liquors, and as subjecting those who sold without license to penalties; but in May last the supreme court of the District held against this view of the powers of the Commissioners. It is of urgent importance, therefore, that Congress should supply, either by direct enactment or by conferring discretionary powers upon the Commissioners, proper limitations and restraints upon the liquor traffic in the District. The District has suffered in its reputation by many crimes of violence, a large per cent of them resulting from drunkenness and the liquor traffic. The capital of the nation should be freed from this reproach by the enactment of stringent restrictions and limitations upon the traffic.

In renewing the recommendation which I have made in three preceding annual messages that Congress should legislate for the protection of railroad employés against the dangers incident to the old and inadequate methods of braking and coupling which are still in use upon freight trains, I do so with the hope that this Congress may take action upon the subject. Statistics furnished by the Interstate Commerce Commission show that during the year ending June 30, 1891, there were forty-seven different styles of car couplers reported to be in use, and that during the same period there were 2,660 employés killed and 26,140 injured. Nearly 16 per cent of the deaths occurred in the coupling and uncoupling of cars, and over 36 per cent of the injuries had the same origin.

The Civil Service Commission ask for an increased appropriation for needed clerical assistance, which I think should be given. I extended the classified service March 1, 1892, to include physicians, superintendents, assistant superintendents, school-teachers, and matrons in the Indian service, and have had under consideration the subject of some further extensions, but have not as yet fully determined the lines upon which extensions can most properly and usefully be made.

I have, in each of the three annual messages which it has been my duty to submit to Congress, called attention to the evils and dangers connected with our election methods and practices as they are related to the choice of officers of the National Government. In my last annual message I endeavored to invoke serious attention to the evils of unfair apportionments for Congress. I can not close this message without again calling attention to these grave and threatening evils. I had hoped that it was possible to secure a nonpartisan inquiry, by means of a commission, into evils the existence of which is known to all, and that out of this might grow legislation from which all thought of partisan advantage should be eliminated and only the higher thought appear of maintaining the freedom and purity of the ballot and the equality of the elector, without the guaranty of which the Government could never have been formed and without the continuance of which it can not continue to exist in peace and prosperity.

It is time that mutual charges of unfairness and fraud between the great parties should cease, and that the sincerity of those who profess a desire for pure and honest elections should be brought to the test of their willingness to free our legislation and our election methods from everything that tends to impair the public confidence in the announced result. The necessity for an inquiry, and for legislation by Congress, upon this subject is emphasized by the fact that the tendency of the legislation in some States in recent years has in some important particulars been away from and not toward free and fair elections and equal apportionments. Is it not time that we should come together upon the high plane of patriotism while we devise methods that shall secure the right of every man qualified by law to cast a free ballot and give to every such ballot an equal value in choosing our public officers and in directing the policy of the Government?

Lawlessness is not less such, but more, where it usurps the functions of the peace officer and of the courts. The frequent lynching of colored people accused of crime is without the excuse which has sometimes been urged by mobs for a failure to pursue the appointed methods for the punishment of crime, that the accused have an undue influence over courts and juries. Such acts are a reproach to the community where they occur, and so far as they can be made the subject of Federal jurisdiction the strongest repressive legislation is demanded. A public sentiment that will sustain the officers of the law in resisting mobs and in protecting accused persons in their custody should be promoted by every possible means. The officer who gives his life in the brave discharge of this duty is worthy of special honor. No lesson needs to be so urgently impressed upon our people as this, that no worthy end or cause can be promoted by lawlessness.

This exhibit of the work of the Executive Departments is submitted to Congress and to the public in the hope that there will be found in it a due sense of responsibility and an earnest purpose to maintain the national honor and to promote the happiness and prosperity of all our people. And this brief exhibit of the growth and prosperity of the country will give us a level from which to note the increase or decadence that new legislative policies may bring to us. There is no reason why the national influence, power, and prosperity should not observe the same rates of increase that have characterized the past thirty years. We carry the great impulse and increase of these years into the future. There is no reason why in many lines of production we should not surpass all other nations as we have already done in some. There are no near frontiers to our possible development. Retrogression would be a crime.

BENJ. HARRISON.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, December 6, 1892.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The message of the President of the United States will lie on the table and be printed.

Mr. MANDERSON. In behalf of the Committee on Printing I offer a resolution, and ask for its present consideration.

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That 10,000 copies of the President's message be printed in pamphlet form for the use of the Senate.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of State, transmitting, in pursuance of the provisions of the act of Congress approved February 3, 1887, a certified copy of the final ascertainment of the electors for President and Vice-President appointed in the State of Maryland at the election held therein on the 8th of November, 1892, as certified to him by the governor of that State. The letter of transmittal will be printed and, with the accompanying communication, lie on the table.

Mr. HOAR. I should like to inquire whether such communications do not relate entirely to the Vice-President in his official capacity, and have no relation to the Senate whatever.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will have read a precedent bearing on the question.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

Letter from the Secretary of State, transmitting copy of the vote of the State of Michigan for electors for President and Vice-President.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, Washington, January 14, 1889.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith, in pursuance of the provisions of the act of Congress approved February 3, 1887, a certified copy of the final ascertainment of the electors for President and Vice-President appointed in the State of Michigan at the election held therein on the 6th of November, 1888, as certified to me by the governor of the said State.

I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

T. F. BAYARD.

Hon. JOHN J. INGALLS,
President pro tempore of the Senate of the United States.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chief Clerk will also read an extract from the act of February 3, 1887.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

And the Secretary of State of the United States, as soon as practicable after the receipt at the State Department of each of the certificates hereinbefore directed to be transmitted to the Secretary of State, shall publish, in such public newspaper as he shall designate, such certificates in full, and at the first meeting of Congress thereafter he shall transmit to the two Houses of Congress copies in full of each and every such certificate so received theretofore at the State Department.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate communications of a similar character from the States of Georgia, New Hampshire, and Arkansas. The letters of transmittal will be printed, and, with the accompanying communications, lie on the table.

Mr. HARRIS. And their receipt noted in the RECORD?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Their receipt will be noted in the RECORD.

MARITIME CANAL COMPANY OF NICARAGUA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, in compliance with law, the annual report of the Maritime Canal Company of Nicaragua; which, on motion of Mr. SHERMAN, was, with the accompanying report, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and ordered to be printed.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury transmitting, in response to a resolution of July 30, 1892, certain information relative to what proportion of customs duties and internal-revenue taxes received within the last twelve months have been paid each month in gold coin, in standard silver dollars, in silver certificates, and in United States notes, the amount of gold coin and gold certificates in the Treasury of the United States, the amount of gold and of gold certificates held by the banks of the United States, and the total amount of gold coin in this country, etc.; which was ordered to be printed, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War transmitting, in compliance with section 1665 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, a statement of the expenditures at the Springfield (Mass.) armory, and of arms, components of arms, and appendages fabricated, altered, and repaired during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a report of the Government directors of the Union Pacific Railway Company for the year 1892; which, with the accompanying report, was referred to the Select Committee on the President's Message Transmitting the Report of the Pacific Railway Commission, and ordered to be printed.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Chief of Engineers, transmitting a report on the construction of the building for the Library of Congress during the year ending December 1, 1892; which, with the accompanying report, was referred to the Select Committee on Additional Accommodations for the Library of Congress, and ordered to be printed.

REPORT OF COMMISSIONER OF FISH AND FISHERIES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries, transmitting, in compliance with law, a statement of the expenditures for propagation of food fish during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, and also under certain other appropriations, therein enumerated; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

REPORTS OF SERGEANT-AT-ARMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, transmitting a full and complete account of all property belonging to the United States in his possession on the 5th day of December, 1892; which was ordered to lie on the table and be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, transmitting a full and complete account of all condemned property sold by him belonging to the United States, and showing the disposition of all money received therefor; which was ordered to lie on the table and be printed.

REPORTS OF SECRETARY OF SENATE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a report of the Secretary of the Senate, communicating, in obedience to law, a statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Senate from July 1, 1891, to June 30, 1892; which was ordered to lie on the table and be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a report of the Secretary of the Senate, communicating, in obedience to law, a full and complete statement of all the property in his possession belonging to the United States December 5, 1892; which was ordered to lie on the table and be printed.

COURT OF CLAIMS REPORT.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the report of the clerk of the Court of Claims of the conclusions of fact and of law filed by that court in sundry spoliation claims under the act approved January 20, 1885; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a list of judgments rendered by that court during the year ending December 3, 1892, etc.; which was read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The communication, with the accompanying papers, will be referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. PLATT. If the communication has reference to the regular judgments which have been rendered during the year I think it should go to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. COCKRELL. Yes, if it is a list of final judgments actually rendered, it ought to go to the Committee on Appropriations.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there be no objection, the communication will be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. MITCHELL. I desire to inquire if it is a report from the Court of Claims under the Bowman act or under the Indian depredation act or under the judicial act.

Mr. COCKRELL. It is made under the judicial act necessarily, if the Court of Claims rendered judgment.

Mr. HARRIS. I suggest that the communication be printed and lie on the table until we can look at it, and then there will be no doubt about the committee to which it ought to be referred.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be so ordered, in the absence of objection. The communication, with the accompanying papers, will lie on the table and be printed.

INDUSTRIAL CHRISTIAN HOME ASSOCIATION OF UTAH.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the annual report of the board of management and control of the Industrial Christian Home Association of Utah; which was referred to the Committee on Territories, and ordered to be printed.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented the memorial of C. O. Willis and 43 other citizens of Vicksburg, Miss.; the memorial of M. M. Suns and 47 other citizens of Washington, Ga.; the memorial of F. W. Petty and 23 other citizens of Henderson, Miss.; the memorial of G. Ligon of Okolona, Miss.; a memorial of the Cotton Exchange of Savannah, Ga.; the memorial of Edgar A. Stacey and 33 other citizens of Maxime, Miss.; the memorial of C. S. McCall and 42 other citizens of Bennettsville, S. C.; the memorial of J. M. Wilson and 20 other citizens of Fayetteville, Tenn.; the memorial of O. W. Hunter and 56 other citizens of Athens, Ga.; the memorial of J. E. Stenn and 55 other citizens of Athens, Ga.; the memorial of C. H. Strong and 35 other citizens of Atlanta, Ga.; the memorial of L. Olsby, of West Point, Miss.; the memorial of R. M. Foster and 52 other citizens of Marion, Ala.; the memorial of T. O. Ellis and 49 other citizens of Hodges, S. C.; the memorial of O. W. Branch & Co. and 40 other citizens of Richmond, Va.; a memorial of the Memphis (Tenn.) Cotton Exchange; the memorial of J. R. Williams and 40 other citizens of Ellaville, Ga.; the memorial of E. A. Collins and 42 other citizens of Milan, Tenn.; the memorial of Frank B. Sliger, president of the First National Bank, and 86 other citizens of Helena, Ark.; the memorial of C. W. T. Weldon and 43 other citizens of Ladonia, Tex.; the memorial of J. A. Anderson and 41 other citizens of Newnan, Ga.; the memorial of D. W. James and 34 other citizens of Blakely, Ga.; the memorial of Fulmer, Thornton & Co., of Memphis, Tenn.; the memorial of L. Samuels and 48 other citizens of Marlin, Ala., and the memorial of Whaley & Renis and 32 other citizens of Charleston, S. C., remonstrating against the passage of the antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petition of J. B. Sharp, of Boston, Mass., and 1,530 other citizens residing in various parts of the United States, praying Congress to repeal the act closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. GEORGE presented a memorial of citizens of Yazoo County, Miss.; a memorial of citizens of Natchez, Miss.; a memorial of citizens of Yazoo City, Miss., and a memorial of citizens of Canton, Miss., remonstrating against the passage of the antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. SHERMAN presented petitions of 80 citizens of Canton, of 282 citizens of Richfield, of 44 citizens of Sylvania, of 88 citizens of Greenwich, of 40 citizens of Springfield, of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Eaton, of 17 citizens of Rutland, of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the First Presbyterian Church of Middleton, of 84 citizens of Dayton, of 40 citizens of Wyoming, of 85 citizens of Cleveland, and of 25 citizens of Columbus, all in the State of Ohio, praying Congress not to repeal the law closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented the petition of Philip Hawk, of Canton, Ohio, praying that he be granted a pension of $125 per month; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' Unions of Newark, Cincinnati, and Massillon, all in the State of Ohio, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented the petition of Aden Benedict, of Bennington, Ohio, praying to be reimbursed for commutation money paid by him in 1864, he having subsequently enlisted; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also presented a petition of the Zanesville (Ohio) Trades and Labor Council, praying that Congress so amend the immigration laws as to give the President power to suspend all traffic between this country and countries where contagious diseases are epidemic; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the United Presbyterian Church of Scotch Ridge, Ohio, praying for the passage of the antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. PADDOCK presented a petition of the Twenty-fourth General Assembly of the State of Iowa, praying for the prompt passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petition of J. George Seltzer, of Boston, Mass., praying for the prompt passage of House bill 9350, to promote the safety of employés upon railroads by compelling common carriers in interstate commerce to equip their cars with automatic couplers and continuous brakes; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' Unions of Lincoln and Omaha, Nebr., praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a memorial of the Cotton Exchange of Memphis, Tenn., remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petitions of A. S. Jones and 18 other citizens of Sedgwick County; of C. E. Gray and 64 other citizens of Platte County; of R. V. Hunter and 20 other citizens of York County; of George Lynn and 20 other citizens of Adams County; of J. B. Smithers and 43 other citizens of Butler County; of J. P. Anderson and 42 other citizens of Gage County; of J. M. Nickerson and 22 other citizens of Hall County, and of B. R. Mulkey and 19 other citizens of Sedgwick County, all in the State of Nebraska, praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain and now existing between the elevators, millers, and railroads at Minneapolis and St. Louis, and also for the postponement of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill until such committee reports; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. McMILLAN presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' Unions of Ann Arbor, Saginaw, Kalamazoo, and Jackson, Mich., praying for the passage of a bill to limit the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. MITCHELL. I present a petition of citizens of Umatilla County, Oregon, praying that the unsold portion of the agricultural lands of the Umatilla Indian Reservation be sold to actual settlers thereon in tracts not to exceed 160 acres, and that the lands unfit for cultivation be sold in tracts to suit settlers, not to exceed 640 acres, at the appraised value thereof. There is a bill pending to carry out the recommendation of the petitioners, and I believe it is before the Committee on Public Lands. I am not certain of this, but in that case the petition should go there. Unless there is objection, I ask that the petition be referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. DAWES. A bill of this character (I do not know that it is the one to which the Senator alludes) was reported from the Committee on Public Lands, and on their recommendation referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, where I think it is now. It may not be the same bill.

Mr. MITCHELL. In that view of the case I ask that the petition be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The petition will be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, if there be no objection.

Mr. MITCHELL presented the petition of Jason Wheeler, of Albany, Oregon, late United States Indian agent at Warm Springs Agency, Oregon, praying to be reimbursed for property alleged to have been lost and stolen during his administration of that office; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also presented a petition of the Legislature of Iowa, praying for the passage of the Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. PEFFER. I present the petition of J. S. Humphrey and 18 other citizens of Reno County, Kans., praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain, and now existing between the elevators, millers, and railroads at Minneapolis and St. Louis, and praying for the postponement of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill until such committee reports.

I also present another petition on the same subject signed by John Trouth and 44 other citizens of Logan County, Kans.

I ask that the petitions be referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The petitions will lie on the table, if there be no objection.

Mr. COCKRELL. I desire to call the attention of the Senator from Kansas to the fact that the Chair does not refer the petitions to the Committee on Agriculture, but suggests that they be laid on the table. The Senator from Kansas asked specifically that the petitions should be referred.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill has been reported.

Mr. COCKRELL. Still the petitions may be referred to the committee.

Mr. BUTLER. One of the petitions prays for the appointment of a committee.

Mr. PEFFER. What disposition has been made of the petitions?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Both petitions refer to the so-called Washburn-Hatch option bill.

Mr. PADDOCK. That bill is now pending before the Senate.

Mr. BUTLER. But one of the petitions presented by the Senator from Kansas, I understand, prays for the appointment of a commission to inquire into special matters in Minneapolis and St. Louis.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The petitions will be referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, if there be no objection.

Mr. HOAR. Should not the petitions go where the bill is?

Mr. PEFFER. The petitions pray for the appointment of a committee of the Senate, and it occurred to me that it would be better to have the matter pass through the hands of the Committee on Agriculture before action is taken.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The petitions will be so referred, in the absence of objection.

Mr. PADDOCK. I desire to say that the petitions relate to the general antioption proposition which is now pending before the Senate, and that bill was considered by the Committee on the Judiciary. While the Committee on Agriculture would be very glad to consider any such subject, as it seems to have been forestalled before in the consideration of this particular measure, perhaps the petitions should take the same direction the bill did. The committee is not unwilling to take any responsibility, and it was not before; but it was not permitted to take the responsibility then, and it is perfectly willing that the same committee which took the responsibility before should take it now in reference to this particular matter.

Mr. WASHBURN. The petitions presented have no more to do with the antioption bill than with a tariff bill. They are petitions praying Congress to raise a committee to investigate certain matters. Such a petition has no more to do with the antioption bill than with any other bill, although it is attempted to be dragged in in that connection. Therefore I think the petitions should go to a committee, and that the Committee on Agriculture, where the antioption bill ought to have gone in the start.

Mr. PADDOCK. The Committee on Agriculture interposes no further objection.

Mr. HOAR. These petitions seem to relate principally to a particular case, to wit, a combination between the elevators, millers, and railroads of Minneapolis and St. Louis. They do not relate principally to the general subject of the antioption bill, although incidentally they pray that the consideration of the antioption bill shall be delayed until that matter can be inquired into. It seems to me the proper reference is to the Committee on Agriculture.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The petitions will be referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. PEFFER presented a petition of citizens of Little River, Kans., praying for the enactment of such legislation as will prohibit the sale of liquor at the National Soldiers' Home in Leavenworth, Kans.; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented a petition of Windom Chapter of the Epworth League of McPherson County, Kans., and two petitions of McPherson Chapter of Epworth League of McPherson County, Kans., praying that the World's Columbian Exposition be closed on Sunday, and that the sale of intoxicating liquors be prohibited thereat; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a memorial of members of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church of Concordia, Kans., remonstrating against the commitment of the United States Government to a union of religion and the state by the passage of any legislation closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. CALL. I present petitions of the county commissioners of Brevard County, Fla., and various other boards of county commissioners and boards of trade in that State, praying that a special appropriation be made for a national harbor of refuge at Cape Canaveral, Florida. I move that the petitions be referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. KYLE. I present the petition of A. C. Hooper and 24 other citizens of Minnehaha County, S. Dak.; the petition of M. V. Mulcahy and 23 other citizens of Union County, S. Dak., and the petition of E. B. Elmore and 20 other citizens of Clay County, S. Dak., praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain now existing between elevators, millers, and railroads at Minneapolis and St. Louis, and praying for the postponement of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill until such committee reports.

These petitions, in my judgment, come indirectly from the Board of Trade of Chicago and directly from citizens of my own State, having been mailed through an executive committee in Iowa. I move that the petitions be referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CULLOM presented petitions of all the Christian churches of Clayton, Ill., praying that no action be taken looking to a repeal of legislation closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' Unions of Jacksonville, Alton, Bloomington, Champaign, and Galesburg, all in the State of Illinois, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

COMMITTEE SERVICE.

Mr. GORMAN. Near the close of the last session, in the temporary absence of the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. VANCE], he was excused from further service on the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, and I was appointed in his place. I ask that I may now be relieved from further service on that committee, and that he be reappointed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there be no objection, the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN] will be excused from further service upon the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, and the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. VANCE] will be appointed in his place.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. BUTLER introduced a bill (S. 3500) to amend an act entitled "An act to credit and pay to the several States and Territories, and the District of Columbia, all moneys collected under the direct tax levied by the act of Congress approved August 5, 1861," approved March 2, 1891; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. SHERMAN introduced a bill (S. 3501) granting an increase of pension to Mary A. L. Eastman; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3502) granting a pension to Frank Rabiska; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3503) granting a pension to Christina Vogt; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BATE introduced a bill (S. 3504) to repeal all statutes relating to supervisors of elections and special deputies; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. BATE. I ask that the bill lie on the table for the present.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HARRIS in the chair). The bill will lie on the table.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced a bill (S. 3505) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of George Miller; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3506) for the relief of John Palmier, Pine Ridge, Shannon County, S. Dak.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3507) for the relief of George H. Jewett, of Arlington, Washington County, Nebr.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. HUNTON introduced a bill (S. 3508) to incorporate the Washington and Marlboro Electric Railway Company of the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3509) for the relief of the heirs of the late Mrs. Mary Ann Randolph Custis Lee, of Fairfax County, Va.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. FRYE introduced a bill (S. 3510) to amend section 4347 of the Revised Statutes of the United States; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3511) granting a pension to Mrs. Annie A. Townsend; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3512) to provide communication from light-ships and outlaying light-houses to the shore; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. CHANDLER introduced a bill (S. 3513) for the suspension of immigration for one year; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. CHANDLER. I move that 2,000 copies of the bill just introduced be printed for the use of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. PEFFER introduced a bill (S. 3514) to prohibit the collection of special liquor taxes from persons other than those who are duly authorized by State laws to traffic in intoxicating liquors; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3515) for the relief of Charles Williamson, late assistant surgeon, Twelfth Kansas State Militia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 3516) to fix the rank of officers and enlisted men of the Army of the United States retiring after long and faithful service; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 3517) for the relief of Augustus G. Kellogg; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3518) granting to Ira Bacon, of Company A, Fifty-second Regiment Indiana Volunteers, an additional bounty of $100; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. CALL introduced a bill (S. 3519) for the construction of a breakwater and harbor of refuge at or near Cape Canaveral, State of Florida; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 3520) for the relief of Jason Wheeler, late United States Indian agent at Warm Springs Agency, Oregon; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. SHERMAN (by request) introduced a bill (S. 3521) to amend the charter of the Eckington and Soldiers' Home Railway Company, of the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. VEST introduced a bill (S. 3522) to create a bureau in the Department of Agriculture for the giving public information of the production and shipping of live stock; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Select Committee on the Transportation and Sale of Meat Products.

Mr. HALE introduced a bill (S. 3523) to further increase the Naval Establishment; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. KYLE introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 116) extending the powers of the United States Government Exhibit Board; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. VEST introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 117) authorizing the appointment of a commission to treat with the five civilized tribes of the Indian Territory with a view of making agreements to induce them to take homesteads in severalty; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. VEST. I ask that the joint resolution lie on the table. I shall call it up to-morrow or on a subsequent day.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The joint resolution will lie on the table.

Mr. COCKRELL introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 118) to print the fifteenth number of the Statistical Abstract of the United States for the year 1892; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. COCKRELL. I ask that the joint resolution be printed and referred to the Committee on Printing, and I hope the committee will take prompt action in reporting it back.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The joint resolution will be so referred.

WITHDRAWAL OF PAPERS.

On motion of Mr. SHERMAN it was Ordered, That James Petty be allowed to withdraw his papers from the files of the Senate.

Mr. SHERMAN. If there are no further bills to be introduced——

Mr. COCKRELL. I should like to offer a resolution.

Mr. PEFFER. And I.

Mr. SHERMAN. I withhold the motion, but I wish to move an executive session as soon as the morning business is concluded.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION REPORT.

Mr. COCKRELL submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Printing:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That 23,000 copies of the ninth annual report of the United States Civil Service Commission with appendices be printed, of which 1,000 copies shall be for the use of the Senate, 2,000 copies for the use of the House of Representatives, and 20,000 copies for the use of the United States Civil Service Commission.

COMPENSATION OF LETTER-CARRIERS.

Mr. HOAR submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Postmaster-General be directed to inform the Senate of the facts, so far as known to his Department, affecting the claim of letter-carriers in cities which contain a population of 75,000 inhabitants to a larger compensation than they have received under the act of January 3, 1887, section 2; and, if in his opinion such letter-carriers are legally or in justice entitled to a compensation larger than they have received, to communicate to the Senate an estimate of the amount which will be necessary for the purpose.

KILLING OF FRANK RILEY.

Mr. MITCHELL submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and ordered to be printed:

Resolved, That the President be and he hereby is requested, if not incompatible with the public interests, to transmit to the Senate, at his earliest convenience, copies of all correspondence on file in the Department of State, if any, relating to the alleged killing of Frank Riley, an American sailor of the United States steamship Newark, in Genoa, Italy, in August or September last.

RAILROAD INTERESTS.

Mr. PEFFER submitted the following resolution; which was ordered to lie on the table and be printed:

Resolved by the Senate, That the Committee on Interstate Commerce be, and it is hereby, instructed to inquire and report as follows:

First. What is the separate and what the aggregate capitalization of the railroad corporations of the United States which are engaged in interstate commerce?

Second. What was the actual original cost of constructing and equipping said roads?

Third. What is the present value of the roads; that is, what would be the cost of building and stocking roads as good as they and on the same lines at the present value of materials and labor?

Fourth. What is the average number of salaried officers employed and paid by the several railroad companies; what is the total amount of money paid such officers annually as salaries; what is the average yearly wages paid locomotive engineers, firemen, and passenger conductors, and what is the average daily or monthly wages paid all other employés?

Fifth. What has been the general effect of the operation of the interstate-commerce law on the business, and the net earnings of the roads; has the cost of transportation been reduced; has the reduction, if any, been on through traffic or on local traffic; has the effect been uniform throughout the country?

Sixth. What has been the aggregate annual gross earnings and the aggregate net earnings of the roads during the last five years?

Seventh. What has been the average cost of moving passengers and freight on said roads during the last five years, computing by distance and weight?

Eighth. What is the actual and the relative cost of moving passengers and freight in different parts of the country, indicating the sections where such differences exist?

Ninth. Basing the estimate on the traffic of the last five years, and allowing an annual interest rate of 5 per cent on the actual present value of the roads, what would be equitable charges for carrying passengers and freight in the United States, said charges to be the same on all the roads?

Tenth. Would it be practicable to consolidate the interstate railroad business so as to establish and maintain uniform charges for carriage in all parts of the country and to fairly settle at one place all just differentials?

The committee will report as early as practicable. It may act by subcommittee of two or more of its members, may sit during sessions of the Senate, and if it be found that any part of the information asked for by this resolution can not be procured without the use of money specially appropriated the committee will report that fact to the Senate, setting out what can not be so procured.

ADDITIONAL SENATE EMPLOYÉ.

Mr. McMILLAN submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That, until further ordered, the Sergeant-at-Arms is directed to employ one attendant in ladies' retiring room, Senate wing of the Capitol, at the rate of $720 per annum, said employé to be paid from the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the Senate.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS.

Mr. VEST submitted the following resolution; which was read:

Whereas it has been charged by the public press that officials of the Government employed in the Census Bureau of the Interior Department have been guilty of gross misconduct for partisan purposes, and especially that the enumerators appointed to make the enrollment of population for the census of 1890 in the State of Missouri and elsewhere, did, under instructions from certain officers of the Bureau, make at the same time lists of voters for partisan use;

And also, that certain clerks and accountants employed in said Bureau were sent to the State of New York during the recent canvass to perform partisan service while drawing pay from the Government: Therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on the Census is directed to investigate said charges, and to report by bill or otherwise; that said committee have power to send for persons and papers, and to employ a stenographer, the expenses to be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Missouri ask for the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. HALE. Let it lie over for a day or two. I wish to examine it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The resolution will go over under the rule.

Mr. VEST. As a matter of course there is no objection to that course. However, I hope the Senator from Maine will permit me to say a few words before the resolution goes over.

Mr. HALE. Certainly; I withdraw the request for the present.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, I am not in the habit of offering sensational resolutions or submitting resolutions to the Senate without what I consider absolutely sufficient proof for the allegations contained in them. I have no disposition to rake up the débris of the late canvass for any purpose whatever; but during that canvass in my own State it was publicly charged and very generally believed by a majority of the people of the State that the Census Bureau had been used in 1890 for political purposes and that the result of that use had been made evident in the canvass of 1892. It was stated in the public press, and I hold in my hand one of these statements, over the name of Mr. Isaac Isaacs, the secretary of the Republican League of Missouri, that the enumerators in the different townships of the State in 1890 had been instructed by the chief enumerator of the State of Missouri, with the knowledge and consent of the Census Bureau, to make a political poll of the State for partisan purposes.

Without reading this statement at length, I will ask that it be made a portion of my remarks, for it is the basis of them.

The statement referred to is as follows:

The charges are made by Mr. Isaac Isaacs, of Kansas City, ex-secretary of the Missouri State League of Republican Clubs, and he states that he has ample documentary evidence of their truth. Mr. Isaacs left for Kansas City last night, but before his departure he furnished a Republic reporter with information that indicates that the census of 1890 was made the occasion both of booming Major Warner for the position to which he now aspires and for ascertaining the exact strength of the Administration in this State. That the census enumeration was put to a similar use in other States also appears probable from Mr. Isaacs's statement.

The use of the census for political purposes constitutes a serious offense against the civil-service act. Although the statements of Mr. Isaacs, which refer to what occurred in 1890, may appear to be ancient, they deal with matters which have never before come to light, and which are of peculiar importance at the present time, when their effect is felt in both the State and national campaign.

A CONFERENCE.

Chief Census Enumerator Brock was appointed in 1890. According to Mr. Isaacs, he was summoned shortly afterward to a conference at Washington with Maj. William Warner and Gen. John W. Noble. "Exactly what occurred at that conference," said Mr. Isaacs last night, "is of course known to the three gentlemen alone, but a great deal can be imagined from subsequent developments. It is evident that Maj. Warner had already been decided upon by the Administration as standard-bearer in Missouri, and that his nomination for governor was recognized even then as a necessity. It is also apparent that the Administration was somewhat fearful of the situation in this State, and probably in others as well, for it is almost certain that the same tactics were pursued in other States as were subsequently made use of here as a result of the conference.

That those matters were discussed may be accepted as a fact. At any rate, it was decided at that conference that Brock should instruct his census enumerators here to make a thorough poll of the State while they were at work on the census returns. These enumerators were appointed by the postmasters in the State. These appointments were, of course, made under the civil-service act, and the polling of the State, being a political matter, was of course an offense against that act. To avoid the risk of refusal on the part of the enumerators to commit the crime, the postmasters were instructed to appoint only such as would have no scruples, and the scheme worked to perfection. Incidentally, I may state that the returns from the polling showed 45,000 doubtful Republicans in the State and 15,000 doubtful Democrats.

DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

"These men were furnished by Mr. Brock with regulation poll books, in which each man's name was put down, with his political faith directly opposite it. These poll-books were returned with the census blanks, and I am now in possession of several of them. I also have letters from Washington, directed to the chairman of the county committees of the State, informing them of what had been done and directing them what course to pursue in the premises. The letters I secured from the chairman of the Randolph County committee at Moberly, Mo., and the books and additional information from prominent attachés of the Interior Department.

"To make the offense even more grave," continued Mr. Isaacs, "these same census enumerators were instructed by Mr. Brock, through the postmasters, to let all Federal officeholders know that under no circumstances were they to allow the election at the primaries of any delegates to the State Republican convention, when they should be held, who were not enthusiastic for Maj. Warner. This was duly conveyed to every deputy marshal and officeholder in the State by the enumerators, and the result was the nomination of Maj. Warner and the defeat of the Filley forces. The effect of course was not so much felt in the large cities, where every Republican took an interest in the primaries, and Mr. Filley, you recollect, carried St. Louis. But in the smaller towns, where the primaries were left to be run by the postmasters, United States marshals, and the rest of the Federal employés, the end desired was easily accomplished. The result was that there were 235 Federal officeholders in the convention, all following instructions to defeat Filley and elect Warner at any cost.

"The Warner faction is now administering sugar-coated pills to Mr. Filley, but with what result will be seen at the coming elections."

Mr. Isaacs stated that he was prepared to submit the proof of his assertions at any time that he might be called upon, having documentary evidence right at hand. "They do not dare to deny their truth, though," said he, "because they are aware that the facts have been known to numerous people for the past two years."

Mr. Isaacs, in this statement, which was the result of a disagreement between himself and the authorities of the Republican party represented in the Republican league, stated emphatically and distinctly that he could produce the record proof of his statement that the enumerators engaged in taking the census in Missouri had been used for the purpose of taking a poll of the voters in order to ascertain the strength of the respective parties in the State.

It is well known that the Democrats of Missouri were very much astonished at the activity and aggressiveness which characterized the Republican party in the recent canvass. They had been in a moribund condition for nearly a quarter of a century, but for some reason which we could not see they exhibited in this canvass, from the beginning to the end, an aggressiveness which has been unparalleled in the history of that party in our State since 1865. It has transpired now through these statements of Mr. Isaacs that the poll made by the enumerators in 1890 satisfied the Republican leaders, and especially the candidate of the Republican party for governor, that a great change had taken place in the political sentiment of the people of my State, and that his party could succeed in the last canvass.

I have here, furnished me by a Republican, a letter extremely significant in this connection, from the chairman of the Republican county committee of one of the largest counties in the State, Macon County. As it is short I will read it, as indicating the entire trend and object of this movement:

MACON, MO., March 1, 1890.

DEAR SIR: Yours to hand. In reply would say that I inclose blank application for Mr. Dinsmore to fill up and return to me here, so I can indorse his application. We are aware of the importance of the Ardmore vote in our next campaign, as on that we expect to overthrow the Democracy in Macon County in our next campaign; and I want men for enumerators that are true blue, and we want them to make a poll of the county, and to take the names of all young men who will vote three years hence. Of course this poll is independent of the Government work.

I am truly yours,

J. W. PATTON,
Chairman County Republican Committee.

Mr. W. E. MURLIN, Ardmore, Mo.

I applied at the Census Bureau to ascertain whether this gentleman, Mr. Dinsmore, had been appointed an enumerator. I find that he was appointed; and I have also in my hand his official report, if it can be called one, to the Republican authorities for the township in Macon County of which Ardmore is the post-office, G. W. Dinsmore being the enumerator. This contains a political poll of voters as originally made out and furnished to the Republican authorities.

I have also here for the use of the committee, if the resolution should be adopted, a similar poll made for the adjoining county of Randolph, showing that beyond question this work was done, and how thoroughly done we only know by the result as evidenced in the activity and aggressiveness of the Republican party in the last canvass.

I bring this matter up now, Mr. President, for two reasons: First, because any party responsible for the conduct of its officials must desire that if they have abused their authority and prostituted their official position for partisan purposes they should be exposed and punished. If either party in this country or its members and officers have been guilty of such misconduct the public interest demands that it should be made known. In the second place, I bring this matter up now because if postponed until the next Administration comes into power and the officials implicated in it have gone out of office it might be said that I had taken advantage of that fact to make an attack upon them.

I make these statements here and produce the proof publicly, openly, and emphatically, in order that an investigation may be had, and that they shall have an opportunity to defend themselves.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, as I came into the Chamber while the resolution submitted by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] was being read, I did not get its full scope and purpose, and therefore invoked the rule under which a single objection would carry it over, in order that it might be examined. I can assure the Senator from Missouri that the resolution will have between now and to-morrow morning a careful examination from me, and I do not presume that any objection will be raised to the investigation the Senator seeks under the resolution, as I understand it.

The Senator has not been in the habit, as he says, in his long service here of introducing sensational resolutions, and I know he does not intend that now, but I can not help thinking he has been led into this step by a matter which when investigated will be found to have no substance. The great Census Bureau has done an immense work for the entire nation. From my acquaintance with it as chairman of the Census Committee of this body, and keeping in close touch with its work, I am able to say in all sincerity that I have never known so great a body of valuable work done for the whole public with so little political bias as the work of the last census.

It may well have happened that among nearly a quarter of a million employés of one kind and another throughout the country there has been found somewhere some superserviceable man who in his own State or his own county or his own voting precinct has believed that his position as a census enumerator or supervisor authorized him to do something for his party; but that any feeling or disposition of that kind has ever received support from the Superintendent here or from any leading official in the Census Bureau I do not believe. The work shows for itself. It is two years and more since the enumeration work has been completed, and the fact that up to this day there has been no charge that this great work was prostituted to party operations and to party services shows how good it has been.

Speaking for the census work and for the employés of that great Bureau, I am entirely free to say to the Senator from Missouri, and to other Senators here, that when the committee takes this matter up, if it finds on exploration that it is of importance enough to be investigated with all the paraphernalia that the Senator has surrounded it with in his resolution, then the committee will give it just that investigation. I think, however, the Senator will find that what he calls the abnormal energy of the Republican party in Missouri, which I am very glad to hear was developed in the last campaign, has other causes, other motives, other inspirations than what came from the Census Bureau. I do not myself believe that in the canvass in the Senator's State the voters of that party were in any degree, appreciably or inappreciably, influenced by anything the Census Bureau had or had not done. There are other things, Mr. President, which made the Republicans uncommonly active in Missouri, and I am very glad they were so. I wish they had been uncommonly active in other States for other reasons. It is an encouraging thing just now to have the Senator from this great Democratic State, who bears fair and frank testimony, come forward and state to us on this side that there was exhibited in Missouri an abnormal and heretofore unknown energy. I bid the Republicans in Missouri Godspeed in that respect.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, I simply wish to supplement the last statement of the Senator from Maine with the information that the Republican party received fewer votes in Missouri than at the preceding election four years ago. Their activity in bringing their principles and arguments before the people of the State resulted in the loss of suffrage.

Mr. HALE. What is the trouble, then?

Mr. VEST. But, Mr. President, that they were active is unquestionable, and it is currently and generally believed in the State that the impression was made by these enumerators upon the leaders of the Republican organization that they had a great many more votes than they really were able to poll.

I simply want to make one additional statement, and then this matter may go over. There is one branch of the resolution to which I did not allude in my opening remarks. It is that which states that certain officials of the Census Bureau were sent to the State of New York during the last campaign to perform party work. It has been stated repeatedly in the public press, and I have no doubt myself in regard to the truth of it, that a large number of clerks of the Census Bureau were detailed or sent, with the permission of the head of that Bureau, to the State of New York in order to perform partisan service for the Republican party. It is a notorious fact, sir, that one of them, appointed from my own State, was arrested in the city of Albany for a violation of the election laws of that State, that he was put in prison, and released some days afterwards, the charge against him being that he had chartered a boat, put upon it provisions and viands, and invited 350 Democrats to go down the river upon an excursion, with the deliberate purpose of keeping them there until the polls had closed.

Mr. MITCHELL. I should like to ask the Senator a question, if he will allow me.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Missouri yield to the Senator from Oregon?

Mr. VEST. Of course.

Mr. MITCHELL. Does not the Senator from Missouri think that the result in the State of New York shows pretty conclusively that such work was not performed there?

Mr. VEST. The result in New York has nothing to do with what I am stating now, because the attempt was unsuccessful even to the extent of 350 votes. This man was arrested and put in jail. He gave an assumed name, according to the statement in the press, and I am credibly informed that he has been rewarded by being promoted and put in a higher and more lucrative position on account of his pernicious activity during the last canvass.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair understands the Senator from Maine to desire that the resolution shall go over.

Mr. HALE. Let the resolution lie over until to-morrow.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The resolution will be printed under the rule, and it goes over until to-morrow, being objected to.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. SHERMAN. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After ten minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 2 o'clock and 45 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Wednesday, December 7, 1892, at 12 o'clock m.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate December 6, 1892.

ENVOYS EXTRAORDINARY AND MINISTERS PLENIPOTENTIARY.

David P. Thompson, of Oregon, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Turkey, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Solomon Hirsch, resigned.

William Potter, of Philadelphia, Pa., to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Italy, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Albert G. Porter, resigned.

AGENT AND CONSUL-GENERAL.

Edward C. Little, of Abilene, Kans., to be agent and consul-general of the United States at Cairo, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice John A. Anderson, deceased.

CONSULS.

Corvis M. Barre, of Hillsdale, Mich., to be consul of the United States at Valparaiso, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice William B. McCreery, resigned.

John P. Eirich, of Columbus, Ohio, to be consul of the United States at Antigua, West Indies, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Richard Herbst, declined.

John C. Sundberg, of San Francisco, Cal., to be consul of the United States at Bagdad, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice John H. Haynes, resigned.

William R. Estes, of Madelia, Minn., to be consul of the United States at Hamburg, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Charles F. Johnson, resigned.

Bradstreet S. Rairden, of Bath, Me., to be consul of the United States at Batavia, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Oscar Hatfield, resigned.

William Heimke, of Kansas, formerly vice-consul at Chihuahua, to be consul of the United States at that place, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, to fill a vacancy.

Orlando H. Baker, of Indianola, Iowa, to be consul of the United States at Copenhagen, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Henry B. Ryder, recalled.

Ransom F. McCrillis, of Danvers, Mass., to be consul of the United States at Denia, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Oscar Malmros, resigned.

J. Alexander Forbes, of San Francisco, Cal., to be consul of the United States at Guaymas, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Alexander Willard, deceased.

Louis A. Dent, of the District of Columbia, to be consul of the United States at Kingston, Jamaica, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice William R. Estes, transferred to Hamburg.

John H. Drake, of Aberdeen, S. Dak., to be consul of the United States at Kehl, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Edmund Johnson, recalled.

Charles H. Cowan, of Chicago, Ill., to be consul of the United States at Manila, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Alexander R. Webb, resigned.

W. Stanley Hollis, of Boston, Mass., to be consul of the United States at Mozambique, to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Ernest W. Smith, resigned.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS.

Kenneth R. Pendleton, of North Carolina, to be collector of customs for the district of Albemarle, in the State of North Carolina, to succeed William E. Bond, whose term of office has expired by limitation. Mr. Pendleton is serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

ASSISTANT APPRAISER OF MERCHANDISE.

Michael Goode, of New York, to be assistant appraiser of merchandise in the district of New York, in the State of New York, to succeed George N. Birdsall, resigned. Mr. Goode is serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

PROMOTIONS IN THE REVENUE SERVICE.

First Lieut. Robert M. Clark, of Connecticut, to be a captain in the Revenue Service of the United States, to succeed John W. White, deceased. Capt. Clark is serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Second Lieut. Walter S. Howland, of Massachusetts, to be a first lieutenant in the Revenue Service of the United States, to succeed Robert M. Clark, promoted. Lieut. Howland is serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Third Lieut. Ellsworth P. Bertholf, of New York, to be a second lieutenant in the Revenue Service of the United States, to succeed Walter S. Howland, promoted. Lieutenant Bertholf is serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

PASSED ASSISTANT SURGEON, MARINE HOSPITAL SERVICE.

Henry D. Geddings, of Alabama, to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Marine Hospital Service of the United States. Mr. Geddings is serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

Charles P. Wertenbaker, of Virginia, to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Marine Hospital Service of the United States. Mr. Wertenbaker is serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

ASSISTANT SURGEON, MARINE HOSPITAL SERVICE.

Edgar Strayer, of Pennsylvania, to be an assistant surgeon in the Marine Hospital Service of the United States. Mr. Strayer is serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE, SUPREME COURT DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Louis E. McComas, of Maryland, to be associate justice of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, vice Martin V. Montgomery, resigned. The nominee was appointed on November 17, 1892, during the recess of the Senate.

UNITED STATES MARSHALS.

Charles C. Clarke, of Virginia, to be marshal of the United States for the eastern district of Virginia, vice Richard R. Farr, deceased. The nominee was appointed during the recess of the Senate, on October 14, 1892.

Irving A. Benton, of Utah Territory, to be marshal of the United States for the Territory of Utah, vice Elias H. Parsons, resigned. The nominee was appointed on September 23, 1892, during the recess of the Senate.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

John H. Gear, of Iowa, to be Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, to succeed Lorenzo Crounse, resigned. Mr. Gear is serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

COLLECTOR OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

George W. Miller, of Pennsylvania, to be collector of internal revenue for the twenty-third district of Pennsylvania, to succeed Samuel D. Warmcastle, removed. Mr. Miller is serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE,

Lewis I. O'Neal, of the District of Columbia, to be justice of the peace in the District of Columbia (to be assigned to the city of Washington), his term having expired September 6, 1892. The nominee was appointed on September 1, 1892, during the recess of the Senate.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, December 6, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock, noon, and was called to order by the Speaker.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D., as follows:

O, Eternal God, we come to ask Thy blessing upon Thy servant, the President of the United States, and upon his children, stricken by the blows of the Shadow feared of man, that twice within the passing month has crossed the threshold of the White House, and borne away the revered and loving wife and her venerable father. Illumine the encircling gloom by kindling brightly the hallowed words, shining as in characters of celestial gold, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord. Yea, saith the Spirit, for they rest from their labors." "O, death, where is thy sting! O, grave, where is thy victory. Thanks be to God which hath given us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ."

As the nation comes with its unfeigned and tender sympathy to our Chief Magistrate and his children, grant that the softening and chastening influence of sorrow may open all hearts to receive the kingdom of Him who hath abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light, through His gospel. We humbly pray in His sacred name, our Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

FOREIGN DELEGATES TO PAN-AMERICAN MEDICAL CONGRESS.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting an estimate of appropriation, submitted by the Secretary of State, to meet the expenses of entertaining the foreign delegates to the Pan-American Medical Congress; referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

BOARD OF ORDNANCE AND FORTIFICATION.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting the annual estimate of appropriation for the Board of Ordnance and Fortification for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, submitted by the Secretary of War; referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

CONTINGENT EXPENSES, TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a report of the contingent expenses of his Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; referred to the Committee on Expenditures in the Treasury Department, and ordered to be printed.

BOARD OF ORDNANCE AND FORTIFICATION.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of War, transmitting the report of the Board of Ordnance and Fortification, covering the period from October 24, 1891, to October 31, 1892; referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the annual report of the Comptroller of the Currency to the second session of the Fifty-second Congress of the United States; referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency, and ordered to be printed.

COMMISSIONER OF LABOR.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Commissioner of Labor, transmitting a statement of all moneys expended under his direction during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

FISH AND FISHERIES.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a communication from the Commission of Fish and Fisheries, transmitting a statement showing the expenditures under all appropriations for propagation of food fishes during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; referred to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, and ordered to be printed.

CHARITIES, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the report of the superintendent of charities for the District of Columbia for the year ending June 30, 1892, with estimates for the year ending June 30, 1894; referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Chief of Engineers of the United States Army, transmitting a report of the construction of the building for the Library of Congress for the year ending December 1, 1892; referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

REPORTS TO CONGRESS BY PUBLIC OFFICERS.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Clerk of the House of Representatives, transmitting a list of reports to be made to Congress by public officers; which was ordered to lie on the table.

FINDINGS OF THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

The SPEAKER laid before the House communications from the Court of Claims transmitting copies of the findings of the Court in claims relating to the following cases; which were referred to the committees named below, and ordered to be printed:

The sloop New York—to the Committee on Claims.

The brig Endeavor—to the Committee on Claims.

The ship Suffolk—to the Committee on Claims.

Anna M. Fitzhugh, deceased, vs. the United States—to the Committee on War Claims.

B. J. D. Irwin vs. the United States—to the Committee on War Claims.

John R. Bigelow, deceased, vs. the United States—to the Committee on War Claims.

Charles Lanman vs. the United States—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a letter from the clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting to Congress a statement of all judgments rendered by said court for the year ending December 3, 1892, the amounts thereof, the parties in whose favor rendered, and a brief synopsis of the nature of the claims upon which said judgments were rendered; referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT.

A message, in writing, from the President of the United States, was communicated to the House by Mr. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. SHONK, indefinitely, on account of sickness in his family.

To Mr. WEVER, for two weeks, on account of serious illness in his family.

To Mr. FELLOWS, indefinitely, on account of sickness in his family.

ANNUAL MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the annual message of the President of the United States; which was read by the Clerk of the House, Hon. JAMES KERR, and which will be found printed in Senate proceedings.

Mr. MCMILLIN. Mr. Speaker, I offer the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk for present consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the message of the President and the accompanying documents be printed, and committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

The resolution was agreed to.

Mr. MCMILLIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to introduce a resolution to be referred to the Committee on Printing.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That there be printed for the use of the House copies of the annual message of the President, second session, Fifty-second Congress.

Mr. MCMILLIN. I have left the number blank, so that the committee may insert such number as they think necessary.

The resolution was referred to the Committee on Printing.

DEATH OF HON. JOHN G. WARWICK.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, it has become my painful duty to announce the death of Hon. John G. Warwick, late one of our colleagues and a Representative in this House from the Sixteenth district of the State of Ohio. It is not my purpose at this time to make any remarks upon his life and public services, but I shall at an early day ask this House to devote a few hours to paying a proper tribute to his memory in hearing addresses from his friends upon this floor. I offer the resolutions which I send to the desk and ask their immediate consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of Hon. John G. Warwick, late a Representative from the State of Ohio.

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House be directed to transmit a copy of these resolutions to the Senate.

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to his memory the House do now adjourn.

The resolutions were unanimously agreed to.

And accordingly (at 1 o'clock and 40 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until to-morrow noon.

BILLS, MEMORIALS, AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 9749) repealing certain sections of the Revised Statutes—to the Select Committee on Election of President and Vice-President and Representatives in Congress.

By Mr. CHIPMAN: A bill (H. R. 9750) to protect American workingmen—to the Committee on Labor.

By Mr. SNODGRASS: A bill (H. R. 9751) to authorize the construction of bridges across the Hiwassee, the Tennessee, and the Clinch rivers, in the State of Tennessee—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. HERMANN: A bill (H. R. 9752) to enlarge the powers, rights, privileges, and authority of the United States district judge of Alaska, and to confer additional jurisdiction and power upon the court—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9753) to amend an act entitled "An act to forfeit certain lands heretofore granted for the purpose of aiding in the construction of railroads, and for other purposes," approved September 29, 1890—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. OTIS: A bill (H. R. 9754) to change our monetary system, reduce interest, fix the unit of value, to supply the States with a circulating medium, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

By Mr. CAMPBELL: A bill (H. R. 9755) to amend sections 4488 and 4489, Revised Statutes, for the greater safety to navigation—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. LESTER of Georgia: A bill (H. R. 9756) to provide for the amendment of an act of Congress approved January 21, 1891, in regard to the sale of the old site of the public building at Savannah, Ga.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. RAYNER: A bill (H. R. 9757) to provide for the better protection of commerce and for the general welfare by the establishment of a national quarantine, etc.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. RICHARDSON: A bill (H. R. 9758) to amend the charter of the Eckington and Soldiers' Home Railway Company of the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HARTER: A bill (H. R. 9759) to provide for the cessation of silver bullion purchases and to replenish the gold stock of the United States—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

By Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Kentucky: A joint resolution (H. Res. 164) authorizing the publication of a history and digest of the international arbitrations to which the United States was a party—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. MCMILLIN: A resolution to print 1,000 copies of the President's annual message—to the Committee on Printing.

PRIVATE BILLS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills of the following titles were presented and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. BRICKNER: A bill (H. R. 9760) to reimburse The C. Reiss Coal Company for dredging done in Sheboygan Harbor, Wisconsin—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. CURTIS: A bill (H. R. 9761) to grant a pension to Margaret Bews—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9762) to grant a pension to Sarah Fraughton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DAVIS: A bill (H. R. 9763) for the relief of Charles Williamson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HERMANN: A bill (H. R. 9764) granting a pension to Jesse Davenport, of Company A, Second Regiment Oregon Mounted Volunteers, in Oregon Indian wars of 1855 and 1856—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. WILSON of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 9765) granting an increase of pension to William Thomas Hancock—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9766) granting an increase of pension to Arnold Chance—to the Committee on Pensions.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, committees were discharged from the consideration of the following bills; which were re-referred as follows:

The bill (H. R. 2591) removing the charge of desertion from the record of Erastus Confer—the Committee on Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

The bill (H. R. 2593) granting a pension to Mrs. Caroline M. French—the Committee on Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

The bill (H. R. 2594) removing charge of desertion from the record of H. H. Sanborn—the Committee on Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

The bill (H. R. 2595) for the relief of Almond Munson—the Committee on Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

The bill (H. R. 4939) for the relief of Samuel Marvin, Company G, One hundred and ninety-third New York Volunteers—the Committee on Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By Mr. BELTZHOOVER: Petition of Rebecca Nickle, of Holly Springs, Cumberland County, Pa., asking for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas: Papers to accompany a petition of 31 citizens of Arkansas for the removal of the charge of desertion against Thomas Hardin—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HERMANN: Petition of physicians of Oregon, asking that Congress extend aid to the Pan-American Congress to be held in Washington City, September 5, 1893—to the Committee on Appropriations.

Also, petition of Samuel Ames and others, of Oregon, protesting against legislation to close the Columbian Exposition on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. KENDALL: Petition of William S. Pierce, of Frenchburg, Ky.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. OUTHWAITE: Petition of E. J. Evans and other citizens of Columbus, Ohio, protesting against the repeal of the law closing the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. PEEL: Petition of Mark Jackson, late private of Company C, First Regiment Arkansas Cavalry, Mexican war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: Petition of Public Musicians' Protective Union, No. 46, of Pueblo, Colo., in favor of Senate bills 1467 and 1468 and House bills 551 and 552—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, two petitions of citizens of Colorado, one of O. M. Powers and Edward Ashler, and the other of H. Joan Wetening, for the adoption of the metric system in the customs service after July 1, 1893—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

By Mr. TRACEY: Petition of W. J. Houghtaling, for compensation for extra work—to the Committee on Accounts.

SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, December 7, 1892.

Prayer by Rev. JOSEPH SILVERMAN, D. D., of New York City.

FRANK HISCOCK, a Senator from the State of New York, appeared in his seat to-day.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

WAR SHIPS ON THE GREAT LAKES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a message from the President of the United States; which was read, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed, as follows:

To the Senate:

In response to the resolution of the Senate of April 11, 1892, requesting information in regard to the agreement between the United States and Great Britain of 1817, concerning the naval forces to be maintained by the two governments on the Great Lakes, I transmit herewith a report of the Secretary of State and accompanying papers, giving all the information existing in that Department in regard to the agreement in question.

BENJ. HARRISON.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, December 7, 1892.

FINANCE REPORT.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury on the state of the finances for the year 1892; which, with the accompanying papers, was ordered to lie on the table, and be printed.

REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the annual report of the Attorney-General; which, with the accompanying papers, was ordered to lie on the table, and be printed.

TREASURY ACCOUNTS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Treasurer of the United States, transmitting fair and accurate copies of the accounts rendered to and settled with the First Comptroller of the Treasury for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Printing, and ordered to be printed.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented memorials of J. W. Ragland and other citizens of Pine Bluff, Ark.; of D. R. Burgess & Co. and other citizens of Mobile, Ala.; of W. W. H. Duke and other citizens of Orangeville, S. C.; of W. H. Pitchfield and other citizens of Oil City, Pa.; of E. P. Marks and other citizens of New Edinburg, Ark.; of Colder Bros. and other citizens of Wilmington, N. C.; of John C. Webb and other citizens of Demopolis, Ala.; of F. Pound and other citizens of Jefferson County, Ky.; of Bryan Heard and other citizens of Rockdale, Tex.; of S. M. Imnan & Co. and other citizens of Atlanta, Ga.; of William M. McIntosh and other citizens of Calvert, Tex.; of W. A. McAndrew and other citizens of Union Springs, Ala.; of S. L. Gohlman and other citizens of Houston, Tex.; of McKim, Jordan & Co. and other citizens of Waco, Tex.; of M. N. Day & Co. and other citizens of New York; of J. B. English & Co. of Macon, Ga.; of Price, Reid & Adams and other citizens of Charleston, S. C.; of Bennet P. Alston, of North Carolina; of Myer & Co. and other citizens of Pine Bluff, Ark.; of R. N. Harris and other citizens of Clarksdale, Miss.; of W. N. Mercier and other citizens of Augusta, Ga.; of W. L. Kidder and other citizens of Terre Haute, Ind.; of Samuel Frank and other citizens of Holly Springs, Miss., and of Cuthbert Bullitt and other citizens of Louisville, Ky., remonstrating against any further consideration of the antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. MANDERSON. I present a large number of petitions from citizens of the States of Kansas and Nebraska in the form of numerous others which have been received, in reference to an alleged combination to depreciate the price of grain. I understand that petitions of this character were by the action of the Senate yesterday referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, and I ask that these petitions be so referred.

The petitions were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, as follows:

A petition of D. S. Hollister and 27 other citizens of Labette County, Kans.;

A petition of J. H. Kline and 17 other citizens of Labette County, Kans.;

A petition of J. W. Rainey and 18 other citizens of Labette County, Kans.;

A petition of Loren Hewitt and 37 other citizens of Labette County, Kans.;

A petition of M. A. Robinson and 14 other citizens of Labette County, Kans.;

A petition of J. H. Wheeler and 21 other citizens of Norfolk, Nebr.;

A petition of F. Goeble and 23 other citizens of Hastings, Nebr.;

A petition of John E. Wallace and 21 other citizens of Hall County, Nebr.;

A petition of G. C. Crater and 44 other citizens of Saline County, Nebr.; and

A petition of Jacob Klein and 66 other citizens of Gage County, Nebr.

Mr. WILSON presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of Fort Dodge, Ottumwa, and Des Moines, all in the State of Iowa, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of Buena Vista Grange, No. 544, Patrons of Husbandry, in the State of Iowa, praying for the passage of legislation closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented petitions of R. Wiley and 23 other citizens of Audubon County; of Frank Beeker and 24 other citizens of Boon County; of J. C. Huffman and 22 other citizens of Wapello County; of W. T. Hobbs and 23 other citizens of Wapello County; of Web Miller and 21 other citizens of Wapello County; of Ira Simms and 23 other citizens of Lee County; of Thomas S. Padgett and 22 other citizens of Lee County; of C. J. Stanton and 47 other citizens of Polk County; of James T. Carr and 43 other citizens of Lee County; of W. W. Jennings and 24 other citizens of Mahaska County; of T. J. Stanley and 47 other citizens of Mahaska County; of E. L. Rogers and 46 other citizens of Polk County; of P. H. Austin and 69 other citizens of Wapello County; of J. J. R. Livingston and 45 other citizens of Wapello County; of J. S. Rinehart and 69 other citizens of Polk County; of C. Bane and 23 other citizens of Polk County; of J. R. Munson and 46 other citizens of Dallas County; of Owen Corcoran and 47 other citizens of Polk County; of Charles Allen and 23 other citizens of Polk County; of Caleb Townsend and 47 other citizens of Polk County; of C. H. McBride and 22 other citizens of Polk County; of O. H. Whitcomb and 23 other citizens of Cass County; of P. Fay and 24 other citizens of Cass County; of James E. Blessing and 66 other citizens of Mahaska County; of William Sanderson and 23 other citizens of Polk County; of Henry Harrison and 23 other citizens of Monroe County; of J. T. Hamilton and 24 other citizens of Warren County; of D. M. Cook and 23 other citizens of Polk County; of John Wilson and 22 other citizens of Polk County; of Mayor H. Huron and 24 other citizens of Marshall County; of J. B. Johnson and 30 other citizens of Marshall County; of A. L. Brown and 22 other citizens of Marshall County; of James Beardsley and 20 other citizens of Mahaska County; of C. J. Noggle and 22 other citizens of Boone County; of William Johnson and 22 other citizens of Carroll County; of Frank D. Allen and 23 other citizens of Audubon County; of C. F. Ordway and 23 other citizens of Audubon County; of J. A. Walters and 22 other citizens of Audubon County; of J. C. Wright and 24 other citizens of Cass County; of E. Soper and 22 other citizens of Cass County; of J. L. Todd and 47 other citizens of Cass County; of H. Abicker and 22 other citizens of Cass County; of William J. Hull and 22 other citizens of Cass County; of James Grayham and 24 other citizens of Cass County; of William M. Smith and 23 other citizens of Carroll County; of C. Z. Sanderson and 24 other citizens of Carroll County; of E. C. Palmer and and 47 other citizens of Woodbury County; of E. M. Parsons and 23 other citizens of Woodbury County; of Ben Betts and 46 other citizens of Lee County; of G. Fred Leiser and 23 other citizens of Lee County; of Thomas F. Hall and 21 other citizens of Mapel County; of A. L. Failger and 22 other citizens of Wapello County; of Henry Rodgers and 23 other citizens of Woodbury County; of M. M. Salisbury and 23 other citizens of Woodbury County; of Ernest Jenkinson and 21 other citizens of Woodbury County; of D. A. Young and 24 other citizens of Lee County; of J. M. Thornberger and 23 other citizens of Lee County; of Perry Fry of Warren County, and 45 other citizens of Polk County; of H. P. Brown and 22 other citizens of Polk County; of Stephen Brown and 45 other citizens of Wapello County; of C. A. Johnson and 22 other citizens of Wapello County; of ex-Governor John H. Gear and 44 other citizens of Lee and Wapello counties; of Howard Burt and 22 other citizens of Lee County; of Isaac Thomas and 40 other citizens of Mahaska County; of Harry McLain and 18 other citizens of Mahaska County; of William Shipley and 40 other citizens of Mahaska County; of E. F. Hall and 19 other citizens of Mahaska County; of B. F. Wright and 37 other citizens of Mahaska County; of Edward Carr and 21 other citizens of Wapello County; of J. A. Wright and 22 other citizens of Mahaska County; of Charles Dodd and 24 other citizens of Greene County; of C. B. Balton of Boone County; of 23 other citizens of Greene County; of W. C. Levick and 21 other citizens of Pottawattamie County; of Thomas Houck and 9 other citizens of Marshall County; of J. E. Langworthey and 22 other citizens of Polk County; of E. F. Thompson and 22 other citizens of Wapello County; of Ed. Stockett and 22 other citizens of Pottawattamie County; of B. P. Hewitt and 24 other citizens of Lee County; of A. M. Johnson and 22 other citizens of Lee County; of Mrs. James L. Daniels and 23 other citizens of Polk County; of M. G. Baker of Dallas County, and 22 other citizens of Polk County; of Isaac Bertch of Warren County, and 24 other citizens of Polk County; of Eli Phipps and 23 other citizens of Boone County; of James Mitchell and 23 other citizens of Polk County; of Ed. Schafer and 4 other citizens of Woodbury County; of G. W. England and 23 other citizens of Mahaska County; of John Feltner and 24 other citizens of Audubon County; of Ed. S. Howard and 23 other citizens of Mahaska County; of John Houck and 21 other citizens of Wapello County; of Gibson Browne and 23 other citizens of Lee County; of E. M. Nettleton and 20 other citizens of Woodbury County; of Oscar Adams and 21 other citizens of Wapello County; of J. A. Wylander and 45 other citizens of Ogden, Boone County; of E. G. Wagoner and 22 other citizens of Lee County; of W. F. Duncan and 23 other citizens of Polk County; of B. Banghardt and 23 other citizens of Polk County; of C. L. Benson and 46 other citizens of Lee County; of Gustave Boostidt and 22 other citizens of Polk County; of J. F. Costello and 21 other citizens of Polk County; of J. W. Burnett and 22 other citizens of Polk County; of John Willcox and 46 other citizens of Woodbury County; of Milford Neal and 47 other citizens of Wapello County; of Ira P Smith and 24 other citizens of Lee County; of H. M. Washburn and 22 other citizens of Lee County; of I. Radcliff and 23 other citizens of Boone County; of John Allen Smith and 47 other citizens of Boone County; of B. F. Carr and 23 other citizens of Polk County; of Charles Bennett and 56 other citizens of Polk County; of N. W. White and 23 other citizens of Woodbury County; of J. J. Wilbur and 23 other citizens of Woodbury County; of J. J. Mullikin and 22 other citizens of Lee County; of John Brown and 23 other citizens of Lee County; and of J. B. Wright and 47 other citizens of Lee County, all in the State of Iowa, praying for the appointment of a committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. HARRIS. I present three petitions, one in the form of a telegram, numerously signed, and the others in the form of letters, praying for the passage of the antioption bill. I ask that they be separately noted and lie upon the table, the bill having been reported.

The petitions were ordered to lie on the table, as follows:

Petition of R. T. Williamson, of Keeling, Tenn.;

Petition of J. K. P. Wallace, president of the East Tennessee Farmers' Convention, of Andersonville, Tenn.; and Petition of V. F. Sherrod, New Kimbrough, and other citizens of Mason, Tenn.

Mr. HARRIS presented the memorial of H. M. Neely, president, and Henry Hotter, secretary of the Cotton Exchange of Memphis, Tenn.; the memorial of Frank McBee, of Knoxville, Tenn., and the memorial of J. O. Hitch, J. C. Mabry, and other citizens of Tennessee, remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. VANCE presented memorials of sundry citizens of Nash and Anson counties, in the State of North Carolina, remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. MILLS presented a memorial of citizens of Dublin and Waco, in the State of Texas, remonstrating against the further consideration of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. DANIEL presented a memorial of sundry citizens of Norfolk, Berkeley, and Portsmouth, in the State of Virginia, remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. FAULKNER presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' Unions, Nos. 133 and 137, of Huntington and Charleston, W. Va., praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. DOLPH presented a petition of sundry citizens of Oregon, praying for the passage of legislation extending the time of payment by settlers for lands within the forfeited limits of the Northern Pacific land grant; which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also presented the petition of Lorenzo Wyett Mulvany, of Benton County, Oregon, who served as a private in the Second Regiment Oregon Mounted Volunteers in the Rogue River Indian wars of 1855-'56, praying to be allowed a pension; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented the petition of Mrs. Cynthia J. Brumfield, of Benton County, Oregon, praying that she be granted a widow's pension; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of Oregon, praying that the World's Columbian Exposition be opened on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. ALLEN presented a petition of K. H. Stewart and other citizens of Adams County, Wash., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. GORDON presented a memorial of the Savannah (Ga.) Cotton Exchange, remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. DAWES presented the following petition; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select), and ordered to be printed in the RECORD:

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

The undersigned, citizens of the State of Massachusetts, very respectfully represent to your honorable body that we are native-born citizens of the United States of America, and under the Constitution and laws thereof are declared entitled to equal rights, privileges, and opportunities as are granted to other American citizens; notwithstanding this national declaration of our rights we are (by the force of an unjust American prejudice directed against us, because of our descent and complexion) kept apart as a separate and distinct class of American citizens, and therefore are deprived of equal opportunities in making that progress in the pursuit of moral, educational, and industrial advancement as are enjoyed by our white fellow-citizens.

We further respectfully represent that under the system and rules established by the Board of Directors of the World's Columbian Exposition for the display of exhibits, your petitioners, because of this enforced separation as a distinct class of American citizens, are entirely deprived from showing in any discernible manner their relation to or participation in our country's wonderful progress in the development of its resources and the advancement of its civilization; and therefore there will not be found in this grand international Exposition the slightest evidence of the value of, or any credit to, the American negro's labor during the last two hundred years in the development of his country's resources, of his patriotic services in defending and maintaining the glory and perpetuity of his country, or of his worth as a peaceful, law-abiding, and industrious citizen.

We further respectfully represent that because of this conspicuous absence at this Exposition of the American negro as an important factor in the production of our country's material prosperity and intellectual grandeur, the millions of American and European visitors to this Exposition will naturally reach the conclusion and render a verdict that the 7,000,000 of American negroes are unfit for freedom and incapable of improvement by the influences of American civilization. From this unjust verdict against us and all other American citizens, your petitioners most earnestly protest, and appeal to your honorable body for partial redress from this great injustice.

We therefore very respectfully petition your honorable body to pass a bill authorizing the Board of Management and Control of the United States Government exhibit to collect, compile for publication, and publish certain facts and statistics pertaining to the labor products, the moral, industrial, and intellectual development of the colored people of African descent residing in the United States, from January, 1863, to January, 1893, the same to illustrate the growth of liberty, morality, and humanity of the United States, and to form a part of the published report of the United States Government exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition. And your petitioners will ever pray.

Mr. CAMERON presented memorials of the Ministers' Associations of Myersdale, Berlin, and Salisbury, Pa., remonstrating against the passage of any legislation opening the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' unions of Beaver Falls, Williamsport, Erie, Franklin, Meadville, Scranton, Warren, Pittsburg, New Castle, and Pittston, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BRICE presented a petition of 29 members of Pike County, Ohio, praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' unions of Cincinnati, Newark, Massillon, and Springfield, all in the State of Ohio, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented memorials of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, of the First Presbyterian Church of Middletown, and of 25 citizens of Columbus, all in the State of Ohio, remonstrating against the repeal of the law closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented the memorial of Dennison B. Smith, secretary of the Produce Exchange of Toledo, Ohio, remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Knights of Labor of Zanesville, Ohio, and a petition of the Central Labor Union of Zanesville, Ohio, praying for the passage of legislation to amend the immigration laws so as to authorize the President of the United States to suspend all travel between this country and countries where contagious diseases are epidemic; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union, of Steubenvillee, Ohio, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a memorial of 84 citizens of Marion County, Ohio, remonstrating against the commitment of the United States Government to a union of religion and the state by the passage of any legislation closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented memorials of members of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, of Cleveland, Ohio; of members of the executive committees of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Eaton, Ohio; of the Presbytery of Cincinnati, Ohio; of the Baptist Association of Dayton, Ohio; of citizens of Richfield, Ohio, and of 40 citizens of Springfield, Ohio, remonstrating against the repeal of the law providing for the closing of the gates of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a memorial of citizens of Oberlin, Ohio, remonstrating against the passage of any legislation authorizing the gates of the World's Columbian Exposition to be opened on Sunday, and praying that the sale of intoxicating liquors be prohibited thereat; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a memorial of 37 citizens of Creston, Ohio, remonstrating against the passage of any legislation providing for the opening of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. WASHBURN presented a petition of citizens of Ashtabula County, Ohio, praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a resolution of the Board of Trade of Minneapolis, Minn., praying for the passage during the present session of Congress of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill or some bill having for its purpose and object the preventing of gambling in food and agricultural products; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. HANSBROUGH presented petitions of Frank Lovin and 24 other citizens of Barnes County; of Richard Kealing and 72 other citizens of Richland County; of C. A. Miller and 24 other citizens of Barnes County, and of Walter Thompson and 96 other citizens of Cass County, all in the State of North Dakota, praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain, and now existing between elevators, millers, and railroads at Minneapolis and St. Louis, and also for the postponement of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill until such committee shall report; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. TELLER presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' unions of Denver and Aspen, in the State of Colorado, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. QUAY presented the petition of Julius M. Bates, late lieutenant Company A, Two hundred and eleventh Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, praying for the passage of Senate bill 949, granting him a pension; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PERKINS presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union, No. 9, of Leavenworth, and a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union, No 127, of Atchison, in the State of Kansas, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented the petition of E. A. Harding and 33 other Afro-American citizens of Columbus, Kans., praying for recognition by the Board of Managament and Control of the World's Columbian Exposition; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented the petition of J. V. Kirkpatrick and 20 other citizens of Butler County; the petition of T. J. Callahan and 17 other citizens of Montgomery County; the petition of Henry S. Miller and 22 other citizens of Woodson County, and the petition of L. R. White and 19 other citizens of Geary County, all in the State of Kansas, praying for the appointment of a committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented the petition of J. T. Ely and 60 other citizens of Marshall County, Kans., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented resolutions of the citizens of Washington and New Salem, Kans., extending thanks to the President and Congress for the passage of legislation closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; for the passage of the antilottery bill; for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill by the House of Representatives, and praying Congress to renew its rescinding action excluding liquors from the World's Columbian Exposition grounds; to restrict immigration by consular examinations, and to submit the proposed sixteenth amendment forbidding State Legislatures to unite state and church; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented the petition of W. Spratt Scott, of Claremore, Ind. T., praying that all future payments be made direct to the Cherokee people by and under the supervision of the Interior Department; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of Decatur, Ill., praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. CAMERON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2739) for the relief of James Petty, submitted a report thereon, which was ordered to be printed, and asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Pensions; which was agreed to.

Mr. PEFFER, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1447) for the relief of Secor & Co., Perine, Secor & Co., and the executors of Zeno Secor, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was ordered to be printed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be indefinitely postponed if there be no objection.

Mr. GALLINGER. I ask that the bill be placed upon the Calendar with the adverse report of the committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be so ordered, in the absence of objection.

Mr. MITCHELL, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1421) for the relief of Lewis D. Allen, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was ordered to be printed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be indefinitely postponed, if there be no objection.

Mr. COCKRELL. I ask that the bill may go on the Calendar until I can see the report. I am not familiar with the case, and I wish to look at it before it is disposed of.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar with the adverse report of the committee.

ADDITIONAL SENATE EMPLOYÉ.

Mr. PADDOCK. I am directed by the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the resolution submitted yesterday by the Senator from Michigan [Mr. MCMILLAN], to report it favorably, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the resolution, which was read, as follows:

Resolved, That, until further ordered, the Sergeant-at-Arms is directed to employ one attendant in ladies' retiring room, Senate wing of the Capitol, at the rate of $720 per annum, said employé to be paid from the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the Senate.

Mr. VEST. Does the resolution come from a committee?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It comes from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

Mr. PADDOCK. The resolution is reported by me from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate. It is not a new employment; it does not involve a new appointment; it is simply the continuance of the service which was performed during the last session by a colored attendant in the ladies' retiring room below.

The resolution was agreed to.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. BLACKBURN introduced a bill (S. 3524) to incorporate the East End Electric Railway Company of the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. HARRIS introduced a bill (S. 3525) to authorize the construction of bridges across the Hiwassee, the Tennessee, and the Clinch rivers, in the State of Tennessee; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 3526) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Chambers;

A bill (S. 3527) granting an increase of pension to Winfield S. Smith; and

A bill (S. 3528) granting a pension to John D. Keller.

Mr. STOCKBRIDGE introduced a bill (S. 3529) for the relief of William H. Hugo; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. MCMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 3530) to create a board of charities for the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3531) to amend the charter of the Brightwood Railway Company; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. MANDERSON introduced a bill (S. 3532) to restore to the pension roll the name of Eliza Ferguson, formerly widow of Hans Ferguson, Company I, Thirty-third Iowa Infantry Volunteers; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3533) to amend sections 4488 and 4489, Revised Statutes, for the greater safety to navigation; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. HILL introduced a bill (S. 3534) to repeal the act of July 14, 1890, entitled "An act directing the purchase of silver bullion and the issue of Treasury notes thereon, and for other purposes;" which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. VILAS introduced a bill (S. 3535) for the relief of Caroline Borchers, widow of John Frederick Borchers; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. DOLPH introduced a bill (S. 3536) for the relief of Lorenzo Wyett Mulvany; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3537) for the relief of M. P. Deady; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. PERKINS introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 3538) granting a pension to Mrs. Hannah Kessenger;
A bill (S. 3539) granting a pension to Nancy C. Taylor;
A bill (S. 3540) granting a pension to Mattie M. Kersey;
A bill (S. 3541) granting a pension to Henry Synnamon;
A bill (S. 3542) granting a pension to Charlotte Ross;
A bill (S. 3543) granting a pension to James Bemis;
A bill (S. 3544) granting a pension to Jesse L. Knight;
A bill (S. 3545) granting an increase of pension to John Maloney;
A bill (S. 3546) granting an increase of pension to Levi W. Dikeman; and A bill (S. 3547) granting an increase of pension to James Gauley.

Mr. PERKINS introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (S. 3548) granting an honorable discharge to C. Frederickson;
A bill (S. 3549) granting an honorable discharge to Henry B. Rizzer; and A bill (S. 3550) granting an honorable discharge to St. Clair Watts.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 3551) granting a pension to L. H. Frink; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 3552) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of George J. Barnes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

AMENDMENT TO A BILL.

Mr. FELTON submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill (S. 3378) to finally adjust and settle the claims of Arkansas and other States under the swamp-land grants, and for other purposes; which was ordered to be printed and lie on the table.

JAMES F. SIMMONS.

Mr. CALL. I submit a resolution and ask for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be, and they are hereby, instructed to inquire and report to the Senate the facts in relation to the trial, conviction, and sentence of James F. Simmons in the circuit court of the southern district of New York, under an indictment for a conspiracy to wreck the Sixth National Bank of New York City, and further to report by bill or otherwise whether any legislation, and, if so, what, is necessary to prevent the punishment of innocent persons wrongfully accused of crime in the courts of the United States, and that the committee have the authority to send for persons and papers and to have the record of the case printed for the use of the committee and the Senate.

Mr. PLATT. I ask that the resolution lie over.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will go over and be printed.

Mr. HOAR subsequently said: The Senator from Florida [Mr. CALL] introduced a resolution providing for an investigation by the Judiciary Committee, and the resolution was laid over at the request of the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. PLATT]. I ask the unanimous consent of the Senate that the resolution be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary. The Senator from Florida can state to the committee the grounds upon which he desires to have the investigation ordered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Massachusetts? The Chair hears none, and the resolution is so referred.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a resolution coming over from a previous day, which will be read.

The Chief Clerk proceeded to read the resolution submitted yesterday by Mr. VEST, providing for the investigation of alleged partisan work by census enumerators.

Mr. HALE. There is no necessity to read the resolution again. I suggest to the Senator from Missouri that if an investigation takes place and any money is spent, under the rules the resolution must be reported by the Committee on Contingent Expenses. Let it go there, and let that committee report it back.

Mr. VEST. The resolution must go, under the rules, to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be so referred, in the absence of objection.

RAILROAD INTERESTS.

Mr. PEFFER. A resolution submitted yesterday by myself, proposing a certain investigation by the Committee on Interstate Commerce, I suppose will properly come up this morning.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution lies on the table, and can be called up.

Mr. PEFFER. I ask that it be taken from the table and considered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The Secretary read the resolution submitted yesterday by Mr. PEFFER, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate, That the Committee on Interstate Commerce be, and it is hereby, instructed to inquire and report as follows:

First. What is the separate and what the aggregate capitalization of the railroad corporations of the United States which are engaged in interstate commerce?

Second. What was the actual original cost of constructing and equipping said roads?

Third. What is the present value of the roads; that is, what would be the cost of building and stocking roads as good as they and on the same lines at the present value of materials and labor?

Fourth. What is the average number of salaried officers employed and paid by the several railroad companies; what is the total amount of money paid such officers annually as salaries; what is the average yearly wages paid locomotive engineers, firemen, and passenger conductors, and what is the average daily or monthly wages paid all other employés?

Fifth. What has been the general effect of the operation of the interstate-commerce law on the business, and the net earnings of the roads; has the cost of transportation been reduced; has the reduction, if any, been on through traffic or on local traffic; has the effect been uniform throughout the country?

Sixth. What has been the aggregate annual gross earnings and the aggregate net earnings of the roads during the last five years?

Seventh. What has been the average cost of moving passengers and freight on said roads during the last five years, computing by distance and weight?

Eighth. What is the actual and the relative cost of moving passengers and freight in different parts of the country, indicating the sections where such differences exist?

Ninth. Basing the estimate on the traffic of the last five years, and allowing an annual interest rate of 5 per cent on the actual present value of the roads, what would be equitable charges for carrying passengers and freight in the United States, said charges to be the same on all the roads?

Tenth. Would it be practicable to consolidate the interstate-railroad business so as to establish and maintain uniform charges for carriage in all parts of the country and to fairly settle at one place all just differentials?

The committee will report as early as practicable. It may act by subcommittee of two or more of its members, may sit during sessions of the Senate, and if it be found that any part of the information asked for by this resolution can not be procured without the use of money specially appropriated the committee will report that fact to the Senate, setting out what can not be so procured.

Mr. CULLOM. That is a pretty formidable resolution so far as imposing labor is concerned, and I think probably much of the information desired could be procured without the necessity of requiring the Committee on Interstate Commerce to take up the subject. I suggest to the distinguished Senator from Kansas that he allow the resolution, without adoption, to be referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, and that committee will take up the subject and see what ought to be done with it. If the resolution should be adopted, directing the Committee on Interstate Commerce to make the investigation now, it could not do anything else during the present session. I think much of the information can be procured through the medium of the Interstate Commerce Commission. If, however, the resolution is allowed to be referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, the committee will give it attention, and see what ought to be done in the premises, and report some time during the session, if that course is agreeable to the Senator from Kansas.

Mr. PEFFER. I have no objection to such a disposition of the resolution at this time, expecting, of course, that the Senator's statement that early and considerate action will be taken is sincerely made.

Mr. CULLOM. I make the statement in perfect good faith, and with confidence that the committee will take up the subject and consider it carefully.

Mr. PEFFER. Very well.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, if there be no objection.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills and joint resolution; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 1096) granting a pension to Julia Hood;

A bill (H. R. 1283) to pension Harriet Woodbury, Windsor, Vt.;

A bill (H. R. 1422) for the relief of George M. Henry;

A bill (H. R. 2128) granting a pension to John Fields;

A bill (H. R. 2407) granting a pension to Samuel Luttrell;

A bill (H. R. 2493) granting a pension to Jesse Cleaveland;

A bill (H. R. 3118) to pension John S. Dunham;

A bill (H. R. 3676) for the relief of R. L. Jennings, late postmaster at Marshall, Tex.;

A bill (H. R. 3845) to increase the pension of Edward R. Chapman;

A bill (H. R. 4366) granting a pension to Jacob Hall;

A bill (H. R. 4804) to place the name of Sarah L. Van Nest on the pension list;

A bill (H. R. 4955) granting a pension to Susannah Chadwick;

A bill (H. R. 5022) for the relief of Lucy Sprotberry;

A bill (H. R. 5509) to place the name of Mrs. E. M. Banister, an army nurse, on the pension rolls;

A bill (H. R. 5705) to increase the pension of Amelia Graham;

A bill (H. R. 6030) granting a pension to French W. Thornhill;

A bill (H. R. 6345) granting an honorable discharge to Frederick E. Kolter;

A bill (H. R. 6508) granting a pension to Joseph Fortier;

A bill (H. R. 6511) to pension Rebecca M. Youngblood;

A bill (H. R. 6914) granting a pension to Druke Nettie Barnett;

A bill (H. R. 6969) for the relief of Elisha Brown;

A bill (H. R. 6970) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Montgomery M. Tuttle;

A bill (H. R. 7226) granting a pension to Julia P. Wright;

A bill (H. R. 7257) granting a pension to Alonzo D. Barber;

A bill (H. R. 7510) for the relief of Mrs. Mary A. Moorhead;

A bill (H. R. 7662) granting a pension to Marion Kern Sharman;

A bill (H. R. 8017) granting a pension to Elizabeth Voss;

A bill (H. R. 8106) for the correction of the army record of David R. Wallace, deceased;

A bill (H. R. 8221) granting a pension to Geo. W. Boyd;

A bill (H. R. 8275) granting a pension to Abraham B. Simmons, of Capt. Thomas Tripp's company, in Col. Brisbane's regiment South Carolina Volunteers, in the Florida Indian war;

A bill (H. R. 8409) granting a pension to Mary Danahay, mother of Daniel Danahay, late a private, Company H, Eighteenth New York Cavalry;

A bill (H. R. 9011) to grant a pension to Ida A. Taylor;

A bill (H. R. 9139) to pension Mrs. Eliza T. Palmatier;

A bill (H. R. 9585) for the relief of Harriett E. Niles; and

A joint resolution (H. Res. 157) providing for the calling of an international arbitration congress.

DEATH OF REPRESENTATIVES WARWICK AND M'DONALD.

The message also conveyed to the Senate the intelligence of the death of Hon. John G. Warwick, late a Representative from the State of Ohio, and Hon. Edward F. McDonald, late a Representative from the State of New Jersey.

THE FIVE CIVILIZED TRIBES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there is no further morning business that order is closed and the Calendar is in order.

Mr. VEST. I ask the Senate to take up the joint resolution I introduced yesterday in regard to the appointment of a commission to treat with the five civilized tribes.

There being no objection the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution (S. R. 117) authorizing the appointment of a commission to treat with the five civilized tribes of the Indian Territory with a view of making agreements to induce them to take homesteads in severalty.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, with the permission of the Senate I shall make a few remarks in regard to this joint resolution, and as I understand that other Senators desire to be heard upon it, I will not ask its reference until they have an opportunity of discussing its merits.

I am very well aware, Mr. President, that it is an almost herculean task to change the existing order of things in what is known as the Indian Territory. Indian prejudice and white greed oppose themselves to any different adjustment than that which now exists. I have no disposition to attack any right of any Indian. I think my colleagues will bear me out in the assertion that I have persistently and consistently, since I have been a member of this body, opposed every scheme which I believed to be oppressive or unjust to the five civilized tribes or any other Indians; but the time has come—and it might just as well be distinctly stated now—when the people of the United States can no longer tolerate the existing conditions in the Indian Territory. The four great States of Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, and Texas are directly and immediately concerned in changing the existing status amongst these tribes.

The Indian Territory to-day is a menace to civilization. The farce of administering justice there is a blot and a stain upon the judicial system of the United States; crime is rampant; corruption is rife. The courts exercising criminal jurisdiction over the Indian Territory are the most expensive by far within the domain of our Government, and yet the Territory is filled with criminals who have fled from justice in the States, and who laugh at the courts which cost us so much.

The area known as the Indian Territory, and occupied by the five civilized tribes, is 300 miles in extent east and west and 222 miles north and south. The Panhandle, which is sometimes included within this Territory geographically, is 178 miles east and west by 34½ miles north and south. The Indian Territory proper has 71,000 square miles or 45,440,000 acres.

Mr. President, the last census taken by Indian enumerators shows a most remarkable state of things as to population in this Territory. If the attention of Senators has not been called to this census it is very well worth their serious consideration.

The five civilized tribes, Indians and colored, have the following population: The Cherokees, 25,357 Indians and 4,242 negroes; the Chickasaws, 3,464 Indians and 3,718 negroes; the Choctaws, 9,996 Indians and 4,401 negroes; the Creeks, 9,291 Indians and 5,341 negroes; the Seminoles, 2,539 Indians and 22 negroes; making in the aggregate 68,371 negroes and Indians. Deducting the estimated number of negroes, 3,500, not members of the tribes, would leave the Indians proper in the five civilized tribes 64,871.

Now, permit me to call the attention of the Senate to this remarkable development made by this census; and keeping these numbers in mind let us look at the number of white men who have thrust themselves into the Indian Territory and who can not be excluded. The number of white persons in the Indian Territory is as follows: In the Cherokee country, 27,176, or 2,000 in excess of the number of Indians; in the Chickasaw Nation, 49,444, as against 3,464 Indians. In other words, in the Chickasaw country alone there is an excess of 46,000 whites over Indians.

In the Choctaw Nation there are 27,991 white persons as against 9,996 Indians; and in the Creek country there are 3,280 white persons as against 9,291 Indians; in the Seminole country there are 96 white persons as against 2,539 Indians.

The number of colored persons in the five civilized tribes, not members of the tribe, is estimated at 3,500; which, added to the number of white persons, 107,987, together with 6 Chinese amongst the Chickasaws, makes a total of 111,493 white persons, Chinese, and negroes, as against 68,371 Indians in the whole of the five civilized tribes, making an excess of 43,122 white persons, Chinese, and negroes over the number of Indians in those tribes.

Mr. President, is it not evident from this enumeration that the time is speedily coming when history will repeat itself and when our race, the aggressive and dominant race of all the ages, will force itself into this Territory in some sort of fashion, and leave us another terrible problem to be settled between justice upon one side and greed upon the other?

What is the result now staring us in the face? Every intelligent man living in the adjoining States knows that the Indian Territory to-day is the depot for crime; every man fit to cast his suffrage at the polls, living in Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, or Texas, knows that the criminals of all those States are taking refuge from our courts amongst the Indians and are there harboring for raids upon the adjoining territory.

It has been but a very few months since, in broad open day, a peaceable community in Kansas, the town of Coffeyville, was raided by the Dalton brothers from their depot in the Indian Territory, and men were shot down in the banks and upon the streets by these lawless banditti. Monstrous as the proposition is, these Dalton brothers engaged in this robbery had been deputy marshals of the United States in the Indian Territory. They had gone through that country with the badges of marshals and under the insignia of Federal authority had been making arrests, and I assert here now from reliable authority that the lawless classes in the Indian Territory have furnished a large number of the officers of the United States employed as deputy marshals within that jurisdiction.

Why, Mr. President, look for one moment at the enormous criminal business done now in the courts which have jurisdiction over the Indian Territory. It is unparalleled in judicial history; it is the most monstrous exhibit ever made; and yet the cold figures taken from the reports of the Attorney-General bear out every word.

My friend from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES] asks me upon what conditions a white man can settle there. Under the laws of the five civilized tribes any white man who marries an Indian woman becomes a citizen of the tribe and entitled to all the rights and privileges of a native Indian; but these conditions are brushed away, and there are thousands of white men now in the Indian Territory who have not married Indian women, who are refugees from justice, who are there simply because they can not stay in the States, and, as I have said, who are rendezvousing until a convenient opportunity presents itself for making a raid upon the States which adjoin that Territory.

Mr. PLATT. Large numbers are there under permission from the Indians.

Mr. VEST. There are I should not undertake to say a large number, but it is a constant source of complaint by the Indian authorities that these men are there without their permission, and that the United States Government will not exclude them. So flagrant is this abuse that in the Indian Territory to-day there is a distinctive class known as intruders, exactly as in Oklahoma there was a class known as "sooners." These intruders are found elsewhere. Why, Mr. President, go into the Indian Territory to-night, ride to any house, make the usual hail in the West to the inmates, and you will have no response. Those houses are hermetically sealed after nightfall; every man is on guard, some because they are refugees from justice, others because they fear attacks from the lawless banditti roaming over that domain.

And the courts of justice—what are they? A more miserable farce was never perpetrated under any civilized code than that which now obtains as to the five civilized tribes in the Indian country.

Mr. President, under our system as at present adopted, with jurisdiction in the courts at Paris, Tex., Fort Smith, Ark., and Wichita, Kans., over portions of the Indian Territory, the expenses are so appalling that the Attorney-General of the United States again and again has called our attention to the fact that these courts form the largest items of expense in his annual report from year to year. Each of these outside courts in Arkansas and Texas costs the people of the United States more to-day than the Federal court for the southern district of New York, with the metropolis of the whole country in it.

Mr. CULLOM. Has the Senator a statement of the expenses of these courts?

Mr. VEST. Yes; here is the statement. The expenses of the court for the western district of Arkansas, in which Fort Smith is situated, were in 1889 $10,368.61; in 1890 they were $48,277.04; in 1891 they were $192,189.32. In three years the court expenses of the western district of Arkansas were $250,834.97. In Kansas for 1889 the court expenses were $7,326.76. The act giving jurisdiction to the court in Kansas took effect in 1890. Now, mark the change. In 1890, under this new law, the expenses grew from $7,326.76 to $32,131.56, and in 1891 they swelled again to $84,481.06, making in three years $123,939.38.

Now, take the northern district of Texas, with the outside court at Paris and its jurisdiction in the Indian Territory. In 1889 the expenses of that court were $2,348.24; in 1890, $205,220.49; in 1891, $78,558.76; making in three years for that court an aggregate of $286,127.49. Take the whole of these three courts for three years and the Federal court expenses were $660,901.04.

For the court in the Indian Territory, which we established in 1889 at Muscogee, the expenses were in 1889, $1,570.40; in 1890, $20,079.13; in 1891, $135,276.13; making for the court alone in the Indian Territory, aside from these outside courts, $156,925.66. Take the aggregate of expenses for the courts in the Indian Territory and add them to the expenses of the three outside courts and it makes an aggregate for the outside courts and the courts in the Indian Territory of $817,826.70 for three years.

Now, Mr. President, let us look at the southern district of New York, with the great city of New York in it. The court expenses of the southern district of New York for 1890 were $39,365.88; for 1891, $129,452.57; for 1889, $2,107.38; making for the three years $170,725.83, whereas in Arkansas for three years the court expenses were $250,834.97; in Kansas, $123,939.38; and in Texas, $286,127.49.

No such monstrosity has ever been known in judicial annals. It is a system of organized plunder. Under this fee system the whole business of the officers of this court, especially the marshals, is to create fees. Indians are arrested for violations of the police laws in regard to selling liquor without license; they are dragged hundreds of miles from the northwestern corner of the Indian Territory down to Forth Smith or over to Paris, and the costs are piled mountain high and paid out of the tax money of the people of the United States.

I can not refrain, Mr. President, from reading a graphic description by an eye witness of a session of the court at Paris, Tex.:

A correspondent of Phœnix, who lately returned from Paris, Tex., notes some interesting data relative to the United States court at that place. We have not space for his letter this week, hence extract some of the notations made.

On the opening of the court there were seventeen hundred witnesses ready to answer. The court was opened April 21 by Judge Boarman, but he only held a few days, and adjourned to May 5, leaving all the witnesses to answer before the grand jury. Let us figure for a moment. Seventeen hundred witnesses present—a daily expense of $2,550. Sixty heard per day would be good work, or say four hundred per week. Thus the first week there were thirteen hundred witnesses who could not be heard, and whose per diem amounted to $13,650. The second week there are nine hundred who must wait, at a cost of $9,450. Third week five hundred, at a cost of $5,250, etc., figuring up a good round sum of many thousands of dollars unnecessary expense. But greater than this is the great loss and detriment devolving upon witnesses who are thus kept away from their business.

This is a rich harvest for Paris saloons and boarding houses.

I know it has been said that in what is known as the Kansas murder case, tried at Paris, there were exceptional conditions, and that on account of that litigation this large number of witnesses were in attendance at Paris; but what has happened once may happen again, and any system which permits that sort of outrage ought to be abolished.

We pretend that we want to teach these Indians the habitudes of civilized life; we assert proudly that we are the great exemplars of a Christian civilization and of an Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence. How do we expect to teach these Indians when we treat them as savages; when we chase them down with foreign brigands; when we employ banditti as United States marshals to hunt them like hares in the brush and drag them pinioned and manacled before a foreign tribunal in a distant State, to be tried by an alien jury, and sentenced to certain death?

Why, Mr. President, not long since I saw the statement, and I have it somewhere, that the hangman at Fort Smith said he had hung ninety-seven, and he only wanted to live to make it an even hundred. If he had lived in the Dark Ages, under the rules of barbarism that then obtained, he would have been entitled to knighthood, for I believe it was the usage in those ancient days when the executioner had struck off the heads of so many belted knights or earls to make him a member of that illustrious order. What a pity that we have not such a law for the Indian country! It would be the fit accompaniment of the system that obtains there now; and when this man has made it an even hundred human lives that have been sacrificed to this Moloch of our jurisprudence, why not make him one of the capitalists and favored classes of this great country?

Mr. President, my feeble strength will not permit me to denounce, as I feel it should be, this infamous system. Not an argument can be made for it—not one.

We have established a court with a criminal jurisdiction in the Indian Territory. If we propose to retain it, why not give that court full jurisdiction? Why drag the Indians off to Paris or to Fort Smith in order to put money into the pockets of saloon keepers, boarding-house men, and hotel keepers? If we want to show the Indians what our jurisprudence is, why not give him the same chance before the law that is given to a white man? Why not try him in his own country?

But, sir, I do not care at this time to pursue this branch of the subject further. My principal object is to show the vast and expensive criminal system in the Territory. Other Senators desire to be heard, and I shall not, therefore, move to refer the joint resolution until they have spoken.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President——

Mr. PLATT. If the Senator from Arkansas will excuse me for a moment—I am not going to make any extended remarks—I thought I should like an opportunity to give to the Senate the result of an investigation which I had the honor of making on behalf of the Indian Committee into some matters regarding the five civilized tribes, with reference to an opinion I had formed as to what ought to be done in relation to the governments there, and what the Indians themselves ought to consent to having done; but there is no opportunity to do it this morning, and I ask that the joint resolution may lie over until another day, when, perhaps, I may be able to make my statement.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President, I also ask that the joint resolution may lie on the table for the present. I have no disposition to make any reply to the remarks made by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] in regard to establishing a commission, or in regard to assigning land in severalty to the Indians in the Indian Territory. There is much of what the Senator said to which I agree. There are certain statements, however, in the Senator's argument in reference to the courts at Fort Smith, Paris, and Wichita to which at the proper time I hope to reply.

The latter part of the Senator's remarks seemed to be simply a denunciation of those outside courts, leaving the impression that the expenses referred to had been largely increased by reason of their establishment. If I understood the figures correctly as cited by him, I think the expenses of the court inside the Territory for the last year will not justify the attack which he made upon the courts at Fort Smith and other places outside. However, I shall reply at some other time to that point.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, I understand it is the purpose of the Senator from Missouri to refer the joint resolution to the select committee of which I am chairman, and I shall therefore withhold any observations that I may have to make in regard to it until the measure has taken that direction. I think, perhaps, I may be able to submit some observations which will throw light upon the difficulties to which the Senator refers as existing in the Indian Territory.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will go over, and the first bill on the Calendar will be stated.

ALLOTMENTS TO INDIANS ON WHITE EARTH RESERVATION.

The bill (S. 3184) to provide for allotments to Indians on White Earth Reservation, in Minnesota, was announced as first in order on the Calendar, and was read by the Chief Clerk.

Mr. PLATT. I do not think the Senate is quite prepared to go on with the Calendar to-day. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. MCPHERSON. If the Senator from Connecticut will please withdraw the motion, I should like to call up the resolutions of the House of Representatives in respect to the death of a member of that body, as I presume we would adjourn after an executive session.

Mr. PLATT. I know there is such a resolution pending, and I withdraw my motion.

DEATH OF REPRESENTATIVE M'DONALD.

Mr. MCPHERSON. I ask that the resolutions of the House of Representatives be laid before the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate resolutions from the House of Representatives; which will be read.

The Chief Clerk read the resolutions, as follows:

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, December 5, 1892.

Resolved, That this House has heard with deep sorrow of the death of the Hon. Edward F. McDonald, lately a Representative from the State of New Jersey.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing resolution be transmitted to the family of the dead member.

Resolved, That the Clerk be directed to communicate a copy of these resolutions to the Senate.

Resolved, That as a further mark of respect for the dead this House do now adjourn.

Mr. MCPHERSON. Mr. President, I offer the resolutions which I send to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolutions will be read.

The Chief Clerk read the resolutions, as follows:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with deep sensibility the announcement of the death of Hon. Edward F. McDonald, late a Representative from the State of New Jersey.

Resolved, That the Secretary communicate this resolution to the House of Representatives.

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased the Senate do now adjourn.

Mr. MCPHERSON. Mr. President, a single word. It has been a practice which has recently grown up in the Senate that such resolutions should take this course. At some future time another series of resolutions will probably reach us, when I shall endeavor to pay fitting tribute to the memory of my deceased colleague in the other House.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolutions submitted by the Senator from New Jersey.

The resolutions were agreed to unanimously; and (at 1 o'clock and 16 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Thursday, December 8, 1892, at 12 o'clock, meridian.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, December 7, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by Rabbi ISAAC M. WISE, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. STEWART of Texas, until Monday next (at the request of Mr. SAYERS).

To Mr. COMPTON, indefinitely, on account of sickness (at the request of Mr. DOCKERY).

To Mr. MOSES, indefinitely, on account of sickness in his family (at the request of Mr. EVERETT).

PAY OF ASSISTANT CUSTODIANS AND JANITORS.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, urging that an additional appropriation be made as early as practical for the pay of assistant custodians and janitors for the fiscal year; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

REPORT OF THE GOVERNMENT DIRECTORS OF THE UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a copy of the report of the Government directors of the Union Pacific Railway Company for the year 1892; which was referred to the Committee on the Pacific Railroads, and ordered to be printed.

REPORT OF THE MARITIME CANAL COMPANY OF NICARAGUA.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting the report of the Maritime Canal Company of Nicaragua; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

RECEIPT, DISTRIBUTION, AND SALE OF PUBLIC DOCUMENTS BY THE INTERIOR DEPARTMENT.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting report regarding the receipt, distribution, and sale of public documents on behalf of the Government by the Department of the Interior; which was referred to the Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department, and ordered to be printed.

FINDINGS OF THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings of the court in the cases of the following-named persons against the United States: Amos Woodruff, Willis Cotton, deceased, P. L. Feezer, Alexander Seals, Jesse Picket, deceased, Fannie Young, W. J. Hendricks, deceased, J. N. Stephens, deceased, J. G. Ferguson, F. I. Johnson, deceased, and Peter Dunbar; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONER OF THE FREEDMAN'S SAVINGS AND TRUST COMPANY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the commissioner of the Freedman's Savings and Trust Company, transmitting report for the year ending December 5, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency, and ordered to be printed.

TESTS OF IRON AND STEEL, ETC., AT WATERTOWN ARSENAL.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of War, transmitting the report of the commanding officer of the Watertown Arsenal of tests of iron, steel, and other material for industrial purposes, made during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Manufactures, and ordered to be printed.

CONTINGENT EXPENDITURES OF THE MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of War, transmitting a report of the expenditures of the appropriations for the contingent expenses of the military establishment; which was referred to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department, and ordered to be printed.

SPRINGFIELD ARMORY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of War, transmitting a statement of expenditures at the Springfield Armory during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

RIVERS AND HARBORS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a number of letters from the Acting Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers in each case, a report of the examination and survey of the various rivers and harbors mentioned below; which were severally referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed:

Barnegat Inlet, New Jersey; South Fork of Bagaduce River, Maine; Old River, California; Stanislaus River, California; San Joaquin River, California; Emory River, Tennessee, from its mouth to Harriman; Green Bay, Wisconsin; Coos River, Oregon; the mouth of Navarro River, California; Tuolumne River, California; Frenchs Beach Harbor, Maine; Hamburg Bay, Illinois; Hiawassee River, Tennessee; Fox River, Wisconsin; Harbor of Crescent City, California; Harbor of Moline, Illinois; Vinal Haven, Maine; Nooksack River, Washington; Duck River, Tennessee; St. Jones River, Delaware; Neponset River, Massachusetts; Willamette River, Oregon; for lock and dam on Allegheny River near Tarentum, Pa.; Seaford Creek, New York; Upper Columbia River, Washington; and Chelsea River, Massachusetts.

DEEP WATER HARBOR AT SAN PEDRO, CAL.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with maps, etc., the report of a board of engineer officers of the United States Army as to the proposed deep-water harbor at San Pedro or Santa Monico bays, Cal.; which was referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and, with accompanying papers, ordered to be printed.

OFFICIAL RETURNS OF PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has received from the Secretary of State certified copies of the official ascertainment of the electors for President and Vice-President chosen in New Hampshire, Georgia, Arkansas, and Maryland. These returns will remain on the Speaker's table.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will now call the standing and select committees for reports.

The call was completed, but no reports were presented.

The SPEAKER. In the second morning hour the call rests with the Committee on Public Lands. The House was considering a bill reported by that committee on the last day in which such business was transacted, but the hour expired before the consideration was completed. The Clerk will report the title of the bill.

The bill was read, as follows:

An act (S. 80) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to convey to the State of Kansas certain lands therein.

Be it enacted, etc., That there is hereby granted to the State of Kansas the right to occupy, improve, and control, for the purposes of a soldiers' home, to be established and maintained thereon by said State, two sections and one-half of the lands embraced within the Fort Hays military reservation, to include the buildings located thereon, and to be selected by the governor of the State of Kansas according to legal subdivisions and contiguous, on condition that said State shall, within two years, establish such home at which provision shall be made for the care and maintenance of officers, soldiers, sailors, and marines who have served in the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States, their dependent parents, widows, or orphans, and under such rules and regulations as said State may provide; and there is likewise granted to said State from said reservation, to be selected by the governor, 2½ sections of land, to embrace the timber on the reservation, such selections to be made to correspond to the legal subdivisions and to adjoin the first-named tract. Said last-named tract is granted for the purpose and upon condition that the State of Kansas shall make of the same and maintain thereon a public park, and shall fully protect from destruction and damage said timber: Provided, That the United States reserves to itself the fee and the right forever to resume possession and dispose of the said lands whenever it shall appear that the State of Kansas has ceased to use the same for public purposes.

SEC. 2. That all the remainder of said reservation, after said selections have been made, shall be opened to settlement under the homestead laws only: Provided, That no entry shall embrace more than 80 acres.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. McRAE] is recognized.

Mr. McRAE. I will yield to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BAKER] such time as he may desire.

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of requesting the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. McRAE] to explain what this bill is.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Speaker, I explained this bill at the preceding session of this Congress [laughter], and I do not care to repeat myself; but if the gentleman who introduced the bill which the committee have reported as an amendment desires to be heard, I will yield him such time as he desires. The bill, in short, is intended to convey a certain military reservation to the State of Kansas in trust for a soldiers' home, to be conducted upon what is known as the cottage plan.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. How many acres are there in the reservation?

Mr. McRAE. Over 7,000, I think. Now, Mr. Speaker, if no gentleman desires to discuss the bill, I will move the previous question on the adoption of the amendment reported by the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I hope the report at least will be read.

Mr. DINGLEY. Mr. Speaker, is this bill required to be considered in Committee of the Whole?

The SPEAKER. It would be under the rules, but it was considered in the House at the first session of this Congress, the point suggested by the gentleman from Maine not having been made.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker——

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Arkansas yield the floor?

Mr. McRAE (to Mr. HOLMAN). How much time do you want?

Mr. HOLMAN. I want no time at all except to say that I have sent to the document room for a copy of the report upon this bill, and am told that there is no report. That, I suppose, must be a mistake.

Mr. McRAE. I think that is a mistake.

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, if there is a report, I hope it will be read.

Mr. McRAE. The report was read and printed in the RECORD when the bill was considered before, and the measure has already been discussed in the House for an hour. Mr. Speaker, I now see the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BAKER] who introduced the bill which the committee have reported instead of the Senate bill, and I yield him such time as he desires.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BAKER] to have the bill read.

Mr. McRAE. The bill has just been read in extenso.

Mr. BAKER. Mr. Speaker, this bill proposes that the Congress of the United States shall grant to the State of Kansas a body of land which was formerly used for military purposes, but the military use of which was abandoned in 1887. The land is at Fort Hays, Kans. The object in asking for this grant is to provide a cottage home for old soldiers and their families. At the close of the war, as is well known, many of the old soldiers sought homes on the new and unoccupied lands of the West. Unfortunately hundreds of those old soldiers have been dispossessed of their homes, and are to-day without homes or shelter for themselves or their families. This tract of land contains 7,600 acres. We have asked Congress to set aside a certain portion of it for a cottage home for the old soldiers and their families; the balance of it to be leased in 40 and 80 acre tracts for the benefit of the cottage home. The object of the bill is twofold, first to provide for old soldiers who are to-day without homes, and secondly to reduce, as far as may be possible, the expenses incident to the support of such of them as have become a public charge.

Mr. COX of Tennessee. What is the value of this land at this time?

Mr. BAKER. There has been no estimate placed upon it, so far as I know. I presume that it would be valued at from $5 to $15 an acre. That which is close to the city probably would be worth $15 per acre.

Mr. COX of Tennessee. What are the buildings worth?

Mr. BAKER. The buildings were appraised at $10,000.

Mr. COX of Tennessee. And there are 7,600 acres in the tract.

Mr. BAKER. Seven thousand six hundred acres. The Senate passed a bill conveying 2,400 acres for this purpose, but my bill includes the whole military reservation, to be used for the purposes I have stated.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. There is a national home in the State of Kansas for disabled volunteers, is there not?

Mr. BAKER. There is; but it does not provide for the families of the soldiers.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. These soldiers are on the pension roll, are they not?

Mr. BAKER. Some are and some are not. Unfortunately a great many of them have not come under the pension laws; most of them, indeed, are of that class to-day.

Mr. BOATNER. Is this land wanted for purposes of cultivation?

Mr. BAKER. I can hardly answer that question, for there are many millions of acres in our State that are not under cultivation at this time.

Mr. ANDREW. Does this bill contemplate that the wives and children of veterans shall occupy this home?

Mr. BAKER. That is the purpose—that the wives and children, so far as necessary, may receive relief in this way. We think that the burden of taxation, not only of the people of Kansas but of the National Government, will in this way be relieved.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I would like to ask the gentleman whether he knows of any other State of the Union that has received as large a donation as this, or indeed any donation from the public domain, for the purpose of establishing such homes?

Mr. BAKER. I am not informed of any other State having received a donation of this kind. But right wrongs no man. We contend that this bill is right in principle; that the laws of humanity impose upon us the imperative duty of providing for this class of persons. These soldiers came in there and settled at the close of the war. To-day, probably one-third of the population of Kansas are old soldiers, or very nearly that proportion.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Is there any reason why the State of Kansas should be preferred in this matter over the other States? The State of Ohio has a soldiers' home similar to this, sustained by the State; it is also the fact that several other States have homes of this kind; and none of these States have received any donation from the General Government in aid of such homes. Now I would like the gentleman to state any reason within his knowledge why the State of Kansas should be preferred in this matter over other States, beyond the simple fact that this military reservation happens to be situated in Kansas.

Mr. TURNER. As I understand, these old soldiers who are to be the inmates of this home have already received their share of the public lands.

Mr. PICKLER. The lands will revert to the Government as soon as they are no longer needed for these soldiers.

A MEMBER. How soon?

Mr. PICKLER. This generation will finish up the matter.

Several MEMBERS. Oh, no.

Mr. ANDREW. This donation is for the benefit, not only of the soldiers themselves, but of "their dependent parents, widows, or orphans."

Mr. COOMBS. Not only the soldiers, but their descendants get the benefit of this donation.

Mr. BAKER. I wish to remark that our condition is a little different from that of most of the older States. At the close of the war many of the men who had served in the Union army went out and built up new homes in the West. Hundreds of that class of men, as I have before stated, are to-day, with their families, dispossessed of their homes. I have been informed that at this time, in the city of Fort Hays, there are four soldiers' families that are being supported at public expense, the soldiers themselves being in the Government home at Leavenworth.

Under the system here proposed we desire to provide that the family of the soldier may not be separated from the father or husband; and we want to accomplish this object at the least possible expense. We do not ask a dollar at the hands of the General Government; but we do claim that the laws of humanity demand that the men who have spent the best years of their lives in the defense of their country shall be thus provided in their old age, so far as may be possible with justice to the taxpayers of the country and with as little expense as possible to the Government and the people.

Mr. COOMBS. Each one of these families will receive 1,900 acres?

Mr. BAKER. It would not give 10 acres to each soldier's family who are without homes to-day.

Mr. COOMBS. What can these people get from this land?

Mr. BAKER. The land can be leased in tracts of 40 to 80 acres for five years at a time. It is estimated that this measure will save to the taxpayers of the State not less than $20,000 per annum. We do not ask to impose any expense upon the Government of the United States; we do not ask a dollar from the public Treasury. We simply ask for the use of this tract of land, and that the revenue received from it may be used for the support of this cottage home, thereby relieving the taxpayers of the State to the extent of the income received from that source. Have we not been taxed, and heavily taxed, for the support of other sections of the country? We ask this at your hands as an act of simple justice to the State of Kansas and to the old soldiers within her borders.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Will the gentleman allow me to interrupt him for another question?

Mr. BAKER. Certainly.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. The question I wish to ask is whether the General Government has not already made a donation of a tract of public lands to the State of Kansas for a like purpose?

Mr. BAKER. What purpose?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Why, to establish a site for a soldiers' home at Fort Dodge.

Mr. BAKER. The Government of the United States gave to the State of Kansas 160 acres for a cottage home. First, this amount of land is not adequate to the needs of the home at this time, and in the second place it is very unfavorably located, being near the sand hills, in a locality not at all adapted to the establishment of such a home. In other words, it is entirely inadequate for the purpose.

Mr. BRODERICK. Will the gentleman yield for another question?

Mr. BAKER. Certainly.

Mr. BRODERICK. Is this not merely a loan of land to be used by the State for temporary purposes?

Mr. BAKER. That is all. We do not ask a dollar of funds to be donated to the State. We do not ask you to give us an acre of the public lands. We only ask to be permitted to use this property during such time as the State may deem it necessary for the purpose contemplated.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I dislike to interrupt the gentleman, but I think that he is entirely mistaken in his last reply.

Mr. BAKER. In what regard?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. That this is merely for use and occupancy. The very terms embodied in the title of the bill show that it makes an actual donation or grant to the State of Kansas of this land.

Mr. PICKLER. But only while it is used for the purpose contemplated.

Mr. BAKER. That is all.

Mr. PICKLER. And reverts to the Government when the necessity for its use, for the purpose contemplated, is done away with.

Mr. BABBITT. But it covers a period of some sixty years, does it not?

Mr. BAKER. No, it does not refer to any particular time. The reservation of a limit to the time is not embodied in the proposition.

We do not want a dollar from the Treasury, but simply to be allowed to use the land, and the buildings, so that we may be able to properly care for these old soldiers for whom the State of Kansas can not make provision at this time. The Legislature of the State will meet inside of a month. A former Legislature in Kansas appropriated $10,000 for this purpose——

Mr. PICKLER. What purpose?

Mr. BAKER. To provide for these cottage homes. I say the State has made provision to that extent already, in anticipation of this legislation. It was done several years ago, because it was expected such a bill would become a law.

Mr. HARVEY. The question is simply whether the Government will give to the soldiers the use of this land, or sell it to some landed syndicate.

Mr. BAKER. That is all. I repeat, we do not ask the Government to give anything. The question is whether the State will be allowed to use it for the benefit of the soldiers, and to relieve the State from the burden of taxation, which is necessarily imposed upon the State, in making proper provision for these gallant old soldiers, or whether this land shall be held to be disposed of to some syndicate, to build up some corporation or monopoly in this country.

Mr. PICKLER. Let us have a vote.

Mr. McRAE. If the gentleman from Kansas has concluded——

Mr. BAKER. I have said all I think necessary to say at this time.

Mr. McRAE. Then I will yield to the gentleman from Indiana, Judge HOLMAN, as much time as he thinks necessary.

Mr. HOLMAN. I only want a word or two myself, but would suggest to my friend from Arkansas that he yield to his colleagues on the committee first.

Mr. McRAE. Then I yield to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. DE ARMOND] for five minutes.

Mr. DE ARMOND. Mr. Speaker, this measure was before the House at its last session, and was discussed to some extent at that time. The report of the Committee on Public Lands, as it appears before the House, is a favorable one. I feel that, as one of the members of the committee that did not and do not concur in this report, believing on the contrary that the report should have been adverse, it is due to myself, as well as to the House, that I state briefly some of the grounds of opposition, which a careful reading of the bill itself ought to bring into view.

The proposition is, in plain English, to give to the State of Kansas, for the purpose of a soldiers' home, 7,600 acres of valuable land worth from $150,000 to $200,000. The occupants of the proposed home are to be exempt from taxation while residing there. As the law now is, all the land embraced in this abandoned military reservation could be placed upon the market and sold, and the proceeds paid into the Treasury, where there is need of money. The bill really excludes from the use and occupation of this land all soldiers except those residing in the State of Kansas. There is already provided in Kansas a national soldiers' home. There is no reason why this donation should be made to that State rather than to any other State. There is no reason, in fact, why a donation of this character should be made to any State. The land, improved and with more than $10,000 worth of buildings upon it, can be sold readily if placed upon the market. It is only necessary for those charged with its disposition to place it upon the market, sell it, and pay the proceeds into the Treasury, where they ought to go; and so much of the public property will be devoted to public use. This is a bill which in justice to the people of the United States, in justice to the soldiers of the different States, in justice to the taxpayers of the Union, ought not to pass. It is special, partial, unfair legislation, and deserves, as I hope it will receive, the reprobation of this House.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Speaker, I believe this bill is very well understood by the House. If the old, abandoned policy of selling lands for the purpose of raising revenue for the General Government is to be restored, there is no excuse for this grant, which is only in trust for the purposes indicated. Practically the question involved in this bill is as to whether we shall reserve this abandoned military reservation for actual settlers, to be disposed of in 160-acre lots to squatters, sell it to speculators, or give it in trust to the State of Kansas for the purpose of maintaining thereon at her own expense a soldiers' home upon the cottage plan. I believe in this plan for such homes. There is very little probability that we will ever raise any revenue from the lands in question. The Government price for agricultural public lands like this is $1.25 an acre. These lands are doubtless worth more. There are millions of acres of land disposed of yearly that are worth more; but that is the price the Government has fixed, and in estimating the value of this grant it is but fair to say that the land is worth the price at which the Government holds the agricultural lands. Besides, the bill only grants the use of the land for a home and reserves the fee in the Government. Whenever the State of Kansas ceases to use the land for that purpose the land will revert to the United States to be disposed of under the laws then in force.

Mr. OATES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. McRAE] if it is not customary to sell military reservations for whatever they will bring, and not to dispose of them at a dollar and a quarter an acre?

Mr. McRAE. There is a law authorizing a sale, but it is not the custom to sell as large tracts as this. I do not believe a solitary military reservation has been sold since I have been in public life. There is nothing more common than for Congress to pass bills opening military reservations to settlers under the homestead law. It is the well-understood policy of the Government to reserve all lands fit for cultivation for settlers under the homestead law. Now, if that policy is to be reversed and such lands are to be sold, then this land should be sold also; but if our public lands are to be given away to settlers for homes, I see no reason why the use of this reservation should not be granted to the State for homes for such soldiers as she will maintain. It will relieve the National Home, and thereby aid the National Government in doing that for which she is now spending millions of dollars.

Mr. HOLMAN. I wish to make an inquiry of my friend. I understood him to say that there is no law now providing for the sale of such reservations.

Mr. McRAE. The gentleman misunderstood me. I said there was a law, but that it was not the custom of the Interior Department to use it in disposing of large military reservations.

Mr. HOLMAN. But the Secretary of the Interior has the power under the act of 1883. Under that act this land could be sold to the highest bidder. That law has never been repealed.

Mr. McRAE. That is true. It never has been repealed. But it is not the custom to sell reservations of this size and character under the law.

Mr. HOLMAN. The law is still in force and this land could be disposed of under it by the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. McRAE. If the Secretary of the Interior saw fit to do so, but he has not seen fit to offer it for sale. When he does some land syndicate will buy it and we will hear a howl about land monopoly. I am for those who want to cultivate it.

Mr. HOLMAN. One other suggestion to my friend from Arkansas. The reason why that law was passed was apparently that the principle of the homestead law should not apply to such lands, for two reasons: First, they are not in the nature of wild lands. They are lands which have been reserved from sale and are settled around generally by a dense population. They are the best lands that can be secured, and well watered; and for these reasons it is not deemed proper that the homestead principle should apply to lands of this class. I think that under the circumstances this body of land ought to be sold and the money paid into the Treasury.

Mr. McRAE. That principle, reduced to its final analysis, means that settlers should only have the lands which we can not sell, lands that are worthless. It means that we should sell all that can be sold. So far as I am concerned I am opposed to such a policy for the settlement of our public domain. I want the settlers to have free of cost our public lands when they can be utilized for homes. The State of Kansas proposes to use this for a class of homeless people, and so far as I am concerned I see no objection to allowing her to do so. We incur no expense and still retain the title to the land, which will constantly improve in value.

I demand the previous question on the passage of the Senate bill as amended.

The SPEAKER. Before putting the motion of the gentleman from Arkansas, the Chair will direct the Clerk to read the Senate bill as amended. The House amended the bill by striking out all after the enacting clause and inserting the following, which the Clerk will read.

The bill as amended was read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That there is hereby granted to the State of Kansas the right to occupy, improve, and control for the purpose of a soldiers' cottage home, to be established and maintained thereon by said State, the Fort Hays military reservation, to include the buildings and improvements located thereon, on condition that said State shall within two years establish such home, at which provision shall be made for the care and maintenance of officers, soldiers, sailors, and marines who have served in the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States, their dependent parents, widows, or orphans, and under such regulations as said State may provide. During its occupancy by the State the reservation and all persons thereon shall be subject to the laws of the State, except that no old soldier occupying it as his home shall be subject to taxation.

SEC. 2. That said State shall cause the belt of timber on said reservation to be properly fenced, to make and maintain a public park, with suitable drive on each side of said belt of timber, to place the same in charge of the manager of the home, and make such laws and regulations as will carefully protect said timber from destruction and damage. It shall cause two and one-half sections adjoining the quarter section on which the buildings are now located to be properly laid out in avenues and 2-acre lots, on each of which lots may be constructed a cottage for an old soldier and his family, and as much more of said land as may hereafter be needed for such purposes. It shall maintain the soldiers' cemetery now on said reservation, which is hereby made a national cemetery. That portion of the reservation not required for other purposes shall be leased out in five-year leases, in tracts not larger than 80 acres, to the highest bidder in cash, the proceeds to be used for maintenance of said soldiers' home.

SEC. 3. That the State of Kansas, during its occupancy, shall have the right to grant the 100-foot right of way to any railroad that may desire to build across said reservation, for the benefit of said home: Provided, That the said railroad shall thoroughly fence its track on said reservation and maintain a freight and passenger depot at its closest point to the main buildings on said reservation, where the commandant shall designate.

SEC. 4. That the United States reserves to itself the fee and the right forever to resume possession and dispose of said lands whenever it shall appear that the State of Kansas has ceased to use the same for the purposes specified in this act.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, before the motion is put, I hope my friend will allow the present law to be read.

Mr. McRAE. There is no question, Mr. Speaker, as to the authority of the Secretary of the Interior to dispose of this land; and I do not desire to take up the time of the House by having the law on the subject read.

Mr. HOLMAN. It is desired to have it appraised and sold——

Mr. McRAE. We all understand that this land has been subject to sale ever since the military ceased to use it and turned it over to the Interior Department.

Mr. BYNUM. If the gentleman will allow me, I desire to know if the Grand Army posts of the State of Kansas have not remonstrated against the passage of this bill, on the ground that they already have a home which is not filled?

Mr. McRAE. Not to my knowledge.

Mr. BYNUM. I recollect distinctly receiving a protest of that kind, and I kept a copy of it in my desk, but do not now find it. I would be glad to have some information about this from some gentleman from Kansas. I know that I received from a Grand Army post of that State a protest against the passage of this bill.

Mr. McRAE. I have no information on that subject, and no protests were referred to the Committee on Public Lands that I remember. The gentleman who represents the district in which this land is situated says that he has no knowledge of any such protests. It is a matter of but little consequence whether they did or not.

Mr. BAKER. I know that the Grand Army post at Fort Dodge did send a protest against the passage of the bill—not the Grand Army posts generally of the State.

The previous question was ordered; and under the operation thereof the question was taken on the third reading of the bill, when the Speaker announced that the noes seemed to have it.

Mr. BAKER. Division, Mr. Speaker.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 28, noes 85.

Mr. BAKER. Tellers.

The question was taken on ordering tellers.

The SPEAKER. Twenty-one gentlemen have arisen in support of the demand for tellers—not a sufficient number. Tellers are refused, the noes have it, and the House refuses to order the Senate bill, as amended, read a third time.

ENGINEER CORPS OF THE NAVY.

The SPEAKER. The call rests with the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. HERBERT. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (S. 139) terminating the reduction in the numbers of the Engineer Corps of the Navy.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the House that this bill was before it for consideration under a special rule at the last session. The bill had been ordered to be read a third time, whereupon the hour expired; so the bill will now be read the third time.

The bill was read the third time.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I believe this bill——

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. HERBERT] yield the floor?

Mr. HERBERT. No, sir. The previous question was ordered on the bill.

Mr. HOLMAN. No; I think not.

The SPEAKER. Under the rules the previous question can not be ordered upon the third reading and final passage at the same time.

Mr. HERBERT. I do not yield the floor.

The SPEAKER. The previous question was ordered on the engrossment and third reading. The bill has now been read the third time, and the question is: Shall the bill pass?

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, Mr. Speaker, I trust the gentleman from Alabama will explain the effect of this bill; and I know the House, when it understands the bill, will hesitate before passing it.

Mr. HERBERT. Mr. Speaker, I will explain the bill. I stated the effect of the bill at the last session, but I will restate it in order to bring it to the mind of the House. The question was debated to some extent and the facts laid before the House, and thereupon the House, upon a vote, by a very considerable majority, ordered the bill to a third reading.

The bill provides that the reduction in the numbers of the Engineer Corps of the Navy, provided for under the act of August, 1882, shall be considered as having ceased on the 30th day of June, 1891. I stated when the bill was last before the House for consideration that the act of 1882 reduced the number of engineers, and provided that the reduction should go on until the number got down to 170. That law has been in operation for ten years, and under the provisions of that act, whereby only one promotion was made for every two vacancies, this reduction has gone on until on the 30th of June, 1891, the date fixed in this bill for the reduction to cease, there were only 191 engineers in the Navy. One hundred and ninety-one engineers are barely sufficient for the needs of the service, at the present. One hundred and seventy would be totally insufficient. The Secretary of the Navy, in his annual report for 1890, says:

> At present there are not enough engineer officers in the Navy for ordinary working purposes, and if any additional ships were built an enlargement of the corps would be necessary.

Which statement is again emphasized in the Secretary's report for 1891.

The Secretary of the Navy is even of the opinion that the small increase proposed by this bill is not sufficient, and there is another bill pending in committee making a still further and larger increase of this corps than is provided for here. But the Committee on Naval Affairs, having given that other bill careful consideration, could not see their way to recommend it. They have, however, recommended this bill as being absolutely necessary. No person who has examined this question at all has any doubt about the necessity or propriety of passing this bill. The Secretary of the Navy recommends it, and every officer in the Navy, whether in the line or staff, will say that the number of engineers provided for in it is barely sufficient for the ships that are now in commission and those now in process of construction and nearly completed.

Mr. GREENLEAF. And I understand the gentleman to say that the committee were unanimous in reporting this bill?

Mr. HERBERT. They were unanimous in reporting this bill.

Mr. HOLMAN rose.

Mr. HERBERT. Mr. Speaker, I do not desire to yield the floor unless the gentleman from Indiana wishes to be heard upon the bill.

Mr. HOLMAN. Just for a moment.

Mr. HERBERT. Then I yield the gentleman five minutes.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I send to the Clerk's desk, to be read, a provision of the act of 1882 regulating this matter.

The Clerk read, as follows:

> That the active list of the engineer corps of the Navy shall hereafter consist of ten chief engineers with the relative rank of captain, fifteen chief engineers with the relative rank of commander, forty-five chief engineers with the relative rank of lieutenant-commander or lieutenant, sixty passed assistant engineers, and forty assistant engineers with the relative rank for each as now fixed by law; and after the number of officers in the said grades shall be reduced as above provided, the number in each grade shall not exceed the reduced number which is fixed by the provisions of this act for the several grades.

Mr. HOLMAN. Now, Mr. Speaker, that is the present law. It was enacted in view of the existing personnel of the Navy, fixed, I believe, at 7,500. That measure was considered with extreme care, after full consultation with the Secretary of the Navy at that time, and it is the law; but now it is proposed to stop short of carrying that law into effect, to stop when the number is still 191 instead of 170, as contemplated by the law. I think that nothing has occurred since 1882 to justify the extraordinary change here proposed in the personnel of this particular branch of the Navy.

Mr. DOCKERY. What is the increase of expenditure proposed by this bill?

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, the existing law has been read fixing the number of this corps. Gentlemen are aware that there came down to us from the war period a vast number of officers who had to be dispensed with, and this law which I have had read was one of the final acts of Congress looking to a reasonable reduction of the number. Under the law as read here the number would be reduced to 170. The number now, as I understand, is 191, and this change of the law would largely increase the number. I hope the House will not vote to make any such increase.

Mr. HERBERT. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] says, and says correctly, that this matter was very carefully considered ten years ago when the act of 1882 was passed, and that the number of engineers was then intended to be fixed at 170. He also says, quite correctly, that the purpose of that act was to reduce the extravagantly overgrown personnel of this corps as well as of other corps of the Navy which had come over as a result of the war. The process of reduction provided for in that act of 1882 which the gentleman has had read has been going on steadily from that time down to the present. The gentleman from Indiana also says—and in this I think he is incorrect—that nothing has occurred during the past ten years to justify a change of the policy then decided upon of limiting the number of officers in this corps to 170. Nothing has occurred, sir, except the authorizing and the building of something like forty new ships.

Mr. HOLMAN. Yes; new ships; but nothing has occurred in the way of increasing the force of the Navy. The force has not been increased.

Mr. HERBERT. Well, Mr. Speaker, if the authorizing and the building of something like forty new ships does not make a different situation from that which existed ten years ago, then I, at least, am very much at fault.

Mr. HOLMAN. But how many of the old ships have been disposed of?

Mr. HERBERT. Oh, nearly all the old ships have gone. There are very few of the old vessels now in commission. Not half a dozen of them will survive next year. New ships have been put into commission, and other new ships have been substituted for them, that are larger and more complicated and better ships than those they are replacing, and they require more engineer officers to take care of them and run them. Your Committee on Naval Affairs took all these facts into consideration. They examined the whole question and unanimously agreed that this bill ought to pass. To refuse to pass this bill will be, under the circumstances, deliberately to cripple the Navy of the United States; which I am satisfied this House does not intend to, and will not willingly, do.

Mr. HOLMAN. I wish to ask the gentleman a question. He states—correctly, of course—that within ten years we have provided for the construction of about forty war ships. Now, how many ships have gone out of commission within that time, and how many will go out of commission within two years?

Mr. HERBERT. I am not prepared to state exactly how many ships have gone out of commission within the last ten years; but I would say roughly, without having given particular attention to the matter recently, that at least thirty-five ships have gone out of the Navy since 1882, when the law was passed fixing the number of engineers at 170. Let me say further that the ships which have been authorized and built since that time are of different classes from those which existed at the time the act of 1882 was passed. These new ships are larger; they contain many more engines; they require many more engineers.

Mr. Speaker, no gentleman in this House can look into this bill and come to any other conclusion than that at least this small increase of about twenty-one engineers is necessary. The opinion obtains generally in the Navy that many more engineers ought to be authorized; but as I have already stated the Committee on Naval Affairs, having due regard to economy in the administration of the Government, have decided that for the present the Navy Department ought to be able to get along with this increase. This is a plain statement of the facts.

Mr. BLOUNT. I wish to inquire whether there is, along with this measure, any proposition to increase the number of seamen?

Mr. HERBERT. There is a proposition of that kind, but it is in a different bill.

Mr. BLOUNT. So that this bill is a project to increase largely the number of engineers——

Mr. HERBERT. Let me say to the gentleman that the force of engineers provided for in this bill is necessary, whether or not there be any increase at all in the number of enlisted men of the Navy. When the other bill comes up we shall consider it on its merits.

Mr. BLOUNT. Then the committee, as I understand, have gone farther than this bill proposes, and they contemplate a general increase of the personnel of the Navy.

Mr. HERBERT. Another bill has been reported providing for an increase in the number of apprentices, and for some increase also in the number of common sailors. That is true. But we will meet that question when we come to it.

Mr. BLOUNT. I am not concerned as to how we may meet the question. I simply wanted this information from the gentleman.

Mr. HERBERT. I meant to state to the gentleman courteously that we shall discuss that question when we come to it. I think we shall be able to defend that other bill also. But whether that bill passes or not, this bill most assuredly ought to pass. Nobody who will take the trouble to look into the question can have any doubt about it.

Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois. Is it not true that a number of engineers are now in this city unassigned to duty and with nothing to do except to assist in leading "the german"?

Mr. HERBERT. No, sir; I think not.

Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois. I have heard it so stated.

Mr. HERBERT. Loose statements of that kind are easy to make, but they are not true; the gentleman is in error. I will say to him that there is now a real difficulty in procuring enough engineer officers to perform the duties required by law.

Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois. I think I can, from my own knowledge, give the gentleman information of two or three of these officers now unemployed, except in the manner I have stated.

Mr. HERBERT. I am sure the gentleman is mistaken. Certain I am that although there may be now some engineer officer in the city of Washington on short leave of absence, yet it is the fact that the Engineer Corps is insufficient in numbers to man the ships afloat, inspect and supervise the new engines building, and perform the other duties imposed upon it by law at the present time.

Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois. Is it not a fact that——

Mr. HERBERT. Let me state further that the reduction has gone on now not to 170, but only about 184.

Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois. Is it not a fact that a number of these engineers, in order to give them employment, are now being used on these fishing boats down here?

Mr. HERBERT. No, sir.

Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois. It is a fact, and I know it.

Mr. HERBERT. I deny it; it is not a fact.

Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois. It is a fact, and I can give the gentleman the names of some of them.

Mr. BOUTELLE. What does the gentleman from Illinois state as the fact?

Mr. HERBERT. I am sure the gentleman from Illinois is talking about something of which he has no information.

Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois. I have the information.

Mr. HERBERT. No engineers are detailed anywhere under the orders of the Department except where they are necessary. I make that statement, and I have no doubt in the world of its correctness.

Mr. Speaker, I call the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

The question being taken on the passage of the bill,

The SPEAKER said: The noes seem to have it.

Mr. HERBERT. I call for a division.

The question being again taken, there were—ayes 71, noes 65.

Mr. HOLMAN. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 126, nays 92, not voting 111; as follows:

YEAS—126.

Alderson,	Cox, N. Y.	Hull,	Powers,
Amerman,	Cummings,	Johnson, Ind.	Price,
Andrew,	Daniell,	Johnson, N. Dak.	Ray,
Atkinson,	De Forest,	Kribbs,	Reed,
Bacon,	Dingley,	Lagan,	Reyburn,
Bankhead,	Dolliver,	Lanham,	Rife,
Barwig,	Dunphy,	Lapham,	Robinson, Pa.
Belknap,	Durborow,	Lawson, Va.	Russell,
Bentley,	Ellis,	Layton,	Scull,
Bergen,	Flick,	Lind,	Seerley,
Bingham,	Forney,	Little,	Smith,
Boatner,	Geissenhainer,	Lodge,	Stevens,
Boutelle,	Gillespie,	Loud,	Stone, C. W.
Bowers,	Greenleaf,	Lynch,	Stone, W. A.
Bowman,	Grout,	Magner,	Storer,
Brawley,	Hallowell,	Mallory,	Tarsney,
Brickner,	Harmer,	McAleer,	Taylor, Tenn.
Broderick,	Harries,	McKinney,	Taylor, E. B.
Brosius,	Harter,	Meyer,	Taylor, J. D.
Bullock,	Haugen,	Miller,	Townsend,
Bunn,	Hayes, Iowa	Mutchler,	Tracey,
Caldwell,	Haynes, Ohio	Newberry,	Walker,
Campbell,	Henderson, Iowa	Oates,	Warner,
Castle,	Henderson, Ill.	O'Donnell,	Waugh,
Causey,	Herbert,	Ohliger,	Weadock,
Cheatham,	Hilborn,	O'Neil, Mass.	Willcox,
Clancy,	Holman,	O'Neill, Pa.	Williams, Mass.
Cobb, Ala.	Hooker, Miss.	Owens,	Wilson, Wash.
Cockran,	Hooker, N. Y.	Payne,	Wise,
Coolidge,	Hopkins, Pa.	Pendleton,	Wright.
Coombs,	Hopkins, Ill.	Perkins,
Covert,	Huff,	Post,

NAYS—92.

Abbott,	Breckinridge, Ark.	Caruth,	Davis,
Allen,	Breckinridge, Ky.	Cate,	De Armond,
Antony,	Bretz,	Clover,	Dockery,
Arnold,	Brookshire,	Cobb, Mo.	Donovan,
Baker,	Bryan,	Coburn,	Edmunds,
Beltzhoover,	Busey,	Cooper,	Epes,
Blanchard,	Butler,	Cowles,	Everett,
Blount,	Bynum,	Cox, Tenn.	Fithian,
Branch,	Capehart,	Culberson,	Fyan,

Gantz,	Livingston,	Parrett,	Stone, Ky.
Gorman,	Long,	Patterson, Tenn.	Stout,
Grady,	Mansur,	Patton,	Taylor, Ill.
Halvorson,	Martin,	Pearson,	Terry,
Hare,	McClellan,	Peel,	Tillman,
Henderson, N. C.	McKaig,	Pierce,	Turner,
Johnson, Ohio	McLaurin,	Richardson,	Watson,
Kem,	McMillin,	Sayers,	Wheeler, Ala.
Kilgore,	McRae,	Scott,	White,
Kyle,	Moore,	Shively,	Wike,
Lane,	Norton,	Simpson,	Williams, Ill.
Lawson, Ga.	O'Ferrall,	Snodgrass,	Wilson, W. Va.
Lester, Va.	Otis,	Snow,	Wolverton,
Lester, Ga.	Outhwaite,	Stockdale,	Youmans.

NOT VOTING—111.

Alexander,	Curtis,	Houk, Tenn.	Rockwell,
Babbitt,	Cutting,	Johnstone, S. C.	Rusk,
Bailey,	Daizell,	Jolley,	Sanford,
Bartine,	Dickerson,	Jones,	Shell,
Beeman,	Dixon,	Kendall,	Shonk,
Belden,	Doan,	Ketcham,	Sipe,
Bland,	Dungan,	Lewis,	Sperry,
Brown, Ind.	Elliott,	Lockwood,	Springer,
Brown, Md.	English,	McCreary,	Stahlnecker,
Brunner,	Enloe,	McGann,	Stephenson,
Buchanan, N. J.	Enochs,	McKeighan,	Steward, Ill.
Buchanan, Va.	Fellows,	Meredith,	Stewart, Tex.
Bunting,	Fitch,	Milliken,	Stump,
Burrows,	Forman,	Mitchell,	Sweet,
Bushnell,	Fowler,	Montgomery,	Taylor, V. A.
Byrns,	Funston,	Morse,	Tucker,
Cable,	Geary,	Moses,	Turpin.
Cadmus,	Goodnight,	O'Neill, Mo.	Van Horn,
Caminetti,	Griswold,	Page,	Wadsworth,
Catchings,	Hall,	Pattison, Ohio	Washington,
Chipman,	Hamilton,	Paynter,	Wever,
Clark, Wyo.	Hatch,	Pickler,	Wheeler, Mich.
Clarke, Ala.	Heard,	Quackenbush,	Whiting,
Cogswell,	Hemphill,	Raines,	Williams, N. C.
Compton,	Hermann,	Randall,	Wilson, Ky.
Crain, Tex.	Hitt,	Rayner,	Wilson, Mo.
Crawford,	Hoar,	Reilly,	Winn.
Crosby,	Houk, Ohio	Robertson, La.

So the bill was passed.

The following pairs were announced:

Until further notice:

Mr. GOODNIGHT with Mr. SHONK.

Mr. WASHINGTON with Mr. SANFORD.

Mr. CLARKE of Alabama with Mr. VINCENT A. TAYLOR.

Mr. PAYNTER with Mr. BELDEN.

Mr. MCCREARY with Mr. WEVER.

Mr. MONTGOMERY with Mr. MOORE.

Mr. ROBERTSON of Louisiana with Mr. DOAN.

Mr. MOSES with Mr. COGSWELL, for this day.

Mr. ELLIS with Mr. CLARK of Wyoming, for this day.

Mr. HATCH with Mr. HOUK of Tennessee, on this vote.

Mr. CAMINETTI with Mr. ENOCHS, on this vote.

Before the announcement of the result of the vote

Mr. HOLMAN said: Mr. Speaker, I have voted in the negative, but desire to change my vote to the affirmative on this question.

The SPEAKER. The vote of the gentleman from Indiana will be changed as requested.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

Mr. HOLMAN. I move to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed.

Mr. HERBERT. I move to lay that motion on the table.

Mr. HOLMAN. The hour, I believe, has expired.

The SPEAKER. The hour for the consideration of this measure having expired under the rule, the Chair will hold that it goes over until the next morning hour, subject however, to revision if upon examination the Chair finds that there are precedents to the contrary. But it will come up to-morrow in the second morning hour at all events.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. MCCOOK, its Secretary, announced that the Senate had passed the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with deep sensibility the announcement of the death of Hon. Edward F. McDonald, late a Representative from the State of New Jersey.

Resolved, That the Secretary communicate this resolution to the House of Representatives.

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased the Senate do now adjourn.

PUBLIC PRINTING AND BINDING.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up for present consideration Senate bill 1549, "providing for the public printing and binding and the distribution of public documents." A copy of the bill is on the desk, and I ask to have the special order relating to it read, if necessary. I will state that by an order of the House this bill is given precedence for consideration except as against appropriation and revenue bills.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the order to which the gentleman refers.

The Clerk read as follows:

PUBLIC PRINTING.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to present a report, not for immediate consideration, but in order that it may be printed and the bill reported by title and recommitted to the Committee on Printing. I ask, Mr. Speaker, that the committee have leave to report this bill for consideration at any time, not to interfere with appropriation or revenue bills. It is the bill to regulate printing for the Government.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the title of the bill, after which the Chair will submit the request of the gentleman from Tennessee.

The Clerk read as follows:

"A bill (S. 1549) providing for the public printing and binding and distribution of public documents."

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee submits this report and asks that the bill be printed and recommitted to the Committee on Printing, and that that committee have leave to report it at any time for consideration, not to interfere with revenue or appropriation bills. Is there objection?

Mr. MCCREARY. I desire to ask the gentleman from Tennessee if this is the bill which passed the Senate, and which is, to a certain extent, like the House bill that was under consideration at the beginning of the session?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It is, but with certain amendments made by our committee to make it conform, I think, to the wishes of the House.

Mr. MCCREARY. But you desire no action now?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not.

Mr. DINGLEY. Is it the same bill which was before the House early in the session, with modifications?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes, with certain modifications.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the title of the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1549) providing for the public printing and binding, and the distribution of public documents.

Mr. RICHARDSON. This bill, Mr. Speaker, has been read in full beretofore, and was discussed also for some time. I ask that it be now taken up by sections or items. It is quite a long bill and will take some time to dispose of it. The only practical way to consider it is to take it up section by section, and I ask consent that it be so read, with the understanding that each section, as read, shall be considered as adopted, unless some amendments are proposed. It covers many sections which are literally transcripts from the Revised Statutes, the object being to make the bill uniform and consistent with itself in all of its parts.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] asks that in the consideration of the bill now before the House it be read by sections, and that as each section is read, if no amendment be offered thereto, it be considered as agreed to, and that the House proceed thus throughout the consideration of the bill. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the bill by sections.

The Clerk proceeded to read the bill by sections. Having read as follows:

SEC. 13. The Joint Committee shall have control of the arrangement and style of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, and while providing that it shall be substantially a verbatim report of proceedings, shall take all needed action for the reduction of unnecessary bulk, and shall provide for the publication of an index of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD semimonthly during the sessions of Congress and at the close thereof—

Mr. DINGLEY. Mr. Speaker, before passing this section I desire to ask of the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON], who is in charge of the bill, what is the meaning of the provision that the joint committee shall take all needed action for the reduction of unnecessary bulk of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Having provided first that the RECORD shall be substantially a verbatim report of the proceedings, what is contemplated to be covered by that phrase to which I have referred? If the RECORD is to be substantially a verbatim report, how is the Joint Committee on Printing to reduce the bulk of it?

Mr. RICHARDSON. That could only be by preventing a duplication of publication. If a document is submitted in both Houses on the same day, the joint committee could make regulations by which that document would only appear in the proceedings of one House. I will state that this section is not a change in the law. It is a republication of the present law, as found in the Supplement to the Revised Statutes at page 617, or in the Statutes at Large, volume 21, page 516. It does not change existing law.

Mr. DINGLEY. And is not intended at all to give the joint committee power to change the verbatim report?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It is not intended to interfere with the debates at all.

Mr. DINGLEY. But simply refers to documents and things of that kind?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Certainly. It does not contemplate any abridgment of the debates or anything of that kind, but simply relates to matters like the one I have just cited as an illustration.

The Clerk proceeded with the reading of the bill by sections.

Having read as follows:

SEC. 17. At all times when there is no Committee on Printing of the House of Representatives the powers and duties under the law devolving upon the Joint Committee on Printing shall be exercised and performed by the Senate Committee on Printing.

Mr. RICHARDSON said: Mr. Speaker, the House committee recommends the adoption of an amendment to that section.

Mr. DINGLEY. Will the gentleman state what change that amendment makes?

Mr. RICHARDSON. The bill as it passed the Senate provided that the Senate committee, when there was no House committee, might exercise the duties of the joint committee. This amendment which the House committee proposes strikes out that provision and provides that when there be only one committee, whether of the Senate or of the House, that in either case the committee in existence may exercise the duties of the joint committee for the time being.

Mr. DINGLEY. But practically, must it not always be the Senate committee when that condition of things exist at all?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Well, it would almost always be the Senate committee, but still it gives us the same privilege, if we shall ever find them in that situation.

The SPEAKER. The question is upon the motion of the gentleman from Tennessee to strike out and insert. The Clerk will read what is proposed to be stricken out and what is proposed to be inserted.

The Clerk read as follows:

Strike out lines 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 of section 17 and insert:
"At any time when there is no joint committee of the two Houses of Congress the powers and duties devolving upon the joint committee shall be exercised by the committee then in existence of either House."

Mr. RICHARDSON. I will state, Mr. Speaker, that this is agreed to by the Senate committee also. There is no controversy over it.

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk proceeded with the reading of the bill by sections. Having read as follows:

SEC. 40. The Public Printer shall pay no greater price for composition than 50 cents per thousand ems and 40 cents per hour for time work to printers and bookbinders: Provided, That the pay of all employés of the Government Printing Office engaged on night work (between the hours of 5 o'clock p. m. and 8 o'clock a. m.) shall be 20 per cent. in addition to the amount paid for day labor—

Mr. DINGLEY said: Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Tennessee if the maximum price per thousand ems stated in this section is that which is now paid?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes, this is an exact copy of the law. It does not change it a particle.

Mr. DINGLEY. And that is the actual price which is being paid to-day?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes; there is no change. It is the present law.

The Clerk proceeded with the reading of the bill. Having read as follows:

Of the Senate documents and reports, bound: To the Senate Library, 15 copies; to the Library of Congress, 2 copies, and 50 copies additional for foreign exchanges; to House Library, 15 copies; to the superintendent of documents, 500 copies, for distribution to State and Territorial libraries and designated depositories. These documents shall be bound in half Russia—

Mr. RICHARDSON said: There is an amendment to that section which I will ask the Clerk to report.

The Clerk read as follows:

In line 38 of section 55, strike out the words "half Russia," and insert the words "full sheep."

Mr. RICHARDSON. That amendment is recommended by the committee in the interest of economy. It is cheaper to bind in full sheep than in half Russia. It is estimated that it will save 25 cents on each volume, on perhaps 100,000 volumes in a year. I move the adoption of the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 59. Whenever printing not bearing a Congressional number shall be done for any department or officer of the Government, except confidential matter, blank forms, and circular letters not of a public character, or shall be done for use of Congressional committees, not of a confidential character, two copies shall be sent, unless withheld by order of the committee, by the Public Printer to the Senate and House libraries, respectively, and one copy each to the document rooms of the Senate and House, for reference; and these copies shall not be removed; and of all publications of the Executive Departments made for distribution 500 copies shall be at once delivered to the superintendent of documents for distribution to designated depositories and State and Territorial libraries;

with an amendment as follows:

In line 10, after the words "Executive Departments," insert the words, "not intended for their special use, but."

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is a committee amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 61. There shall be one document room of the Senate and one of the House of Representatives, to be designated, respectively, the "Senate and House document room." Each shall be in charge of a superintendent, who shall be appointed by the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate and the Doorkeeper of the House, respectively, who shall appoint the necessary number of assistants:

with an amendment as follows:

Add to the end of the section the following words: "Provided, That this section shall not take effect until the closing of the Fifty-second Congress."

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TRACEY in the chair). The question is on the adoption of the amendment.

Mr. DINGLEY. Mr. Speaker, before that amendment is adopted I would like to make this suggestion to my friend from Tennessee. I notice that it is provided that this particular section shall not take effect until the 4th of March

The suggestion which I desire to make is whether it would not be advisable that this whole bill, introducing, as it does, an entirely new system, not only in the printing, but in the distribution of public documents, should not take effect until the 4th of March, 1893; and I would ask him whether it would not be better to strike out this provision, and insert one at the end of the bill, that this bill, if it shall pass, shall not take effect until after the 4th of March, 1893.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I hope that the gentleman will not insist on that motion at this time, but when we shall reach the end of the bill, if he desires to make such a motion, it could be entertained.

Mr. DINGLEY. I will not now insist, but if the bill were not designed to take effect until that time, then, of course, we ought to strike out this provision at this point. It seems to me that great confusion will be introduced in the printing and distribution of documents if this bill should take effect before the 4th day of March next.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I would like the gentleman to consider his own suggestion until we have concluded the consideration of the bill, and if he then so desires we can consider his suggestion, but it occurs to me that there will be no confusion in the printing and distribution of documents under this bill. This Congress is now providing for a year's printing, and we want it to apply to this year's printing, and for that reason I did not press the consideration of this bill late in the long session. I thought it would be time enough to take it up in this session, and pass it as early as possible, in order that it might apply to next year's printing.

Mr. DINGLEY. My friend will notice that the next section provides for a superintendent of documents. Now, if that officer is to be appointed immediately you would vacate the position now occupied by the gentleman in charge there and introduce another official right in the midst of a session of Congress, and in doing so it seems to me you will necessarily cause a great deal of confusion if any part of this bill goes into operation before the 4th day of next March.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The Joint Committee on Printing could regulate that without any difficulty. They have entire control of the matter; but I will consider the gentleman's suggestion.

Mr. DINGLEY. I simply suggest that the law would control the matter, and not the Committee on Printing.

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 62. The President of the United States shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint a superintendent of documents, who shall receive a salary of $3,000 per annum. He shall have general supervision of the distribution of all public documents, and to his custody shall be committed all documents subject to distribution, excepting those printed for the special official use of the Executive Departments, which shall be delivered to said Departments, and those printed for the use of the two Houses of Congress, which shall be delivered to the folding rooms of said Houses and distributed or delivered ready for distribution to Members and Delegates upon their order by the superintendents of the folding rooms of the Senate and House of Representatives—with the following amendment:

Strike out the following from the beginning of the section: "The President of the United States shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint a superintendent of documents, who shall receive a salary of $3,000 per annum," and insert the following in its place: "The Joint Committee on Printing is hereby authorized and directed to appoint a clerk to said joint committee, who shall be superintendent of documents and be entitled to receive a salary of $3,000 per annum."

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I wish to inquire of the gentleman how this appointment will be made in case the committee is equally divided. I understand the joint committee to be composed of six persons, and this officer is to receive a salary of $3,000. Now, three of the six might be for one man and three for another.

Mr. RICHARDSON. You would get rid of that in the usual way of a deadlock. One would go to the other man, and that one would be elected.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I do not think you ought to cast lots for a position where so much of the people's money is involved.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That would not be casting lots. It is thought best by the committee that this man should be made the distributing agent of these two bodies, and not make him the appointee of the President of the United States, and I will say that this amendment is agreed to by the committee of the Senate as well as by the committee of the House. They prefer it in this shape and form, and there is no difficulty or contention between the two Houses or the committees of the two Houses on that question.

And I submit further that the law now provides that the Joint Committee on Printing shall select the index clerk, and no such catastrophe as has been suggested by the gentleman from Ohio has ever occurred in regard to that officer; and that has been the law for twenty years. There has never been a deadlock in the committee in the selection of an index clerk, who gets more pay and who occupies a much more important office.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I think you had better leave it to the President.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think not. I think that the difficulty that arose when this bill was under discussion in the long session was mainly upon this section. The feeling in the House is that we want this officer to be appointed by the two Houses of Congress, that he may be made the Congressional agent to distribute these documents, and that he shall not be the appointee of the President of the United States. We want him brought under the control of Congress; and that is the reason why this change is made.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Why do you not make the committee larger—say four members of the House and three of the Senate? This is a larger body than the Senate, and if you were to do that you never would have a tie vote.

Mr. RICHARDSON. This committee for years has consisted of three members of each body.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. You would then get down nearer to the people and solve this difficulty.

Mr. REED. You would solve the difficulty so far as the House is concerned.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The committee has been constituted as it is now for a great many years, and I believe no difficulty has ever arisen from the method of its composition. The committees of the Senate and of the House are usually about the same size.

Mr. STOCKDALE. In the sixty-second section, after the provisions for the appointment of a clerk, I see it is provided that he shall have general supervision of all public documents. What is the effect of that? Does it take away from members of Congress the right to control the distribution of their share of documents?

Mr. RICHARDSON. The next section of the bill answers the gentleman's question and prescribes how that matter is to be regulated.

Mr. STOCKDALE. What I desire to know is what this provision here means?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It means that where members desire, this officer may distribute their documents; but that otherwise it shall be done as provided in section 63.

Mr. STOCKDALE. Would it not be well to say that, then, in this part of the bill?

Mr. RICHARDSON. You can not put a whole bill into one section.

Mr. STOCKDALE. But is it good legislation to make one section of your bill change the provisions of another section?

Mr. RICHARDSON. You can not put all of the provisions of a bill like this into one section. If the gentleman will wait until the next section is read I think he will find that this point is there met. The object is to bring this officer under the control of Congress, to make him a Congressional officer instead of a Presidential one. The provision is agreeable to the Senate committee, and there is no want of harmony between the two bodies on that point.

Mr. STOCKDALE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to suggest an amendment to this part of the bill. It occurs to me that the section now under consideration must be faulty if we are compelled to refer to another section of the bill in order to know what this one means or to alter its provisions. I suggest that after the word "distribution," in line 10, page 24, an amendment be inserted in the words following: "when the members so desire."

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not object to that amendment if the gentleman will reduce it to writing, although it is in substance the provision that is contained in the next section of the bill.

Mr. STOCKDALE. I ask the clerk to insert in the bill after the word "distribution," line 10, page 24, the words "when the members so desire."

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TRACEY). The question is on the amendment recommended by the committee.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, I see it is provided here that a clerk shall be appointed, who is to be superintendent of documents and his salary is to be $3,000 a year. Now, there is a similar officer already employed in the Interior Department, who is, I believe, a fourth-class clerk. Am I correct?

Mr. RICHARDSON. His salary is $2,500.

Mr. HOLMAN. I thought his salary was that of a fourth-class clerk.

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, he has a special salary of $2,500. This bill increases the salary $500, but it abolishes several clerks and makes the expenditure less in the aggregate.

Mr. HOLMAN. But there are four or five clerks now employed by him in the Interior Department.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is true.

Mr. HOLMAN. Has the gentleman any idea as to how many clerks will be required to carry out the provisions of this law for the distribution of documents?

Mr. RICHARDSON. This will not make any increase in the Interior Department; but, on the contrary, in the opinion of the committee, there will be a diminution. The same amount of work will be done, and, being done more systematically, we think it will be done more cheaply, and that less "patronage" will be required here under this arrangement.

Mr. HOLMAN. These clerks are employed, and their principal duties are to distribute the census report and a few other publications. Now, will it not require quite a large additional clerical force beyond what is now employed in the Interior Department to carry out the provisions of this bill?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think not. I think that the clerks who now do this work in the document rooms of the House and Senate respectively will be utilized for this purpose, and that probably no increase of force whatever will be needed.

Mr. HOLMAN. I apprehend that there will be a large increase; I am afraid so. However, my friend knows more about this matter than I do.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not think there will be any increase. The committee examined the subject very carefully and took a large amount of expert testimony upon that very point, as its record shows. I believe the passage of this bill will result in the reduction of the clerical force.

Mr. HOLMAN. One other suggestion. The office in the Interior Department whose duties correspond with the office now under consideration has always been filled by a very competent official, performing his duties very satisfactorily on a salary of $2,500 a year. Instead of indulging in the ordinary tendency to run up salaries, why not adopt as a standard this case to which I have referred and provide for the same amount of salary? I hope the gentleman from Tennessee will himself offer an amendment for this purpose.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, the committee were unanimous in the opinion that this officer ought to receive $3,000 a year. I do not think it is too much. If the gentleman desires to amend the bill by striking out $3,000 and inserting $2,500, he can make a motion to that effect. I do not think $3,000 is more than ought to be paid.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think my friend from Tennessee ought to make the motion himself. This officer will perform exactly the same duties (though on a little larger scale) as those performed in the Interior Department. We can not get any more efficient service than is now rendered in that Department. The salary of the officer there was fixed during the war period and by a Republican House and Senate. I hope this Democratic House will not go beyond the figure thus fixed. In view of the example which has been set us in that respect, I suggest that the amount in the bill be reduced to $2,500. I hope the gentleman from Tennessee will agree to that.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The committee having concurred in fixing the salary named in the bill, I do not feel that, as a member of the committee, I should be acting in good faith if I should now propose any change. We discussed the matter in committee; and $3,000 was regarded as a reasonable salary.

Mr. HOLMAN. With the permission of my friend from Tennessee I will offer the amendment I have indicated.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not object to the offering of the amendment.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think no objection can be raised to this amendment for the reason that, as I have stated, the officer in the Interior Department performing similar duties receives a salary of $2,500, which was fixed during the war period when prices were away up. I hope my friend will himself make the motion.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not object to the offering of the amendment.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I wish to call the attention of the gentleman from Tennessee to a question involved in this section which seems to me of much higher import than the question of dollars and cents which my friend from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] has raised. I would like to know where in the Constitution of the United States authority is found for conferring upon members of Congress authority to make appointments to office. It is proposed here that members of the House shall have authority to appoint a salaried officer who is to receive $3,000 a year for his services. Now, is the legislative department of the Government going to undertake to rob the executive department of its just constitutional power with respect to official appointments? I think we ought to consider whether the provision now under consideration is constitutional. If the gentleman from Tennessee can refer me to some provision of the Constitution authorizing a measure of this kind, I shall be very glad to receive the information. I wish to know where in the Constitution of the United States the gentleman finds any power conferred upon the legislative branch of the Government to first create an office and then fill it.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, this officer is simply a clerk; and the committees of this House appoint their own clerks. Under authority of that kind this provision can be justified. As I mentioned a moment ago, there is an enactment to be found in the Revised Statutes authorizing this very joint committee to appoint an index clerk, who receives a larger salary than $3,000 a year. There is a precedent, if the gentleman wants one, under the Constitution. That provision has been in the law for a great many years, and we have been enacting under it without objection.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. What I wish to know is, where the gentleman finds any authority for this proceeding in the Constitution?

Mr. RICHARDSON. This section simply provides that the Joint Committee on Printing may select some competent person to do this clerical work; that is all. I think there is full authority for it.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I would not press the motion I have made to fix this salary at $2,500, but for the fact that in view of the suggestions already made, I believe my friend from Tennessee assents to the proposition. On this account I ask a vote on my motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TRACEY). The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] to strike out "$3,000" and insert "$2,500."

The amendment was agreed to, there being—ayes 32, noes 10.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is now on the amendment submitted by the committee.

Mr. DINGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I was about to move an amendment providing that the authority to appoint this officer should operate on and after March 4, 1893; but I will not make that motion if the gentleman in charge of this bill thinks it probable that at the close of the bill a motion of that kind would be accepted by the committee with reference to the whole measure.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I will not object to such a motion at the close of the bill on any technical ground; and in the mean time I will confer with the gentleman on the subject.

Mr. DINGLEY. Then I do not make the motion now.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the pending amendment of the committee.

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is now on the amendment of the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. STOCKDALE] to insert after the word "distribution," in line 10, the words "when a member so desires."

The amendment was agreed to.

Section 63 was read.

Section 64 was read, as follows:

SEC. 64. The superintendent of documents is also charged with the sale of public documents, except as herein otherwise provided; and all documents hitherto published for sale by other officers of the Government shall be turned over to him. He is hereby authorized to sell any publication of the Government at cost, with 10 per cent added, as estimated by the Public Printer, and based upon printing from stereotyped plates, excepting old and rare volumes, which shall be sold at an appraised value, to be determined by the superintendent of documents, the Public Printer, and the Librarian of Congress, acting as a commission for this purpose; but only one copy of any document shall be sold to the same individual, excepting in the case of libraries or schools, by which additional copies are desired for separate departments thereof. All moneys received from the sale of documents shall be covered into the Treasury monthly and placed to the credit of the general fund for public printing.

The committee recommend the adoption of the following amendments: Strike out in line 6, after the word "cost," the words "with 10 per cent added."

Mr. HOLMAN. I wish simply to inquire of the gentleman in charge of this bill, the object of that change. That has been the law, I think, for fifty years, this addition of 10 per cent; and is intended to meet incidental expenses in connection with such matters.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think the gentleman is mistaken. I think it has not been the law when the superintendent of documents sells, but is the law when these sales are made through the Public Printer. When such documents are exchanged or sold by the superintendent of documents in the Interior Department this rate of 10 per cent is not included, but they are simply sold at cost. I will state to the gentleman that this does not change the law.

Mr. HOLMAN. But why should not the same principle apply in either case? When the Public Printer publishes a work for a person desiring its publication, you require that 10 per cent additional shall be paid to meet incidental expenses; and it has always been charged by the Public Printer under such cases. Why not apply the same principle here? Evidently the gentleman contemplated its application when this bill was drawn, because the amendment seeks to strike out words that were incorporated in the bill when originally drawn.

Mr. RICHARDSON. They were in the law as applicable to the Public Printer. But when we came to consider this matter as applicable to this officer at the Department, we did not consider it necessary to retain them; because, I will state to the gentleman, it is not intended that he shall sell documents as a business, but when he does sell them that he shall do so at cost.

Mr. HOLMAN. But the tendency of this legislation would be to increase the business.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The committee thought that if we got cost for these publications, and some citizen is willing to pay for what he regards as the value of a publication on that basis, that we ought to be satisfied and he ought to be permitted to have it.

Mr. HOLMAN. And the Government becomes a sort of general printing office.

Mr. PICKLER. Let me ask the gentleman from Tennessee whether the provisions in the third, fourth, and fifth lines of this section cover documents now in the basement of this Capitol?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, sir; they are provided for further on in the bill.

I do not think, Mr. Speaker, that the change suggested by the gentleman from Indiana ought to be made, but that the amendment recommended by the committee should be adopted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TRACEY). The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee.

The amendment was adopted.

Sections 65, 66, 67 and 68 were read.

Section 69 was read, as follows:

SEC. 69. The Public Printer is hereby authorized and directed, upon the requisition of the superintendent of documents, to furnish such blanks and to do such printing and binding as required by his office, the cost of the same to be charged against the appropriation for printing and binding for Congress.

The Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, Doorkeeper of the House, and the Public Printer shall provide convenient office, storage, and distributing rooms for the use of the superintendent of documents.

Mr. MUTCHLER. Mr. Speaker, I wish to offer an amendment to this section.

The Clerk read as follows:

Insert after line 6, in section 69: "Provided, That whenever there shall be found in the current dictionaries various spellings of a word it shall be the duty of the Public Printer to use the simplest form."

Mr. MUTCHLER. I offer that because I think we ought to have uniformity of spelling in all public documents. It has been suggested by the philosophical societies of the United States and Great Britain——

Mr. DINGLEY. I suggest to my friend from Pennsylvania that instead of using the words "current dictionaries" he substitute the words "standard dictionaries."

Mr. MUTCHLER. I mean the standard dictionaries, the current standard works of the country, used as books of reference, and wherever there is a variance in the spelling of a word the amendment provides that the Public Printer shall use the simplest form.

Mr. DINGLEY. But the expression "current dictionaries" is rather equivocal. For instance, there are certain phonetic dictionaries, some of which have been published and some of which are in use. I suppose the idea of the gentleman is to accept the spelling of the standard dictionaries, such as is laid down by Webster or Worcester?

Mr. MUTCHLER. Yes, sir; or any other current dictionary.

Mr. DINGLEY. But does the word "current" exactly express what the gentleman means?

Mr. MUTCHLER. I think we should take the standard works on the subject; the later dictionaries.

Mr. DINGLEY. Then had not the gentleman better substitute the word "standard" for "current" in his amendment?

Mr. MUTCHLER. Very well; I have no objection to the modification.

Mr. RICHARDSON. It ought to be so amended if it is to prevail. I hope the amendment will be reported as it is proposed to be modified by the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

The Clerk read as follows:

Provided, That whenever there shall be found in the standard dictionaries various spellings of a word, it shall be the duty of the Public Printer to use the simplest form.

The amendment was adopted.

The Clerk proceeded with the reading of the bill. Having read as follows:

Of the report of the Bureau of Animal Industry, 50,000 copies, of which 13,000 shall be for the Senate, 27,000 for the House, and 10,000 for distribution by the Agricultural Department—

Mr. DINGLEY said: Will the gentleman state the number of documents that will be authorized under this bill? What will be the number regularly printed?

Mr. RICHARDSON. The number of the agricultural reports?

Mr. DINGLEY. I mean, for instance, the report of the Secretary of the Treasury. There is no special provision here. How many copies of that report would be printed under this bill?

Mr. RICHARDSON. There is so much noise that I can not hear the gentleman's question. Will the gentleman repeat his question?

Mr. DINGLEY. My inquiry is as to what the usual number of reports of bureaus and other departments of the Government would be under this bill?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Do you mean the technical "usual number?"

Mr. DINGLEY. Yes, the technical "usual number," in the case of documents that are not mentioned specifically here.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Ordinarily——

Mr. DINGLEY. Take the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, for example.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The expression "usual number," has a technical meaning which is, under the law, 1,734 copies.

Mr. DINGLEY. Is that all the number of copies of the report of the Secretary of the Treasury that would be printed under this bill?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No. Each one of the reports is taken up in detail, and the number specifically provided for under this bill.

Mr. DINGLEY. Is the report of the Secretary of the Treasury mentioned specifically in this bill?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes.

Mr. DINGLEY. And the report of the Comptroller of the Currency, for example?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes.

Mr. DINGLEY. I did not know that.

Mr. RICHARDSON. You will find that each report is mentioned. We heard the testimony of the Secretaries themselves, and of the chiefs of division, and after doing so we fixed the number of each document, which seem to be the number absolutely necessary for distribution, intending to make the law permanent, so as to do away with the necessity of enacting a special law or concurrent resolution at each session of Congress.

Mr. DINGLEY. How many copies of such a document as the List of Vessels in the American Merchant Marine would be printed under this bill?

Mr. RICHARDSON. That, I have no doubt, would be part of the report of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Mr. DINGLEY. No, it is a separate document.

Mr. RICHARDSON. If it is a separate document, then that kind of a document might not be provided for in the bill, and would require a concurrent resolution. Otherwise, if it is a report presented regularly, the usual number would be printed, which is 1,734 copies, and the distribution of those copies is provided for in the rule. That has been the law for a great many years. Now, if you want extra or additional copies, over and above the usual number, it would require a concurrent resolution.

Mr. DINGLEY. Or else an amendment to this bill.

Mr. RICHARDSON. A concurrent resolution would be sufficient, as it is now.

Mr. DINGLEY. Take for instance the document I refer to, the Annual List of Vessels in the American Merchant Marine, copies of which are furnished to every collector in the United States. It requires about 5,000 copies, and I find no provision for such a document as that, for example, in the bill. I understand the gentleman to say that only 1,734 copies would be printed under this bill.

Mr. RICHARDSON. One thousand seven hundred and thirty-four copies would be printed, and that would apply to a great many documents; but that is the law now. The law is not changed as to the printing of these documents.

Mr. DINGLEY. An amendment that would provide for the number of such a document as that to be printed would be entirely consistent with the object of this bill?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes, it would be; but I suggest to the gentleman that to adopt a provision of that kind hurriedly here now would scarcely be proper, because the matter ought to be considered as we have considered each one of the items of this bill, after calling before us the chiefs of divisions and the heads of departments. At our hearings we had these gentlemen testify before us as to the number absolutely necessary to meet the public demand.

Mr. DINGLEY. But the committee have only examined as to what are technically known as reports of the several departments and bureaus.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Not altogether; they are mainly reports.

Mr. DINGLEY. That is all.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Now, Mr. Speaker, the next item is an amendment by the committee. I ask that it be voted upon when read.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I would like to make an inquiry of the gentleman from Tennessee.

The Clerk read as follows:

After line 14, on page 32, insert the following:
"Of the annual report of the Chief of the Weather Bureau, 5,500 copies; 1,000 copies for the Senate, 2,000 copies for the House, and 2,500 copies for the Bureau."

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire of the gentleman why it is that 5,000 copies of the annual report of the Chief of the Weather Bureau are printed (which is usually printed a year or two after its time has expired) and only 1,500 copies of the Nautical Almanac? This House only receives 400 copies of the Nautical Almanac, a little over one copy apiece. I am called upon for copies by colleges. Astronomers want it, and men of learning want it; and I am always told that I can have a copy for myself, but if there is anybody in my district who wants it he must buy and pay for it. Now, I can not see why there should be such a large number printed of the report of the Chief of the Weather Bureau, which is of so small value, while there is such a small number printed of the Nautical Almanac, which is of so great value and which is needed by the colleges of the country. While there is such a demand for it, I have never been able to get but one copy except by paying for it.

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, just one word. The subject of printing being now before the House, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR] having said that many persons want different documents and printing, I want to state to this House that I hold in my hand a copy of this morning's edition of the Public Ledger, of Philadelphia, published by Mr. George W. Childs, whose great printing house was almost consumed by fire last night, but the enterprise of that concern brings to my desk the Public Ledger to-day already. That is saying much for quick printing.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the question propounded by my friend from Ohio [Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR] as to why there are no more copies of the Nautical Almanac printed, I can only say that there does not seem to be any demand for more. The committee had before it Prof. Simon Newcomb, who compiles this almanac, and have provided for printing the number asked for by that department. I do not think there is much demand for the book. I know, speaking for myself, that I have but one constituent who has ever asked for a copy of the Nautical Almanac.

Mr. PICKLER. I would like to inquire of the gentleman from Tennessee how many copies were ordered to be printed of the Agricultural Report for 1891?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Four hundred thousand.

Mr. PICKLER. And this bill provides for 500,000?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It does.

I think, Mr. Speaker, there is no demand for a greater number of the Nautical Almanac than is provided for here. There seems to be a demand for the report of the Chief of the Weather Bureau. At any rate we had both of these chiefs before us—the Chief of the Weather Bureau and the Superintendent of the Nautical Almanac, and we provided for the number they asked.

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. If the gentleman will permit me. I have just come in and I understand he is now talking about the Nautical Almanac. I want to say that I have had frequent and repeated applications from educational institutions for that work.

Mr. RICHARDSON. We have not reached that clause yet.

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. As I was saying, I have had frequent applications from educational institutions for that work, and I have only been able to get one volume for myself.

Mr. RICHARDSON. They give you two copies.

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. No. I have never received but one, and I have always felt the need of a greater issue of that work, to the end that Congressmen might have them for distribution among those of their constituents who desire them.

Mr. RICHARDSON. We do not change the law in regard to this publication. It is the number that has previously been printed.

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. I know; and I am making the point that there are not sufficient printed. This is a very important book, and there is no book the demand for which in my district is greater than this among men of learning. Of course I do not know how it is elsewhere. I think, Mr. Speaker, if I may be permitted to say so, that if there is to be any increase of appropriation for the printing of any book, that the Nautical

Almanac is a very proper work for which to make an increase. I have frequently made application for additional copies of that book and made it unsuccessfully. I always met with difficulties in obtaining additional copies, and have been told that each Congressman is allowed one, and that as I have got mine I should be satisfied.

Mr. PICKLER. What book does the gentleman refer to?

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. The Nautical Almanac.

Mr. PICKLER. Oh! I am for the book on Diseases of the Horse. [Laughter.]

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. I wish to say to the chairman of the committee having this bill in charge that in my correspondence now on file I have probably half a dozen requests for the Nautical Almanac.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I ask the gentleman [Mr. RICHARDSON] to consent to make the number 3,000.

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. I certainly hope the gentleman will consent to an increase in the number.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Well, we have not reached that item yet. I think it better to first take a vote on the amendment providing for printing the report of the Chief of the Weather Bureau. I ask for a vote on that amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

Of the report of the Commissioner of Labor, 20,000 copies; 5,000 for the Senate, 10,000 for the House, and 5,000 for distribution by the Commissioner of Labor.

An amendment recommended by the committee was to strike out all after the word "labor" in the first line of the paragraph, down to and including the word "five," and to insert in lieu thereof the following:

Thirty-five thousand copies; 8,000 for the Senate, 16,000 for the House, and 11;

So as to make the provision read:

Of the report of the Commissioner of Labor, 35,000 copies; 8,000 for the Senate, 16,000 for the House, and 11,000 for distribution by the Commissioner of Labor.

The amendment was adopted.

The Clerk read as follows:

Of the Finance Report of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Report on Commerce and Navigation, on Internal Commerce, of the Director of the Mint on the Production of Precious Metals, and of Mineral Resources of the United States, there shall be printed 1,000 of each for the Senate and 2,000 for the House, in addition to those published as a part of the departmental reports.

An amendment recommended by the committee was to strike out after the word "House" the words "in addition to those published as a part of the departmental reports," and to insert, as an additional paragraph the following:

Of the Annual Report of the Comptroller of the Currency, 10,000 copies; 1,000 for the Senate, 2,000 for the House, and 7,000 for distribution by the Comptroller of the Currency.

The amendment was adopted.

Mr. DINGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I find by consultation with the chairman of the committee having the bill in charge that by an oversight the report of the Bureau of Navigation has been omitted, and I move to amend by inserting in line 233, page 41, after the word "Treasury" the report of the Bureau of Navigation.

The amendment was adopted.

An amendment recommended by the committee inserting the word "copies" after the word "hundred" in line 230 of the bill, and also an amendment inserting the same word in line 236 after the word "thousand," were adopted.

The Clerk read as follows:

There shall be printed of eulogies of deceased Senators, Representatives, and Delegates 8,000 copies, of which number 2,000 copies shall be delivered to the Senators, Representatives, or Delegates of the State or Territory represented by the deceased. The remaining number shall be distributed in the proportion of 2,000 to the Senate and 4,000 to the House. The engraving for such eulogies shall be done at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and paid for out of the appropriation for that Bureau. Of the "usual number" the bound volume shall contain in one volume for each House all eulogies during the session of Congress upon Senators and Representatives respectively.

Mr. PICKLER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire of the gentleman in charge of this bill whether this provision is intended to make any alteration as to the number of copies of eulogies on deceased Senators and Representatives that are printed under the present law.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes, this makes a very material change in the present law, or rather in the custom that has obtained, because there is no permanent law providing for the printing of eulogies. The custom, however, has been to print 12,500 copies. In some instances that custom has been violated by printing 25,000 and in one instance by printing 31,000. This matter will now be provided for by law if this bill passes, and the law will be that hereafter there shall be printed only 8,000 copies of eulogies, a marked reduction, as the House will see. The bill also makes a material change in the distribution of those 8,000 copies. It provides that instead of dividing the whole number printed among Senators and Members generally, as has been the practice heretofore, there shall be first set apart 2,000 of the 8,000 copies printed, which shall be divided among the Senators and Representatives or Delegates of the State or Territory to which the subject of the eulogy belonged.

In this way it is provided that the Representatives of the particular State or Territory most directly interested shall receive a larger number of eulogies than they now receive, even though a smaller aggregate number be printed. And then it is provided that the 6,000 remaining shall be distributed in the proportion of 2,000 to the Senate and 4,000 to the House. It is thought that this will give a sufficient number to members from States outside of that from which the deceased member came. At the same time the number given to members of the State of which the deceased member was a Representative will be enlarged. It is believed that this arrangement will be much more satisfactory than the present.

The Clerk read as follows:

To the Vice-President and each Senator, 44 copies; to the Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, each 25 copies; to each Representative and Delegate, 22 copies; and to Clerk and Sergeant-at-Arms of the House, each 25 copies; to be supplied daily as originally published or in the revised and permanent form, bound only in half Russia, or part in each form, as each may elect.

Mr. STOCKDALE. I move to amend by striking out "twenty-two" in line 295 and inserting "forty-four," so as to give to each Representative and Delegate forty-four copies of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Mr. PICKLER and others. That is right.

Mr. STOCKDALE. The effect of this amendment will be to give to each member of the House 44 copies of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, the same number allowed to each Senator. This publication, as every one knows, is being more and more sought after every day. More people are wanting it than ever before. No other document published by Congress gives as much information, as late information, or information so much desired by the people, as the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. I presume there are members who have more applications for this publication than I have; and the applications to me from my district would consume 100 copies. I think that each Representative ought to have at least 44 copies; and I would be willing to increase the number but for the fact that 44 is the highest number of copies allowed to a member of the Senate.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I very much hope this amendment will not prevail. It would be very well for the House to understand that the amendment means an increased expense of about $94,000 in each Congress.

Mr. REED. Ninety-four thousand dollars to distribute our speeches in the RECORD. That is a very small sum for the people to pay for such a blessing.

Mr. RICHARDSON. If all our speeches were as good as those of the gentleman from Maine the sum might not be extravagant.

Mr. REED. I admit there may be something in that suggestion.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think we can get along with the number of RECORDS that we now receive. An increase of 22 for 360 Members and Delegates at $12 each per Congress will make an increase of nearly $95,000. I trust such an increase will not be voted.

Mr. STOCKDALE. Mr. Speaker, while $94,000 looks like a considerable sum when taken in bulk, I wish to say that there are numbers of documents provided for in this very same bill which I really think nobody wants or ever calls for.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The gentleman is mistaken in that. These documents are all wanted; that is what was sworn to before the committee.

Mr. STOCKDALE. Well, gentlemen swear, no doubt, to their own opinions. Here, for instance, is the report of the National Academy of Sciences; who ever wants that? And then here are the Memoirs of the National Academy of Sciences. It appears that both the report and the memoirs, repeating probably the same thing, are to be printed.

Mr. HOLMAN. And emanate from a private corporation!

Mr. STOCKDALE. Yes; printing for a private corporation. The statement which I now make, speaking from information which extends over the territory of more than one State, and which will be corroborated by the testimony of a large number of members, is that the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD is more sought after than any other document which the Government prints.

Mr. PICKLER. The newspapers want it more than any other document.

Mr. STOCKDALE. Yes; and the people want it. Why, sir, you will find this RECORD in the hands of men scattered all over your Congressional districts—not publishers of newspapers only, but private citizens, who wish to keep up with the proceedings of this House and the Senate. It is a document calculated to inform the people accurately of the proceedings of the National Legislature. It is not the rehash that they often get in the newspapers. It is an official publication showing what Congress is doing. In addition to the speeches which it circulates, it shows the people what we are doing and when we are not doing. It shows the condition of legislation. As the discussion upon any measure goes on the people read this document, which, in almost the remotest parts of the Union, they receive within two days after it is printed. Thus, while a bill is pending and before it comes to be voted upon, they are enabled to express their opinions upon it to members by telegram or letter. I do think that the $94,000 additional which the gentleman states it would cost to supply this additional number of copies is a very small sum when we take into view the demand there is all through the country for this document.

The question being taken on the amendment of Mr. STOCKDALE,

The SPEAKER pro tempore said: The noes seem to have it.

Mr. STOCKDALE. I call for a division.

Mr. REED. Oh, this is an outrage! This publication ought to be in every family! [Laughter.]

The question being taken, there were—ayes 21, noes 36.

So the amendment was rejected.

The Clerk read as follows:

The Public Printer is authorized to furnish to subscribers the daily RECORD at $8 for the long and $4 for the short session, or $1.50 per month, payable in advance. The "usual number" of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD shall not be printed.

Mr. STOCKDALE. I move to amend by striking out "$8 for the long and $4 for the short session" and inserting "$5 for the long and $3 for the short session." I will ask the gentleman from Tennessee whether these documents can not be printed and furnished for this amount?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, sir; it is not possible to do it. The committee is informed that this publication now costs very nearly the amount fixed in the bill—$8 for a long and $4 for a short session.

Mr. STOCKDALE. The chairman says about that sum. Unless the gentleman can assure us that the calculation has been accurately made, I can not think the cost can be so much. But if the Government can not afford to contribute $94,000 in order to supply each member with 44 copies of the RECORD for free circulation among the people, it occurs to me that we might properly make this reduction in the price charged for the publication, even if there should be a slight increase of expense to the Government. But if this document costs $8 for a long session and $4 for a short session, it would seem there must be something wrong in the office of the Public Printer. The prices at which we obtain books and periodicals from the publishers of the country show that this work ought to be furnished at a lower price.

I say that if the Public Printing Office is conducted on a scale as economical as it should be conducted, or as the offices of the large daily newspapers and periodicals of this country are conducted in New York and elsewhere, these RECORDS can be printed for $5 for the long session and $3 for the short session.

Mr. DINGLEY. But the gentleman must remember that by law we make the cost of composition 25 per cent more than is established as the rate in the commercial cities, and also that we give the employés thirty days leave of absence.

Mr. STOCKDALE. And there is just where we make an egregious mistake in making such a law. I do not mean with regard to the leaves of absence to the employés of the office. That may be all right, that they should have it. But the Public Printer should be allowed to pay the same price that other people pay, particularly when the day's work in the office is reduced to eight hours. But even if this should cost a little more and the Government should not come out exactly even on the transaction, let us at least try the experiment and let the people have the benefit of the additional expenditure. I do not know of any single expenditure in the way of publications by order of Congress that will be of more service to them. If we can not give this publication to the members of Congress in sufficient numbers, who would distribute them free over the whole country, do not let us insist that the Government shall receive the very last cent that it may cost, at an extravagant rate of printing, from those persons who want to purchase copies for themselves, but allow our own people, our own citizens, to purchase the information as to what Congress is doing every day at the lowest price possible. There are many people in the country who desire to keep an eye on the Congress. They are driven off from securing copies by the high prices charged and by the fact that members have not a sufficient number to distribute. I repeat, then, the people ought to have this privilege, if it does cost the Government some money.

Mr. RICHARDSON. If the gentleman from Mississippi will turn to the report of the committee he will find that considerable proof was taken by the joint committee as to the cost of the RECORD. On page 405 will appear statements showing the cost of the printing of the RECORD at each session of Congress, extending back to the Forty-seventh down to and inclusive of the Fifty-first. The proof shows that it costs about $12 a year per each copy of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD that is printed—$8 for the long session and $4 for the short. But to reduce the amount as provided by the amendment of the gentleman from Mississippi would be to entail a heavy loss on the Government for the publication of that work. I hope therefore the amendment will not be adopted.

I would ask the gentleman from Mississippi if he has considered the fact that anybody who wants a copy of the RECORD can subscribe for it and get it in that way, and certainly he should not object to paying at least what it cost the Government to print it. My friend says he thinks the cost is too high. I wish to ask him if he knows how many copies of the RECORD are printed daily?

Mr. STOCKDALE. I do not understand the gentleman.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Will the gentleman state how many copies are printed daily of the RECORD?

Mr. STOCKDALE. I do not know exactly.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Then how does the gentleman know or undertake to state that the cost price fixed here is too high?

Mr. STOCKDALE. Why, the more copies you print the less ought to be the cost per copy.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes; but if the gentleman does not know the number of copies that are printed, how can he say that the price asked is excessive?

Mr. STOCKDALE. I reach that conclusion in this way: I take and read the RECORD and know how much is printed, and compare the work with the periodicals printed daily containing less or more printing; and on that basis of comparison I am compelled to come to the conclusion that the RECORD costs more than any other printing or production of this character that has to be set up daily from manuscript.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The testimony of the gentlemen in charge of the RECORD all goes to show that it costs about what the Government now gets for it, at the rate fixed. Indeed, it loses money on the publication; and to reduce the price as proposed by the amendment of the gentleman would entail very serious loss on the Government.

Mr. PICKLER. Does the gentleman from Tennessee desire to suppress the RECORD in the future?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, sir; I have not made any such proposition. It is not contemplated at all.

Mr. STOCKDALE. How many copies are printed?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Between 12,000 and 13,000 copies.

Mr. STOCKDALE. Then the cost would not be very materially increased by adding to that number. The type has to be set up, the work electrotyped, and the only additional cost of a few extra copies would be the additional presswork and paper.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The gentleman did not propose "a little additional increase," but a very considerable one.

Mr. STOCKDALE. I apprehend that the additional cost would not be more than 10 cents a copy.

Mr. RICHARDSON. But the gentleman's proposition a few moments ago was to increase that number by some seven or eight thousand copies.

Mr. STOCKDALE. And I have not the slightest idea that it would cost anywhere near $90,000.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes, it would. The increase to the number you proposed in your former amendment would involve an expenditure of $96,000.

Mr. STOCKDALE. I think the chairman of the committee ought to state what the cost of printing the additional number would be.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have made no estimate of the cost of the additional number, but I have made an estimate of what the whole cost would be.

Mr. PICKLER. How many copies are taken by subscription now?

Mr. RICHARDSON. The number varies. Some years it is greater than others. If the gentleman will turn to the pages that I have indicated, commencing at page 405 and running through eight or ten pages, he will see in detail the statement of the distribution of the RECORD and its cost, and how many copies are taken privately. The number varies, some years being greater than others.

Mr. PICKLER. I will ask the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. STOCKDALE] the purport of his amendment?

Mr. STOCKDALE. It is to change the price of the RECORD from $8 to $5 for a long session, and from $4 to $3 for a short session.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Not very many copies of the RECORD are taken by private subscription.

Mr. PICKLER. How many were so taken last year? Let us see what the cost of the amendment of the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. STOCKDALE] would be.

Mr. RICHARDSON. As I figure it, about 2,500 copies were taken by private subscription last year.

Mr. PICKLER. Then the cost of the amendment of the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. STOCKDALE] would only be $10,000.

Mr. STOCKDALE. If the printing of the RECORD does cost $8 for a long session and $4 for a short session, the difference made by my amendment would only be $10,000.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I very much hope the amendment of the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. STOCKDALE] will not be agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TRACEY in the chair). The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. STOCKDALE], which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 45, line 36, strike out the word "eight" and insert the word "five,' and strike out the word "four" and insert the word "three."

The question being taken, the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes seemed to have it.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I ask for a division.

On a division there were—ayes 22, nays 32.

So the amendment was rejected.

The Clerk proceeded with the reading of the bill.

Having read as follows:

The Secretary of War is hereby directed to ascertain what number of copies of the first five volumes of the Rebellion Record is required to complete sets of this series in the possession of libraries or persons supplied with subsequent volumes under existing provision of law, whether such distribution has been through the War Department or otherwise; and the Public Printer is authorized and directed to furnish, upon the requisition of the Secretary of War, the number of copies of each volume required for this purpose, which shall be used exclusively by the Secretary of War for completing such sets—

Mr. RICHARDSON said: Mr. Speaker, I desire to say that this provision for publishing the first five volumes of the Rebellion Record was adopted at the long session of Congress as a part of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill, and therefore it is not necessary to readopt it here. I offered it as an amendment at that time, cutting it out of this bill. It became a law during the long session, and the Secretary of War is having the first five volumes published now. I therefore move to strike out that item from this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If there is no objection to the request, it will be complied with.

There was no objection.

The Clerk proceeded with the reading of the bill.

Having read as follows:

Fourth. The report of the Commissioner of Patents for the fiscal year, not exceeding 500 in number, for distribution by him; the annual report of the Commissioner of Patents to Congress, without the list of patents, not exceeding 1,500 in number, and of the annual report of the Commissioner of Patents to Congress, with the list of patents, the usual number only shall be printed—

The SPEAKER pro tempore said: The Clerk will report the amendment offered to this section by the committee.

The Clerk read as follows:

In line 454 of section 76, after the word "number," insert the words "for distribution by him;" and in line 456 of the same section, after the word "patent," insert the words "five hundred copies for sale by him, and in addition thereto."

Mr. RICHARDSON. These are committee amendments.

The amendments were agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

All printing for the Patent Office making use of lithography or photolithography, together with the plates for the same, shall be contracted for and performed under the direction of the Commissioner of Patents, under such limitations as the Joint Committee of Printing may from time to time prescribe, and all other printing for the Patent Office shall be done by the Public Printer under such limitations and conditions as the Joint Committee on Printing may from time to time prescribe.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the committee amendment to this section.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of the section add the words: "No report, document, or publication of any kind distributed by or from an Executive Department or bureau of the Government shall contain any notice that same is sent with 'the compliments' of an officer of the Government."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PICKLER. Mr. Speaker, I believe that finishes the reading of this section. I desire to offer an amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. PICKLER] offers an amendment, which will be read by the Clerk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Add at the end of line 14, page 32, as follows:
"Of the report of the Agricultural Department known as Special Report on the Diseases of the Horse, 50,000 copies, of which 13,000 shall be for the Senate, 27,000 for the House, and 10,000 for distribution by the Agricultural Department."

Mr. PICKLER. Members will find by recurring to page 32 that the amendment I offer follows the provision providing for the publication of the report of the Bureau of Animal Industry, of which 50,000 copies are provided for. My amendment is to provide for the publication of 50,000 copies, the same number, of the report from the Agricultural Department known as the Special Report on the Diseases of the Horse. I provide for the same distribution of this book, known as the "horse book," as is provided for the distribution of the other reports.

I think that this amendment ought to be adopted. I believe it is the experience of every member of Congress who has been in this House since the publication of the report on the Diseases of the Horse, that he has had a great many more calls for that book than he has been able to furnish, and certainly there is no publication that comes as near being of general interest as does this publication on the diseases of the horse. Everybody is interested in one way or another in horses. The drayman, the plowman, the farmer, the man with fancy horses; in fact, who is not interested in the horse in some direction or other?

Now, further, this will be very little additional cost to the Government. We already have those plates on hand, and it is acknowledged and confessed by all, I think, who are posted in this line, that this is an extraordinarily fine work, well worthy of our distribution among the people, and certainly with this further number will not furnish even one-hundredth part of what would be demanded by our constituents. As we have the plates on hand the principal cost has already been incurred by the Government, and it seems to me it would be well to provide for this publication.

Mr. FUNSTON. The gentleman knows that there was an extra issue printed during the last session.

Mr. PICKLER. Yes; thirty or forty thousand copies were printed, and they have all been distributed by this time.

Mr. FUNSTON. They have not yet come from the folding room.

Mr. PICKLER. I have distributed a large portion of mine anyway, and have orders for a very great many on hand. This book is of greater value than any one report of the Bureau of Animal Industry, and I think this amendment ought to be adopted. I believe there is no expenditure of money that will give more satisfaction than it does.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I hope very much that this amendment will not prevail. The publication or document which the gentleman's amendment covers is not of the kind of documents that are being controlled by this law. This bill is intended to provide for the regular annual publications of this Government. The report which he covers in his amendment is a special report, which will never be submitted again by any Department of the Government. It is not intended that this bill shall provide for the publication of special reports submitted by the heads of Departments and chiefs of bureaus; that is not the object of the bill. It is to specify the number and make provision for the permanent publication of the annual reports.

Now, the Special Report on Diseases of the Horse, as the gentleman sees, by its own title, is a "special report," made once, and never to be submitted again. At the last session Congress ordered printed nearly 50,000 copies. There have been printed heretofore at one time by order of Congress 100,000 copies of this report, and the Secretary of Agriculture has printed two editions, amounting to 45,000 copies. So that Congress has ordered, in one way or another, about 185,000 copies of this special report.

Mr. PICKLER. Have there not been three editions of this work published?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Now, Mr. Speaker, if it be desired to print any more copies of that special report, then there ought to be some resolution introduced ordering that additional printing. You ought not to put in this law, in other words, an amendment that provides for the publication of a temporary or special publication. It does not belong to this bill, and therefore to put this amendment in would disturb the harmony of the bill.

The gentleman can introduce a resolution, if he desires, and have it considered by the House after it shall have been considered by the proper committee and reported upon, and if the House wants more copies that resolution can be adopted; but it seems to me that to adopt this amendment would be out of place. If the gentleman means that every year there shall be printed that number of that report, why then it might be in order to have it made a part of this bill.

Mr. PICKLER. That is just what I mean.

Mr. RICHARDSON. But this bill only provides for the printing of the annual reports, and not of the special reports which are made from time to time. I hope very much that the House will not adopt the amendment.

Mr. PICKLER. I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Speaker, that is my intention; until Congress shall otherwise order, that there shall be printed 50,000 copies of this publication year by year.

Now, the gentleman says—and there is always some other way not to do a thing—I might introduce a resolution. I did introduce a resolution in the last session of this Congress and the chairman of the Committee on Printing, for some reason or other, did not take kindly to the horse. It was with the utmost difficulty, after three or four months, that I succeeded in having the gentleman make any report on my resolution, and it only then came from the committee when it was understood the Committee on Agriculture were about to report the same resolution.

This is a valuable publication. The gentleman's own statement shows the necessity for this book. There have already been three editions of it published. He says that the term employed implies that it is a "special report." That term "special report" is simply the name of the book and nothing more. It is known by that name, and the report has proven to be so valuable, contains so much information, and is of so much general importance that there has been such a demand for it that there have already been three editions published.

Now, it should be printed yearly. It is of higher value than this report which precedes it—the report of the Bureau of Animal Industry. This book is more sought after than any other, and if the demand ceases and members have no further call for it, certainly then this or any other portion of the bill can be repealed. Certainly the gentleman will not say that simply because we mention the number of these reports to be published that they are to stand for all time. Certainly succeeding Congresses will review and alter the number of these reports from time to time. Now, why should not this report on Diseases of the Horse be given to these people as well as the other reports? I desire it shall be permanent until there is less demand for it than at present.

As I said before, the gentleman does not combat my argument that this book can now be published cheaply because the Government has already been at the expense of preparing the plates, and now, when we have the plates and have incurred all the principal cost required for the production of this publication, I certainly think we ought to provide for the publication of a sufficient number—not really a sufficient number, but a goodly number—of this valuable work which the people of the country are demanding.

The gentleman says it ought not to go into this bill. Why not? This is the very place for it. The gentleman says that we can offer a separate resolution providing for the printing of an adequate number of copies of this book; but if such a resolution were offered we should probably never hear anything more of it, especially if it was referred to the committee of which the gentleman [Mr. RICHARDSON] is chairman. [Laughter]. I have had experience in getting a resolution out of that committee. On the ground of economy the gentleman said that it would cost too much to publish an edition of this book, but nevertheless a report was made and the edition was published. I believe that this amendment ought to be adopted.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I have no desire to reply to the argument of the gentleman from South Dakota, but I do want to add to my former statement a point which I omitted, and that is as to the cost. The estimated cost of publishing this book is about 61 cents a copy, so that the passage of the gentleman's amendment providing for 50,000 copies would add something like $30,000 annually to the expense of the public printing. I wish the House to be in possession of that fact before voting on the amendment.

Mr. PICKLER. I would ask the gentleman whether the cost of printing other similar books and documents is not fully as great; and if so, what argument is there in his point? No book published by the Government that is anything like this book in size and elaborateness and value costs less than it costs.

Mr. RICHARDSON. It is not a question of the value of one publication compared with another. The point I make is that this is a bill to provide for the printing of the annual reports that have never been printed, and now the gentleman comes along with a proposition to print a special report, of which four editions have already been printed.

Mr. PICKLER. Does not the fact that four editions of this book have been printed show that there has been a popular demand for it, and that it has ceased to be "special"?

Mr. DOCKERY. No; that simply shows that four editions have been printed of a "special" report.

Mr. PICKLER. It should cease to be "special" after awhile.

Mr. STOCKDALE. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. PICKLER] seems to have met with opposition to his amendment upon the ground that the report which he desires to have printed was a "special" report. Now, sir, I want to say in reference to that book that if it is a special report, it ought to be made a regular one. I do not think, Mr. Speaker, that it is necessary for a committee having a bill in charge to feel bound to stand up against every amendment which any gentleman may choose to offer merely to sustain their own judgment. I take it that the committee desire to have such a bill as the country wants, and it is no reflection upon either the wisdom or the research of the committee to propose an amendment to their bill.

The Agricultural Report itself is in fact special as much as the one under consideration. Certainly there are things repeated in the agricultural reports from year to year, and yet we constantly increase the number printed. New remedies are being discovered constantly calculated to make the industry of horse-raising more profitable. The report of the Bureau of Animal Industry, as I have said, is a regular report. Now, if it is necessary to make the report of the Bureau of Animal Industry a regular report, why is it not equally proper to make this one on the Diseases of the Horse a regular report? To be sure, the report of the Bureau of Animal Industry includes more animals than the horse, but this report which we are now considering is of special importance to the great agricultural interests of this country. All reports on agricultural production include the horse as well as other animals in estimating the values of agricultural products. Those reports are printed for the purpose of giving the people of this country information to enable them to increase the value of the products of their farms.

This report on the Diseases of the Horse is a book which has been prepared with great research and which has proved very acceptable and valuable to the people because it gives them valuable information as to how to preserve and how to increase the value of one of the most important industries to agriculture, and certainly the most valuable one covered by the Bureau of Animal Industry. Sir, I believe that the amendment of the gentleman from South Dakota ought to prevail, and also that this report on the horse should be made a regular report. It may be that the gentleman's amendment provides for printing too large a number; if so, let the number be reduced, but let that book be published as one of the regular reports relating to the agricultural interests of the country.

The question was taken on the amendment of Mr. PICKLER and it was rejected—ayes 34, noes 60.

Mr. PICKLER. I desire to offer the amendment which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of line 14, page 32, add "which shall include the publication of the Agricultural Department known as the Special Report on Diseases of the Horse:" so as to read:

"Of the Report of the Bureau of Animal Industry, 50,000 copies, of which 13,000 shall be for the Senate, 27,000 for the House, and 10,000 for distribution by the Agricultural Department, which shall include the publication of the Agricultural Department known as the Special Report on Diseases of the Horse."

Mr. PICKLER. Mr. Speaker, the effect of this amendment is simply to provide that the report of the Bureau of Animal Industry of which this bill provides for 50,000 copies shall include this report on diseases of the horse. This can make only a very trifling increase in the cost of printing the report of that Bureau. The subject is one which legitimately belongs to the Bureau and may properly be included in its report. It seems to me there can be no objection to this proposition. By means of this amendment we shall obtain the report on the diseases of the horse at a very small expense. I hope the gentleman from Tennessee will not object to the proposition.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do object to it. I think the House ought not to dictate to the head of the great Department of Agriculture what his report shall be.

Mr. PICKLER. That is what you are doing in this bill all the way through.

Mr. RICHARDSON. We do not undertake to say what shall be put in his report. If he sees fit to include this publication in his report he can do so; but we ought not to direct what he shall put in the report he may see fit to make to Congress.

Mr. PICKLER. Why not?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It seems to me it is interfering with his discretion. If he wishes to insert this matter he can do so. But the report which the gentleman has in view has already had widespread circulation through the country, nearly 200,000 copies having been printed.

Mr. PICKLER. Does the gentleman mean to say that the Secretary of Agriculture can include this document in his report without a law to authorize it?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do. I undertake to say he can put in his annual report anything he thinks proper. That is what I mean to say. There is no limit to his discretion in this matter. We authorize this officer to make his report annually to Congress, and the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. PICKLER] wants to direct him to insert as a part of his report a special report submitted two or three years ago. It seems to me such a proceeding on our part would be altogether unusual and out of place. If Congress wants additional copies of this publication we can have them printed and circulated by a special resolution. This bill does not contain in a single case any provision for the publication of a special report. It provides only for the publication of annual reports.

Mr. PICKLER. The amendment will make this an annual report.

Mr. RICHARDSON. It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, however desirable this publication may be, it would be altogether unusual and out of place to insert in the bill a provision for the publication of a special report. I hope the amendment will not prevail.

The question being taken on the amendment of Mr. PICKLER, there were—ayes 3, noes 79.

Mr. PICKLER. No quorum.

Tellers were ordered, and Mr. RICHARDSON and Mr. PICKLER were appointed.

Mr. PICKLER (before the count was concluded). Mr. Speaker, if there is no desire in this House to take care of the horse, I withdraw the point of no quorum.

So the amendment of Mr. PICKLER was rejected.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I offer the amendment which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 32 strike out, in line 20, "1,500" and insert "2,000;" in line 21 strike out "100" and insert "200;" and in the same line strike out "400" and insert "800;" so as to read:

"Of the Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac and of the papers supplementary thereto, 2,000 copies; 200 copies for the Senate, 800 for the House, and 1,000 for distribution by the Navy Department."

The SPEAKER. Without objection, these amendments will be considered as one proposition.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have no objection to that.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, this amendment simply proposes to increase by 500 the number of copies of the Nautical Almanac, giving of the additional number 100 to the Senate and 400 to the House, but making no other change in the distribution. This Nautical Almanac is a book the preparation of which is very expensive. In every Congressional district where there is a college this publication is desired. Every professor of mathematics or astronomy wants a copy; he uses it in his mathematical or astronomical classes. Gentlemen are aware how much this book is sought after in districts where there are colleges, and my district has a number of such institutions. The chairman of the committee [Mr. RICHARDSON] has, I understand, no objection to this amendment.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I do not think it necessary to increase the number provided for in the bill. We had before the committee the officers of the Bureau, who testified that the number named in the bill will be sufficient. I do not think they can be mistaken about a matter of this sort. While the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR] may have some extraordinary demand in his district for this document, I am sure that such is not the case in many other districts. Gentlemen around me, many of whom have been in Congress for years, tell me they have never had a demand for this publication.

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. Now, if the gentleman from Tennessee will permit an interruption, I wish to say that if there has been no demand on the members from his part of the country for that work it is because the educational institutions in that region are not aware of its existence. As soon as there is any information that the book is accessible the demand will be more than five times what he could supply.

Mr. STOCKDALE. What is the book to which you are referring?

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. The Nautical Almanac.

Mr. McMILLIN. I believe the Government has gotten along very well up to this time, though.

Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana. Well, it is highly possible that it has got along. But it is altogether likely that the demand for this book will be greater than the supply. [Cries of "Vote!" "Vote!"]

The question being taken on the amendment of Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR, it was rejected.

The Clerk proceeded to read section 77.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and accordingly (at 4 o'clock and 25 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, the Committee on Claims was discharged from the consideration of the bill (S. 1292) to remit the penalties on the light-house steamer Pansy; and the same was referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

BILLS, MEMORIALS, AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. COX of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 9767) to repeal all statutes relating to supervisors of elections and special deputies—to the Select Committee on Election of President and Vice-President and Representatives in Congress.

By Mr. SHIVELY: A bill (H. R. 9768) to extend the limit of expenditure for the public building at South Bend, Ind.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. HARTER: A bill (H. R. 9769) to make the sugar duties uniform and abolish the payment of bounties—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9770) to provide for the issue of circulating notes of national and State banking associations upon securities other than United States bonds, for the taxation of the circulating notes of national banks, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

By Mr. CARUTH: A bill (H. R. 9771) supplementary to the several acts relating to pensions—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. JOHNSON of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 9772) to fix the rank of officers and enlisted men of the United States Army retiring after long and faithful service—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. ELLIOTT (by request): A bill (H. R. 9773) to amend an act entitled "An act to credit and pay to the several States and Territories and the District of Columbia all moneys collected under the direct tax levied by the act of Congress approved August 5, 1861," approved March 2, 1891—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DINGLEY: A bill (H. R. 9774) to amend section 4347 of the Revised Statutes—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. BELTZHOOVER: A joint resolution (H. Res. 165) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States in relation to the election of President and Vice-President—to the Select Committee on Election of President and Vice-President and Representatives in Congress.

By Mr. PEEL: A joint resolution (H. Res. 166) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to cover back into the Treasury $48,800 of the appropriation to Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. BUNN: A resolution authorizing the Committee on Claims to employ an assistant clerk during the session at $6 per day—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. MILLER: A concurrent resolution to appoint a joint committee of the House and Senate to inquire and investigate as to the propriety of making changes in the revenue laws—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. RICHARDSON: To print Statistical Abstract of the United States for the year 1892—to the Committee on Printing.

By Mr. WILSON of West Virginia: A resolution authorizing the Committee on Ways and Means to inquire into the condition of the Treasury—to the Committee on Rules.

PRIVATE BILLS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills of the following titles were presented and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. BLANCHARD: A bill (H. R. 9775) for the relief of Caroline Prudhomme, widow of Narcisse Prudhomme, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BUTLER: A bill (H. R. 9776) granting a pension to Marilla Tenney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CLANCY: A bill (H. R. 9777) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Michael Foley and grant him an honorable discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DUNPHY: A bill (H. R. 9778) to increase the pension of August Schlicht—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9779) for the relief of James M. Touhey—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. FITHIAN: A bill (H. R. 9780) for the relief of Stephen McKinney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HARMER: A bill (H. R. 9781) to provide an American register for the steamer Oceano, of Philadelphia, Pa.—to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. LAYTON: A bill (H. R. 9782) granting a pension to Jennie Boyles—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. O'DONNELL: A bill (H. R. 9783) granting a pension to Diantha Crocker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PEEL: A bill (H R. 9784) for the relief of Joseph W. Parish—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 9785) for the relief of Elzira Hamilton, of Claiborne County, Tenn., as found due by the Court of Claims, under the act of March 3, 1883—to the Committee on War Claims.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By Mr. ALLEN: Petition of citizens of Mississippi, asking for an appropriation of $43,983 to assist in defraying the expenses of the Pan-American Medical Congress—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. BELTZHOOVER: Petition of the members of the medical profession of Cumberland County, Pa., asking for an appropriation to assist in defraying the expenses of the Pan-American Medical Congress to be held in Washington, D. C., on September 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9, 1893—to the Committee on Appropriations.

Also, petition of Oliver I. Everhart, Hanover, Pa., asking for increase of pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRICKNER: Petition of citizens of Wisconsin, remonstrating against the passage of Senate bills 1737 and 1268 and House bill 2699—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. DALZELL: Protest of the Grange and Flour Exchange of Pittsburg, Pa., against the passage of the option bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. DURBOROW: Papers in reference to estimate and expenses of the World's Columbian Commission and Board of Lady Managers of the World's Columbian Exposition—to the Committee on Appropriation.

Also, petition of James M. Tonkey, to accompany bill for relief—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. FYAN: Petition of J. E. Tefft and 11 other physicians, of Springfield, Mo., for an appropriation to the Pan-American Medical Congress—to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

By Mr. HARTER: Petition of John W. Cooke and others, of Morrow County, Ohio, approving Sunday opening at Chicago—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. HAYNES of Ohio: Petition of A. D. West and 39 others, of Sylvania, Ohio, in favor of closing the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi: Petition of Lewis A. Moss and forty-odd others, of Edwards, Hinds County, Miss., against the passage of the antioption bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. JOHNSON of Ohio: Three petitions of citizens of Cleveland, Ohio, as follows: One of 58 citizens, the second of 44 citizens, and the third of 53 members of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Cass Avenue Presbyterian Church, praying that Congress do not repeal the law closing the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. KYLE: Petition of P. B. Barrenger and other citizens of Mississippi, approving the Hatch antioption bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. MCCLELLAN: Petition of George Alcott, to remove the charge of desertion now standing against him on the rolls of the War Department, to accompany House bill 4305—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MITCHELL: Petition of 151 citizens of the city of Milwaukee, asking that the Columbian Exposition be open on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. MORSE: Two petitions of citizens of Wrentham, Mass., asking for national legislation against sectarian appropriation of public money and opposing union of state and church—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Rev. Edw. Hood and other citizens of the same place, asking that the sale of strong drink be forbidden at the World's Columbian Exposition—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, resolution of citizens of Wrentham, Mass., thanking Congress for voting to close the World's Fair on the Lord's Day—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. PERKINS: Petition of 22 members of the medical profession of Sioux City, Iowa, in behalf of an appropriation of $43,983, to assist in defraying the expenses of the Pan-American Medical Congress to be held in Washington, D. C., September 5–8, 1893—to the Committee on Appropriations.

Also, petition of Peter Kunkle and 28 others, of Plymouth County, Iowa, in favor of the antioption bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. TERRY: Petition of the medical profession of Little Rock, Ark., in favor of an appropriation to defray the expenses of the Pan-American Medical Congress to be held at Washington, D. C., September, 1893—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. WIKE: Memorial of members of churches of Clayton, Ill., relative to Sunday closing of the World's Fair—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

The petition of Patrick Campbell McCourt, of New York, for relief—from the Committee on Accounts to the Committee on Claims.

SENATE.

THURSDAY, December 8, 1892.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.

CHARLES H. GIBSON, a Senator from the State of Maryland, and DAVID TURPIE, a Senator from the State of Indiana, appeared in their seats to-day.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY.

Mr. HALE. I move that when the Senate adjourn to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

The motion was agreed to.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

The following bills received yesterday from the House of Representatives were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (H. R. 1096) granting a pension to Julia Hood;
A bill (H. R. 1283) to pension Harriet Woodbury, Windsor, Vt.;
A bill (H. R. 2128) granting a pension to John Fields;
A bill (H. R. 2407) granting a pension to Samuel Luttrell;
A bill (H. R. 2493) granting a pension to Jesse Cleaveland;
A bill (H. R. 3118) to pension John S. Dunham;
A bill (H. R. 3845) to increase the pension of Edward R. Chapman;
A bill (H. R. 4366) granting a pension to Jacob Hall;
A bill (H. R. 4804) to place the name of Sarah L. Van Nest on the pension list;
A bill (H. R. 4955) granting a pension to Susannah Chadwick;
A bill (H. R. 5022) for the relief of Lucy Sprotberry;
A bill (H. R. 5509) to place the name of Mrs. E. M. Banister, an army nurse, on the pension rolls;
A bill (H. R. 5705) to increase the pension of Amelia Graham;
A bill (H. R. 6030) granting a pension to French W. Thornhill;
A bill (H. R. 6508) granting a pension to Joseph Fortier;
A bill (H. R. 6511) to pension Rebecca M. Youngblood;
A bill (H. R. 6914) granting a pension to Druke Nettie Barnett;
A bill (H. R. 6969) for the relief of Elisha Brown;
A bill (H. R. 7226) granting a pension to Julia P. Wright;
A bill (H. R. 7257) granting a pension to Alonzo D. Barber;
A bill (H. R. 7510) for the relief of Mrs. Mary A. Moorhead;
A bill (H. R. 7662) granting a pension to Marion Kern Sharman;
A bill (H. R. 8017) granting a pension to Elizabeth Voss;
A bill (H. R. 8221) granting a pension to George W. Boyd;
A bill (H. R. 8275) granting a pension to Abraham B. Simmons, of Capt. Thomas Tripp's company, in Col. Brisbane's regiment South Carolina Volunteers, in the Florida Indian war;
A bill (H. R. 8409) granting a pension to Mary Danahay, mother of Daniel Danahay, late a private Company H, Eighteenth New York Cavalry;
A bill (H. R. 9011) to grant a pension to Ida A. Taylor;
A bill (H. R. 9139) to pension Mrs. Eliza T. Palmatier; and
A bill (H. R. 9585) for the relief of Harriett E. Niles.

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (H. R. 1422) for the relief of George M. Henry;
A bill (H. R. 6345) granting an honorable discharge to Frederick E. Kolter;
A bill (H. R. 6970) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Montgomery M. Tuttle; and
A bill (H. R 8106) for the correction of the army record of David R. Wallace, deceased.

The bill (H. R. 3676) for the relief of R. L. Jennings, late postmaster at Marshall, Tex., was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

The joint resolution (H. Res. 157) providing for the calling of an international arbitration congress was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

STATE CLAIM OF PENNSYLVANIA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting, in compliance with a resolution of July 6, 1892, a statement of the amount found due as the balance of the claim of the State of Pennsylvania for money expended in 1864 for which reimbursement was provided by the act of April 12, 1866, and stating that the appropriation by that act is not available for the payment of such balance; which, on motion of Mr. COCKRELL, was, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented the following memorials remonstrating against the passage of the antioption bill, which were ordered to lie on the table:

A memorial of J. C. Rogers and other citizens of Columbus, Ohio;

A memorial of M. R. Bruce and other citizens of Georgia;
A memorial of J. W. Gaston and other citizens of Gastonburg, Ala.;
A memorial of J. W. Moore and other citizens of Selma, Ala.;
A memorial of W. J. Hardman and other citizens of Atlanta, Ga.;
A memorial of H. Strickland, jr., and other citizens of Duluth, Ga.;
A memorial of John B. Leech, jr., and other citizens of Memphis, Tenn.; and A memorial of the Norfolk and Portsmouth (Va.) Cotton Exchange.

The VICE-PRESIDENT resented a petition of the Chicago (Ill.) Women's Club praying for the repeal of the provision of the souvenir appropriation bill which requires that the Exposition be closed on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a petition of the Kearsarge Association of Naval Veterans of Boston, Mass., praying for the transfer of the Revenue Marine Service to the Navy; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. HOAR presented the petition of George W. Lowther and other citizens of Boston, Mass., praying for the passage of legislation authorizing the management of the United States exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition to collect and compile for publication facts and statistics relative to the development of the people of African descent from 1863 to 1893, such information to form a part of the published report of the United States Government at the Exposition; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented the petition of Seth C. Cary and other citizens of Gardner, Mass., praying for the submission of an amendment of the Constitution forbidding the enactment of any legislation by the States respecting an establishment of religion or making an appropriation of money for any sectarian purpose; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SHERMAN presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' unions of Toledo, Delaware, Youngstown, Springfield, and Steubenville, all in the State of Ohio, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented memorials of the Ministers' Union of Toledo, the Congregational and Methodist Episcopal churches of Ruggles, of Bertha Wolf and 39 other citizens of Creston, and the Ministers' Association of Findlay, all in the State of Ohio, remonstrating against a repeal of the law closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. VEST presented a petition of the Farmers and Laborers' Union of Cole County, Mo., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of Kansas City, Mo., praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of Monmouth, Ill., and a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of Quincy, Ill., praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a memorial of the Protestant churches of Toulon, Ill., remonstrating against a repeal of the law closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. PADDOCK presented petitions of John Williams and 23 other citizens of Madison County and of J. H. Blodgett and 24 other citizens of Wayne County, in the State of Nebraska, praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain, and now existing between the elevators, millers, and railroads at Minneapolis, Minn., and St. Louis, Mo., and praying for the postponement of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill until such committee shall report; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. WILSON presented a petition of the Methodist, Baptist, and United Presbyterian Churches of Monroe, Iowa, praying for the passage of the antioption bill, for the passage of an act prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors at the World's Columbian Exposition, for the passage of an act restricting immigration, and for the submission to the people of an amendment to the Constitution forbidding State legislation to unite church and state; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a memorial of the United and Reform Presbyterian Churches of Morning Sun, Iowa, remonstrating against the opening of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BUTLER presented memorials of 26 citizens of Allendale, S. C., and of the Norfolk and Portsmouth (Va.) Cotton Exchange, remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. PEFFER presented the petition of J. Y. Barns and 75 other citizens of McPherson County, and the petition of W. M. Tyler and 18 other citizens of Reno County, all in the State of Kansas, praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain now existing between the elevators, millers, and railroads at Minneapolis, Minn., and St. Louis, Mo., and praying for the postponement of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill until such committee shall report; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. WALTHALL presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of Vicksburg, Miss., praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. GALLINGER. I present the petition of George Hill, jr., and 35 other citizens and business firms of Georgetown, D. C., praying for relief from what they claim to be encroachments upon their rights on the part of the Washington and Georgetown Railroad Company. These citizens claim that they have appealed to the officers of the road, who store their cars on the narrow business street of Georgetown, and have been told if they do not like it they can move away; that they have applied to the police and have been refused relief; that they have applied to the District Commissioners and have been referred to the District attorney; that they have applied to the District attorney and he refers them to the courts and says the courts are open to them. Their appeal is a very earnest one. I know some of these gentlemen. I believe they are suffering an indignity which ought to be removed. I move that the petition be printed as a document and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. QUAY presented a memorial of the Ministers' Association of Myersdale, Berlin, and Salisbury, in the State of Pennsylvania, remonstrating against the opening of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a petition of 20 citizens of Blossburg, Pa., and a petition of 182 citizens of Union City, Pa., praying for the passage of a law prohibiting the manufacture, importation, and sale of cigarettes; which were referred to the Committee on Epidemic Diseases.

Mr. McMILLAN presented a petition of citizens of Detroit, Mich., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict or prohibit immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER BRIDGE ABOVE NEW ORLEANS.

Mr. VEST. I am instructed by the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2345) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at New Orleans, to report it back with amendments. I am also instructed by the committee to ask for the immediate consideration of the bill, for the reason that it is exceedingly important that it should be considered by the Senate and sent to the other House.

Mr. HARRIS. Let the bill be read at length, subject to objection.

The Chief Clerk read the bill, and, there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendments of the Committee on Commerce will be stated in their order.

The first amendment was in section 3, line 3, after the word "water" to insert "and with but two piers in the river," so as to read:

That the said bridge shall be made with three unbroken and contiguous spans between the river banks, as defined by a medium stage of water, and with but two piers in the river.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 3, line 4, after the word "channel," to strike out the words "or central;" so as to read:

The length of the main channel span shall be at least 1,000 feet long.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River above New Orleans."

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. BLACKBURN introduced a bill (S. 3553) for the relief of Lucy Ann Lee and Allen G. Lee; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. WILSON (by request) introduced a bill (S. 3554) to refund to the State of Iowa the amounts paid by said State to the non-commissioned officers and enlisted men of the Second and Third Regiments of Iowa Volunteer Infantry, for gray uniforms charged to them by the United States mustering and disbursing officers, when they were mustered into the United States service in May and June, 1861, and afterwards ordered to be discarded and blue uniforms substituted therefor; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3555) for the relief of George W. Jones; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced a bill (S. 3556) granting an increase of pension to Mary E. Hazlip; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HAWLEY introduced a bill (S. 3557) granting a pension to William O. Lyman; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. RANSOM introduced a bill (S. 3558) to provide for the erection of a public building in the cities of Winston-Salem, N. C.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. QUAY introduced a bill (S. 3559) for the relief of Merrick & Son; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 3560) granting a pension to John E. Burnes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PEFFER. On Tuesday I had the honor to introduce a bill (S. 3515) for the relief of Charles Williamson, late assistant surgeon Twelfth Kansas State Militia. I think that it was referred by mistake to the Committee on Military Affairs, although I see the RECORD notes it to have been referred to the Committee on Pensions. If it was not referred to the Committee on Pensions, I ask that it be so referred.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill was referred to the Committee on Pensions, the Chair is informed.

Mr. PEFFER. I ask that the papers which I send to the desk be referred with the bill to the same committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The papers will be so referred.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 119) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to retain and cover into the Treasury certain moneys, etc.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

WAR CLAIM OF BALTIMORE.

Mr. GORMAN. I offer the following resolution, and ask for its present consideration:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, requested to transmit to the Senate all correspondence between the Third Auditor of the Treasury and the mayor of Baltimore relating to the claim of the city of Baltimore for advances in the War of 1812 between the United States and Great Britain.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. SHERMAN. I suggest to the Senator from Maryland whether he had not better insert the word "copies." It is not usual to send the original papers.

Mr. GORMAN. I have no objection to that. I will modify the resolution by inserting the words "copies of" before the words "all correspondence."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution as modified.

The resolution as modified was agreed to.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. SHERMAN. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After twenty-five minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened.

DEATH OF REPRESENTATIVE WARWICK.

Mr. BRICE. Mr. President, I ask that the resolutions of the House of Representatives in regard to the death of my late colleague in that body be laid before the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate resolutions from the House of Representatives, which will be read.

The Secretary read the resolutions, as follows:

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, December 6, 1892.

Resolved, That the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of Hon. John G. Warwick, late a Representative from the State of Ohio.

Resolved, That the Clerk be directed to communicate a copy of these resolutions to the Senate.

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to his memory the House do now adjourn.

Mr. BRICE. Mr. President, I offer the resolutions which I send to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolutions will be read.

The Secretary read the resolutions, as follows:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with deep regret the announcement of the death of the Hon. John G. Warwick, late a Representative from the State of Ohio.

Resolved, That the Secretary communicate this resolution to the House of Representatives.

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased the Senate do now adjourn.

Mr. BRICE. Mr. President, at some future time I shall ask that a day be fixed when appropriate tributes may be paid to the memory and services of my late colleague in the other House.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolutions submitted by the Senator from Ohio.

The resolutions were agreed to unanimously; and (at 1 o'clock and 2 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until Monday, December 12, 1892, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate December 8, 1892.

JUDGES OF PROBATE.

Charles Foote, of Utah Territory, to be judge of probate in the county of Juab, in the Territory of Utah, his term having expired September 26, 1892.

William W. Wallace, of Utah Territory, to be judge of probate in the county of Sevier, in the Territory of Utah, vice Lathrop B. Kinney, whose term expires December 8, 1892.

Charles A. Herman, of Utah Territory, to be judge of probate in the county of Toole, in the Territory of Utah, his term having expired September 26, 1892.

COMMISSIONER GENERAL LAND OFFICE.

William M. Stone, of Knoxville, Iowa, who was appointed November 18, 1892, during the recess of the Senate, to be Commissioner of the General Land Office, vice Thomas H. Carter, resigned.

ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER GENERAL LAND OFFICE.

Manning M. Rose, of Marietta, Ohio, who was appointed November 19, 1892, during the recess of the Senate, to be Assistant Commissioner of the General Land Office, vice William M. Stone, resigned.

REGISTERS OF LAND OFFICES.

Thomas Fraser, of Placerville, Cal., who was appointed August 27, 1892, during the recess of the Senate, to be register of the land office at Sacramento, Cal., vice Edmund W. Roberts, resigned.

Willis B. Stanley, of Beaver, Okla., who was appointed November 21, 1892, during the recess of the Senate, to be register of the land office at Beaver, in the Territory of Oklahoma, vice George L. Dobson, resigned.

RECEIVER OF PUBLIC MONEYS.

Thomas J. Flanner, of Louisiana, who was appointed November 16, 1892, during the recess of the Senate, to be receiver of public moneys at Natchitoches, La., vice Alexis E. Lemee, removed.

SECRETARY OF NEW MEXICO.

Silas Alexander, of Hillsboro, N. Mex., who was appointed November 15, 1892, during the recess of the Senate, to be secretary of New Mexico, vice Benjamin M. Thomas, deceased.

INDIAN AGENT.

Edwin Eells, of Tacoma, Wash., who was appointed August 29, 1892, during the recess of the Senate, to be agent for the Indians of the Puyallup Agency (consolidated) in Washington, to take effect September 18, 1892, at the expiration of his last term of office.

POSTMASTERS.

Watson S. Menefee, to be postmaster at Union Springs, in the county of Bullock and State of Alabama, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, in the place of Frederic B. Fay, removed.

John G. Pritchard, to be postmaster at Bisbee, in the county of Cochise and Territory of Arizona, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Bennett C. Atwood, to be postmaster at Watertown, in the county of Litchfield and State of Connecticut, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 3, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

William E. Goodman, to be postmaster at South Evanston, in the county of Cook and State of Illinois, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, in the place of Nicholas Morper, resigned.

William T. Greemann, to be postmaster at Batesville, in the county of Ripley and State of Indiana, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Samuel S. Gray, to be postmaster at Hamilton, in the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Henry E. Kingsland, to be postmaster at Central Park, in the county of Cook and State of Illinois, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, the appointment of postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Pete H. Norris, to be postmaster at Metropolis City, in the county of Massac and State of Illinois, in the place of Ionia B. Bomar, removed.

Charles Voris, to be postmaster at Windsor, in the county of Shelby and State of Illinois, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 3, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Mrs. Marietta Blythe, to be postmaster at Clinton, in the county of Vermillion and State of Indiana, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

John A. Pate, to be postmaster at Bloomfield, in the county of Greene and State of Indiana, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Henry A. Snepp, to be postmaster at Bourbon, in the county of Marshall and State of Indiana, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Lyna Whited, to be postmaster at Belmond, in the county of Wright and State of Iowa, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Wallace H. Johnson, to be postmaster at Salina, in the county of Saline and State of Kansas, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, in the place of Charles S. Radcliff, deceased.

Pitt W. Kent, to be postmaster at Weir, in the county of Cherokee and State of Kansas, in the place of Wilson Liff, resigned.

William C. Hinman, to be postmaster at Great Barrington, in the county of Berkshire and State of Massachusetts, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, September 27, 1892, in the place of Charles E. Gorham, resigned.

Henry H. Johnson, to be postmaster at Haverhill, in the county of Essex and State of Massachusetts, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, September 21, 1892, in the place of Gilman L. Sleeper, whose commission expired August 14, 1892.

Charles H. Riley, to be postmaster at Dedham, in the county of Norfolk and State of Massachusetts, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, October 6, 1892, in the place of Charles H. Riley, whose commission expired August 14, 1892.

Velette P. Townsend, to be postmaster at Quinsigamond, county of Worcester and State of Massachusetts, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

George Pfaff, to be postmaster at Boulder Valley, in the county of Jefferson and State of Montana, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 3, 1892, in the place of Vining A. Cook, deceased.

Mrs. Nettie J. Van Inwegen, to be postmaster at Ortonville, in the county of Big Stone and State of Minnesota, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, September 23, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after July 1, 1892.

Nathaniel S. Lane, to be postmaster at North St. Paul, in the county of Ramsey and State of Minnesota, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Gustave A. Schulze, to be postmaster at Two Harbors, in the county of Lake and State of Minnesota, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, September 21, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after July 1, 1892.

Leman D. Herrick, to be postmaster at Scranton, in the county of Jackson and State of Mississippi, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 28, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Frank M. Atkinson, to be postmaster at St. Joseph, in the county of Buchanan and State of Missouri, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, September 21, 1892, in the place of Charles F. Ernst, deceased.

Oscar Cramer, to be postmaster at Cape Girardeau, in the county of Cape Girardeau and State of Missouri, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, September 27, 1892, in the place of George H. Cramer, deceased.

Edward J. Day, to be postmaster at Monett, in the county of Barry and State of Missouri, in the place of George B. Draper, resigned.

David P. Dobyns, to be postmaster at Oregon, in the county of Holt and State of Missouri, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, October 26, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Thomas S. Lewis, to be postmaster at Glasgow, in the county of Howard and State of Missouri, in the place of Edwin W. Bentley, resigned.

Leonard H. Mohr, to be postmaster at Troy, in the county of Lincoln and State of Missouri, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, September 21, 1892, in the place of William A. Woodson, whose commission expired August 10, 1892.

Samuel Atkinson, to be postmaster at Cozad, in the county of Dawson and State of Nebraska, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

James L. McDonald, to be postmaster at Atkinson, in the county of Holt and State of Nebraska, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, in the place of James H. Perry, resigned.

Mary J. Cun Iffe, to be postmaster at Las Cruces, in the county of Donna Ana and Territory of New Mexico, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate November 3, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

William B. Barker, to be postmaster at Fredonia, in the county of Chautauqua and State of New York, in the place of Philo H. Stevens, whose commission expired August 10, 1892.

Emmett C. Grant, to be postmaster at Farmer, in the county of Seneca and State of New York, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

William E. Mills, to be postmaster at Rose Hill, in the county of Onondaga and State of New York, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, October 15, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after July 1, 1892.

Jacob Schmahl, to be postmaster at Woodhaven, in the county of Queens and State of New York, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Frederick C. Walther, to be postmaster at Minto, in the county of Walsh and State of North Dakota, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Lemuel P. Bissell, to be postmaster at Louisville, in the county of Stark and State of Ohio, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, October 22, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Henry J. Saxton, to be postmaster at Madison, in the county of Lake and State of Ohio, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate November 3, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Ruben R. Hickox, to be postmaster at El Reno, in the county of Canadian and Territory of Oklahoma, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after July 1, 1892.

Frank Cunningham, jr., to be postmaster at Forest City, in the county of Susquehanna and State of Pennsylvania, in the place of Truman C. Mawzer, resigned.

Jacob B. Gable, to be postmaster at Lititz, in the county of Lancaster and State of Pennsylvania, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, September 21, 1892, in the place of Isaac F. Bomberger, whose commission expired August 10, 1892.

James S. Hart, to be postmaster at Saltsburg, in the county of Indiana and State of Pennsylvania, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, in the place of Robert A. Paul, deceased.

Charles N. Brown, to be postmaster at Woonsocket, in the county of Providence and State of Rhode Island, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, October 4, 1892, in the place of Frank A. Campbell, whose commission expired January 31, 1892.

Almon K. Goodwin, to be postmaster at Pawtucket, in the county of Providence and State of Rhode Island, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, October 7, 1892, in the place of Isaac R. Wilkinson, whose commission expired January 23, 1892.

Andrew S. Withers, to be postmaster at Yorkville, in the county of York and State of South Carolina, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, October 22, 1892, in the place of William A. Moore, whose commission expired May 15, 1892.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. S. Mixson, to be postmaster at Barnwell, in the county of Barnwell and State of South Carolina, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Robert H. Hayes, to be postmaster at Lewisburg, in the county of Marshall and State of Tennessee, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 3, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

George W. Ashton, to be postmaster at Iowa Park, in the county of Wichita and State of Texas, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Franklin L. Cleaves, to be postmaster at Gainesville, in the county of Cooke and State of Texas, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, October 7, 1892, in the place of William L. Pierce, resigned.

Alonzo L. Steele, to be postmaster at Groesbeck, in the county of Limestone and State of Texas, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after July 1, 1892.

William M. Ward, to be postmaster at Oak Cliff, in the county of Dallas and State of Texas, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on an after October 1, 1892.

Hugh L. Witcher, to be postmaster at Rockdale, in the county of Milam and State of Texas, in the place of John C. Witcher, resigned.

Albert H. Nash, to be postmaster at Salt Lake City, in the county of Salt Lake and Territory of Utah, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 25, 1892, in the place of Irving A. Benton, resigned.

Byron Fairbanks, to be postmaster at West Bend, in the county of Washington and State of Wisconsin, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

James W. Samphier, to be postmaster at Omro, in the county of Winnebago and State of Wisconsin, who was commissioned during the recess of the Senate, November 2, 1892, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Jacob Shaul, to be postmaster at Marianna, in the county of Lee and State of Arkansas, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after July 1, 1892.

Mrs. Nancy J. Wilson, to be postmaster at Forrest City, in the county of St. Francis and State of Arkansas, in the place of Mary E. Winfield, whose commission expired August 18, 1892.

Asa Crocker, to be postmaster at Suisun City, in the county of Solano and State of California, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

George B. Lyman, to be postmaster at Yuba City, in the county of Sutter and State of California, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after July 1, 1892.

Hubert E. Carpenter, to be postmaster at East Hampton, in the county of Middlesex and State of Connecticut, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Mrs. Alice B. Bussey, to be postmaster at Cuthbert, in the county of Randolph and State of Georgia, in the place of Duncan Jordan, resigned.

Mrs. Mary P. Dixon, to be postmaster at West Point, in the county of Troup and State of Georgia, in the place of Jacob W. F. Little, whose commission expired January 31, 1892.

William F. Schuler, to be postmaster at Woodbine, in the county of Harrison and State of Iowa, in the place of William J. Callender, resigned.

William Thero, to be postmaster at Farmington, in the county of Van Buren and State of Iowa, in the place of Leon L. Therme, deceased.

Martha E. Cowgill, to be postmaster at Baldwin, in the county of Douglas and State of Kansas, in the place of Henry E. Cowgill, deceased.

William E. Cropper, to be postmaster at Midway, in the county of Woodford and State of Kentucky, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

William H. Rich, to be postmaster at Berwick, in the county of York and State of Maine, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

James C. Cooper, to be postmaster at Chester, in the county of Hampden and State of Massachusetts, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

James B. Parsons, to be postmaster at Attleboro Falls, in the county of Bristol and State of Massachusetts, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Joseph Pettee, jr., to be postmaster at South Abington Station, in the county of Plymouth and State of Massachusetts, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Winfred A. Torrey, to be postmaster at South Braintree, in the county of Norfolk and State of Massachusetts, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

George B. Faxon, to be postmaster at Ovid, in the county of Clinton and State of Michigan, in the place of Adam Beattie, resigned.

Solomon D. Hollister, jr., to be postmaster at Crystal Falls, in the county of Iron and State of Michigan, in the place of Alonzo Parks, resigned.

Anna Durham, to be postmaster at Clarksdale, in the county of Coahoma and State of Mississippi, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after January 1, 1892.

Green B. Atterbury, to be postmaster at Maysville, in the county of Dekalb and State of Missouri, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Harry H. Mitchell, to be postmaster at Clinton, in the county of Henry and State of Missouri, in the place of Jacob Keiser, resigned.

John R. Nease, to be postmaster at Humansville, in the county of Polk and State of Missouri, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

George H. Bell, to be postmaster at Carson City, in the county of Ormsby and State of Nevada, in the place of Richard S. Rodman, deceased.

Albert L. Norris, to be postmaster at North Bend, in the county of Dodge and State of Nebraska, in the place of John P. Yost, resigned.

Charles E. Slate, to be postmaster at Winchester, in the county of Cheshire and State of New Hampshire, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Mrs. Julia A. Caney, to be postmaster at Amsterdam, in the county of Montgomery and State of New York, in the place of Richard F. Caney, deceased.

William H. Stickles, to be postmaster at Philmont, in the county of Columbia and State of New York, in the place of Henry P. Horton, deceased.

Jesse M. Littleton, to be postmaster at Winchester, in the county of Franklin and State of Tennessee, in the place of John T. Fitzpatrick, whose commission expired August 10, 1892.

PROFESSOR AT THE MILITARY ACADEMY.

Capt. Edward E. Wood, Eighth Cavalry, to be professor of modern languages, October 1, 1892, vice Andrews, retired from active service.

PROMOTIONS IN THE ARMY.

Corps of Engineers.

Capt. Clinton B. Sears, to be major, September 20, 1892, vice Overman, resigned.

First Lieut. John Millis, to be captain, September 20, 1892, vice Sears, promoted.

First Lieut. John Biddle, to be captain, October 11, 1892, vice Maguire, deceased.

Second Lieut. James J. Meyer, to be first lieutenant, September 20, 1892, vice Millis, promoted.

Second Lieut. Charles H. McKinstry, to be first lieutenant, October 11, 1892, vice Biddle, promoted.

Cavalry arm.

Lieut. Col. Anson Mills, Fourth Cavalry, to be colonel, August 16, 1892, vice Morrow, Third Cavalry, retired from active service.

Maj. Samuel B. M. Young, Third Cavalry, to be lieutenant-colonel, August 16, 1892, vice Mills, Fourth Cavalry, promoted.

Maj. George A. Purington, Third Cavalry, to be lieutenant-colonel, October 20, 1892, vice Wilcox, Third Cavalry, retired from active service.

Capt. Henry W. Wessells, jr., Third Cavalry, to be major, August 16, 1892, vice Young, Third Cavalry, promoted.

Capt. Alexander S. B. Keyes, Tenth Cavalry, to be major, October 20, 1892, vice Purington, Third Cavalry, promoted.

First Lieut. James N. Allison, Second Cavalry, to be captain, August 15, 1892, vice Hamilton, Second Cavalry, retired from active service.

First Lieut. William D. Beach, Third Cavalry, to be captain, August 16, 1892, vice Wessells, Third Cavalry, promoted.

First Lieut. William A. Shunk, Eighth Cavalry, to be captain, October 5, 1892, vice Wood, Eighth Cavalry, appointed professor at the Military Academy.

First Lieut. George H. Evans, Tenth Cavalry, to be captain, October 20, 1892, vice Keyes, Tenth Cavalry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Floyd W. Harris, Fourth Cavalry, to be first lieutenant, August 15, 1892, vice Allison, Second Cavalry, promoted.

Second Lieut. John T. Nance, Second Cavalry, to be first lieutenant, August 15, 1892, vice Glass, Sixth Cavalry, deceased.

Second Lieut. Charles C. Walcutt, jr., Eighth Cavalry, to be first lieutenant, August 16, 1892, vice Beach, Third Cavalry, promoted.

Second Lieut. William H. Bean, Second Cavalry, to be first lieutenant, October 5, 1892, vice Shunk, Eighth Cavalry, promoted.

Second Lieut. John J. Pershing, Sixth Cavalry, to be first lieutenant, October 20, 1892, vice Evans, Tenth Cavalry, promoted.

Artillery arm.

Maj. Alexander C. M. Pennington, Fourth Artillery, to be lieutenant-colonel, November 28, 1892, vice Jackson, Fourth Artillery, deceased.

Capt. George B. Rodney, Fourth Artillery, to be major, November 28, 1892, vice Pennington, Fourth Artillery, promoted.

First Lieut. Elbridge R. Hills, Fifth Artillery, to be captain, November 28, 1892, vice Brewerton, Fifth Artillery, retired from active service.

First Lieut. James E. Eastman, Second Artillery, to be captain, November 28, 1892, vice Litchfield, Second Artillery, retired from active service.

First Lieut. Sydney W. Taylor, Fourth Artillery, to be captain, November 28, 1892, vice Rodney, Fourth Artillery, promoted.

Second Lieut. John A. Towers, First Artillery, to be first lieutenant, September 23, 1892, vice Rodman, Second Artillery, resigned.

Second Lieut. Lucien G. Berry, Fourth Artillery, to be first lieutenant, November 28, 1892, vice Hills, Fifth Artillery, promoted.

Second Lieut. John E. McMahon, Fourth Artillery, to be first lieutenant, November 28, 1892, vice Eastman, Second Artillery, promoted.

Second Lieut. Avery D. Andrews, Fifth Artillery, to be first lieutenant, November 28, 1892, vice Taylor, Fourth Artillery, promoted.

Infantry arm.

Lieut. Col. Simon Snyder, Tenth Infantry, to be colonel, September 16, 1892, vice Brayton, Nineteenth Infantry, retired from active service.

Maj. Edgar R. Kellogg, Eighth Infantry, to be lieutenant-colonel, September 16, 1892, vice Snyder, Tenth Infantry, promoted.

Maj. Edward W. Whittemore, Tenth Infantry, to be lieutenant-colonel, October 14, 1892, vice Hampson, Twelfth Infantry, deceased.

Capt. Francis E. Lacey, Tenth Infantry, to be major, September 16, 1892, vice Kellogg, Eighth Infantry, promoted.

Capt. Augustus H. Bainbridge, Fourteenth Infantry, to be major, October 14, 1892, vice Whittemore, Tenth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. John J. O'Brien, regimental quartermaster Fourth Infantry, to be captain, September 14, 1892, vice Brown, Fourth Infantry, deceased.

First Lieut. Williams Paulding, Tenth Infantry, to be captain, September 16, 1892, vice Lacey, Tenth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. George Andrews, Twenty-fifth Infantry, to be captain, September 16, 1892, vice Lawson, Twenty-fifth Infantry, retired from active service.

First Lieut. George T. T. Patterson, Fourteenth Infantry, to be captain, October 14, 1892, vice Bainbridge, Fourteenth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Lorenzo W. Cooke, Third Infantry, to be captain, November 29, 1892, vice Bartlett, Third Infantry, retired from active service.

First Lieut. Oliver B. Warwick, Eighteenth Infantry, to be captain, November 30, 1892, vice Baldwin, Eighteenth Infantry, retired from active service.

First Lieut. Theodore H. Eckerson, Nineteenth Infantry, to be captain, November 30, 1892, vice Vance, Nineteenth Infantry, retired from active service.

Second Lieut. Benjamin A. Poore, Twelfth Infantry, to be first lieutenant, September 16, 1892, vice Paulding, Tenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Edward W. McCaskey, Twenty-first Infantry, to be first lieutenant, September 17, 1892, vice Browne, Fourth Infantry, appointed regimental quartermaster.

Second Lieut. Chauncey B. Baker, Seventh Infantry, to be first lieutenant, September 29, 1892, vice Cochran, Seventh Infantry, deceased.

Second Lieut. James H. McRae, Third Infantry, to be first lieutenant, October 14, 1892, vice Patterson, Fourteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Amos B. Shattuck, Sixth Infantry, to be first lieutenant, October 19, 1892, vice Leonhaeuser, Twenty-fifth Infantry, appointed regimental adjutant.

Second Lieut. William M. Swaine, Twenty-second Infantry, to be first lieutenant, November 29, 1892, vice Cooke, Third Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Walter H. Gordon, Twelfth Infantry, to be first lieutenant, November 30, 1892, vice Warwick, Eighteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. James L. Druien, Seventeenth Infantry, to be first lieutenant, November 30, 1892, vice Eckerson, Nineteenth Infantry, promoted.

Medical Department.

Lieut. Col. Charles H. Alden, deputy surgeon-general, to be assistant surgeon-general with the rank of colonel, December 4, 1892, vice Heger, retired from active service.

Maj. Albert Hartsuff, surgeon, to be deputy surgeon-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, December 4, 1892, vice Alden, promoted.

To be assistant surgeons with the rank of first lieutenant:

Henry R. Stiles, of Connecticut, November 4, 1892, vice Adair, promoted.

Harry M. Hallock, of New Jersey, November 4, 1892, vice Shively, whose appointment was canceled for nonacceptance.

George J. Newgarden, of Pennsylvania, November 4, 1892, vice Biart, retired from active service.

Paul F. Straub, of Iowa, November 4, 1892, vice Brown, promoted.

Cavalry arm.

First Sergt. Cornelius C. Smith, Troop K, Sixth Cavalry, to be second lieutenant, November 19, 1892, vice Nance, Second Cavalry, promoted.

Corp. Joseph E. Cusack, Troop C, Fifth Cavalry, to be second lieutenant, November 19, 1892, vice Haines, Fifth Cavalry, promoted.

Infantry arm.

Sergt. Maj. James Ronayne, Tenth Infantry, to be second lieutenant, November 19, 1892, vice McIntyre, Nineteenth Infantry, promoted.

Sergt. William J. Lutz, Battery E, First Artillery, to be second lieutenant, November 19, 1892, vice Ellis, Second Infantry, retired from active service.

Sergt. Henry L. Kinnison, Company B, Seventh Infantry, to be second lieutenant, November 19, 1892, vice Martin, Twenty-fifth Infantry, promoted.

Sergt. Warren B. Fox, Company A, Twentieth Infantry, to be second lieutenant, November 19, 1892, vice Johnson, Tenth Infantry, promoted.

Sergt. Guy G. Palmer, Company H, Eighth Infantry, to be second lieutenant, November 19, 1892, vice Anderson, Sixteenth Infantry, resigned.

Corporal Williamson Markland, Company B, Ninth Infantry, to be second lieutenant, November 19, 1892, vice Baker, Twelfth Infantry, promoted.

Cavalry arm.

Second Lieut. George W. Kirkpatrick, Tenth Infantry, to be second lieutenant, August 17, 1892, with rank from June 11, 1892, vice Reber, Fourth Cavalry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Gordon Voorhies, Twenty-fifth Infantry, to be second lieutenant, August 25, 1892, with rank from August 24, 1892, vice Harris, Fourth Cavalry, promoted.

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY.

Assistant Engineer Edward H. Scribner, to be a passed assistant engineer in the Navy from the 22d June, 1892, vice Passed Assistant Engineers R. W. Milligan and G. W. Baird, promoted.

Assistant Engineer Andrew M. Hunt, to be a passed assistant engineer in the Navy from the 27th July, 1892, vice Passed Assistant Engineers R. Crawford and C. F. Nagle, retired.

Assistant Engineer Frank M. Bennett, to be a passed assistant engineer in the Navy from the 7th October, 1892, vice Passed Assistant Engineer Harrie Webster, promoted.

Passed Assistant Surg. William R. Du Bose, to be a surgeon in the Navy from the 1st November, 1892, vice Surg. Ernest Norfleet, retired.

John Miller Moore, a resident of South Carolina, to be an assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 11th November, 1892, to fill a vacancy in that grade.

Lieut. (junior grade) Thomas M. Brumby, to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 24th August, 1892, vice Lieut. T. Dix Bolles, deceased.

Lieut. Commander Andrew J. Iverson, to be a commander in the Navy from the 4th December, 1892, vice Commander Roswell D. Hitchcock, deceased.

Lieut. William H. Reeder, to be a lieutanant-commander in the Navy from the 4th December, 1892, vice Lieut. Commander A. J. Iverson, promoted.

Passed Assistant Engineer Robert W. Milligan, to be a chief engineer in the Navy from the 16th May, 1892, vice Chief Engineer H. B. Nones, retired. [Subject to the examinations required by law.]

Passed Assistant Engineer George W. Baird, to be a chief engineer in the Navy from 22d June, 1892, vice Chief Engineer D. P. Jones, retired.

Passed Assistant Engineer Richard Inch, to be a chief engineer in the Navy from the 3d of August, 1892, vice Chief Engineer Jefferson Brown, retired. [Subject to the examinations required by law.]

Passed Assistant Engineer Harrie Webster, to be a chief engineer in the Navy from the 7th October, 1892, vice Chief Engineer B. F. Wood retired.

PROMOTIONS IN THE MARINE CORPS.

First Lieut. Otway C. Berryman, United States Marine Corps, to be a captain in that corps from the 11th July, 1892, vice Capt. William R. Brown, promoted.

Second Lieut. Bertram S. Newmann, United States Marine Corps, to be a first lieutenant in that corps from the 11th July, 1892, vice First Lieut. O. C. Berryman, promoted.

Capt. Robert L. Meade, United States Marine Corps, to be a major in that corps from the 6th September, 1892, vice Maj. William R. Brown, retired.

First Lieut. William F. Spicer, United States Marine Corps, to be a captain in that corps from the 6th September, 1892, vice Capt. R. L. Meade, promoted.

Second Lieut. Charles G. Long, United States Marine Corps, to be a first lieutenant in that corps from the 6th September, 1892, vice First Lieut. William F. Spicer, promoted.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate December 8, 1892.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

John H. Gear, of Iowa, to be Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

ENVOYS EXTRAORDINARY AND MINISTERS PLENIPOTENTIARY.

William Potter, of Philadelphia, Pa., to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Italy.

David P. Thompson, of Oregon, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Turkey.

CONSULS.

Charles H. Cowan, of Chicago, Ill., to be consul of the United States at Manila.

Louis A. Dent, of the District of Columbia, to be consul of the United States at Kingston, Jamaica.

William R. Estes, of Madelia, Minn., to be consul of the United States at Hamburg.

John P. Eirich, of Columbus, Ohio, to be consul of the United States at Antigua, West Indies.

Corvis M. Barre, of Hillsdale, Mich., to be consul of the United States at Valparaiso.

J. Alexander Forbes, of San Francisco, Cal., to be consul of the United States at Guaymas.

Orlando H. Baker, of Indianola, Iowa, to be consul of the United States at Copenhagen.

William Heimke, of Kansas, formerly vice-consul at Chihuahua, to be consul of the United States at that place.

COLLECTOR OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

George W. Miller, of Pennsylvania, to be collector of internal revenue for the Twenty-third district of Pennsylvania.

ASSISTANT APPRAISER OF MERCHANDISE.

Michael Goode, of New York, to be assistant appraiser of merchandise in the district of New York, in the State of New York.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE MARINE-HOSPITAL SERVICE.

Edgar Strayer, of Pennsylvania, to be an assistant surgeon in the Marine-Hospital Service of the United States.

Henry D. Geddings, of Alabama, to be passed assistant surgeon in the Marine-Hospital Service of the United States.

Charles P. Wertenbaker, of Virginia, to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Marine-Hospital Service of the United States.

PROMOTIONS IN THE REVENUE SERVICE.

Third Lieut. Ellsworth P. Bertholf, of New York, to be a second lieutenant in the Revenue Service of the United States.

Second Lieut. Walter S. Howland, of Massachusetts, to be a first lieutenant in the Revenue Service of the United States.

First Lieut. Robert M. Clark, of Connecticut, to be a captain in the Revenue Service of the United States.

CONSUL-GENERAL.

Edward C. Little, of Abilene, Kans., to be agent and consul-general of the United States at Cairo.

COMMISSIONER OF THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE.

William M. Stone, of Knoxville, Iowa, to be Commissioner of the General Land Office.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, December 8, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

ANNUAL REPORT ON THE FINANCES.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury on the state of the finances for the year 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S REPORT.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Attorney-General, transmitting his annual report to Congress; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

VIRGINIA MILITARY LAND RECORDS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting an estimate of appropriation for the purchase of the Virginia military land records, submitted by the Secretary of the Interior; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

REPORT FIRST COMPTROLLER OF THE TREASURY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Treasurer of the United States, transmitting copies of accounts rendered to and settled with the First Comptroller of the Treasury for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

ANNUAL REPORTS SERGEANT-AT-ARMS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Representatives, transmitting a statement showing moneys drawn and disbursed by him up to December 5, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Accounts.

Also a letter from the Sergeant-at-Arms, transmitting a list of the property belonging to the United States in his possession December 5, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Accounts.

IMPROVEMENTS RIVERS AND HARBORS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House communications from the Secretary of War, transmitting letters from the Chief of Engineers respecting the examination and survey of the following rivers and harbors:

Big Sandy River, Kentucky; channel connecting Freeport with Great South Bay, N. Y.; Gloucester Harbor, Massachusetts, from Five Pound Island to the head of the river; Alviso Slough, California; Rogue River, Oregon, from Grants Pass to the mouth; Owl Head Harbor, Maine; Milford Haven, Virginia; Allegheny River, from Orleans, N. Y., to Warren, Pa.; obstruction at mouth of Morattico Creek, Virginia; inner navigation of Alsea River, Oregon; Savannah River, Georgia; locks and dams on the Ohio River in Pennsylvania; Wicomico River, Maryland; East Boston Channel, Massachusetts; Licking River, Kentucky, with a view to slack-water navigation; Southold Harbor, Long Island; Black Walnut Harbor, Maryland, at mouth of Great Choptank River; Georges River, Maine; Dennis Creek, New Jersey; Allouez Bay and Nemadji River at Superior, Wis.; Gloucester Harbor, Massachusetts; Lake Pepin, in the Mississippi River; Everett Harbor, Washington; Little Miami River, Ohio; Adams Landing Harbor, Vermont; Sequatchie River, Tennessee, and harbor at Cape Canaveral, Florida; which were severally referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. TURPIN, indefinitely, on account of sickness.

To Mr. HALLOWELL, for this day, on account of important business.

CALL OF STANDING AND SELECT COMMITTEES.

The Clerk then, under direction of the Speaker, proceeded to call the roll of standing and select committees for reports. No reports were presented.

ENGINEER CORPS OF THE NAVY.

The SPEAKER. This completes the call of standing and select committees. The morning hour begins at 12 o'clock and 11 minutes. The call rested with the Committee on Naval Affairs. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] on yesterday moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill (S. 139) terminating the reduction in the numbers of the Engineer Corps of the Navy was passed; and the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. HERBERT] moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table. The question before the House will be on the motion of the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. HERBERT] to lay upon the table the motion to reconsider entered by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN].

The question being taken, the Speaker announced that the ayes seemed to have it.

Mr. HOLMAN. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 134, nays 85, not voting 110; as follows:

YEAS—134.

Alderson,	Compton,	Hooker, N. Y.	Perkins,
Amerman,	Coolidge,	Hopkins, Pa.	Pickler,
Andrew,	Coombs,	Hopkins, Ill.	Powers,
Atkinson,	Covert,	Hull,	Ray,
Babbitt,	Crosby,	Johnson, Ind.	Reed,
Bankhead,	Cummings,	Johnson, N. Dak.	Reilly,
Barwig,	Curtis,	Jolley,	Sculi,
Belknap,	Cutting,	Kribbs,	Seerley,
Bentley,	Dalzell,	Lagan,	Smith,
Bergen,	Daniell,	Lanham,	Sperry,
Bingham,	Dingley,	Lawson, Va.	Stevens,
Boatner,	Dixon,	Lawson, Ga.	Stone, C. W.
Boutelle,	Doan,	Layton,	Storer,
Bowers,	Durborow,	Lind,	Tarsney,
Bowman,	Elliott,	Little,	Taylor, Tenn.
Brickner,	English,	Loud,	Taylor, E. B.
Broderick,	Flick,	Lynch,	Taylor, J. D.
Brosius,	Forney,	Magner,	Townsend,
Bullock,	Funston,	Mallory,	Tracey,
Bunn,	Geary,	McAleer,	Tucker,
Burrows,	Geissenhainer,	Meyer,	Van Horn,
Busey,	Gillespie,	Miller,	Wadsworth,
Cadmus,	Greenleaf,	Moore,	Warner,
Caldwell,	Grout,	Mutchler,	Waugh,
Campbell,	Harries,	Newberry,	Weadock,
Caruth,	Haugen,	Oates,	Wheeler, Ala.
Castle,	Hayes, Iowa	O'Donnell,	Wilson, Wash.
Causey,	Haynes, Ohio	O'Ferrall,	Wilson, Mo.
Cheatham,	Henderson, Iowa	O'Neil, Mass.	Wise,
Chipman,	Herbert,	O'Neill, Pa.	Wolverton,
Clancy,	Hermann,	Owens,	Wright,
Clark, Wyo.	Hilborn,	Page, R. I.	Youmans.
Cobb, Ala.	Hitt,	Payne,
Coburn,	Hooker, Miss.	Pendleton,

NAYS—85.

Abbott,	Cox, N. Y.	Kyle,	Scott,
Allen,	Cox, Tenn.	Lane,	Shively,
Antony,	Davis,	Lester, Ga.	Simpson,
Arnold,	De Armond,	Livingston,	Snodgrass,
Bailey,	Dockery,	Long,	Snow,
Beltzhoover,	Edmunds,	Martin,	Springer,
Blanchard,	Enloe,	McClellan,	Steward, Ill.
Bland,	Epes,	McKaig,	Stockdale,
Blount,	Everett,	McLaurin,	Stone, Ky.
Branch,	Fithian,	McMillin,	Stout,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Forman,	McRae,	Taylor, Ill.
Bretz,	Fyan,	Obliger,	Terry,
Brookshire,	Gantz,	Otis,	Tillman,
Brown, Ind.	Gorman,	Parrett,	Turner,
Brunner,	Grady,	Patterson, Tenn.	Watson,
Butler,	Halvorson,	Pattison, Ohio	White,
Bynum,	Harter,	Patton,	Wike,
Capehart,	Henderson, N. C.	Paynter,	Williams, Ill.
Clover,	Holman,	Pearson,	Winn,
Cobb, Mo.	Jones,	Peel,
Cooper,	Kendall,	Richardson,
Cowles,	Kilgore,	Sayers,

NOT VOTING—110.

Alexander,	Donovan,	Lester, Va.	Robinson, Pa.
Bacon,	Dungan,	Lewis,	Rockwell,
Baker,	Dunphy,	Lockwood,	Rusk,
Bartine,	Ellis,	Lodge,	Russell,
Beeman,	Enochs,	Mansur,	Sanford,
Belden,	Fellows,	McCreary,	Shell,
Brawley,	Fitch,	McGann,	Shonk,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Fowler,	McKeighan,	Sipe,
Brown, Md.	Goodnight,	McKinney,	Stahlnecker,
Bryan,	Griswold,	Meredith,	Stephenson,
Buchanan, N. J.	Hall,	Milliken,	Stewart, Tex.
Buchanan, Va.	Hallowell,	Mitchell,	Stone, W. A.
Bunting,	Hamilton,	Montgomery,	Stump,
Bushnell,	Hare,	Morse,	Swee,
Byrnes,	Harmer,	Moses,	Taylor, V. A.
Cable,	Hatch,	Norton,	Turner,
Caminetti,	Heard,	O'Neill, Mo.	Walker,
Catchings,	Hemphill,	Outhwaite,	Washington,
Cate,	Henderson, Ill.	Pierce,	Wever,
Clarke, Ala.	Hoar,	Post,	Wheeler, Mich.
Cockran,	Houk, Ohio	Price,	Whiting,
Cogswell,	Houk, Tenn.	Quackenbush,	Wilcox,
Crain, Tex.	Huff,	Raines,	Williams, Mass.
Crawford,	Johnson, Ohio	Randall,	Williams, N. C.
Culberson,	Johnstone, S. C.	Rayner,	Wilson, Ky.
De Forest,	Kem,	Reyburn,	Wilson, W. Va.
Dickerson,	Ketcham,	Rife,
Dolliver,	Lapham,	Robertson, La.

So the motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The Clerk announced the following pairs:

Until further notice:

Mr. MCCREARY with Mr. MORSE.

Mr. MONTGOMERY with Mr. WEVER.

Mr. PAYNTER with Mr. BELDEN.

Mr. GOODNIGHT with Mr. SHONK.

Mr. ELLIS with Mr. GRISWOLD.

Mr. CLARKE of Alabama with Mr. VINCENT A. TAYLOR.

Mr. WASHINGTON with Mr. SANFORD.

Mr. HATCH with Mr. HARMER.

Mr. WILLCOX with Mr. RUSSELL.

Mr. ROBERTSON of Louisiana with Mr. HOUK of Tennessee.

For this day:

Mr. MOSES with Mr. COGSWELL.

Mr. CAMINETTI with Mr. MILLIKEN.

On this vote:

Mr. BUSHNELL with Mr. RANDALL.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The call rests with the Committee on Banking and Currency, under what is known as the second morning hour.

The Clerk proceeded with the calling of the committees under the rule.

The Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce was called.

Mr. LIND. I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce be passed over without prejudice this morning.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. LIND] asks unanimous consent that the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce be passed over, with the right to recur, or to be called again on this call. Is there objection?

Mr. REED. I did not hear what committee was referred to.

The SPEAKER. The Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. It is called in the second morning hour, but the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. LIND] asks that it be passed over without prejudice, and that it may be called again on this call. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Committee on Foreign Affairs was called.

Mr. BLOUNT. I ask that the Committee on Foreign Affairs be passed without prejudice.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Georgia [Mr. BLOUNT] asks that the Committee on Foreign Affairs be passed over without prejudice, reserving the right to have it again called on this call. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

MUSTER AND PAY OF CERTAIN VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS.

The Committee on Military Affairs was called.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (H. R. 6649) to extend the provisions of an act to provide for the muster and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer force.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the provisions of an act to provide for the muster and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer forces, approved June 4, 1884, as amended by an act approved February 5, 1887, be, and the same are hereby, revived and extended for a period of three years from the 3d day of June, 1892.

Mr. KILGORE. Mr. Speaker, I want to submit a point of order upon that bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. KILGORE. The point of order is that no bill, or resolution, or report which originated in the House at the first session, can, under the rules, be considered at the second session within the first six days of that session of Congress.

The SPEAKER. Has the gentleman got the number of the rule?

Mr. KILGORE. It is Rule XXVII, page 33.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. What is the number of the rule?

Mr. KILGORE. Rule XXVII. I have found it, and can read it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has the rule. [After a pause.] The Clerk will report the rule.

The Clerk read as follows:

After six days from the commencement of a second or a subsequent session of any Congress, all bills, resolutions, and reports which originated in the House, and remained undetermined at the close of the last preceding session, shall be in order for action, and all business before committees of the House at the end of one session shall be resumed at the commencement of the next session of the same Congress in the same manner as if no adjournment had taken place.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OUTHWAITE] desire to be heard?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I do not desire to be heard upon the subject.

The SPEAKER. This is a rule that has found place in the Rules of the House for many years, and it is the first time the attention of the Chair has been specifically called to the rule; and the Chair is not aware that there have been any decisions of his predecessors on this question.

Mr. KILGORE. The question was ruled on by the Speaker of the Fifty-first Congress [Mr. REED] at the beginning of the second session of that Congress, according to my recollection.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman state that that question was passed upon?

Mr. KILGORE. Yes, sir. Mr. Speaker REED held that the House could not consider any measure named in that rule at any time within the first six days of the short session, if I remember aright.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will have the matter looked up.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, I think I would like to say a word on this subject. When the gentleman from Texas [Mr. KILGORE] first raised his point of order, and I glanced at the rule, it seemed to me that probably it was well taken. Upon reconsidering the rule, I have reached a different conclusion—not that it is very material in this instance as to what the decision of the Chair may be; but it is material, reflecting upon the course of business in this House hereafter and during the remainder of these six days.

We have a system of rules which provides the manner in which our business shall be transacted. A portion of that system is this rule with regard to the morning hour, in which it is provided that the Speaker shall direct that the committees be called in order, and that each committee shall have its morning hour for the consideration of any business which may come before it. This rule, Mr. Speaker, does not prohibit anything. This rule does not certainly deny the right of this House to consider any of the business which may have come over from the preceding session. To sustain the point of order made by the gentleman from Texas is to rule that this House upon reassembling at the beginning of the second session shall virtually do nothing for six days, unless it be to consider Senate measures. Look at the language of the rule which the gentleman has cited:

After six days from the commencement of a second or a subsequent session of any Congress, all bills, resolutions, and reports which originated in the House, and remained undetermined at the close of the last preceding session, shall be in order for action.

That does not say, nor does it imply, that, acting upon and through the system of rules which provides for this morning hour, we can not call up business. That clause does not negative all the rest of the system of rules under which we act which would enable us to do business for six days. No such meaning should be given to the rule as would exclude this House from going on to consider that which would necessarily be the business pressed upon its attention. If this rule should be sustained scarcely anything that this House has done so far was in order. I know of very little that the House has done up to this time that would be in order if the construction the gentleman from Texas seeks to put upon this rule should be given by the Speaker and concurred in by the House.

Mr. BURROWS. Mr. Speaker, the whole difficulty, it seems to me, arises from this Congress failing to adopt the rules of the last Congress. [Laughter.]

Mr. MCMILLIN. We accept the difficulty.

Mr. BURROWS. The rules of the last Congress provided—

That all business before committees of the House at the end of one session shall be resumed at the commencement of the next session in the same course and in the same manner as if no adjournment had taken place.

That eliminated from this rule that portion which relates to the first six days, and which prohibits all business until six days shall have passed. That rule was modified by the last Congress so as to make it in order to bring up all unfinished business of the previous session the same as though no adjournment had taken place. But, as I said before, the present difficulty arises from returning to a rule that never had any sense, and for that reason, I suppose, commended itself to this Democratic House.

This fact, it seems to me, also answers the statement of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. KILGORE] that Speaker REED ruled that the House could do no business of the kind in question during the first six days of the session. As we had no such rule in the Congress over which Speaker REED presided, he could not have made such a ruling.

Mr. REED. I do not think the average of the Democratic statements as to the rulings that I made ought to be lowered by this correction. [Laughter.] I think the statement of the gentleman from Texas, as originally made, is quite up to the average. [Laughter.]

Mr. KILGORE. Then, Mr. Speaker, I must be in error in the statement that Mr. REED had ruled on this question. I remember that there has been such ruling, and it must have been in the second session of the Fiftieth Congress, and if made by Mr. Speaker CARLISLE it would, in my judgment, be conclusive of the question if the language of the rule does not settle it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is ready to rule upon the point of order. The Chair does not find that any of his predecessors ever made a decision upon this question. Rule XXVII found a place in the Rules of the House for many years up to the Fifty-first Congress, when the portion of it which, by implication at least, forbids the consideration of business coming over from the preceding session during the first six days of the second session of Congress was eliminated and only that part of the rule retained which provided that the committees should continue their business as though there had been no adjournment. The rule as it stands in the Manual was adopted by this Congress.

Whatever may be the effect of the ruling, the Chair feels bound to observe the rule as prescribed by the House, and as this Rule XXVII, by implication at least, provides that business coming over from the first session shall not be considered during these six days, and as the point is made by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. KILGORE] in this case, the Chair must sustain the point of order and hold that the bill called up by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OUTHWAITE] can not now be considered by the House.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Then, Mr. Speaker, it appears that there is nothing for the House to do but to adjourn from day to day.

The SPEAKER. The Committee on Rules will probably try to remove the difficulty by to-morrow.

Mr. MCMILLIN. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the suggestion of the gentleman from Maine [Mr. BOUTELLE], it is sufficient to say that he need have no anxiety about the House being idle to-day, as we are already engaged in the consideration of the printing bill as a special order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Texas having made the point of order, the Chair has felt bound to sustain it; but the Chair will call the attention of the Committee on Rules to the matter, and has no doubt that it will be arranged satisfactorily by to-morrow.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, in view of the decision of the Chair, I ask, on behalf of the Committee on Military Affairs, that it be passed over without prejudice.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

The SPEAKER. As there are only ten minutes of the morning hour remaining, if there be no objection, the Chair will regard the hour as exhausted, so that the House may proceed to its other business.

ASSISTANT CLERK FOR THE COMMITTEE ON MILITARY AFFAIRS.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the desk pertaining to the duties of the Committee on Military Affairs. I find that the assistant clerk was appointed, by resolution, only for the first session of Congress, and as his services are required at this session also, I offered this resolution in the House on Monday and had it referred to the Committee on Accounts, but as that committee has had no meeting I have not been able to obtain a report upon the resolution. It is necessary on account of the great amount of work which comes to the Committee on Military Affairs. Sixteen hundred and fifty-eight House bills have been referred to this committee and ninety-two Senate bills. During the last session four hundred and eighty House bills and fifty-three Senate bills were taken up and reported upon by the committee. As there are seven subcommittees of this committee the assistance of a clerk is required in making reports. This committee also receives more correspondence from individuals that have measures pending before Congress than any other committee of the House. Most of these communications deserve and receive prompt answer.

So far in this Congress it has been necessary to write over nine hundred requests of various kinds to the Secretary of War and other officers of the Departments. In most of these cases reports were received in reply, which had to be properly filed with the bills to which they referred. Very frequently copies of papers and documents before this committee are requested by members or by parties directly interested in the passage of bills. One-seventh of all the bills introduced in this Congress have been referred to the Committee on Military Affairs. Although both of the clerks of this committee were continuously employed over eight hours every day during the session, there was never a day in which work was not piled up before them.

With this statement I think the House must be satisfied that the purpose in asking for this additional clerk is to facilitate the transaction of public business.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That an assistant clerk be allowed to the Committee on Military Affairs during the present session of Congress at a compensation of $6 per day, to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this resolution?

There was no objection.

The question was taken on the adoption of the resolution and the Speaker declared that the "noes" seemed to have it.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I ask for a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 81, noes 18.

So the resolution was adopted.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. PLATT, one of its secretaries, announced that the Senate had passed the bill (S. 2345) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River above New Orleans; in which the concurrence of the House was requested.

It also announced that the Senate had passed the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with deep regret the announcement of the death of the Hon. John G. Warwick, late a Representative from the State of Ohio.

Resolved, That the Secretary communicate this resolution to the House of Representatives.

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, the Senate do now adjourn.

It also announced that the Senate had passed without amendment the bill (H. R. 8868) granting increase of pension to Mary North, a widow of a soldier of the War of 1812 and who is 100 years old.

PRINTING BILL.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, when the House adjourned yesterday the Clerk had begun to read section 77, but the committee desire to offer some amendments to section 76, and I now ask permission to offer the amendment which I send to the desk.

The amendment was read, as follows:

On page 45, after line 339, insert:

"The daily and the permanent RECORD shall bear the same date which shall be of the actual day's proceedings reported therein."

Mr. SAYERS. Mr. Speaker, I wish the gentleman from Tennessee would inform the House whether or not this bill, if it becomes a law, will reduce the expenditures in the printing office.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I have no hesitation in answering the question of the gentleman from Texas, although it is out of order when the House is considering this amendment. I have undertaken, in a hurried way, to make a summary of the reduction that will be made in the cost of public printing if this bill becomes a law, and I intend to comment upon that subject at the conclusion of the reading of the bill. Without stopping to do so now, I undertake to say that in my judgment if this bill becomes law it will reduce the cost of the public printing by from $250,000 to $300,000 a year.

Mr SAYERS In other words, if this bill should become a law there will be a net reduction of expenditure in the printing office, as compared with the present annual expenditure, of at least $250,000?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I say so; and I will enlarge upon that subject at the conclusion of the reading of the bill, and show the reasons why I am of that opinion; but I will not detain the House now to do that.

I want to say in regard to the amendment I have just offered that it simply changes the date of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. At present the daily edition bears date of the day after the proceedings which are recorded; and that date is changed in the permanent RECORD so as to correspond with the actual date of the proceedings. This proposition provides simply that the date in the daily or current RECORD shall be uniform with that in the permanent RECORD; that the date in both cases shall be the actual date of the proceedings. I hope the amendment will be agreed to as it will prevent trouble and confusion.

The question being taken, the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, there is one annual report for which the committee failed to insert a provision in its proper place. As it ought to be provided for, I send to the desk an amendment for that purpose.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 41, after line 239, insert:

"Of the annual list of merchant vessels, for distribution by the Commissioner of Navigation, 3,000 copies."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer the amendment which I send to the Clerk's desk to be read.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 32, at the end of line 25, insert the following:

"Additional copies of the Ephemeris and of the Nautical Almanac extracted therefrom may be ordered by the Secrtary of the Navy for sale: Provided, That all moneys received from such sale shall be deposited in the Treasury to the credit of the appropriation for public printing."

This amendment is intended, Mr. Speaker, to make the bill now under consideration conform to existing law. These books are now printed under the authority of a joint resolution approved February 11, 1880, and this amendment contains the second section of that joint resolution which is for some unaccountable reason omitted in this bill.

Last evening when I offered an amendment in relation to this matter I had made no examination of the subject, but I was thoroughly satisfied that there must be some error on the part of the committee. When I appealed to the chairman of the committee he stated that this bill embraced the present law on the subject.

Mr. RICHARDSON rose.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I can not yield. The gentleman seemed to regard the amendment to increase the number of the Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac from 1,500 to 2,000 which I offered last evening as absurd, and he insisted that this bill conformed to the present law, and he stated that Prof. Newcomb had assured the committee that 1,500 copies was a sufficient number.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I only desired to say that I am willing to accept the amendment if the gentleman will allow me to do so.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. The gentleman can do that after I make my explanation—not before. [Laughter.]

In view of the gentleman's statement that this bill conforms to the present law on this subject, I desire to have read the joint resolution which was approved February 11, 1880, which provides for printing the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac. I have marked the place in the statute.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there shall be printed annually at the Government Printing Office 1,500 copies of the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac and of the papers supplementary thereto, of which 100 shall be for the use of the Senate, 400 for the House of Representatives, and 1,000 for the public service, to be distributed by the Navy Department.

SEC. 2. That additional copies of the Ephemeris of the Nautical Almanac extracted therefrom may be ordered by the Secretary of the Navy for sale: Provided, That all moneys received from such sale shall be deposited in the Treasury to the credit of the appropriation for public printing.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, the present bill embraces the first section of this joint resolution, but it entirely omits the second section, which provides for the publication of an unlimited number of the Ephemeris and of the Nautical Almanac, to be ordered by the Secretary of the Navy and sold at the cost of publication. I hold in my hand the report of the bureau having charge of this matter, and I find that instead of 1,500 copies meeting the demand of the country, the bureau distributed last year, under existing law, 6,458 copies of the Ephemeris and the Almanac. By the way, the bill now before the House seems to treat the two publications as one. If the bill does not, the report of the committee does. This is a mistake. There is one publication, the one I now hold in my hand, the volume entitled The Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac, which is usually bound in cloth and sold at $1 a volume. The American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac is the publication embraced in the bill, 1,500 copies of which are to be printed by the Government. Then they publish another book entitled The American Nautical Almanac, a copy of which I now have in my hand. It is usually bound in paper and sold at retail or by the single book at 50 cents, or to the trade at 30 cents a copy. The larger and more expensive book is the one used in colleges and observatories, while the Nautical Almanac, proper, is the one used in navigation, for which there is a great demand. There is no provision in this bill for printing the latter.

The American Nautical Almanac is extracted from and is a part of the Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac, and can be printed from the same plates at a comparative small expense. This small book which relates exclusively to navigation is used by ships at sea, in our coastwise trade and on all vessels which ply between the different countries of the world. This is the book for which there is the greatest demand, and yet, under this bill not a single copy can be published. The other book is larger and more expensive, and while it contains the tables of the Nautical Almanac and a great deal more, and could be used by sailors for purposes of navigation, it is too large and too inconvenient, as well as too expensive; besides 1,500 copies would not supply the demand, and under this bill it will be impossible for the Secretary of the Navy to make a requisition for the publication of these almanacs as they may be required from time to time, as he has done heretofore. A few months ago he made a requisition for 600 copies because the supply had run out. Some gentlemen said yesterday that they had never heard of this book and that there was no demand for it in their districts. That proves nothing. The report of the bureau which I hold in my hand shows that last year 2,004 copies of The Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac were distributed. This shows that more than 1,500 were called for and disposed of last year. The public demand was 2,004 copies instead of 1,500.

The 2,004 copies which were distributed last year embraced the 1,000 which were authorized to be distributed by the Navy, as is proposed in this bill, and 1,004 which were printed by order of the Secretary of the Navy under the second section of the joint resolution, which can be done again in case my amendment prevails. The 2,004 copies of The Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac were disposed of as follows: 662 copies were sold, 710 were used by the Government, and 632 were distributed free. The Navy Department, by order of the Secretary, caused, under this second section, 2,338 copies of the Nautical Almanac—this smaller book, covered with a paper back—to be printed, using some of the plates of the larger volume, and none of these were given away, but 240 of them were used by the Government and 2,098 were sold. They caused to be printed from the same plates, under this second section of the joint resolution, which I incorporate into my amendment, 897 Atlantic Coast Almanacs and 1,219 Pacific Ocean Almanacs, part of which were sold and part of which were used by our own vessels.

The total sales amounted to $1,553.06, as you will see from this report.

They sold last year 4,002 copies of the Nautical Almanac and 662 copies of the Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac. The Government used 452 copies of the Nautical Almanac and 710 copies of the Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac. So that there were distributed of the Ephemeris and Nautical Almanacs in all 6,458 copies by this Bureau alone, notwithstanding the fact that some gentlemen asserted on the floor yesterday that they never had had a call for a copy for their districts. The $1,533.06 which was derived from these sales reimbursed the Government the cost of the printing and allowed the almanacs to be sold at a very low price. The British Government publishes 10,000 copies of these books, and distributes them every year, and I was astonished when I came to the clause of this bill which proposes to publish only 1,500 copies in this country.

I regarded it then as a mistake, and I so regard it now. I never lived on the seacoast, and never have served on a naval committee, but I am in favor of every sort of provision that is generous towards navigation and the carrying trade. I would provide the largest possible benefit to our merchant marine. I should like to see our ships on every sea, sharing the $200,000,000 or $300,000,000 which is now going into the coffers of Great Britain every year from the carrying trade. I think it is a pickayunish and false economy to attempt to cut down this publication and prevent the Government from furnishing the sailors and the commanders of the vessels of our country with this important and necessary information. I know of no document which should be distributed free in preference to the Nautical Almanac.

Even now the demand for the Nautical Almanac is so great that it is published in the United States by various publishing houses. They take the Government tables and reprint them and undersell the Government.

By this amendment I am simply incorporating into the bill the present statute, which authorizes the Government through the Department to have printed the necessary additional copies to meet such demand as may arise, to be paid for at cost. It authorizes the Navy Department to print the additional copies of both of these works, and sell them at the cost price to cover the expenses of the Government, and thus enable educational institutions and navigators throughout the country to provide themselves with the books. It entails no expense upon the Government whatever and confers a benefit upon navigation, as well as upon the colleges and observatories throughout the country.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I have made my explanation, which I think justifies the amendment I proprosed last night and the amendment I propose now, and I have no more interest in the action of the House in regard to it than other members, and I can not see why we should follow the committee, right or wrong, as seems too often to be the rule in this House.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Let us have a vote.

The question being taken on the amendment of Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR, there were on a division—ayes 30, noes 32.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. No quorum.

The SPEAKER appointed Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR and Mr. RICHARDSON as tellers.

The House again divided; and the tellers reported—ayes 25, noes 17.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I withdraw the point of no quorum.

Mr. RICHARDSON. With the understanding that the amendment is modified, as I understand the gentleman to agree that it shall be modified, so as to provide that the money arising from these sales shall be deposited in the Treasury to the general fund and not to the credit of appropriations for the public printing, I would have no special objection to the amendment.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Illinois. But, Mr. Speaker, the vote has not yet been completed. Other gentlemen wanted to vote.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have no objection to their voting; but we were undertaking to modify the amendment.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Illinois. But I do not think you have a right to compromise the matter in that way.

Mr. BLOUNT. I hope the vote will be taken over again, as there seems to be some misunderstanding.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection, the vote will be again taken by tellers.

There was no objection.

The House having again divided, the tellers reported—ayes 30, noes 73.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. There is no quorum, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I ask for the yeas and nays then, if we can not get a quorum.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 67, nays 123, not voting 139; as follows:

YEAS—67.

Andrew,	Davis,	Hopkins, Ill.	Randall,
Atkinson,	Dingley,	Hull,	Ray,
Baker,	Doan,	Jolley,	Reyburn,
Bergen,	Dolliver,	Lapham,	Scull,
Bingham,	Donovan,	Lind,	Sperry,
Broslus,	English,	Magner,	Stone, C. W.
Butler,	Flick,	Mallory,	Stone, Ky.
Cadmus,	Forney,	McKinney,	Storer,
Cheatham,	Funston,	O'Donnell,	Stout,
Clancy,	Geissenhainer,	O'Neill, Pa.	Taylor, Ill.
Cobb, Ala.	Gorman,	Pattison, Ohio	Taylor, Tenn.
Cockran,	Grout,	Pearson,	Taylor, E. B.
Coombs,	Halvorson,	Perkins,	Taylor, J. D.
Covert,	Hare,	Pickler,	Tracey,
Crosby,	Haynes, Ohio	Pierce,	Waugh,
Cummings,	Hitt,	Post,	Winn.
Curtis,	Hooker, N. Y.	Raines,

NAYS—123.

Abbott,	Capehart,	Geary,	McAleer,
Allen,	Caruth,	Gillespie,	McClellan,
Amerman,	Castle,	Grady,	McKaig,
Antony,	Catchings,	Greenleaf,	McLaurin,
Arnold,	Causey,	Harries,	McMillin,
Bailey,	Clover,	Heard,	McRae,
Bankhead,	Cobb, Mo.	Henderson, N. C.	Meyer,
Barwig,	Coburn,	Holman,	Mitchell,
Beltzhoover,	Cooper,	Hooker, Miss.	Mutchler,
Bentley,	Cowles,	Houk, Ohio	Newberry,
Blanchard,	Cox, N. Y.	Jones,	Norton,
Bland,	Cox, Tenn.	Kribbs,	Oates,
Blount,	Crawford,	Kyle,	O'Ferrall,
Bowman,	Culberson,	Lagan,	Ohliger,
Branch,	Daniell,	Lane,	O'Neil, Mass.
Brawley,	De Armond,	Lanham,	Outhwaite,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Dixon,	Lawson, Va.	Page,
Bretz,	Dockery,	Lawson, Ga.	Parrett,
Brickner,	Edmunds,	Layton,	Patton,
Brookshire,	Elliott,	Lester, Ga.	Payne,
Brunner,	Epes,	Lester, Va.	Pendleton,
Bunn,	Everett,	Little,	Rayner,
Burrows,	Fithian,	Livingston,	Richardson,
Busey,	Fyan,	Long,	Rockwell,
Bynum,	Gantz,	Martin,	Sayers,

Scott,	Stevens,	Turner,	White,
Seerley,	Steward, Ill.	Walker,	Wike,
Shively,	Stockdale,	Warner,	Wilson, Mo.
Snodgrass,	Terry,	Watson,	Wise,
Snow,	Tillman,	Weadock,	Wolverton.
Springer,	Tucker,	Wheeler, Ala.

NOT VOTING—139.

Alderson,	Dalzell,	Johnson, Ohio	Robinson, Pa.
Alexander,	De Forest,	Johnstone, S. C.	Rusk,
Babbitt,	Dickerson,	Kem,	Russell,
Bacon,	Dungan,	Kendall,	Sanford,
Bartine,	Dunphy,	Ketcham,	Shell,
Beeman,	Durborow,	Kilgore,	Shonk,
Belden,	Ellis,	Lewis,	Simpson,
Belknap,	Enloe,	Lockwood,	Sipe,
Boatner,	Enochs,	Lodge,	Smith,
Boutelle,	Fellows,	Loud,	Stahlnecker,
Bowers,	Fitch,	Lynch,	Stephenson,
Breckinridge, Ky.	Forman,	Mansur,	Stewart, Tex.
Broderick,	Fowler,	McCreary,	Stone, W. A.
Brown, Ind.	Goodnight,	McGann,	Stump,
Brown, Md.	Griswold,	McKeighan,	Sweet,
Bryan,	Hall,	Meredith,	Tarsney,
Buchanan, N. J.	Hallowell,	Miller,	Taylor, V. A.
Buchanan, Va.	Hamilton,	Milliken,	Townsend,
Bullock,	Harmer,	Montgomery,	Turpin,
Bunting,	Harter,	Moore,	Van Horn,
Bushnell,	Hatch,	Morse,	Wadsworth,
Byrns,	Haugen,	Moses,	Washington,
Cable,	Hayes, Iowa	O'Neill, Mo.	Wever,
Caldwell,	Hemphill,	Otis,	Wheeler, Mich.
Caminetti,	Henderson, Iowa	Owens,	Whiting,
Campbell,	Henderson, Ill.	Patterson, Tenn.	Willcox,
Cate,	Herbert,	Paynter,	Williams, Mass.
Chipman,	Hermann,	Peel,	Williams, N. C.
Clarke, Ala.	Hilborn,	Powers,	Williams, Ill.
Clark, Wyo.	Hoar,	Price,	Wilson, Ky.
Cogswell,	Hopkins, Pa.	Quackenbush,	Wilson, Wash.
Compton,	Houk, Tenn.	Reed,	Wilson, W. Va.
Coolidge,	Huff,	Reilly,	Wright,
Crain,	Johnson, Ind.	Rife,	Youmans.
Cutting,	Johnson, N. Dak.	Robertson, La.

So the amendment was rejected.

The Clerk announced the following additional pairs:

Until further notice:

Mr. MOORE with Mr. HAUGEN.

For rest of this day:

Mr. BUSHNELL with Mr. LODGE.

Mr. FORMAN with Mr. SMITH.

Mr. ALDERSON with Mr. STEPHENSON.

For this vote:

Mr. CRAIN with Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

The Clerk proceeded with the reading of the bill.

Section 89 was read, as follows:

SEC. 89. No printing or binding shall be done at the Government Printing Office unless authorized by law. Binding for the Departments of the Government shall be done in plain sheep or cloth, except that record and account books may be bound in Russia leather, sheep fleshers, and skivers, when authorized by the head of a Department: Provided, The libraries of the several Departments, the Library of Congress, and of the Naval Observatory may have books for the exclusive use of said libraries bound in half Turkey—

with an amendment as follows:

In line 8, after the word "Congress," strike out the words "and of the Naval Observatory" and insert the words "the libraries of the Surgeon-General's Office, the Patent Office, and the Naval Observatory."

Also in line 11, after the word "Turkey," insert the words "or material no more expensive."

The amendments were agreed to.

Section 101 was read, as follows:

SEC. 101. The libraries of the United States Military Academy and United States Naval Academy are hereby constituted designated depositories of Government publications, and the superintendent of documents shall supply one copy of said publications, in the same form as supplied to other depositories, to each of the libraries—

with an amendment as follows:

In line 1, after the word "libraries," insert the words "of the eight Executive Departments."

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk then completed the reading of the bill.

Mr. RICHARDSON, Mr. ANTONY, and Mr. PICKLER addressed the Chair.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON], in charge of the bill, is recognized.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I will yield to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. ANTONY] for a moment.

Mr. ANTONY. I wish to amend section 74, on page 31, by adding at the end of line 8 the following words:

By such Senators, Representatives, and Delegates.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That could only be done by unanimous consent. I do not object to recurring to it, because I think that is the sense of the proposition already.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] yields to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. ANTONY].

Mr. ANTONY. I ask that this amendment be adopted, in order to make the provisions specific. As it now reads it does not state at the conclusion by whom these documents shall be "otherwise ordered" to be sent out from the folding room, and in my judgment it ought to be specific. This amendment makes it specific. The last clause reads:

All reports or documents to be distributed for Senators, Representatives, and Delegates shall be folded and distributed from the folding rooms unless otherwise ordered.

It does not specify by whom the order is to be made, and this amendment is to cure that defect.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PICKLER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] one question. On page 61, in line 8, I find the words:

That each Senator and Representative shall be entitled to the binding in half morocco, or material no more expensive, of but one copy of each public document to which he may be entitled.

I wish to know whether that will cut off the binding of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. We are now entitled, I believe, to have bound all copies of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD that we do not distribute during the session.

Mr. RICHARDSON. This does not interfere with that right.

Mr. PICKLER. Is that provided for anywhere else?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes, it gives each member the same number which he has now, which he can have sent out separately as the daily RECORD is published, or he can have the RECORDS kept and bound at the close of the session. This does not interfere with that.

Mr. PICKLER. If the RECORD is a public document, this cuts it off, unless it is provided for somewhere else.

Mr. RICHARDSON. If the gentleman will turn to the provision about the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD he will find that each member still has the right to 22 copies, which he can send out in the current daily RECORD form, or he can have them bound at the close of the session. That provision is there.

Mr. STOCKDALE. Mr. Speaker——

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Mississippi propose to offer an amendment?

Mr. STOCKDALE. I am satisfied that an amendment was voted down yesterday upon incorrect information——

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] has the floor.

Mr. STOCKDALE. I desire to ask unanimous consent to recur to a section. I am satisfied that an amendment was voted down yesterday upon incorrect information, and I know the committee do not want to do that if what I say is true. I wish to recur to the section on page 43, in reference to the additional number of CONGRESSIONAL RECORDS allowed to each Representative.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not understand what the gentleman desires.

Mr. STOCKDALE. I want to ask unanimous consent to recur to that section on page 43, in line 294, in reference to the number of RECORDS which shall be given to the members of the House.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman indicate the amendment which he wishes to offer?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Does the gentleman want to recur to that to debate it or to amend it? I do not know what the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. STOCKDALE] desires.

Mr. STOCKDALE. I want to have the vote taken over on that amendment. I am satisfied that it was voted down as the result of incorrect information, and that the House was misinformed yesterday. I know that the committee do not wish to pass over an amendment under such circumstances.

Mr. RICHARDSON. So far as I am concerned, I do not see what the gentleman desires to do. If he will signify what he wishes——

Mr. STOCKDALE. I want to present the amendment that I presented yesterday.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Oh, I shall object to going back to offer an amendment increasing the number of RECORDS by twenty-two to each member. That will be an increase of nearly eight thousand RECORDS.

Mr. STOCKDALE. The gentleman discusses the point before hearing the reasons for asking unanimous consent. I will say that the vote yesterday was taken on incorrect information, as I believe and can show, and that that information was given to the chairman of the committee. If I do not show that, then I will not ask it.

Mr. RICHARDSON. If I understand the request of the gentleman, it is to increase by twenty-two the number of copies of the RECORD assigned to each member.

Mr. STOCKDALE. That is it.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I stated yesterday that the annual cost of the RECORD was about $8 for the long session and $4 for the short session, or $12 for both sessions. To increase the number by twenty-two to each member would make the increase in copies nearly eight thousand; and if it costs nearly $8 for the long session and $4 for the short session, or $12 for the Congress, it would amount to nearly $96,000. But I can not consent to go back to consider different items in the bill.

Mr. STOCKDALE. In reply to that, I want to say that I am able to show, as I think, that the gentleman was incorrect in his statement by $60,000, and that it would not cost over $31,000. If the gentleman wants to insist in his opposition to an amendment voted down upon incorrect information by this House, I can not help it.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I can not consent to go back. We would never get through the bill.

Mr. BROSIUS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the chairman of the Committee on Printing a question. I would like to direct his attention to page 56—the franking privilege. The language used in that clause is general—a general franking privilege on all matter, both public and private. I do not know whether it is the intention of the committee to make it apply to both public and private matter.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Will the gentleman state where it is?

Mr. BROSIUS. On page 56, commencing at line 11, relating to the franking privilege, it says:

Shall have the privilege of sending free through the mails and under their frank, any mail matter to any Government official.

That language embraces private matter as well as official business. It is indifferent to me whether it is one or the other, but I would like to know what the intention of the committee was.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The intention of the committee was not to change the law, but to use the language which now appears in it under which we have the right to send an official communication on official business.

Mr. BROSIUS. It is easily to be seen by the language used that it embraces all matter, both public and private; and if it is intended to limit the privilege to official matter, would it not be well to insert the words: "on official business," or some other equivalent words? That can be done by unanimous consent.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I desire to say, Mr. Speaker, that the language employed here is copied from the present law as found in an appropriation bill at the second session of the Fifty-first Congress. That provision has been construed that the franking privilege could only be used on official business with officers of the Government.

Mr. BROSIUS. Does not my friend see that such a construction does violence to the language; and would it not be better to depart from the old law and make it clear that that is the intention? Can any man be justified under the language used granting this franking privilege to any public officer, for him to write to another to invite him to visit him at his home on any matter?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have no objection to making it "on official business" if the gentleman thinks it is desirable.

Mr. BROSIUS. If the gentleman will do that by unanimous consent I think it will make it clearer, and will probably be better than to leave it as it is now—if he will insert after "mail matter to any Government official" the words "on official business."

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have no objection to that—to insert after "mail matter to any Government official" in line 14, "on matters of official business."

The SPEAKER. By unanimous consent this amendment can be made. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker——

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee has the floor.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, I want to ask the gentleman from Tennessee a question.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I yield to the gentleman from Alabama for a question.

Mr. BANKHEAD. I would like to have the gentleman from Tennessee explain to the House what is meant by the language in line 338, on page 45. The section reads:

"The Public Printer is authorized to furnish to subscribers the daily RECORD at $8 for the long and $4 for the short session, or $1.50 per month payable in advance."

Then it says:

The "usual number" of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD shall not be printed.

Now what does that mean?

Mr. RICHARDSON. The term "usual number" is a technical term when you come to the printing of documents.

Mr. BANKHEAD. That is what I want to know.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Seventeen hundred and thirty of any document is called the "usual number." And when a document is simply ordered printed at the desk by the Speaker, under the rules, the "usual number" is printed, which means 1,730 copies. If the gentleman will turn to the House rules, he will find that they provide how these 1,730 volumes or copies, so printed, shall be distributed. So many go to the document room of the House, so many go the document room of the Senate, so many to the folding room of the House, and so many to the folding room of the Senate, and so on as thus shown.

Mr. BANKHEAD. I understand that now. Now, suppose the subscribers to the RECORD exceed the "usual number?"

Mr. RICHARDSON. The "usual number" simply means 1,730 copies. It does not affect the matter of subscribers to the RECORD. It does not affect the 22 copies to each member of the House and of the number to Senators, but it provides this additional 1,730 copies of the RECORD, the technical "usual number," shall not be printed.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Then I understand this additional publication of 1,730 copies would be in excess of what is required in the distribution?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes; and it says that these shall not be printed of the RECORD. That does not destroy the "usual number" as to other publications. As to all other publications, unless it is otherwise provided in this bill, "the usual number" of copies will be printed.

Mr. BANKHEAD. I am entirely satisfied.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry. I believe this bill is being considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole?

The SPEAKER. The bill is in the House.

Mr. RICHARDSON. But there was no agreement that it should be considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER. Consent was given that the bill should be considered in the House, and that as each section was read, unless objection was made, it should be considered as agreed to.

Mr. HOLMAN. Inasmuch as this is a bill that ought to be considered in Committee of the Whole, my impression was that it was being considered in the House as in committee. I wish to inquire of the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] whether he proposes now to close the debate?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I am perfectly willing to allow any reasonable time for debate. I have no wish to shut off debate at all if gentlemen wish to discuss the bill. I desire to submit some general remarks upon the bill. I did so a year ago, and I wish now simply to repeat some of the things that I then said and to add a little by way of explanation of the provisions of the bill as it stands before the House, modified by the amendments which have been adopted, most of which were reported by the Committee on Printing.

Mr. HOLMAN. I hope the gentleman will consent to a reasonable time for debate. He will probably occupy an hour himself.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Oh no; not over fifteen minutes.

Mr. HOLMAN. Why not allow an hour for debate?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I will agree not to call the previous question within that time if gentlemen desire to debate the bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair understands, then, that the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] is to occupy fifteen minutes and the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN]——

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, Mr. Speaker, I was not undertaking to make any specific agreement as to time. I said that I would agree not to call the previous question until gentlemen should have had an opportunity to discuss the bill. I will, however, agree to a particular time, if gentlemen desire.

Mr. HOLMAN. Say an hour.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Well, I will agree not to call the previous question within an hour.

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to have inserted an amendment which I will send to the desk, providing that all replies upon official business from the various Departments shall include penalty envelopes. From many of the Departments, when they reply to communications from members on official business, they inclose a penalty envelope addressed to the person who has written to the member. Now, if that practice were made general it would be a great convenience to members and would add but little expense.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I ask to have the amendment of the gentleman from Pennsylvania reported.

The amendment was read, as follows:

Insert the following:
"That replies to official communications from Government officials shall contain penalty envelopes."

Mr. RICHARDSON. I see no objection to that.

Mr. HOLMAN. That is the law now.

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. Oh, no. Some of the Departments send such envelopes with their replies, but I do not think the law requires them to do so.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Let that come in after line 14 on page 56.

The amendment was adopted.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the Chair whether there has been an agreement reached as to the time to be allowed for this discussion?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No agreement was made. I merely said that I would allow all the time that gentlemen might desire. I have no disposition to shut off debate.

Mr. BANKHEAD. I think the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] intimated a desire that there should be an hour for debate.

Mr. HOLMAN. Yes; I suggested an hour.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that this bill is in the House, and any gentleman obtaining the floor in his own right will be entitled to an hour, and any gentleman having the floor may demand the previous question at any time, which, if ordered, will bring the House to a vote.

Mr. BANKHEAD. I understand that, but I thought there was an attempt to reach an agreement.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, after conferring with gentleman here, I think it best that I shall ask for the previous question after one hour's debate. I do not want to occupy over fifteen minutes at first, and I will agree not to call the previous question until after the expiration of one hour.

Mr. PICKLER. I object to an hour being fixed at this time as the limit of debate.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] gives notice that he will call the previous question at the expiration of an hour. Unanimous consent is not required.

Mr. STOCKDALE. It seems to me that if the chairman of the committee is willing to let this debate run on a reasonable time other members should not seek to prevent it. I do not think any gentleman is going to abuse the patience of the House; and there is no reason why we should not go on with the discussion in the regular way.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I shall not undertake to limit debate. I shall occupy ten or fifteen minutes and will then yield to any other gentleman who may wish to discuss the measure. I have no disposition to cut off debate.

Mr. WOLVERTON. I desire to call attention to an incongruity in certain provisions of this bill. The eighteenth section makes provision for the appointment of a Public Printer, who, it is provided, "must be a practical printer." By the forty-fifth section the Public Printer is authorized to appoint a chief clerk at a salary of $2,400 a year; and in the thirty-seventh section it is provided—

> In case of the death, resignation, absence, or sickness of the Public Printer the chief clerk of the Government Printing Office shall perform the duties of the Public Printer until a successor is appointed, or such absence or sickness shall cease."

Now, it seems to me that this chief clerk should also be a "practical printer;" and I suggest that an amendment to that effect be inserted in the thirty-seventh section by unanimous consent. I suppose the omission has occurred by mistake. This chief clerk is understood to be the most important official, next to the Public Printer himself, in connection with the Public Printing Office.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The chief clerk, under this bill, will act only temporarily in the place of the Public Printer; and I do not think it necessary that we should impose in his case the same requirement as in the case of the Public Printer. I can not agree to go back for the amendment suggested.

Mr. WOLVERTON. It seems to me there ought to be no objection to this amendment, because, under the provision of section 37, the chief clerk will, at times, perform all the duties of the Public Printer.

Mr. RICHARDSON. He may act in that way for only a single day. During the absence of the Public Printer it is necessary to have some one to sign requisitions or other papers. To meet an emergency of that kind the provision has been inserted in the bill. This chief clerk is not to act permanently at all; for it is provided that whenever it be deemed necessary during the absence or disability of the Public Printer the President may designate an officer to take charge of the printing department.

Mr. WOLVERTON. The gentleman says that this temporary duty may be for a single day; but, sir, it might be for nine months. I call the gentleman's attention to this provision of section 45:

> There shall be appointed by the Public Printer a chief clerk, whose salary shall be $2,400 per annum.

I suggest that there be inserted after the words "chief clerk" the words "who shall be a practical printer."

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not think that this chief clerk should necessarily be a practical printer. We had better leave that matter in the discretion of the Public Printer. I can not agree to go back to make the amendment suggested.

Mr. WOLVERTON. I shall oppose the bill unless that amendment be made. I do not believe in permitting a person who has possibly the qualification of a mere store clerk to perform the duties of the Public Printer, involving matters for which possibly only a practical printer may be competent.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say a few words in explanation of this bill; but I do not care to do so unless I can have the attention of the House. There has been considerable opposition to the bill—opposition founded, in my judgment, upon a total misapprehension of the measure. This bill is the result of a great deal of investigation and labor on the part of the Joint Committee on Printing of the two Houses. They sat several weeks in the spring of 1891, and also in the month of November of that year, calling before them the heads of Departments, chiefs of bureaus, officers of the Printing Office, and other executive officers having charge of printing matters. In this way there was collected the mass of testimony embraced in the document before me, a document of nearly 500 pages. We have endeavored to make this bill contain what a law on the subject of the printing of this Government ought to contain. Our object primarily was to secure economy in the public printing. The complaint has gone forth that we are printing too much; and there has been another complaint equally formidable and well founded, that the distribution of what we print is faulty.

These complaints are just, and our object has been to reduce the volume of the printing and to secure if possible a better method of distribution of the matter printed. I think we have succeeded. We have in this bill endeavored to collate in proper shape all the laws with reference to the subject of printing. In doing so we had to extract provisions from the Revised Statutes, from appropriation bills, and from other laws which have been passed by Congress during the last thirty or forty years. We have endeavored to make the bill harmonious in all its parts. Many years ago the Public Printer was called the Congressional Printer. We have provided that this officer shall be called by his proper designation, the Public Printer; and we have sought to define clearly his duties. In the preparation of the bill we have in many instances adopted the language of the Revised Statutes without any change whatever. Possibly three-fourths of the different sections of the bill make no change of existing law. We have to a large extent simply collated existing provisions and embodied them in this bill in order that there might be a uniform and perfect printing law as nearly as we could make it.

If a member of the House was to undertake now to find out the different laws on printing he would have to go through possibly a dozen different volumes to do so, extending back, as I have said, some twenty, thirty, or fifty years. We have endeavored in this bill to make this a code or a system by which any gentleman can see at once what the law is and ascertain what it authorizes or prohibits.

Now, I have been asked to state what we do in the way of economizing in the formation of this measure. I do not think that that is the prime object of the bill; yet there are large economies provided for, or reductions in the cost of the public printing. This applies not alone to Congress, but to the various Departments of the Government; and I want to say this for the information of the House, that last year there was expended for public printing in round numbers the sum of $3,600,000.

Of this vast sum not exceeding $225,000 was expended upon concurrent resolutions passed by Congress during its session. So that when the complaint comes, as complaints have come, to the Committee on Printing, that we are printing too much, I want to state that if the Committee on Printing had failed to report a solitary resolution to print anything during that Congress there would have been expended $3,400,000 in printing. You may economize here if you choose; you may cut down the amounts ordered to be printed by Congress; but unless you strike at the great bulk of the printing, unless you limit the Departments in their power to order printing, you will not and can not economize. You may reduce the number printed by order of Congress, or abolish the printing here altogether, and you will only cut out of the total bulk the sum of $225,000 of the $3,600,000 annually expended for printing.

The committee have endeavored to economize all along the line. We have endeavored to cut down the number of documents authorized to be printed in the Departments, not ruthlessly or recklessly, but we called the heads of the Departments before us, have taken their sworn testimony, have considered that testimony, in which they fix the smallest number of documents that they can get along with in each case, and we acted accordingly. We have endeavored to have them agree to get along on the smallest possible number.

I will not undertake to say, Mr. Speaker, what the total amount of saving in the public printing will be if this measure becomes a law. My friend from Texas asked this morning, during the debate on a paragraph of the bill, how much in round numbers it would reduce the cost of the public printing. I ventured to answer that under the bill it would possibly amount to a reduction of from two hundred and fifty to three hundred thousand dollars. And I mean that. That is to say, there is a reduction of actual expenditures to that extent. But, sir, it goes beyond that. We start out with a reduction like that; but if this bill passes and goes upon the statute books as the law of the land it will eventually result in a very much larger annual reduction. It will methodize the printing; it will systemize it. It will prevent the duplication of documents in many instances, and will in every possible way guard the public against unnecessary expenditures in that line.

I may cite some of these reductions as I go along. Some of them are as follows, and I cite a few simply to indicate the line on which the committee proceeded. Take the report of our Commercial Relations, the number of volumes has been reduced from 5,000 to 3,000 annually. Of the volumes of Foreign Relations the reduction is from 6,000 to 3,000. The reduction in the Report on Ethnology—the annual report—is 7,500 volumes. That is a valuable publication. It costs probably from $2 to $3 a volume to print it, and therefore there is a reduction of some $15,000 in that item alone. Of the report on Fish and Fisheries we make a reduction of 3,000 volumes. The report of the Civil Service Commission we reduce from 31,000 to 23,000. The report of the Commissioner of Education from 44,000 to 35,000. The report of the Geological Survey from 18,500 to 12,000.

The Interstate Commerce Report, which has heretofore averaged from 6,000 to 21,000 in different years, is fixed annually at 15,000 copies. The report of the Academy of Sciences is reduced from 5,000 to 1,500 copies. The memoirs of the Academy of Sciences shows a reduction of 2,000 copies. In the Smithsonian Report there is a reduction of from 19,000 to 10,000 copies. In the Statistical Abstract a reduction of 4,000 copies. Of the report of the commissioners or directors of the Pacific railways we have reduced the number to 1,500 copies. The abridgment is reduced from 35,000 to 12,000. The Senate and House Journals are also largely reduced, but the exact number I have not now before me.

These, Mr. Speaker, are some of the annual publications or reports in which these reductions have been made. The committee puts a limit on the heads of Departments as to the number of annual reports printed, and provides expressly what number they shall print.

Now, Mr. Speaker, there is another matter to which I wish to call attention. If gentlemen want to go on in the way we have been going on, why they will vote against this bill; but if they want these reforms instituted, they will vote for the bill.

Now, I want to call your attention to one reform that we institute in this bill, in the distribution of what is called "the reserve." The Clerk of the House, from the document room of the House, distributes to members, and has been distributing to them for years, the reserve, as it is called; that is to say, one copy, bound in full sheep, of every publication made by this Government, whether the member wants it or not. These documents are sent out months and months after the session terminates, and the member has to take them and store them away whether he wishes them or not. This bill provides that that reserve shall be held in an unbound condition by the Public Printer, to the number of 500 copies, and that they may be bound and sent to members, if members desire them.

The sworn testimony of the foreman of printing is before us here, and the estimate which he makes is that not one-third of this "reserve" would be called for by members if it was left optional with them to take the books or not. Now that alone will make a saving to the Government, if only one-third of this reserve is called for by members, of $86,000 in a Congress. Yet every Representative and every Senator will get every document he wishes. This $86,000 has been expended by every Congress for the last ten or fifteen years. Why and for what cause? I can not answer. The books are not wanted, but the law is imperative. The Public Printer must bind them in the best style and the most costly binding. He must cart them up here to the Capitol and turn them over to the Clerk of the House and the Secretary of the Senate, and those officers must send them out to Senators and Members.

Now, I know gentlemen who have taken the trouble to look at these books when sent to them will agree with me that three-fourths of them are not needed or wanted in any gentleman's library. If you vote down this bill, this $86,000 for every Congress will be put upon the country as an expense, as has been done for years past. This bill provides that every man shall get what he wants. It does not cut him off; but he must say that he wants the book, and he can get it in that way. There is in this simple item the immense saving of $86,000 in each Congress. Vote down this bill and you continue this waste of $86,000.

Another provision in the bill changes the mode of binding, which applies possibly to 100,000 volumes, and the difference will be 25 cents per volume, or $25,000 per year, the mere difference of the cost of binding which this bill provides.

Mr. PICKLER. What is that change?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Section 55 changes the binding of such publications from half Russia to full sheep. Pass this bill and you save that $25,000 each year.

Now, I have already spoken, Mr. Speaker, of the better distribution of documents. I wish to call attention to another matter. For ten or twenty years, or longer, there have been accumulating in the various Departments of this Government and in the basement of the Capitol here, untold tons of printed matter, some of the volumes being very expensive. I can not undertake to tell the House and the country how many copies there are, but the proof before the committee led us to believe that if you would take the extra or surplus volumes in the various Departments, which are not needed, and which they want to turn over to the members of Congress to be distributed among their constituents, and take the number in the basement of the Capitol, that do not belong to members' quotas now—for I am not speaking of books that have ever been apportioned to members, but of books that have not been apportioned, and that are in the basement of the Capitol and in these various Departments—over 700,000 or more copies of books can be turned over to the members of Congress for distribution from this source.

There are in the basement here probably half a million or more copies. One gentleman, a dealer in such books, in this city, came before the committee and testified that some of these books are worth $25 a volume, and that he could sell them for that. I put you in possession of a fact when I tell you that these books are to-day rotting and molding. They ought to be sent out to the people of the country. If you go down in the basement you will find what I tell you is true, that these books are rotting on our hands. If you wish them to remain there and so rot and mold, vote against this bill.

Mr. COWLES. Why have not these books been apportioned?

Mr. RICHARDSON. They do not belong to any member's quota and never did. You distribute all the books you get, but you do not get these, and they have just been accumulating there from time to time.

Mr. COWLES. Is it not also because a number of members, representing city constituents, do not need these books and do not send for them?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No; I am not speaking of books that have ever been put to the credit of any member.

Mr. COWLES. These are remnants?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Remnants; books from the Departments and from the committee rooms of the two Houses of Congress that have been sent here for storage, that have never been assigned to any member.

Mr. BANKHEAD. I would like to ask the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] if these books that he alludes to in the basement of the Capitol could not be apportioned to members and distributed under the present organization of the House, without reference to this new bureau?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Well, Mr. Speaker, it has not been done. This committee have simply devised a means to try to get rid of them. If you ask me whether it could be done in some other way, I say yes, it could be done, but it never has been done, and we have simply tried to get at them in the best way we could devise.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Have we ever had before a bureau of this character?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Why, certainly. We have now a bureau in the Interior Department called the Bureau of Documents. That bureau is abolished by this bill.

Mr. BANKHEAD. I understand that.

Mr. RICHARDSON. It goes out of existence, and we simply propose to make an officer of this House and of the Senate take charge of these books and distribute them among members of Congress. That is what this bill does.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Then you admit that it could be done under the present organization?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I say it can not be done unless you make provision to have it done.

Mr. BANKHEAD. If they were apportioned to the members?

Mr. RICHARDSON. By authorizing it under the law. That is what I am trying to get at.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Do you not think you had better do it in this bill?

Mr. RICHARDSON. The committee did not think so. The committee thought this the better way to do it.

Mr. BANKHEAD. I hope the House will think that the better plan.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That may be the better plan; but the committee did the best they could with all the lights before them. I am not wedded to any plan; but there is no law under which we or anyone has undertaken to do that; and the committee thought this the best way to get these books out.

Mr. OATES. Will the gentleman from Tennessee allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes, sir.

Mr. OATES. Is not the effect of the bill in reference to the documents simply this: To allow the folding room to remain in the Senate and the House as now, except that the distributor of the documents practically takes the place of the one who now performs that function, to a limited extent, in the Interior Department, except that the distributor has enlarged powers to look up documents that are not cared for by members and care for them properly and distribute them?

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is it in substance. Now, Mr. Speaker, I propose to address myself to the consideration of this provision of the bill, if I can have the attention of members.

Mr. COWLES. Does this abolish our own document room?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No. I will come to the question asked by the gentleman from North Carolina.

There is an objection, as I stated, to this bill. That objection—and I ask the attention of members to it—one of the main objections to this bill comes from second-hand book-dealers in the city of Washington. They have in their employ employés of this House, who whisper in the ears of members that this bill is going to injure the patronage of this House and its members.

I tell you I know what I say when I state that the second-hand book-dealers are afraid that this bill will break up or materially injure their business in the city of Washington. I speak what I know when I say it. There are men in this city who make a living off Government books sold at little junk stores in this city, and how they get them no man knows. This committee undertook to find that out. We were able to trace but one member of either House who had sold his books. We showed that he did sell them and got the money for them after he went out of Congress. But in some way these book-dealers sometimes get these books before the members of Congress get them.

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Tennessee if it ever suggested itself to him or his committee that members of Congress sometimes trade books or documents for other documents?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Oh, they do.

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. And for that reason they go to these persons whom he calls second-hand book-dealers. I have at times found it extremely convenient in the years that I have been here to be able to go to some second-hand book-dealer and give some of my documents and get important documents that he might have and which he has received by trading with other members for those they did not want.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have no doubt there are frequently such cases of honest exchange. This bill provides for the exchange of these documents through this officer; and it seems to me that that would be much better.

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. We exchange documents for those which our constituents want, and which they have written for; and I think it would be much better if members of Congress were to send books and documents only to those constituents who write for documents and not make a list of so many constituents to whom they send documents, some of which they never read.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Now, Mr. Speaker, on the duties of this officer I want to comment but a moment. Some gentlemen have said to me that they understood that the right of members in sending out their documents were being interfered with. That objection was urged last spring when this bill was up, and a great many members stated that they voted against it because they understood that it did interfere with the right of a member to send out his own books. Now, I want to read that section, and if any gentleman has an idea in his mind that his right to control his books is interfered with, I want him to rise after this section is read.

The section read as follows——

Mr. BROSIUS. What section?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Section 62, page 24. After providing for this officer it says:

He shall have general supervision of the distribution of all public documents, and to his custody shall be committed all documents subject to distribution, excepting those printed for special use of the Executive Departments.

That is the first exception. Documents printed for the Secretary of State or for the Secretary of Agriculture or for other Secretaries would not pass into his hands.

The next exception is:

Those printed for the use of the two Houses of Congress, which shall be delivered to the folding rooms of said Houses and distributed or delivered ready for distribution to Members and Delegates upon their own order by the superintendents of the folding rooms of the Senate and of the House.

Now, is that going to interfere with any gentleman's control of his documents? Do not vote against this bill, gentlemen, upon the idea that it takes from you the right to control your documents. It does nothing of the kind. It does provide for a clerk to the Joint Committee on Printing who shall distribute the tons of public documents now accumulated in the basement of this Capitol and also those that may be sent from the Departments as not being required there. And it provides that he shall distribute them upon lists furnished by the members of Congress themselves and to the persons they designate. It does not take away any rights from members, nor does it interfere with their rights.

My friend from Indiana (Mr. HOLMAN) thinks that the bill creates a new bureau. It abolishes the existing bureau in the Interior Department; it does away with one bureau of this Government and it simply provides that our documents shall be distributed by an agent of our own, the clerk of one of our committees. The Congress will have absolute control of that committee and of that clerk in the discharge of their duties. We need not give this official more assistants than he absolutely needs. We abolish the bureau in the Interior Department, as I have already said, and permit this officer to employ such clerks as he may actually require for the discharge of the duties of his office. That is all.

Now, Mr. Speaker, let me say in conclusion that this bill is called for by all the librarians in the United States, and they are the most intelligent set of men as to the question of the distribution of Government literature. They have studied it more than any other class of people in the country. They believe that this bill provides a medium through which the Government publications will reach all the people of this country. The Committee on Printing were desirous of finding a medium through which the largest possible number of the people could be reached, and they believe that end can be attained through the provisions of this bill. I do not care to discuss the bill further. I am perfectly content to take a vote now, or I am ready to answer any questions which any gentleman may desire to ask.

Mr. COWLES. One argument against the bill that I have heard among members is that the Senate is to have the sole appointment of these proposed officials.

Mr. RICHARDSON. This clerk is to be appointed by the Joint Committee on Printing, which consists of three members of the Senate and three members of the House. In the Senate two of the members of the committee are Republicans and one is a Democrat; of the House committee two members are Democrats and one a Republican; so that politically the committee would be a tie, as was suggested yesterday.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Has the gentleman's committee taken into consideration the question of the propriety of abolishing the free distribution of public documents altogether beyond what may be necessary to supply the needs of Congress and of public libraries; sending out lists to the different post-offices letting the people know what documents are published by the Government and selling them at some reduced rate, but entirely abolishing their free distribution?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes; the committee considered that question a good deal, and they came to the conclusion that Congress was not quite ready to do away with the free distribution of public documents.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Perhaps the next Congress will get up to that standard. [Laughter.]

Mr. KRIBBS. Between the expiration of this Congress and the convening of the next there will be no House printing committee. Now, will the Senate committee have control of these matters during that time?

Mr. RICHARDSON. They would have control when there was no House committee.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, my friend from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] has presented the case for this bill very well, and, considering the magnitude of the bill and the multitude of subjects involved, he has presented it with great clearness. There is but one feature of the bill that I am not satisfied with, and that is the one which provides for this new bureau, this superintendent of public documents. That creates a new office. That this bill should receive the approval of those in charge of public libraries is not at all remarkable, for I called my friend's attention to an extraordinary power that is conferred upon this superintendent in that connection. It is found on page 29 of the bill. It provides that—

All documents delivered to the superintendent of documents from accumulations thereof in the Executive Departments—

And those accumulations are very large, as has been stated by the gentleman from Tennessee—or received from officers of the two Houses—

That embraces the great mass of documents to which my friend from Tennessee has referred, many of which are very valuable publications—shall be distributed by him first to public and school libraries, etc.

This is not under any supervision whatever, not even under the supervision of the Joint Committee on Printing. Now, we have not imposed, and we do not even by this bill impose, any severe restraints upon the Departments in respect to their publications. They publish documents, sometimes, with a view to delivery many years ahead. At every session of Congress almost every general appropriation bill contains provisions authorizing publications by some of the Departments, and even where we provide that a given number of copies shall be for the use of Senators and Representatives we always place a large number at the disposal of the head of the Department.

Take for instance the Commissioner of Agriculture who, I believe, has control of one-third of all the agricultural reports which are printed. The distribution of this vast accumulation of documents, many of which, especially those published by the Treasury Department and Interior Department, are of special value, is placed under the control of this superintendent of documents. How is he to distribute them? I ask the House to observe the extraordinary powers conferred upon him. It is provided that these accumulations of documents—

Shall be distributed by him, first, to public and school libraries for the purpose of completing broken sets.

That is a very good provision.

Second, to public and school libraries that have not been supplied with any portion of such sets.

Now, there is a very great power of discrimination conferred upon this officer. There is no restriction or limitation as to the distribution to these public and school libraries; yet we all know that even with this vast body of documents, numbering 750,000 to 1,000,000, there will not be enough to supply all persons who may want them.

And, third, to other parties, which persons and libraries shall be named to him by Senators, Representatives, and Delegates in Congress; and in this distribution the superintendent of documents shall see that as far as possible an equal allowance is made to each member of Congress.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Of what documents is the gentleman now speaking?

Mr. HOLMAN. The classes of documents referred to in the the provision on page 28—all documents at present in charge of the several Executive Departments and not required for official use; and also all documents stored in and about the Capitol other than those belonging to the quota of members of Congress and Delegates and to the Senate library. These various documents are to be delivered, under this bill, to this superintendent of documents for distribution and sale.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I call the gentleman's attention to the fact that the provision to which he refers relates simply to the surplus not distributed by the heads of Departments; for in section 95, page 59, it is provided that the "Government publications printed for or received by the Executive Department, whether for official use or for distribution, shall be distributed by a competent person detailed to such duty in each Department by the head thereof." In other words, such distribution is to be made in the same manner in which it has always been done. But when there is a surplus which the heads of Departments can not distribute, they are to be put into the hands of this officer that he may supply volumes for the completion of broken sets. That is all there is in the provision.

Mr. HOLMAN. I have said that so far as regards the completion of broken sets the bill is right enough; but my friend must bear in mind that this vast accumulation of which he speaks—and I think it must be conceded that it is greatly to our discredit that this accumulation should have been allowed—the distribution of this vast mass of books is controlled by the provision now under consideration; and to the extent that it authorizes this officer to discriminate among public and school libraries of the United States, I submit the provision goes a little farther than any power we have heretofore conferred.

The third mode provided for getting rid of these volumes—that is, by sending them out to persons or libraries designated by Senators, Members, and Delegates—is all right. But the discretion to which I have just referred—the power to discriminate among the various public libraries—should not be, I think, conferred upon this officer.

I now come to a more important consideration connected with this measure. My friend from Tennessee is under some misapprehension in regard to the officer who has been referred to in the Interior Department. That office has existed for many years. I can remember myself that over thirty years ago Mr. Dillon, who, I believe, was a fourth-class clerk—a very accomplished gentleman, who wrote a history of Indiana which has become the text-book in the schools of our section of the Union—was the librarian. As I understand—if I am not correct I hope some gentleman will correct me—the gentleman now at the head of the distributing force in the Interior Department is this librarian, who will continue in office, retaining the present salary of $2,500. But the clerks and employés under him are, by the provisions of this bill, placed under the control of the superintendent here provided for. The chief, however, of that little bureau in the Interior Department will remain.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Under this bill that bureau is abolished.

Mr. HOLMAN. No, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The office of superintendent of documents in the Interior Department is abolished, and if the Department is still to have a librarian I do not know what use it will have for him. This bill does not provide for that.

Mr. HOLMAN. This bill does not abolish the office of librarian, but transfers the clerks and employés to the control of this new officer here in the Capitol. That is what the bill accomplishes.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I refer the gentleman to section 67.

Mr. HOLMAN. I have stated the matter correctly, have I not?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Substantially; but the gentleman calls the officer a librarian; we do not.

Mr. HOLMAN. You will find that this librarian has been there for years and will remain there—the librarian, as I understand, of the Interior Department. The distribution of these public documents, now under the control of the respective Departments, is by this bill placed under the charge of this new bureau.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Not at all. We do not interfere with the present distribution of documents by the Departments. We still allow the Departments to distribute their own documents.

Mr. HOLMAN. We shall still have these librarians in the several Departments, though their duties will be diminished.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Then you can reduce the salaries.

Mr. HOLMAN. That would be difficult.

Mr. RICHARDSON. You can do that in your appropriation bill.

Mr. HOLMAN. That is not my experience. Salaries go up by the same law that gravitation goes down. [Laughter.]

Mr. RICHARDSON. But, seriously, Mr. Speaker, I want to call the attention of my friend to the fact that this abolishes the office of superintendent of documents in the Interior Department. This officer will go if this bill becomes a law, and the office is abolished. If the Department needs a force to distribute the documents belonging to the special bureaus in the Department, they have the right to assign clerks to that duty just as any of the others have. But the superintendent of documents is abolished. The office no longer exists.

Mr. HOLMAN. To what page of the bill does the gentleman refer when he says that office is abolished?

Mr. RICHARDSON. To page 27 of the bill, section 67.

Mr. HOLMAN (reading).

SEC. 67. Upon the appointment of the superintendent of documents, the office of superintendent of documents in the Department of the Interior shall be abolished.

Yes, that is correct. But you do not abolish the librarian of the Department of the Interior.

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, nor any of the other Departments, if you call the clerk assigned to that duty a librarian.

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, that is the same office. I admit that if you get rid of this vast body of employés in the libraries of the Departments you accomplish very much.

Mr. RICHARDSON. If we abolish the office of superintendent of documents and leave the librarian, as you call him, you will then only have such an official as they now have in the State and other Departments. We do not undertake to discharge that office in all the Departments. But this office of superintendent of documents in the Department of the Interior is abolished. The distribution of documents in the Departments is under their own control, as the gentleman knows.

Mr. HOLMAN (reading from the bill):

The clerks and employés of said office shall be transferred to the office of the superintendent of documents herein established, and shall remain until their sucessors shall be appointed: Provided, That their salaries shall continue to be paid by the disbursing officer of the Department of the Interior from the appropriations already made, until other provision for said salaries shall be made. The superintendent of documents shall appoint all employés of his office authorized by Congress.

Now, here is a very important provision:

The superintendent of documents shall appoint all employés of his office authorized by Congress.

I do not know the number of employés in that little affair up there in the Interior Department, but I think that there are some five or six. I have been told—I did not get the information from the Department, however—that the distribution by the librarian or superintendent of documents of the Interior Department of the last census report, the Tenth Census, has cost us over $10,000. Here is a single publication, I admit a very large one, but the statement was made to me by a gentleman generally well informed on such subjects that the cost of that distribution had reached $10,000.

Now, I will agree at once that if there could be any possible assurance that this bureau would not have double or treble or quadruple the number of employés that they have now in the Interior Department in the next twenty years, I should be much inclined to waive the grave objections I have to this feature of the bill. But you will never get rid of that bureau, nor of the expenditures that are entailed upon us by it, by any such provision as this.

Mr. BOUTELLE. But does not the gentleman from Indiana recognize the result of the recent elections as such an assurance? [Laughter.]

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, that is an assurance of course of economy, I agree, but it hardly ever reaches both Houses of Congress.

Mr. DINGLEY. But I thought you had the assurance. [Laughter.]

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, we are hoping so. We are indulging in the belief, and if grace should smile on us hereafter as heretofore that would be the result.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I was only expressing my surprise that the gentleman should manifest any doubt on that point.

Mr. HOLMAN. I did it subject to limitations, of course. [Laughter.]

Mr. Speaker, I feel that I should not occupy time that other gentlemen desire to occupy in the further discussion of this bill. I should have been glad to have time to analyze the measure in such manner as to show the extraordinary powers conferred by it all along the line. I do not complain of the matter of appointment, for I do not see any better. But the very first power conferred upon this official is in the following words:

He shall have general supervision of the distribution of all public documents, and to his custody shall be committed all documents subject to distribution, excepting those printed for the special official use of the Executive Departments.

Now, that exception means all the publications made by any of the Government Departments, for it is a fact that all of them publish them, as, for instance, the War Department publishes a very valuable work. There are also important works published in the Treasury Department and the State Department, especially the State Department.

Now, those works that they publish will still be distributed under that provision, just as they are now. Let me inquire of my friend from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] when it is, how long after the accumulation of books in an executive department, before the books are to be transferred to the superintendent provided for in this bill? What time must elapse?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Just as soon as they are not needed by the head of a Department he transfers them. When he finds he does not need them, he gets rid of his surplus by turning it over to be distributed by members of Congress.

Mr. HOLMAN. It seems to me that there ought to be some thing more definite than that. In the case of a valuable book, for instance, there is a pride in keeping on hand such a book with a view to exchanges. Such books will be kept on hand there for years and years, and you will find in the State Department, and I know in the Treasury Department and in the War Department also, works that have been there for a great many years, used for exchanges from time to time with other nations, and occasionally copies given to some scientific gentleman who desires to obtain possession of them. I do not think any books will come from these Executive Departments.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The gentleman asked me a question. I was going to say in reply that at first the committee fixed a limitation of one year; but we concluded, upon the statement of some of the Secretaries, that they could not always decide in a year whether a certain document would be a surplus document or not, and they preferred to have it left in their discretion. They desire to get rid of them as soon as they can, and as soon as they become convinced that they are surplus they will transfer them and get them out of the way. The gentleman says no books will come. I can state to the gentleman, as a case in point, that recently 5,000 volumes were sent from the White House to the superintendent of documents to be distributed.

Mr. HOLMAN. I should not wonder at that at all.

Mr. RICHARDSON. From one place, from the President, 5,000 copies, that he considered surplus, were sent down.

Mr. HOLMAN. And there are many thousand copies of the last census still in the Interior Department, and such works as those the Department will not get rid of; but they are comparatively valueless. Who cares now to send out a report of the Tenth Census? Yet there is a large accumulation of them. I have been requested over and over again to furnish additional lists for the sending out of the Appendix, on account of the large number on hand, encumbering the rooms that ought to be appropriated for some other purpose.

The sixty-fourth section of the bill is an important one, perhaps most important in some respects. I beg leave to read it.

The superintendent of documents is also charged with the sale of public documents, except as herein otherwise provided.

Before I read further I wish to call the attention of my friend from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] to the fact that a very interesting report ought to have been made to the House, it seems to me, as to how these books in such vast numbers get into the hands of the old book-store establishments; for I have received—and I presume other gentlemen have also received during this vacation—three separate notifications by postal card, stating that the sender had in one case 800 volumes of the very valuable report that has been referred to so often in the House, especially by the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. PICKLER], the report on the Diseases of the Horse. One establishment had 800 copies, and the other two mentioned other numbers that they had for sale. Now, I do not know that my friend [Mr. RICHARDSON] received any such notice as this.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I did receive such a notice, but it stated that the sender had 216 or 208 copies—the exact quota of a member—of the report on the Diseases of the Horse; and I desire to state that we summoned the very man who sent that postal card before the committee, and we have his testimony in this report, which the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] can read if he wishes. He will find a statement showing exactly where they came from and all about it. We traced that down.

Mr. HOLMAN. That was only one instance. Section 64, to which I have referred, reads:

The superintendent of documents is also charged with the sale of public documents, except as herein otherwise provided—

I believe there is no provision in this bill for the sale of documents by the Public Printer—and all documents hitherto published, for sale by other officers of the Government, shall be turned over to him.

That of course would embrace the Public Printer.

Now, he has charge of the whole of this vast accumulation of books, which are to be subject to sale. I do not see exactly how they are to be distributed. The distribution, in the first place, is to be to the libraries, then to the public schools, and then to be distributed under the direction of the members of the House and Senate. So that I do not understand exactly how they are to be distributed.

And all documents hitherto published, for sale by other officers of the Government shall be turned over to him. He is hereby authorized to sell any publication of the Government at cost.

Now, I must say again to my friend from Tennessee that that does not seem to be a matter that should be committed to this officer. The 10 per cent additional which has always been charged heretofore for publications, made by the Public Printer, was intended to meet incidental expenses that remotely enter into the actual cost.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Oh, no.

Mr. HOLMAN. Then what was it for?

Mr. RICHARDSON. For profit—10 per cent additional on cost.

Mr. HOLMAN. I do not think that the Government intended to make any speculation.

Mr. RICHARDSON. It says 10 per cent on cost.

Mr. HOLMAN. Here are the paper and the plates and the amount of work done and all that; but there are other incidental matters that you can not take into account, and that 10 per cent was simply intended to cover that; but in this bill you allow the sale at simply cost and nothing else.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Well, I submit, Mr. Speaker, if what the gentleman states is incidental to the cost, it is put on by this officer for incidentals—it is part of the cost.

Mr. HOLMAN. It may be so small incidentally that you can not account for it——

Mr. DINGLEY. That is "incidental protection."

Mr. HOLMAN. By way of preventing the Government from sustaining any loss in furnishing books to private persons—

He is hereby authorized to sell any publication of the Government at cost—

Is he required to give bond? I believe not—as estimated by the Public Printer, and based upon printing from stereotype plates, excepting old and rare volumes, which shall be sold at an appraised value, to be determined by the superintendent of documents, the Public Printer, and the Librarian of Congress.

Now, here, as to one matter—

Excepting old and rare volumes.

Except as to that one matter, he has placed under his control, in connection with the Public Printer and the Librarian of Congress, vast powers, far beyond those conferred on that board—conferred upon a single man and only subject to the supervision of Congress.

Mr. PICKLER. To sell at private sale, or anywhere he likes.

Mr. COX of Tennessee. And not under bond?

Mr. HOLMAN. I do not say so. I simply made that suggestion.

Mr. RICHARDSON. He is not going into the sale of books. He is not a bookseller.

Mr. HOLMAN (reading):

But only one copy of any document shall be sold to the same individual, except in the case of libraries or schools—

Now, why sell to libraries or schools when this very bill provides for distribution to them?

by which additional copies are desired for separate departments thereof. All moneys received from the sale of documents shall be covered into the Treasury monthly and placed to the credit of the general fund for public printing.

I hope my friend from Tennessee will ask unanimous consent, at least, that that be stricken out.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I wished to do that yesterday, and you did not agree to it.

Mr. HOLMAN. You thought a discrimination should be made here, and now you perceive that this section does not place the publication for sale as it has been heretofore by the Public Printer. That was a misapprehension, because this language is so broad that it is quite obvious that this superintendent was to receive under his control the sale of all the works, no matter who has heretofore had the power of sale. Who has heretofore been selling these works?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, it does not take away the power from the Public Printer.

Mr. HOLMAN. It permits this superintendent to sell them at cost.

Mr. RICHARDSON. It does not take the power away from the Public Printer.

Mr. HOLMAN. It says the "superintendent of documents is also charged with the sale of public documents, except as otherwise herein provided."

Mr. RICHARDSON. It does not take away from the Public Printer the right of sale.

Mr. HOLMAN. In this bill you say that the Public Printer shall sell.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Oh, yes; this provision simply allows the superintendent to sell a book which may be in his possession, and get the cost of it.

Mr. HOLMAN. Then the sixty-fifth section provides that this superintendent shall—prepare and publish a comprehensive index of public documents beginning with the Fifty-second Congress upon such a plan as shall be approved by the Joint Committee on Printing.

Upon a plan. It is only the plan they have to approve. How many clerks are required there for the performance of that duty?

And the Public Printer shall, immediately upon its publication, deliver to him a copy of each and every document printed by the Government Printing Office, and the head of each of the Executive Departments, bureaus, and offices of the Government shall deliver to him a copy of each and every document issued or published by such Department, bureau, or office, not confidential in its character.

Mr. RICHARDSON. What was the interrogation of the gentleman? I did not hear. On what plan will you have the index made?

Mr. HOLMAN. It was not an interrogatory. It was a statement that what you provided here was a plan, and that all else was left to this superintendent.

Mr. BOUTELLE. How can the work be done without a plan?

Mr. HOLMAN. Oh, the plan here is very simple. The provision is for a "comprehensive index," and we all know what that generally means. We have had some experience of what it costs to prepare an index, even though it is not very comprehensive. [Laughter.]

Mr. RICHARDSON. Does the gentleman know that there is no index like the one provided for in this bill now in existence?

Mr. HOLMAN. No.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is the fact. There is no general index of Government publications.

Mr. HOLMAN. There is an index that is sufficient for all practical purposes, an index which was a long time in preparation, and which cost a large amount of money.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I suppose the index the gentleman speaks of is the one that was prepared under the direction of the Committee on Appropriations, and which is still in manuscript, never having been printed. After paying a man $5,000 a year for about eight years I believe, to prepare it, they never had it printed.

Mr. HOLMAN. That is not the only index. We have any number of them. That is a "comprehensive" index, but it is not of sufficient value to justify its printing, although it was several years in course of preparation. I read further from this section of the bill:

And the head of each of the Executive Departments, bureaus, and officers of the Government shall deliver to him a copy of each and every document issued or published by such Department, bureau, or office not confidential in its character. He shall also prepare and print in one volume a consolidated index of Congressional documents and shall index such single volumes of documents as the Joint Committee on Printing shall direct.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I would occupy too much time and would weary the House if I were to discuss this matter in detail, so I must desist, but I greatly indulge the fear and now express the apprehension that this is very unwise legislation. I believe that under the other provisions of this bill a very considerable amount of money will be saved in the printing office. I trust the estimate of the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] will prove to be substantially correct, and that we shall save between $200,000 and $300,000 by a reduction in the mass of our public printing, but what about this bureau? What is that to cost?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Bureau! One clerk to the Committee on Printing.

Mr. HOLMAN. Why, you give him five or six clerks to begin with.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Not at all. He can not have any without the approval of Congress. We give him no new clerks.

Mr. HOLMAN. Why, yes; you provide here for transferring to him the clerks that are already employed.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Those that he may need are transferred from the Interior Department, but that is not the creation of any new ones. He can not have any clerks unless Congress gives them to him.

Mr. HOLMAN. The clerks and employés now employed, and there is quite a force of them, are to be transferred to him at once; and if this bill goes into effect this Congress will not expire before imperative reasons will be found for largely increasing that force. Here are indexes provided for that will occupy several men uninterruptedly.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I want to ask my friend if there is any way by which an increase can be made unless Congress consents to it? This clerk can not make an increase himself.

Mr. HOLMAN. Oh, well, I dread always to see the basis for a good argument created by our legislation. We furnish the fulcrum and then the whole thing goes up. [Laughter.]

Mr. RICHARDSON. Why should we give this bureau any more clerks than we gave to the bureau in the Interior Department?

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, a member of this House who saw, years ago, the growth and progress of that very unfortunate measure which met with such universal condemnation, the increase of the compensation of Senators and Representatives, a man who saw how that began and how it was worked up from the increase of the compensation of a single clerk; how, within a period of two months, it grew into a magnitude which aroused public apprehension for the integrity of our Government and produced important results in our public affairs, a man who watched that transaction from its inception to its culmination may be pardoned if he is apprehensive of great results from small beginnings. Gentlemen who are familiar with the facts know that the idea of an increase of the compensation of Members and Senators to $7,500 was not dreamt of at the beginning of that movement, and that the retroactive provision of the bill was not even thought of. The movement grew during a period of six or seven weeks, until it finally culminated in a piece of legislation that shattered parties into fragments.

So, Mr. Speaker, so far as I am concerned, I do not care to support any measure which contains a provision so capable of unlimited expansion as this portion of the pending bill. The other provisions of the bill I, for one, thank the gentleman from Tennessee for securing, for I believe them to be beneficial. That the extraordinary state of things should have existed for years that a member of Congress could have published by authority of law one entire set of public documents, 95 per cent of which were valueless to him, and then in addition to that, by another law passed within the last ten years, was entitled to have any publication he desired bound at the public expense in such binding as he might select—that such a state of things should last so long is one of the many illustrations of the abuses that grow up in matters which touch Congress and its methods of procedure.

The bill is a good bill, except the one feature on which I have been commenting; and I trust that the gentleman from Tennessee, for the purpose of ascertaining the sentiment of the House on this provision, will consent that a vote be taken on striking out the sixty-second section. I feel quite confident, from the expressions I have heard, that gentlemen of the House generally are very well satisfied with the measure as a whole, and are thankful to the Joint Committee on Printing for the labor they have performed. But this provision which I have criticised is, I believe, objectionable to many gentlemen here. Many members have said to me, "This is not the time to begin the creation of new offices or new bureaus with expansive powers."

I submit, Mr. Speaker, that this is a time for fair retrenchment and a fair economy in the administration of the Government. It is expected of this House that the necessities of the hour will be fairly met, and that no foundation will be laid for imposing in the future large expenses upon the Government; for, according to our experience, this bureau when once established will remain a fixed feature in our Congressional methods.

I trust the gentleman from Tennessee will indicate whether he is willing that we may go back and take a vote on striking out the sixty-second section so as to test the sense of the House on the creation of this bureau; otherwise, as my friend must see, the motion will be made to recommit the bill with instructions to strike out that feature. I hope my friend will not allow what is valuable in the bill to be lost by hanging on to a particular provision. I do not think my friend can afford to do that.

Mr. RICHARDSON. In reply to the gentleman from Indiana I wish to say that he has taken a molehill and magnified it, or attempted to magnify it, into an immense mountain. He concedes that this is a good bill except in that single provision. I have said what I believe to be the truth, that the measure if passed will save to this Government $250,000 a year; and I believe that eventually it will result in a much greater saving. As I have shown, the bill puts our printing laws in methodical form. I will not go over the arguments that I undertook to submit a few moments ago in behalf of the bill; but I think they ought to commend themselves to every gentleman here. I trust no member will vote against the bill upon hearsay, or upon the mere representation of some other persons.

What is the provision to which the gentleman from Indiana objects? He says that it creates a new bureau, that it makes additional offices. Now, all that it does is, in the first place, to abolish the superintendent of documents in the Interior Department, thus getting rid of one officer and one bureau. If there is any occasion for an officer there to act as librarian the Secretary of the Interior will have such officer regardless of this bill. We do not undertake to control the appointment of librarians in Departments; we can not do that in this bill and have not attempted it. We do, however, abolish the bureau in the Interior Department for the distribution of documents; and in lieu of the officer thus abolished we provide for a simple clerk of a committee of Congress to perform his duties; and this, according to the gentleman from Indiana, is going to ruin the Government! He proposes to defeat this bill and continue the present loose methods we have in force in the public printing; continue to waste and lose this $86,000 each Congress; continue to lose the $25,000 each year or $50,000 each Congress in the matter of binding I have mentioned; continue to print documents largely in excess of what a painstaking committee of the two Houses find the Departments can get along on; continue the miserable distribution of public documents now in force and which is remedied by this bill; defeat the bill and prevent the reform it makes and the reductions it proposes, all lest one little clerk of a committee of the two Houses will build up a vast bureau which will swamp the Government! And he says the bill is in all other respects a good one.

Mr. OATES. I would like to ask the gentleman a question; and as preliminary thereto, I will say that when this bill was first taken up for consideration I was very much opposed to it, or rather prejudiced against it, but after a careful reading of the bill last night I concur in the view that it has many excellent features; that it provides economical and methodical arrangements with reference to this subject of printing. But there is one point about which I wish to inquire. This officer just referred to in the remarks of the gentleman from Indiana is to be selected by the Joint Committee on Printing?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes, sir.

Mr. OATES. It is also provided, I believe, that he is not to be selected till after the adjournment of the present Congress; or that this bill is to have no operation or effect until after such adjournment. In another part of the bill it is provided that when there is no House Committee on Printing the Senate committee may act, and when there is no Senate committee the House committee may act. Does not the bill then in effect give the appointment of this officer to the Senate committee, because the provisions of the bill will not go into effect until Congress adjourns, when there will be no House committee.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The gentleman will not find in the language of the bill any provision that this clerk is not to be selected before the closing of Congress, or that the provisions of the bill shall not take effect until that time.

Mr. OATES. The bill does not provide in totidem verbis that this clerk is not to be selected until after the adjournment of Congress; but is not that the effect of the provision that the bill shall not go into operation until that time?

Mr. RICHARDSON. The bill does not so provide.

Mr. OATES. I think so.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The proviso of section 61 is: "That this section shall not take effect until the closing of the Fifty-second Congress." That relates to the consolidation of the two document rooms of the House.

Mr. OATES. Then the provision does not apply to the bill as a whole.

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, sir. It relates only to that particular section.

Mr. OATES. I believe on further examination the gentleman is correct.

Mr. SCOTT. Is it not a fact that there is always a Senate Committee on Printing?

Mr. RICHARDSON. There might or might not be.

Mr. SCOTT. I understand it to be a fact that there always is.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The terms of one-third of the Senators expire on the 4th of March every second year; and the three members of the Committee on Printing may thus go out of office; so that there would not be any committee until the following December.

Mr. SCOTT. It is not likely that all three of the members would go out of office at the same time.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Well, only two or one might go out. At any rate a new committee would have to be appointed at the beginning of the subsequent session.

Mr. SCOTT. Suppose that none of the members of the Committee on Printing should go out of office at the expiration of a Congress, would not the Senate committee be the only Committee on Printing during the eight or nine months of the recess?

Mr. RICHARDSON. When the Senate meets at the opening of a new Congress it appoints new committees as we do.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Will the gentleman allow me a question in this connection?

Mr. RICHARDSON. In a moment.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I wish to again recur to the argument of the gentleman from Indiana. If there was anything at all in the argument he made against this arrangement; if there was danger to come from that source, I would consent to have that provision go out of the bill. But I tell you it seems to me that the argument is simply an effort to magnify nothing into a question of great importance on the part of the gentleman from Indiana. There is absolutely no danger of a clerk of this House, or of the two Houses, gathering unto himself the power to destroy this Government as my friend intimates. He is simply a clerk of the committee and will be the agent of the committee. He is subject to the orders of the committee, and is under its absolute control.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Just in that connection will you be kind enough to answer this question: What length of time is this clerk to be continued in his office?

Mr. RICHARDSON. During a Congress; or at the pleasure of the committee.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Does the bill say so?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No; it is not necessary.

Mr. DINGLEY. He will be retained during the pleasure of the joint committee.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Certainly.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. It does not so provide.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Why, he could be turned out in a day. He would be exactly on the same footing as the clerk of your own committee. He could be dismissed at the pleasure of the committee. The whole power is with the committee absolutely, just like the clerk of any of the other committees of the House. He holds his office during the will of the committee.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Why not say so specifically?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It does not seem necessary; but if the gentleman wishes to do so I have no objection to his offering an amendment to that effect.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. The argument is that it is a permanent bureau, so created, with a permanent head.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Not at all. As I say, I have no objection, if the gentleman thinks it necessary, to his offering an amendment to that effect, that he shall hold office only during the Congress or for a specific term. But as a matter of fact it is not necessary, for he is like the clerk of any other committee; and that is the law now.

Mr. REILLY. Let me ask the gentleman from Tennessee what effect, supposing he agrees to the proposition of the gentleman from Indiana for a separate vote on section 61, what effect would it have upon the remainder of the bill if that section should be stricken out altogether?

Mr. DINGLEY. But there can not be a separate vote excepting by unanimous consent. We are in the House and have passed these sections as they were reached.

Mr. REILLY. I understand that; but suppose that section was stricken out, what would be the effect?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think it would destroy the harmony of the bill. Of course if the gentleman wants to move to recommit the bill with instructions to strike out that provision he could do it; but it would have to be recommitted to the Committee on Printing and reformed, and this committee has positively given more time and thought, I am sure, to this measure than has been given to any other measure before Congress, unless, perhaps, the tariff.

Mr. HOLMAN. The bill is perfect, however, without the bureau feature, and it certainly would not take a half hour to eliminate that and recast the bill in other respects to meet that change.

Mr. BOUTELLE. But does not the gentleman from Indiana understand that this officer would be a Democrat?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not know how that would be, and it ought not to be considered in connection with the matter.

Mr. BOUTELLE. There is no imminent danger of the Senate getting away with this officer; and therefore I am asking the ground of the apprehension entertained by the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. HOLMAN. If it was certain that a good Democrat got the place it would be one objection less.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not want to bring that kind of an issue into the consideration of this measure at all. But on that point let me say—for it was raised yesterday—that this joint committee already has one clerk, that is the index clerk who indexes your CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. He gets about $3,500 a year. The committee is constituted, as I have stated, of three Republicans and three Democrats, and yet this clerk I am told is a Democrat and gets his $3,500 per year. So I do not think there is any very serious danger of the Republicans getting away with the committee, and if they did get this clerk they would not do more than get even.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I am glad the gentleman has given me that assurance. It will be satisfactory, I hope, to stay the apprehensions of the gentleman from Indiana, who will therefore withdraw his objections.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I thought he had withdrawn his objections. [Laughter.]

Mr. BOUTELLE. And the country is safe.

Mr. PICKLER. Let me ask the gentleman from Tennessee this question. Section 63 provides:

> When desired all orders for the distribution of documents by Senators, Representatives, or Delegates, who may so request, and orders from Departments shall be sent to the superintendent of documents on franked or other labels or in lists, which shall be kept confidential, etc.

Now, suppose I want the superintendent to send a dozen or more documents to people, and I do not care about having them confidential. Does he have an option in the matter, or do you require him absolutely, whether it is desired by the member sending the documents or not, to keep them confidential or to make a confidential list of them?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It simply means that he will keep your list confidential. He will not make it public to everybody.

Mr. PICKLER. Then what becomes of these confidential lists that this section provides for?

Mr. RICHARDSON. If you want your list kept confidential he will keep it so. That is all. If not, he destroys the list, and that is the end of it.

Mr. PICKLER. But these confidential lists and these indexes become public records, and must remain in that office, must they not?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Not at all, unless you want them to remain there. You can take them back.

Mr. PICKLER. How is it possible to withdraw these confidential indexes?

Mr. RICHARDSON. There is no confidential index. There is a confidential list.

Mr. PICKLER. But he must index them.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is kept confidential, if you want it kept confidential.

Mr. PICKLER. What becomes of that index?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It remains in his office there. He keeps the index and excludes the public from it. That is all that means. It is so that everybody can not go and find out, on simple application, where a member sends his books.

Mr. PICKLER. Must he not, under this section, index any list a member sends there, whether the member cares to have it kept confidential or not? In other words, if I order three documents sent out, must he not index the list in order that there may not be duplications?

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is right.

Mr. PICKLER. Will not that entail a great deal of needless work?

Mr. RICHARDSON. That provision is simply to prevent duplication; to prevent the same documents being sent to the same person by half a dozen different men. We found one instance where the same document was sent forty times to one man, and that was the horse book that my friend is so much in love with. One man got 40 copies of that very volume in that way.

Mr. PICKLER. I have nothing to take back that I have said about the horse book.

A MEMBER. What did the man do with the forty books?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have no doubt he sold them.

Mr. PICKLER. Can that section be complied with—that is, can this confidential list of every order for documents given by a member be kept and this index be prepared by the force of clerks we now have in the document room? Will it not be a very large undertaking to keep this index?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think not. I think that index can be kept very easily, because whenever he sends out documents it diminishes the clerical force necessary in the document rooms of the two Houses, because it takes that much labor from them.

Mr. PICKLER. One other question: What is the estimate as to the number of volumes or documents that this will take away from a member? How much does it cut down the number to be distributed? How many less documents will a member have for distribution than he has now?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Not one single solitary scrap of paper will be taken from a member which he has now.

Mr. PICKLER. Where does all this reduction come in on the ethnological reports and the reports of the Smithsonian Institution? Is not the number of them cut down considerably?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes.

Mr. PICKLER. Then it does curtail the number which a member can get.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The law will curtail the number printed. That is all that is done.

Mr. PICKLER. That is the question I am asking. How much will it curtail the list of documents that a member will be entitled to send out?

Mr. RICHARDSON. In the case of the ethnological reports——

Mr. PICKLER. Well, taking everything together.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have not made any estimate in that respect. It cuts down the number largely, and there is no other way to reduce the printing except by cutting down the number printed.

Mr. BLAND. Cut it down one-half, and that would not be too much.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is what we have done. We have cut down the Ethnological Report 8,000.

Mr. PICKLER. From the list the gentleman read here, it seems that they struck the scientific departments of the Government altogether.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Oh, no.

Mr. PICKLER. I should be glad if the gentleman could state from his list the number of the Smithsonian Reports.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not know what the number is, as I have not my figures on that document before me. Now, Mr. Speaker——

Mr. SCOTT. Will the gentleman allow me another question?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes, sir.

Mr. SCOTT. I want to call his attention to section 51.

Mr. PICKLER. The gentleman has not answered my question.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have not the memoranda at hand, but the information is in my remarks.

Mr. PICKLER. Then, I understand the gentleman to say that he has no estimate of how many less documents for distribution there will be?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It will depend upon the number printed. I can not tell the number of the various documents that will be ordered printed.

Mr. PICKLER. Has not the committee made an estimate? This bill provides how many there shall be.

Mr. RICHARDSON. It provides how many there shall be in each case; but you will have to speak specifically as to which document you refer to.

Mr. SCOTT. I wanted to ask the gentleman from Tennessee whether he did not think that section 51 gives a very large discretion to the Public Printer in the matter of the employment of apprentices, and whether he is not likely to have a great many employed who are not competent to do that work?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think not. This is left to his discretion, and I have no doubt he will exercise that discretion in a wise manner. They are simply to learn the trade, and the object is to teach as many American boys the trade as possible.

Mr. SCOTT. The Public Printing Office is scarcely the proper place for that.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I agree with you in that; but he does employ them now, or has been employing them. It does not change the law, but makes law a custom that has obtained there.

Mr. SCOTT. I think it is a very dangerous provision, and I think the discretion altogether too great.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think so; but no Public Printer would abuse a discretion of that kind.

Mr. STOCKDALE. Suppose all the members of Congress should send out all their books, what force would it take to do it?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think it would take the force that is now employed in these two document rooms.

Mr. STOCKDALE. Now, if all the lists were sent in nearly at a time, would not they have to be taken up in their order?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Of course, if they were all sent in at one time, but that never will occur. They would be sent out as quickly as they could be.

I have now endeavored to answer all these questions, and I think that the motion that the gentleman from Indiana has asked me to agree to ought not to be made. I can not agree to accept it. I do not see any danger in that section of the bill. We create officers, and this matter will be under the control of the Committee on Printing and under the control of Congress; and I do not think my friend is right in undertaking to assume some other Congress will abuse the power that is given to it to make officers for Congress.

I do not believe that the next Congress will be any less wise than this, and the party in power will be held responsible by the people for the creation of new officers. I do not think we need to put the brake on that our friend suggests as necessary to be put on here. I do not believe the gentleman is warranted in coming to the conclusion that we will lose by the passage of this bill. Let us save this vast sum to the Government; let us pass this bill which will bring about the economy in the public service which I have before asserted will arise from it, and which many gentlemen believe will be brought about. Take the one matter of "reserve," where we have shown that we have saved $86,000 in a Congress in changing the law, defeat this bill, and in that one item, in my judgment, speaking it solemnly, you will permit the waste of more money than this committee clerk would expend in the next ten years. This vast sum, or a sum approximately it in amount, has been squandered and wasted for many Congresses. Vote down this bill and you continue it.

Mr. HOLMAN. I would not assume that Congress in the future will do any wrong, except to carry out the provisions of this bill. I am assuming that the duties imposed upon this officer, this so-called superintendent of public documents—that the powers conferred upon him, and which of course he will exercise, will involve an enormous expenditure. I trust that if this bill becomes a law this prediction of mine will not be verified. But the bill contains upon its face, in spite of all the caution employed in preparing the measure, provisions that will involve very heavy expenditure, growing heavier every successive year.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. I would suggest to the gentleman from Tennessee that he agree to strike out from line 4, in section 62, down to "dollars per annum," in line 8, and, in lieu of this superintendent of documents, insert a provision authorizing the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate to appoint each a committee on documents, which shall be a committee of accounts. In that way we shall keep our business in our own hands, and let the economic features of the bill stand.

Mr. RICHARDSON. My friend proposes to make two offices instead of one.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. No, sir. We are paid a salary, and our services in this matter will not cost the Government anything extra.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Do you not propose that the Speaker and the President of the Senate shall each appoint a clerk?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. No, sir; my proposition is, that the Speaker shall appoint a committee on documents and that the President of the Senate shall do the same, so that we may keep our business in our own hands.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Well, that idea has not been considered, but I do not suppose that the members of the House want to go into the distribution of documents.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. They would not have to do it; the folding room would distribute our documents, as it does now.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman from Tennessee to consent to strike out section 51. I know there was a time when this matter of apprentices was a very serious objection to the management of the Government Printing Office.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I will say to my friend that his objection will not be removed by striking that section out, because they have apprentices there now, and unless you put in some prohibitive legislation they will go on in the same way.

Mr. SCOTT. I understand the present law is the same as this. Now, if we strike this out and if this bill becomes a law what will be the effect?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not say that the matter is provided for by statute. I say that the custom has prevailed in the office for many years, and that they have apprentices there now or have had recently.

Mr. SCOTT. Then I ask my friend to consent to strike out that section and let me offer an amendment.

Mr. DINGLEY. An amendment is not in order.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I do not object to the gentleman asking consent to offer an amendment.

Mr. DINGLEY. Amendment is not in order.

Mr. RICHARDSON. No, it is not in order now. If the gentleman had presented it at the proper time I would not have objected to taking a vote of the House upon it.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer an amendment now in place of section 51.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BLANCHARD). Does the gentleman from Tennessee yield?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I yield for the gentleman to make his request.

Mr. SCOTT. I will prepare an amendment in a moment prohibiting the employment of apprentices in the Government Printing Office.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Now, Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. BRYAN] for a question.

Mr. BRYAN. Mr. Speaker, I want to ask the gentleman from Tennessee whether the superintendent here provided for is given any appointing power?

Mr. HOLMAN. Certainly.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Not absolutely.

Mr. BANKHEAD. The bill gives him power to appoint all his employés.

Mr. RICHARDSON. He can appoint, or ask for the appointment of his assistants, but he can not provide for their payment.

Mr. BRYAN. Is he to have supervision of men appointed by other authorities?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Certain clerks are transferred from the Bureau of Documents in the Interior Department and become his clerks. If he wants any more he must get them from Congress; they must be first authorized by Congress; that is, by law.

Mr. BRYAN. But those clerks are transferred at once?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes, sir.

Mr. BRYAN. Who dismisses them?

Mr. RICHARDSON. The head of the room, or chief clerk, I suppose, as in other cases.

Mr. BRYAN. Then we are to have three kinds of clerks here, those appointed by the House, those appointed by the Sergeant-at-Arms, and those appointed by this superintendent.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Those that he appoints are to be merely his assistants.

Mr. BRYAN. Is he to have supervision of those who are appointed by the House and by the Senate?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Oh, no; he has nothing to do with the distribution of documents in the House or in the Senate.

Mr. BRYAN. And he is to have no power to appoint except what is given here, or what may be given by subsequent legislation?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No.

Mr. REILLY. Mr. Speaker, I wish to call the attention of the gentleman from Tennessee to a provision in section 67, at the top of page 28. It is as follows:

The superintendent of documents shall appoint all employés of his office authorized by Congress.

If the superintendent himself is to be appointed by the Joint Committee on Printing, what is the reason for delegating this power to the superintendent?

Mr. RICHARDSON. The trouble is that Congress might not know how many clerks he might need.

Mr. REILLY. Then, instead of retaining the power in the hands of the Joint Committee on Printing, you delegate it to this officer?

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is it. He will select such clerical force as may be necessary, after being authorized so to do by law.

The SPEAKER. Did the gentleman from Tennessee yield to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SCOTT] to offer an amendment?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I yielded to allow the amendment to be read.

Mr. SCOTT. I ask unanimous consent to offer the amendment which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Strike out section 51, page 18, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"No apprentices shall be employed by the Public Printer in any part of the Government Printing Office."

Mr. DINGLEY. Before the question is taken on granting unanimous consent, I would like to ask the gentleman in charge of the bill what are the duties now performed by apprentices in the Government Printing Office? Is it found necessary and economical in the conduct of the office to employ them?

Mr. RICHARDSON. As I understand this matter of apprentices (I do not profess to have a perfect familiarity with it) there have been from time to time a few boys employed there to learn the printing trade. They work there until they become proficient and then they can go elsewhere to practice their trade or may obtain appointment as regular workmen in the office. That was the practice for many years. When the next to the last Public Printer was in office he decided that under the law he could not allow the employment of apprentices——

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. The gentleman will allow me to ask what compensation these apprentices get?

Mr. RICHARDSON. No compensation, as I understand. They are simply permitted to learn the trade.

As I was remarking, the next to the last Public Printer, in view of the provision of the law that only skilled workmen should be employed, held that he was prohibited from employing apprentices or permitting them to work there. But the present Public Printer, returning to the old custom, has appointed a few apprentices, or at any rate he stated in his testimony before the joint committee that he favored it, and would employ them if he had the room in the office for them.

Mr. SCOTT. The object of my amendment is to prohibit the taking in of anybody to learn the trade of printing.

Mr. RICHARDSON. It would put an end to the present custom and prohibit the Public Printer from employing apprentices?

Mr. SCOTT. Yes, sir.

A MEMBER. What is the harm?

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I object to the amendment.

Mr. CUMMINGS. In answer to the question of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR] awhile ago, I would like to say that some of these apprentices get $3.50 a day.

The SPEAKER. Objection is made, and the amendment is not before the House.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, we have now gone over this bill, and I think discussed it so far as gentlemen care to do so. I now move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered; and under the operation thereof the bill was ordered to a third reading and read the third time.

Mr. HOLMAN. I desire to submit a motion to recommit the bill with instructions.

The SPEAKER. The proposition of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] will be read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the pending bill be recommitted to the Committee on Printing with instructions to strike out all the provisions of the bill relative to the office of superintendent of public documents, with the right to report the bill back at any time.

Mr. HOLMAN. On this motion I ask the previous question.

Mr. SCOTT. I would like to move an amendment to the motion of the gentleman from Indiana, so as to include the provision already read prohibiting the employment of apprentices.

The SPEAKER. If the demand for the previous question is sustained the motion of the gentleman from Indiana is not amendable.

Mr. HOLMAN. I am willing to withdraw the previous question to admit the gentleman's amendment.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Indiana modify the proposed instructions?

Mr. HOLMAN. I presume the gentleman from Illinois has a right to move an amendment. One amendment is in order, I believe.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman has that right unless the previous question is demanded.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think I ought to withdraw the previous question under the circumstances.

The SPEAKER. If it is withdrawn it is withdrawn for all purposes, and the instructions are amendable in any degree. The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SCOTT] moves to amend the motion of the gentleman from Indiana by inserting what the clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Insert after "public documents" the words "and to strike out section 51."

The SPEAKER. The question is upon the amendment of the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. HOLMAN. I now call the previous question on the pending proposition and amendment.

Mr. BLAND. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry. I wish to know whether the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SCOTT] is germane to the proposition of the gentleman from Indiana. As I understand it, does not apply to the same paragraph or section. If this amendment is in order we might go on and amend every section of the bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of opinion that it is competent for the House to give such instructions to the committee in charge of the bill as it sees fit, unless the right to amend has been cut off.

The question is on ordering the previous question upon the amendment to the motion of the gentleman from Indiana.

The previous question was ordered; under the operation of which the amendment of Mr. SCOTT to strike out section 51 was rejected; there being, on a division—ayes 35, noes 54.

The question recurring on the motion of Mr. HOLMAN to recommit with instructions, the House divided; and there were—ayes 76, noes 60.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I make the point that no quorum has voted.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will appoint tellers.

Mr. RICHARDSON and Mr. HOLMAN were appointed tellers.

Mr. RICHARDSON (one of the tellers). Mr. Speaker, quite a number of gentlemen have left the House, understanding that there would be no vote this afternoon. They communicated that fact to me before leaving, and in justice to them I move that the House do now adjourn.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Pending the motion to adjourn, leave of absence was granted as follows, by unanimous consent:

To Mr. LOCKWOOD, indefinitely, on account of sickness in his family.

To Mr. DAVIS, for two days, on account of important business.

To Mr. BUSHNELL, indefinitely, on account of important business.

The motion of Mr. RICHARDSON was then agreed to.

And accordingly (at 4 o'clock and 25 minutes p.m.) the House adjourned.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, committees were discharged from the consideration of the following bills, which were re-referred as follows:

The bills H. R. 8805, for the relief of Barney Morgan, teamster Quartermaster's Department; H. R. 9381, to increase the pension of Cyrus J. Van Lanningham; H. R. 9683, for the relief of Alvidas Mayland; H. R. 7437, for the relief of Mrs. Eliza E. Sargeant; H. R. 7717, to place the name of John C. Fruit on the pension rolls; H. R. 7980, to grant a pension to Mrs. Mima A. Read; H. R. 7160, for the relief of Henry A. Lee; H. R. 6301, granting a pension to Mary D. Craig; H. R. 6822, granting a pension to Emanuel Dougherty; H. R. 9159, for the relief of Archibald P. Cooper; H. R. 9291, to place on the pension roll the name of Capt. James G. Saint; H. R. 1188, granting a pension to William U. Mallorie; H. R. 1064, granting a pension to Harriett Fawpell; H. R. 1081, authorizing the payment of the pension of Edward S. Smith, accrued at the time of his death, to his mother Catherine; H. R. 1294, granting a pension to Thomas Nelson; H. R. 1295, granting a pension to Christena Lowe; H. R. 2104, for the relief of James Nipper, of Cleveland, Tenn.; H. R. 2593, granting a pension to Mrs. Jane M. Purdy; H. R. 4813, for the relief of Lucy A. Branham; H. R. 7122, to restore to the pension rolls the name of Elizabeth Marshall; H. R. 5822, for the relief of Charles W. Griest; H. R. 5416, granting a pension to Margaret Cronin, widow; H. R. 9518, granting a pension to Mrs. Eliza Fish; H. R. 8549, for the relief of Della and Emma Miller; H. R. 9030, for the relief of Barbara A. Cornett—the Committee on Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

The bills H. R. 2595, for the relief of Henson D. Pittman; H. R. 2123, for the relief of Thomas Fitzgibbons; H. R. 5332, to amend the military record of James Mackie, late of Company F, Berge's Regiment S.S., Volunteers of Missouri—the Committee on Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

BILLS, MEMORIALS, AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced, and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. SIPE: A bill (H. R. 9786) authorizing the construction of a bridge over the Monongahela River, at West Elizabeth, in the State of Pennsylvania—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. STONE of Kentucky (by request): A bill (H. R. 9787) providing for the purchase of certain property therein named for the use of the Interior Department—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. PEEL: A bill (H. R. 9788) making an appropriation for the payment of arrears of interest on the trust fund of the Chickasaw Nation—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. CALDWELL: A bill (H. R. 9789) to reduce postage on first-class matter to 1 cent per half ounce—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. HERMANN: A bill (H. R. 9790) for the relief of purchases of timber and stone lands under the act of June 3, 1878—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. CATCHINGS: A resolution for the amendment of Rule XXVII by striking out all down to the word "all" in the sixth line—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. OATES: To fix a day for the consideration of the bill to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. HEARD: A resolution directing the United States Quartermaster-General to reinvestigate claims Nos. 115,594, pending in his department—to the Committee on Claims.

PRIVATE BILLS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills of the following titles were presented and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. BERGEN: A bill (H. R. 9791) to correct the military record of John Evans, late captain of Company E, Fourth New Jersey Volunteers—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BOWERS: A bill (H. R. 9792) for the relief of the assignees of Augustus Haraszthy, a bankrupt—to the Committee on Private Land Claims.

By Mr. DURBOROW: A bill (H. R. 9793) granting a pension to Hedwig Voss, widow of Arno Voss, colonel, Illinois Volunteers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GROUT: A bill (H. R. 9794) to pension Betsy Bush, of Bondville, Vt.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HERMANN: A bill (H. R. 9795) increasing the pension of Melancthon McCoy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOOKER of New York: A bill (H. R. 9796) for the relief of Thankful Robbins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LODGE: A bill (H. R. 9797) for the relief of Mrs. R. M. Bartleman—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. O'FERRALL: A bill (H. R. 9798) for the relief of the heirs of the late Mrs. Mary Ann Randolph Custis Lee, of Fairfax County, Va.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CHARLES W. STONE: A bill (H. R. 9799) to remove the charge of desertion standing against the name of Edward J. Butler—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 9800) for the relief of the heirs of James A. Galbreaith—to the Committee on Claims.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By Mr. ALDERSON: Nineteen petitions of claimants of West Virginia, as follows: of John Q. Summers, of Nicholas County; of W. W. Neil, of Nicholas County; of J. F. V. Neil for the estate of Robert Neil, deceased; of George W. Morris, jr.; of John E. Hardway, of Nicholas County; of Levi Gay, deceased, late of Pocahontas County; of A. J. Shumate, late of Raleigh County; of John A. Dempsy, of Fayette County; of Abraham Shimebray, of Pocahontas County; of Uriah Phillips, for the estate of Frederick R. Phillips, of Pocahontas County; of Peyton Morton, of Fayette County; of William Masters, deceased, late of Fayette County; of J. Thomas Blake, administrator of McDowell Blake, deceased, late of Fayette County; of Mrs. Margaret Dotson, executrix of Thomas Dotson, deceased, of Fayette County; of B. S. Harper, heir of Jacob Harper, deceased; of Newton Shumate, of Raleigh County; of William F. Ervine, of Pocahontas County; of James E. Sikens, of Fayette County, and of Jane Sumers, nee Harrold, for the claim of C. A. Harrold, deceased, late of Nicholas County, praying that their claims be referred to the Court of Claims under the provisions of the Bowman act—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. COBURN: Petition of Congregational churches at West Salem, Wis., relating to closing the World's Fair on Sunday, etc.—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. COMPTON: Petition of Dr. Charles G. W. McGill, Dr. George H. Roe, and others, asking for an appropriation to assist defraying the expenses of the Pan-American Medical Congress—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. COOLIDGE: Petition of Seth C. Cary and others, of Gardner, Mass., praying for a sixteenth amendment to the Constitution—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DALZELL: Petition of the First, Second, Third, and Fifth United Presbyterian churches of Pittsburg, Pa., against opening the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. DUNPHY: Petition of James M. Touhey, to accompany bill for relief—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. GROUT: Memorial of Betsy Brush for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HITT: Petition and memorial of the congregation of the Christian Church at Rockford, Ill., thanksgiving day, thanking Congress for Sunday-closing legislation had, and urging its maintenance—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. HOOKER of New York: Petition of Thankful Robins for relief—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LODGE: Memorial of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, opposing the passage of the Washburn and Hatch anti-option bills—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. LOUD: Petition of congregations of all churches held at Gilroy, Cal., thanking Congress for closing the World's Fair on Sunday, praying for prohibition of sale of liquor, and for the restriction of immigration—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. MANSUR: Petition of Rev. James T. Hanston and 48 others, of Missouri, against the Sunday opening of the World's Columbian Exposition—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. O'DONNELL: Petition of 76 citizens of Leslie, Mich., praying that a pension be granted to Diantha Crooker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, resolutions of World's Fair managers for Michigan, in favor of keeping the Fair open on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. PERKINS: Petition of Reformed Church of Maurice, Iowa, in behalf of Sunday closing of the World's Fair—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE: Resolution of the Methodist Episcopal, Presbyterian, and United Presbyterian churches of Emsworth, Pa., relative to closing the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR: Petition of citizens of Munson, Ohio, against opening the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. WILLIAMS of Illinois: Petition of W. F. Hall and W. W. Hall, relative to the pension claim of James C. Finn, late Company D, South Cumberland, of Kentucky Volunteers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WRIGHT: Petition of Dr. W. L. Richardson and 12 other physicians of Susquehanna County, Pa., in favor of an appropriation by Congress of $44,983 to defray expenses of Pan-American Medical Congress to be held in the city of Washington in September, 1893—to the Committee on Appropriations.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, the committees were discharged from the consideration of the following petitions; which were re-referred as follows:

By Mr. BUTLER: Petition for the encouragement of silk culture—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition to prevent the adulteration of food and drugs—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. BURROWS: Four petitions on dealing in options—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition on silk culture—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. BRICKNER: Petition on dealing in options—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. CLARK of Wyoming: Three petitions favoring the establishment of a branch home for disabled soldiers and sailors at Fort Steele Military Reservation—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DINGLEY: Petition for free delivery of mails to rural district—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. WOLVERTON: Petition for the prevention of the adulteration of food and drugs—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. PICKLER: Petition asking that timber-culture claimants be allowed to make final proof of homestead claimants—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. VAN HORN: Petition to prevent the adulteration of food and drugs—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. LAYTON: Petition to prevent the adulteration of food and drugs—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. WILLCOX: Three petitions relating to silk culture—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. HITT: Petition relating to silk culture—from the Committee on Ways and Means to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. PEEL: Petition relating to Mark Jackson, late private of Company C, First Regiment of Arkansas Cavalry, Mexican war—from the Committee on Invalid Pensions to the Committee on Pensions.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, December 9, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

REFERENCE OF SENATE BILL.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the bill (S. 2345) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River above New Orleans; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

DEATH OF HON. JOHN G. WARWICK, OF OHIO.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the resolutions of the Senate in regard to the death of Hon. John G. Warwick, late a Representative from the State of Ohio; which were laid on the table.

CERTIFICATE OF ELECTORAL VOTES OF COLORADO AND CONNECTICUT.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House certificates, transmitted by the Secretary of State, showing the final ascertainment of the electors for President and Vice-President in the State of Colorado, and also in the State of Connecticut; which were severally ordered to be laid upon the table.

BOARD OF LADY MANAGERS, COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting an estimate of appropriation submitted by the president of the World's Columbian Exposition for the expenses of the Board of Lady Managers for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

CONTINGENT EXPENSES, WAR DEPARTMENT.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting report of the receipts and expenditures on account of appropriations for contingent expenses of the War Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department.

EXPENSES WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting an estimate of appropriations, forwarded by the president of the World's Columbian Exposition, for the expenses of the Commission for the fiscal years 1893 and 1894; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

RANK OF RETIRED ARMY OFFICERS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a communication addressed to the chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, signed by certain army officers stationed at Fort Sill, Okla., requesting the passage of a bill fixing the rank of retired army officers; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

IMPROVEMENTS OF RIVERS AND HARBORS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House letters from the Acting Secretary of War, transmitting communications from the Chief of Engineers with report of examination and survey of the following rivers and harbors; which were severally referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, namely:

Whale Creek, New Jersey; harbor at Yaquina Bay, Oregon, with a view of obtaining 25 feet of water at mean low water upon the bar at the entrance; for inland water way connecting the Mispillion and Broadkiln rivers, Delaware, so as to reopen the navigation of Cedar, Slaughter, and Primehook creeks; Merced River, California; Rockland Harbor, Maine; Portland Harbor, Maine; Saugus River, Massachusetts; the entrance to the harbor of San Francisco, Cal., known as the Golden Gate; the south branch of the Patapsco River, at Baltimore, Md.; Lincolnville Harbor, Maine, locally known as Duck Trap Harbor; Norwalk Harbor, Connecticut; Spokane River, Idaho, from Post Falls to Lake Cœur d'Alene; the channel near Hardys Point, below Pembroke, Maine; Chetco River, Oregon; Pocomoke River, Maryland, with the view of uniting the waters of said river with the waters of Sinepuxent Bay at a point above Snow Hill; Durhams Estuary, North Carolina; the Mississippi River at and near Bellevue, Iowa; Berrians Creek, Long Island, New York; Harbor at Stockbridge, on Lake Winnebago, Wisconsin; the Ohio River between Livingston Point and the head of Tennessee Island, with the view of protecting the harbor and marine way at Paducah, Kentucky; the bar at the mouth of Alaqua Bayou, Florida; Kootenai River from Fry, Idaho, to international boundary line; Snohomish River, Washington, from its mouth to Lowell; Cooper Creek, New Jersey; Twelve Mile Creek, California; the mouth of Parish Creek, Maryland; Mississippi River, Iowa side, from mouth of Iowa River to Burlington; Nestucca River as far as Woods, Oregon; for lock and dam at the most practical point for navigation on the Allegheny River, Pennsylvania; between the dam at Tarentum and Herr Island Dam, Pennsylvania; for channel west of Robbins Reef Light-house, to connect the mouth of Arthur Kill with New York Harbor, New York; Tennant Harbor, Maine; and Hammond Bay, Lake Huron, Michigan, at the mouth of Ocqueoc River.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to Mr. BEEMAN, indefinitely, on account of sickness.

LEAVE TO WITHDRAW PAPERS.

By unanimous consent, leave was granted, on motion of Mr. RUSK, to withdraw from the files of the House the papers in the case of A. Trego Shertzer, now on file in the Clerk's office.

PRINTING IN RELATION TO PENSION LAWS.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. PEARSON], from the committee appointed at the last session to codify the pension laws, asks leave for that committee to have printed such matter as may be necessary in the consideration of matters before them. Without objection that order will be made.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL MONDAY.

Mr. MCMILLIN. I move that when the House adjourn to-day it adjourn to meet on Monday next.

The motion was agreed to.

NICARAGUA CANAL.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, I hold in my hand a memorial, passed by the convention recently held in New Orleans, relative to the construction of the Nicaragua Canal. This resolution is for reference to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. I ask unanimous consent that it may be printed in the RECORD for the information of members of the House?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WISE] asks unanimous consent to print in the RECORD a memorial, the title of which the Clerk will read, so that the House may understand it.

The Clerk read as follows:

Preamble and resolutions of national Nicaragua canal convention, urging upon Congress the importance of constructing said canal.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the printing of the memorial in the RECORD?

Mr. KILGORE. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. WISE. I hope the gentleman will withdraw the objection. I will state to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. KILGORE] that it will occupy but a very small space in the RECORD.

Mr. KILGORE. I object, because I do not think we should encumber the RECORD with a lot of slush of that kind.

Mr. WISE. It will occupy but a very small space in the RECORD.

Mr. KILGORE. I withdraw the objection, although I think the printing of such matter in the RECORD is objectionable.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection——

Mr. STONE of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. WISE. This is simply a memorial relating to the construction of the Nicaragua Canal, passed by the convention recently held in New Orleans. It is a subject of importance, and I ask the gentleman to withdraw his objection.

Mr. STONE of Kentucky. I do not want to commit this Congress to any such project.

Mr. WISE. You do not commit anybody by giving consent that this memorial may be printed in the RECORD for the information of members.

Mr. SPRINGER. It is very short?

Mr. WISE. It is very short. It will occupy but a column.

Mr. STONE of Kentucky. It has been or can be printed in the newspapers, and the people can read it in that way.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request?

Mr. WISE. I ask the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. STONE] to withdraw his objection.

Mr. STONE of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I object.

The SPEAKER. Objection is made. The memorial will be referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

COMMITTEE CHANGES.

The SPEAKER announced the following resignations and appointments:

Resignations:

Mr. BACON from the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SCOTT from the Committee on War Claims.

Mr. GORMAN from the Committee on Expenditures in the Post-Office Department.

Mr. BRETZ from the Committee on Education.

Appointments:
Mr. FELLOWS to the Committee on the Judiciary.
Mr. BRETZ to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.
Mr. SCOTT to be chairman of the Committee on Enrolled Bills.
Mr. BROWN of Maryland to the Committee on Naval Affairs.
Mr. GORMAN to the Committee on Military Affairs.
Mr. MCLAURIN to the Committee on Education.
Mr. OHLIGER to the Committee on Enrolled Bills.
Mr. CADMUS to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.
Mr. SIPE to the Committee on the Militia.
Mr. HILBORN to the Committee on War Claims.
Mr. SIPE to the Committee on Expenditures in the Post-Office Department.
Mr. MCLAURIN to the Committee on the Militia.

AMENDMENT TO THE RULES.

Mr. CATCHINGS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to present a report from the Committee on Rules, which I ask the Clerk to read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. CATCHINGS submitted the following, which was referred to the Committee on Rules:

"Resolved, That Rule XXVII of the House of Representatives be, and the same is hereby, amended so that the same shall read as follows:

"'RULE XXVII.

"'UNFINISHED BUSINESS OF THE SESSION.

"'All business before committees of the House at the end of one session shall be resumed at the commencement of the next session of the same Congress in the same manner as if no adjournment had taken place.'"

Mr. CATCHINGS. Mr. Speaker, I move the adoption of the report.

The motion of Mr. CATCHINGS was agreed to.

CALL OF STANDING AND SELECT COMMITTEES.

The Clerk, under direction of the Speaker, proceeded to call the roll of standing and select committees for reports. No reports were presented.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I call up the unfinished business of yesterday.

The SPEAKER. Unless the House proceeds to the Private Calendar, the Chair will direct the Clerk to call the committees for the consideration of business in the second morning hour.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker——

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the second morning hour.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Ohio asks unanimous consent to dispense with the second morning hour. Is there objection?

Mr. MCRAE. What is the request?

The SPEAKER. That the committees be not called this morning for the second morning hour.

Mr. MCRAE. Why not?

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. Why not?

Mr. MCRAE. I object.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. Is not this day, Friday, set apart under the rules as a day on which the Private Calendar is in order?

The SPEAKER. It is, when a motion is made respecting it. The Chair stated that if no motion was made respecting the Private Calendar——

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. I call for the regular order.

The SPEAKER. This is the regular order.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. I hope that this day will be devoted to the purpose to which, under the rules, it was intended to be applied. I move, therefore, that we proceed to the consideration of bills on the Private Calendar. It will be remembered, Mr. Speaker, that during the last session of Congress we had very few opportunities to consider business on the Private Calendar. There was one case which stood at the head of the Calendar, and its consideration barred all action on other cases. I hope, therefore, that the gentlemen of the State from which that case comes will withdraw it from consideration and allow the House to proceed to consider that class of cases on the Private Calendar to which there is no objection. I move, therefore, that the House go into Committee of the Whole on the Private Calendar.

The SPEAKER. That is in order under the rule:

On Friday of each week after the morning hour it shall be in order to entertain a motion that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House to consider business on the Private Calendar.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. I make that motion.

Mr. DINGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. DINGLEY. What business would be in order if the House should resolve itself into Committee of the Whole on the Private Calendar? Is there any business on which the previous question has been ordered?

The SPEAKER. The Chair is not informed.

The question was taken on the motion to go into Committee of the Whole, and the Speaker announced that the noes seemed to have it.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. I call for a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 47, noes 88.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 76, nays 140, not voting 113; as follows:

YEAS—76.

Abbott,	Cowles,	Hooker, Miss.	Peel,
Allen,	Cox, N. Y.	Kyle,	Pendleton,
Amerman,	Crawford,	Lanham,	Richardson,
Beltzhoover,	Culberson,	Lawson, Ga.	Seerley,
Boatner,	Cummings,	Layton,	Sperry,
Branch,	Daniell,	Lester, Va.	Springer,
Breckinridge, Ark.	De Forest,	Little,	Stockdale,
Bunn,	Enloe,	Livingston,	Stone, Ky.
Butler,	Fellows,	Loud,	Tracey,
Cadmus,	Forney,	Mansur,	Tucker,
Capehart,	Gillespie,	Martin,	Turner,
Caruth,	Grady,	McAleer,	Warner,
Cate,	Greenleaf,	McKaig,	Wheeler, Ala.
Causey,	Hare,	McMillin,	Wheeler, Mich.
Chipman,	Harter,	McRae,	Williams, N. C.
Cobb, Mo.	Hemphill,	Oates,	Wilson, Mo.
Coburn,	Henderson, N. C.	O'Ferrall,	Wilson, W. Va.
Coolidge,	Hermann,	O'Neil, Mass.	Winn,
Covert,	Hitt,	Page,	Youmans.

NAYS—140.

Andrew,	Curtis,	Houk, Ohio	Pierce,
Antony,	Cutting,	Hull,	Ray,
Arnold,	Dalzell,	Johnson, N. Dak.	Rayner,
Atkinson,	De Armond,	Jolley,	Reed,
Babbitt,	Dingley,	Jones,	Reyburn,
Bailey,	Dixon,	Kilgore,	Rockwell,
Baker,	Doan,	Kribbs,	Sayers,
Bankhead,	Dockery,	Lane,	Scott,
Barwig,	Dolliver,	Lapham,	Scull,
Belknap,	Durborow,	Lester, Ga.	Shively,
Bentley,	Edmunds,	Lodge,	Simpson,
Blanchard,	Elliott,	Long,	Sipe,
Bland,	English,	Lynch,	Smith,
Blount,	Epes,	Mallory,	Snodgrass,
Bowers,	Everett,	McGann,	Snow,
Bretz,	Fithian,	McKinney,	Steward, Ill.
Brickner,	Flick,	McLaurin,	Stone, W. A.
Broderick,	Forman,	Miller,	Storer,
Brookshire,	Fyan,	Mitchell,	Stout,
Brosius,	Gantz,	Moore,	Taylor, Ill.
Brown, Ind.	Geary,	Mutchler,	Taylor, Tenn.
Brunner,	Geissenhainer,	Newberry,	Taylor, E. B.
Bryan,	Gorman,	Norton,	Taylor, J. D.
Burrows,	Griswold,	O'Donnell,	Terry,
Busey,	Grout,	Ohliger,	Tillman,
Bynum,	Halvorson,	O'Neill, Pa.	Townsend,
Caldwell,	Harries,	Otis,	Van Horn,
Castle,	Haugen,	Owens,	Watson,
Clover,	Haynes, Ohio	Parrett,	Waugh,
Cobb, Ala.	Henderson, Ill.	Patterson, Tenn.	Weadock,
Coombs,	Herbert,	Pattison, Ohio	White,
Cooper,	Hilborn,	Patton,	Wike,
Cox, Tenn.	Holman,	Payne,	Williams, Mass.
Crain, Tex.	Hooker, N. Y.	Pearson,	Williams, Ill.
Crosby,	Hopkins, Pa.	Perkins,	Wise.

NOT VOTING—113.

Alderson,	Compton,	Ketcham,	Robinson, Pa.
Alexander,	Davis,	Lagan,	Rusk,
Bacon,	Dickerson,	Lawson, Va.	Russell,
Bartine,	Donovan,	Lewis,	Sanford,
Beeman,	Dungan,	Lind,	Shell,
Belden,	Dunphy,	Lockwood,	Shonk,
Bergen,	Ellis,	Magner,	Stahlnecker,
Bingham,	Enochs,	McClellan,	Stephenson,
Boutelle,	Fitch,	McCreary,	Stevens,
Bowman,	Fowler,	McKeighan,	Stewart, Tex.
Brawley,	Funston,	Meredith,	Stone, C. W.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Goodnight,	Meyer,	Stump,
Brown, Md.	Hall,	Milliken,	Sweet,
Buchanan, N. J.	Hallowell,	Montgomery,	Tarsney,
Buchanan, Va.	Hamilton,	Morse,	Taylor, V. A.
Bullock,	Harmer,	Moses,	Turpin,
Bunting,	Hatch,	O'Neill, Mo.	Wadsworth,
Bushnell,	Hayes, Iowa	Outhwaite,	Walker,
Byrns,	Heard,	Paynter,	Washington,
Cable,	Henderson, Iowa	Pickler,	Wever,
Caminetti,	Hoar,	Post,	Whiting,
Campbell,	Hopkins, Ill.	Powers,	Willcox,
Catchings,	Houk, Tenn.	Price,	Wilson, Ky.
Cheatham,	Huff,	Quackenbush,	Wilson, Wash.
Clancy,	Johnson, Ind.	Raines,	Wolverton,
Clark, Wyo.	Johnson, Ohio	Randall,	Wright.
Clarke, Ala.	Johnstone, S. C.	Reilly,
Cockran,	Kem,	Rife,
Cogswell,	Kendall,	Robertson, La.

So the motion was not agreed to.

The following pairs for this day were announced:

Mr. CAMINETTI with Mr. MILLIKEN.
Mr. OHLIGER with Mr. KETCHAM.
Mr. BOWMAN with Mr. BINGHAM.
Mr. ELLIS with Mr. HUFF.
Mr. DICKERSON with Mr. BARTINE.
Mr. LOCKWOOD with Mr. STEPHENSON.

The following-named members were announced as paired until further notice:

Mr. MCCREARY with Mr. MORSE.
Mr. MONTGOMERY with Mr. WEVER.
Mr. PAYNTER with Mr. BELDEN.
Mr. GOODNIGHT with Mr. SHONK.
Mr. WASHINGTON with Mr. SANFORD.
Mr. CLARKE of Alabama with Mr. VINCENT A. TAYLOR.
Mr. HATCH with Mr. HARMER.
Mr. WILLCOX with Mr. RUSSELL.
Mr. ROBERTSON of Louisiana with Mr. HOUK of Tennessee.

The following were announced as paired on this vote:

Mr. MOSES with Mr. PICKLER.
Mr. STEVENS with Mr. RANDALL.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I now call up the unfinished business.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. RICHARDSDN. I hope the gentleman from Mississippi will withdraw that motion and let us dispose of the unfinished business coming over from yesterday.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. Will the gentleman move to adjourn after that is done?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I will.

Mr. HOOKER. Then, Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my motion, as the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] says he will renew it.

PRINTING BILL.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Now, Mr. Speaker, I call up the unfinished business, the printing bill.

The SPEAKER. The bill before the House yesterday was ordered to be read a third time, and was read a third time, and, pending the question on its passage, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] moved to recommit the bill with instructions. The previous question was ordered, a vote was taken, and, no quorum appearing, tellers were appointed on the motion to recommit.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the motion to recommit, in order that we may take a vote at once upon the proposition involved in that motion, which is to strike out the sections of the bill providing for a superintendent of public documents. If that be done the bill will go at once to a conference committee, and can be disposed of without coming back to the House. I therefore submit the request that, by unanimous consent, that course be adopted and a vote taken at once. If that is agreed to I will move to strike out sections 62 to 73, inclusive, which are the sections creating this new office of superintendent of public documents, leaving the balance of the bill unchanged.

Mr. DINGLEY. As I understand the request of the gentleman from Indiana, it is that the motion to recommit be vacated, and that then a direct motion to amend the bill be permitted to be made in the House.

Mr. HOLMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I hope that request will be agreed to. It will bring us to a direct vote upon the motion to strike out these sections of the bill.

Mr. REED. Are the amendments to be further debated?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Well, the previous question has not been ordered on the passage of the bill, but I do not want to debate it any further.

The SPEAKER. To accomplish the purpose of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] it will be necessary that the motion to recommit be withdrawn and that the House reconsider the vote by which the bill was ordered to a third reading. The bill has in fact been read a third time.

Mr. HOLMAN. Then, Mr. Speaker, I withdraw the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana, withdrawing his motion to recommit, asks unanimous consent that the vote by which the bill was ordered to a third reading be reconsidered. Is there objection?

Mr. DINGLEY. I object.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I hope the gentleman will not object. If he is a friend of the bill I ask him not to object. It is a gentleman who is opposed to the bill that is making the request. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Is it necessary that the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] should have the unanimous consent to withdraw his motion to recommit; there has been no vote upon it.

The SPEAKER. Unanimous consent was asked to reconsider the vote by which the bill was ordered to a third reading. Is there objection to the proposition of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

The SPEAKER. The bill is now before the House.

Mr. HOLMAN. Now, Mr. Speaker, I offer the amendment which I send to the desk.

The amendment was read, as follows:

Amend by striking out sections 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, and 73.

Mr. HOLMAN. Those are the sections which provide for the office of superintendent of public documents.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the sections, so that the House may understand what it is proposed to strike out.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I think the House understands exactly the substance of those sections. They are, as I have already said, the sections which create a superintendent of public documents and confer upon him certain powers.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Speaker, I ask that the sections be read.

Mr. HOLMAN. I ask unanimous consent, inasmuch as those sections are understood by the House, that the reading be dispensed with.

Mr. PEEL. I object.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the sections.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 62. The Joint Committee on Printing is hereby authorized and directed to appoint a clerk to said joint committee, who shall be superintendent of documents and be entitled to receive a salary of $2,500 per annum. He shall have general supervision of the distribution of all public documents, and to his custody shall be committed all documents subject to distribution when a member so desires, excepting those printed for the special official use of the Executive Departments, which shall be delivered to said Departments, and those printed for the use of the two Houses of Congress, which shall be delivered to the folding rooms of said Houses and distributed or delivered ready for distribution to Members and Delegates upon their order by the superintendents of the folding rooms of the Senate and House of Representatives.

SEC. 63. When desired all orders for the distribution of documents by Senators, Representatives, or Delegates, who may so request, and orders from Departments shall be sent to the superintendent of documents on franked or other labels or in lists, which shall be kept confidential, and which shall give the name and address of each and every party to whom documents are ordered sent; and it shall be the duty of the superintendent of documents to establish such a system of registration by card index, or otherwise, as will prevent duplication in the distribution of documents, and such a system of notification by mail as will most effectually secure the reception of documents by parties in whose behalf they are ordered: Provided, That when the same document is ordered sent to the same party by two members of Congress or Departments the sender whose order is last received shall be notified of the fact that said order is a duplicate and it shall not be executed, except upon further special order.

Exchanges of documents among members of Congress shall, upon their request, be made by the superintendent of documents, or by the superintendents of the folding rooms of the respective Houses; and accounts of such exchanges shall be kept by them.

SEC. 64. The superintendent of documents is also charged with the sale of public documents, except as herein otherwise provided; and all documents hitherto published for sale by other officers of the Government shall be turned over to him. He is hereby authorized to sell any publication of the Government at cost, as estimated by the Public Printer, and based upon printing from stereotyped plates, excepting old and rare volumes, which shall be sold at an appraised value, to be determined by the superintendent of documents, the Public Printer, and the Librarian of Congress, acting as a commission for this purpose; but only one copy of any document shall be sold to the same individual, excepting in the case of libraries or schools, by which additional copies are desired for separate departments thereof. All moneys received from the sale of documents shall be covered into the Treasury monthly and placed to the credit of the general fund for public printing.

SEC. 65. The superintendent of documents shall, at the close of each regular session of Congress, prepare and publish a comprehensive index of public documents, beginning with the Fifty-second Congress, upon such plan as shall be approved by the Joint Committee on Printing; and the Public Printer shall, immediately upon its publication, deliver to him a copy of each and every document printed by the Government Printing Office; and the head of each of the Executive Departments, bureaus, and offices of the Government shall deliver to him a copy of each and every document issued or published by such department, bureau, or office not confidential in its character. He shall also prepare and print in one volume a consolidated index of Congressional documents, and shall index such single volumes of documents as the Joint Committee on Printing shall direct.

SEC. 66. The superintendent of documents shall report annually to Congress the number of documents received by him from the Public Printer, and the disposition made of the same; the aggregate number of volumes, orders for the distribution of which have been received from each House of Congress; the number of copies of each document sold by him, and the price per copy, and also the number of employés in his office, the duties assigned, and wages paid them.

SEC. 67. Upon the appointment of the superintendent of documents the office of superintendent of documents in the Department of the Interior shall be abolished. The clerks and employés of said office shall be transferred to the office of the superintendent of documents herein established, and shall remain until their successors shall be appointed: Provided, That their salaries shall continue to be paid by the disbursing officer of the Department of the Interior from the appropriations already made, until other provision for said salaries shall be made. The superintendent of documents shall appoint all employés of his office authorized by Congress.

SEC. 68. All official correspondence of the superintendent of documents and all replies to the same shall be entitled to free transmission by mail, and he shall be entitled to frank public documents: Provided, That in the transmission of such mail matter envelopes, labels, or postal cards are used on which the name of the office and the penalty clause are printed.

SEC. 69. The Public Printer is hereby authorized and directed, upon the requisition of the superintendent of documents, to furnish such blanks and to do such printing and binding as are required by his office, the cost of the same to be charged against the appropriation for printing and binding for Congress: Provided, That whenever there shall be found in the standard dictionaries varied spelling of a word it shall be the duty of the Public Printer to use the simplest form.

The Sergeant at-Arms of the Senate, Doorkeeper of the House, and the Public Printer shall provide convenient office, storage, and distributing rooms for the use of the superintendent of documents.

SEC. 70. All documents at present remaining in charge of the several Executive Departments, bureaus, and offices of the Government not required for official use shall be delivered to the superintendent of documents, and hereafter all public documents accumulating in said Departments, bureaus, and offices not needed for official use shall be annually turned over to the superintendent of documents for distribution or sale. The Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, and the Clerk and Doorkeeper of the House, shall cause an invoice to be made of all books stored in and about the Capitol other than those belonging to the quota of Members of Congress and Delegates and to the Senate library; and all such documents, unless ordered to be retained by the chairmen of the committees by which they have been stored, shall be transferred to the superintendent of documents for distribution and sale, as provided in this act, and such invoicing and transfer shall be made annually hereafter.

Where, in the division among Senators, Representatives, and Delegates of extra copies of documents printed for the use of Congress, there shall be a remainder beyond the number of 25 to each House of Congress, the surplus beyond 25 shall be turned over by the superintendents of the folding rooms to the superintendent of documents for distribution and sale by him under the provisions of this law. All documents delivered to the superintendent of documents from accumulations thereof in the Executive Departments, or received from officers of the two Houses, shall be distributed by him, first, to public and school libraries for the purpose of completing broken sets; second, to public and school libraries that have not been supplied with any portion of such sets; and, third, to other parties, which persons and libraries shall be named to him by Senators, Representatives, and Delegates in Congress; and in this distribution the superintendent of documents shall see that as far as possible an equal allowance is made to each member of Congress.

SEC. 71. A catalogue of Government publications shall be prepared by the superintendent of documents on the first day of each month, which shall be printed in the Official Gazette of the Patent Office, and during sessions of Congress also in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, and shall show the documents printed during the month, where obtainable, and the price thereof. On the 1st day of July of each year he shall prepare and print in pamphlet form for distribution and sale 2,000 copies of a catalogue of Government publications issued during the year, giving the price of each and where purchasable.

SEC. 72. When extra numbers in excess of 5,000 of any document shall be ordered by Congress, there shall be delivered to the superintendent of documents 500 copies, to be taken ratably from the two Houses of Congress; and where less than 5,000 extra numbers are ordered the superintendent shall receive 10 per centum of the number. Said copies shall be distributed by the superintendent of documents to free public libraries having more than 1,000 volumes, other than Government publications, which have not been designated as depositories, preference being given to those named by Senators, Representatives, and Delegates.

SEC. 73. The superintendent of documents shall thoroughly investigate the condition of all libraries that are now designated depositories, and whenever he shall ascertain that the number of books in any such library other than college libraries is below 1,000, other than Government publications, or it has ceased to be maintained as a public library, he shall strike the same from the list, and the Senator, Representative, or Delegate shall designate another depository that shall meet the conditions herein required.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, if I can have the attention of the House, I will state the parliamentary situation. The motion made by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] on yesterday afternoon, was to recommit the bill to the Committee on Printing with instructions to strike out the sections which have just been read.

These sections relate to the office of superintendent of documents, and define the duty of that officer. If the motion is modified, as the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] now asks that it be modified, so as to allow a vote upon the motion to strike out, that will accomplish the same thing as would be accomplished if his motion made yesterday afternoon were voted upon and adopted by the House, the bill recommitted to the committee and reported back with these sections stricken out. For that reason I have agreed that the vote shall be taken directly on the proposition to strike out, rather than on the proposition to recommit to the Committee on Printing.

Of course the Committee on Printing do not agree to this motion. We are as much opposed to this as to the other, because we believe the bill should pass in its present form. I will not argue the matter further, but simply state the parliamentary status.

Mr. HOLMAN. My friend ought to add that the subject will go finally to a conference committee between the two Houses.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That will be the probable result. If these sections are stricken out, the bill will then go to the Senate. The Senate might accept the bill with the amendments as the House has agreed to them; if it did not do that, and asked for a conference, I take it for granted that the bill would go into conference, and then a final result would be reached.

I hope the vote will now be taken.

Mr. DINGLEY. Before the vote is taken I desire to call the attention of the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON], in charge of the bill, to the fact that in other portions of the bill there are references to this officer, the superintendent of documents, although if these sections are stricken out there would be no provision for the appointment of that officer.

Mr. HOLMAN. But that would be corrected by the conference committee, no doubt.

Mr. DINGLEY. The sections that have been concurred in would not be in the jurisdiction of the conference committee.

Mr. HOLMAN. Of course the conference committee can, if they think proper, report a substitute for the entire bill.

Mr. DINGLEY. The conference committee will have no jurisdiction over any sections except those on which there is a disagreement between the two Houses. Another thing——

Mr. RICHARDSON. Before you pass from that, I will state that there is already a superintendent of documents, and where the references occur in the bill to that officer they would be considered as applicable to the superintendent already in existence.

Mr. DINGLEY. I notice further that the sections which the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] proposes to strike out cover all the provisions relating to the many tons of documents that are now accumulated in the basement of the Capitol.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is true.

Mr. DINGLEY. This great mass of documents will not be distributed, but they will continue in the condition in which they now are, of no use to anyone.

Mr. HOLMAN. But undoubtedly that will be provided for by the action of the Senate or in the conference committee. There is no doubt about that whatever.

Mr. RICHARDSON. It will be in the power of the conference committee to make some disposition of these documents; but if the bill passes and becomes a law with these sections stricken out it will leave these documents in the basement of the Capitol undistributed.

Mr. HOLMAN. It is almost certain, though, that the Senate will ask a conference on this matter.

Mr. DINGLEY. A single word. Here is a bill correcting acknowledged evils relating to the public printing, a bill that has been carefully considered by the joint committee of both the Senate and House for more than eight months, a bill prepared with exceeding care, providing all the necessary machinery for the accomplishment of these reforms——

Mr. HOLMAN. The gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] has the floor and I trust my friend from Maine [Mr. DINGLEY] will not open up this debate again.

Mr. DINGLEY. I understood the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] to yield to me.

Mr. HOLMAN. I hope the gentleman will not open up this debate. We have discussed the bill already a great deal.

Mr. DINGLEY. Do I understand that there has been an agreement that this amendment shall not be debated?

Mr. HOLMAN. There was an understanding that the previous question would be called after a statement of the effect of this motion which I have made.

Mr. DINGLEY. It is a proposition which practically destroys the effect of the bill.

Mr. HOLMAN. The object is not to open up a general debate. I hope my friend from Maine [Mr. DINGLEY] will not debate it further.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The agreement between the gentleman from Indiana and myself was that I would not debate the bill, and I am not going to do that.

Mr. DINGLEY. But I entered into no such agreement as that. Here is an amendment offered, which is open to debate.

Mr. HOLMAN. The gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] agreed substantially that after a statement of the effect and operation of the proposed motion, so far as he was concerned there would be no further debate, and of course I understood that the debate had already closed, else I should not have withdrawn the demand for the previous question. If debate is to be opened up, what has been agreed to will be entirely lost, because it will lead to general debate at once. I think we have debated this bill very fully.

Mr. DINGLEY. But this particular portion has not been debated at all except by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN].

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, by anybody who wanted to debate it.

Mr. DINGLEY. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] should have offered this amendment when we were proceeding to the consideration of the bill by sections.

Mr. HOLMAN. I tried to do it. I asked unanimous consent to do that very thing.

Mr. DINGLEY. But there was no need for asking unanimous consent. When we reached this section you could have offered your amendment.

Mr. HOLMAN. I did not understand the scope of this new bureau until after we had passed the sixty-second section.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Regular order.

Mr. DINGLEY. What I am afraid of in this matter is that if this amendment prevails, this being the short session, we shall fail to reach the reforms attempted by this bill, which it has been stated will save from $200,000 to $300,000 in the public printing, and it seems to me this result is too important to be lost on the simple question of the compensation of one officer at $2,500 a year.

Mr. HOLMAN. One officer! My friend ought not to say that. My friend ought to say a bureau, no man can tell how big.

Mr. DINGLEY. But this simply abolishes one officer in the Interior Department.

Mr. HOLMAN. Oh, well, it is a bureau, which will lead to hundreds of employés perhaps.

Mr. KILGORE. Now, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] if this proposition of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] prevails, then the documents in the basement to the credit of each member will remain as they are?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Undoubtedly.

Mr. KILGORE. Suppose it does not prevail, what becomes of the documents which are in the basement of the Capitol to my credit, for instance?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It does not touch them at all.

Mr. HEARD. It does not touch them in either case.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The documents we are speaking of are not documents that have ever been placed to the credit of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. KILGORE] or any other member of Congress. The documents referred to are those that have never been allotted or assigned to any human being.

Now I ask for a vote upon the proposition.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN].

The question being taken, the Speaker announced that the ayes seemed to have it.

On a division (demanded by Mr. RICHARDSON) there were—ayes 71, noes 50.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I make the point of no quorum.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee makes the point of no quorum, and the Chair will appoint as tellers the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] and the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN].

The House again divided; and the tellers reported—ayes 105, noes 63.

So the amendment of Mr. HOLMAN was agreed to.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I now move the previous question on the third reading of the Senate bill as amended.

The previous question was ordered.

The bill as amended was ordered to a third reading; and was accordingly read the third time.

The SPEAKER. The question now is, Shall the bill pass?

The question being taken, the Speaker announced that the ayes seemed to have it.

On a division (demanded by Mr. ENGLISH) there were—ayes 84, noes 32.

Mr. ALDERSON. I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were refused.

So the bill passed.

On motion of Mr. RICHARDSON, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill passed was laid on the table.

ASSISTANT CLERK, COMMITTEE ON CLAIMS.

Mr. BUNN. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the immediate consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That an assistant clerk be allowed to the Committee on Claims during the present session of Congress, at a compensation of $6 per day, to be paid from December 5, 1892, out of the contingent fund of the House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. BUNN] asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which has just been read. Is there objection?

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I believe that committee already has an assistant clerk.

Mr. BUNN. They had an assistant clerk during the long session, but the appointment was only authorized for that session. This simply continues what has been allowed heretofore.

Mr. HOLMAN. Will there then be three clerks?

Mr. BUNN. Oh, no; there will only be one clerk and one assistant clerk, the same as heretofore.

Mr. HOLMAN. But you have one assistant clerk now?

Mr. BUNN. No, we have not. We had one during the last session, but we have none now. The resolution adopted at the last session only authorized the appointment of this assistant clerk for the first session of the Fifty-second Congress. This resolution is to continue that appointment.

Mr. HOLMAN. To continue the same appointment that was allowed for the last session?

Mr. BUNN. That is all.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. BURROWS. May I ask what is the object of having an assistant clerk at this session? The committee does not expect to report anything new, I presume.

Mr. BUNN. The committee is besieged by members of Congress with work, and we intend to work regularly and steadily, and make reports. We are very busy. This request has never been refused heretofore.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

There being no objection, the resolution was considered and agreed to.

CHINESE EXCLUSION.

Mr. ANDREW. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer at this time a petition of citizens of Massachusetts, and have it referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs; and also request that the body of the petition may be printed in the RECORD, as it will only occupy a very small space.

There being no objection, the body of the petition was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, and referred as requested.

It is as follows:

Petition of Bishop Phillips Brooks, Charles W. Eliot, William Endicott, jr., William Lloyd Garrison, Samuel Johnson, Robert Treat Paine, Rufus S. Frost, Archibald M. Howe, Norwood P. Hallowell, Richard P. Hallowell, Alexander H. Rice, A. E. Pillsbury, John E. Sanford, William M. Olin, Jabez Fox, Rev. Solon W. Bush, Rev. Minot J. Savage, Rev. A. H. Plumb, Rev. George C. Lorimer, Rev. A. P. Peabody, Rev. John Cuckson, Rev. William E. Griffiths, Rev. Robert Macdonald, Rev. Samuel May, Rev. Frederick B. Allen, Rev. Reuben Kidner, Rev. C. A. Bartol, Rev. S. H. Hayes, Rev. A. J. Gordon, Rev. Charles Follen Lee, Prof. F. J. Childs, Prof. W. W. Goodwin, Prof. J. B. Thayer, Prof. Charles E. Fay, Darwin E. Ware, William H. Baldwin, Samuel B. Capen, George S. Hale, Mary A. Livermore, Rev. Percy Browne, Francis J. Garrison, Edna Dean Proctor, Rev. O. B. Frothingham, Rev. Louis Albert Banks, Rev. Samuel E. Herrick, Lucy Stone, Rev. Charles G. Ames, Charles R. Codman, Osborne Howes, jr., and twenty-five hundred other citizens of Massachusetts asking for the repeal of an act to prohibit the coming of Chinese persons into the United States, approved May 5, 1892, and known as the "Geary bill," excepting, however, the first section thereof, whereby all laws now in force prohibiting and regulating the coming of Chinese persons into the United States are hereby continued in force for a period of ten years from May 5, 1892.

DEFICIENCIES IN APPROPRIATIONS.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting an estimate of deficiencies in appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year 1893 and prior years; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. BUNN. I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House to consider bills on the Private Calendar.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman that that motion has been made and voted down by the House, which was equivalent to an order to dispense with private business for to-day.

Mr. RICHARDSON. But, Mr. Speaker, I submit that the reason the House voted down the motion was that they wanted to take up and pass the printing bill.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. I think the motion is now in order, Mr. Speaker, because other business has supervened since the vote was taken.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman from Mississippi that a vote of the House refusing to go into Committee of the Whole to consider business on the Private Calendar, has been always held, so far as the Chair is informed, by presiding officers to be an expression of the judgment of the House that private business should be dispensed with for the day, and public business, or business of a general character, considered.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. But I make the suggestion, Mr. Speaker, that while that may be correct ordinarily, perhaps the very business just disposed of may have operated upon the minds of some members to induce them to vote down the proposition when first submitted, whereas they would favor it now.

Mr. FORNEY. Would a motion to adjourn be in order?

The SPEAKER. It would.

Mr. FORNEY. I move that the House now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and accordingly (at 1 o'clock and 39 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until Monday next at 12 o'clock m.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, Mr. BUTLER from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, reported the bill (H. R. 9776) granting a pension to Marilla Tenney, which was delivered to the Clerk, ordered to be printed, and referred to the Committee of the Whole House. (Report No. 2148.)

BILLS, MEMORIALS, AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills and a memorial of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. TERRY: A bill (H. R. 9801) to put surgical instruments upon the free list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DINGLEY: A bill (H. R. 9802) to amend and define section 4347 of the Revised Statutes, relating to transportation of merchandise between ports of the United States—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. COOMBS: A bill (H. R. 9803) for the protection of distinguishing flags and symbols used on vessels of the United States—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. BELTZHOOVER: A bill (H. R. 9804) to regulate immigration—to the Select Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. SCOTT: A bill (H. R. 9805) to prevent the employment of apprentices in the Government Printing Office or other departments doing printing for the public service—to the Committee on Printing.

By Mr. WILLIAMS of Massachusetts: A bill (H. R. 9806) to discontinue the purchase of silver bullion, and to restore to the credit of the national banks the deposits received for the redemption of circulating notes—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

By Mr. FORNEY: A memorial of the Joint Assembly of the State of Alabama, favoring the construction of the Nicaragua Canal and its control by the United States Government—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

PRIVATE BILLS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills of the following titles were presented and referred, as indicated below:

By Mr. BELTZHOOVER: A bill (H. R. 9807) for the relief of Anna V. Ingerton, widow of the late William H. Ingerton, lieutenant-colonel of the Thirteenth Tennessee Cavalry—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BURROWS: A bill (H. R. 9808) for the relief of Polly Hurd—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9809) for the relief of William Trumble—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. CURTIS: A bill (H. R. 9810) to increase the pension of Julia Bews—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GROUT: A bill (H. R. 9811) to correct the military record of Frank Bruno—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9812) granting a pension to Eugene Howe, Company A, Sixth Vermont Volunteers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also a bill(H. R. 9813) to pension Mary Brown, of Berlin, Vt.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 9814) for the relief of George W. Jones—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. RUSK: A bill (H. R. 9815) for the relief of Henry Barnes—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. SIPE: A bill (H. R. 9816) granting a pension to Mary A. Freeman—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: A bill (H. R. 9817) for the relief of George F. McReynolds, late of Company B, Tenth Illinois Cavalry—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9818) to grant a pension to Edward Bell, late of Company L, Tenth Illinois Cavalry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WADSWORTH: A bill (H. R. 9819) for the relief of Charles Winters, a quartermaster, United States Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By Mr. ANDREW: Petition of William Lloyd Garrison and others, asking for the repeal of an act to prohibit the coming of Chinese persons to the United States—to the Select Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. BELKNAP: Petition of members of the medical profession of the city of Grand Rapids, Mich., asking an appropriation to assist in defraying the expenses of the Pan-American Medical Congress—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. BOWMAN: Petition of A. L. Harvey and 51 others, of Logan, Iowa, asking that the Mexican pension laws be amended so as to increase the pensions of Mexican soldiers from $8 to $12 a month—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. CRAWFORD: Petition of citizens of Dellwood, N. C., in respect to keeping the World's Fair closed on Sundays—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. GORMAN: Petition of the faculty of the State normal school of Ypsilanti, Mich., praying for the passage of a law for the establishment of the metric system of weights and measures—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

By Mr. GROUT: Copy of evidence on file in the War Department in application of Frank Bruno for an honorable discharge—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, memorial in the matter of Betsy Bush's pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Sophronia Baily in the matter of her pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, memorial of S. Hartington, widowed mother of Eugene Howe, Company A, Sixth Volunteers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa: Petition of George W. Jones, for settlement of accounts as minister resident to Bogota—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, petition of citizens of Iowa, in favor of the Hon. George W. Jones, late minister to the United States of Colombia—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, petition of citizens of Iowa, in behalf of George W. Jones, for an act of Congress—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. O'FERRALL: Petition of Newton Woodyard, of Prince William County, Va., for relief—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR: Seven petitions of citizens of Carrollton, Carroll County, Ohio, numbering, respectively, twenty-seven, thirty-four, thirty-nine, thirty-eight, eighty-two, and thirty-four, all praying that the law closing the gates of the World's Fair on Sunday be not repealed—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Tennessee: Petition of J. A. Galbraith, of Greenville, Tenn., with accompanying papers—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: Three affidavits to accompany bill for the relief of George F. McReynolds, late of Company B, Tenth Illinois Cavalry—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. WIKE: Petition of Dr. E. B. Montgomery and others, medical men of Quincy, Ill., asking an appropriation for the World's Medical Congress—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. WILSON of West Virginia: Four petitions of West Virginia as follows: of Zimri Bane, of Mineral County; of George W. Baughman, administrator of Abraham Hershman, deceased, late of Barbour County; of Melvin Currence, of Randolph County; of James C. Sudwick, of Hampshire County, each praying that his war claim be referred to the Court of Claims under the provisions of the Bowman act—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. WISE: Preamble and resolution of the national Nicaragua canal convention, urging upon Congress the importance of constructing said canal—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

SENATE.

MONDAY, December 12, 1892.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D.D.

J. L. M. IRBY, a Senator from the State of South Carolina, and FRANCIS E. WARREN, a Senator from the State of Wyoming, appeared in their seats to-day.

The Journal of the proceedings of Thursday last was read and approved.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate communications from the Secretary of State, transmitting, in accordance with the provisions of the act of Congress approved February 3, 1887, true copies of the certificates of the final ascertainment of the electors for President and Vice-President appointed in the States of New Jersey, Colorado, Connecticut, and Ohio, at the election held therein on the 8th of November, 1892, as received by him from the governors of those States; which were ordered to be printed, and, with the accompanying papers, ordered to lie on the table.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the Postmaster-General, acknowledging the receipt of a resolution of the 6th instant, relative to increased compensation claimed by letter-carriers under existing law in cities which contain a population of 75,000 inhabitants, and stating that an answer to such resolution would be prepared and transmitted as early as practicable; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the Postmaster-General, stating, in response to the resolution of December 6 relative to the claim of letter-carriers in cities which contain a population of 75,000 inhabitants to a larger claim for compensation than heretofore received, that the pay of carriers at those offices at the increased rate as carriers of the first class from July 1, 1890, will require a special appropriation of $50,000, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented memorials of H. McCain and other citizens of Memphis, Tenn.; of J. R. Stewart and other citizens of Huntsville, Tex.; of H. B. Henley and other citizens of Morrilton, Ark.; of Robert B. Brant and other citizens of Hope, Ark.; of George W. Smith and 23 other citizens of Texas; of A. H. Harbers and 41 other citizens of Texas; of W. H. Pollock, jr., and 39 other citizens of Mississippi, and of Charles Cohen and 40 other citizens of North Carolina, remonstrating against the passage of the antioption bill, which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. HARRIS presented petitions of the Tennessee State Grange, of Brownsville, Tenn.; of the Washington County (Tenn.) Farmers and Laborers' Union; of John B. Wilson, of Cheery Heights, near Rome, Tenn.; of sundry farmers and citizens of Shelby County, Tenn., and of citizens of Hornbeak, Tenn., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a memorial of the Norfolk and Portsmouth (Va.) Cotton Exchange, remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. KYLE presented a petition of the Twenty-fourth General Assembly of the State of Iowa, praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented petitions from P. M. Rowland and 23 other citizens of Yankton County; of H. E. Parker and 20 other citizens of Minnehaha County; of A. H. Roguess and 22 other citizens of Yankton County; of Van C. Shaffer and 21 other citizens of Minnehaha County, and of M. Keeley and 23 other citizens of Cass County, all in the State of South Dakota, praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain now existing between the elevators, millers, and railroads at Minneapolis, Minn., and St. Louis, Mo., and praying for the postponement of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill until such committee shall report; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented the petition of W. S. Major and 20 other citizens of Hand and Beadle Counties, in the State of South Dakota, praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. TURPIE presented petitions of the Journeyman Tailors' Unions of Columbus, South Bend, Indianapolis, Lafayette, Attica, Anderson, Greenfield, Huntington, Richmond, and Terre Haute, all in the State of Indiana, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of the Business Men's Association of Evansville, Ind., praying for the passage of legislation looking to the ownership, control, and completion of the Nicaragua Canal by the United States Government; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also presented the petition of Rev. J. H. Walters, pastor of Methodist Episcopal Church, and sundry other citizens of Montpelier, Ind., and a petition of the Christian Endeavor Society of Fort Wayne, Ind., praying Congress to renew its rescinded action excluding the sale of liquor on the grounds of the World's Columbian Exposition and that the gates of the Exposition be closed on Sunday; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. VEST presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' unions of Sedalia and St. Louis, Mo., praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BUTLER presented a memorial of citizens of Lancaster, S. C., remonstrating against the passage of the antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. SHERMAN presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' Unions of Zanesville, Findlay, and Tiffin, all in the State of Ohio, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of 83 citizens of Medina County, Ohio, and a petition of 11 citizens of Richland County, Ohio, praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. MANDERSON presented petitions of R. S. Baker and 21 other citizens of Lancaster County; of W. L. Wilcox and 22 other citizens of Lancaster County; of W. C. Smith and 21 other citizens of Lancaster County; of E. R. Andrews and 23 other citizens of Saunders County; of D. T. Hunt and 46 other citizens of Lancaster County; of M. Peterson and 24 other citizens of Lancaster County; of Thomas Cochran and 23 other citizens of Lancaster County; of C. H. Lee and 24 other citizens of Lancaster County; of J. C. Palmer and 20 other citizens of Adams County; of John Roach and 22 other citizens of Lancaster County; of O. H. Farrens and 20 other citizens of Adams County; and of M. J. Wickard and 23 other citizens of Douglas County, all in the State of Nebraska, praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depress the price of grain, and asking to have the consideration of the antioption bill postponed until such committee shall report; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. PEFFER presented a petition of the United Presbyterian Church of Glen Elden, Kans., praying for the closing of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. PEFFER. I present a paper intended to be in the nature of a petition, but it refers to several different matters that are not cognizable by one committee, and I will briefly state its purport.

It is first an expression of thanks to God, and to both Houses of Congress, and to the President for the passage of an antilottery law, and prays for the passage of the Hatch-Washburn antioption bill.

The next paragraph is a petition praying this body to stand by its action on the closing of the World's Fair on Sunday, and to retrace its steps in relation to the sale of intoxicating liquors on the World's Fair grounds.

The next paragraph is a petition to Congress praying for legislation to restrict immigration by consular examinations, educational tests, and a high tariff on immigrants.

The last paragraph is a petition to Congress and to the President to accomplish the submission of the proposed sixteenth amendment, forbidding State Legislatures (as only Congress is now forbidden) to unite church and state, and especially forbidding what is the very essence of such union, namely, sectarian appropriations.

This paper comes from the Presbyterian Church of Washington, Kans., and inasmuch as it relates chiefly to matters that concern the Columbian Exposition, I move that it be referred to the Select Committee on the Quadro-Centennial.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. DOLPH. I present a copy of the petition just presented by the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEFFER]. It is a petition from citizens of Milton, Oregon. I move that the petition be referred to the Select Committee on the Quadro-Centennial.

Mr. PLATT. What is the nature of the petition?

Mr. DOLPH. I say it is a copy of the petition which has just been presented by the Senator from Kansas, but from a different place. He has fully stated its contents, but I can give the contents if the Senator from Connecticut desires it.

Mr. PLATT. Just in a word.

Mr. DOLPH. It starts out with the following resolution:

Resolved, That we rejoice and thank God, and Congress also, with the President, for the Sabbath closing of the World's Fair.

It authorizes "our presiding officer to forward this and the following resolutions to the President and through our Congressman and the Senators residing nearest to us to both Houses of Congress, in duplicate."

It resolves further:

That we also express our heartfelt thanks to God and to both Houses of Congress, and to the President, for the passage of the antilottery law some months since, and to the House for the passage of the Hatch-Washburn bill, which we hereby petition the Senate and President to complete and so suppress gambling in foods.

The paper also embraces the following resolution:

That we petition Congress to renew its rescinded action excluding liquor-selling from the World's Fair, taken in the last session by both Houses, on the temperance ground alone, but now called for with the added reason that to allow the carrying out of the Directors' contracts for the sale of liquor would violate two laws of Illinois, and so the act of Congress by which the Fair was instituted, and which requires that the State law shall be observed in the contracts and conduct of the Fair, to which violation of State and national laws we urge the President, after due investigation through the Attorney-General, to call the attention of Congress.

Then there is the following resolution:

That we petition Congress and the President to accomplish the submission of the proposed Sixteenth amendment, forbidding State legislatures (as only Congress is now forbidden) to unite church and state, and especially forbidding, what is the very essence of such union, sectarian appropriations.

Mr. PADDOCK. It seems to me that the petition should go to the Committee on Education and Labor. It is a typewritten petition, and it is not unlikely that a large number of such petitions will come here.

Mr. DOLPH. This petition was adopted at a public meeting held at Milton, Oregon, and is signed by the presiding officer of the meeting.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. What reference shall be made of the petition?

Mr. PADDOCK. I think it should be referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. DOLPH. I have no objection to that reference.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. At the request of the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEFFER] a similar petition presented by him was referred to the Select Committee on the Quadro-Centennial.

Mr. PADDOCK. As the Senator from Kansas is not in the Chamber at this moment, I ask that the reference of the petition presented by him be reconsidered, and that that petition and the one just presented by the Senator from Oregon lie on the table for the present.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That course will be pursued if there be no objection. The Chair hears none, and the petitions will lie on the table.

Mr. DOLPH presented the petition of James Le Duc and other citizens of Oregon, praying for an extension of time to make payment for forfeited railroad lands; which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. WILSON presented the petition of C. D. Miller and 25 other citizens of Woodbury, Iowa, and the petition of B. H. Shaw and 24 other citizens of Woodbury, Iowa, praying for the appointment of a committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of the Women's Club of Chicago, Ill., praying for a repeal of the law closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Unions of Chicago, Danville, and Streator, all in the State of Illinois, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of the Chicago (Ill.) Ministerial Union, praying that the World's Columbian Exposition be closed on Sunday; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. CAMERON presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of Philadelphia, Pa., praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented memorials of the Commercial Exchange of Philadelphia, Pa., of the Grain and Flour Exchange of Pittsburg, Pa., and of the Philadelphia (Pa) Board of Trade, remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. PADDOCK presented petitions of E. Sayrs and 23 other citizens of Saunders County; of H. C. Rodell and 12 other citizens of Dodge County; of S. B. Robison and 23 other citizens of Lancaster County; of H. Brown and 22 other citizens of Madison County; of Alex. Moore and 23 other citizens of Douglas County; of J. L. Webb and 23 other citizens of Gage County; of Peter Simpson and 19 other citizens of Adams County; of J. P. Wilson and 23 other citizens of Douglas County; of B. W. Stiles and 23 other citizens of Lancaster County; of F. D. Wilson and 23 other citizens of Lancaster County; of Robert Grimm and 19 other citizens of Butler County, and of Joseph Brott and 25 other citizens of Gage County, all in the State of Nebraska, praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain, and also that the consideration of the antioption bill be postponed until such committee shall report; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. McMILLAN presented the petition of Gen. S. B. Holabird Garrison No. 29, regular Army and Navy Union of Fort Mackinac, Mich., praying for the passage of the Senate bill providing for the retirement of the enlisted men of the U. S. Army after twenty-five years of service; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. MILLS presented memorials of sundry citizens of Waxahachie, San Antonio, Sherman, Greenville, Kingston, and of Johnson County, all in the State of Texas, remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. QUAY presented a memorial of the Grain and Flour Exchange of Pittsburg, Pa., remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of 90 citizens of Lawrence County, Pa., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' unions of Philadelphia, New Castle, Pittsburg, and Warren, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented memorials of the First, Second, Third, and Fifth Presbyterian churches of Pittsburg, Pa., remonstrating against the repeal of the present law closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. WASHBURN presented resolutions adopted by the Chamber of Commerce of St. Paul, Minn., approving the general principles of what is known as the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of citizens of Minneapolis, Minn., praying for the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting the passage of any legislation respecting an establishment of religion, or making an appropriation of money for any sectarian purpose; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I present several petitions purporting to come from farmers of my State, praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depress the price of grain, and asking to have the consideration of the antioption bill deferred until such committee shall report. All the petitions are postmarked Leavenworth, Kans., and they are all alike. I move that the petitions be referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. PETTIGREW presented a petition of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Huron, S. Dak., signed by F. D. Newhouse, pastor, and members of the congregation, praying that Congress do not repeal the law requiring the closing of the World's Columbian Fair on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. GORDON presented memorials of citizens of Elberton, West Point, Augusta, and Fort Valley, all in the State of Georgia, remonstrating against any further consideration of the antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. PERKINS presented petitions of L. M. Fall and 18 other citizens of Reno County; of J. H. Ramsey and 19 other citizens of Sedgwick County; of C. A. Baker and 20 other citizens of Cowley County; of B. Jacobs and 19 other citizens of Harvey County; of D. N. Hicks and 20 other citizens of Geary County; of W. H. Gorden and 41 other citizens of Cowley County, and of W. B. Lakin and 30 other citizens of Harvey County, all in the State of Kansas, praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depress the price of grain, and asking for the postponement of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill until such committee shall report; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union, No. 120, of Topeka, Kans., praying for the passage of House bill No. 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. HANSBROUGH presented the petition of J. P. Harris and 23 other citizens of Cass County; of W. W. Bell and 21 other citizens of Crawford County, and of N. Ogans and 23 other citizens of Barnes County, all in the State of North Dakota, praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain, and asking to have the consideration of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill postponed until such committee shall report; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

BRIG VULTURE.

Mr. DAWES. I present the report of the Court of Claims in the case of the brig Vulture, a French spoliation claim as found in Miscellaneous Document No. 41, of the House of Representatives, second session, Fifty-first Congress, which I move be referred to the Committee on Claims, together with the original documents now on file in the office of the Secretary of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. DOLPH, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom was referred the bill (S. 3382) to authorize a corrected patent to be issued for the donation land claim of Wheelock Simmons and wife, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE SITE.

Mr. MANDERSON. The Committee on Printing of the Senate was charged by a resolution of the Senate with the duty of making exploration looking to a new site for the Government Printing Office. The Senate committee invited the House Committee on Printing to participate in its deliberations upon this matter. I am now charged by the Senate committee with the duty of making a report. I report a joint resolution and ask that it may be twice read and placed on the Calendar, with the favorable report of the committee thereon.

The joint resolution (S. R. 120) making available the sum of $250,000, appropriated in 1890 and suspended in 1891, to provide accommodations for the Government Printing Office was read twice by its title.

PUBLICATION OF ELEVENTH CENSUS.

Mr. HALE. Near the close of the last session the bill (H. R. 8582) to provide for the publication of the Eleventh Census came to this body and was referred to the Committee on the Census. It should have gone to the Committee on Printing. I move that the Committee on the Census be discharged from the further consideration of the bill, and that it be referred to the Committee on Printing, stating that it is important the matter should have the early attention of the committee. I hope the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON] will bring his committee to work upon it as soon as possible, because the legislation is needed at once.

Mr. MANDERSON. That will be done, of course; but I should like very much that the Committee on Printing should have the benefit of some information in the Senate from the Senator on behalf of the Committee on the Census as to its views upon the bill, whether it reaches the matter fully or not.

Mr. HALE. I think it is a very good bill. I have examined it and compared it with other bills of this character. It is not an extravagant bill. If it were not for the fact that it naturally should go to the Senator's committee, I would have no hesitation in reporting it myself from the Committee on the Census.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Committee on the Census will be discharged from the further consideration of the bill, and it will be referred to the Committee on Printing, if there be no objection.

MARITIME OFFENSES.

Mr. HOAR. I am directed by the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2625) to provide for the punishment of offenses on the high seas, to report it favorably, with two amendments. The bill is a very important one, and at the same time very simple, and one which I think will meet with no opposition. I ask that it may be considered now.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read at length for information.

The Chief Clerk read the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. CALL. If the Senator from Massachusetts who reported the bill has no objection I should be glad to have it printed and lie over, so that we can see it in print as proposed to be amended.

Mr. HOAR. I will state for the information of the Senator that this bill merely extends the existing law—which punishes offenses by persons belonging to the crew on board an American vessel—to persons other than members of the crew, passengers or persons transiently on board the ship; and it does not in any other respect change the existing law. The existing law is that for all offenses on the high seas the admiralty jurisdiction of the United States attaches. Wherever there is a concurrent jurisdiction of the State and the nation, as on the Mississippi River, on the Great Lakes, and in ports, there the jurisdiction is left entirely to the State of all crimes except maritime crimes proper, like mutiny or resisting the authority of the captain. The bill simply remedies this deficiency in the existing law. Of course, if the Senator wants to have it go over I have no objection; but I would rather have the bill passed now, if the Senator does not object to its present consideration.

Mr. CALL. The point which I desire to examine in the bill is whether the question of "aiding and abetting" a conspiracy, which are very shadowy terms, may not put all passengers on board ship more or less in danger of oppression, a punishment at the mere arbitary will of the captain. I am very much opposed to the enactment of laws punishing persons for "conspiracy" to commit or for "aiding and abetting" in the commission of crimes without defining with great clearness and precision the acts which shall constitute "aiding and abetting" or shall be a conspiracy, but I do not wish to oppose the wishes of the Senator from Massachusetts in reference to the immediate consideration of the bill.

Mr. HOAR. A passenger could only be punished in a case where the crew would be punished by the existing law. However, the bill may lie over.

Mr. FRYE. If the Senator will pardon me, the coastwise steamers are now entirely defenseless. They are absolutely in the hands of any mob of immigrants they may be carrying, and all the owners and officers unite in asking for this legislation. The matter has been long in Congress. I presented the bill the first of last session, but for certain reasons it has been before the Judiciary Committee, and it was not finally acted upon until this morning. I am very anxious that it shall be passed and go to the other House, so that it may have action there.

Mr. HOAR. Perhaps the Senator from Florida will allow the bill to pass, as the whole discussion necessary has been had. He can look at it afterwards, and if he finds any difficulty in it he may enter a motion to reconsider. I shall not object to such a motion.

Mr. CALL. I will withdraw any objection to the consideration of the bill. My doubt in regard to it was as to the expediency of legislation which extends the crime of conspiracy, or uses the language "aiding and abetting," which practically means that whatever the judge and the jury shall decide to be a conspiracy is a conspiracy, or is "aiding and abetting," and that it places the passengers on board of ships more or less in the power and the arbitrary will of the officers on board the ship. This class of statutory offenses should be done away with rather than extended, because they place the liberty of the citizen in the unrestrained power of a judge who may select a jury obedient to his will and decide what he pleases to be a conspiracy or aiding and abetting. But I withdraw the objection.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendments reported by the Committee on the Judiciary will be stated in their order.

The first amendment was, in section 1, line 4, after the word "or," to strike out the words "in any arm of the sea, or in any river, haven, creek, basin, or bay," and to insert the words "other waters;" so as to read:

That every person not one of the crew who, alone or with others not of the crew, upon the high seas or other waters within the admiralty jurisdiction of the United States, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 2, line 2, after the word "or," to strike out the words, "in any arm of the sea, or in any river, haven, creek, basin, or bay," and to insert the words "other waters;" so as to read:

That every person not one of the crew who, upon the high seas, or other waters within the admiralty jurisdiction of the United States, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. VEST (by request) introduced a bill (S. 3561) to encourage the construction of electric railroads, to facilitate the rapid transportation of the mails, to promote the interests of commerce and travel and to aid in demonstrating the feasibility of the distribution of electrical power for agricultural and other purposes along the line of electric roads, and especially to aid in the construction of a pioneer electric railroad between the cities of Chicago and St. Louis, by the Chicago and St. Louis Electric Railroad Company, and to secure to the Government the use of the same for postal, military, and other purposes at existing rates; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 3562) for the relief of Nicholas Marshall; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3563) to authorize the sale to the Schuylkill River East Side Railroad Company of a lot of ground belonging to the United States Naval Asylum, in the city of Philadelphia, Pa.; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accomnanying papers, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. HOAR introduced a bill (S. 3564) for the relief of Josiah Pickett; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. PROCTOR introduced a bill (S. 3565) to pension Mary Brown, of Berlin, Vt.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HALE introduced a bill (S. 3566) for the relief of Almon Springteer, of Binghamton, N. Y.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 3567) for the relief of Rev. Moses M. Longley; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. FRYE introduced a bill (S. 3568) providing for the establishment and enforcement of rules and regulations for the use and navigation of United States canals and similar works of navigation, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. SHERMAN. I introduce a joint resolution——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will receive a message from the House of Representatives.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O.

TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills:

A bill (S. 139) terminating the reduction in the numbers of the Engineer Corps of the Navy; and

A bill (S. 1940) for the relief of R. B. Woodson.

The message also announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 1549) providing for the public printing and binding and distribution of public documents, with amendments; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

The message further announced that the House had passed a joint resolution (H. Res. 167) relating to the discharge of certain official duties in the office of Register of the Treasury; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

The message also announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills, and they were thereupon signed by the Vice-President:

A bill (S. 1661) granting an increase of pension to John Hallam; and

A bill (H. R. 8868) granting increase of pension to Mary North, a widow of a soldier of war of 1812, and who is 100 years old.

OFFICE OF REGISTER OF THE TREASURY.

Mr. SHERMAN. I see that a joint resolution similar to the one I intended to introduce has been passed by the House of Representatives. I ask that it be read at length, with a view to its passage.

The joint resolution (H. Res. 167) relating to the discharge of certain official duties in the office of Register of the Treasury was read the first time by its title and the second time at length, as follows:

Be it resolved, etc., That during the absence of the Register of the Treasury, and while the Assistant Register is discharging, under the law, the duties of Register during his said absence, the Secretary of the Treasury may, by appointment under his hand and seal, delegate authority to any chief of division or clerk in the office of Register to act as Assistant Register during the said absence of the Register.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

There being no objection, the joint resolution was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. SHERMAN. I have a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, stating that on account of the illness of Gen. Rosecrans it is absolutely necessary to provide some relief to the Assistant Register. If any Senator desires further information on the subject, I will have the letter read; but that is the whole matter. It is to supply temporarily the want of an Assistant Register in the Treasury while Gen. Rosecrans is sick, the Assistant Register being fully occupied with the duties of Register of the Treasury. The letter is in the ordinary form.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Ohio desire to have the letter read?

Mr. SHERMAN. Not unless some other Senator desires it. I have stated the substance of it.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SILVER COINAGE.

Mr. STEWART. I notice an omission in the bill introduced by the Senator from New York [Mr. HILL] to repeal the act of 1890 providing for the purchase of silver bullion, and I propose to supply that omission by additional sections. I presume it will be satisfactory to him, as he is a bimetallist. I ask that the proposed amendment be read, printed, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

The amendment was read, and referred to the Committee on Finance, as follows:

Amendment intended to be proposed by Mr. STEWART to the bill (S. 3534) to repeal the act of July 14, 1890, entitled "An act directing the purchase of silver bullion and the issue of Treasury notes thereon, and for other purposes."

After section 1 insert the following:

"SEC. 2. That the silver coins of the United States shall be composed of standard silver. That of the silver coins the dollar shall be of the weight of 412½ grains, the half-dollar of the weight of 206¼ grains, the quarter-dollar of the weight of 103¼ grains, and the dime, or tenth part of a dollar, of the weight of 41¼ grains. And that dollars, half-dollars, quarter-dollars, and dimes shall be legal tenders of payment according to their nominal value for any sums whatever.

"SEC. 3. That silver bullion brought to any mint of the United States for coinage shall be received and coined by the proper officers for the benefit of the depositor: Provided, That it shall be lawful to refuse, at the mint, any deposit of less value than $100, and any bullion so base as to be unsuitable for the operations of the mint. And all silver bullion belonging to the United States shall be coined; but such coinage shall not delay the coinage of silver bullion for depositors.

"SEC. 4. That the depositor of silver bullion at any mint of the United States for coinage shall receive therefor silver coin or Treasury notes of the United States, to be issued by the Secretary of the Treasury in such form and of such denominations, not less than $1 nor more than $1,000, as he may prescribe. The Treasury notes issued according to the provisions of this act shall be redeemable on demand at the Treasury of the United States or at the office of any assistant treasurer of the United States in either gold or silver coin, at the option of the United States; and such Treasury notes shall be a legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private."

REPORT ON IMMIGRATION.

Mr. CHANDLER submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Printing:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the Public Printer be, and he is hereby, directed to print, with a title page, 12,000 additional copies of the report of Immigrant Commissioner H. J. Schulteis, contained in Part I, House Executive Document No. 235, first session Fifty-first Congress, pages 263 to 323, inclusive, 2,000 to be for the use of the Treasury Department, 2,000 for the use of the House Committee on Immigration, 2,000 for the use of the Senate Committee on Immigration, 2,000 for the use of the Senate, and 4,000 for the use of the House.

INTRODUCTION OF CHOLERA.

Mr. CHANDLER submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to transmit to the Senate any communications recently received from the port physician of the city of Philadelphia concerning the danger of the introduction of cholera into this country during the coming season, and also to inform the Senate whether during the past summer any immigrants shipped back to Europe by the United States immigration officers were retaken from the vessels by their owners, contrary to law; and, if so, to state the circumstances of such recaption, and whether or not prosecutions were instituted to punish the violators of law.

ENTRANCE TO FERNANDINA HARBOR.

Mr. CALL submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be, and is hereby, directed to furnish to the Senate any information in possession of the Chief of Engineers as to the condition of the present ship channel between Cumberland Island, Georgia, and Fernandina, Fla., and the injury to it from the construction of the north jetty, and its present unfinished condition, and as to the danger of the closing of the channel on account of the obstruction created by this work, and the necessity for an immediate appropriation to prevent the closing of the channel.

Mr. CALL. I ask that a letter of the Fernandina Chamber of Commerce be printed in the RECORD in connection with the resolution just adopted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Florida? The Chair hears none.

The letter referred to is as follows:

FERNANDINA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.
Fernandina, Fla., December 8, 1892.

To the Hon. Wilkinson Call and Samuel Pasco, Senators, and Hon. S. R. Mallory and Robert Bullock, Representatives in Congress, Washington, D. C.:

The Chamber of Commerce of the city of Fernandina is informed of a serious danger threatening the entrance of this port.

The unfinished condition of the north jetty permits the accumulation of sand, drifting from the northeast to the southwest, to encroach rapidly and dangerously on the present ship channel, threatening the obstruction and possible closing of the channel unless means are speedily taken to arrest the movement.

The construction of the north jetty was intended to prevent this southward movement of sand and permit the ebb and flow of the tides to deepen and maintain the channel between the jetties.

The appropriation for improving the entrance has so far enabled the engineers to construct only the foundation of the north jetty, which is entirely submerged, and in its present unfinished condition affords no obstruction to the southward drift of the sand.

There is no apparent relief from this pressing danger, which threatens also the destruction to a large extent of the more advanced work on the south jetty, except by a special and immediate appropriation by Congress sufficient to raise the north jetty above the danger point.

The export of phosphate rock alone from this port has increased during the past year more than 100 per cent, amounting to more than 150,000 tons.

The closing of this port or the temporary obstruction to its entrance would be a very serious loss and damage to the entire State of Florida.

The Chamber of Commerce therefore earnestly appeals to its Representatives in Washington to make a strenuous effort to secure an emergency appropriation and place before Congress the evidence of such necessity.

Respectfully,

H. E. DOTTERER, President.
B. T. BURCHARDI, Secretary.

COMMITTEE SERVICE.

Mr. CULLOM submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to:

Resolved, That Senators PEFFER and CALL be appointed as additional members of the Committee on Immigration during the present session of Congress.

THE FIVE CIVILIZED TRIBES.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President, I desire to call up the joint resolution introduced by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] a few days ago, authorizing the appointment of a commission to treat with the five civilized tribes of the Indian Territory.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the joint resolution (S. R 117) authorizing the appointment of a commission to treat with the five civilized tribes of the Indian Territory with a view of making agreements to induce them to take homesteads in severalty.

Mr. VEST. Will the Senator from Arkansas permit me to make a personal explanation, which will not take more than a few moments, before he proceeds, as I wish to get the facts before the Senate?

Mr. BERRY. Certainly.

Mr. VEST. I stated the other day the expenses of the courts at Fort Smith, Ark., Paris, Tex., Wichita, Kans., and in the Indian Territory at certain amounts. Since making those statements I have received a letter from the Attorney-General calling my attention to the fact that on account of the peculiar manner in which these amounts are set forth in his report I was innocently misled. The fact is, that I did not state these expenses at hardly more than one-half what they really were; and before the Senator from Arkansas proceeds I wish to give the correct figures as I obtained them from the Attorney-General. As now given they are absolutely correct.

I stated in my speech the other day the expenses of the court at Fort Smith, Ark., for 1889, to be $10,368.61. In reality the expenses for 1889 of that court were $256,214.42. I stated the expenses in 1890 to be $48,277.04, when in reality they were $296,909.53. For 1891 I stated the expenses of that court to be $192,189.92, when in reality they were $224,321.12. I stated the expenses of the court at Fort Smith, Ark., for the three years 1889, 1890, and 1891, to be $250,834.97, when in reality they were $777,445.07.

I stated the expenses of the Texas court, located at Paris, for 1889, to be $2,348.24, when in reality they were $52,050.61. The expenses of the same court for 1890 I stated at $205,220.49, when in reality they were $352,980.09 for that year. I stated the expenses of the Texas court for 1891 to be $78,558.56. In reality they were $194,141.06. Instead of the expenses of the court at Paris, Tex., being for the three years 1889, 1890, and 1891, $286,127.49, as I put them, they are, from the official records, $599,171.76.

The expenses of the court at Wichita, Kans., with partial jurisdiction over the Indian Territory, I stated for 1889 to be $7,326.76. In reality these expenses were $81,545.48 for that year. For 1890 I put the expenses of the court in Kansas at $32,131.56. In reality they were $91,791.49. For 1891 I put the expenses of the same court at $84,481.06. In reality they were $86,361.80; and instead of the expenses of the court at Wichita, Kans., being for the three years 1889, 1890, and 1891, $123,939.38, as I put them, they were $259,698.58.

I stated the expenses of the court in the Indian Territory, at Muscogee and Ardmore, to be in 1889, $1,570.40. In reality they were $11,991.18 for that year. In 1890, I put the expenses of that court at $2,079.13. In reality they were $98,057.40. For 1891, I put the expenses of that court at $135,276.13. Really, they were $147,875.71. The expenses of the court in the Indian Territory, which I stated to be, for three years, $156,925.66, were in reality $259,698.78. The courts at Fort Smith, Ark.; Paris, Tex., Wichita, Kans., and the Indian Territory cost in three years, $1,895,014.19, instead of $817,826.70, as I stated.

The court for the southern district of New York, which includes the great city of New York, which I stated cost, for 1889, $2,107.38, cost in reality $128,151.06. For 1890 I placed it at $39,365.38, when in reality it should have been $73,595.55. For 1891 I put the expenses at $129,452.57, when they should have been $138,088.97, making for the three years, 1889, 1890, and 1891, for the expenses of the court for the southern district of New York, $339,835.58, instead of $170,725.83, as I stated in my remarks.

The court for the eastern district of Texas, in which Paris is situated, cost in three years, $259,236.18 more than the court for the southern district of New York. The court at Fort Smith, in the western district of Arkansas, cost in the three years, 1889, 1890, and 1891, $437,609.47 more than the court for the southern district of New York in those three years.

The court for the northern district of Texas, which has no jurisdiction over the Indian Territory, cost for 1890 only $76,630.55 as against $352,980.09 in the eastern district for the court at Paris, which has partial jurisdiction over the Indian Territory.

In 1891 the court for the northern district of Texas, having no jurisdiction over the Indian Territory, cost $87,578.39 as against $194,141.06 for the same year as the expenses of the court held at Paris, with partial jurisdiction over the Indian Territory.

These figures are necessary to a correct understanding of the statement I made on a former occasion.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President——

Mr. DAWES. Will the Senator from Arkansas permit me to make an inquiry of the Senator from Missouri?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Arkansas yield to the Senator from Massachusetts?

Mr. BERRY. For what purpose does the Senator from Massachusetts desire me to yield? I did not understand him.

Mr. DAWES. I only wish to make an inquiry of the Senator from Missouri. I do not desire to make any extended remarks.

Mr. BERRY. Very well, I yield.

Mr. DAWES. I should like to inquire of the Senator from Missouri whether from any data he has he is able to tell the Senate how much of the costs of the courts at Fort Smith, at Paris, and at Wichita arises from that part of their jurisdiction which is in the Indian Territory.

Mr. VEST. The only way that I can answer that question is by comparing the expenses of the court immediately adjacent in Texas, which has no jurisdiction over the Indian Territory, and I have just given the figures. As I said a few minutes ago, the expenses of the court for the northern district of Texas, which has no jurisdiction over the Indian Territory, are about one-half.

Mr. DAWES. I suppose if the Senator will compare the expenses of the United States court in Connecticut with those of the court in the southern district of New York he may find a very large discrepancy. It does not seem to me that the comparison the Senator now makes is applicable.

Mr. BERRY. I ask that the joint resolution may be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be read.

The Secretary read the joint resolution (S. 117) authorizing the appointment of a commission to treat with the five civilized tribes of the Indian Territory with a view of making agreements to induce them to take homesteads in severalty, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That the President of the United States is hereby authorized to appoint three commissioners, whose duty it shall be to confer with the proper authorities of the five civilized tribes of the Indian Territory with the view of making such agreements and arrangements with said tribes as will induce them to take homesteads in severalty and to sell the remainder of their land to the United States.

That said commissioners shall report to the President, within one year after the date of their appointment, the result of their action, together with such recommendations and suggestions as they may deem proper, and the President shall transmit such report to Congress for its action.

That the commissioners shall each receive for his compensation the sum of $10 for each day he may be actually engaged in service, together with his necessary traveling and personal expenses, and to pay such salaries and expenses the sum of $10,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President, I can only say that I hope the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] did not get so badly mixed in his ideas in regard to the condition of affairs down in the Indian Territory, and the courts at Fort Smith and elsewhere, as he did in reference to the expenses of those courts. I take it, however, that the last statement presented by him is correct. It agrees with the one which I have myself received from the Attorney-General.

I do not disagree with the Senator from Missouri as to the policy of appointing a commission with the view of inducing the Indians, composing what is commonly known as the five civilized tribes, to accept homesteads in severalty as proposed by his joint resolution. On the contrary, during the last session of Congress I introduced a bill, which is now pending before the Committee on Indian Affairs, embodying precisely the same idea as that contained in the joint resolution of the Senator from Missouri, but my bill is much fuller in detail, specifying precisely how the commissioners shall be appointed, the objects and purposes desired to be attained, and specifying their duties in treating with those Indians.

I agree with the Senator that the quickest and most direct route to the solution of the Indian question is to induce those Indians to accept their lands and homesteads in severalty and to dispose of the remainder of the lands for their value, the Indians of course to receive the proceeds, and opening the lands to immigrants from other States and other countries. If the Indians can be induced to do that, and that can be accomplished, the day is not distant when those people can be admitted as a State of this Union, and then they can take entire charge of their local and their domestic affairs and control them. In that way they will best promote the happiness and security of their people. I am in hearty accord with the Senator from Missouri on that proposition, and I shall vote for any bill or any resolution which looks to that end or which will accomplish that purpose.

I disagree with the Senator from Missouri, however, in regard to the condition of affairs as he describes it in that Territory. He drew a most fearful picture of murderers, thieves, robbers, and banditti riding over that Territory unchecked and unmolested, to such an extent that they terrorized all the citizens, and stated that when nightfall came doors and windows were locked and barred, and thereafter it was impossible to have and to hold any communication with the citizens there.

Mr. President, I think that picture is overdrawn. I have lived in a county of Arkansas adjoining the Cherokee Nation for more than twenty-two years. I have frequently been in the Territory and I know something of my own personal knowledge of the manner in which these people live. I know a great many of them personally. That there are bad white men in the Indian Territory is true beyond any question. There are bad Indians also in the Territory, and bad half-breeds; there are murderers and thieves there, but that universal lawlessness prevails or that the people are living in a continual state of terror is not true in that part of the Indian Territory with which I am acquainted.

In many portions of that Territory the inhabitants are conducting themselves very much as are the people of Missouri, Kansas, Texas, or Arkansas surrounding them. A stranger can pass into many parts of the Cherokee or Choctaw Nation and never know that he has crossed the line; yet, as I stated, it is true that there are bad men who have taken refuge in that Territory. If, however, all the Senator alleged were true, if the condition of affairs is as he has stated it, then he has furnished the very strongest possible argument that could be furnished why that jurisdiction should not be taken away from the courts at Fort Smith, at Paris, and at Wichita, and instead of it being a reason why these courts should be abolished, it is the strongest possible reason for their continuance; and instead of it being a cause for criticism upon the court at Fort Smith for the executions which have taken place there, he has furnished the excuse and the reason which justifies the court at Fort Smith in having hung ninety-seven or any other number of men.

Mr. President, I assert that the large majority of the men at Fort Smith who have suffered the death penalty are white men, and not the poor Indians described by the Senator, refugees from other States of this Union, who had taken refuge in that Territory; and if they were the character of men which the Senator described, then that court deserves praise and not blame for having executed the law, as it was compelled to do, and ought not to be blamed, especially if, as the Senator says, that Territory is to-day swarming with any number of men who ought to be hung.

Mr. President, I am not the political friend of Judge Parker, who presides over the Fort Smith court; but I wish to say here to-day that he is an able and efficient judge. He has the confidence and respect of that entire community, and they uphold his hands in the execution of the law at Fort Smith. If, as has been said by some, he is sometimes severe, then I say the character of men described by the Senator from Missouri as inhabiting that Territory would justify his severity.

The Senator also tried to make a point from the fact that the Dalton brothers had gone from that Territory into the State of Kansas and attempted to rob a bank. Just what connection that has with the matter at issue before the Senate or what connection it has with retaining jurisdiction at Fort Smith, at Paris, and at Wichita, I am unable to see.

It is true that those men assembled in the Territory immediately before they made a raid upon the bank, but that ought not to be a charge against all the people of that Territory. That fact might happen in any State of this Union. It has happened heretofore in fact. Men have assembled in States of this Union and passed beyond the boundaries of those States to rob banks in other States, and yet I never believed that that was just cause to accuse the entire people of those States of lawlessness or of being willing to violate the law. I say that that might occur in any State; and that itself is no justification for saying that the entire people of the Indian Territory are violators of the law.

Mr. President, in regard to the law of which the Senator from Missouri complains—I mean the law upon the statute book to-day which defines the jurisdiction of the courts at Muscogee, at Wichita, at Fort Smith, and at Paris—if I am not misinformed and if I recollect correctly, that bill was reported from a conference committee by the Senator from Missouri himself. He reported that bill here and it was placed upon the statute book. If it has worked so disastrously, as he says, and if it has failed to accomplish the purpose designed, he, together with the rest of us here who voted for it, is responsible; but it ought not to be brought here as the ground of a charge to assail the courts at Fort Smith, at Paris, and at Wichita unjustly.

In regard to the expenses of running these various courts, I say frankly that I agree with the Senator from Missouri that the cost seems to be enormous; I believe it is more than it ought to be; I believe the fees in each and every one of those courts are beyond that which would be justified by the business of the courts. What the cause for that is I am unable to say; but I assert that the figures furnished by the Senator himself show that this increased expenditure is not caused by the fact that the courts are held outside of the Indian Territory.

The Senator presents figures here of the cost of the court at Muscogee, Ardmore, and South McAlester, places inside of the Territory, which show that for the year 1891 they almost equaled the expenses of the court at Fort Smith. It will be borne in mind that the court at Fort Smith has jurisdiction of all the graver felonies, of the higher crimes, while the court inside the Territory is confined to misdemeanors and less heinous crimes; and it is natural that the expenses of the court having jurisdiction of the higher offenses—the numerous murder cases, etc.—should exceed the expenses of a court having jurisdiction merely over misdemeanors; and yet in 1891 the expenses of the courts in that Territory having this limited jurisdiction as now constituted almost equaled the expenses of the court at Fort Smith.

In regard to the expenses of the court at Paris, Tex., the Senator said the other day that it was claimed they were largely increased by one particular case of murder, and he added "what has happened once may happen again." Mr. President, the case to which the Senator referred did not occur in the Indian Territory. It was a murder committed in what is known as No Man's Land, outside the Indian Territory entirely. The case was taken to Paris, Tex. A number of the parties concerned in it were of considerable prominence; there were numerous witnesses, and the case did cost an enormous amount of money; but the jurisdiction of that court now, as I understand, no longer extends over No Man's Land, because a law was passed which attaches No Man's Land to Oklahoma, and that court now does not have jurisdiction.

The Senator read an article from a newspaper showing that seventeen hundred witnesses were in attendance on the first day of the court, at Paris, Tex. I know nothing about the facts personally, but I am informed that that is a gross exaggeration, and that no such number of witnesses ever attended the Paris court at any time, whether on the first or any other day of the court.

Mr. President, in regard to the Senator's comparison of the expenses of the Indian courts with those of the court for the southern district of New York, the Senator from Missouri knows full well that nothing could be more unfair or more misleading than an attempt to compare the expenses of the court at Fort Smith or at Paris with the expenses of the United States court held in any other State in this Union. The cases which come before the courts are totally different and bear no resemblance to each other.

While it is true that an immense amount of business is done in the southern district of New York, it is largely civil business, suits between parties where the litigants pay their own costs and where they are not assessed against the United States. The Senator well knows that if the same offenses were committed in the southern district of the State of New York that are committed in the Indian Territory, they would not be tried in the United States district court in New York, but would be tried in the State courts of New York, and that the court of Fort Smith has jurisdiction over every case of crime committed within the Indian Territory where one of the parties is a white man or where white blood predominates, I say there can be no comparison between New York and Fort Smith. I doubt if there were half a dozen cases of murder, in fact I do not know that there was one that was tried in the United States court for the southern district of New York in the year 1891. This jurisdiction over the Indian Territory embraces all offenses committed within the Territory. If the Senator had made a comparison between that court and the criminal courts of the State of New York in the southern district of New York then there would be some justice and some reason in complaining that the expenses of Indian courts exceeded those of the courts in New York.

Mr. President, the great objection to depriving the courts at Fort Smith, Paris, and Wichita of the jurisdiction they now have rests upon the fact that while the present condition of affairs continues in the Indian Territory, if all this jurisdiction for this entire grade of offenses were transferred to that Territory, the jurors to try the cases would have to be selected from the Territory, and if the jurors were men of the character which the Senator has described, if the inhabitants of that Territory are thieves, cutthroats, and banditti, what kind of justice does the Senator think that they would administer as jurors when they came to a trial of those causes. The Senator himself well knows that while that condition exists, if the trial of these causes were transferred there, it would be almost impossible to convict any man who should commit a serious offense inside of that Territory. I believe I could name half a dozen prominent Indian families in the Cherokee, Choctaw, and Chickasaw Nations, who, if they were to be tried only by jurors selected in the Indian Territory, could murder any white man now living in the Indian Territory, could murder any man passing through it, and they would be as absolutely safe and secure from trial and punishment as it is possible for a man to be.

Take the history of the Indian courts. The Indian courts have jurisdiction over criminal causes where both parties are Indians. Some of the most flagrant murders which have ever been committed in any community have been committed again and again by prominent men in the Indian Territory; and yet I assert that no solitary man of influence or of extensive connection living in that Territory has ever been convicted of a serious crime, such as murder, in the Indian courts. It is absolute folly to talk about trying criminals of this class before jurors of that kind. The Senator when he himself described the character of the inhabitants there, showed that it would be suicidal to pursue such a policy. To do so would be to destroy every vestige of security for life, liberty, and property that now exists in that Territory.

Mr. President, the effort on the part of the Senator to show that the expenses of the courts at Fort Smith were largely increased by the fact that the courts are held outside of the Territory does not accord with the true state of facts. Fort Smith is located directly on the line of the Choctaw and Cherokee Nations, the court-house stands within gunshot of both nations, and it is more convenient for a large portion of the Cherokee and Choctaw Nations than Muscogee. The cost would not be decreased by having the jurisdiction brought from Fort Smith and transferring it to Muscogee; and, as I said, the Senator himself proves that when he shows that the cost of the court at Muscogee, which only has jurisdiction over smaller offenses, ran up last year to $148,000. That is not the cause of the increased expense. There may be some abuse in regard to the fee system, and I will join hand in hand with the Senator to correct that; but it is not attributable to the fact that those courts are held just outside of the line of the Territory rather than on the inside.

I wish to say in regard to the furious assault made by the Senator from Missouri upon the court at Fort Smith, Ark., on account of the fact that there have been a great many men hung there within the last thirty years, that unless the Senator from Missouri can show that some innocent man has been hung, I do not conceive that the mere statement of the matter ought to prejudice the mind of the Senate against that court. He does not complain that Judge Parker does not enforce the law, but he complains because so many thieves, murderers, and banditti, who he says were riding over that Territory, have suffered the extreme penalty of the law. I think that is unjust and unfair.

I close as I began, by saying that I am in favor of the Senator's joint resolution. I introduced a bill of a similar kind to open that country for the immigrants who desire to go there and when we can get the best class of immigrants to settle there. Then it would be proper and it would be right that they should have the full control and conduct of their local affairs and that all these offenses should be tried by courts held inside the Territory, but while the present condition remains, if you take this jurisdiction away from these other courts, it will not be six months until the condition described by the Senator from Missouri as existing in the Indian Nation will not only exist there, but it will be intensified tenfold even beyond that.

Mr. PEFFER. Mr. President, the matters involved in a discussion of the Indian Territory question have very great interest for the people of Kansas. The present condition of that Territory is a standing menace to the peace and the good order of the communities living upon the borders. For a number of years my home was within two miles and a half of the Indian Territory line, and I know personally that the Nation, as we call it, is a refuge of thieves, of burglars, and of murderers. It was common, it is even now common, sir, for men to hold their rendezvous inside of the Territory boundaries and make forays out upon the civilized people beyond their lines for the purpose of capturing animals, horses, cattle, sheep, and swine, and of robbing stores and banks and stealing property from citizens upon the open highway.

It seems to me, Mr. President, that the time has come to treat this question heroically. There was a time in the history of the country when all matters pertaining to Indians and their supposed rights were very tenderly dealt with, and perhaps that was properly done; but there is no reason to believe that the Indian has any rights which the white man does not enjoy or ought not to, that by reason of his color or by reason of his prior occupancy of the soil he enjoys and ought to enjoy more rights than the people who live upon the outside of his particular reservation.

Thirty years ago we passed a homestead law. The object was to give to the people of this country, and especially to the poor people, homes, so that all our citizens might own their own homes and their own habitations; but within the last two years, when certain portions of the Indian Territory were to be thrown open to settlement, long lines of our own citizens, with their wives and their children, encamped along upon the United States side of the boundary line, while the Government soldiery encamped upon the other side. The object of the presence of the soldiers was to prevent our own citizens from acquiring what the homestead law intended that they should acquire.

Now, we find that because of a few Indians, and in connection with them a few attorneys, as I believe, stock speculators and other interested men, we are still kept at bay; our citizens go to the boundary line and there they must stop. There is a very general demand upon the part of the people in the West, and indeed upon the part of a great many in the East, that the Government shall take some action, and take it early, to throw open all of the unused lands in that Territory in order that the people who need homes may go in there and obtain them. I believe, sir, that the time has come for the Congress of the United States to lay bold hands upon the Indian Territory and upon the people there, to allow to every Indian man, woman, and child 160 acres of land and provide that they themselves or their guardians shall select their own allotments, and them immediately, without any preparatory treaty or without any preparatory proceeding beyond the simple mandate of the Government, throw open all the rest of the land of every character and description to homestead settlement by the people.

When that is done, the next step will be to organize a State government, with State courts, and the Indian question, so far as the Indian Territory is concerned, will have been solved. Then we shall have peace there; then we shall have no need for the expenditure of more money for attorneys' fees or for the payment of commissioners to treat with the Indians. Indeed, sir, I believe the time has passed to make treaties with Indians. Treat them as people of the United States, make citizens of them, treat them as such, bring them under the same laws that we are compelled to submit to, and let that end it.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, the representative feature in our Government is a very valuable one, and the speech of the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BERRY] is a conspicuous illustration of the fact that a Senator or Representative must be always largely influenced by the interests of his immediate constituents. As a matter of course the people of Fort Smith, Ark., and of Paris, Tex., want these courts retained in their towns. The sum of $250,000 to $300,000 a year out of the public Treasury of the United States distributed amongst the saloon keepers and hotel keepers of a border town is a bonanza of the very largest dimensions. Just think of it, Mr. President! A quarter of a million dollars taken out of the tax money of the people of the United States to pay the expense of dragging Indians out of their own country to be tried before an alien jury and hung by a United States judge who holds his office for life!

The Senator from Arkansas says that I do not pretend to say that in this holocaust—no, not a holocaust, but this institution of Moloch, which is going on at Fort Smith from year to year—no innocent man has been hung. As a matter of course I have not gone into the records of these trials. The Senator on my left from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES] tried a case at Fort Smith and knows what sort of a tribunal it is. I am not here to assail Judge Parker, who belongs to a coördinate department of the Government and is from my own State, but since the Senator from Arkansas has done me the honor to speak of my personal knowledge, I will give just one instance of how much I know about the administration of justice at Fort Smith.

Some six years ago, during the administration of Mr. Cleveland, a gentleman in one of the border counties of Texas, who was an old army friend of mine, wrote to me that a poor, miserable negro was under sentence of death at Fort Smith, that he had not a friend in the world, unless this gentleman could be called his friend, who had simply been his employer and had him picking cotton on his plantation. He said from what he knew of this negro he believed he must be innocent of the terrible crime charged to him, and asked my services to go to the Attorney-General's office and examine the record and see whether great injustice was not about to be perpetrated.

I went down to the Attorney-General's office—Mr. Garland was then Attorney-General—and looked into the trial of this negro who had been convicted of murder in the first degree at Fort Smith and sentenced to be hung in about two weeks from that time. I found that he had lived with his wife in the Choctaw country in an isolated little cabin, and had become involved in a difficulty with some of his neighbors or with some of the people who were roaming over that country, whose character is to be established with a six-shooter and a pair of bell-spurs. There is hardly a man in that country who has not some sort of feud on his hands, unless it be those upon the railroads living in the towns.

It seems that this poor negro had become involved in this neighborhood strife; that he was lying in bed with his wife, and his children in the same room, with his gun above his bed, at 2 o'clock in the morning, when some one knocked at the door and demanded admittance. He immediately came to the conclusion that it was some of those self-constituted vigilantes who had come there to hang him. He demanded to know who it was. They said, "No matter who it is, open this door, or we will break it down." That confirmed his impression, and he reached up and took down his gun and said, "Break down that door and I will kill the first man who enters." The door was immediately broken down, and he fired and killed the first man who started in. Judge Parker instructed the jury that the official character of this man, who turned out to be a deputy United States marshal, was presumed to be known to the prisoner, and the jury found a verdict of guilty, and he was condemned to be hung for murder in the first degree.

I took the record, examined it, and called the attention of Mr. Boteler, the pardon clerk, an old friend of mine, to it, and he recommended a pardon. I carried it myself to President Cleveland. I never saw this negro and never heard of him, except through Mr. Brierly, the old friend who wrote to me. I placed the record before the President, who looked over it that night, and commuted the sentence the next day to ten years in the penitentiary, and the prisoner is now serving out part of his term. He ought to have been pardoned, I say with due respect.

Mr. VOORHEES. He ought to have been acquitted.

Mr. VEST. He ought to have been acquitted. At any rate he should have been pardoned by the President, but the President commuted his sentence to ten years' imprisonment. Judge Parker afterwards denounced that action of the President of the United States as an interference with his judicial authority, and he subsequently, as the Senators from Arkansas know, after denouncing President Cleveland denounced President Harrison for interfering with one of his sentences. If that is the sort of court that is to give to the civilized Indians of this country a correct example of our mode of administering justice, heaven save us from setting examples to the civilized or uncivilized people upon this continent! Here we are pretending to be the evangels of a Christian civilization; pretending to be descended from that splendid old Anglo-Saxon stock, that with mailed hand wrung from the kings of England the admission that every freeman should be tried by a jury of his peers.

Are we giving these Indians the trial that we demand for ourselves? We take control over them judicially; we appoint judges, and marshals to ride over that Territory, and yet when we try them, instead of a trial by a jury of their peers, to which they are entitled under English and American civilization, we send them off manacled and pinioned to a distant State, to be tried before white men upon the border, who, as every one of us knows, have the deepest prejudice against any Indian, and before a judge not responsible to the people, but who holds his tenure of office for life.

Why, Mr. President, if this slaughterhouse at Fort Smith be an example of the mercy that a great government is to extend to a people in regard to whom our record is not without stain—if that is to be the great exemplar of our civilization, then we have made a miserable failure of the whole business.

But, Mr. President, while dollars and cents should not be conclusive as to a great matter of human life and human justice, when we look at the terrible array of expense which is entailed upon the people of these United States by this system, that of itself ought to sweep it away.

The Senator from Arkansas says it is not a fair comparison to compare the expenses of the court in the southern district of New York, with the great metropolis of the country in it, and the expense of one of these border courts. I know it is hardly a fair comparison. It is true that these courts have a criminal jurisdiction which the court for the southern district of New York does not exercise; but has the Senator reflected upon the enormous disparity in commercial business and litigation between the court in New York and that at Fort Smith, Ark., or that at Paris, Tex., or that at Wichita, Kans., with the right to millions upon millions of dollars to be adjudicated, and intricate questions of civil law to be determined, which do not and can not possibly come before the tribunals in Arkansas and in Kansas?

Mr. PLATT. Will the Senator allow me a word?

Mr. VEST. Yes.

Mr. PLATT. I wish the Senator would state concisely what are the respective jurisdictions of what are known as Indian courts, of the Paris, Fort Smith, and Wichita courts, and of the court at Muscogee. I do not think that is generally understood; and, I am sure, he can state it as well as anyone.

Mr. VEST. I have all the acts of Congress here before me, and if it would not weary the Senate too much I would read them; but I will state in as few words as I can when I come to another branch of the Senator's argument what that difference in jurisdiction is.

Mr. PLATT. Any time before the Senator concludes will answer.

Mr. VEST. I may as well state it now.

The Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BERRY] rather taunted me with having agreed to report the bill which gave a partial jurisdiction over the Indian Territory to the court at Paris, Tex. He was unfortunate in that reference, not intentionally so, of course. If he had done me the honor to look at my record as a Senator upon that question he would have seen that the bill I introduced, which was reported from the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, of which I am a member, conferred full jurisdiction absolutely upon the court at Muscogee, and never for one single instant have I faltered in the opinion that this court should have ample and complete jurisdiction over all crimes of any degree in the Indian Territory.

That bill passed the Senate on my motion. It was reported by me from the Judiciary Committee. It went to the House of Representatives, and, without giving names, the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary in the House of Representatives was a member from Texas, and the next most active member of that committee was the member from the Fort Smith district in Arkansas. They refused to pass that bill. They passed a bill so amended as to give jurisdiction to the courts at Fort Smith and at Paris over all first-class felonies, murder in the first degree and the second degree, for instance, and robbery, leaving jurisdiction over misdemeanors and the lower felonies to the court at Muscogee in the Indian Territory.

That is the difference in jurisdiction, and if it is proposed to go into details I have the acts here before me showing exactly what that jurisdiction is. The contention of the managers on the part of the House of Representatives was that all cases of murder in the first degree should be tried outside of the Territory, and they put it upon the ground that juries could not be obtained in the Indian Territory who were fit to pass upon the question of life and death. The other House passed the bill so emasculated that I hardly knew my own production. When it came back here as a matter of course all I could do was to agree to a committee of conference.

The former Senator from Vermont [Mr. Edmunds], then chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and myself were the conferees on the part of the Senate. The chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the other House, from Texas, and Mr. Rogers, the member from the Fort Smith district in Arkansas, were the conferees on the part of the House, and all I could obtain was the present bill.

I want to make the statement now upon my personal veracity that the report was agreed to by me, with the distinct understanding made with the House conferees that it was only a temporary piece of legislation; that they did not propose that it should be permanent; that they simply wanted to try it for a few years. They recognized, as every lawyer must recognize, that it was an anomaly in jurisprudence to take people charged with crime, and especially murder in the first degree, outside of the jurisdiction where they live in order to be tried in another State.

Mr. PERKINS. Will the Senator from Missouri permit a question?

Mr. VEST. Certainly.

Mr. PERKINS. Has not the Senator from Missouri stated the case too liberally even as it is?

Mr. VEST. Possibly I have.

Mr. PERKINS. Have not the court in Texas and the court in Arkansas, of which the Senator has spoken, concurrent jurisdiction with the court in the Indian Territory, even as to misdemeanors?

Mr. VEST. That is true. I intended to state that.

Mr. PLATT. As to liquor selling?

Mr. PERKINS. They have concurrent jurisdiction even as to minor offenses.

Mr. VEST. As a matter of course; and I was coming to that point in my argument.

The Senator from Arkansas says that if the population of the Indian Territory is such as I have described it, then no juries can be obtained there. The fault is not with the jury system. The fault is with the administration of the law, and the marshals and judges. It is now a scramble between the deputy marshals inside the Territory and those outside as to who shall get the fees, and they are both engaged in this ruinous competition to put money into their own pockets. I can produce proofs here until no Senator will have a doubt about it showing that the only business of the deputy marshals outside and inside is a scramble to get fees. The Senator from Kansas (and I am obliged to him) stated the point exactly when he called my attention to the fact that the outside courts have concurrent jurisdiction over misdemeanors. The whole question is now who shall get hold of the Indian and bring him into court, so as to make the most money in the shape of fees out of the trial.

As to my charging that all the people of the Indian Territory are felons, I want to say it is monstrous and absurd, and I made no such statement. I did state, and state now, that the Indian Territory is in such condition by reason of the bad administration of law and its anomalous condition with reference to the adjacent States that it is filled with the lawless and criminal class, who are not punished, and that they never will be punished, as matters now stand.

Mr. BERRY. Will the Senator permit me to interrupt him right there?

Mr. VEST. Certainly.

Mr. BERRY. Did not the Senator specifically complain because so many were sent to Fort Smith? And now the Senator says they are not sent there.

Mr. VEST. I made this statement, and none other, that the condition of that Territory invited the criminals from adjacent States to go into it, and it always will do it. They go to it exactly as wild animals will go to a reserve where they are protected from the hunter. A man who commits a crime down in Southwest Missouri, who steals a horse there, immediately crosses the line into the Indian Territory, and he is safe, and goes unwhipped of justice. I made no statement that all the people in that Territory were criminals. I do say that, in proportion to the population, a very large number of them are, and the system that I am attacking is the inducement for these criminals to be there.

Mr. BERRY. Will the Senator permit another question?

Mr. VEST. Certainly.

Mr. BERRY. The Senator says these criminals are not caught and punished. I ask the Senator if he did not say a few minutes ago that it was a scramble between the inside and outside marshals as to who should get the most of them?

Mr. VEST. As a matter of course, to catch the people who are peddling whisky without a license; but I have a letter here just upon that point from a lawyer of fair standing in the State of Kansas. I have inquired of the Kansas Senators in regard to him, and I can give his name if it is required. I received it this morning, and it is just upon the point that the Senator from Arkansas now makes. This gentleman states that these deputy marshals never go after what is called "a bad man." They do not oppose pistol to pistol, but they are hunting up petty offenders in order to get the costs and put the fees in their pockets. He says:

It is a further fact that these deputies raid the Strip, arresting whisky peddlers, bring them to Guthrie, waive examination, take them back to Wichita, and after two or three weeks bring them back to Guthrie and have them plead guilty. They take all these trips to make more fee. They never, or very seldom, "go after" a dangerous or bad man. I know of them arresting a "boomer" for cutting enough wood to camp by, and when the boomer demanded immediate trial they would not give it unless he would plead guilty and be fined $5; otherwise he would be taken back to Wichita and be brought back to Guthrie in ten or fifteen days, etc. One deputy United States marshal told me he had made $3,000 this last year. I met another on a train with two whisky peddlers taking them to Wichita, and I asked him why he did not let them plead guilty at once. He said, "There is nothing in that for me. I will bring them up to Wichita and get 10 cents per mile each way, and get the same to come after them; they will then plead guilty and I will get to bring them back. See!" They have a jail now in Guthrie. I hope this system will be abolished.

Mr. President, that is the condition of things as stated by this gentleman. I have not given his name, but the Senator from Arkansas can have it. I took the letter to the Senator from Kansas to know who this gentleman is. I did not propose to discuss the question of the character of the juries in the Indian Territory. I disclaim emphatically and distinctly having attacked the entire population. I have some friends there as near and dear to me as the people of Fort Smith can be to the Senator from Arkansas, and they are reputable men and stand high in Missouri. Hundreds of them have gone into that Territory, connected with the railroads and other business, and they are there legitimately to-day. But since the question has come up, I will read a few letters I received some time ago in regard to these juries.

[United States court in the Indian Territory, at chambers. James M. Shackelford, judge.]

MUSCOGEE, IND. T., May 9, 1892.

DEAR SIR: I learn from your letter written on the 5th instant to Clifford L. Jackson, esq., of this place, that the chief argument against your bill now pending in the Senate, giving full and exclusive jurisdiction to the United States court in the Indian Territory, is that good juries can not be had here.

The argument is utterly unfounded in fact. The juries are uniformly composed of men of intelligence, courage, and integrity. The numerous verdicts rendered by the different juries in both civil and criminal cases since the establishment of the courts in the Territory have been, with few exceptions, rendered in accordance with the law and the evidence in each case. I simply repeat what I have heretofore written the Attorney-General and others on this subject, namely: I have never seen better juries in the States than are the juries of the courts of the Indian Territory.

Very respectfully, yours,

JAMES M. SHACKELFORD,
Judge United States Court.

Hon. G. G. VEST, Washington, D. C.

That letter was written May 9, 1892. Here is another letter dated May 9, 1892, addressed to me, as follows:

[United States marshal for the Indian Territory.]

MUSCOGEE, IND. T., May 9, 1892.

SIR: In the matter of procuring honest and capable jurors for the United States court in the Indian Territory I have to say that I honestly believe that we have a better class of jurors for our court than the average of the courts in any of our States. We are not troubled with "chronic jurors," as they are in the States. I have had much experience with jurors in the States, and I can truthfully say that I have never seen a better or more intelligent class of jurors than serve on the juries of this court. We have in this Territory over 100,000 white people, farmers, merchants, mechanics, professional men, etc., and there is no reason under heaven why as good and intelligent jurors can not be summoned and procured here as in any State in the Union.

Respectfully,

T. B. NEEDLES,
United States Marshal.

Hon. GEORGE G. VEST,
United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

To the same effect is the following letter:

MUSCOGEE, IND. T., May 9, 1892.

To whom it may concern:

The undersigned, attorney and assistant attorney of the United States court in the Indian Territory, certify that the jurors selected and empaneled in the courts of the several divisions in the Indian Territory will compare favorably in intelligence and impartiality with those in attendance upon the Federal courts in the neighboring States.

They appear to be conscientious in the discharge of their duties, and endeavor to find and present the issues submitted to them according to the law and the testimony. In our opinion the people here can safely be intrusted with the trial of all offenses committed in the Indian Territory.

Very respectfully,

Z. T. WALROND,
United States Attorney.
J. S. JENKINS,
Assistant Attorney.

Here are resolutions passed by the bar at Muscogee, to the same effect, together with other testimony.

Now, Mr. President, I have always said, or intended to say, that along the line of the railroads in these towns and cities juries can be obtained as good as those in the adjoining States. These criminal classes are not found there. They do not go to the towns and cities upon the railroads except for purposes of debauchery after they have accumulated enough plunder for their dissipation. They are not seen often in the daytime, unless when under the influence of liquor. One of them dashes in and is seen from an incoming or an outgoing train, and then goes again to his depot or fastness in the interior of the country.

The Senator says he speaks from personal knowledge. I speak from personal knowledge also upon this subject. I was engaged some years ago in the practice of my profession in a case where the evidence was developed that there was a systematically organized band of horse thieves operating from North Missouri and Iowa into Indian Territory. The people broke it up by a vigilance committee, and I defended the vigilantes, and it was the proof that thieves had their regular stations all culminating in the Indian Territory and radiating from there out into the adjoining States.

Mr. President, while I speak here as a Senator of the United States and a Missourian, how much more is the interest of Arkansas and Texas in this matter compared with that of my own State? There is but little of the State of Missouri that adjoins or abuts upon the Indian Territory. But how is it with Arkansas, and more especially how is it with the great State of Texas? I undertake to say that the condition of the Indian Territory, hermetically sealed against civilization and immigration, a dead waste so far as its great resources are concerned in the form of development, is almost an absolute barrier to immigration into the State of Texas.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GALLINGER in the chair). The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, it is the duty of the Chair to lay before the Senate the unfinished business, which is House bill 7845.

Mr. PEFFER. I ask that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside in order that the Senator from Missouri may conclude his remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Unanimous consent is asked by the Senator from Kansas that the pending business be temporarily laid aside. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and the Senator from Missouri will proceed.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, I shall detain the Senate but a few moments longer.

I was saying, and I say it very earnestly, that the State of Texas is more interested in the opening of this Territory than any other State in the Union. It is impossible to fix the amount of injury done to that great empire by the simple fact that the Indian Territory on the north is not opened up. The impression is made upon the people of the North that there is some sort of obstacle they can not analyze or define between Texas and the rest of the Union; that the homogeneity does not exist geographically as to our soil that ought to exist. The condition of the Indian Territory to-day, judicially, socially, and morally, is an anomaly both to our jurisprudence and the autonomy of our Government. The men who made the Constitution never contemplated that we should hold territory in the condition the Indian country is in to-day.

The men who framed the Constitution never intended that we should have colonies. The idea of those who made the Constitution of 1789 was that every foot of soil belonging to the people of the United States should be, politically, socially, morally, and judicially, an integral portion of our whole country. The continental system, and that of England, of colonizing and carrying the British flag, the French and German flags, to the confines of the earth in order to obtain money and power, is unknown to us; and it would be enough to startle the spirit of the men who made the Constitution, if spirits take any cognizance of what we are doing here now, if they were told that it was seriously contended here that we should hold this Indian country in its present condition.

More than that; I go further. The right of self-preservation is the highest and first right of every people. I repeat what was said by the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEFFER], that this Indian country as it is to-day is a menace to civilization. No Indian intellectual enough to understand this question at all can complain justly, when I insist that the status of that country shall be changed. We are not called upon to keep up a depot for criminals.

The Senator from Arkansas hurries away from a statement I made, and it is a most conspicuous and startling one, that from a depot in the Indian Territory came in broad open daylight a band of banditti and at 9 o'clock in the morning attacked a peaceable community in the State of Kansas and turned its quiet and silent streets into a scene of carnage, shooting men down in their business houses and in the banks, and but for a most remarkable example of heroism and self-defense they would have succeeded and plundered the banks and gone off with their booty.

But what has happened once may happen again, and will happen. When I last heard from that little town of Coffeyville, men were sleeping with arms by their sides, expecting the survivors and relatives of this band of robbers to attack them again. I know there have been criminals all over this country in all the States. My State was called the robber State. It was not the fault of our jurisprudence. Frank James was tried by a jury of his countrymen, defended by counsel, and prosecuted by the ablest lawyers in the State, and acquitted. If he had been dyed with blood, incarnadined from head to foot, he had that right to be tried by a jury of his peers, and when acquitted under the glorious institutions and traditions that our fathers have left us, he could not again be put in peril for that offense.

Missouri broke up her robbers, and my State to-day is as calm and peaceful from one end of it to the other as any domain in the civilized world. Illinois had her robbers. One of them, after shooting down six of her citizens, was at last arrested in the streets of St. Louis by a police officer of that municipality at the expense of his life. Kansas had her robbers, where a den of murder was kept up for years, and some of the best men in the State were entrapped and massacred. It was not the fault of the jurisprudence of Kansas, nor was it in violation of the established principles of jurisprudence, that every man, no matter how ignorant, poor, or humble, is entitled to a trial by a jury of his peers in the jurisdiction where he lives.

In our Federal courts you can only sue a citizen in the Federal district where he lives or where he is found in the district of the plaintiff. Whoever heard under any State or Federal system that defense could really be made of this anomaly in jurisprudence that drags a man away from his peers and away from his jurisdiction to be tried in a foreign State and by those who for some reason (and I do not propose to discuss it) all along the border are prejudiced against the Indians as a class?

Now, Mr. President, I will conclude what I have to say by reading another letter which I received this morning. It came to me unsolicited from a gentleman I never saw. He refers me to the Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER], and I submitted the letter to him, and he states that this gentleman is a man of the highest character, and I think the Senate will say, after hearing the letter, that there is no question about his intelligence. The Senator from Arkansas spoke of my statement here as being utterly unfounded and based simply upon rumor. I will read now from a man who has lived for years in the Indian Territory and who is a Cherokee by birth. Here is his statement, and I ask the attention of Senators to it:

In looking over my morning paper, I notice you offered a resolution looking to the appointment of a commission to visit the five civilized tribes of Indians for the purpose of ascertaining if an arrangement can be effected whereby they will accept allotment of their lands, and agree to sell the surplus.

I will preface what I am going to write you, by telling you I am a native by blood of the Cherokee Nation. I have spent many years among them before and since the war; am personally acquainted with almost every family in the nation. J. B. Mayes, the chief, is my own cousin. I would welcome the day when the object you now seek to accomplish might be accomplished, for this consummation would be a source of joy to many thousands of that tribe. But, sir, I have no confidence in any effort put forth by the Government which leaves to the option of those people to accept or reject.

I hope you will bear with my lack of brevity, for this is a thing that embodies many elements in its make-up, and each plays its part. When you suggest this allotment scheme (I mean no disrespect by saying scheme), in viewing the entire ground over, there is perhaps no one element that sways and controls this people more than the foreign capital that is invested in that country. Outside capital has been gradually pouring into that country, to be invested in cattle, until they have monopolized the entire range. This is effected through that class of citizens who are termed half-breeds (a half-breed is one who is partly white; many who have only a sixty-fourth part of Indian blood are termed half-breeds), and principally through this class of citizens they manage to introduce their capital and evade tax laws and other laws which would otherwise bar them. There are many white men also in the country who have married into these tribes who are also engaged in this illegal speculation. These people are the "Wall street" of the Territory. They want no change that would cut up the range into small individual claims and thus destroy their monopoly of the range.

This element is the brains of the country; they have the money; they manage to defeat every effort put forth looking to a change. This they accomplish by controlling and shaping the legislation by combining the sharp, shrewd element in combination with the ignorant full-blood. This is brought about by making the full-blood believe that if he ever consents to a change the white man will gobble it all, and that railroad grants through the Territory will take a large portion of their country. In this manner they manage to keep up a prejudice in the minds of the full-bloods and are enabled to keep in control.

Then others, and perhaps a majority of the entire community, desire this allotment, but they are termed (through these influences) traitors. Many have been ostracized from that country on account of advocating a change so as to place the land belonging to them and their children on a firmer basis. The present condition has nothing in the shape of permanency about it. There is nothing to encourage an industrious man to exert himself. He has no metes and bounds or title by which he can be justified in making permanent improvements. There is always a feeling of uneasiness that pervades the air in such a state of affairs.

It is not to be wondered at that their country is uncultivated. Some cultivation of soil is going on, but this is done by white men who have gone to the country and leased land from these sharp half-breeds who have gobbled up all the good farming lands for this purpose. They give a citizen of the United States a half or whole section of land for five years or more if he will break it up and make so much improvement on it. The law there does not limit him to one farm, but some have thirty or forty farms secured in this manner, and of course they oppose any change. This class monopolize all the offices in the country, and all the money arising from their semiannual interest is pocketed by this class, for they have only to account to themselves for it. Thus you see those who would favor a change dare not openly advocate it.

The law and order of that country is a howling farce, with no moral stamina to back it up. The country is one grand asylum for all the criminals who choose to accept it as a safe retreat. The Federal court at Fort Smith, with all of its regiment of low-flung marshals, reeks with filth. The country is a barrier to civilization and is a Chinese wall hedging in the worst element of people. The six-shooter and bell spur are ornaments that command universal respect. I left this country in disgust to get into a country in which I dared to raise my children. I never expect to return under the present status. I will give you one illustration of the way justice is dealt out in the Federal court at Fort Smith. While I was in that country it happened to my lot to hear one night from a telegraph operator in the Cherokee country that a theft had been committed in the Creek country, one white man robbing another, and the man who was robbed of $800 offered half for the capture of the theft.

Next morning at daybreak in company with a companion I started on horseback south to catch that thief. It had snowed over night, and after going south about 15 miles, we saw a trail made by two horses leaving the railroad. We followed it about a mile in a brisk gallop and overtook a negro and a white man. We found the latter suited the description and he held up his hands until we searched and found all the money as described, and then we took him with us. When we delivered him up we found he had also on the robbed man's pants and boots. We got our money or rather kept it, and turned over $400. This man went to Fort Smith a prisoner, and some months after I was called to Fort Smith as a witness against him. I found him sauntering about town. The turnkey at the jail stated to the court that a conspiracy to kill him had been thwarted by this man and they gave him his liberty. When the trial came up I gave my evidence, but the man who was robbed did not appear. During the trial the priest at Fort Smith came into court and asking the attention of Judge Parker, stated that this prisoner had done penance and he had absolved him and he asked the court to be lenient with him. Parker fined him $1 and discharged him.

This gentleman then gives what he considers a remedy for the condition of things in the Indian Territory, the only thing that he says can do any good. He says:

Bring up a resolution before Congress allowing every Indian who chooses to become a citizen of the United States the right to take his pro rata share of land, and have a strip surveyed off for that purpose, and I will pledge you that they will break their necks running over each other to accept it, and then you at once solve the entire question and do away with your rotten Federal court. You tear down that wall and remove the barrier to progress and civilization.

I do not give this gentleman's name, but it is at the service of anyone who desires to see it, together with the statements of the Senator from Illinois as to his character.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President, the Senator from Missouri, in the latter part of his remarks, seeks to put the Representatives from Arkansas and Texas in the position of opposing the opening of that Territory. I expressly stated in the remarks I made that I am in favor of the Senator's joint resolution, and I am in favor of every proposition that looks to the opening up of that Territory to immigrants from all the States, and to its admission as a State into the Union. The only difference between the Senator and me is that I was four months ahead of him. I introduced a bill during last session containing precisely the same idea, and advocated it, and stand ready to advocate it, and no argument in regard to standing as a barrier between Texas and immigration has anything to do with the issue between the Senator from Missouri and myself.

The issue that I made with him was this: That while the present condition remains it is suicidal; that it would be a great crime to the people of that nation to remove the fear of punishment that is inflicted at Fort Smith and Paris from the cutthroats now in that nation. That is the issue between him and me. When the Territory is opened up to immigrants from every part of the country and the best class of people can go there, I agree with him, then the causes should be tried inside of the Territory from juries selected there; but while the condition exists which he says exists, I say that it would be cruel and unjust to the people of that Territory to remove all fear of punishment from the commission of any crime whatever.

I said in my speech that the Senator was inconsistent, because he said that parties ought to be tried by the people of that Territory, and at the same time said it was largely composed of thieves, cutthroats, and banditti. He says that I slipped over the fact that the Daltons had assembled there before they went to Coffeyville, Kans. I do not think that is just. I said they assembled there, but that was no argument why all the people of that Territory were lawless. I did not allude to the Senator's State by name, because I felt a delicacy in doing so, but he now comes in himself and admits that in States of this Union the same thing has been done, precisely, that has been done in that nation. If it is a charge against the men of that nation that those men assembled there before they went to Coffeyville, is it not really a charge against the State of Missouri that the men who robbed the bank in Minnesota assembled in Missouri before they went to Minnesota?

I say that it is unjust to charge it on all the people of Missouri that they were lawless or in favor of robbers because those men happened to go from Missouri into Minneapolis. I say that it is equally unjust to state the same in regard to the people of the Indian Territory because those men went from there to the town of Coffeyville.

Now, the Senator from Missouri reads letters from Judge Shackelford and others and says that juries can be found that the character of the people there would compare favorably with that of certain States. I ask him how that agrees with the desperate condition of affairs which he described as existing there a few days ago upon the open floor of this Senate? How does that agree? I take it when he made that speech he had not read Judge Shackelford's letter, because the two would not go together.

Mr. VEST. If the Senator will permit me, the letter is dated May 9, 1892, and I have had it since that time.

Mr. BERRY. I could not understand how the Senator with that letter before him, if he believes what is in it, could paint the fearful picture he did two or three days ago in regard to the condition of society in that Territory, because the two do not agree. That is what I said.

Mr. VEST. I am not so vain as to think that I could convince the Senator from Arkansas on this question, but I stated distinctly that the men who are committing these crimes are not found along the railroads where the juries are obtained. I emphatically stated, and it is the fact, that they only appear sporadically in those towns and cities, and they are sparsely located. The juries are taken from those towns.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President, the most peaceable and law-abiding part of that Territory I have ever seen are the men who are living on the farms in the Cherokee and Choctaw Nation—men who go about their business as they do in every other State of this Union; and it is unjust to say that the only peaceable and law-abiding citizens in that Territory are those along the railroads and at the towns in the Territory. It does not comport with the facts stated, and men who live in that section know it.

Mr. VEST. Will the Senator permit me? Of course he does not want to make a misstatement.

Mr. BERRY. Not if I know it.

Mr. VEST. If the Senator will read the act which organizes the court in the Indian Territory he will see it requires that their jurymen shall be able to speak and understand the English language. That shuts out from the jury service the half-bloods in the Territory, as a rule, and confines the jury service to the white men, the large majority of whom are found along the railroads in the towns and cities.

Mr. BERRY. I said, and I repeat, the Senator did not answer that part of it, that in the Indian courts where they had full jurisdiction to try criminal causes, where both parties were Indians, that in a long series of years, while many murders had been committed by men of prominence and standing in that Territory, the Senator well knows it when I say that no man of prominence, of extensive connection, or wealth has ever been convicted in a single instance in a trial before those Indian courts of a serious offense. There are families there that are so extensive that they are closely and intimately connected with each other, and they are of such overpowering influence in the Territory that any member of the family could murder the Senator in passing through there and it would be utterly impossible to get a jury to convict him. If he can get the pending joint resolution passed; if it is effective, which I hope it will be; if the Territory can be opened to every class of immigrants, then it is entirely proper and correct that the people should be tried by juries who reside inside of the Territory.

There is one other thing. The Senator seeks to make the impression that this large cost is attributable to the fact that these courts are held on the line of the Territory instead of inside of the nation. Mr. President, I have been told reliably that the courts at Muscogee, South McAllister, and Ardmore are already with a limited jurisdiction over misdemeanors, and they are so overcrowded that it is impossible to call them at every term of the court. If this additional jurisdiction were attached to them additional courts would have to be created, new judges would have to be appointed, and new district attorneys and new marshals in that district would have to be appointed in order to dispose of the business, and of course with this would come increased fees and increased cost over and above what it is now.

Now, this is all that I have to say. I do not object to the Senator's joint resolution, but I did not believe that he ought, when a measure of this character is pending, to bring in another question, and make an argument here intended to benefit another bill that is not now before the Senate for consideration. I have stated and restated the position of the people of Arkansas and Texas. The Senator said the other day that it is simply a question of saloons and boarding houses. It is a question of the enforcement of the law. In one breath he complains of Judge Parker on account of the severity of his punishment of criminals, and he then reads a letter as the ground of complaint, because some man was fined with the insignificant sum of $1. His whole speech is inconsistent from beginning to end.

Mr. VEST. The Senator certainly does not mean to say that.

Mr. BERRY. I certainly so understood the letter the Senator read.

Mr. VEST. I did not say it, but the letter makes the statement.

Mr. BERRY. That is what I stated.

Mr. VEST. If the Senator can justify it I should like to see him do it. The letter states that the United States judge found a man guilty of robbery and fined him $1.

Mr. BERRY. Well, Mr. President, I undertake to say that the facts are not as stated in that letter, and I do not care who the man is who states it. Judge Parker is a man of ability. He is a man of high character. The Senator well knows that he has the entire confidence of that community. He is a splendid lawyer, and whatever character the decision was, if the other side could be heard it would be fully explained. But I say the Senator did complain that ninety-seven men had been hung right there. That is his exact statement. The complaint then was that he hung too many of these thieves and murderers. He has shifted his ground to-day and says he failed to punish men. I say that is unjust; it is groundless.

Mr. VEST. I should like to ask the Senator a question. He alludes to Judge Parker. Does he think that a United States judge ought to deliver a charge to a grand jury criticising the President of the United States for granting a pardon?

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President, I have already stated that I am not a political friend of Judge Parker.

Mr. VEST. I ask the Senator as a lawyer what he thinks of a judge who would do that? The Senator has been on the bench.

Mr. BERRY. I will answer the Senator that I think when Judge Parker undertook to criticise the President of the United States for granting a pardon he went out of his way and made a mistake and did that which a judge on the bench should not do; but while I say that, I do not believe that Judge Parker is a dishonest man, and the Senator will not assert it, because no man who has held a position there for fourteen years, unless he is an honest man, could get the confidence of the entire community to the extent which he enjoys it.

As the Senator well knows, and as I said a while ago, Judge Parker is a Republican. He has said many things politically to which I do not agree, and I thought he went out of the way to criticise the President for pardons in his charge to the jury, and that it was wholly unadvisable and inexcusable, and he ought not to have done it. But it does not follow from that that guilty men who were tried in his court ought not to have been hung, because if they were of the character the Senator says, and it is not shown they were of any other, they well deserved to be hung, and the Senator knows it. If there are thieves and cutthroats and banditti riding by day as well as by night terrorizing the people to such an extent, to use his own language, that the doors of ingress and egress are closed, locked, and barred; if there are that character of men in that Territory then they ought to be hung, and it will be a relief to the rest of the citizens of that Territory when they are hung.

I simply say that the Senator's argument is wholly inconsistent from beginning to end. I am with him heart and soul in the appointment of this proposed commission. I trust that these Indians will agree to take the land in severalty and sell all, except such as they desire for homes, at its full value, open it up to the world, and that the Territory will come in as a State of this Union. That has been my solution of the question from the beginning; but until that is done I ask in the name of humanity that all restraints and all fear of punishment be not taken away from the criminals in that Territory.

Mr. WASHBURN. I understand that the joint resolution is likely to lead to quite a long debate, and I shall have to ask that the regular order be laid before the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The regular order is called for, being the bill (H. R. 7845) defining "options" and "futures," imposing special taxes on dealers therein, and requiring such dealers and persons engaged in selling certain products to obtain license, and for other purposes.

Mr. COKE. What disposition has been made of the joint resolution?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It goes over.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 2034) for the relief of Susan T. Salisbury;

A bill (H. R. 2478) for the relief of David Sarsfield;

A bill (H. R. 2901) to pension Ida Cassell;

A bill (H. R. 6564) to remove the charge of desertion against Charles H. Behle;

A bill (H. R. 7036) granting a pension to Lillie Ries, late a nurse at Jefferson Barracks;

A bill (H. R. 7099) granting an increase of pension to Samuel S. Anderson;

A bill (H. R. 7375) granting a pension to Mary Hollis;

A bill (H. R. 8054) to increase the pension of Mary L. Bacon, widow of the late George B. Bacon, late lieutenant-commander of the United States Navy;

A bill (H. R. 8780) to restore to the pension roll Mary Eleanor White, former widow of Capt. George W. Hazzard; and

A bill (H. R. 8925) to increase the pension of Harvey Lyon.

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED.

The message also announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the enrolled joint resolution (H. Res. 167) relating to the discharge of certain official duties in the office of Register of the Treasury; and it was thereupon signed by the Vice-President.

TENDOY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2612) granting a pension to Tendoy, chief of the Bannocks, Shoshones, and Sheepeaters tribe of Indians, which was, on page 1, line 4, before the word "dollars," to strike out "30" and insert "15."

Mr. SHOUP. I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House of Representatives.

The motion was agreed to.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

The following bills received this day from the House of Representatives were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (H. R. 2478) for the relief of David Sarsfield; and

A bill (H. R. 6564) to remove the charge of desertion against Charles H. Behle.

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (H. R. 2034) for the relief of Susan T. Salisbury;

A bill (H. R. 8780) to restore to the pension roll Mary Eleanor White, former widow of Capt. George W. Hazzard;

A bill (H. R. 8925) to increase the pension of Harvey Lyon;

A bill (H. R. 7036) granting a pension to Lillie Ries, late a nurse at Jefferson Barracks;

A bill (H. R. 7099) granting an increase of pension to Samuel S. Anderson;

A bill (H. R. 7375) granting a pension to Mary Hollis;

A bill (H. R. 8054) to increase the pension of Mary L. Bacon, widow of the late George B. Bacon, late lieutenant-commander of the United States Navy; and

A bill (H. R. 2901) to pension Ida Cassell.

DEALING IN "OPTIONS" AND "FUTURES."

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7845) defining "options" and "futures," imposing special taxes on dealers therein, and requiring such dealers and persons engaged in selling certain products to obtain license, and for other purposes, the pending question being on the amendment of Mr. DANIEL to strike out section 10.

Mr. HARRIS. I wish to suggest to the Senator in charge of the bill the fact that the last print, the one that is used on the desks of the Senators, does not discriminate between amendments already made in the Senate and the original text of the bill as passed by the other House. It is impossible from that print to determine what parts are the original text of the House bill and what parts are amendments already agreed to as in Committee of the Whole by the Senate. I suggest, in order that we may deal with the bill intelligently, that it ought to be printed, the original text of the House bill in the ordinary bill type, the amendments already agreed to by the Senate as in Committee of the Whole in small capitals, and if there be pending amendments let them be printed in italics. Then every Senator can tell exactly what is the original text, what amendments have already been agreed to as in Committee of the Whole, and what are pending amendments. It is utterly impossible to proceed intelligently upon the print we now have, and I suggest that the bill be reprinted on the plan I have indicated.

Mr. WASHBURN. It has not occurred to me that it is necessary to have a reprint. The last print was agreed upon before the bill went over from the last session, and it was done by unanimous consent, the Senator from Tennessee agreeing to it with others, with a view that Senators and the country should know just what kind of a bill was to be pressed by the friends of a measure of this kind in the Senate on its reassembling in December. It was done for the express purpose that not only Senators, but everybody should know the character of the bill that would be attempted to be passed during the present session; and here the bill is as its friends desire to pass it. I do not imagine that there is any great necessity to show the precise changes or amendments, because they were all discussed and all agreed on in the Senate when the bill was placed in its present form.

Mr. HARRIS. I raise no question about how the order to print the bill in its present form was made, nor does it matter in the slightest degree whether it was made by unanimous consent or by any other order of the Senate. If the bill had been printed as I have suggested, every Senator and the whole country could have seen not only the text of the bill as it passed the other House but the amendments that the Senate as in Committee of the Whole have incorporated in it.

They could have had exactly the same amount of information if the bill had been printed in that form that they can obtain from the bill in its present form. But there is something practical in the suggestion I make. Here is a part of the bill that is incorporated by action of the Senate as in Committee of the Whole, and the Senate having acted upon it as in Committee of the Whole, it would not be in order for me to move an amendment to that part of the bill, while it is in order for me to move to amend the original text as in Committee of the Whole; but it would not be in order to move to amend if the Senate has already acted upon an amendment and has agreed to it as in Committee of the Whole. I say, in order to deal with the bill intelligently, we must have a print of it on the plan I have suggested.

Mr. WASHBURN. The Senator from Tennessee will notice the memorandum on the back of the bill, "By unanimous consent, made unfinished business for first Monday in December, 1892, the reprinted act as amended to be considered as the original act." So it stands before the Senate to-day as the original bill. If the Senator from Tennessee feels that the bill can be discussed more intelligently and more satisfactorily by having the reprint he desires, so far as that is concerned I make no objection, and I must believe that it is from motives of that character rather than for the purpose of delay that the Senator has made the suggestion.

Mr. HARRIS. If the Senator will allow me, there is no delay in my suggestion. The bill will be printed, if the order is made now, to be on our tables to-morrow morning. Where is the delay or obstruction?

Mr. WASHBURN. It is simply the delay of to-day.

Mr. HARRIS. Every Senator will then be enabled to comprehend the actual status of the question more clearly than it can be comprehended in the present form of the bill, and that is my object and my only object.

Mr. WASHBURN. With the understanding that there will be no delay beyond to-morrow I will agree to the suggestion. Of course it is well understood, I presume, by Senators as by everybody else, that there is a purpose, not in the Senate but on the part of people who are interested in the business against which the measure is directed, to defeat it by delay. They have announced it publicly in the newspapers, and in every other way. So far as I am concerned I do not propose to be stampeded or to agree to any measure of delay for the benefit of that class of people. I have received within thirty minutes a telegram from New Orleans, one of the storm centers of this nefarious business, in which the party says:

Cotton speculators and cotton-speculating towns have wired Washington to try to postpone consideration of your bill until holidays. This done through no sympathy for producers. They think grossly exaggerated reports of short crop will enable them to unload at higher prices on innocent outsiders. They affect to believe early consideration might interfere with their plans.

Mr. WHITE. Will the Senator give us the name?

Mr. WASHBURN. No, I prefer not. It is a genuine dispatch, however. It is a private dispatch, and I will not take the liberty of giving the name.

I have no objection to having a reprint of the bill, as suggested by the distinguished Senator from Tennessee, so that we shall be ready to go on with its consideration to-morrow morning after the morning hour.

Mr. HARRIS. Then let the bill be printed as I have suggested, with the amendments already agreed to by the Senate as in Committee of the Whole printed in small capitals; if there be pending amendments, let them be printed in italics, and let the original text be printed in the ordinary form.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The order to print will be made in the manner indicated by the Senator from Tennessee, if there be no objection.

Mr. WASHBURN. Before that is agreed to, I understand that when we go on to discuss and act upon the bill it will be the bill as it now stands and as agreed upon on the 30th of July. I do not understand that by having a reprint ordered there is to be any change of base so far as the bill itself is concerned.

Mr. HARRIS. The Senator from Minnesota and every Senator can keep, if he chooses, the present print and the new print that I suggest, but the new print that I suggest is the one that will enable him to deal more intelligently with the subject-matter than he can in any other way possible.

Mr. WHITE. I do not understand the effect of the motion of the Senator from Tennessee to be to change in any way the order hitherto made by the Senate.

Mr. HARRIS. Of course not. It does not interfere with any standing order. It only provides for an intelligent print of the bills; that is all.

Mr. WASHBURN. All right.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It is so ordered.

Mr. PLATT. I suppose that under the order of July 30 the print of that date is considered the original act, and therefore the bill as printed then is open to amendment in any of its parts, no matter what may have been the previous action of the Senate. If considered as the original bill, I should suppose that would follow.

Mr. HARRIS. That necessarily follows, unless the question of order should be made, when of course the Chair would be bound to administer the rules of the Senate in respect to whether an amendment was or was not in order, if anybody chose to violate a unanimous-consent agreement.

Mr. WASHBURN. I understand the bill went over from the last session under the unanimous consent that the text should be taken as the original bill. With that understanding I have no objection to the reprint suggested by the Senator from Tennessee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be printed as suggested by the Senator from Tennessee, in the absence of objection. The Chair hears none.

Mr. WASHBURN. I should like to make a parliamentary inquiry, and I wish the attention of the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. HARRIS]. In view of the unanimous consent for a reprint, is there any objection to going forward with the discussion or voting on the amendment submitted by the Senator from Virginia?

Mr. HARRIS. I certainly interpose no objection, except that I can not discriminate as to what is the original text of the House bill and the amendments of the Senate as heretofore agreed to, and I should like to have accurate information in regard to the whole subject-matter.

Mr. WASHBURN. All right; let the bill go over until 2 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. GEORGE. I desire to give notice that I shall address the Senate to-morrow at 2 o'clock on the bill.

Mr. SHERMAN. The order to print has not yet been made, I understand.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The order has been made.

Mr. SHERMAN. Senators around me did not so understand it. I should like to have the order read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The order was made by unanimous consent, that the bill should be reprinted.

Mr. SHERMAN. In order to carry out the object of the Senator from Tennessee, I move that the bill be printed by 12 o'clock to-morrow, as he has suggested, a portion of it in the ordinary print of a bill, a portion in italics, and a portion in small capitals. I think the Senator from Tennessee had better write the order so that the Printer may know exactly what to do.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair is of opinion that it is well understood at the desk.

Mr. SHERMAN. All right.

Mr. HARRIS. I think it is clearly understood.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion made by the Senator from Ohio, that the bill be printed by 12 o'clock to-morrow.

The motion was agreed to.

INDIANS ON WHITE EARTH RESERVATION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The first bill on the Calendar will be stated.

The bill (S. 3184) to provide for allotments to Indians on the White Earth Reservation, in Minnesota, was announced as first in order on the Calendar; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

Mr. PLATT. The bill was reported by the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. DAWES], chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. DAWES. Is the bill open for amendment?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It is open for amendment.

Mr. DAWES. In the fourth line, after the words "Chippewa Indians," I move to insert the words "of the Mississippi;" so as to read:

That the President of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized to allot to each Chippewa Indian of the Missi-sippi now legally residing upon the White Earth Reservation, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DAWES. In the eleventh line, after the word "to," I move to strike out the words "those Indians" and insert:

Each Indian of the Otter Tail Band of Pillagers, parties to an agreement ratified by act of Congress approved May 29, 1872, and legally residing on the White Earth Reservation on March 4, 1890, the date of the approval by the President of the several agreements made with the Chippewa Indians under the provisions of said act, and to those Chippewa Indians of the Mississippi.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DAWES. In line 13, after the word "of," I move to strike out "April 18" and insert "March 19;" so as to read: "March 19, 1867."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DAWES. In line 20, after the word "and," I move to strike out "sixty" and insert "eighty;" so as to read: "approved February 8, 1887."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DAWES. In line 23, after the word "the," I move to strike out "Commissioners" and insert "laws;" so as to read: "protection of the laws of the United States."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DAWES. After the word "canceled," in line 30, at the end of the bill, I move to insert:

And in all cases where any of said Indians have accepted an allotment of less than 160 acres, that an additional allottment of land may be made to each of them, not exceeding in the aggregate 160 acres.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. SHERMAN. I move that the Senate adjourn.

Mr. CULLOM. I hope the Senator from Ohio will allow me to move an executive session.

Mr. SHERMAN. Certainly.

Mr. CULLOM. I move, by leave of the Senator from Ohio, that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After five minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 3 o'clock and 5 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday, December 13, 1892, at 12 o'clock m.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate December 12, 1892.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE SUPREME COURT DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Charles C. Cole, of the District of Columbia, to be associate justice of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, vice Charles P. James, retired, under section 714, United States Revised Statutes, to take effect December 1, 1892.

DISTRICT JUDGE, NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS.

Peter S. Grosscup, of Illinois, to be United States district judge for the northern district of Illinois, vice Henry W. Blodgett, retired, under section 714, United States Statues at Large, to take effect December 5, 1892.

ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY AND MINISTER PLENIPOTENTIARY.

Person C. Cheney, of New Hampshire, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Switzerland, vice John D. Washburn, resigned.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

Genio M. Lambertson, of Nebraska, to be Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, to succeed Allured B. Nettleton, resigned.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSIONER.

James W. McDill, of Iowa, to be an Interstate Commerce Commissioner, whose term of office will expire December 31, 1892.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY, December 12, 1892.

The SPEAKER, at 12 o'clock m., amid general applause, called the House to order. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of Friday last was read and approved.

THE RANK OF RETIRING OFFICERS OF THE ARMY.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a draft of a bill "to fix the rank of officers of the Army of the United States retiring after long and faithful service;" which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

DULUTH HARBOR, MINN.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a letter from the Chief of Engineers, submitting a copy of the report of one of the engineers of his investigation into the ownership of the ground on which are located the canal, canal entrances, and piers in Duluth Harbor, Minn.; which was referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

CIVILIAN ENGINEERS EMPLOYED ON RIVER AND HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Chief of Engineers, together with a statement showing the names and places of residence of each civilian engineer employed from July 1, 1891, to June 30, 1892, in the work of improving the rivers and harbors; which was referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

IMPROVEMENTS OF RIVERS AND HARBORS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House letters from the Acting Secretary of War, transmitting communications from the Chief of Engineers with report of examination and survey of the following rivers and harbors; which were severally referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, namely:

Raccoon River, Ohio; Dunkirk Harbor, New York; Fort Pond Bay, Long Island, New York; Nanticoke River, Delaware; Mexico Bay on Lake Ontario, New York; Harbor at Calumet, on Lake Winnebago, Wisconsin; Westport Harbor, Connecticut; the Ohio River between Ironton, Ohio, and Guyandotte River, West Virginia; North Hero Harbor, on Lake Champlain, Vermont; the harbor at Petersburg, and the Appomattox River, Virginia; the Harbor at Evansville, Ind., and the Ohio River at or near Elizabethtown, Ill.

FINDINGS OF THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting copies of the findings of the court in the cases of the following-named persons versus the United States: W. S. Bewley, W. Y. Fain, W. A. Galloway, B. M. Parham, deceased, J. C. Scroggins, deceased, A. T. Phelan, S. B. Thrift, deceased, Robert Chism, deceased, J. T. Bone, deceased, Jaber Russell, Peter Crosby, deceased, and Henry Gallaher, deceased; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

SLATER AND WILLIAM COWART VS. THE UNITED STATES.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings of the court in the case of Slater and William Cowart vs. the United States; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A. B. PHILLIPS VS. THE UNITED STATES.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings of the court in the case of A. B. Phillips vs. the United States; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

R. S. AND G. W. WOODBURY VS. THE UNITED STATES.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings of the court in the case of R. S. and G. W. Woodbury vs. the United States; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

FINDINGS OF THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting copies of the findings of the court in the cases of the following-named persons against the United States: J. C. Lummis, Susan Mussen, deceased, and M. H. Thomas, deceased; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

CERTIFICATE OF ELECTORAL VOTES OF NEW JERSEY AND OHIO.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House certificates, transmitted by the Secretary of State, showing the final ascertainment of the electors for President and Vice-President in the State of New Jersey and also in the State of Ohio; which were severally ordered to be laid on the table.

DUTIES OF THE REGISTER OF THE TREASURY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, accompanied by a draft of a joint resolution:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY.
Washington, D. C., December 9, 1892.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith the draft of a joint resolution relating to the office of Register of the Treasury with the request that the same be presented to the House for present consideration, reference being made to my letter of June 4 last (H. Ex. Doc. 256), transmitted at the request of Gen. Rosecrans, recommending similar legislation.

The necessity for prompt action is due to the fact that Gen. Rosecrans, the Register of the Treasury, for the last five weeks has been unable to discharge any of his official duties, and it is not probable, in the judgment of his physician, that his health will be for some time restored so as to enable him to resume and discharge such duties.

Substantially the language of the acts of March 3, 1883 (Stat., vol. 22, p. 539), and March 31, 1886 (Stat., vol. 24, p. 9), in respect to the discharge of official duties of the officers of the Treasurer and First Comptroller, has been followed in the inclosed joint resolution. The large number of warrants, requisitions, certificates, etc., required daily to be signed by the Register, or Assistant Register—larger than by any other bureau officer in this Department—render it important that prompt action should be taken in order to relieve the present and future delay in the work of the Register's office.

Respectfully yours,

CHARLES FOSTER, Secretary.

Hon. CHARLES F. CRISP,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Mr. GEARY. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the immediate consideration of the resolution.

The resolution was read as follows:

Joint resolution (H. Res. 167) relating to the discharge of certain official duties in the office of the Register of the Treasury.

Be it resolved, etc., That during the absence of the Register of the Treasury and while the Assistant Register is discharging, under the law, the duties of Register during his said absence, the Secretary of the Treasury may, by appointment, under his hand and seal, delegate authority to any chief of division or clerk in the office of Register to act as Assistant Register during the said absence of the Register.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from California asks unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of this resolution, Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The resolution was read a second time.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the third reading of the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was ordered to be read a third time, and was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. GEARY, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the joint resolution was passed was laid on the table.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. LESTER of Georgia, indefinitely (at the request of Mr. TURNER of Georgia), on account of sickness in his family.

To Mr. WOLVERTON, for three days, on account of important business.

To Mr. NORTON, indefinitely, on account of important business.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

Mr. SCOTT, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that that committee had examined and found truly enrolled bills of the following titles; when the Speaker signed the same:

A bill (H. R. 8868) granting increase of pension to Mary North, a widow of a soldier of war of 1812, and who is 100 years old.

A bill (S. 1661) granting an increase of pension to John Hallan.

LA ABRA CLAIM.

Mr. BLOUNT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That on Tuesday, after the second morning hour, the House will proceed to the consideration of Senate bill 539 and Senate bill 606.

Mr. BURROWS. What are they?

Mr. BLOUNT. These bills, I will state, are known as the Benjamin Weil and La Abra mining claims. I wish to say, Mr. Speaker, that for more than sixteen years every administration of the Government has been seeking to have a review of these awards, and I simply want to bring the matter before the House with a view of letting the House determine whether this question shall go to the Court of Claims.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The resolution was agreed to.

R. B. WOODSON.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The SPEAKER. The bill will be read, after which the Chair will ask if there be objection.

The bill was read, as follows:

A bill (S. 1940) for the relief of R. B. Woodson.

Be it enacted, etc., That the Postmaster-General be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to allow R. B. Woodson, postmaster, Gainesville, Ala., a credit for the sum of $142, money-order funds collected by him and lost in transit from Gainesville, Ala., to Mobile, Ala., on or about September 23, 1889, and which the Postmaster-General was unable to allow to said postmaster as a credit under existing laws, and which amount was paid and lost by said postmaster. The Postmaster-General is authorized and directed to refund said sum of $142 to said Woodson, and take his receipt in full satisfaction of said claim. An amount sufficient to refund said sum of $142 is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. BANKHEAD, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. MCCOOK, its Secretary, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment joint resolution (H. Res. 167) relating to the discharge of certain official duties in the office of Register of the Treasury.

WATER COMMISSIONERS, ERIE, PA.

Mr. GRISWOLD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to have considered at this time the bill (H. R. 9826) which I send to the desk. It is a bill granting certain rights and privileges to the board of water commissioners of the city of Erie, Pa.

The bill was read.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this bill?

Mr. KILGORE. Mr. Speaker, has that measure been reported and placed on the Calendar?

The SPEAKER. The Chair thinks not.

Mr. KILGORE. I do not think that any bill ought to be considered in this summary way, and upon that ground I feel inclined to object.

Mr. GRISWOLD. I hope the gentleman will not object. The bill simply gives the right to cross the bay and peninsula in order to secure pure water for the city of Erie. It calls for no appropriation; it injures no person, and its passage will be of great advantage to the city of Erie.

Mr. KILGORE. But the manner in which the bill is brought up involves a very wide departure from the rules of the House, and on that ground I must object.

Mr. GRISWOLD. Then, Mr. Speaker, I ask that the bill be referred to the proper committee.

The SPEAKER. The bill will be so referred.

MILITARY APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. OUTHWAITE, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported a bill (H. R. 9825) making appropriations for the support of the Army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, and for other purposes; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

Mr. DINGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to reserve all points of order on that bill.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will now call the standing and select committees for reports.

TIMBER-CULTURE LAWS.

Mr. PICKLER, from the Committee on Public Lands, submitted a supplementary report on the bill (H. R. 7691) to amend an act entitled "An act to repeal the timber-culture laws," and for other purposes; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

RIGHT OF WAY, CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND AND PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. HARVEY, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, reported back the bill (H. R. 8271) granting to the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company a right of way through the Indian Territory, and for other purposes: which was referred to the Committee of the whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

MO-KAW-HO-KO INDIANS.

Mr. PEEL, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, reported a bill (H. R. 9832) for the relief of the Mo-kaw-ho-ko band of Sac and Fox Indians of the Mississippi; which was referred to the House Calendar, and ordered to be printed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. This day, being the second Monday of the month, is set apart under the rules for the consideration of business presented by the committee on the District of Columbia if that committee desires to claim the day.

Mr. HEMPHILL. We will claim a part of it.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry. Has the morning hour been dispensed with?

The SPEAKER. It has not. The attention of the Chair was not directed to that subject when he announced the Order of Business. The second morning hour will now be had, in accordance with the second clause of Rule XXIV, which provides that on all days other than the first and third Mondays of the month the Speaker shall call the committees for the second morning hour. Several committees were passed over without prejudice. The Chair will not call those unless some gentleman representing one of them asks to have his committee called. The regular call rests with the Committee on Naval Affairs. The second morning hour begins at twenty-one minutes past 12 o'clock.

The Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads being called,

Mr. HENDERSON of North Carolina said: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that that Committee also be passed without prejudice.

There was no objection; and it was so ordered.

The Committee on Public Lands was called.

Mr. MCRAE. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (S. 2275) for the relief of purchasers of timber and stone lands under the act of June 3, 1878.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That hereafter all necessary affidavits and proofs required by law of any purchaser of lands under the provisions of an act entitled "An act for the sale of timber lands in the States of California, Oregon, Nevada, and Washington Territory," in order to perfect his title to said lands, may be made before any officer qualified to take proof in homestead cases.

Mr. DINGLEY. Mr. Speaker, is that a bill requiring consideration in the Committee of the Whole?

The SPEAKER (after examining the bill). The Chair thinks the bill is properly in the House. It refers only to the character of the testimony to be presented in the cases referred to. The Clerk will again report the bill, so that the House may understand it fully.

The bill was again read.

Mr. MCRAE. Mr. Speaker, I do not think it necessary to say anything in explanation of this bill. It explains itself. It simply changes the law so as to allow testimony and affidavits to be taken in entries of this kind, as in other entries. It is designed to promote the convenience of people who may wish to enter land, and to save them expense and travel.

The bill was ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LAND PATENTS IN NEW MEXICO AND ARIZONA.

Mr. MCRAE. I call up the bill (H. R. 8268) to amend chapter 559, page 1093, volume 26, United States Statutes at Large.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 8 of the act entitled "An act to repeal timber-culture laws, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1891, as amended by an act approved March 3, 1891, chapter 559, page 1093, volume 26, United States Statutes at Large, be, and the same is hereby, amended as follows: After the word "Wyoming" in said amended act insert the words "New Mexico and Arizona."

Mr. MCRAE. There is a typographical error in the bill as read; "ninety-three," in line 8, should be "ninety-five."

The SPEAKER. Without objection that correction will be made.

Mr. DINGLEY. Will the gentleman explain the effect of this bill?

Mr. MCRAE. It simply extends the act of March 3, 1891, to the Territories of Arizona and New Mexico a law passed by the Fifty-first Congress, from which they were omitted, evidently by oversight. The bill does not propose to change the provision of the existing law, but simply to give to those Territories the benefit of section 8—nothing more. Section 8, referred to in the bill, reads as follows:

SEC. 8. That suits by the United States to vacate and annul any patent heretofore issued shall only be brought within five years from the passage of this act, and suits to vacate and annul patents hereafter issued shall only be brought within six years after the date of the issuance of such patents. And in the States of Colorado, Montana, Idaho, North Dakota, and South Dakota, Wyoming, and in the District of Alaska, and the gold and silver regions of Nevada, and the Territory of Utah, in any criminal prosecution or civil action by the United States for a trespass on such public timber lands or to recover timber or lumber cut thereon, it shall be a defense if the defendant shall show that the said timber was so cut or removed from the timber lands for use in such State or Territory by a resident thereof for agricultural, mining, manufacturing, or domestic purposes, and has not been transported out of the same; but nothing herein contained shall apply to operate to enlarge the rights of any railway company to cut timber on the public domain: Provided, That the Secretary of the Interior may make suitable rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of this section.

I repeat, the only object of this bill is to insert in this section the Territories of New Mexico and Arizona.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Subsequently, by unanimous consent, the title of the bill was amended by striking out "ninety-three" and inserting "ninety-five."

PUBLIC SETTLERS IN TUCSON LAND DISTRICT, ARIZONA.

Mr. McRAE. I call up the bill (H. R. 7625) for relief of certain settlers on public land in the Tucson land district in Arizona.

The SPEAKER. This bill is on the Calendar of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. McRAE. I move, then, that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill in the House as in Committee of the Whole, unless consent be given that it be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. HOLMAN. I hope before that question is taken the bill will be read.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That each bona fide settler on public lands within the Tucson land district in Arizona, who shall prove to the satisfaction of the register and receiver of the Tucson land office that he has paid any money in fees, commissions, or for the land more than once, or where he has paid double minimum price for land after it was proclaimed for purchase at single minimum by the General Land Office, that such excess so paid shall be repaid to the person who so paid the same, or to his heirs or personal representative.

SEC. 2. That it shall be the duty of such register and receiver to hear the proofs in such cases and make report thereof and their decision thereon to the Secretary of the Interior, who, on receipt of same, shall transmit to the Secretary of the Treasury the names of the beneficiaries, and the amount due each, and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay the same out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Arkansas asks unanimous consent that this bill be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think it had better take the regular course.

The SPEAKER. The question, then, is on the motion of the gentleman from Arkansas that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union (Mr. RICHARDSON in the chair) and proceeded to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7625) for relief of certain settlers on public land in the Tucson land district in Arizona.

Mr. McRAE. There are several amendments reported by the Committee on Public Lands. I ask that they be read and acted on first.

The amendments were read, as follows:

In section 1, line 3, strike out all down to the word "lands" and insert "that all persons having filed for or entered."

And in line 5, after the word "office," insert "and the Commissioner of the General Land Office."

And in section 2, line 3, strike out the words "Secretary of the Interior" and insert in lieu thereof "Commissioner of the General Land Office."

And in line 4, after the word "same," insert "and upon the approval of the Secretary of the Interior."

The CHAIRMAN. Is a separate vote demanded on these amendments?

Mr. HOLMAN. The bill has not yet been read in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. McRAE. It was read in the House only a few moments since.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Indiana ask for the reading of the bill?

Mr. HOLMAN. I do.

The bill was again read.

The question being taken on the amendments (no separate vote being demanded), they were agreed to.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Speaker, this bill as now amended meets the approval of the Secretary of the Interior. It is designed to correct a mistake which was made by certain local land officers, and relates only to the one land district referred to. It has appeared to our committee as a very meritorious measure; but as the gentleman who represents Arizona as a Delegate on this floor [Mr. SMITH] is much more familiar with this question than I am, I yield to him such time as he may desire for an explanation of the bill.

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. Mr. Chairman, as has just been stated by the chairman of the Committee on the Public Lands, and as shown by the letter of the Secretary of the Interior submitted with the accompanying report in answer to one I wrote to him in regard to this question from the Committee on the Public Lands, a certain amount of money was illegally collected by the receiver of public moneys in the Tucson land district in Arizona, which money was never accounted for by him to the Government. As shown by the report, the settlers within the district stated had paid the double minimum price for their lands when they should have been charged the single minimum or the smaller price. Under these circumstances the settlers who were thus overcharged are unable to receive back the overplus so paid for the land, except there be such action taken by Congress as is proposed by the pending bill.

I appealed to the Secretary of the Interior for relief in behalf of these people, but found that he was unable to give them any aid as the law now exists, but recommended the passage of this bill. I can see no objection whatever to the passage of the bill. It is simply to refund overpaid moneys. These people have burdens enough to bear as it is now, without imposing upon them this additional burden; and I hope there will be no objection to the passage of the bill.

Mr. HERMANN. In additional explanation with regard to the provisions of this bill, I desire, Mr. Chairman, to state that in my own State of Oregon, and in Washington adjoining, there are a number of cases that I apprehend are somewhat similar to those referred to by the gentleman from Arizona, where the double minimum price was paid on railroad lands which were subsequently restored to the public domain, and where now the same lands are rated at $1.25 an acre, the original settlers having been compelled to pay $2.50 an acre. Bills are now pending asking reimbursement of the additional $1.25 so paid.

I desire to know whether this bill covers a condition of things similar to that?

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. No, sir; it does not.

Mr. HERMANN. May I ask why?

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. This is a bill to reimburse the settlers what they were compelled to pay without warrant of law. What you refer to was done under the law. But there was no law to collect this money from the settlers in Arizona. It was collected from them absolutely against law.

Mr. HERMANN. Then will the gentleman state whether this bill now pending pertains to settlers upon railroad lands in the Tucson land district?

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. No, sir; but simply to settlers upon the public domain who were charged by a Government officer an extra price beyond what the law required.

Mr. HERMANN. Not railroad lands?

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. No. The law did not authorize this extra charge. It was made by a Government official without authority of law.

Mr. HERMANN. Let me ask the gentleman from Arizona further as to whether this overcharge, to which he refers, merely arose out of a clerical error on the part of the land officers? Was it a mistake on their part?

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. It was a mistake or something worse on the part of the receiver of the public moneys in the Tucson land district.

Mr. HERMANN. Will the gentleman be kind enough to illustrate by an instance how this occurred?

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. The bill refers to instances where the receiver, as shown by the report here, has charged $2.50 an acre, or whatever the charge was, where it should have been but $1.25 an acre by law. The law fixes the price of the lands at $1.25 per acre. He charged $2.50 an acre, and made the settler pay the difference before issuing any paper of any kind whatever.

Mr. HERMANN. Does this extend to a large class of settlers?

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. No, sir; a number not exceeding thirty, forty, or fifty at the most.

Mr. HERMANN. Has any reason been stated by the receiver for this additional charge?

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. He makes none. The Secretary of the Interior says the people have been overcharged, and ought to have the money refunded to them.

Mr. HERMANN. That is the report of the Secretary of the Interior?

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. The Secretary says they should have relief, whether the overcharge was intentional or otherwise.

Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois. Was the money thus received turned into the Government Treasury?

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. I do not know. There was a question of defalcation——

Mr. HOLMAN. Oh, the money was lost.

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. Well, now, how do you know that?

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, the receiver did not pay it over.

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. He did pay it over under a judgment of the court, or the bondsmen paid it. You will find that what the Government was entitled to was paid over by the bondsmen.

Mr. HEMPHILL. How much is involved?

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. I do not know exactly. I think $20,000 is the maximum. There was before the committee a report from the Secretary showing that. I do not see, however, why the question of the amount involved should affect the right of these people. If this money has been taken from two hundred people they ought to be paid just as quickly as though the amount had been taken from one man only, and if anything it ought to be more promptly attended to, because more people are involved.

Mr. HEMPHILL. The committee ought to inform the House on that. We do not want to throw away any money.

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. If we are throwing it away, then do not let us give a cent; but if we are paying it back to the men to whom we owe it, let us give it to them.

Mr. DOCKERY. It is material to know how much we are paying, however.

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. Not over $20,000.

Mr. HOLMAN. I suggest that the gentleman from Arizona let the statement of the Commissioner of the General Land Office be read.

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. Certainly.

Mr. HOLMAN. That explains the whole matter, and with that explanation I think the House will understand it very well.

The Clerk read as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., May 19, 1892.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt by reference of the 14th instant from Hon. George Chandler, First Assistant Secretary, of House bill No. 7625, entitled "A bill for relief of certain settlers on public lands in the Tucson land district in Arizona," submitted by Hon. M. A. SMITH for an expression of the views of the Department thereon, together with a letter from M. R. Slater, esq.

Said bill provides:

"That each bona fide settler on public lands within the Tucson land district in Arizona who shall prove to the satisfaction of the register and receiver of the Tucson land office that he has paid any money in fees, commissions, or for the land more than once, or where he has paid double minimum price for land after it was proclaimed for purchase at single minimum by the General Land Office, that such excess so paid shall be repaid to the person who paid the same, or to his heirs or personal representative."

During the incumbency of Fred. W. Smith, late receiver of public moneys at Tucson, Ariz., a large number of persons who applied to enter public lands paid to said Smith fees and commissions on homestead and timber-culture entries, also purchase money on preëmption, commutation of homestead and desert-land entries, and also $1.25 per acre in excess of the minimum price where the land was held at $1.25 per acre, and Smith failed to properly account for the moneys so received by him to the Government.

In cases where persons have paid twice for the land, there is no law by which the amount could be refunded. Section 2362 Revised Statutes, provides for repayment to the purchaser, or his legal representatives or assignees, upon proof "that any tract of land has been erroneously sold by the United States, so that from any cause the sale can not be confirmed," while section 2 of the act of June 16, 1880 (21 Stats., 287), provides that "in all cases where homestead, timber-culture, or desert-land entries, or other entries of public lands, have been heretofore or shall hereafter be canceled for conflict, or where, from any cause, the entry has been erroneously allowed and can not be confirmed, the amount of purchase money, fees, and commissions may be repaid." These are the only statutes allowing repayment of fees, commissions, and purchase money, and they clearly do not cover the cases provided for in the proposed bill.

It is estimated that it will require say $25,000 to settle the claims caused by the defalcation of Fred W. Smith. In cases where it is actually shown that money was paid by persons to Fred W. Smith, in his official capacity as receiver of public moneys for entries of public lands, and where purchasers were compelled to pay a second time for the land in order to perfect their entry, or where the land was improperly sold at $2.50 per acre, I think relief should be afforded.

In conclusion I beg leave to suggest the following alterations in the text of the bill, viz: In line 5, after the word "office," insert 'and the Commissioner of the General Land Office;" in section 2, line 3, strike out the words "Secretary of the Interior" and insert "Commissioner of the General Land Office;" and in line 4, after the word "same," insert "and upon approval of the Secretary of the Interior."

House bill No. 7625 and the letter of Mr. Slater are herewith returned.

Very respectfully,

THOS. H. CARTER, Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

Mr. HERMANN. I desire to submit an amendment to the bill.

Mr. SMITH of Arizona. I have the floor and I do not yield to the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. HERMANN] to submit his amendment.

Mr. HOLMAN. I will ask also that the report of the Secretary of the Interior on this bill be read. I have read the document myself, but I think it ought to be before the committee. My impression is that, upon the facts stated by the Commissioner of the Land Office and the Secretary of the Interior, this is a proper bill. I hope the report of the Secretary of the Interior will be read.

Mr. McRAE. Is not that embodied in the report which has been read?

The CHAIRMAN. It precedes the portion which the Clerk read. The Clerk will now read it.

The Clerk read as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, Washington, June 4, 1892.

SIR: I transmit herewith copy of the report of the Commissioner of the General Land Office on House bill No. 7625, "for the relief of certain settlers on public land in the Tucson land district, in Arizona," in which he recommends the passage of the bill with certain amendments.

Its purpose is to return certain sums of money illegally collected by the late receiver at the Tucson land office for which he failed to account.

According to the report of the Commissioner, money was illegally collected on desert as well as settlement entries. It would therefore seem that all persons overcharged in the matter of their entry of public lands at said office should be protected, if the proposed legislation is deemed advisable, and to that end I have to recommend that section 1 be amended so as to read: "That all persons having filed for or entered lands within the Tucson land district, in Arizona, who shall prove," etc.

With the above amendment I can see no objection to the passage of the bill, but believe that it should be made general instead of special, and thus afford relief to all persons overcharged in the matter of the entry of public lands, whether intentionally or otherwise.

Herewith is returned a letter inclosed by Hon. M. A. SMITH in submitting the bill for the consideration of this Department.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. NOBLE, Secretary.

Hon. THOMAS C. MCRAE,
Chairman Committee on the Public Lands,
House of Representatives.

And then, on motion of Mr. McRAE, the bill was ordered to be laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that as amended it do pass.

Mr. McRAE. I move that the committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. RICHARDSON reported that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had had under consideration the bill (H. R. 7625) for the relief of certain settlers on public land in the Tucson land district, in Arizona, and had directed him to report the same to the House with certain amendments and the recommendation that as amended it do pass.

The amendments recommended by the committee were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed, was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. McRAE, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

STONE AND TIMBER LANDS, ETC.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Speaker, I move to indefinitely postpone the bill (H. R. 6656), to provide for the sale of stone and timber lands unfit for cultivation, and for other purposes. The text of that bill was in substance embodied in an amendment to a Senate bill passed at the last session. The bill ought to be disposed of in some way, and I suppose this is as good a way as any to take it off of the Calendar.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, on the recommendation of the Committee, the bill referred to (H. R. 6656) will be indefinitely postponed.

There was no objection.

ADDITIONAL LAND OFFICE, NEW MEXICO.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (H. R. 6180) to establish an additional land office in the Territory of New Mexico.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That all that portion of the Territory of New Mexico bounded and described as follows: Commencing at a point where the third standard parallel north intersects the western boundary line of the Territory of New Mexico and the eastern boundary line of the Territory of Arizona, between townships 11 and 12 north, range 21 west, of the New Mexico principal meridian; thence running east along the said third standard parallel to a point where the same touches the New Mexico principal meridian; thence running south along the said meridian to where the same crosses township line between townships 8 and 9 north; thence running east along the line between townships 8 and 9 north, as far as range line between ranges 8 and 9 east; thence running south along said range line to the northeast corner of township 13 south, range 9 east; thence running west along township line between townships 12 and 13 south, as far as the Arizona line; thence north along the line of New Mexico and Arizona to the place of beginning, be, and the same is hereby, constituted a new land district, to be called the "Socorro land district," in the Territory of New Mexico, and the land office for said district shall be located at the city of Socorro.

SEC. 2. That the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, is hereby authorized to appoint a register and a receiver for such land district, who shall discharge like and similar duties and receive the same amount of compensation as other officers discharging like duties in the other land offices in said Territory.

With committee amendments as follows:

In lines 7, 8, and 9 strike out the words "between townships 11 and 12 north, range 21 west, of the New Mexico principal meridian."

Also, in lines 16, 17, 18, and 19, strike out the words "northeast corner of township 13 south, range 9 east; thence running west along township line between township 12 and 13 south, as far as the Arizona line," and insert the words "second standard parallel south; thence running west on said second standard parallel south to the western boundary of the Territory."

Mr. McRAE. I ask unanimous consent to consider this bill in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think that bill should be considered in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. McRAE. I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the purpose of considering the bill which has just been read.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the purpose of considering the bill (H. R. 6180) to establish an additional land office in the Territory of New Mexico, with Mr. RICHARDSON in the chair.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Chairman, this bill has just been read in the House, and I move to dispense with its first formal reading in committee.

There was no objection.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to have some explanation of the necessity for this new land district. My recollection is that we have recently established a new district in New Mexico.

Mr. JOSEPH. The report upon this bill shows the necessity for it. This is for a central district in New Mexico. There is urgent necessity for it.

Mr. HOLMAN. How many districts have you already?

Mr. JOSEPH. We have four already in New Mexico, and this is to establish a fifth, in central New Mexico. The report is quite full.

Mr. HOLMAN. I hope that the gentleman from New Mexico will consent to have the report read.

Mr. JOSEPH. I ask that the report be read.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read the report.

The report was read, as follows:

The Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2093) for the disposal of certain abandoned military reservations in the State of Wyoming, submit the following report:

This bill provides for the disposal, under the land laws of the United States, of certain abandoned reservations in the State of Wyoming.

The facts are fully set forth in the Senate report on this bill, which is as follows:

"The Committee on Public Lands, having had under consideration Senate bill 2093, to provide for the disposal of certain military reservations in the State of Wyoming, and considered the same, respectfully report the bill favorably with amendments.

"The bill proposes to throw open to settlement, under the homestead law, with certain restrictions, the Fort Fetterman hay reservation, containing 2,620 acres of land. This reservation was relinquished July 22, 1884, by the War Department, without improvements, and transferred to the custody of the Interior Department eight years ago. It has been settled upon, and the committee see no reason why it should not be disposed of as provided by the bill.

"The bill as amended also provides for the disposition of an old wood reserve, attached to Fort Fetterman, containing 4,706 acres of land, which has been relinquished; also what is known as the new wood reserve, attached to Fort Fetterman, containing 1,262 acres of land, which was also relinquished without improvements July 22, 1884.

"The annexed communications of the honorable Secretary of the Interior and the honorable Commissioner of the General Land Office show that the bill as amended is approved by the Land Department of the Government.

"DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
"Washington, March 19, 1892.

"SIR: I am in receipt, by reference from you, of Senate bill 2093, entitled 'A bill to provide for the disposal of certain abandoned military reservations in the State of Wyoming,' with a request for an expression of the views of this Department thereon.

"I concur in the amendments proposed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, in his report on the bill, which is herewith transmitted, and would also suggest the following amendment: Strike out the words, 'until the Secretary of the Interior shall so direct,' in lines 24 and 25 of said bill, and in lieu thereof insert the following: 'and said subdivision shall be disposed of under the provisions of the act of July 5, 1884, entitled 'An act to provide for the disposal of abandoned and useless military reservations,' and thus amended, I see no objection to the passage of the bill.

"Very respectfully,

"JOHN W. NOBLE, Secretary.

"Hon. J. N. DOLPH,
"Chairman Committee on Public Lands, United States Senate.

"DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
"Washington, D. C., March 5, 1892.

"SIR: I have the honor to receive, by reference from your Department, under date of February 15, 1892, for report in duplicate and return of paper, Senate bill 2093, 'To provide for the disposal of certain abandoned military reservations in the State of Wyoming,' transmitted to the Department by Hon. J. N. DOLPH, chairman of the Committee on Public Lands of the United States Senate, with a request for the views of your Department thereon. * * *

I see no objections to the passage of the bill.

"Attention is called to the fact that the act of July 10, 1890 (26 Stats., 227), provided specifically for the disposition, among others, of the Fort Fetterman post reserve. Besides the said post reserve and the hay reserve, to which this bill refers, there were attached to the Fort Fetterman reservation an old wood reserve situated in T. 32 N., Rs. 74 and 75 W., embracing 4,706.23 acres, which was established August 29, 1872, and relinquished without improvements July 22, 1884, and a new wood reserve situated in Ts. 28 and 29, R. 71 W., embracing 1,262.76 acres, which was established February 9, 1877, and relinquished without improvements July 22, 1884.

"It is suggested that these wood reserves be included in the bill if Congress sees fit to do so.

"Very respectfully,

"THOMAS H. CARTER,
"Commissioner.

"The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR."

In consideration whereof your committee recommend that the bill do pass with the following amendments:

In line 13, strike out the words "either of the" where said words occur in said line.

After the word "laws," in line 13, insert the words "if qualified."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendments proposed by the committee.

The amendments were agreed to in gross.

The bill as amended was ordered to be laid aside with the recommendation that it do pass.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee rise.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. RICHARDSON, chairman of the Committee of the Whole House, reported that that committee had had under consideration the bill (H. R. 6180) to establish an additional land office in the Territory of New Mexico, and had directed him to report the same back with the recommendation that it do pass with amendments.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. McRAE, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

ABANDONED MILITARY RESERVATIONS IN THE STATE OF WYOMING.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (S. 2093) to provide for the disposal of certain abandoned military reservations in the State of Wyoming, and I ask that it be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That all public lands now remaining undisposed of within the abandoned military reservations in the State of Wyoming, known as Fort Fetterman hay reservation, the Fort Fetterman old wood reserve, situated in township 32 north, ranges 74 and 75 west, established August 29, 1872, and the Fort Fetterman new wood reserve, situated in townships 28 and 29, range 71 west, are hereby made subject to disposal under the homestead law only: Provided, That actual occupants thereon upon the 1st day of January, 1892, shall have the preference right to make one entry, not exceeding one quarter section, under either of the existing land laws, which shall include their respective improvements: Provided further, That any of such lands as are occupied for town-site purposes and any of the lands that may be shown to be valuable for coal or minerals shall be disposed of as now provided for lands subject to entry and sale under the town-site, coal, or mineral-land laws, respectively.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Arkansas asks unanimous consent that this bill be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think for the purpose of having the report read, we should go into Committee of the Whole.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Speaker, I do not believe the bill has been properly referred to the Union Calendar. It perhaps ought to have been on the House Calendar, as it involves no appropriation; but I do not intend to take up any time in discussing that point now. It is a bill to which there ought to be no objection. It simply seeks to open this land to settlers under the homestead law.

Mr. HOLMAN. If that be the only purpose, of course that rule does not apply; but I suggest to the gentleman from Arkansas that inasmuch as these reservations are generally land of especial value and surrounded with settlements, that our liberal propositions as to homesteads ought not to apply.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman from Arkansas that this bill seems to grant a right to enter lands under the homestead laws where the right is not now granted, and the Chair believes that, therefore, the bill will have to be first considered in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. McRAE. I do not agree with the Speaker in his conclusion, because it does not appropriate either land or money; but I will not take up time in discussing the matter, and yield the point. I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole, Mr. RICHARDSON in the Chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The House is in Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a bill the title of which the Clerk will report.

The title was again reported.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, the objection which I have to the bill——

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman desire to debate the amendment?

Mr. HOLMAN. I do not.

The amendments recommended by the committee were agreed to.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, I wish to suggest to my friend from Arkansas that we are so rapidly disposing of those of our public lands adapted to cultivation that we ought to adopt a more restricted policy. This bill, in effect, takes this land out from under the operation of the act of 1882, which provided a method for the disposal of abandoned military reservations, and subjects it simply to the provisions of the homestead law. Now, the objection to that, from my standpoint, is this: These are not to be regarded as wild lands, in an unsettled country, to which the homestead principle should apply. The land is surrounded by settlements with extensive improvements. These military reservations are uniformly composed of the best land, and generally well watered. That is the almost universal rule. Now, it seems to me, if the homestead principle should be applied, it should only extend to the amount of eighty acres, instead of a quarter section, and where one quarter section occurs in the bill I move to strike out "one quarter section" and insert "eighty acres."

My friend from Arkansas will see that the homestead idea ought not to apply in its completeness to this body of land—a reservation of land surrounded by settlement. The lands thus selected are generally quite fertile and favorably located for military use. I would be very glad if the gentleman from Arkansas would be disposed to accept this suggestion. Up to this time we have not applied strictly the homestead policy to these military reservations, and the act of 1882, for the reason I have named, does not assume these lands to be part of the public domain subject to be taken under the homestead law, but has provided for their sale and for covering the amount received into the Treasury.

Mr. CLARK of Wyoming. I would state to the gentleman from Indiana that this land is not really in the military reservation, but is miles away, and was reserved as a hay reservation. There are no settlements on it, but one mining settlement.

Mr. WILSON of Washington. I would ask the gentleman from Wyoming if this land has to be irrigated?

Mr. CLARK of Wyoming. Every foot of it.

Mr. WILSON of Washington. Then why not apply the desert-land law to it instead of the homestead law?

Mr. McRAE. Has the gentleman from Indiana concluded his remarks?

Mr. HOLMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to giving settlers in one State or Territory 80 acres of land under the homestead law and 160 acres to those in other States and Territories. I think the land should be taken on equal terms in all the States or Territories, or not at all. Years ago we adopted 160 acres as a suitable homestead. That is the size of homesteads in most of the States.

The CHAIRMAN. Did the gentleman from Indiana offer an amendment?

Mr. HOLMAN. I moved to strike out "one quarter section" and insert "eighty acres."

Mr. CLARK of Wyoming. I hope the gentleman will withdraw that amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Indiana will reduce his amendment to writing.

Mr. McRAE. The Clerk can easily get that amount by striking out "one quarter section" and inserting "eighty acres." That is all I desire to say. I hope the amendment will not be adopted.

Years ago we entered upon the policy of reserving agricultural lands for settlers only. We have since repealed all the land laws except the homestead law. This bill simply seeks to open to settlement these reservations under that law. Just why any gentleman objects to it I can not understand, unless he has made up his mind to advocate a policy of selling the public lands with a view of raising a revenue. That I do not believe the House is willing to do, and I hope the amendment will be voted down and the bill passed.

Mr. HOLMAN. I am not in favor of selling any of the public lands, not an acre, except under certain conditions. I have always favored the policy of the homestead law, but it seems to me that we have reached the period when lands which have been reserved for so many years ought to be disposed of in smaller quantities than quarter sections. However, looking at this bill more carefully, I do not think it necessary to insist on the application of that principle in this particular case, so I withdraw my amendment.

The bill was laid aside to be reported to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee rise and report the bill to the House.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. RICHARDSON, from the Committee of the Whole, reported that they had had under consideration a bill (S. 2093) to provide for the disposal of certain abandoned military reservations in the State of Wyoming, and had instructed him to report the same to the House with an amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Mr. McRAE moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed; and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

CLASSIFICATION OF MINERAL LANDS, MONTANA AND IDAHO.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (H. R. 8796) to provide for the examination and classification of certain mineral lands in the States of Montana and Idaho.

The Clerk proceeded to read the bill.

The SPEAKER (during the reading). The morning hour has expired. This bill will come up in the second morning hour tomorrow.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. QUACKENBUSH, for three weeks, on account of sickness in his family.

To Mr. HALLOWELL, for two days, on account of important business.

To Mr. CAUSEY, until Thursday, on account of important business.

ENROLLED JOINT RESOLUTION SIGNED.

Mr. SCOTT, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that they had examined and found truly enrolled joint resolution (H. Res. 167) relating to the discharge of certain official duties in the office of Register of the Treasury; when the Speaker signed the same.

OPENING OF WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION ON SUNDAY.

Mr. DURBOROW, by unanimous consent, introduced a joint resolution (H. Res. 168) to provide for opening of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition, and ordered to be printed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. This being the second Monday in the month, the Committee on the District of Columbia has the privilege of calling up such business as it may desire.

REAL ESTATE LAWS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill H. R. 6922, which is on the House Calendar. It is a bill to amend section 452 of the Revised Statutes, relating to the District of Columbia, concerning conveyances of real estate.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section numbered 452 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia be, and the same is hereby, amended by adding at the end thereof the words "but such right of dower shall effectually pass by such deed whether such married woman be of full age or otherwise."

Mr. HEMPHILL. Mr. Speaker, this bill simply proposes to allow a married woman to sign away her dower when her husband has conveyed the land even though she be under 21 years of age.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to call up the bill H. R. 9758, to amend the charter of the Eckington Railroad Company.

The SPEAKER. Has the bill been reported?

Mr. HEMPHILL. It has not.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the act to amend the charter of the Eckington and Soldiers' Home Railway Company, approved April 30, A. D. 1890, is hereby amended by substituting the word "five" for the word "three" in the last line of said act.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina that this bill be now considered?

Mr. KILGORE. Mr. Speaker, do I understand that that bill has been considered by the Committee on the District of Columbia?

Mr. HEMPHILL. A majority of the committee have asked me to call it up. It has not been regularly reported.

Mr. KILGORE. But has it even been considered by the committee?

Mr. HEMPHILL. Oh, yes. I think the bill has passed the Senate. It is a very simple matter——

Mr. KILGORE. I do not care anything about the merits of the measure, but I do not think that a bill ought to be considered in the House that has not been reported from the committee having jurisdiction of the subject-matter.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Well, I have the request of nearly all the members of the committee that I call up the bill and have it considered, which of course gives their consent to its provisions.

Mr. KILGORE. I will not object.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SATURDAY HALF HOLIDAY FOR BANKS AND BANKERS.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I report back favorably from the Committee on the District of Columbia the bill (H. R. 3418) making Saturday a half holiday where banks and bankers so elect; and I call up the bill for immediate consideration.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That it shall be lawful for trust companies, banks, and bankers in the city of Washington to close their doors for business at 12 o'clock noon on each and every Saturday in the year, and every Saturday in the year after 12 o'clock noon shall be a legal half holiday so far as regards the presenting for the payment or acceptance and the protesting and giving notice of the dishonor of bills of exchange, bank checks, drafts, promissory notes, and other negotiable paper, and for these purposes shall be treated and considered as the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, without reference to whether any of said banks or trust companies do or do not close as aforesaid; and all such bills, checks, drafts, and notes presentable for acceptance or payment on Saturdays shall be deemed to be presentable for acceptance or payment on the secular or business day next succeeding: Provided, however, That all bills of exchange, drafts, and promissory notes made after the passage of this act, except those payable at sight or on demand, which shall be otherwise payable on any half-holiday Saturday, shall be deemed to be, and shall be, payable on the next succeeding secular or business day: And provided further, That for the purpose of protesting or otherwise holding liable any party to any bill or exchange, bank check, draft, or promissory note which shall not have been paid before 12 o'clock at noon on any half-holiday Saturday, a demand of acceptance or payment thereof may be made, and notice of protest or dishonor thereof may be given on the next succeeding secular or business day: And provided further, That when any person shall receive for collection in said city of Washington any bill of exchange, bank check, or promissory note due and presentable for acceptance or payment on any half-holiday Saturday, such person shall not be deemed guilty of neglect or omission of duty, nor incur any liability in not presenting for payment or acceptance or collecting such bill of exchange, bank check, draft, or promissory note on that day. Nothing in this section shall affect any legislation applicable to any Saturday whenever the same, under the provision of said section, shall be a legal holiday.

SEC. 2. That this act shall take effect from the date of its passage.

The bill was ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LOT 3, SQUARE SOUTH OF SQUARE 990.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I call up the bill (H. R. 6644) to amend an act entitled "An act authorizing the sale of title of the United States in lot 3 in square south of square 990," approved March 3, 1891.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the act authorizing sale of title of United States in lot 3 in square south of square 990 be amended by adding thereto the following: "Provided, That the conveyance authorized and directed by this act shall be a quitclaim and relinquishment only of any title that the United States may have in and to said lot, and that in no event shall the United States be liable for any costs, expenses, damages, or taxes in relation to said lot, and that the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to so quitclaim, release, and convey the title of the United States in said lot to the said Baker and Sanborn upon the payment into the Treasury by them of an amount not exceeding the assessed value of the said lot as the same was valued and assessed on the books of assessment of real property in the District of Columbia at the date of the purchase by said Baker and Sanborn from their grantor."

The following amendment reported by the committee was read and agreed to:

Strike out at the end of the bill the words "an amount not exceeding the assessed value of the said lot as the same was valued and assessed on the books of assessment of real property in the District of Columbia at the date of the purchase by said Baker and Sanborn from their grantor," and insert "three thousand two hundred dollars."

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

EXTENSION OF NORTH CAPITOL STREET.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I call up the bill (H. R. 8815) to extend North Capitol street to the Soldiers' Home.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby directed to open and grade North Capitol street from T street to the Soldiers' Home, and are hereby authorized and directed to condemn, in the manner provided by law for the condemnation of land in the District of Columbia, such of the lands of the Prospect Hill Cemetery and of Annie E. Barbour as may be necessary for the extension of said street, and the sum of $10,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to carry out the provisions of this act: Provided, That one-half of the said sum shall be paid out of the revenues of the District of Columbia: And provided further, That one-half of the costs of such grading and condemnation shall be charged against and become a lien upon the abutting property, and the collection of such costs shall be enforced in the manner provided for the collection of general taxes.

The SPEAKER. This bill is on the Union Calendar.

Mr. HEMPHILL. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

There being no objection, the House proceeded to the consideration of the bill; which was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. HEMPHILL. Mr. Speaker, there is another bill which I had proposed to call up to-day—the Norfolk and Western Railroad bill; but in accordance with the request of some members of the committee I will not present it now. Therefore the committee has no other business to submit at this time.

The SPEAKER (after a pause). The Committee on the District of Columbia having no further business to present, a motion is in order respecting the Calendars.

Mr. DOCKERY. I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and accordingly (at 1 o'clock and 40 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, Mr. ROCKWELL, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, reported, in lieu of the bill (H. R. 3521) for the relief of Eli Ayres, the bill (H. R. 9820) of the same title; which was delivered to the Clerk, ordered to be printed, and referred to the Committee of the Whole House. (Report No. 2148.)

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, the Committee on Invalid Pensions was discharged from the consideration of the bills (H. R. 7160) for the relief of the heirs of Henry A. Lee and (H. R. 2104) for the relief of James Nipper, of Cleveland, Tenn., and the same were referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

BILLS, MEMORIALS, AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. NEWBERRY (by request): A bill (H. R. 9821) to amend the act of Congress of February 12, 1887, entitled "An act to amend section 1661 of the Revised Statutes, making an annual appropriation to provide arms and equipments for the militia"—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. COMPTON: A bill (H. R. 9822) to incorporate the Washington and Marlboro Electric Railway Company of the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. McALEER: A bill (H. R. 9823) authorizing the President of the United States to appoint one passed assistant surgeon now on the retired list of the Navy under the act of Congress of Feburary 15, 1879, a surgeon on the retired list of the Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. CRAIN: A bill (H. R. 9824) to amend "An act to promote the construction of a safe deep-water harbor on the coast of Texas," approved Feburary 9, 1891—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. GRISWOLD: A bill (H. R. 9826) granting certain rights and privileges to the board of water commissioners of the city of Erie, Pa.—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. DALZELL: A bill (H. R. 9827) to authorize the Union Railroad Company to construct and maintain a bridge across the Monongahela River—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. FORMAN: A bill (H. R. 9828) to encourage the construction of electric railroads, to facilitate the carrying of mails, to promote the interests of commerce and travel, and to aid in demonstrating the feasibility of the distribution of electrical power for agricultural and other purposes along the line of electric roads, and especially to aid in the construction of a pioneer electric railroad between the cities of Chicago and St. Louis by the Chicago and St. Louis Electric Railroad Company, and to secure to the Government the use of the same for postal, military, and other purposes, at existing rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. SCOTT: A bill (H. R. 9829) to increase the tax on distilled spirits to $1.25 per gallon—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GRISWOLD: A bill (H. R. 9830) extending the privileges of the first and seventh sections of the act approved June 10, 1880, governing the transportation of merchandise, without appraisement, to the port of Erie, in the State of Pennsylvania—to the Committee on Interstate of Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. COBB of Alabama: A bill (H. R. 9831) to aid in building a national home for the aged—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. ANDREW: A bill (H. R. 9833) to increase the circulation of national banks, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

By Mr. MITCHELL: A bill (H. R. 9849) authorizing the establishment of a pier-head light at or near South Milwaukee, in the State of Wisconsin—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. DURBOROW: A joint resolution (H. Res. 168) to provide for the opening of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. RICHARDSON: A concurrent resolution to print the report of the Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries for fiscal year ending June 30, 1892—to the Committee on Printing.

By Mr. DOCKERY: A resolution creating a commission to investigate the Executive Departments—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. CUMMINGS: A resolution providing for an investigation of certain charges against the Post-Office Department—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. McRAE: A resolution to amend clause 2 of Rule XXIV—to the Committee on Rules.

PRIVATE BILLS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills of the following titles were presented and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. BACON. A bill (H. R. 9834) granting an honorable discharge to Jehiel C. Tompkins—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BERGEN: A bill (H. R. 9835) to correct the military record of Jehu Evans, late captain of Company E, Fourth New Jersey Volunteers—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9836) to correct the military record of George Whittaker, late a private of Company C, Twelfth New Jersey Volunteers—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BRODERICK: A bill (H. R. 9837) for the relief of Jesse Johnson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9838) for the relief of John Birkett—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9839) for the relief of John Kircher—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. FITHIAN: A bill (H. R. 9840) to grant a pension to Mary E. Dabbs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GEARY: A bill (H. R. 9841) for the relief of James Joyce, late first lieutenant of the United States Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HOOKER of New York: A bill (H. H. 9842) for the correction of the record of James A. Smith deceased—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KENDALL: A bill (H. R. 9843) removing the charge of desertion from the military record of W. H. Kindrick—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9844) removing charge of desertion from the record of Gilmore Justice—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9845) removing charge of desertion from the record of William Justice—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. KEM: A bill (H. R. 9846) granting a pension to Isaac D. Gregg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RAINES: A bill (H. R. 9847) to remove the charge of desertion against Elijah T. Holloway—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. STONE of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 9848) for the relief of Mrs. S. A. Trimble—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk, and referred as follows:

By Mr. BLAND: Petition of Thomas S. King, for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURROWS: Petition of William Trumble, of Mattison, Branch County, Mich., for relief—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Polly Hurd, of Bronson County, Mich., for relief—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COX of New York: Petition of churches of Coxsackie, N. Y., in respect to keeping the World's Fair closed on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. DOAN: Petition of 41 members of the Third Lutheran Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, of Springfield, Ohio, to the Congress of the United States, not to repeal the law closing the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago on the Lord's day—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. FORNEY: Joint memorial of the senate and house of representatives of the State of Alabama, favoring the construc- of the Nicaragua Canal and its control by the United States—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. GANTZ: Petition of physicians of Darke County, Ohio, in favor of an appropriation for the Pan-American Medical Congress—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. GEARY: Petition of Henry Baicke, of Yountville, Cal., asking for increase of pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GEISSENHAINER: Petition of the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey, against opening the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. HARE: Petition of H. L. Michener and 26 others, of Seneca County, Ohio, against the repeal of the law closing the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. HAUGEN: Petition of C. D. Conkey and 12 other physicians of Douglas County, Wis., asking an appropriation sufficient to defray the expenses of the Pan-American Medical Congress to be held in Washington, D. C., A. D. 1893—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. HAYNES of Ohio: Petition of George Sheets and 21 others of Toledo, Ohio, for the passage of an act to extend the provisions of act to provide for the muster and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer forces, etc.—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa: Paper from Rev. A. G. Wilson, president Lenox College, Hopkins, Iowa, urging that the World's Fair be not opened on the Sabbath, and stating that such is the sentiment of his community—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. HITT: Petition of D. D. Lichty and 17 others of the medical profession in Winnebago County, Ill., for an appropriation of $43,983 for the Pan-American Medical Congress in Washington, September, 1893, with memorial and estimate—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. McCLELLAN: Petition of the members of the Third Presbyterian Church and Christian Endeavor Society connected therewith to the Presbyterians in Congress to vote against the bill to repeal the present law which prohibits the opening of the Columbian Exposition on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. MORSE: Petition of George Seltzer, of Boston, Mass., urging Congress to pass a bill to promote the safety of employés upon railroads engaged in interstate commerce, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. OHLIGER: Three petitions of citizens of Ohio, two of which are against the repeal of the Sunday closing law for the Columbian Exposition, and one against opening the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania: Memorial of the Philadelphia Board of Trade in opposition to the passage of the Hatch antioption bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. OUTHWAITE: Petition of Alice Mayhugh and others of Big Plain, Ohio, protesting against the repeal of the law to close the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. PICKLER: Petition and resolution of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Huron, S. Dak., asking that Congress do not rescind action closing the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. SANFORD: Petition of the Medical Society of Fulton County, N. Y., signed by forty members of the medical profession, for an appropriation of $43,983 to assist defraying the expenses of the Pan-American Congress to be held in Washington, D. C., September 5, 6, 7, and 8, 1893—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois: Petition of the Chicago Ministerial Union, representing 88 Congregational churches, renewing the expression of its conviction embodied in its former petition that the gates of the Columbian Exposition should not be opened on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. TRACEY: Petition of citizens of Albany, N. Y., in favor of the World's Fair being open on Sundays—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. WILSON of Missouri: Resolutions of church people of Tarkio, Mo., favoring Sunday closing of the World's Fair—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. YOUMANS: Resolutions of the Methodist Episcopal, Baptist, and Presbyterian congregations of Cass City, Tuscola County, Mich., thanking Congress for the Sabbath closing of the World's Fair—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, December 13, 1892.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

PRINTING AND DISTRIBUTION OF DOCUMENTS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 1549) providing for the public printing and binding and distribution of public documents.

Mr. MANDERSON. I move that the Senate nonconcur in the amendments of the House of Represensatives and that a conference be requested on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent the Vice-President was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate, and Mr. MANDERSON, Mr. HAWLEY, and Mr. GORMAN were appointed.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate communications from the Secretary of State, transmitting, in pursuance of the provisions of the act of Congress approved February 3, 1887, certified copies of the final ascertainment of the electors for President and Vice-President appointed in the States of Texas, North Carolina, Alabama, Illinois, and Maine, at the elections held therein on the 8th of November, 1892, as certified by the governors of those States; which, with the accompanying papers, were ordered to lie on the table.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. WILSON presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of Burlington, Iowa, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a memorial of the Presbyterian Synod of Burlington, Iowa, remonstrating against the repeal of the law closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Methodist Episcopal and United Presbyterian churches of Redding, Iowa, praying for the closing of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; for the passage of the antioption bill, and that the sale of intoxicating liquors be prohibited on the grounds of the World's Columbian Exposition; also, praying for the passage of legislation restricting immigration; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. PEFFER presented petitions of William Hintz and 20 other citizens of Crawford County; of G. W. Goodwin and 20 other citizens of Sedgwick County; of D. M. London of Blair County and 42 citizens of Montgomery County; of E. Bishop and 23 other citizens of Sumner County; of J. J. Wright and 19 other citizens of Sedgwick County; of S. L. Barrett and 19 other citizens of Sedgwick County; of J. T. Watson and 41 other citizens of Sedgwick County; of W. L. Thomas and 20 other citizens of Sedgwick County; of J. E. Sanderson and 39 other citizens of Crawford County; of James B. Caldwell and 20 other citizens of Cowley County; of B. F. Havens and 20 other citizens of Sedgwick County; of George Hudson and 40 other citizens of Cowley County; of Charles Harrison and 20 other citizens of Montgomery County; of John H. Miller and 18 other citizens of Bourbon County; of Lew Reppeto and 20 other citizens of Cowley County; of W. M. McFadden and 19 other citizens of Bourbon County; of D. E. Fuller and 38 other citizens of Sedgwick County, and of Charles B. Fox and 19 other citizens of Sumner County, all in the State of Kansas, praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain, and asking the postponement of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill until such committee shall report; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. IRBY presented two memorials of citizens of Gaffney City, S. C., remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. PADDOCK presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Duluth, Minn., praying for the construction of a ship canal through the United States from the Great Lakes to the Hudson River; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented the petition of F. H. Dailey and 23 other citizens of Douglas County, Nebr., and the petition of W. W. Miller and 18 other citizens of Adams County, Nebr., praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the depression in grain resulting from the combine existing between the millers, elevators, and railroads, and asking that the consideration of the antioption bill be postponed until such committee shall report; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. KYLE presented the petition of Philip Rempp and 51 other citizens of Yankton County, S. Dak., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. FELTON presented the petition of Dr. Edmund P. Tierney, of San Francisco, Cal., praying that an increase of pension be granted him; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MITCHELL presented a memorial of members of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, of Montvila, Oregon, remonstrating against the commitment of the United States Government to a union of religion and the state by the passage of any legislation closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented the petition of William E. Stevenson, of Butler County, Pa., late private in Company E, One hundred and third Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, praying to be allowed a pension on account of injuries received and privations endured during the war of the rebellion; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of the United Presbyterian Church of North America, of Rock Island, Ill., praying that the World's Columbian Exposition be closed on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. PERKINS presented a petition of Journeymen Tailors' Union, No. 28, of Emporia, Kans., praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented petitions of J. W. Poe and 19 other citizens of Sedgwick County; of A. G. Forney and 3 other citizens of Sumner County; of Joseph Cobb and 20 other citizens of Sedgwick County; of Mike Godfrey and 18 other citizens of Sumner County; of Dr. E. J. Hughes and 17 other citizens of Sedgwick County; of J. H. Felger and 18 other citizens of Harvey County; of Alfred Wilson and 23 other citizens of Crawford County; of John Edwards and 21 other citizens of Cowley County; of J. W. Gladman and 17 other citizens of Cowley County, and of W. D. Patton and 21 other citizens of Bourbon County, all in the State of Kansas, praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain, and asking for the postponement of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill until such committee shall report; which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. HILL. I present the petition of George S. Coe, Arthur Leary, Ebenezer K. Wright, George S. Hickok, William Dowd, and other citizens of New York, in favor of the passage of the New York and New Jersey bridge bill now pending in the Senate. The petition is a most important one, and, as it will probably be desired to refer to it during the debate which may take place on the bill, I ask unanimous consent that the petition, with the names, be printed in the RECORD.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request made by the Senator from New York?

Mr. HARRIS. What is the request?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That the signatures to the petition and the petition be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. HARRIS. I have no objection to the petition being printed as a miscellaneous document, but I have uniformly objected to encumbering the RECORD with petitions. I object now.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Objection being made, the petition will be printed as a document, and it will lie on the table.

Mr. ALLEN presented a petition of Journeymen Tailors' Union, No. 134, New Whatcom, Wash., and a petition of Journeyman Tailors' Union, No. 100, of Spokane, Wash., praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. DANIEL presented memorials of the Chamber of Commerce of Richmond, Va.; of citizens of Florence, S. C., and of citizens of Norfolk, Va., remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the memorial of W. A. Lewis and 8 other members of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church of Arlington, Va., remonstrating against the commitment of the United States Government to a union of religion and the state by the passage of any legislation closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented petitions of D. R. Norvell, of Fluvanna County, Va.; of Ivey, Owen & Co., of Lynchburg, Va.; of Myers Brothers & Co., of Richmond, Va.; of John Rope, manager American Tobacco Company, of Richmond, Va.; of W. T. Hancock, of Richmond, Va.; of John H. Flood, of Lynchburg, Va.; of Gravely & Miller, of Danville, Va.; of William S. Carroll, of Lynchburg, Va.; of the J. B. Pace Tobacco Company, of Richmond, Va.; of the T. C. Williams Company, of Richmond, Va., and the petition of William H. Ford & Co., of Lynchburg, Va., praying for the repeal of the free-leaf section of the tariff law; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

STATISTICAL ABSTRACT FOR 1892.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by the Committee on Printing, to whom was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 118) to print the fifteenth number of the Statistical Abstract of the United States for the year 1892, to report it back with sundry amendments, and changing it to a concurrent resolution. I send the amendments to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Nebraska desire the present consideration of the joint resolution?

Mr. MANDERSON. I ask for its present consideration.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

Mr. COCKRELL. What are the amendments?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendments will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. In line 3, strike out "20,000" and insert "12,000."

In line 6, strike out "6,000" and insert "3,000."

In line 7, strike out "12,000" and insert "6,000."

In line 8, strike out "2,000" and insert "3,000."

Mr. MANDERSON. I will state for the information of the Senator from Missouri, who introduced the joint resolution, that these amendments are to make it conform to the general printing bill which has been passed by both Houses and is now in conference.

Mr. COCKRELL. I suggest to the Senator from Nebraska that while we are printing this document it would be well to print a larger number than that provided in the general bill. In the discussion of the tariff bill, which will be very apt to be discussed at no very distant day, this will be an exceedingly important document, because it contains the data up to the 1st of July, 1892. It will probably be necessary to have additional copies, and it would be as well to print them at once. Ordinarily the number prescribed I think would be sufficient, but I doubt whether it will be sufficient this time.

I think there will be a larger number of this document required. I find for example that the edition of the Statistical Abstract for 1887 was exhausted and additional copies had to be ordered two or three times, and yet for another year the usual number we printed was too many. I have a large number of copies on hand of certain years and for other years I can not get any copies at all. Take the Statistical Abstract for 1889; the edition was exhausted at once in the discussion of the tariff act of 1890. That is the only reason why I proposed to increase the edition over and above the usual number.

I simply make this suggestion because it would be economical, would it not, to have all the copies printed at once? What would be the difference in cost if we should want an additional issue?

Mr. MANDERSON. The cost of printing 20,000 copies is not a very large amount of money, although the Abstract for the year 1892 is much larger and contains more variety of information, I think, than perhaps any other that has preceded it.

I quite agree with the Senator from Missouri, that there will be a greater demand for this particular number than any which has been heretofore printed. I do not object for one, and I do not think the Committee on Printing will object to the printing of 20,000 copies and making this, perhaps, an exception to the general rule for printing the Statistical Abstract.

Mr. COCKRELL. I hope that will be done.

Mr. MANDERSON. So I shall not ask for a vote on the proposed amendments, but will withdraw them and simply insist upon the amendment changing the joint to a concurrent resolution.

Mr. COCKRELL. Oh, yes; that is right.

Mr. MANDERSON. That amendment will require some change in the body of the joint resolution. I ask that it be read.

The joint resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there be printed 20,000 copies of the Statistical Abstract of the United States for the year 1892, prepared by the Bureau of Statistics, Treasury Department; 6,000 copies for the use of the members of the Senate, 12,000 copies for the use of the members of the House of Representatives, and 2,000 copies for the Bureau of Statistics, Treasury Department, and that the sum of $, or so much of the same as may be necessary to defray the expense of printing such report, be appropriated and paid out of the money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Mr. MANDERSON. I move to change the form to that of a concurrent resolution, and to strike out all after the word "Department" in line 9.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read as proposed to be amended.

The Chief Clerk read the resolution as proposed to be amended, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That there be printed 20,000 copies of the Statistical Abstract of the United States for the year 1892, prepared by the Bureau of Statistics, Treasury Department; 6,000 copies for the use of the members of the Senate, 12,000 copies for the use of the members of the House of Representatives, and 2,000 copies for the Bureau of Statistics, Treasury Department.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendments proposed by the Senator from Nebraska.

The amendments were agreed to.

The concurrent resolution as amended was agreed to.

TREASURY ACCOUNTS.

Mr. MANDERSON. There was referred to the Committee on Printing the letter of the Treasurer of the United States, relative to accounts rendered to and settled with the First Comptroller for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1892, with copies of the same. I am directed by the Committee on Printing to report back the accounts with the recommendation that they be not printed. I ask that that order be made.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The report will be agreed to, in the absence of objection.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION REPORT.

Mr. COCKRELL. I should like to call the attention of the Senator from Nebraska to the resolution I introduced to print the ninth annual report of the Civil Service Commission. The printing of that report will save us a great deal of writing and explanation if we can have copies of the document to send out. There are quite a number of offices that have been brought under the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission which are not specified in the last report, and it is very difficult for a Senator to answer an applicant for a position as to whether the office comes under the civil-service law or not. We need to have that report printed as a document to distribute, and I should like to have it as soon as possible.

Mr. MANDERSON. I do not think that on this side of the Chamber we shall have the degree of interest in that report which the Senator expresses, but I will state to him that the report will be ordered printed very shortly, as soon as the committee can act upon the resolution.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. BATE introduced a bill (S. 3569) for the relief of D. W. and Minna H. Glassie and Joseph C. Nash; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 3570) for the suspension of immigration under certain circumstances; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. PEFFER (by request) introduced a bill (S. 3571) to facilitate promotion in the Navy; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. PERKINS (by request) introduced a bill (S. 3572) providing for the purchase of certain property therein named; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. FELTON introduced a bill (S. 3573) for the relief of James Joyes, late lieutenant United States Army; which was read twice by its title, and, with accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. MITCHELL introduced a bill (S. 3574) to provide for a national encampment of the army and militia at the World's Columbian Exposition; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also introduced a bill (S. 3575) granting a pension to William E. Stevenson; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3576) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Henry Von Hess, of Portland, Oregon; which was read twice by its title, and, with accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. CULLOM. I introduce a bill by request, and I do so for the reason that I desire to have the subjects contained in it considered by the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

The bill (S. 3577) to amend an act entitled, "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. PLATT introduced a bill (S. 3578) granting a pension to Susan E. Cunningham; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. VEST introduced a bill (S. 3579) to extend the jurisdiction of courts in Oklahoma Territory and of the United States court in the Indian Territory; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SAWYER introduced a bill (S. 3580) to amend the proviso to be found in connection with the free delivery system service, page 569, Twenty-fourth volume, Statutes at Large; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. DOLPH introduced a bill (S. 3581) to amend an act entitled "An act to forfeit certain lands heretofore granted for the purpose of aiding in the construction of railroads, and for other purposes;" which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

AMENDMENT TO A BILL.

Mr. ALLEN submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the naval appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

CIVIL SERVICE POSITIONS.

Mr. DANIEL submitted the following resolution; which was read:

Resolved, That the Civil Service Commission be, and it is hereby, requested to furnish the Senate with a succinct statement of the positions in the Government service now embraced under civil service regulations, including their number and kind and of the methods of application and examination; the said statement also to specify the quota of each State, whether filled or vacant, and what positions in number and kind are open to appointment outside of civil service regulations, with their number and kind, the design of this resolution being to procure in a compact form information for the use of those desiring to enter the service of the Government.

Mr. DANIEL. Mr. President, I beg leave to state that this resolution is simply one of inquiry, and that the information is desired for the purpose of labor saving in correspondence and for the enlightenment of the people. It is extremely difficult for any one to ascertain the number and the character of the positions which are in the civil service and those which are out of it. The statutes do not disclose the fact. Various bureaus of the Government have been from time to time passed under the operation of the civil service regulations by Executive order. This information is of course accessible to those who make diligent inquiries in various reports and documents, but there is no single paper issued by the Civil Service Commission which contains in a compact and condensed form all of the information which is desired.

I sent the resolution to the Civil Service Commission before offering it, and I have a letter in reply to the inquiries which I addressed to them which I ask leave to insert in the RECORD in connection with the resolution. The letter approves very much the object and design of the resolution, and the resolution is one to which I anticipate there can be assigned no reasonable objection.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The letter will be inserted in the RECORD, if there be no objection.

Mr. COCKRELL. I ask that it may be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The letter will be read.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION,
Washington, D. C., December 5, 1892.

SIR: The Commission has the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of December 2, inquiring whether there is in use by the Commission any circular covering the ground embraced in a form of resolution which you think of offering calling for a statement of the positions in the Government service now embraced under the civil-service rules, including their number and kind, and of the methods of application and examination; the said statement also to specify the quota of each State, whether filled or vacant, and what positions in number and kind are open to appointment outside the civil-service rules with their number and kind; the design of the resolution being to procure in a compact form information for the use of those desiring to enter the service of the Government. You state that such information as the resolution calls for would be of convenience to applicants and save much tedious writing, and that your desire is to facilitate the enlightenment of those who make application.

In reply you are respectfully informed:

First. In respect to so much of the resolution as calls for information respecting the number and kind of places in the Government service, that on July 25th last the Commission addressed a letter to each of the heads of Departments stating that in preparing its ninth annual report the Commission desired to present the facts covered by the following inquiries: In the Departmental service at Washington, (1) the number of places classified and excepted from examination; (2) the number of places classified and subject to competitive examination. Respecting the unclassified Departmental service at Washington, (1) the number of places filled by appointment by the President; (2) the number of places below the classified service, as of laborers, watchmen, messengers, etc. As to the entire service under the Departments outside of the classified service away from Washington, a statement of the whole number of persons not included in the foregoing inquiries, and therefore outside of the classified service, arranged in three classes: First, the number of persons appointed by the President; second, the number of those who are merely laborers or workmen; and third, the number of all others. Such a statement of the entire extent of the executive service belonging to the Departments and paid from the public Treasury the Commission would regard as highly important. No such statement is embraced in the census and the facts would be of value in the work of the Commission and to the public when presented from year to year in the annual reports. It would also be useful if the census furnished statistics of the service of the States and cities.

The letters to the Postmaster-General, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Secretary of War were varied to call for a statement of the classified service away from Washington, as the customs service, the Post-Office service, the Railway Mail service, and the offices of the depot quartermasters-general. The letter also requested a statement from each Department of the aggregate of salaries paid of the different classes of officers and employés, so that the cost of the service in salaries might be known. The Commission has been unable to obtain the information needed from some of the Departments as to the service away from Washington, although repeated letters have been written asking attention to the request of July 25.

In view of the difficulties, the long delays the Commission has experienced in obtaining such information, and the possibility that some of it can not be got at all, this portion of your resolution would be of material aid, and the Commission hopes you will introduce it very soon. The ninth report, which is now ready to be printed, except that it lacks these replies from some of the Departments, will contain as full and specific information respecting the entire classified and unclassified civil service as the Commission can obtain.

Second. The methods of application and of examination are briefly explained in the inclosed pamphlet, showing the times and places of holding examinations and containing instructions to applicants on all essential points. On page 21 of the pamphlet the method of making the apportionment is explained and the States are given which have such an excess of appointments as are likely to exclude them from appointments from the clerk and copyist registers during 1893. A fuller statement of the apportionment, showing the whole number of persons appointed from each State and the percentages to which entitled, appears in each of the annual reports. Printed circulars are also issued from time to time and furnished each applicant with the pamphlet of instructions, showing what States are in excess in the apportionment. The Commission will be glad to have pointed out any particulars in which its instructions are lacking in completeness respecting the apportionment and the methods of examination and certification for appointment. It has been the constant aim to furnish to each person desiring to be examined the fullest printed information to save correspondence. With this purpose in view it has just addressed a letter to the Committees on Printing of the House and Senate, urging that 25,000 copies of its ninth report be printed immediately for the use of the Commission in furnishing information to applicants. The Commission will be very glad if you can do anything to expedite the printing of the report. In the letters to these committees the Commission said: "The report contains the civil-service act, rules, regulations, specimen examination questions, and other information necessary to applicants. Nearly all of the questions contained in the letters addressed to the Commission can be more conveniently and fully answered by sending copies of the report than by writing letters."

If you can make it convenient to call at the office the Commission will be pleased to show you the form in which the information, as to the extent and cost of the civil service, is being collated.

Very respectfully,

CHAS. LYMAN, President.

Hon. JOHN W. DANIEL,
United States Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. What disposition does the Senator from Virginia desire to have made of the resolution?

Mr. DANIEL. I ask that it may lie on the table, for the present, in the absence of the chairman of the Committee on Civil Service.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will lie on the table.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONER OF FISH AND FISHERIES.

Mr. MANDERSON submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Printing:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring therein), That the report of the Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries, covering the operations of the Commission for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, be printed; and that there be printed 8,000 extra copies, of which 2,000 shall be for the use of the Senate, 4,000 for the use of the House of Representatives, and 2,000 for the use of the Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries; the illustrations to be obtained by the Public Printer under the direction of the Joint Committee on Printing.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills:

A bill (S. 2275) for the relief of purchasers of timber and stone lands under the act of June 3, 1878; and

A bill (S. 3418) making Saturday a half holiday for banking and trust company purposes in the District of Columbia.

The message also announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 2093) to provide for the disposal of certain abandoned military reservations in the State of Wyoming, with amendments; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

The message further announced that the House had passed the following bills; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 6180) to establish an additional land office in the Territory of New Mexico;

A bill (H. R. 6644) to amend an act entitled "An act authorizing the sale of title of the United States in lot 3 in square south of square 990," approved March 3, 1891;

A bill (H. R. 6922) to amend section 452 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia, concerning conveyance of real estate;

A bill (H. R. 7625) for relief of certain settlers on public lands in the Tucson land district, in Arizona;

A bill (H. R. 8268) to amend chapter 559, page 1095, volume 26, United States Statutes at Large;

A bill (H. R. 8815) to extend North Capitol street to Soldiers' Home;

A bill (H. R. 8956) establishing a fog signal at Tibbets Point, Lake Ontario, New York; and

A bill (H. R. 9758) to amend the charter of the Eckington and Soldiers' Home Railway Company of the District of Columbia.

THE FIVE CIVILIZED TRIBES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there is no further morning business, that order is closed, and the Calendar under Rule VIII is in order.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I ask that the joint resolution introduced by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST], to appoint a commission in regard to Indian Territory, be taken up.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Arkansas?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the joint resolution (S. R. 117) authorizing the appointment of a commission to treat with the five civilized tribes of the Indian Territory with a view of making agreements to induce them to take homesteads in severalty.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. Mr. President, I confess that I am somewhat at a loss to know the purpose of the Senator from Missouri in introducing this resolution. The speech made by the Senator in explanation of it at the time it was introduced does not explain. The joint resolution and the speech are as complete a misfit as I have ever seen. The joint resolution seems to contemplate the appointment of a commission who shall treat with the Indians of the five tribes to induce them to accept their lands in severalty, and this seems to be the sole purpose.

The question of the condition of affairs in the Indian Territory has attracted the attention of the Senate and of Congress for a long time. Early in the last session my colleague [Mr. BERRY] introduced a bill which provided for the appointment of a commission to treat with these Indians, not only to induce them to accept their lands in severalty, but in addition to that to treat with them "with a view to such an adjustment, upon the basis of justice and equity, as may, with the consent of such nations or tribes of Indians, so far as may be necessary, be requisite and suitable to enable the ultimate creation of a State or States of the Union which shall embrace the lands within said Indian Territory," and the consideration of this bill by the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom it was referred, has already resulted in a proposed amendment to the bill to ratify the Cherokee agreement, which they believe meets the requirements of the present situation.

Mr. President, the plain situation in the Indian country is this: Under all the treaties made from 1830 down to this good hour those tribes are guaranteed the right to maintain their governments as they have them. These rights must be first disposed of before our Government can extend Territorial or State governments over that country, unless we violate our treaties with them. There is no inducement which can be presented, in my opinion, by Congress to those Indians which will lead them to abandon their tribal organization unless we offer them something that they regard as a benefit to compensate them for what they give up.

The Committee on Indian Affairs and many members of this body have believed that the only hope of inducing those Indians to abandon their tribal organizations and their tribal governments and to become citizens of the United States is the offer of allowing them to take their lands in severalty in compensation for such action; and the proposition made by my colleague, the Senator from Arkansas, was that steps should be taken to allow those Indians to have their lands in severalty, if at the same time they should become citizens of the United States, and the Government should have the right to organize a Territorial or State government in that country. The one purpose we have in view, the best thing for the country, the best thing for the Indians, is to take exactly that step; but I submit to the Senate that if the proposition of the Senator from Missouri were carried out and the Indians were authorized to take their lands in severalty there would be no inducement on the face of the earth which we could present to those Indians that would lead them to give up their tribal organization and to become citizens of the United States.

This matter has been considered by the Committee on Indian Affairs for a long time. I understand the purpose of the Senator from Missouri to be to have the joint resolution referred to some other committee than the Committee on Indian Affairs. This subject has been before that committee for a long while, and there is now on the Calendar of the Senate a bill to ratify the Cherokee agreement, the last section of which bill provides:

SEC. 6. That the consent of the United States is hereby given to the allotment of lands in severalty within the limits of the country occupied by the Cherokees, Creeks, Choctaws, Chickasaws, and Seminoles; and upon such allotments the individuals to whom the same may be alloted shall be deemed to be in all respects citizens of the United States. And the sum of $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated to pay for the survey of any such lands as may be allotted by any of said tribes of Indians to individual members of said tribes; and upon the allotment of the lands held by said tribes respectively the reversionary interest of the United States therein shall be relinquished and shall cease.

This proposition, submitted to the Senate and now pending upon the Calendar, accomplishes the purpose in the complete and even-handed way which certainly the Government of the United States has in view in this matter, while the proposition of the Senator from Missouri would only give away the single advantage we have, and the only inducement we have to offer those Indians to abandon their tribal organizations and to become citizens.

Under these circumstances I take it that the Senate will not refuse to commit the joint resolution to the Committee on Indian Affairs, if it is to be considered at all, and that the committee which has had charge of this question for so long shall have charge of the further consideration of the subject.

The periodical attacks made by the Senator from Missouri on the court at Fort Smith I care but little about. The administration of justice must everywhere and at all times be expensive. If there has been any waste of money at that court I am not aware of it. The Senator presented some startling figures a few days ago. He said that in 1889 there were $10,000 spent by that court, and in 1890, $48,000, and in 1891, $192,000. The astonishing increase of the expenses of that court was certainly enough to attract the attention of any member of the Senate. I asked the Attorney-General to give me the amount of these expenses, and have them before me. The Senator presented a part of those expenses in the Senate on yesterday, and they serve to show that the startling increase of expenses which he had presented to the consideration of the Senate a few days before is not sustained by the facts, but that the expenses have been in a measure uniform for years back. I go back as far as the year 1886 to show that there has been no material increase, and that the evils, whatever they are, have been in existence there for years.

The total expenses of that court in 1886 were $253,858.55. I will not give the odd figures, but will state the round sum. In 1887 the expenses were $165,000; in 1888, $270,000; in 1889, $256,000; in 1890, $296,000, and in 1891, $224,000. There has been no such marked and startling increase in the expenses of that court as the Senator from Missouri presented to the consideration of the Senate on the day of his first speech, and very much of the startling character of what he presented at that time is taken away by the plain records of the Attorney-General's Office, as presented by him yesterday.

This morning's Post, however, says that on yesterday the Senator paid his "torrid respects" to the United States judge at Fort Smith. The United States judge at Fort Smith does not belong to the same political party that I do. I have no personal connection with him, but I know how he stands in that community amongst Democrats as well as Republicans. I know that he is believed to be an able, honest, and upright judge. He may not be, in the opinion of the Senator, as efficient a judge as Chief Justice Marshall, and there may be individuals in that community who agree with him, but I do not know them and have never heard of them. On the contrary, Democrats as well as Republicans at that bar believe that he is an upright, honest, honorable, and fearless man.

The matter presented yesterday by the Senator from Missouri, which was, as I understand, relied upon to prove that that court is unworthy of the confidence of the Senate and the country, I propose to speak of for a few minutes. The Senator from Missouri, in paying his "torrid respects" to the judge of that court, said:

Some six years ago, during the Administration of Mr. Cleveland, a gentleman in one of the border counties of Texas, who was an old army friend of mine, wrote to me that a poor, miserable negro was under sentence of death at Fort Smith, that he had not a friend in the world, unless this gentleman could be called his friend, who had simply been his employer and had him picking cotton on his plantation. He said from what he knew of this negro he believed he must be innocent of the terrible crime charged to him, and asked my services to go to the Attorney-General's Office and examine the record and see whether great injustice was not about to be perpetrated.

I went down to the Attorney-General's Office—Mr. Garland was then Attorney-General—and looked into the trial of this negro who had been convicted of murder in the first degree at Fort Smith and sentenced to be hung in about two weeks from that time. I found that he had lived with his wife in the Choctaw country in an isolated little cabin, and had become involved in a difficulty with some of his neighbors or with some of the people who were roaming over that country, whose character is to be established with a six-shooter and a pair of bell spurs. There is hardly a man in that country who has not some sort of feud on his hands, unless it be those upon the railroads living in the towns.

It seems that this poor negro had become involved in this neighborhood strife; that he was lying in bed with his wife, and his children in the same room, with his gun above his bed, at 2 o'clock in the morning, when some one knocked at the door and demanded admittance. He immediately came to the conclusion that it was some of those self-constituted vigilantes who had come there to hang him. He demanded to know who it was. They said, "No matter who it is, open this door, or we will break it down." That confirmed his impression, and he reached up and took down his gun and said, "Break down that door and I will kill the first man who enters." The door was immediately broken down, and he fired and killed the first man who started in. Judge Parker instructed the jury that the official character of this man, who turned out to be a deputy United States marshal, was presumed to be known to the prisoner, and the jury found a verdict of guilty, and he was condemned to be hung for murder in the first degree.

I took the record, examined it, and called the attention of Mr. Boteler, the pardon clerk, an old friend of mine, to it, and he recommended a pardon. I carried it myself to President Cleveland. I never saw this negro and never heard of him, except through Mr. Brierly, the old friend who wrote to me. I placed the record before the President, who looked over it that night, and commuted the sentence the next day to ten years in the penitentiary, and the prisoner is now serving out part of his term. He ought to have been pardoned, I say with due respect.

Now, Mr. President, I have some recollection of that case, as has also my colleague [Mr. BERRY], who was absent from his seat yesterday when the Senator from Missouri made the particular statements to which I refer, or he would have replied to them doubtless at the time.

William M. Cravens, who is one of the best and most eminent lawyers at the bar of Fort Smith, came from Fort Smith to Washington City for the purpose of presenting this old negro's case to the President and asking for a pardon. Without fee or reward, or any hope thereof, but moved alone by feelings of humanity, he had come here, paying his own expenses, and to the neglect of his private business, sought out my colleague and me, went with us to the Department of Justice, and together we examined all the papers in the case. Senator BERRY and I both went more than once to see the President about this case. While we were making these efforts the assistant district attorney from Fort Smith happened to be in the city. My colleague sought him out and came to me, and he, my colleague, and I went to the President and asked him to take the statement of that official as to the circumstances of the trial and his personal impressions about it. The President interrogated Mr. Cook as to the facts, went over all the circumstances, and the sentence was afterwards commuted. I think it was commuted to imprisonment for life and not for ten years, as stated by the Senator; but of this I am not positive; but I am rejoiced now to find that we had the able assistance of the Senator from Missouri in securing this act of clemency, though I never heard anything of it until he assured us of it yesterday.

The chief charge, however, upon which the Senator relied in paying his "torrid respects" to the judge of this court, was that the jury were instructed by him that in this case they were bound to presume that the defendant knew the official character of the man who was killed at the door when he fired the shot. I think the victim's name was Ayers. He was a deputy marshal. The evidence showed, as I now remember it, that nobody heard what passed between the negro and the deputy marshal. The negro's statement is the version given by the Senator from Missouri. On the other hand the assistant of the deputy marshal, who was there at the same time, said he heard none of the things which the negro said passed between him and the deputy marshal, and he and the others who were there stated that it was the practice of Ayers always to disclose his official character when he went to make an arrest. Judge Parker's instructions to the jury were, as I now remember, that it having been the duty of that deputy marshal to disclose his official character, and there being no proof to the contrary except the statement of the negro himself, it was the province of the jury to believe that the deputy marshal had performed his duty.

I am sorry I have not the papers here; but, as I now remember the circumstances, the evidence showed that, from the position of the parties, the range of the ball through the body of the victim, the bullet hole through the door, etc., as President Cleveland himself argued to my colleague and me, the statement of the negro could not be absolutely true, and that the presumption was strongly that it was absolutely not true. I can not at this distance of time state accurately the facts surrounding the case, but they clearly showed that at least a part of the negro's story was untrue, and it was because of this that he was not pardoned.

Mr. President, we all know the sense of fairness and justice which all the time characterized Mr. Cleveland while he was President of the United States was such as that if the papers showed such a state of facts in this case as the Senator from Missouri stated yesterday the President would have pardoned the man, and the jury, as suggested by the Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES], would have found him not guilty on the trial. But when the facts disproved the statement of the negro; when the judge made the charge that I have stated and not the one stated by the Senator from Missouri, it was a matter left to the sound discretion of twelve honest men to determine whether or not the negro spoke the whole truth or whether he had colored the thing so as to make himself less culpable than he otherwise would be. After a full investigation of the case Mr. Cleveland was not satisfied that the man was blameless, and I believe he commuted the sentence to imprisonment for life and not for ten years, as stated by the Senator.

I do not think there is anything in the facts of this case when fairly stated calculated to reflect on the integrity or the judicial fairness or ability of the judge who presided at that trial.

Mr. President, for one, I hope to see the time come speedily when that Indian country will come into the Union as a State or become a Territory under the control of the laws of the United States just as any other section of this country is, but if the statements made by the Senator from Missouri are true, there certainly ought not to be any additional powers conferred upon the courts in that Territory until there has been a great change in the population. When he introduced this joint resolution a few days ago he used these words, giving a startling pen picture of the situation of things in the Indian Territory. He said:

> Why, Mr. President, go into the Indian Territory to-night, ride to any house, make the usual hail in the West to the inmates, and you will have no response. Those houses are hermetically sealed after nightfall; every man is on guard, some because they are refugees from justice, others because they fear attacks from the lawless banditti roaming over that domain.

What a terrible state of things would exist there if a community of that kind should be invested with larger judicial functions than they already have? Is that the kind of community in which to find an impartial jury to try persons for murder?

The Senator seems to be outraged because there have been ninety-six men executed at Fort Smith—men taken from this lawless community, men taken from this great domain, where every man is on his guard, brought to Fort Smith and tried by an impartial jury. He referred the other day to some old-time rule of the Dark Ages, when, after an executioner had taken the lives of one hundred knights and belted earls, he thereby became a member of the order, and the Senator seemed to regret in his facetious way that the same rule did not apply now, stating that it would be a great benefit to this man who had executed ninety-six and was hoping for the time to come when he might execute four more, thereby making his hundred. I can assure the Senator from Missouri that the ninety-six men executed at Fort Smith were not knights nor belted earls, but they were miserable, deliberate, cold-blooded murderers who forfeited their lives by their crimes, and for which they have justly died. I am glad that there are some courts in this country which will execute men for murder. I am glad to see these lawless elements brought in for trial before a court somewhere where there is a likelihood that they will pay the penalty of their crimes with their lives.

Mr. President, yesterday after my colleague had ventured to suggest that the picture which the Senator from Missouri had just overdrawn of lawlessness in the Indian Territory was hardly sustained by the facts, the Senator from Missouri said:

> There is hardly a man in that country who has not some sort of feud on his hands, unless it be those upon the railroads living in the towns.

I have lived for a long time in the neighborhood of that Indian country; I have traveled through it in almost every way; I have been amongst those people almost everywhere, and I have never seen any state of things in that Territory from my boyhood up to to-day that would justify statements like those of the Senator. That there is more lawlessness there than in any other section of this country I grant; that it is a refuge for bad men from neighboring localities is true; but that the whole community is engaged in feuds I respectfully submit is not sustained by the facts, as every well-informed man knows.

There are many upright and law-abiding men in that country, and they are there by the thousands. The majority of the people living there are white. Many of those are bad men; many of those have gone there for bad purposes; but there are numbers of good men there, men whose characters will not suffer by comparison by any here or elsewhere, and such wholesale attacks are unjust and unwarranted.

In his speech when he introduced the joint resolution the Senator said:

> The Indian Territory to-day is a menace to civilization. The farce of administering justice there is a blot and a stain upon the judicial system of the United States; crime is rampant; corruption is rife.

Mr. President, I believe that the attempt to admininister justice in the Indian Territory if full powers were conferred upon these courts would be a failure. I have been opposed to allowing courts situated in the Indian Territory to have jurisdiction of all classes of crime, because the Indian courts are known to have fallen far short of the enforcement and administration of justice. Crimes have been committed there between Indians where the farce of a trial has been gone through with and men discharged without punishment at all when they have been guilty of the gravest crimes and these in great numbers. Of course our own courts situated there would do better than these; but in my opinion the trouble about juries would render the full and efficient enforcement of justice there a failure.

We all know of the terrors that exist by reason of the feuds that prevail in that country: and if they are as general as the Senator from Missouri has charged the conditions would be very much worse than they now are, if there was no enforcement of the law, except by the aid of juries selected in such communities.

While I believe they have reasonable juries in the courts presided over by Judge Shackleford, I do not believe it would be wise or proper or judicious to confer the entire criminal jurisdiction of that country to the keeping of these courts now.

I think it is unnecessary to reply to the intimations of the Senator from Missouri in his opening speech yesterday, that my colleague and I were influenced by unworthy motives in our opposition to the extension of the powers of these courts; and now I take it we are not called upon to say we have not advocated the jurisdiction of this court because saloon and boarding-house keepers are interested in keeping this court at Fort Smith. Such suggestions are unworthy of utterance here or anywhere. We have opposed conferring these powers upon these courts because we believe the enforcement of justice requires that the Indians charged with the gravest crimes should be tried where there will be less of the local influence than there is now in that Territory.

It seems to me, Mr. President, that the Senator from Missouri himself, when he says that almost every man in the Territory, unless he lives in a town or on a railroad, is engaged in some of these feuds, gives his own case away. No reasonable man can certainly insist that the class of people described by the Senator should have the disposal of criminal charges of a grave character.

I desire now simply to object to sending this joint resolution to any other than the Committee on Indian Affairs. I object to that because the Committee on Indian Affairs is charged with such investigations on the part of the Senate, and it has never forfeited its jurisdiction. It has already on the Calendar, as I pointed out in the beginning, a proposition which I believe, and which many of the Indian citizens of that country believe, will result in these Indians taking their lands in severalty and at some time becoming citizens of the United States and having a Territorial or State government extended over them.

The particular feeling which seems to animate the Senator from Missouri in his periodical criticisms of the court at Fort Smith I care little about. That court will go ahead in the discharge of its duties without much regard as to whether the Senator from Missouri is entirely pleased with its conduct or not, and I suppose that Congress will retain the jurisdiction in that court until they become satisfied that the juries of the Indian Territory are such that they can be intrusted with a wider jurisdiction than the courts there have now.

Mr. PLATT. Mr. President, I regret that one of the most important political and governmental questions in our whole history should be seemingly obscured by a discussion which has arisen with reference to the condition of certain courts and the expenses of certain courts. The real question which should interest the American people is the question of whether we can longer endure five separate, independent, sovereign, and almost wholly foreign governments within the boundaries of the United States.

The joint resolution itself which is under discussion scarcely touches the great question which should interest us most, because it does not in terms look at all to the wiping out of those governments, if I may be pardoned the expression. It looks simply to the matter of allotting the lands in severalty in the Indian Territory and the sale of those which are not allotted. Inferentially, I suppose, it will be claimed that when that is done the time will have become ripe or will have been hastened when the Indians themselves will be content to give up their independent and foreign governments.

This is not a new question to those who have been serving upon the Committee on Indian Affairs, and I think the members of that committee are more impressed with the anomalous condition which exists, and which I have in a word described, than perhaps other members of the Senate.

Now, I desire to state as concisely as I may what is the real condition of these five civilized tribes with reference to our Government, and their political conditions. In 1832 the United States Supreme Court, in the case of Worcester vs. Georgia, I believe, decided that the Cherokee Nation was an independent nation, that the United States had treated it as an independent nation, and had thus recognized it as such. Following that, in 1835, by a treaty the United States, to the extent of that treaty, recognized the Cherokee Nation as an independent nation. I will read from article 5 of the treaty of 1835:

> The United States hereby covenant and agree that the lands ceded to the Cherokee Nation in the foregoing article shall in no future time, without their consent, be included within the territorial limits or jurisdiction of any State or Territory.

That gave them political independence.

> But they shall secure to the Cherokee Nation the right by their national councils to make and carry into effect all such laws as they may deem necessary for the government and protection of the persons and property within their own country, belonging to their people, or such persons as have connected themselves with them—

That gives them all legislative and judicial power with the limitations which are expressed in the proviso which follows:

> Provided always, That they shall not be inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States and such acts of Congress as have been or may be passed regulating trade and intercourse with the Indians; and also, that they shall not be considered as extending to such citizens and Army of the United States as may travel or reside in the Indian country by permission according to the laws and regulations established by the government of the same.

So that, with those simple restrictions that the nation should not pass laws inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States and the acts of Congress that existed or might be passed regulating trade and intercourse with the Indians, the Cherokee Nation was as much an independent and foreign government as the government of France or of England. That guaranty contained in the original treaty of 1835 has been continued by other treaties from that day down to the present. Therefore the United States by treaty stands pledged to guarantee to the Cherokee Nation a separate, independent, and in all respects, except so far as the limitations were specified, a sovereign government. The other five civilized tribes are practically in the same situation in this respect.

So we have now this strange and anomalous condition, that within the limits of the United States are five separate, independent governments, with no allegiance to the United States, with no responsibility to the United States Government, beyond the reach of the United States Government, except in the two limitations which were imposed or reserved by the treaty, that is that they shall not make laws inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States or inconsistent with the laws passed by Congress regulating trade and intercourse with the Indian tribes. Under those guaranties they have established five independent nations or governments of their own.

Mr. COKE. Will the Senator allow me to make a suggestion?

Mr. PLATT. Certainly.

Mr. COKE. I ask the Senator if the Government of the United States does not possess sovereignty over that soil, the right of eminent domain?

Mr. PLATT. The United States conveyed to each of the five civilized tribes their lands in fee simple, and agreed that they should never be included in any Territorial or State government, so long as the tribes continued to exist and occupy the lands. It probably can exercise right of eminent domain as to these lands, if it can exercise the right of eminent domain as to lands which it has patented to individuals in the States which have been created out of our public domain.

I am not prepared to admit that the Government can not exercise the right of eminent domain in that Territory, but in a treaty, made I think in 1866, it thought it was necessary that the Cherokee Nation and the other nations should agree that railroads might be constructed through their territory. The United States obtained that consent. My own impression about it is that the United States has the right of eminent domain there, but even the right of eminent domain has its restrictions.

I was proceeding to say that under these treaties and the guarantees given them by the United States, these Indian nations established governments of their own, constitutions of their own, organized very much after the model of the United States Government, with three branches, the legislative, the judicial, and the executive. They have a body of laws which are passed in their legislature and approved by their principal chief. They have their separate courts, in which all matters pertaining to their people are adjusted, and adjusted without possible interference of the United States Government, unless it be that there can be appeals to the Supreme Court of the United States, but that has never yet been attempted and there is no law for it upon our statute books.

The powers of these governments extend only to their own citizens; the powers of their courts extend only to their own citizens; but in all respects, so far as their own citizens are concerned, they are absolute. The United States courts have no jurisdiction whatever over controversies arising between acknowledged citizens of those nations; they have no power whatever over crimes committed by those Indians upon one another. As to all those matters the Indian courts which have been established in those five different nations are supreme.

Those are, then, the one class of courts which exist in the Indian Territory within the limits of these five civilized tribes. They are the courts which deal with the Indians and with the matters arising between Indians. I think, perhaps, I may here as well as anywhere else state what the jurisdiction of the other courts are.

The original idea when the Government gave the guarantees by which these Indian governments have been established was that white people were not to dwell in that country; that it was to be a purely Indian country, and that white people were to be excluded from it, except the Army and citizens who might be allowed to travel there by their permission. That condition of things is all changed in ways which I shall attempt to describe before I close.

The white people there outnumber the Indians in at least four of those governments; I think in all of them. So we have now, and have had for a long time, a condition of things where there was no court possible within what may be called the political organization of the Territory for the settlement of matters which might arise between the white people who were there, or between the white people and the Indians, or of the crimes which might be committed by white people affecting white people, or the crimes which might be committed by white men upon an Indian or an Indian upon a white man. That led to giving jurisdiction of such offenses to the courts in the adjoining State of Arkansas, at Fort Smith, and subsequently to the court at Paris, Tex., and subsequently, I think, even to that, to the court at Wichita, in Kansas. So the courts at Fort Smith, at Paris, and at Wichita have cognizance of all felonies arising in the Territory where white people are concerned, either as between themselves or between white people and Indians.

If an Indian commits felonious assault upon a white man, he can not be tried in the Indian courts, but he is taken to Fort Smith, to Paris, or to Wichita, as the case may be. So if a white man commits a felony within the limits of these nations he is tried in one of these courts in an adjoining State. That seemed to be necessary in order that there might be some law reaching those white people, either punishing or protecting them, as the case might be, who had been admitted into this country, where it was formerly supposed that nobody but Indians were to live.

That condition of things existed for awhile, and then it was found, as the white population increased, that there was a set of offenses and various civil controversies which could be determined in no court. Then the court at Muscogee, within the limits of the Territory, was established for the trial of misdemeanors which might be committed in the Territory, except where those misdemeanors related purely to the Indians in their relation to one another, and for the settlement of civil matters as between white people, and the white people and the Indians.

These, then, are the three courts: The Indian court, which has supreme power to deal with all matters exclusively between Indians; the courts at Fort Smith, Paris, and Wichita, which have jurisdiction of felonies committed within the limits of the territory occupied by these five civilized tribes, and the court at Muscogee, which has jurisdiction of misdemeanors and all civil matters arising in which Indians are not exclusively interested.

The difficulty which the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] described grows out of the anomalous political condition. As I said a few moments ago, it was understood in the first place, when these treaties were made, that the Indians were to be protected from the intrusion of white people, that they were to conduct their governments solely as Indian governments, that the occupation of this territory was to be solely an Indian occupation. But the reason for the guaranty has long since passed away by the action of the Indians themselves.

The last census, that is the census of 1890, gives the whole number of Indians in these five civilized nations or tribes at 52,065, and colored Indian citizens and claimants at 14,224, making a total of 66,289, who may be said to be citizens of those nations or claim to be citizens of those nations. On the other hand, by this census there are white persons within the limits of these five nations to the number of 107,989. That does not include the class who are called intruders. The intruders are persons who claim to have a right by reason of Indian descent, but who are not recognized by the Indian Nation. They are included in the 14,000.

So there are nearly 108,000 white people to 52,000 Indians in this Territory, and most of those people have gone there and are there by permission of the Indians themselves.

I said it was an anomalous condition of things, and it is. The number of white people has largely increased since the census, and is constantly increasing. I have no doubt now that there are 125,000 white people within the limits of these five nations, permitted there by the Indians themselves, to 52,000 Indians. Those white people have no participation whatever in the government; they have nothing whatever to say about the government, either national or municipal; they are just as far removed from any participation in political affairs as if they were in Mexico; they are not responsible to the government which prevails there; the Indian court can not lay its hands upon them, and they can in no way go into the courts of those Indian nations for redress of offenses committed upon them or for the adjustment of their civil rights.

I say, therefore, the entire reason of the guarantee is gone; the entire reason why the United States should guarantee to the Indians a separate and practically a soverign and independent government has entirely vanished by what has taken place since the treaties were made and by the action of the Indians themselves.

Mr. BUTLER. Would it interrupt the Senator if I should ask him a question?

Mr. PLATT. I think not.

Mr. BUTLER. The Senator has stated that as to a great many of those white people they are in the Indian Territory with the consent of the Indians themselves. If he will pardon me, I suggest to him that that perhaps is rather a sweeping statement, in view especially of what has fallen from the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST], and the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. JONES], who have stated that there are a number of refugees from justice in the Indian Territory from the bordering States. It is certainly not plain that that class of people are there by the permission of the Indians.

Mr. PLATT. Not at all. Now, I wish to read to show that I am not mistaken about this——

Mr. BUTLER. If the Senator will pardon me, before he proceeds I should like to put one other inquiry to him, and that is, if there is not in the treaties to which he has referred a very strong obligation on the part of the Government of the United States to expel all these intruders from the Indian Territory?

Mr. PLATT. I do not wish to go into the intruder question further than to read an extract from a letter written to me by the Indian agent at Union Agency, under date of June 1, 1892, in which he says:

> Those denominated intruders may be divided into, first, noncitizens who are refugees from justice in the States, many under assumed names to hide their identity, who had no regard for the laws of the States from which they fled, and have none for the Indian laws or rights, but who engage in whisky peddling, gambling, and various sharp practices to gain a dollar or two. This class is now comparatively small, and is not increasing in numbers, because their natural inclination leads to crime, and their arrest and imprisonment soon follows. The advent of the United States court in this Territory has made their business and residence insecure, and many of this class have sought more promising fields in the West.

I think this extract settles the question as to the numerical proportion of the white people there who may be called refugees or criminals. The agent says this class is comparatively small and not increasing.

In the Cherokee Nation, for instance, there are five or six thousand people who are called intruders; in the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations there are, perhaps, a couple of thousand more. Of that number, of more than 100,000 white people, not more than 10,000 are claimed by the Indians themselves to be intruders. There are, for instance—and I take the Cherokee Nation because it is illustrative of the whole condition—in the Cherokee Nation 27,176 white persons by the census. Mr. Boudinot, in testimony before the Indian Committee, says:

> We have permitted men in the Cherokee Nation not citizens and not in this intruder class, but living there by permission. We have probably 20,000 of them.

I then asked this question of the principal chief:

> Q. What do you say, Mr. Harris?
> Mr. HARRIS. I should say about that number.
> Mr. BOUDINOT. Twenty thousand men, women, and children; the number may go higher than that.

At least 20,000, then, of the 27,000 white people in the Cherokee Nation are acknowledged by the chief to be there by permission. Probable the proportion is even greater.

So with reference to the 49,000 who are in the Choctaw Nation. They acknowledge that the great bulk of those white people are persons to whom they have given permits to go there, permits to cultivate their lands, permits to do business; in other words, while it is true that there are people there who are refugees from justice, the great proportion of the white people who are there are people who have gone there by permission of the Indians under license by the Indians. They are there at work, cultivating the lands, or mining coal, or carrying on the various occupations of life, with the permission and with the entire consent of the Indians. In some of the nations they have leased lands and are herding cattle and raising stock.

Now that there are refugees, that there are criminals there is undoubtedly true. It could not be otherwise. If you could find anywhere in the United States a Territory where people could go and not be subject to the local government, where the government of that Territory could exercise no power or authority over them, of course that would be a section of the country where criminal people and desperate people would more or less go; but what I am talking about is whether this condition of things can continue there. The question of whether all criminals shall be tried in the Indian Territory or in an adjoining State, whether difficulties shall be settled in the Indian country between white people by the court existing there or in an adjoining State is not nearly so important in my mind as whether this condition of things is to continue.

The white people are constantly increasing in that country; business is being developed; in the Choctaw and Chickasaw country the white people far outnumber the Indians; comparatively large cities have been built up, and the growth of the white settlements in some portions of this so called Indian country is almost equal in its rapidity to the growth in Oklahoma. The existing conditions will continue just so long as the citizens of the United States who find their business and carry on their business within this Indian country are outside of the pale of government and outside largely of the pale of law.

I think the time has come, Mr. President, or if it has not come, it is rapidly nearing us, when either by the consent of the Indians, or without their consent, this condition of affairs must cease. As I have said, the reason for it is all gone, and nobody any longer supposes that there are to be Indian governments here controlling the land and the territory, to the exclusion of white people. The Indians themselves no longer expect or desire to exclude the whites. I do not advocate the violation of our treaties; I want to live up to all our treaties; but at the same time the Indians themselves must see that this condition of things can not much longer continue. They must see to what it leads, and has led them; they must see that within their borders, comprising the fairest lands of the United States, there is a state of affairs existing with regard to the citizens of the United States which the United States Government can not much longer tolerate.

I believe that the Indians themselves do see this, and I believe that they have themselves been making rapid strides toward the time when they will, all of them, or if not all of them at least a majority of them, be ready to surrender their Indian governments and to come under a Territorial government, with the idea that eventually they are to become a State or a part of a State of the United States, and be in all respects citizens of the United States.

As I said, this is not a new matter with the Committee on Indian Affairs. It has been very often a matter of consideration. In considering the matter of the ratification of what is called the Cherokee agreement for the purchase by the United States of the Cherokee Outlet, a tract of land which lies outside the home country of the Cherokees, the Committee on Indian Affairs considered all the relations existing between the Government and the five civilized tribes and reported upon them, the bill now being upon the Calendar, and the report being 1079 of last session.

Of the intruder question I shall have something to say hereafter. Upon another occasion that question will come up when the bill which was reported by the committee shall be under consideration. I do not wish to confuse this question by dwelling upon the intruder matter now.

In respect to the relations between these Indian nations and the United States, the committee in the report to which I have alluded, say:

> The committee do not believe that the United States ought to place itself where it can be claimed that it has guaranteed any new or enlarged jurisdiction to the courts of the Cherokee Nation, or, indeed, that it is now reaffirming any guaranty of jurisdiction whatever, and are therefore of the opinion that paragraph 3 ought to be eliminated from said agreement. For this opinion it gives the following reasons:
>
> The anomalous condition of five separate independent Indian governments within the Government of the United States must soon, in the nature of things, cease. Each of the five civilized tribes, viz, the Cherokees, the Creeks, the Chickasaws, the Choctaws, and Seminoles, has an independent government, claimed by the Indians to be as sovereign and secure in all respects, where exceptions have not been made by treaty, as the government of any foreign power.
>
> The guaranty which the United States gave to these Indian nations or tribes, under which these governments were established, grew out of the policy adopted by the British Government and maintained by the United States until 1871, of treating with the Indians as independent and foreign nations. That policy has been abandoned since 1871, but the governments created in the case of the five civilized tribes, as they are called, remain.
>
> When these governments were established and guaranteed, to the extent that they were guaranteed by the United States, they were in a remote section of the country, far removed from other settlements, with modern means of travel and communication unknown, and without the slightest anticipation of the condition of things which now exists. To-day they are surrounded by settled States and Territories; white citizens by the permission of the Indians themselves have been admitted into their territory, until now the white people domiciled within the borders of the five civilized tribes outnumber the members of the tribes and are rapidly increasing.
>
> Our whole policy of dealing with the Indians has changed. It is now the purpose of the Government to make them citizens as rapidly as possible, and to wipe out the line of political distinction between an Indian citizen and other citizens of the Republic. And it must be evident to all who observe the changed condition of our country, and appreciate the change in our policy with regard to the Indians, that the day is rapidly approaching when the Indians now constituting these independent governments must be absorbed and become a part of the United States.
>
> As to the means by which this desired end is to be reached, the committee has at the present time no definite suggestions to make. It simply points to the admitted fact, acknowledged by Indians and non-Indians alike, that the change must soon come.

As was suggested by the Senator from Arkansas, the Indian Committee felt that probably the way to reach the change, which everyone must desire, was by inducing the Indians to take their lands in severalty, and accordingly we proposed an amendment to the bill which we had under consideration.

One reason why the Indians have not been willing to take their lands in severalty was the fear that if they so took their lands the United States might still claim a reversionary interest in them. The United States in its patent to the Indians reserved the right to the lands in case the tribe should become extinct or if it should cease to occupy the lands; and the Indians have felt that if they took up their lands in severalty, abandoned their tribal government, and gave up the tribal title to their lands, it might be claimed by the United States that the tribe had become extinct, and therefore the reversionary right of the United States would attach at least to the lands which should not be allotted. The committee proposed then this amendment to the bill:

> The consent of the United States is hereby given to the allotment of land in severalty within the limits of the country occupied by the Cherokees, Creeks, Choctaws, Chickasaws, and Seminoles; and upon such allotments the individuals to whom the same may be allotted shall be deemed to be in all respects citizens of the United States. And the sum of $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated to pay for the survey of any such lands as may be allotted by any of said tribes of Indians to individual members of said tribes. And upon the allotment of the lands held by said tribes, respectively, the reversionary interest of the United States therein shall be relinquished and shall cease.

Mr. BUTLER. Is the bill to which the Senator refers Senate bill 2594?

Mr. PLATT. It is No. 2870. I merely wished to speak of this question in what seems to me to be its great political importance, its governmental importance. I regret that when anything relating to the Indians is under consideration Congress hardly seems to think that it is a matter of public importance, but that it is a matter of local importance, a matter which pertains to the Indians, and is to be settled by the Indian Affairs Committee and not one to enlist general interest. But it seems to me that a condition of things where we have in our midst five different governments which are claimed by the Indians to be sovereign and independent, and which to a certain extent we acknowledge to be sovereign and independent, should interest every Senator, everyone who desires the future development of our country, everyone who would preserve and perpetuate the institutions of our Government.

I think this measure ought to be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs. It has already considered it to the extent which I have indicated. That committee has also before it, and it is now in the hands of a subcommittee, a bill dealing with this very subject—Senate bill 2594, to which allusion has been made—introduced by the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BERRY]. That bill provides for a commission and gives the commissioners "power to negotiate any and all such agreements as, in view of all the circumstances affecting the subject, shall be found requisite and suitable to such an arrangement of the rights and interests and affairs of such nations, tribes, bands, or Indians, or any of them, to enable the ultimate creation of a Territory of the United States with a view to the admission of the same as a State in the Union."

That bill embraces very much wider scope than is contained in the joint resolution introduced by the Senator from Missouri; and the committee having the matter under consideration, it being the committee which naturally must deal with such affairs—it seems to me that the joint resolution which has been introduced by the Senator from Missouri ought to be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

I desire to close by simply repeating my conviction that the time has come when these governments must be abandoned, when the United States can no longer tolerate separate, independent, and practically foreign governments within its borders, and by expressing my hope and my conviction that these governments will be abandoned by the Indians themselves, and that by their consent they will come in and be citizens of the United States with all the privileges and all the responsibilities of citizens of the United States, associated in a State, which State shall be a part of the United States. But if they longer refuse, if they will not take steps toward the abandonment of these governments, toward becoming citizens of the Government of the United States, then I desire to say that I do not believe the reason for the guaranties which the United States has given them of separate and independent governments longer exists; that those governments can not be permitted to stand in the way of the march of our civilization; that if the consent of the Indians can not be obtained it will be the duty of the United States to see to it that this condition of things is changed without their consent.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, I should be very glad to have the joint resolution go over until to-morrow. It is now very nearly 2 o'clock.

Mr. TELLER. I desire to call up a special order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PERKINS in the chair). The Chair understands that the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] desires to call up a matter which necessarily will occupy the time until 2 o'clock.

Mr. BUTLER. The Senator from Colorado will pardon me for a moment.

Mr. TELLER. Certainly.

Mr. BUTLER. I simply desire to state that after reading the speeches of Senators in the RECORD to-morrow morning I may possibly desire to submit some remarks upon the subject. I may not wish to do so; but I should like very much to have the joint resolution go over.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair is advised that other Senators desire to speak on the joint resolution. The joint resolution will go over, and the Senator from Colorado is recognized.

WILLIAM M'GARRAHAN—VETO MESSAGE.

Mr. TELLER. I intended to call the attention of the Senate this morning to the bill (S. 1958) to submit to the court of private land claims, established by an act of Congress approved March 3, 1891, the title of William McGarrahan to the Rancho Panoche Grande, in the State of California, and for other purposes, and ask to have the bill put on its passage over the veto. I do not believe there will be time to have it done this morning, and I ask consent that I may do so to-morrow morning immediately after the routine business of the morning hour.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado asks unanimous consent that the bill to which he has directed the attention of the Senate may be called up for consideration immediately at the close of the routine business of the morning hour to-morrow.

Mr. HARRIS. Let the title of the bill be read.

Mr. TELLER. It is known as the McGarrahan bill. The Senator will know it by that name.

Mr. HARRIS. That is sufficient.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Colorado? The Chair hears no objection, and it is so ordered. The first bill on the Calendar under Rule VIII will be proceeded with.

ELECTION OF SENATORS BY THE PEOPLE.

The joint resolution (S. R. 8) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States providing for the election of Senators by the votes of the qualified electors of the States was announced as the first business on the Calendar.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there is no objection, as there are only a few minutes of the morning hour remaining, the Chair will direct that the joint resolution be passed over without prejudice. It is likely to consume time in its consideration.

Mr. PALMER. I ask pardon. What was the remark of the Chair?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That the joint resolution be passed over without prejudice, as only a few minutes remain of the morning hour. The next bill on the Calendar will be stated.

Mr. MITCHELL. I ask that the joint resolution go over without prejudice and that it retain its place on the Calendar.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is the direction stated by the Chair.

COMPENSATION OF MARSHALS AND DEPUTIES.

The bill (S. 419) fixing the compensation of United States marshals and deputies, and for other purposes, was announced as next in order.

Mr. SHERMAN. I do not think that bill ought to be considered in the morning hour.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Ohio request that it be passed over without prejudice?

Mr. SHERMAN. I have no objection to passing it over without prejudice.

Mr. VEST. The bill is a very important one. It has come up here time and again and has gone over on various objections. I should like to have some understanding about it. It is the result of research and labor on the part of the Judiciary Committee. We have done the best we could as to a very great public evil.

Mr. SHERMAN. I have no objection to the bill being passed over, to be taken up at any time. I think it is a very important bill; but it ought not to be acted upon now, in five or ten minutes.

Mr. VEST. If the Senate will agree to take it up to-morrow and dispose of it——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair calls the attention of the Senator from Missouri to the fact that an order has already been made for to-morrow morning.

Mr. SHERMAN. Let the bill stand on the Calendar. I should like to look at it.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let it retain its place on the Calendar.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, that will be the order.

Mr. VEST. The bill will retain its place on the Calendar?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is the order. The Chair lays before the Senate bills from the House of Representatives, for reference.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands:

A bill (H. R. 6180) to establish an additional land office in the Territory of New Mexico;

A bill (H. R. 7625) for relief of certain settlers on public lands in the Tucson land district in Arizona; and

A bill (H. R. 8268) to amend chapter 559, page 1095, volume 26, United States Statutes at Large.

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia:

A bill (H. R. 6644) to amend an act entitled "An act authorizing the sale of title of the United States in lot 3, in square south of square 990," approved March 3, 1891;

A bill (H. R. 6922) to amend section 452 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia concerning conveyance of real estate;

A bill (H. R. 8815) to extend North Capitol street to the Soldiers' Home; and

A bill (H. R. 9758) to amend the charter of the Eckington and Soldiers' Home Railway Company of the District of Columbia.

The bill (H. R. 8956) establishing a fog signal at Tibbets Point, Lake Ontario, New York, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

DEALING IN "OPTIONS" AND "FUTURES."

Mr. WASHBURN. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7845) defining "options" and "futures," imposing special taxes on dealers therein, and requiring such dealers and persons engaged in selling certain products to obtain license, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota asks unanimous consent to proceed to the consideration of the bill at this time, only five minutes of the morning hour remaining. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Minnesota?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7845) defining "options" and "futures," imposing special taxes on dealers therein, and requiring such dealers and persons engaged in selling certain products to obtain license, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending question is on the amendment of the Senator from Virginia [Mr. DANIEL], to strike out section 10, formerly designated as section 13 in the bill, upon which the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE] is entitled to the floor.

Mr. BUTLER. Before the Senator from Mississippi proceeds, I should like to make an inquiry as to the exact status of the bill. I observe in the print we have this morning that section 12 appears to have been stricken out. Lines are drawn through the print. I should like to inquire of the Senator from Minnesota if that amendment has been adopted by the Senate?

Mr. WASHBURN. Yes.

Mr. BUTLER. That section has been stricken out?

Mr. WASHBURN. It has been stricken out.

Mr. BUTLER. It was stricken out in the Senate?

Mr. WASHBURN. Yes.

Mr. BUTLER. The amendment to strike out what is now put down as section 10 is the amendment pending.

Mr. WASHBURN. That is the amendment pending.

Mr. GEORGE. Mr. President, at the last session I had the honor to submit to the Senate some observations in reference to the general policy of the pending bill. Since that time there has been a good deal of discussion in the public prints in relation to the bill. There have been efforts in the various cotton markets in this country to depress the price of cotton, based upon the fact that the bill was pending before the Senate. There have been new arguments introduced in favor of defeating the measure and old arguments once relied upon have been abandoned.

So, Mr. President, I find myself this morning, representing a cotton-raising constituency almost exclusively, called upon to meet some new aspects in which this question has been presented. The people of Mississippi are deeply interested in the suppression of dealing in futures. This dealing affects their interests in a very vital point. The State of Mississippi is the largest cotton-growing State of the Union with one exception, the State of Texas, which has more than five times the area of the State of Mississippi. The farming interests of Mississippi are almost exclusively engaged in raising cotton. It is alleged by the cotton exchanges, who seem to have become peculiarly interested in the welfare of the cotton farmers of this country, that the passage of a bill suppressing speculations in futures would be very disastrous to the farmers. On the other hand, the farmers of this country, the farmers of Mississippi and Alabama and other Southern States as well as the farmers of the West are so benighted, so ignorant of their own interests that they almost with one voice demand the enactment of some efficient measure to protect them against these "future" speculations.

My own interests, if I may be allowed to refer to them, almost exclusively relate to the growing of cotton. So if I mistake in the course which I pursue in this matter I will not only injure myself, but I will seriously affect the interests of nine-tenths, in fact of all the people of Mississippi. I have given this question that consideration which its importance demands. I I have examined every argument which has been advanced in favor of the present system as practiced in the exchanges of New York and New Orleans. I have reached the conclusion that the system of dealing in futures, so far as cotton is concerned—I leave to my friends from the Northwest to take care of the wheat and provision interest—I have reached the conclusion that so far as cotton is concerned that this system as carried on in the New York and New Orleans Cotton Exchanges is detrimental to the interests of the producers. I feel, therefore, not only a personal interest in the success of a bill to suppress dealing in futures, but I feel called upon by the highest motives which can govern a representative, that is, the protection of those who have commissioned him to legislate for them, to use every exertion in my power to make plain to the Senate that which appears so plain to my mind, the injurious effect of the traffic intended to be suppressed by this bill.

Mr. President, we live in an age more active in the pursuit of wealth than any other which has preceded it, unless it was that disastrous period of the Roman Empire which immediately succeeded the fall of the republic. We see on every hand activity in the pursuit of wealth more than any other age has presented. This is a money-getting age. Inventions have been made by which labor has been saved and wealth created. The activities of the human intellect, especially in this country, have been engaged more and more in that speculation by which large fortunes are gained by easy methods rather than by the slow processes which characterized our forefathers. The great powers of the Government have been seized and perverted to the acquisition of wealth for favored classes, and in consequence of that there has been such an accumulation of wealth in private hands as almost startles the contemplative patriot when he considers the result to come to our country.

Small enterprises have been crushed out by the large aggregation and accumulation of capital in the hands of those who own large establishments. The independent worker, once so common in this country, with his shop here and there in every village administering to the wants of his neighbors—that handy and necessary class have been swept away, and they have become hirelings, wage-receivers in the establishments belonging to accumulated wealth.

This, sir, is sad to me. Wealth has become so enormous in private hands, the capacity for corporate action by which large and larger, still growing larger, means have been united and wielded as by one man and one mind, has put the great mass of the community at still greater disadvantage. Prior to 1860 you could count the millionaires of this country upon the fingers of one hand. Now their name is legion; not only millionaires, but multimillionaires, any one of whom could exercise a power upon the exchanges that would be dangerous; but when associated, with a common object in view and that object the further increase of this aggregated and enormous wealth, becomes a serious problem for the patriot and the statesman.

I have been brought up, sir, in the school of let alone; as the French call it, laissez faire; the best school, I have always thought, for the action of this Government. Turn the people loose; let every man use his own activities, and his own energies, and his own skill for the bettering of his own fortune. But, sir, while this principle may be a true doctrine, it may become dangerous like every other doctrine under certain circumstances. You can not disregard it in enacting legislation by which enormous fortunes are developed, and put it in operation only when those who have been robbed and pillaged by governmental action seek protection against the aggression of these enormous fortunes.

So, sir, while I would touch by the hand of Government with reluctance any business of the American people, yet when I see as we all have seen, and as I intend to make those who listen to me see before I get through, combinations of enormous capital interjecting into the business of the country, new methods unknown to our fathers, new methods so far as cotton and a few other agricultural products are concerned, new as to them and yet unknown and unpracticed even at this day as to all other articles of merchandise; when I see seven million of my countrymen, toilers in the fields, the men who create with the favoring blessings of Providence the great mass of the exports of our country, languishing, growing still poorer and poorer, and I can attribute that fairly and logically and reasonably to these new methods which have grown up within the last twenty-five years, I feel called upon to act, to abandon, for the correction of these evils, the doctrine of laissez faire and act for the protection of the great mass of the people.

Mr. President, I shall confine my remarks to cotton. I see representatives of the grain and provision interest before me amply able to take care of that interest. What is the situation with reference to cotton? In five places in the world, within the last twenty-five or thirty years, has grown up a new method of dealing in cotton, which method is not applied to the great mass of the commercial products of the world. I see in addition to that, Mr. President, that the persons who produce cotton have been year by year becoming poorer and poorer, becoming more and more the victims of a rapacious policy which has taken their earnings and added it to the already overgrown wealth of the men who use injuriously to them the great powers of associated capital in five places, New York, New Orleans, Liverpool, Havre, and Bremen.

If future dealings in cotton are that beneficial and meritorious thing, so essential as the dealers say, not to their own prosperity, but to the salvation and welfare of the farmer, I should like to ask this question: Why are these dealings confined in the United States to two places? I ask it in view of the well-known fact that in one of these places there is less cotton received than in seven other seaports of the United States. One hundred and sixty-five thousand bales of cotton were received in the city of New York in the last cotton year; over 2,000,000 bales in New Orleans; over a million in Galveston; over a million in Savannah; about a half million in Charleston, and about the same amount in Norfolk. Altogether there are seven seaport cities which receive and dispose of more cotton than the city of New York, leaving out interior markets of great importance, like the city of Memphis, which I believe receives now about half a million bales a year. Is that about right?

Mr. HARRIS. Something over that, I believe.

Mr. GEORGE. A little over. If this future dealing in cotton is so essential as is claimed—falsely and ignorantly claimed—by the advocates of future dealings, if it is so beneficial to the cotton farmer, I should like to know why New York, with annual receipts of 165,000 bales, is the great cotton mart in this country, and the city of Galveston, which receives over one million bales of cotton, and the city of Memphis, which receives more than half a million bales of cotton, and the city of Savannah, which receives more than a million bales of cotton, have not these exchanges? That is a pertinent inquiry. I ask Senators to revolve it in their minds when they come to consider the argument that these dealings are beneficial to the producers.

I have thought that it would be well to bring before the Senate what the Cotton Exchange of New York is. I will read, before I do that, what is said by one of the leading bankers and brokers of the city of New York in relation to the power and influence of that city in determining the price of cotton. I will read from a paper very extensively circulated in the South during the last summer, thought to be of so much importance to the people of that country that its publication in the leading newspapers of Mississippi and other Southern States was paid for by persons interested in dealings in futures. I know about what I speak. The publication was paid for. I will read what that paper says in relation to the New York market.

Mr. HARRIS. What paper is it from which the Senator reads?

Mr. GEORGE. I read from a paper that bears the signature of Latham, Alexander & Co. Commenting upon something I said in my speech last year, they proceed:

> Does not Senator GEORGE know that transactions in cotton for future delivery are conducted in New York and New Orleans only, because New Orleans is the greatest port in the country for cotton and New York the largest shipping port and the financial center of the country? He might have said—

And to this I desire to call the especial attention of Senators from the cotton States—

> He might have said that there was virtually only one market, and that market New York, which influences the price of cotton; for our friends in New Orleans—

Poor fellows! I am sorry for them to be thus put in this order by this representative of the New York Cotton Exchange—

> For our friends in New Orleans will admit that they are governed in a great measure by quotations ruling in New York. It can not be otherwise. If there were other exchanges throughout the United States dealing in cotton for future delivery, they would have to look to the controlling market, which is New York, for quotations.

Enough of that, now. I will read more of it after awhile. So it seems that New York is the controlling market, and the market in New York is controlled by the New York Cotton Exchange. That makes it necessary for me to tell the Senate what the New York Cotton Exchange is, and who compose it. It is a chartered institution, and I have the charter before me. I will read for the information of the Senate the purposes as declared by the charter of this organization. I read from a book called Charter, By-Laws, and Rules, New York Cotton Exchange, 1891. The third section of the charter granted by the Legislature of the State of New York declares the purposes of the corporation to be:

> To adjust controversies between its members—

I hope Senators will not forget that, because before I get through you will see that that amounts to a very great deal—> to establish just and equitable principles in the trade, to maintain uniformity in its rules, regulations and usages, to adopt standards of classifications, to acquire, preserve, and disseminate useful information connected with the cotton interest throughout all markets, to decrease the local risks—

Notice that. That figures in this matter—> to decrease the local risks attendant upon the business, and generally to promote the cotton trade of the city of New York.

There is nothing here about promoting, as they now all over the main purpose of the organization is to promote, the interests of the producer of cotton, it is to promote the cotton trade of the city of New York—> increase its amount—

And you will see before I get through how they have increased it after twenty-nine or thirty years of effort—and augment the facilities with which it may be conducted, and to make provision for the widows and families of deceased members.

These are the objects. It is composed of 454 men. I believe I will read the initiation fee from the by-laws for fear that Senators may think that I exaggerate:

The initiation fee—

Says section 4 of article 3 of the rules and by-laws—for membership in the exchange shall be—

Ten dollars? No. Ten hundred dollars? No.

$10,000, for which a certificate of membership shall be issued.

A man not only must be elected by this close corporation of 454 members to be a member, but the first thing he sees when he reads the by-laws is that he is to pay down $10,000 for the privilege of being a member of the Cotton Exchange of New York.

Right here, Mr. President, I feel bound to say that I have been informed that while that is the fee which the exchange charges, the executors and administrators of dead men, failed men, men who have gambled away their fortunes, persons having acquired all the wealth they desire and wishing to retire, sell their membership for less. So, in fact, if my information is correct, and I believe it is, the initiation fee of $10,000 operates solely as a limit upon the number of members. In other words, when translated into plain English, the $10,000 initiation fee operates as a proviso to the section which says that any fair-charactered man of good financial standing may be elected a member of this exchange. It operates as an exception or proviso to that: "Provided, the number shall never exceed 454." So there it is, 454.

Let us see what they do. The Senate will be astonished when I uncover from this book the powers and the actions of this exchange, which is the dominant cotton controlling exchange in the country, and as these parties say, in the world. Let us see how that is. It absolutely controls and monopolizes the cotton trade in New York. Warehousemen in the city of New York above a certain line, I do not remember it, but they are those situated above certain lines drawn in the city of New York, can not store cotton for the exchange. They are licensed. No man but a licensed warehouseman can receive cotton. Who license them? Do the authorities of the State of New York license them? No; they have a license from the New York Cotton Exchange.

I go further. The weighers of cotton in the city of New York, instead of having a permission from the great State of New York or from the municipality of New York City, have a license from the Cotton Exchange. The samplers the same; and they even go down, Mr. President, to the truckmen. No man owning a truck or a dray can convey cotton in the city of New York for members of the exchange without a license from the Cotton Exchange of New York. I believe I will read, for I propose to expose this thing fully, exactly what the charter and by-laws say upon that subject, because I am making statements here that will strike everybody with astonishment who is not familiar with the dealings of the Cotton Exchange of the city of New York. I read now from page 45, section 60, of this work:

All parties engaged in handling cotton or print cloths for members of this exchange, including warehousemen, assistant inspectors, owners and captains (part owners) of lighters—

The little lighters, the little boats which are used for the purpose of transporting cotton from the wharfs to the great vessels, must have the license of the New York Cotton Exchange—weighmasters, samplers, truck owners, and headmenders—

Whatever that may be. I do not know what it is. The Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER] suggests, and I suppose he is right, that it is the man who when a ragged bale of cotton arrives in the city of New York is employed to mend it, to put on a patch—must be licensed by the board of managers as follows.

Then they go on and prescribe how that is to be done. So you see, Mr. President, what it does in the way of machinery. Everything there must have the imprimatur of the New York Cotton Exchange. Well, what else? It legislates. It enacts legal-tender laws, which no State in the Union can do. It declares that one of their transferable notices of delivery shall be a good tender for a cotton contract; that a warehouse receipt shall be a legal tender, and it is possible there are one or two other papers declared to be a legal tender. It appoints inspectors, as I have read, for every bale of cotton that comes to New York for members of the exchange is inspected, graded, and classified by men who hold a license from the exchange. So they make rules about the delivery and reception of cotton. It fixes the day, and the place, and the hour when delivery shall be made. It fixes the form of contract, has it drawn out, and then declares that when a verbal contract is made it shall be considered as made in that form. And then it describes how the contract shall be performed, and then imposes the penalties for nonperformance. What more can a legislature do for a sovereign State in the Union? What is left of the regulation of the business of the country which this exchange has not exercised?

I desire to call the attention of Senators to the work of this exchange and you will find the rights and the interests of cotton-planter absolutely at the mercy of the New York Cotton Exchange. They say that it is the controlling market of the world. You must regulate your sales in Memphis, and Augusta, and Atlanta, and Savannah, and Galveston, and New Orleans, and Little Rock, and everywhere else by the quotations there. Now, let us see. They have a committee on quotations, and one of the most remarkable things about that is that that committee meets and fixes the quotations at 2 o'clock, when the business of the day is not ended until 3. This shows, and I want you to bear it in mind, that quotations are not fixed with reference to the actual trading in the market.

They also fix the quotations for sales on days in which no sales take place. How could they know what cotton was worth in the city of New York on a certain day when there were no sales? That is not all. This quotation committee are only allowed to fix the price of middling cotton for the day, and I believe there are about thirty different grades of cotton. If I get time before I get through I will read that to the Senate. See the list which they furnish themselves [exhibiting], about thirty different grades of cotton, recognized by the New York Cotton Exchange.

Now, how do you suppose the quotation for all these grades except middling is arrived at in the New York Cotton Exchange? Recollect the spot cotton, middling, quotations are fixed on at 2 o'clock, when the business runs until 3. They have a committee called the revision committee, which meets nine times in a year, just nine times, I believe, on the second Wednesday of each of nine months named. At any rate it meets once a month in each of nine months, and yet that revision committee fixes the relative price of these other grades of cotton for each day. How do they do it?

How do they fix the relative price of all these grades of cotton on every day in every one of these months, both before and after they have met? Well, they do not explain how they do it, but you will find if you look at the quotation from the New York Cotton Exchange that the price of many of these grades is quoted every day, and yet they are fixed by a committee which meets only nine times in the year, once in each month of nine. As we are not informed, we are left to conjecture as to how this is done. I will make the best guess that I can, and that is, without reference to a single transaction, they assume to say by a rule to operate until the next meeting of the committee that when middling is worth so much all these other grades should be worth so much; and they fix a sliding scale in that way. How else it can be done I do not know.

Then here is another remarkable thing. They have three calls in the exchange. I will not go into the minutiæ of that, but it is a sale of cotton for future delivery by months. If April is called and there is no offer and no bid, the revision committee fixes the price for April, and so for every other month called in which there is no transaction. I want Southern Senators who have any hesitancy about voting for a bill to suppress future dealings in cotton to know that this committee fixes quotations for spot sales on days in which no sales are made. It fixes quotations for future sales in months in which there were no bids. Now, that is pretty rough on the cotton producer; but I tell you, as I will explain more in detail before I get through, all the system of hedging, which is the grand substratum of their plea for future delivery, is based often upon the future quotations, quotations made by a committee without a single transaction upon which to base them. I think that I have made out pretty well that the price of cotton is authorized to be made in New York by the New York Cotton Exchange without reference to actual transactions.

Proceeding from where I left off when I quoted from the paper of Latham, Alexander & Co., I read:

There is always some controlling power or market for every commodity. London is the financial market of the world. New York is the financial market of the United States. There is virtually one stock exchange in the United States, that is the New York Stock Exchange, and the price of every bond and stock that is sold here regulates the price everywhere else. The price of cotton in New York oftentimes controls the price of cotton in the whole world because this city is presumed to know more about the supply and value of it than anywhere else, and our operators and dealers are oftentimes followed. No small market doing business in contracts—

That is futures; they call that dealing in "contracts."

could survive twenty-four hours unless their business was conducted on the basis of the prices at controlling centers. If any market for contracts smaller than ours should attempt to sell down prices cotton dealers in New York could—

They do not say they would; they could do it—within a few hours buy all they had to sell. If they attempted to advance prices against quotations in New York, dealers here could within twenty-four hours offer to sell them more cotton than they could buy.

So, Mr. President, according to this, and I have no doubt it is strictly correct, New York dominates and controls every market not only in the United States, but sometimes, oftentimes, they say, in the world.

Now, think of that! Cotton State Senators, whose constituents live by raising cotton, what do you think of the price of cotton being fixed by a corporation in New York with the powers and purposes which I have explained to the Senate as characteristic of the New York Cotton Exchange? The writers thought they had gone too far when they got to the point where I stopped reading, and then they put in italics the following significant language:

New York cotton dealers, by their own operations, do not control prices—

That is the salvo, but what do they do?

but they represent planters, operators, and dealers, not only in the United States, but all over the world, and the sentiment consolidated here makes the price.

Mr. President, I think I have made out to the satisfaction of every unprejudiced man who has listened to me that they do fix prices, and fix them according to the rules of the exchange. The writers of this letter admit that, but with a qualification, and now what is the qualification? Let us see what that means. They do not control prices by their own operation, says this paper, but they represent planters and operators and dealers, not only in the United States, but throughout the world, and the sentiment consolidated in the New York Cotton Exchange makes the price.

What is a representative, Mr. President? He is a man who acts in the place or stead of another, having authority or credentials so to do. Who gave these men the authority they have assumed? Where are their credentials to act for the farmers of Mississippi or Arkansas in fixing the prices of cotton for the world at large? They admit they fix the prices, but they say they do it as representatives. I dispute their authority. I say "your assumed power of representation is an impudent usurpation, you represent nobody but yourselves." According to this paper they do fix the price of cotton; and when men have the power to fix the price of any commodity they fix it in their own interest.

Let us see who compose the exchange, these men who suddenly have fallen in love with the interests of the poor cotton farmer, publishing everywhere that if this bill passes or anything like it the poor cotton farmer is ruined. Let us see who they are who are thus moved by this large degree of benevolence and charity for the cotton farmers of Arkansas, Mississippi, and other Southern States.

Mr. President, I was taken to task for a statement I made in my speech last session about the persons who composed the cotton exchange of New Orleans. I read from a book which I now have in my hand. It is the protest of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange filed before the Senate committee, in which they say the Exchange has a membership of over three hundred, and then they set out who compose it. I do not know but that I had better read it as I was criticised about it, and it was stated that I misrepresented that exchange, when I only followed what they themselves stated. They say:

This exchange has a membership of over three hundred, and is composed of commission merchants who sell cotton for planters.

They mention planters there, but not as members of the exchange—of exporters who buy cotton for spinners and merchants in Europe, or merchants who buy cotton for spinners in the United States, of bankers through whom all bills of exchange drawn against cotton are negotiated, of ship agents who represent the great fleet of steamers and sailing vessels by which the cotton is carried abroad and to domestic ports, or insurance agents who arrange the insurance on the bulk of the cotton seeking a market through this port, of cotton brokers, expert judges of the raw material, who buy the cotton from representatives of the planters for the merchants who ship to Europe and to American spinners; of future brokers who buy and sell contracts for forward delivery for account of members of the exchange, and for merchants and spinners in Europe and the United States.

That is the list. Does anybody find "cotton-farmers" in that? There is not one. Then there is a general clause. Let us see whether that includes them or not—indeed, of all who are in any way connected with the vast movement of cotton through this and other ports in this country.

If that includes farmers, then every cotton farmer in the United States is a member of the Cotton Exchange of New Orleans. I read that, and I based my assertion upon the statement of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange itself, and a great cry was made that they had many farmers who were members of the exchange. I now have a list of the members of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange. I had a memorandum made of who the cotton-planters are. I will not read their names, but I will read by number.

One of the cotton-planters, No. 1, plants cotton and resides at 199 Gravier street, New Orleans—a pretty good place, I suppose, to manage a plantation. No. 2 is both a factor and a planter. He lives at New Orleans. No. 3 lives in New Orleans, at 53 Carondelet street, and so on, all of them except one, No. 15; and I can not find out where he lives. His name is T. J. Majors.

Mr. WHITE. He lives in New Orleans.

Mr. GEORGE. I am obliged to the Senator for the information.

So you go, all the way through, and there is not a single one of these men who does not live in New Orleans. I have summed it up, and here is the summary of the whole thing: Cotton-planters, 4; factors and planters, 10; factors and interested in planting, 4; exporters and planters, 2; future broker and planter, 1; total, 21.

Mr. President, it was so very evident that the planting interest in the New Orleans Cotton Exchange was insignificant as compared with the other interests represented in the exchange that when that exchange itself in a solemn protest came before this body, telling who were the members of the exchange, they never thought to mention a cotton planter as a member. I said in the same speech as to New York I did not know how that was; but I presumed, as there were no planters in the New Orleans Exchange, that there were not any in New York. Suddenly it turned out that the New York Cotton Exchange was just the home and nest and resting place of the planters of this country, and it was published all over the land that so many cotton planters were members of the New York Cotton Exchange. I applied to a friend, who was introduced to me by the Senator from Louisiana as a perfectly reliable gentleman, and I think he is, who is engaged in cotton, to get me a list of the occupations of the members of the New York Cotton Exchange, and the superintendent of the exchange furnished a printed list of the members of the exchange, and opposite their names are their occupation and their residence.

I have looked through it very carefully and I do not find a single farmer or planter on the list; if there were any, they were so little addicted to that business that they had not attracted the attention of the superintendent of the New York Cotton Exchange, and so he did not report them. However, they took another bite at the cherry and they sent me a list of the members of the Cotton Exchange of New York engaged in cotton farming. I have it here. There are sixteen of them, and I suppose I might as well read their names. It is no harm, and it is no discredit to a man to be a cotton planter, and I am not showing any disrespect to these gentlemen by reading their names.

Mr. Henry Abraham is a cotton planter. He is said to own several plantations, but how much devoted to cotton I have been unable to ascertain. He lives in New Orleans. There are two gentlemen from Memphis by the name of Allen. They are enormous cotton planters. They own about thirty plantations in Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Alabama, and raise cotton on all of them, one plantation containing 7,000 acres, and another 6,000 acres. Mr. President, I have no doubt that is so. When a man has thirty plantations, and is beside a merchant and cotton factor, it is suggestive that he had been compelled in the course of his trade—I do not know whether that is the case with these gentlemen or not; they may have loved planting; they may like to have thirty plantations scattered all over four States—but it is suggestive of this, that in the course of business the farmers who have dealt with them have been unable to meet their engagements, and these gentlemen have taken their plantations in payment.

Here is another gentleman from Memphis who owns thirty small plantations, and I have been unable to ascertain how much of his plantations is devoted to cotton. Here is a gentleman who lives in New York, who owns about 5,000 acres in North Carolina and South Carolina, of which about 1,000 acres are devoted to cotton. There is another gentleman from New York who owns about eight plantations in Alabama and Louisiana, in all of which, except one, cotton is raised. Another one in New York owns a plantation in Mississippi, upon which cotton is raised. There is a farmer in New York who owns about 650 acres in Alabama, and so on and so on, every single one of these men living in New York, Galveston, and Memphis, or some other city.

Mr. President, these men are all engaged in something else; they all live and carry on business somewhere else. I take it if they are planters at all they are what is called, if I may use that term in reference to so commonplace an object as farming, dilettante farmers, which, being interpreted, means men who follow the business in a desultory manner for amusement. These large cotton-planters who are to represent the interests of the cotton farmers of the United States in the Cotton Exchange of New York are of the character I have just indicated. If they have been planting to a large extent in the last two years, unless they have recouped themselves by their operations in the New York Cotton Exchange, I think they have not found much amusement in planting cotton.

Mr. SAWYER. Does the Senator from Mississippi desire to continue his speech further this evening?

Mr. GEORGE. I will give way directly.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PADDOCK in the chair). The Senator from Mississippi declines to yield.

Mr. GEORGE. I wish to get through with this particular subject. I had a memorandum made showing the occupations of those men in New York who compose that exchange, as far as I could get it from the report of the superintendent. I find there 162 merchants; there are 15 bankers; 6 engaged in storage; 2 manufacturers; 1 engaged in the bagging business; 2 factors; 1 cotton buyer; 5 stock-brokers; 3 bank presidents; 1 engaged in shipping, and 1, I think, belongs to the Standard Oil Company. I do not know what connection that has with cotton. There are 9 bankers and brokers; 1 factor and banker; 2 insurance men; 3 exchange brokers; 1 dealer—I do not know in what he deals; 2 real-estate dealers, and 3 buyers. That is the way the New York Cotton Exchange pans out. Then there are a good many members whose occupations are not given. I find that those whose occupations are not given live in Cincinnati, Baltimore, Washington, Mobile, New Orleans, Atlanta, Providence, R. I., and in London and Havre and various other towns, and that 18 whose occupations are not given live in Wall street or do business there, and are members of the New York Cotton Exchange. So I do not think there are any farmers in that list.

Mr. President, if Senators now wish to adjourn or go into executive session, I am willing to yield.

Mr. PLATT said: With the permission of the Senator from Mississippi, I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PADDOCK in the chair). Does the Senator from Mississippi yield to the Senator from Connecticut?

Mr. GEORGE. I do.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. PLATT. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After ten minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 3 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Wednesday, December 14, 1892, at 12 o'clock meridian.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate December 13, 1892.

ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY AND MINISTER PLENIPOTENTIARY.

Person C. Cheney, of New Hampshire, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Switzerland.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

Genio M. Lambertson, of Nebraska, to be Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Lewis I. O'Neal, of the District of Columbia, to be justice of the peace in the District of Columbia (to be assigned to the city of Washington).

ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER OF THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE.

Manning M. Rose, of Marietta, Ohio, to be Assistant Commissioner of the General Land Office.

REGISTER OF THE LAND OFFICE.

Thomas Fraser, of Placerville, Cal., to be register of the land office at Sacramento, Cal.

UTAH PROBATE JUDGES.

Charles A. Herman, of Utah Territory, to be judge of probate in the county of Tooele, in the Territory of Utah.

William W. Wallace, of Utah Territory, to be judge of probate in the county of Sevier, in the Territory of Utah.

Charles Foote, of Utah Territory, to be judge of probate in the county of Juab, in the Territory of Utah.

RECEIVER OF PUBLIC MONEYS.

Thomas J. Flanner, of Louisiana, to be receiver of public moneys at Natchitoches, La.

MARSHALS.

Charles C. Clarke, of Virginia, to be marshal of the United States for the eastern district of Virginia.

Irving A. Benton, of Utah Territory, to be marshal of the United States for the Territory of Utah.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

TUESDAY, December 13, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

BATTLE LINES AND TABLETS AT ANTIETAM.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting an estimate of appropriation submitted by the Secretary of War for battle lines and sites for tablets at Antietam; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

CHIPPEWA INDIANS, MINNESOTA.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a copy of a letter from the Chief of Engineers recommending that the act of Congress entitled "An act for the relief and civilization of the Chippewa Indians in the State of Minnesota" be amended; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

WAR CLAIMS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a communication from the clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting copies of findings of the court in the cases of William H. Belue, administrator of N. H. Belue; L. M. Loewenberg, administrator of Seth R. and C. W. Strong, deceased; J. A. Sorrell, administrator of E. T. Sorrell, deceased; Martha A. Stewart, administratrix; Sarah L. McLemore, administratrix of John C. McLemore, deceased; and L. P. Featherstone, administrator of John R. Sembler, deceased; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

CERTIFICATES OF ELECTORAL VOTES.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House certificates transmitted by the Secretary of State, showing the final ascertainment of the electors for President and Vice-President in the States of Texas, Illinois, Alabama, North Carolina, and Maine; which were severally laid on the table.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Mr. O'NEILL of Missouri, by unanimous consent, obtained leave of absence until the end of the week, on account of exceedingly important business.

COMMITTEE ON THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the request of Mr. FELLOWS to be excused from further service on the Committee on the District of Columbia; which was granted.

The SPEAKER then announced the appointment of Mr. ABBOTT as a member of the Committee on the District of Columbia.

JOHN H. M'BRAYER.

Mr. STONE of Kentucky. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 1595) for the relief of John McBrayer.

The bill was read.

Mr. BURROWS. I notice that this is a private bill. I think it had better go over until Friday, the regular private bill day.

The SPEAKER. Objection is made.

MARY A. LEWIS.

Mr. LANE. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 1484) for the relief of Mary A. Lewis.

The bill was read.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of this bill. Is there objection?

Mr. HOLMAN. I think the report had better be read before consent is given.

Mr. BLOUNT. I hope the gentleman from Illinois will not insist on his request to-day. This day has been set apart for the consideration of two bills already by unanimous consent, and it may frustrate the order of the House.

Mr. LANE. It will not take any considerable time. Only a few moments. There is a very short letter accompanying the report. Besides, this is a very needy case and ought to have action.

The SPEAKER. The report will be read if there be no objection.

The report (by Mr. SMITH of Illinois from the Committee on Claims) was read at length.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. BOATNER. I object.

FOG SIGNAL, TIBBETS POINT, LAKE ONTARIO.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to call up for consideration the bill (H. R. 8956), establishing a steam fog whistle at Tibbets Point, Lake Ontario, New York.

The SPEAKER. The bill will be read, after which the Chair will ask for objections to its present consideration.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc. That there shall be established a steam fog whistle at Tibbets Point Light, foot Lake Ontario, New York, at a cost not exceeding $5,500.

The committee recommend the adoption of the following amendments: In line 3 strike out "steam fog whistle" and insert "fog signal;" and in line 3 strike out "5,500" and insert "4,300." Also amend the title to conform.

Mr. BLOUNT. Is that reported by a committee of the House?

Mr. CURTIS. It has been reported by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce favorably with the amendments, which have been read.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. HOLMAN. I think the report ought to be read.

The SPEAKER. The report will be read subject to objection.

The report (by Mr. BRICKNER) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 8956) establishing a steam fog whistle at Tibbets Point, Lake Ontario, New York, report the same back with amendments and with the recommendation that the bill as so amended do pass.

In line 3, strike out the words "steam fog whistle" and insert the words "fog signal."

In line 5, strike out the words "five thousand five hundred" and insert the words "four thousand three hundred."

Amend the title by striking out the words "steam fog whistle" and inserting the words "fog signal."

The substitution of "fog signals" for "steam fog whistles" is in accordance with the later views of the Light-House Board; and the former is a better and cheaper article than the latter.

The views of the Light-House Board as to the importance of this establishment are shown in the subjoined communication.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF THE LIGHT-HOUSE BOARD,
Washington, June 7, 1892.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of June 7, 1892, transmitting, for the views of the Light-House Board thereon, H. R. bill No. 8956, providing for an appropriation of $5,500 for a steam fog whistle at Tibbetts Point, Lake Ontario, New York.

In reply I have the honor to inform you that the Light-House Board in its annual report for 1890, page 143, and for 1891, page 133, recommended that an appropriation for this object be made.

An item of $4,300 for the establishment of the proposed fog signal was included in the estimates of the Board for the fiscal year to end June 30, 1893, which may be found in Book of Estimates, 1892-'93, on page 178.

The Board is still of the opinion that provision should be made for the establishment of this fog signal as heretofore recommended.

The amount recommended in H. R. bill 8956, which is herewith returned, is sufficient for the establishment of the proposed fog signal.

Respectfully yours,

GEO. W. COFFIN,
Commander United States Navy, Naval Secretary.

Hon. GEORGE D. WISE, M. C.,
Chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, House of Representatives.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, the reading of the report does not fairly indicate the exact condition of this request; and I hope the gentleman from New York will explain further precisely what is contemplated by the bill.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. Speaker, the Light-House Board, on the application of all persons navigating Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River, have investigated this point, and recommended the establishment of the fog signal as indicated. It is a very dangerous place for navigation, at the foot of Lake Ontario before entering the St. Lawrence River, and many vessels have been injured by not having the facilities for determining and keeping the channel which a fog signal would afford in cases of stormy or foggy weather.

Mr. HOLMAN. But this is only an estimate for the work to be done hereafter, as I understand it.

Mr. CURTIS. This is an estimate of what will be necessary to be done to enable the Department to establish a fog signal at that point.

Mr. HOLMAN. The practice has been uniform to provide for the establishment of the light-house first.

Mr. CURTIS. The light-house is already there.

Mr. HOLMAN. The light-house has been established?

Mr. CURTIS. Yes, the light is what is known as Tibbets Point light-house, and this is to provide a fog signal in connection with it.

Mr. HOLMAN. But no appropriation for the work.

Mr. CURTIS. The thing has all been done except this fog signal. We now ask $4,300 to complete the work by establishing this fog signal.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, there are a large number of items of this character. I hardly think they should be taken up in this way, for they will all go into the sundry civil bill, and there should be some limit to the amount to be appropriated. I do not feel like objecting in this case; but gentlemen having this class of bills are very numerous, and they ought to be grouped together in one bill it seems to me.

Mr. CURTIS. They are not numerous, if the gentleman will permit me to say, and even if they were, this is a special case of unusual merit. We have no establishment of this kind at the point indicated, and there is a great deal of traffic between the St. Lawrence and the lower part of the lake. The erection of the fog signal at the point indicated is demanded by large and important interests. The navigation interest is losing annually and monthly much beyond what is required to establish this signal. I am sure my friend from Indiana fails to appreciate the importance of the commerce of that lake, or he would not interpose objection to this request.

Mr. HOLMAN. I do appreciate it very fully, but undoubtedly large appropriations will be made at this session for this purpose. The only objection I make is in the selection of a single item in this manner out of a large class of items.

Mr. CURTIS. I would like to remind my friend from Indiana that in the last session of Congress, when the Committee on Commerce brought in a bill containing various light-house improvements, he himself, with other gentlemen on that side, demanded that they should be separated and that the items should be brought up as separate items or in separate bills.

It is in compliance with that recommendation, which my distinguished friend from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] has made, that I now ask for the passage of this bill.

Mr. HOLMAN. That is right as to the establishment of light-houses; but here is an appropriation.

Mr. CURTIS. My dear sir, the appropriation is an essential element of its establishment. What is the use of establishing a thing without an appropriation? If my friend desires to impede the navigation of the St. Lawrence River——

Mr. HOLMAN. Oh, well, nobody wants to impede the navigation of any river or any lake.

Mr. CURTIS. If the gentleman makes no objection, this bill will pass the House in one-half the time that it takes to carry on this discussion.

Mr. HOLMAN. I know; but gentlemen will find themselves very much embarrassed if they proceed by this piecemeal method.

Mr. REED. It is not the method but the bill that the gentleman objects to.

Mr. HOLMAN. Of course the object is a good one, but it is the method that is objectionable.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York [Mr. CURTIS] for the present consideration of this bill?

There was no objection.

The amendments recommended by the committee were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed, was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. CURTIS, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

Mr. SPRINGER. The title of that bill should be changed to correspond with the text.

The SPEAKER. Without objection the title of the bill will be changed to conform to the body of it.

PRESENT CONDITION OF THE TREASURY.

Mr. CATCHINGS. Mr. Speaker, I submit a report from the Committee on Rules.

The Clerk read as follows:

The Committee on Rules, to which was referred the accompanying resolution, introduced by Mr. WILSON of West Virginia, report the same back with the recommendation that it be adopted.

Mr. WILSON of West Virginia submitted the following; which was referred to the Committee on Rules:

Resolved, That the Committee on Ways and Means be authorized and instructed to inquire and report as to the present condition of the Treasury, and the future probable revenues under existing laws; and to that end the committee is particularly instructed to ascertain the amount, as near as may be, that will be required for payment of pensions prior to June 30, 1894, the amount of all unexpended appropriations, and the amount required to complete works now authorized by law; the items of the sums to the credit of disbursing officers, the items of probable revenue between this date and June 30, 1894, and the date at which the same will be collected by the Treasury; together with all other facts which may be useful to show the present and future condition of the Treasury.

Mr. CATCHINGS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the report be agreed to.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. If the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. CATCHINGS] will allow me, I want to suggest——

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Mississippi yield the floor?

Mr. CATCHINGS. I will hear the gentleman's suggestion.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. I want to suggest that as the Committee on Appropriations has charge of one division of this general subject and the Committee on Ways and Means has charge of another, would it not be well to instruct both committees to inquire into the condition of the Treasury? If the gentleman will permit me I will read a resolution that I have drawn.

which I expected to refer to the Committee on Rules this morning; and I suggest an amendment in this connection——

Mr. CATCHINGS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say in reply to my friend from Arkansas that the committee will consider any resolution he desires to offer; but I must object to any amendment to this resolution we have reported.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. If the gentleman considers that he would not be authorized to accept the amendment, I do not wish to antagonize the resolution as agreed upon by the Committee on Rules.

Mr. CATCHINGS. I have no authority to accept the amendment.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. If you will allow me, I will read a few words from this resolution that I have prepared, and I will then put it into the box for the consideration of the committee.

Mr. CATCHINGS. Of course it can be put in the box.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. My proposition is as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Ways and Means and the Committee on Appropriations be, and they are hereby, respectively instructed to inquire into and report upon the condition of the Treasury, including the receipts, expenditures, and liabilities of the Government; and they are also instructed to inquire into and report upon the present form of the public debt statement.

Now, the functions of these two committees are different. Each deals with a great division of the business of the Treasury, and of the revenues of the Government; and I think it is quite important that each committee should, from its own standpoint, be instructed to make this inquiry, and the House would then have the result of the inquiry of both committees. I will say no more, Mr. Speaker, at this time.

Mr. CATCHINGS. Let us have a vote.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. I would suggest to the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. BRECKINRIDGE] that he send his amendment to the Clerk's desk, in order that it may be read.

Mr. CATCHINGS. I decline to yield any further.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi. We want to know what the amendment is.

Mr. CATCHINGS. There is no amendment offered.

The resolution was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. CATCHINGS, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid upon the table.

CALL OF COMMITTEES FOR REPORTS.

The Clerk, under direction of the Speaker, proceeded to call the standing and select committees for reports. No reports were presented.

CLASSIFICATION OF MINERAL LANDS IN THE STATES OF MONTANA AND IDAHO.

The SPEAKER. The morning hour begins at half past 12 o'clock, and the Clerk will resume the reading of the bill which was pending on yesterday when the hour expired.

The Clerk resumed and concluded the reading of the bill, which is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and is hereby, authorized and directed, as speedily as practicable, to cause all lands in the States of Montana and Idaho within the land grant and indemnity land grant limits of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, as defined by an act of Congress entitled "An act granting lands to aid in the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from Lake Superior to Puget Sound, on the Pacific coast, by the northern route," approved July 2, 1864, and acts supplemental to and amendatory thereof, to be examined and classified by commissioners to be appointed as hereinafter provided, with special reference to the mineral or nonmineral character of such lands, and to reject, cancel, and disallow any and all claims or filings heretofore made, or which may hereafter be made, by or on behalf of the said Northern Pacific Railroad Company on any lands in said States which upon examination shall be classified as provided in this act as mineral lands.

SEC. 2. That for the purpose of making examination therein provided for there shall be appointed by the President of the United States, as soon as practicable after the passage of this act, three commissioners for each of the following land districts, to wit: The Bozeman, Helena, and Missoula land districts, in the State of Montana, and the Coeur d'Alene land district in the State of Idaho, at least one of whom for each district shall be a practical miner and a resident of such district, and said persons so appointed for each district shall constitute a board of commissioners to perform within such district the duties herein prescribed. They shall each receive for their compensation such sum as may be allowed by the Secretary of the Interior, not exceeding their actual expenses, and in addition thereto such further sum, not exceeding $10, for each day they may be actually engaged in the performance of their duties, and their accounts shall be audited by the Secretary of the Interior and paid monthly. Before entering upon their duties, each of said commissioners shall take an oath to faithfully perform the duties of his office. Said commissioners shall make examination of the lands herein mentioned within their respective districts, and may also take the testimony of witnesses as to the mineral or nonmineral character of any of said lands, and receive any other evidence relating to said matter, and shall have power to summon witnesses to appear before them, and to administer oaths; and they shall, immediately upon their appointment, proceed to examine and classify the lands herein mentioned within their respective districts, as provided in this act. The oath of office of said commissioners shall be filed by them in the office of the Commissioner of the General Land Office. All testimony taken by said commissioners shall be reduced to writing, subscribed by the witnesses, and filed with the report of the commissioners hereinafter required. The action or decision of a majority of said commissioners in each district shall control in all matters herein provided for. Not more than two of the commissioners in any one district shall be appointed from the same political party.

SEC. 3. That all lands shall be classified and taken to be mineral lands under this act which prior to the passage of this act have been located or patented as mineral lands, or which have, or probably will have, a market value by reason of the minerals which they contain, or which show such indications of valuable mineral deposits as would induce a miner to spend his time or money upon them with the reasonable expectation of finding mineral in paying quantites; or which from their geological formation, or their situation or propinquity or relation to known mineral lands, are or probably will be valuable for the mineral therein; and all of these matters shall be considered by the commissioners in determining the mineral or nonmineral character of such lands and in classifying the same. The classification herein provided for shall be by sections where the lands have been surveyed, unless there are such differences in the situation or character of different parts of the same section as in the opinion of the commissioners to require its classification by quarter sections; and in no case shall any subdivision of less than a quarter section be made for classification upon surveyed lands. If the lands examined are not surveyed, classification shall be made by tracts of such extent, and designated by such natural or artificial boundaries to identify them as the commissioners may determine. Where mining locations have been heretofore made or patents issued for mining ground in any section of land, this shall be taken as prima facie evidence that the whole of such section is mineral land: Provided, That the word "mineral," where it occurs in this act, shall not be held to include iron or coal: And provided further, That the examination and classification of lands hereby authorized shall be made without reference or regard to any previous examination or report or classification thereof.

SEC. 4. That such of the lands herein mentioned as have been surveyed prior to the passage of this act shall be first examined and classified as herein provided, and afterwards, and as speedily as practicable, the lands herein mentioned which have not been surveyed, until all the lands herein mentioned shall have been examined and classified, as herein provided.

SEC. 5. That said commissioners shall, on or before the fifth day of each month, file in the office of the register and receiver of the land office of the land district in which the land examined and classified is situated a full report, in duplicate, in such form as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, showing all lands examined by them during the preceding month, and specifying clearly, by legal subdivisions, where the land is surveyed, or otherwise by natural objects or permanent monuments, to identify the same, the lands classified by them as mineral lands and those classified as nonmineral; and with said report shall be filed all testimony taken and written communications received by said commissioners relating to the lands embraced in the report. The register and receiver shall file one duplicate of said report in their office, together with all accompanying testimony and papers, and the other duplicate shall be by them forwarded direct to the Secretary of the Interior, and said commissioners shall furnish to the Secretary of the Interior at any time such further or additional report or information as he may require concerning any matters relating to their duties or the performance of the same. Upon receipt of such report the register of the land office shall, at the expense of the United States, cause to be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the land is located, at least once a week for four consecutive weeks, notice of the classification of lands as shown by said report, and any person, corporation, or company feeling aggrieved by such classification may, at any time within sixty days after the first publication of said notice, file with the register and receiver of the land office a verified protest against the acceptance of said classification, which protest shall set forth in concise language the grounds of objection to the classification as to the particular land in said protest described, whereupon a hearing shall be ordered by, and conducted before, the said register and receiver, under rules and regulations as near as practicable in conformity with the rules and practice of such land office in contests involving the mineral or nonmineral character of land in other cases; and an appeal from the decision of the register and receiver shall be allowed to the Commissioner of the General Land Office and the Secretary of the Interior, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe: Provided, That at such hearings the United States district attorney or his assistants for the judicial district in which the land is situated shall appear and defend the interests of the United States, and for such service he shall receive compensation not exceeding $25 per day, to be paid out of the fund provided for the examination and classification of said mineral lands.

SEC. 6. That as to the lands against the classification whereof no protest shall have been filed as hereinbefore provided, the classification, when approved by the Secretary of the Interior, shall be considered final, except in case of fraud, and all plats and records of the local and general land offices shall be made to conform to such classification, and as to the lands against the classification whereof protests may be filed, the final ruling made after the day set for hearing shall determine the proper classification, and all records of the local and general land offices shall be made to conform to the classification as determined by such final ruling, and all costs of such hearings shall be paid by the unsuccessful party, under such rules as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe; and the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to establish such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry into effect the true intent and provisions of this act as speedily as practicable.

SEC. 7. That no patent or other evidence of title shall be issued or delivered to said Northern Pacific Railroad Company for any land in said States until the examination and classification provided for in this act shall have been made, and such patent or other evidence of title shall only issue then to such land, if any, in said States as said company may be, by law and compliance therewith and by the said classification, entitled to, and any patent, certificate, or record of selection, or other evidence of title or right to possession of any land in said States issued, entered, or delivered to said Northern Pacific Railroad Company in violation of the provisions of this act shall be void: Provided, That nothing contained in this act shall be taken or construed as recognizing or confirming any grant of land or the right to any land in the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, or as waiving or in anywise affecting any right on the part of the United States against the said Northern Pacific Railroad Company to claim a forfeiture of any land grant heretofore made to said company.

SEC. 8. That there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $80,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended to carry into effect the provisions of this act, the same to be paid out upon the order of the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to consider this bill in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think it ought to be considered in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. McRAE. I ask unanimous consent to consider the bill in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think so important a bill ought to be considered in Committee of the Whole, and I hope my friend will not insist on that request.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana objects.

Mr. McRAE. I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the consideration of this bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole, Mr. OUTHWAITE in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The House is in Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a bill, the title of which the Clerk will read.

The title was again reported.

Mr. McRAE. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the first reading of the bill There is a complete understanding between——

The CHAIRMAN. The bill has just been read to the House. The gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. McRAE] asks unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the bill in committee. Is there objection?

Mr. HOLMAN. What understanding is that that my friend alludes to?

Mr. McRAE. I ask to dispense with the reading of the bill.

Mr. HOLMAN. But you mentioned some understanding.

Mr. McRAE. There was a complete understanding between the friends of the bill and the friends of the substitute as to how we should proceed, but other members seem desirous to interfere for purposes not known to me.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair hears no objection to the request of the gentleman from Arkansas, to dispense with the reading of the bill, and it is so ordered. The bill will now be read by sections.

Mr. DINGLEY. Before we proceed to reading the bill by sections I would like to hear the object of the bill explained in general debate.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Chairman, I ask leave to offer an amendment, which is authorized by the Committee on Public Lands, to section 8, to strike out "eighty" and insert "twenty-five." I ask that that be considered as adopted before we proceed to the consideration——

Mr. DINGLEY. An amendment is not in order before general debate.

Mr. McRAE. I will explain the bill directly.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I suppose that if the amendment be adopted it does not prejudice the right to debate the bill?

Mr. McRAE. Certainly not. I ask unanimous consent to adopt this amendment, now out of order.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. McRAE. Now, Mr. Chairman, as the title of the bill indicates, its purpose is to classify the mineral lands within the grant of the Northern Pacific Railroad in the States of Montana and Idaho. Its necessity grows out of a contention that is made by this railroad company to the effect that it is entitled to all the mineral lands within the grant not known to be mineral land at the time of the filing of the map of its definite route, which was not later than 1882. The grant excepted all mineral land with the exception of coal and iron. The details of the bill have been carefully considered by the committee, and I shall not undertake to discuss them. We have no time to discuss them. The minority suggest a substitute. I had hoped to take a vote upon the substitute, and then upon the bill. The gentleman from Montana who introduced the bill for which the pending measure is a substitute [Mr. DIXON], desires to be heard briefly, and I yield to him such time as he may desire. How much time does the gentleman desire?

Mr. DIXON. About fifteen minutes.

Mr. McRAE. I yield fifteen minutes to the gentleman from Montana.

Mr. DIXON. Mr. Chairman, in order to understand the situation of affairs which seems to call for legislation upon this subject, I want to make a short statement. In 1864 Congress passed the Northern Pacific bill authorizing that corporation to construct a railroad from Lake Superior to Puget Sound. It gave it a right of way to construct a railway and telegraph line, and a right to take materials for that purpose from the public lands and gave it, in addition, a very large land grant. Wherever the line of that road ran through a Territory of the United States, the land grant was twenty sections per mile on each side—alternate and odd-numbered sections. The road was not completed within the time that was required by the act of Congress, nor was it completed within the time that was subsequently allowed by different acts of Congress afterwards passed; but I do not know that that is very material. The length of the road as surveyed and built now through Montana is about 780 miles, and through the State of Idaho it is about 90 miles.

The number of acres of land included in that grant within the State of Montana is something like 17,000,000, besides about 4,000,000 more included within the indemnity limits outside of the 40 miles on each side of the road from which they are allowed to select land in lieu of that which they might lose by reason of it being mineral land, or having been previously appropriated. Through the State of Idaho the line is about 90 miles in length, and the amount of land within the grant is about 2,000,000 acres, and half a million acres are included within the indemnity limits. Now, it is readily to be seen that this is an enormous land grant. At the time this land grant was made not much was known of the character of the country through which it was to run, and the situation of affairs now is that probably half of the land grant in Montana and Idaho has never been surveyed.

A good deal of land within the grant has been surveyed by the United States, which is of an agricultural character, which lies in the valleys and is fit for sale and settlement. But, although the United States agreed to make this survey as the railroad progressed in its construction, they have not done it, and they seem unwilling to do it; at all events, the progress of the survey is very slow. These mineral lands are situated, of course, mostly in a rough and mountainous country, a country which, as a rule, is valuable for nothing but mining. It is not fit for agriculture, and unless it contains mineral in paying quantities, or useful timber, it is of no value whatever.

So, too, these mountainous lands are costly to survey, and that is another reason why the Government does not prosecute the work more vigorously. The Secretary of the Interior in his report estimates that about one-third of all the lands in Montana and Idaho within the limits of the grant are mineral lands. Now, what is the result of all this upon the mining interest? The result is that no man can go upon these lands and prospect and explore for mineral, as the law allows every citizen of the United States to do, because he does not know and he has no means of finding out which are the odd sections and which are the even sections. If he discovers mineral in a particular place he can not ascertain whether it is on a section of land which the United States has reserved from the railroad grant, or whether it is upon an odd section to be claimed by the railroad company. The consequence is that a man will not spend his own time or money and can not enlist the capital of others to develop any mines which he may find there.

Now, that is a bad condition of affairs, and one which ought not to be allowed to exist. Within the limits of that grant in Montana and Idaho are some of the richest mines of gold, silver, copper and lead that are to be found in the United States, and within that vast area yet unexplored and unsurveyed there are, no doubt, hundreds and hundreds of other mines just as valuable as any that have been discovered. But in the present condition of things, as I have already said, there is no way by which the prospector or the miner can tell whether any discovery of minerals that he may make is upon an odd section or upon an even section of land, and of course that state of things is very discouraging to prospecting and to the enlistment of capital for the development of any mines that may be discovered.

This is bad enough but there is another difficulty. The Northern Pacific Railroad Company, not satisfied with the immense grant which they received, and from which mineral lands were carefully excluded, by the language of the act, and also by the general policy of the United States which has been to reserve its mineral lands and not dispose of them in the same way that other lands are disposed of—the Northern Pacific Company, I say, not satisfied with the immense land grant which it received, and which it enjoys, sets up another claim based on an entirely distinct ground, for which claim it is now contending in the courts. The definite line of the road was located in 1882, and the company now claims that the exclusion of mineral lands in the grant applies only to such lands as were known to be mineral lands at the time of the filing of the definite line of the road.

The result all through Montana and Idaho is that there are hundreds of productive mines, discovered and developed since 1882, as to which the railroad company now comes and says: "If those mines are on odd sections they belong to us; they were not excluded from the grant because they were not known to be mineral lands at the time we filed the definite line of our road, and the exclusion applied only to lands which were then known to be mineral lands." That is the extraordinary claim which the railroad company sets up, and which certainly calls for some action upon the part of the Government. Proceedings to determine this question are now pending in the Supreme Court of the United States, and probably a decision will be had before long. But, however that question may be decided, the necessity for the examination and classification of these mineral lands will still exist in the same degree.

Now, I do not think it is necessary to go into an argument to show that in such a state of things as I have described, some legislative remedy is imperatively required. This bill proposes to furnish that remedy, and the general character of it is this: The bill provides that in each land district through Montana and Idaho, along the line of the Northern Pacific Railroad, there shall be three commissioners appointed by the President of the United States, who shall examine and classify these lands into mineral and nonmineral lands, that they shall make their reports to the Land Office and shall give notice of the classification they have made, that the railroad company or anyone else interested shall have an opportunity to object to the classification, that the commissioners shall have power to hear testimony and to determine the questions presented, with the right of appeal to the Commissioner of the Land Office and the Secretary of the Interior reserved as in other cases; but when the report of the commission is approved or is not disputed, this classification is to be a final settlement of the matter, and these lands which have been classified as mineral lands are to be considered as mineral lands for all purposes—excluded from the railroad grant by the language of the grant and set apart for the exploration and occupation of citizens of the United States who are looking for mineral deposits.

This measure does no injustice to anybody. It is even a protection to the railroad company, because it is their interest to have this thing settled. Why, Mr. Chairman, it may not be generally known, but in consequence of the troubles in regard to this matter there has never been a patent issued to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company for an acre of land in Montana. Now, under this measure they can go on and sell their agricultural lands and the people to whom they may sell will be able to have their titles made good to them. Thus the people are interested in having the railroad company receive their patents. It is also to the interest of the company that this matter should be settled, that the quantity of land which is to be taken out of their grant should be defined, and that as to agricultural land to which they are entitled they should receive their patents and be able to make a good title to the persons to whom they may have sold or agreed to sell.

This bill is also in the interest of the Government. The railroad company under the law and under its grant has no right to this mineral land. The Government is not only interested in reserving it in behalf of the people from general sale in the same way as other lands, but it is interested in receiving the increased price for the mineral lands—$5 an acre—double the price which is charged for agricultural lands, within the railroad grant and four times the price received from ordinary preemption entries.

I believe that this bill is a proper and just one. I believe that it will come nearer to meeting the needs of the situation, doing justice to the railroad company, to the occupants of the lands, and to the Government, than any measure which has been proposed. It is a measure which the people of Montana, and I think also of Idaho, ask for unanimously, without distinction of political differences and without regard to locality.

The committee examined this bill carefully, hearing argument upon it for quite a long time. The Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of the General Land Office, while dissenting from some of the details of this particular bill, approved its general plan—approved a bill based upon the same general idea. This is shown by their report on the subject to the committee.

The minority of the committee whose views have been filed do not object to the general features of this bill; but they propose another plan. They say that they think under the law the suit now pending in the Supreme Court will be decided in favor of the railroad company, and that the company will be adjudged entitled to all lands not known to be mineral lands at the time when they filed the map of the definite line of their route in 1882. Therefore the minority of the committee propose to compromise with the railroad company so that in consideration of the mineral lands which they will lose by reason of the classification under this bill they shall be entitled to take lands within the indemnity limits—not only odd-numbered but even-numbered sections—to replace the lands which they lose.

Now, so far as I am concerned, and so far as the people I represent are concerned, we are opposed to this proposition. My people do not believe, and I never shall believe, that the Government of the United States ought to give another acre of land to any railroad corporation in the United States under any circumstances. By the plan proposed in the bill of the committee the railroad company will not lose anything to which they are entitled. These mineral lands never belonged to them; the Government never intended to give them mineral lands. Under the bill for the lands which may be adjudged mineral they will be allowed to make up from the odd-numbered sections within the indemnity limits. But I shall always object, and I think this House will object, to permitting the railroad company to go on and take within the indemnity limits not only the odd-numbered sections but also the even-numbered sections. They will receive under this bill all that they are entitled to; and let them be content. Let it be seen that they get no more.

I do not wish to weary the House; but I believe this bill is one of importance. As I have said, I believe it does justice to the people and the Government as well as to the railroad company. If any more perfect plan can be devised for the protection of the rights of the people than this bill I should be glad to support it; but I certainly think this House should not approve the amendment offered by the minority of the committee as a substitute—not for the whole bill, but for one section. As I have said the minority propose to compromise with the railroad company upon the basis of permitting them to make up the lands which may be lost under this classification, out of even-numbered as well as odd-numbered sections within the indemnity limits. It is said that if this be done the railroad company will be willing the bill should pass and will not make any objection to the classification proposed.

But, as I have said, the railroad company have received enough from this Government, and I do not believe they ought to have one acre more. The Government never intended to give them the mineral lands; these lands were not intended to be included in the grant; and certainly I think the company ought to be satisfied with what they have received, and the people of the United States, acting through this Congress, ought not to give them any more. I hope this bill will receive the approval of the House, because it is not only of importance to the people of the whole United States but of special importance to the mining communities—to people engaged in that great industry in the State of Idaho as well as in the State of Montana that I have the honor to represent here. With these remarks I submit the question to the House.

Mr. McRAE. I now yield ten minutes to the gentleman from Idaho [Mr. SWEET].

Mr. SWEET. Mr. Chairman, as has already been stated by the gentleman from Montana, the object both of the minority and the majority of the Committee on Public Lands is the same, to wit, to effect a settlement of this mineral-land question along the line of the Northern Pacific land grant. The original grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company provided that the company should have every alternate section of land for 40 miles on each side of its definitely located route. It also provided that the lands mineral in character should not pass to the company under the terms of the grant. Further, it provided that for all lands lost to the company because of their mineral character the company should be permitted to select other lands in lieu thereof.

Now, if the Northern Pacific Railway Company has forfeited the right to any of the grant from Bismarck to Puget Sound, then it is not entitled to one acre of the land, either mineral or of any other character. If the act is still in force and has not been forfeited by the company, then that company is entitled to every alternate section of land, unless the land be mineral in character, and wherever a mineral section is found, then it is entitled to other lands in lieu of it.

This question, Mr. Chairman, has already gone to the courts for adjudication. It has, so far as the people I have the honor to represent are concerned, assumed an alarming attitude. Judges Caldwell and Sawyer, two circuit judges of the United States, have held that the question involved was whether or not the lands were known to be mineral lands at the time the grant took effect. Two United States district judges, Judges Thomas and Sabin, concur, and one United States district judge, Judge Knowles, of Montana, dissents. If the Supreme Court of the United States shall confirm the views entertained by Judges Caldwell, Sawyer, Thomas, and Sabin, then the title to all the mineral lands discovered since the grant to this road took effect, located upon odd sections, vested in the company and are lost to our miners, who must negotiate for their mineral lands, not with the Government of the United States, but with the Northern Pacific Railroad Company.

The object and purpose of the substitute presented by the minority of the Committee on Public Lands—and it is a substitute I will say for only a portion of section 7 of Judge DIXON'S bill—is to permit the company to select lieu lands, at the same time requiring them to dismiss all litigation concerning the mineral lands, and allow the Commission appointed by the Government, as under the terms of this bill provided, to segregate the mineral lands from the entire grant and forever dismiss the question.

Now, I wish to say that not a single one of the great mines located in Northern Idaho was discovered, located, or found, prior to the time of the location of the route of the Northern Pacific Railroad. That being true, as I have said, if the Supreme Court shall sustain the decision of the circuit and district judges of the courts to which I have referred, then every mine located in Northern Idaho, which falls upon the odd sections of these lands, belongs to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, and our miners, I repeat, will be compelled to negotiate with this company and not with the Government for title to their mineral lands. The purpose of the substitute is to vest, if possible, title in the Government once more.

I understand that many members of the committee entertain the view that the Northern Pacific Company has in effect forfeited its entire grant. If so it is a consistent position to take, and the Government ought to commence proceedings at once and have the courts declare that the contract has been forfeited by the company. If, however, we admit that the grant is still good, and we expect the court to do equity to the people, we must come forward and be prepared to execute the terms of the contract as written in the existing law.

Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa. Will the gentleman permit me to ask what is the attitude of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company as to the proposed substitute?

Mr. SWEET. Mr. Villard and the attorney of the Company, Mr. McNaught, came before the Committee on Public Lands, and said that if we would permit them to select lieu lands (provided there was sufficient unoccupied land within the limits of the grant, and if not they would lose them), that they would accept the conclusions of the Commission, subject to an appeal to the Secretary of the Interior, as provided in the act and end litigation.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Does the substitute give the Northern Pacific any more lands than it would get under the operation of the decisions, assuming that they won in the suits or did not win?

Mr. SWEET. Why, if the decisions of the inferior courts are sustained by the Supreme Court, the Northern Pacific Railroad Company will not only get the agricultural lands, but they will also get the mineral lands.

Mr. TOWNSEND. In the event that it does not get the mineral lands, then it is entitled to get other lands in lieu, is it not?

Mr. SWEET. If that act is in force; if they have not forfeited the grants through Montana and Idaho, then they are entitled, under the terms of that act, to select lieu lands.

Mr. DIXON. Provided they can get them out of odd sections only.

Mr. SWEET. That is not stated in the act. It says that where mineral land is found within the limits of the grant, then they shall be permitted to select lieu lands. It is a very simple proviso and a very short one. Now, if there is any reason to suppose that the Supreme Court of the United States will reverse the circuit and district judges, and will allow us to segregate the mineral lands and deny the company the right to select lieu lands, then it is a clear gain on the part of the people.

Mr. LIND. This proposed legislation proceeds on the theory that the Supreme Court will affirm the decision of the courts below, does it not?

Mr. SWEET. Very largely, yes.

Mr. LIND. Would we jeopardize any more than we do now, by abiding that decision and finding out what the Supreme Court is going to do? You suggested a moment ago that the railroad company would be willing to accept this. Now, would not the company be just as willing to accept it then?

Mr. SWEET. Possibly it would. Possibly they would be glad to. The fact remains that no matter what we do to-day, no matter what bill we pass, or whether we pass any bill, I suppose the Supreme Court will decide the case in accordance with what it believes to be the law.

Mr. LIND. Oh, no.

Mr. SWEET. I assume that the Supreme Court will claim the right to interpret the statute.

Mr. LIND. But suppose the matter is compromised in the meantime.

Mr. SWEET. Then the company will dismiss these cases; but if they did not, under the provisions of the substitute, it would not take effect.

Mr. TOWNSEND. That can only be done under the substitute.

Mr. SWEET. It can be done under the substitute. This is all I care to say. I have said simply what I told the miners in my country I would say.

Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa. The miners favor the substitute, do they?

Mr. SWEET. They have not expressed any opinion that I know of as to that. Of course, they are very much troubled about it. This claim of the Northern Pacific Railroad to the title to lands located on odd sections stands in the way all the time. It sometimes stands in the way of the sale of mineral lands. If the bill of the gentleman from Montana [Mr. DIXON] will dispose of the question it is then just as satisfactory as the other. We want legislation, though, so that the question will be disposed of.

Mr. HEARD. You need legislation of some kind?

Mr. SWEET. We want legislation, so that titles may be made certain.

Mr. HERMANN. What is the necessity for this legislation if the cases are now pending in the courts of the United States?

Mr. SWEET. The case is pending in the Supreme Court of the United States, and as I have before stated, perhaps it would make no difference unless the substitute is adopted, and under its terms all the cases should be dismissed.

Mr. LIND. The cases have been argued, have they not, or set for argument?

Mr. SWEET. They were set for argument, but I do not think they have been heard yet. They were advanced on the docket, but I do not think there has been a hearing.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. What is the effect of the original bill for which you offer the substitute?

Mr. SWEET. The original bill simply provides for a commission to segregate the mineral lands. That ought to be done anyway.

Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa. That does not interfere with the question of vested rights in anyway.

Mr. SWEET. Not at all, and we want that to pass in any event.

Mr. McRAE. I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. STOUT].

Mr. STOUT. Mr. Chairman, I do not rise to oppose this bill, but to call attention to the gravity of the situation. If this bill would determine fairly what we desire by it—namely, what lands are mineral, and as such reserved by the Government—I should have no objection to its passage. But it seems to me utterly inadequate. Here are appointed, by the terms of this bill, four commissioners for each of the districts to have charge of the whole matter as to determining whether or not certain lands are mineral lands. It seems to me that too much is involved to permit us to be hasty in our action here to-day. My friends have referred to the questions involved so far as the courts are concerned. Certain Western district judges have decided that no mineral lands were reserved from passing by the terms of the land-grant act of 1864 except such as were known to be mineral when the act passed; and not one acre in ten thousand had ever had a human foot upon it at that time. So it is utterly impossible for us to determine by the hasty examination of a commission what lands are mineral and what are not.

The decision of the lower court has gone to the Supreme Court, and the Northern Pacific Company expects a decision in its favor. I had occasion to confer with a banker in New York familiar with the affairs of the company, to get at the real expectations of the corporation in regard to the lands. The company is confident that the Supreme Court of the United States will declare that these mineral lands passed under the act of 1864, and that we have no claim whatever, except to lands actually known in 1864 to be mineral, although all the legislation of the country has been positive in the reservation of all lands that were mineral. It seems to me, Mr. Chairman, that a mere casual inspection can not be sufficient. It is not adequate to the emergency, and I hope that this House will delay final action upon this subject, although I appreciate the fact that something must be done.

Mr. McRAE. Mr. Chairman, both sides agree that something ought to be done to classify these mineral lands. There is a difference as to the construction of the grant. To yield the point insisted upon by those favoring the substitute, is to confess the contention made by the railroad company and the whole matter. There is no danger of doing worse than that. The majority of the committee feel that the bill reported by them should be adopted, and that the Government should secure, if possible, a reversal of the decision made by the circuit and district courts. Therefore I hope, as both sides are willing to come to a vote upon this question, that we will now close general debate, let this bill be reported to the House, take a vote upon the substitute, and, if it is rejected, pass the bill reported by the majority and as amended. Something ought to be done, and I hope that we will not be defeated by efforts to use up the time allowed for consideration.

Mr. OATES. Will the gentleman state the difference between the bill and the substitute?

Mr. McRAE. The difference between the bill and the substitute has been very clearly stated by the gentleman from Idaho.

Mr. OATES. But the gentleman from Idaho addressed the Chair, and was not heard back here.

Mr. McRAE. I will, subject to his correction, undertake to state it briefly. The minority proposes a substitute by which we are to compromise with the railroad company, and give them lieu lands on even sections for mineral lands that may be classified under the bill. The majority oppose the granting of lieu lands outside the limits of the grant and seek to confine them to the odd sections as in the original grant. That is the only difference, as to whether we will extend the grant so far as to make good any supposed loss. I do not think there will be any that can not be satisfied within the indemnity limits Both the companies and the settlers and all people interested, so far as I have heard, are pressing an adjustment of this matter. It is a question that should be settled in some way, and I can not see why anyone who wishes to be fair should oppose it.

Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa. Will the gentleman allow me to ask him one question?

Mr. McRAE. Certainly.

Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa. I understood the gentleman to say that he desired to pass the bill in order to reverse the decision of the circuit and district courts?

Mr. McRAE. No, no. I said I did not agree to that construction. I believe that the Suprme Court will not affirm it. But if we pass the bill we will thereby adopt the construction and yield everything to the railroad company without taking the judgment of the Supreme Court as to the proper construction to be put upon the act.

Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa. The question that troubled me is this: I understood the statement of the gentleman to be that the decision of the court was based upon the question of vested rights. How can this legislation affect that in one way or another?

Mr. McRAE. It can not, if the Supreme Court should affirm it; but if we adopt the substitute the railroad will get all it wants, whether it is affirmed or not.

Mr. TERRY. You propose to give the people the benefit of the doubt?

Mr. McRAE. Yes, and we believe that the court was wrong in the construction placed upon the grant.

Mr. SWEET. If my friend will allow me, I desire to ask him a question.

Mr. McRAE. Certainly.

Mr. SWEET. Do you think the bill as reported by the majority (and really there is no difference, so far as this vote is concerned), do you think the bill recognizes the validity of the grant? If not, why not declare the entire grant forfeited?

Mr. McRAE. It does not affect the question of forfeiture. There is no attempt to interfere with that in the bill. All rights are reserved on that point. There is no difference between my friend from Idaho and myself upon that question. I ask consent, Mr. Chairman——

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I would like to ask the gentleman whether that is the case—whether either the bill or the substitute is so carefully guarded as to prevent any interference with the rights of property?

Mr. McRAE. We have attempted to so draw it; and I think it does.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I have only received a copy of the bill.

Mr. McRAE. Look at the proviso to section 7:

Provided, That nothing contained in this act shall be taken or construed as recognizing or confirming any grant of land or the right to any land in the said Northern Pacific Railroad Company, or as waiving or in anywise affecting any right on the part of the United States against the said Northern Pacific Roallroad Company to claim a forfeiture of any land grant heretofore made to said company.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that we consider general debate as closed, that we report the bill back to the House with a favorable recommendation, with an understanding however that we shall have a vote upon the substitute.

Mr. LIND. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman a question.

Mr. McRAE. Certainly.

Mr. LIND. No member of our side, or either side, has been able to get a print of the bill. Would it not be well to let the bill go over without prejudice and print the bill and substitute, with the explanation made, in the RECORD?

Mr. McRAE. I think that all sides are very anxious to have the matter disposed of without further delay, and I can not consent to that.

Mr. SWEET. I think we ought to have a vote.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, I believe the substitute for section 7 has not been read yet.

Mr. McRAE. I think so.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will state the request of the gentleman from Arkansas.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think the substitute should be read first.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Arkansas asks unanimous consent that general debate be closed, that the bill be reported to the House with a favorable recommendation, and with the understanding that there shall be a vote taken upon the substitute. Is there objection?

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I object to so much of the request as provides for the reporting of the bill to the House. We are entitled to have this bill considered by sections.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. OUTHWAITE). Objection is heard.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I do not object to debate being closed.

Mr. McRAE. Then, Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that general debate be considered as closed.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, this is a very important bill, and I hope the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. McRAE] will let it take the regular course.

Mr. McRAE. Does the gentleman from Indiana object to closing the debate?

Mr. HOLMAN. I think the bill should take the usual course.

Mr. McRAE. Does the gentleman object to the closing of debate?

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair understood the remarks of the gentleman from Indiana to be equivalent to an objection. Does the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] object to the closing of the debate?

Mr. HOLMAN. I have no objection to closing the general debate and allowing debate to proceed by sections.

Mr. McRAE. Very well. Let the Clerk read the bill by sections.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 2. That for the purpose of making the examination herein provided for, there shall be appointed by the President of the United States, as soon as practicable after the passage of this act, three commissioners for each of the following land districts, to wit: The Bozeman, Helena, and Missoula land districts in the State of Montana, and the Coeur d'Alene land district in the State of Idaho, at least one of whom for each district shall be a practical miner and a resident of such district, and said persons so appointed for each district shall constitute a board of commissioners to perform within such district the duties herein prescribed. They shall each receive for their compensation such sum as may be allowed by the Secretary of the Interior, not exceeding their actual expenses, and in addition thereto such further sum, not exceeding $10, for each day they may be actually engaged in the performance of their duties, and their accounts shall be audited by the Secretary of the Interior and paid monthly. Before entering upon their duties each of said commissioners shall take an oath to faithfully perform the duties of his office. Said commissioners shall make examination of the lands herein mentioned within their respective districts, and may also take the testimony of witnesses as to the mineral or nonmineral character of any of said lands, and receive any other evidence relating to said matter, and shall have power to summon witnesses to appear before them, and to administer oaths; and they shall, immediately upon their appointment, proceed to examine and classify the lands herein mentioned within their respective districts, as provided in this act. The oath of office of said commissioners shall be filed by them in the office of the Commissioner of the General Land Office. All testimony taken by said commissioners shall be reduced to writing, subscribed by the witnesses, and filed with the report of the commissioners hereinafter required. The action or decision of a majority of said commissioners in each district shall control in all matters herein provided for. Not more than two of the commissioners in any one district shall be appointed from the same political party.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, I am not sufficiently familiar with this measure to express any positive opinion as to the propriety of the provisions of this section; but inasmuch as the body of land to be examined in Montana and Idaho is not very large—from what I have heard at different times I judge that it does not exceed five or six million acres—it occurs to me that it is not desirable to appoint so many commissioners as this bill provides for. I should like to hear the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. McREA] upon that point.

Mr. McRAE. I have nothing to say, Mr. Chairman. The bill explains itself.

Mr. HOLMAN. It seems to me that one commission would answer the purpose. Here are four sets of commissioners provided for in the four land districts enumerated in the bill.

Mr. McRAE. It will not cost any more for four than it would for one, the amount of work to be done being the same in either case, but four can do it quicker than one. We want it done as soon as possible.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think our experience is the other way.

Mr. SWEET. I suggest to the gentleman from Indiana that there is a vast amount of country to be gone over, and that there is always a great advantage in having men who are familiar with the special character of the mineral lands in the regions in which they respectively live.

Mr. HOLMAN. This bill provides for boards of commissioners in the land districts of Bozeman, Helena, and Missoula in Montana, and in the Cœur d'Alene land district in the State of Idaho. That seems to me to be unnecessary. I do not like to antagonize a bill reported by the Committee on Public Lands, but I must say that I sincerely regret the apparent necessity which exists to create these different sets of commissioners. These commissioners are to receive not only their expenses but compensation at the rate of $10 a day. Gentlemen should remember also that there is a possibility that all this expenditure may be for the benefit of the Northern Pacific Railroad corporation.

There never was but one safe mode of dealing with that land grant, and that was the mode provided for in the bill which passed this House over and over again, declaring a forfeiture of the grant from Bismarck to Puget Sound. That would have relieved the country from all embarrassment in the matter, and that is what ought to have been done, no matter what may be the ultimate interpretation placed by the Supreme Court upon the original grant. I have no doubt whatever about the power of Congress to declare all these mineral lands forfeited to the United States by reason of the violation on the part of the railroad company of the conditions on which the grant was made.

The House has so declared over and over again, but the Senate has taken a different view and refused to pass the House bill.

Another point, Mr. Chairman; I hardly think the committee should insist on paying these commissioners $10 a day and their expenses. That is quite a large compensation. Still, if the committee insist that the bill shall pass in its present form, I shall not specially antagonize it.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 3. That all lands shall be classified and taken to be mineral lands under this act which, prior to the passage of this act, have been located or patented as mineral lands, or which have, or probably will have, a market value by reason of the minerals which they contain, or which show such indications of valuable mineral deposits as would induce a miner to spend his time or money upon them with the reasonable expectation of finding mineral in paying quantities; or which from their geological formation, or their situation or propinquity or relation to known mineral lands, are or probably will be valuable for the mineral therein; and all of these matters shall be considered by the commissioners in determining the mineral or nonmineral character of such lands and in classifying the same. The classification herein provided for shall be by sections where the lands have been surveyed, unless there are such differences in the situation or character of different parts of the same section as, in the opinion of the commissioners, to require its classification by quarter sections; and in no case shall any subdivision of less than a quarter section be made for classification upon surveyed lands. If the lands examined are not surveyed, classification shall be made by tracts of such extent, and designated by such natural or artificial boundaries to identify them, as the commissioners may determine. When mining locations have been heretofore made or patents issued for mining ground in any section of land, this shall be taken as prima facie evidence that the whole of such section is mineral land: Provided, That the word "mineral," where it occurs in this act, shall not be held to include iron or coal: And provided further, That the examination and classification of lands hereby authorized shall be made without reference or regard to any previous examination or report or classification thereof.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word for the purpose of asking information. The proviso in the 27th, 28th, 29th lines says that "the word 'mineral,' where it occurs in this act, shall not be held to include iron or coal." I would like to know the reason of that provision, which seems to set up a new classification of "mineral lands."

Mr. DIXON. In the original grant coal and iron were excepted.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I withdraw the formal amendment.

The Clerk read section 5, concluding with the following:

Provided, That at such hearings the United States district attorney or his assistants for the judicial district in which the land is situated shall appear and defend the interests of the United States, and for such service he shall receive compensation not exceeding $25 per day, to be paid out of the fund provided for the examination and classification of said mineral lands.

Mr. HOLMAN. I ask the Committee of the Whole to observe that under the provision just read the district attorney, who in Montana and Idaho has an assistant, will receive in addition to the compensation provided by law $25 a day for attending these examinations. I believe this allowance of $25 a day in addition to the regular salary is much too large.

Mr. SWEET. The United States district attorney in Idaho has no assistant.

Mr. HOLMAN. My friend is aware that an appropriation of money is made every year for the employment of assistant district attorneys when necessary; and that provision is applicable as well to Idaho and Montana as elsewhere.

Mr. SWEET. But the Attorney-General has held that an assistant is not necessary in our State; there is no one drawing salary as assistant district attorney.

Mr. HOLMAN. In Montana and Idaho, as my friend is aware, there is very little business in the Federal courts requiring the attention of the district attorney. It is certainly not necessary to pay this officer an additional salary of $25 a day for the duty he is to perform under this bill.

Mr. SWEET. There is no additional salary, because there is no money now paid to any assistant.

Mr. HOLMAN. But the committee has proposed here to pay the district attorney himself $25 a day additional.

Mr. SWEET. Well, that officer has now all that he can do. He has asked for an assistant several times within my knowledge; but the Attorney General will not allow him one.

Mr. HOLMAN. Twenty-five dollars a day is a very extravagant salary. I move to strike out "twenty-five" and insert "ten."

Mr. SWEET. You can not get a good lawyer to perform this duty for $10 a day.

The question being taken on the amendment of Mr. HOLMAN, to strike out, in line 46, page 7, "25" and insert "10," the amendment was not agreed to, there being—ayes 17, noes 36.

The CHAIRMAN. The morning hour having expired pending the consideration of the bill in Committee of the Whole, the committee will now rise.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. OUTHWAITE reported that the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, having had under consideration the bill (H. R. 8796) to provide for the examination and classification of certain mineral lands in the States of Montana and Idaho, had come to no resolution thereon.

Mr. MCRAE. I ask consent that we continue the consideration of this bill for a few minutes in order to dispose of it.

Mr. BLOUNT. I shall have to object. There is a special order which might be defeated if the gentleman's proposition were agreed to.

LA ABRA MINING CLAIM.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the special order.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That on Tuesday next, after the second morning hour, the House will proceed to the consideration of Senate bill 539 and Senate bill 606.

The SPEAKER. Which bill does the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. BLOUNT] call up first?

Mr. BLOUNT. I ask for the consideration first of Senate bill 539.

The bill was read, as follows:

A bill (S. 539) to amend and enlarge the act approved June 18, 1878, entitled "An act to provide for the distribution of the awards made under the convention between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico, concluded on the 4th day of July, 1868."

Whereas the Secretary of State, after investigating the charge of fraud presented by the Mexican Government as to the case of La Abra Silver Mining Company, has heretofore reported that the "honor of the United States requires" that said case "should be further investigated by the United States, to ascertain whether this Government has been made the means of enforcing upon a friendly power claims of our citizens based upon or exaggerated by fraud," but that "the executive government is not furnished with the means of instituting and pursuing methods of investigation which can coerce the production of evidence or compel the examination of parties and witnesses," and that "the authority for such an investigation must proceed from Congress;" and

Whereas the President of the United States has transmitted to Congress the recommendation of the Secretary of State that said case "be referred to the Court of Claims, or such other court as may be deemed proper, in order that the charge of fraud made in relation to said claim may be fully investigated:" Therefore,

Be it enacted, etc., That in further execution of the purpose of said act the Attorney-General of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to bring a suit or suits in the name of the United States in the Court of Claims against La Abra Silver Mining Company, its successors and assigns, and all persons making any claim to the award or any part thereof in this act mentioned, to determine whether the award made by the United States and Mexican Mixed Commission in respect to the claim of the said La Abra Silver Mining Company was obtained, as to the whole sum included therein or as to any part thereof, by fraud effectuated by means of false swearing or other false and fraudulent practices on the part of the said La Abra Silver Mining Company, or its agents, attorneys, or assigns, and, in case it be so determined, to bar and foreclose all claim in law or equity on the part of said La Abra Silver Mining Company, its legal representatives or assigns, to the money, or any such part thereof, received from the Republic of Mexico for or on account of such award; and any defendant to such suit who can not be found in the District of Columbia shall be notified and required to appear in such suit by publication as the court may direct, in accordance with law as applicable in cases of equity.

SEC. 2. That full jurisdiction is hereby conferred on the Court of Claims to hear and determine such suit and to make all interlocutory and final decrees therein, as the evidence may warrant, according to the principles of equity and justice, and to enforce the same by injunction or any proper final process, and in all respects to proceed in said cause according to law and the rules of said court, so far as the same are applicable. And the Secretary of State shall certify to the said court copies of all proofs admitted by the said Mixed Commission on the original trial of said claim, and the said court shall receive and consider the same in connection with such competent evidence as may be offered by either party to said suit.

SEC. 3. That an appeal from any final decision in such cause to the Supreme Court of the United States may be taken by either party within 90 days from the rendition of such final decree, under the rules of practice which govern appeals from said court; and the Supreme Court of the United States is hereby authorized to take jurisdiction thereof and decide the same.

SEC. 4. That in case it shall be finally adjudged in said cause that the award made by said Mixed Commission, so far as it relates to the claim of La Abra Silver Mining Company, was obtained through fraud effectuated by means of false swearing, or other false and fraudulent practices of said company or its assigns, or by their procurement, and that the said La Abra Silver Mining Company, its legal representatives or assigns, be barred and foreclosed of all claim to the money or any part thereof so paid by the Republic of Mexico for or on account of such award; the President of the United States is hereby authorized to return to said Government any money paid by the Government of Mexico on account of said award, remaining in the custody of the United States, that has not been heretofore distributed to said La Abra Mining Company or its successors and assigns, which such court shall decide that such persons are not entitled, in justice and equity, to receive out of said fund.

SEC. 5. That, during the pendency of said suit and until the same is decided, it shall not be lawful for the Secretary of State to make any further payments out of said fund, on account of said award, to La Abra Silver Mining Company, or its legal representatives, attorneys, or assigns; and in case it shall be finally adjudged in said cause either in the Court of Claims or in the Supreme Court of the United States that the award made by said Mixed Commission, so far as it relates to the claim of La Abra Silver Mining Company, or any definable and severable part thereof, was not obtained through fraud as aforesaid, then the Secretary of State shall proceed to distribute so much of the said award as shall be found not so obtained through fraud, or the proceeds thereof remaining for distribution, if any, to the persons entitled thereto.

Mr. BLOUNT. Mr. Speaker, as I understand that some gentleman desire to oppose this bill in debate, I should like to agree with them as to the time to be occupied. I wish to do this in the utmost fairness to the opposition and to the House. I trust we may agree upon such a limitation of time as will not defeat the object of the special order but allow the House to act on the measure. I believe the gentleman from New York [Mr. COVERT] desires to be heard.

Mr. COVERT. Has the gentleman made any proposition to limit debate?

Mr. BLOUNT. I have made no proposition; but I have invited the attention of the opponents of this measure to the propriety of agreeing on some limitation. Does the gentleman from New York desire to be heard?

Mr. COVERT. Mr. Speaker, I trust that at this time at all events there may be no resolution or agreement as to the limitation of discussion. The gentleman from Georgia is right in stating that I desire to be heard on this question. I do not know how many other gentlemen wish to be heard in opposition to the bill. But I suggest that the discussion be commenced without limitation and as it progresses it can best be determined what limitation should be adopted. For the time being I trust there will be no limit placed upon the discussion. This matter is one of importance to the Government of the United States, and to Mexico and to the citizens of our country who are interested.

Mr. BLOUNT. I wish to remind the gentleman from New York that for more than a dozen years successive Presidents of the United States, without regard to party—sometimes a Democratic President and sometimes a Republican President—have been urging upon Congress action upon the propositions contained in the Weil and La Abra awards. I wish to remind the gentleman further that we are now in the last session of this Congress, and that this bill has no privilege of being heard hereafter, the present order having been allowed simply by unanimous consent. The gentleman will therefore see how important it is that the committee should ask the House to limit the debate in order that Congress may make a proper response to the repeated suggestions of successive Presidents.

Therefore, in the utmost fairness toward the gentleman, and with a desire to be fair also toward the committee having charge of the measure, I must insist on the propriety of fixing some limit to the debate. If this can not be agreed upon, I shall, at what may seem to be a proper time, ask the previous question on the bill. I do not desire to do this if my friend wants to be heard. I should be glad, quite glad, to give him a chance. But I think the gentleman will understand the propriety of asking a limit under the circumstances.

Mr. COVERT. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Georgia is quite right in his statement that for a number of years past this particular matter, the La Abra claim, has occupied the attention of Congress. The gentleman, however, in his statement in this regard neglected to state that the Senate, by a large preponderating vote, determined on one occasion, when this matter was brought to their attention, against the advising of another international commission to adjust the matter. The gentleman neglected in his statement to advert to the fact that in the Forty-ninth Congress a bill, precisely, as I am instructed, in terms like that now before us, occupied the attention of this body, and there was an almost unanimous adverse report upon the matter from the very able Committee on Foreign Affairs in that particular Congress.

Now I mention this simply to show that there are at least two sides to this proposition, and that it is really an important matter, as this House will determine for itself and ascertain and know for itself as the debate progresses.

I do not ask that no limitation shall be established to the discussion. My suggestion is simply that no such action be taken now, but that the debate be permitted to proceed, and as it progresses, when it is ascertained how many gentlemen want to be heard on the question, then the proper limitation can be placed upon it.

Mr. BLOUNT. Mr. Speaker, I have sought to make an agreement with the gentleman from New York with regard to the limitation of debate, but I find that I am unable to do so.

I shall ask the House, after a given time for discussion, which I hope the gentleman from New York will take occasion to anticipate, to order the previous question and let the matter be acted upon. I shall at present make only a brief statement to the House in relation to the pending bill.

Two bills are covered by the special order, one what is known as the Benjamin Weil bill, and the other the La Abra Mining Company bill. In 1868 the Claims Commission organized under the convention between the United States and the Government of Mexico on July the 4th of that year, rendered awards in favor of certain citizens of the United States, the amounts of which and the names of the beneficiaries I will not now undertake to specify. The Commission failed to determine as to the mode of the distribution of the award. The then Secretary of State, Mr. Fish, invited Congress to supply the defect by providing a mode for its distribution.

In 1878, at the instance of Mr. Davis, of Illinois, a bill was reported which became law, being adopted by the two Houses in the usual form of legislation, providing for the distribution of the amounts awarded to the United States. At that time it was suggested that the awards were obtained by fraud. It was suggested that the evidence thereof had come to the knowledge of the Mexican Government; that the award had been made through fraud, and in pursuance of that suggestion the following proviso was added to the bill:

SEC. 5. And whereas the Government of Mexico has called the attention of the Government of the United States to the claims hereinafter named with a view to a rehearing, therefore be it enacted, that the President of the United States be, and he is hereby, requested to investigate any charges of fraud presented by the Mexican Government as to the cases hereinafter named, and if he shall be of the opinion that the honor of the United States, the principles of public law or considerations of justice and equity, require that the awards in the cases of Benjamin Weil and La Abra Silver Mining Company, or either of them, should be opened and the cases retried, it shall be lawful for him to withhold payment of said awards, or either of them, until such case or cases shall be retried and decided in such a manner as the Government of the United States and Mexico may agree, or until Congress shall otherwise direct. And in case of such retrial and decision, any moneys paid or to be paid by the Republic of Mexico in respect of said awards, respectively, shall be held to abide the event and shall be disposed of accordingly; and the said present awards shall be set aside, modified, or affirmed as may be determined on such retrial: Provided, That nothing herein shall be construed as an expression of any opinion of Congress in respect to the character of said claims, or either of them.

In accordance with the provisions of this section Mr. Hayes, then the President of the United States, directed the then Secretary of State, Mr. Evarts, to make the inquiry suggested in this bill. Mr. Evarts made a careful examination of the subject, and discovered evidence and submitted his conclusions on August 12, 1890, to the President, in the following words:

That the honor of the United States does require that these two cases should be further investigated by the United States, to ascertain whether this Government has been made the means of enforcing against a friendly power claims of our citizens based upon or exaggerated by fraud.

This was the opinion entertained by Mr. Evarts. Subsequently a similar view was entertained by Mr. Frelinghuysen and by Mr. Bayard, and during Mr. Bayard's incumbency a special message was sent by President Cleveland inviting the action of the Houses, and recommending the submission of these questions to the Court of Claims to be determined.

Now, Mr. Speaker, it is not my purpose at this time to go into the merits of the question, nor even to elaborate what will be proper to be stated here; for I shall be followed by other gentlemen who have had this matter specially in charge. But what I wish to say briefly is, that the Presidents of the United States, from Hayes until this hour, have by their action, through their State Departments, regarded these awards as so suspicious as to be continually inviting the Congress of the United States to take action thereupon, deeming that the honor of the United States was involved in this transaction.

There has been an effort on the part of the claimants through the courts to insist that the award was final and conclusive against Mexico. The highest court of this land, sometimes through the instrumentality of Chief Justice Waite, sometimes through the instrumentality of the present Chief Justice, has seen fit to enunciate in fervid and earnest language that it was not proper or legitimate or true that any citizen of the United States, asking the aid of the Government, should make that Government responsible for his own frauds upon other countries, and that it was perfectly competent for the Government at any time to say that it should not be an instrument for the purpose of consummating fraud.

So far, then, as the question of this matter having been adjudicated has been concerned, from every quarter except from counsel in the case has come the concession of the doctrine that the finality of the award was not binding upon the parties.

The testimony in part will be brought before you at a later date by other gentlemen; but whether that testimony shall be conclusive or not, it is in my judgment incumbent upon this body to have a review of these cases before the courts, from the very fact that the highest authorities in the Executive, the Senate, and the House of Representatives have at various times manifested their distrust of the good faith of these claims.

Mr. Speaker, in our dealings with the South American States, with the Central American States, with Mexico, with all these republics, let us observe in its broadest sense our relative position to them as the Great Republic. We have power, we have wealth, we have intelligence, we have a moral influence in the affairs of mankind. Let us, by justice, moderation, and fair and honorable dealings with these people, give to them and to the business world connected with them and us, the assurance that this Government intends to pursue a high and honorable policy worthy of the position which it occupies amongst the nations of the earth.

There is, sir, enough in the circumstances connected with these awards to justify us in asking for a reopening, a rehearing, and a submission of them to the courts. We may abstain from any declaration as to our opinion in relation thereto, but let us go forward with this hint as to the honor of our country, and resubmit them without reference to whether Mexico may or may not have a right thereto.

The gentleman from New York [Mr. COVERT] saw fit, a few moments ago, to say that I had dealt perhaps unfairly—not intentionally so, I take it—in omitting to say that the Senate of the United States on one occasion had rejected a treaty negotiated by Mr. Arthur for the purpose of resubmitting this whole matter to a joint commission. Now, if the gentleman will look at the facts in the case he will not conceive that there was any unfairness in that. Mr. Evarts, in the first position he took upon it, asserted the doctrine that Mexico should have nothing to do with this matter, that we should investigate it in our own way, that it was our domestic affair, and that we should do what was right in the matter.

When Mr. Arthur had sent in his treaty the Senate of the United States saw fit to reject it upon the very ground that Mr. Evarts placed it upon; and Mr. Bayard made a communication upon the subject to the President of the United States, Mr. Cleveland, afterward in a document which was sent to this House, which contained the declaration of a majority of the Committee on Foreign Affairs of that very Senate, taking the ground that while they were opposed to its being done by treaty, they were in favor of Congress taking some action of a domestic character. And at the very same time it was accompanied by declarations on the part of members of the House of Representatives that that was their attitude; and so the matter of any other joint commission was finally abandoned, and no effort has been made since then to deviate from the position taken by Mr. Evarts in the outset.

I concede that at one session of Congress there was a report made adverse to the rehearing of these claims; but there have been many the other way. There have been many communications of Secretaries of State. And even if the opinion of that committee of the House of Representatives, adverse to it, should be accepted as the finding of intelligent, honorable men, they were no more so than others, and we are left with the question still open, our own public men differing as to the propriety of the award; and we are forced to go forward, if we have proper regard for the honor of the country, and submit the case to the court anew, with the newly discovered evidence, and let that court declare under the terms of this bill whether or not that award shall stand or shall be set aside.

And when this shall have been done, I take it, that neither Mexico nor any citizen of this country will feel that we have done more or less than our duty in the premises.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time. I hope the gentleman from New York [Mr. COVERT] will see fit to proceed.

Mr. COVERT. Mr. Speaker, I sincerely regret that this bill should be urged upon its passage at this time, in the absence of gentlemen who desire to be heard in opposition to it. Among these is my friend from Missouri [Mr. HATCH], who while the bill was pending in committee made application for permission to be heard, and who for some reason was prevented from appearing before that body. He desired most earnestly to address the House in opposition to this measure. I regret that he is unavoidably absent to-day, and the duty of opposing this bill devolves in part at least upon myself.

From the examination I have been able to give to the testimony and facts in connection with this matter, I can not avoid the conviction that gross wrong and injustice will be done to a number of deserving American citizens if this bill shall pass. In order to make this reasonably clear to the House, a very brief history of the earlier conditions in connection with this matter becomes, it seems to me, of absolute necessity.

Some twenty-five years ago the Government of the Republic of Mexico awakened, seemingly, to the necessity of the development of the resources of the Republic, and one of the means taken to bring about this end was the issuance of a proclamation by the then President of the Republic, inviting American capitalists to cross the border and come into Mexico to develop mining and other industries, promising full immunity and governmental protection in the event of their coming over to the sister republic to engage in these business operations. These proclamations were published in the Mexican and in the American newspapers; and there may be gentlemen upon this floor who can recall the interest excited among enterprising American citizens by reason of the prospects spread out before them of industrial enterprises in the Republic of Mexico.

Relying upon the good faith of the Mexican Government, as pledged in this proclamation by its President, among other capitalists and enterprising business men, the promoters of what was known, and what is known, as the La Abra Mining Company, organized themselves together, having stockholders in New York, in West Virginia, in Pennsylvania, in Missouri, and in other sections of the Union. At very great expense they purchased mining lands in Mexico. At great expense they got together costly machinery and appliances for the working of their mines; and at great expense they transported this machinery and these appliances across the border and over the mountains to their field of operations.

Almost from the beginning of their attempt to develop the mines they had purchased there were acts of wrong, oppression, intimidation, and violence committed on and against the representatives of this company and the workmen in their employ.

The testimony taken before the commission—and I shall refer to the appointment of that commission a little later on—develops the fact that these American citizens, invited to Mexico by the glowing promises of protection at the hands of the Government, received nothing but wrong and injury at the hands of the governmental officers, and appeals taken to higher governmental authority met with no response. At length, so the testimony discloses, these people were absolutely forced to abandon their works, to abandon their property, and to leave the Republic of Mexico.

Now, so much in the direction of a brief history of the origin of this La Abra claim against the Mexican Government. Shortly thereafter, there having developed the fact that Mexico, or certain citizens of Mexico, had claims or claimed to have demands against our own country and its citizens, a number of citizens of this Republic having claims against the Republic of Mexico, by solemn treaty convention, entered into between the two powers, a commission was appointed—an international commission—for the purpose of adjusting all these various claims—first, the claims of the United States against Mexico, and second, the claims of the citizens of Mexico against the United States.

Two commissioners, one representing the United States and one representing the Republic of Mexico, were appointed, and an umpire, or third member of the commission, chosen in the person of Sir Edward Thornton, who was then the minister from England to this country.

Now, Mr. Speaker, that this House may understand just what this convention or treaty was, what its terms are, let me read a cardinal part of the stipulation or agreement as finally entered into between the two governments:

> The President of the United States of America and the President of the Mexican Republic hereby solemnly and sincerely engage to consider the decision of the commissioners conjointly, or of the umpire, as the case may be, as absolutely final and conclusive upon each claim decided by them or him respectively, nd to give full effect to such decision without any objection, evasion, or delay whatsoever.

Mr. BLOUNT. Will the gentleman from New York yield to a question there?

Mr. COVERT. Certainly; with pleasure.

Mr. BLOUNT. The question I desire to ask is, has not that very section that the gentleman has been referring to been passed upon by the Supreme Court of the United States twice, and the inference which he seeks to make contradicted by that court?

Mr. COVERT. Well, I do not know whether the gentleman from Georgia quite knows what inference I seek to draw from the clear and absolute covenant I have just read. I presume the Supreme Court of the United States, having passed upon some matters growing out of these claims, has taken cognizance of this treaty obligation. But this question is not before that august tribunal, the Supreme Court; it is before a tribunal to my mind just as important, just as dignified, and just as august as that body. Not the Supreme Court of the United States, but the House of Representatives is sitting to-day in solemn judgment upon this matter.

Mr. BOATNER. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. COVERT. Yes, sir.

Mr. BOATNER. I see by the report that an application was made by the Mexican Government to the umpire to reopen the case and grant a new trial. Was that application based upon the same charges of fraud and false swearing which are now urged in support of this bill?

Mr. COVERT. I understand that that is so; that it was urged before the umpire that they had newly discovered evidence involving the question of fraud in the presentation of this claim, and that a rehearing was asked upon substantially the same ground upon which this reopening is asked.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I have referred to this agreement, this solemn compact entered into between these two sovereign republics. If language can make anything more solemn or more binding than that compact I never yet have seen or heard that language. What were the after results. The commission met. They took testimony. Voluminous evidence was adduced, both oral and documentary, as I understand, the commission continuing its labors for nearly two years or certainly for a period of eighteen months, and as a resultant certain facts were proven to the satisfaction of, at all events, the majority of the commission; first, that these assurances of protection on the part of the Mexican Government to which I referred only a few moments back were really given by that Government in the most pronounced way possible, namely, by a proclamation of the President of the Republic.

The fact of the publication in the Mexican and in the American newspapers of these promises of immunity and protection was abundantly established before the commission. The fact that these American citizens, engaged in a legitimate business enterprise under the positive assurance of governmental protection, were molested, their people assaulted, their property taken from them, forced loans levied upon them by persons acting under authority of the Government of Mexico, all these facts were fully established.

The arrest and imprisonment of a superintendent of this company upon some flimsy pretext, his incarceration in a pesthouse on the order of a local justice or judge in the neighborhood where these mines were located was also established. The value of the property was abundantly proven before the commission, the price paid for these lands, the price paid for the machinery and appliances, the cost of the transportation of that machinery across the border and to the lands owned by the company—all these facts were established by proof. As a resultant, the umpire decided that the Government of Mexico should pay to the La Abra Mining Company, these American citizens who had been so wronged and outraged, the sum mentioned in the award.

Mexico promptly complied with the finding of this International Commission. She promptly paid over the money that the Commission adjudged should be paid to those American citizens whose rights had been outraged and whose property had been ruthlessly taken. That money was deposited with the Secretary of State of the United States, and a portion of it has been already distributed to these claimants. But now what does Mexico do; what does this Republic to which my friend from Georgia [Mr. BLOUNT] so feelingly refers as entitled to respectful consideration at the hands of the Government of the United States—what does this Republic of Mexico do after the bringing in of this award and after her own compliance with its terms and provisions by paying over this money to the authorities of the United States? Why, Mexico sends a communication to our Government authorities, in which her representatives say:

> The Mexican Government, in fulfillment of article 5 of the convention of July 4, 1868, considers the result of the proceedings of this Commission as a full, perfect, and final settlement of all claims referred to in said convention, reserving, nevertheless, the right to show, at some future time and before the proper authority of the United States, that the claims of Benjamin Weil, No. 447, and "La Abra Silver Mining Company," No. 489, both on the American docket, are fraudulent and based on affidavits of perjured witnesses; this with a view of appealing to the sentiments of justice and equity of the United States Government, in order that the awards made in favor of claimants should be set aside.

This appeal was made by Mexico to the well-known sense of chivalry possessed by the American people and by the Government of the United States. But, Mr. Speaker, what becomes of the solemn wording of this covenant by which the Republic of Mexico absolutely pledged itself to abide by the finding of this High Joint Commission without cavil and without objection? I submit, sir, that the sentiment wasted here upon the Republic of Mexico should play no figure in this matter where the rights and interests of American citizens are involved, and where those rights and those interests have been passed upon by a fair and impartial international commission.

What has been done? Why the Mexican Government, quite promptly after the termination of this hearing before the Commission, made a motion in the nature of a motion for a new trial upon the ground of newly discovered evidence. They presented this application to the Commission, the tribunal that had heard the testimony, that had seen the witnesses, those of them who had been examined orally and had observed their manner in testifying, before the very tribunal best qualified to pass upon a question of this character—to this Commission, of all bodies on earth the body best qualified to pass upon the testimony which had been brought before it, and of all the facts in the case, they made this application in October following the August when the rendition of judgment was made by Sir Edward Thornton—an application for a rehearing on the ground of newly discovered evidence. This application was overruled, and in my judgment was very properly overruled, by Sir Edward Thornton, as the umpire between the parties to the controversy.

Mr. BLOUNT. Do I understand the gentleman to say that Sir Edward Thornton overruled the motion for a new hearing on the merits of the case?

Mr. COVERT. I can not enter into the mental processes of another. I assume it was upon the merits of the case, upon a review of all the facts in connection with it.

Mr. BLOUNT. The gentleman's language was not clear. I simply wanted to understand what he meant to have the House believe.

Mr. COVERT. I do not wish to be unfair in comments or criticism upon this matter. I trust I have answered the gentleman satisfactorily.

Mr. BOATNER. There is one point upon which I would like to be advised. It is stated in the report that an application was made by the Mexican Government to the umpire of the Commission for a rehearing, but that this application was overruled by him October 20, 1876. I would like to know whether that application was overruled by the umpire after a proper investigation of the facts charged as the basis for a rehearing—an investigation of the charges made?

Mr. COVERT. I wish to say to the gentleman from Louisiana that I do not know what was in the mind of Sir Edward Thornton at the time of the making of this application to him or at the time of the rendition of his decision.

Mr. BOATNER. The gentleman does not understand me——

Mr. COVERT. I do, perfectly.

Mr. BOATNER. I wish to know whether the evidence referred to was considered by the Commission: and if it was, how we can grant a rehearing without casting discredit upon the umpire selected by this Government and Mexico to decide that dispute?

Mr. COVERT. The gentleman has anticipated a suggestion that I was about to make to the House. I do not know—I can only assume—that so eminent a publicist, so distinguished a jurist, so accomplished an international lawyer as Sir Edward Thornton, in hearing and passing upon this application, took into consideration all the facts and circumstances connected with the case. Certain it is that this application was made to him for a rehearing; certain it is that he refused to grant the application for the reopening of the case.

Now, all that I intended to argue from the fact of the making of this application to the Commission or to the umpire for a rehearing of the matter was simply this: If the representatives of the Mexican Government were honest and are honest in the claim they then made, and which they now make, of "newly discovered" testimony, that "newly discovered" testimony was in their possession certainly as early as October following the rendition of this decision, the decision having been rendered in the month of August.

The examination before this commission continued, as I have already stated, through a period of at least eighteen months. The testimony on the part of the claimant was the testimony first heard and received by this Commission. The testimony of the claimant's witnesses was perpetuated in writing. It was known of all men interested in this hearing. Communication between the United States and the Republic of Mexico was easy and convenient. Does any sane man pretend to claim, will any gentleman upon this floor argue, that if the testimony brought in to support this claim was false and fraudulent the Mexican Government could not be advised of it, and was not advised of it as this case progressed before the Commission during those eighteen months of time?

Why, Mr. Speaker, not the close rules that prevail in a court of law are the rules of practice that prevail before an international commission. Parties to the controversy are not tied down to a strict order of proof when they come before a high international body like this. There was absolutely nothing to prevent the Republic of Mexico or its representatives, as this case progressed, from bringing in their proof disproving, if they could, the allegations made by the claimant's witnesses. But the Mexican Republic stood mute. Not one word of evidence was brought in before that Commission for the purpose of impeaching or impugning the character of the witnesses for the claimant or the honesty of their testimony.

It was only after the Commission had closed its labors; it was only after this Republic, for which my distinguished friend from Georgia has invoked the sympathy of this House, found itself beaten, found that a perfectly fair, an absolutely impartial arbitrator, not an American citizen, not a Mexican citizen, but a distinguished citizen of England, had brought in an award against them, that they first commenced to ring the changes upon this question of fraud in the matter of the proof submitted by the claimants in this case.

Was there fraudulent testimony presented? Was this case, so far as the claimant's side of it was concerned, "honeycombed with fraud," as gentlemen on the other side would have us believe? Very fortunately, Mr. Speaker, we are not left to the record evidence taken and subscribed before this Joint High Commission. I summon to the bar of this House in this connection a very important witness, from whose lips can be established, and very clearly established, the condition of things existing in the Republic of Mexico at the time these American citizens, under this promise of protection given to them by Mexican authorities, sought to engage in legitimate business within the limits of the Republic of Mexico. I quote from the Hon. John W. Foster, who, at the time this matter was being examined before this high international commission, was minister of the United States to the Mexican Republic. He is the same gentleman who has figured extensively in this very La Abra mining claim almost from the time it left the hands of this high Commission down to the present moment.

What does Mr. Foster say, speaking in his official capacity as the United States minister to Mexico?

American capitalists can not lose sight of the half century of disorder and revolution in Mexico, and there is a general conviction among them that they can not safely invest their money in a large railroad enterprise in this country unless the protection of the Government of the United States, by by some treaty stipulation or other convention, goes with it.

He says further on:

But the manufacturer and merchant of Chicago hope, in following suggestions made, to have not only this city but the whole Republic as a field of commercial enterprise. At the risk of subjecting myself to the serious charge referred to above, I feel it my duty to cite some facts which have come under my notice and which are well known in this country.

Not a single passenger train leaves this city or Vera Cruze the termini of the only completed railroad in the country, without being escorted by a company of soldiers to protect it from assault and robbery. The manufacturers of this city who own factories in the valley within sight of it, in sending out money to pay the weekly wages of the operatives, always accompany it with an armed guard; and it has repeatedly occurred during the past twelve mont hs that the street-railway cars from this city to the suburban villages have been seized by bands of robbers and the money of the manufacturers stolen. Every mining company which sends its metal to this city to be coined or shipped abroad always accompanies it by a strong guard of picked men, and the planters or others who send money or valuables out of the city do likewise.

But if these things occur within sight of the capital, it is natural to suppose that they are more frequent in distant parts of the Republic.

During the short time that I have been in charge of this legation I have been officially informed by the consuls of my Government residing in the different localities of the Republic of Mexico of the death of thirteen American citizens by violence and outrage, some of them murders of the most brutal character and revolting to our common civilization. In addition to these I have also received official intelligence of several brutal assaults and personal outrages upon American citizens not resulting in loss of life.

This, Mr. Speaker, is Mr. John W. Foster, then United States minister to Mexico, subsequently the counsel for the Mexican Government before the very committee that considered and reported this bill; and John W. Foster, minister to Mexico, speaking of these outrages on the part of Mexicans against citizens of the United States, is the same Mr. Foster who was the counsel for the Mexican Government before this committee, inciting or attempting to incite these sentiments of sympathy towards the poor Republic of Mexico which have been voiced on this floor by the distinguished gentleman from Georgia. "The honor of the United States is involved in this transaction," says the gentleman in charge of the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I submit that the honor of the United States is involved in this matter, but it is not to be maintained in the direction indicated by such a measure as this. Certainly not at this time. The honor of the United States might be best preserved and maintained, I respectfully submit, not by the passage of this measure at this time of all others. If enacted at all, its passage should at least be deferred until such time as the counsel of the Republic of Mexico ceases to be the Secretary of State of the United States of America. [Applause.]

Now, Mr. Speaker, upon this question of false and fraudulent proof which they say was adduced before the International Commission I quote the abstract testimony of Minister Foster. I might take a great deal of your time by quoting from the record the testimony of numerous others before this Commission, both American and Mexican citizens alike, detailing these outrages that were perpetrated upon the representatives of this company while they were attempting to transact their legitimate operations within the limits of the Mexican Republic. But time will not permit. They say the testimony was exaggerated; that the facts were overstated by the witnesses who appeared and gave their testimony.

Why, sir, in the hearings taken before this committee appeared official notifications coming from little local magistrates, officers having seemingly despotic power in the locality where these mines were located. One of these officers is called by the Mexicans the "Chief Political," and he issued his notice to the company, telling them what they should do, how they should pay their employés, when they should pay their men, and threatening, unless his instructions were immediately complied with, that they would be forced to abandon the works. These are facts in proof. There is testimony of a similar character coming from Mexican sources; it is the evidence taken by the Commission, which can not be impugned, which can not be impeached, which can not be overthrown, and it is evidence that is eloquent of the outrages which have been perpetrated on these people.

Now about the alleged newly discovered evidence and the steps taken by the Mexican Government on the basis of such evidence to overturn the decision of the Commission.

After subscribing to this formal, sacred covenant which I have read to this House, wherein and whereby the Mexican Government promise full and faithful compliance with the decree of the Commission, what did this Republic, for which my distinguished friend from Georgia [Mr. BLOUNT] asks the sympathy of this House, proceed to do? It entered into secret negotiations with a citizen of the United States, the nature and the object of which was the obtaining of testimony that should operate in the direction of setting aside this award or the reduction of its amount.

A contract was entered into with an American citizen named Slaughter—and I submit that he was appropriately named [laughter]—wherein this American citizen agreed to accept from the Government of Mexico a fixed, certain amount, for expenses in sending an agent down to Mexico to get the books and papers of the company, to gather what proof he could, and then, in the event of success, in the event that the pleas of my friend from Georgia [Mr. BLOUNT] and other gentlemen who may join with him in a plea for sympathy for the struggling and unfortunate Republic of Mexico should prevail, and this fund or any part of it be paid back to the Mexican Government, then this American citizen was to receive 10 per cent of the entire amount that should be refunded to the Government of Mexico. This agreement is in proof. It was introduced before the committee. This contingent fee is sought to be earned by this American citizen with the aid and consent of a majority of the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives of the United States.

Mr. BLOUNT. I do not understand the gentleman. Does he mean to say that the Committee on Foreign Affairs were assenting to and endeavoring to execute an immoral arrangement?

Mr. COVERT. Oh, my friend from Georgia [Mr. BLOUNT] knows me much too well to imagine that there is any necessity for that inquiry. Most certainly not; but I do say, and I repeat it, and I desire to repeat it with emphasis, that this contract involves a contingent fee, and that there is a contingent fee dependent upon the passage of this bill, that fee to be earned by an American citizen, if the interests of his fellow American citizens shall not be protected and if this fund or any part of it shall be paid back to the Republic of Mexico. That is what I mean to say and that statement I repeat.

Mr. BLOUNT. I do not object to that statement.

Mr. COVERT. Now, what did this man Slaughter do? He sent an agent, a person by the name of Green, down into Mexico. It would seem an unnecessary procedure, because when outrage was piled upon outrage, when these people found that they could no longer remain safely about their works and upon their mines, they left, as they were obliged to leave, according to the testimony, very hastily, and they left all the books and papers in connection with their business enterprise at the scene of operation at the mines. The testimony discloses the fact that before this, one of these local magistrates had already settled upon a part of the company's land and was treating it as his own.

The testimony further shows that as soon as the last one of these men left these mines another of these local judges proceeded to locate himself on the property and to work the mine in his own way. So that the representatives of the Mexican Government were supposedly in possession of these books and papers of La Abra Mining Company before Slaughter sent his agent down there to try to obtain possession of them. The agent went, and all that appears upon the surface as a result of his expedition there is a letter-press copy book containing some letters or copies of letters written by one of the company's superintendents to the home office in New York. Now, by these letters it would seem that this particular superintendent had to some extent been misrepresenting matters to the home people.

Mr. BLOUNT. There were letters from several superintendents.

Mr. COVERT. I am speaking more especially of the letters that are impugned, written by the superintendent, Exall. It would seem from some of these letters that this superintendent, in collusion with one of his fellow employés, an English subject down in Mexico, anticipating from these acts of violence that the company were suffering at the hands of the Mexican authorities that the work could not be continued very much longer, was coloring the condition of things to the home office, with a view of himself making a purchase of the interests of the company, in conjunction with this English subject, Griffiths.

Now, this, as I assume, is the important "newly discovered evidence" upon which the representatives of the Mexican Government ask for the reopening of this Commission and this case. Sufficient to say, Mr. Speaker, that the testimony of the agent, Slaughter, before the committee was full and explicit, that the covenant with the man Green and the instructions to him were to secure all the books and papers belonging to the company. Whatever the man Green did discover he did not bring back to this country, but turned over at once to the representatives of the Mexican Government, and the Mexican Government has brought to light, out of all the books and papers and vouchers of La Abra Mining Company, only this letter-press copy book which is relied upon as establishing a sufficient reason for the overturning of the decision found in this case. Where are the other books and papers? The only possible inference is that they are suppressed by the Mexican authorities. Now, for all answer to this claim of the importance of this newly discovered testimony it is sufficient, in my humble judgment, to say this:

The decision of Sir Edward Thornton, the umpire in this matter, is based, not upon the testimony of the superintendent, Exall, whose testimony is sought to be impunged by the production of this press-letter copy book, but upon the testimony of other witnesses, whose character is unimpeached and unimpeachable, and who are sustained in reputation and in character by the testimony of some of the foremost men of the land. Sir Edward Thornton nowhere in the award he made places any stress or any reliance whatever upon the testimony which Superintendent Exall has given. He bases his finding upon the sworn value of the lands as they were purchased by this company, upon the value of the machinery as that value was proven to him by the testimony of unimpeached witnesses, and upon the cost of transportation; and he expressly says in the award made in the case, "not one dollar by way of prospective or speculative damages" is given. Not a dollar! And he gives the items going to make up the aggregate of the award made against the Government of Mexico.

Now, these are the facts, Mr. Speaker, as I have hastily given them; and I submit that there is absolutely nothing in connection with this whole case that calls for any particular degree of sympathy so far as struggling Mexico is concerned. I submit that there is absolutely nothing in this case that ought for a moment make the Congress of the United States discriminate against her own citizens, who have suffered loss and injury, in order that the Republic of Mexico may benefit by it.

And this is not all. Before this Commission, or joint court of inquiry, certain claims were presented by Mexico and of her citizens against the Republic of the United States, and very largely these claims were allowed, and Mexico has come up smiling and received, without demur, every single dollar of the award made by that Commission against our own country. Having accepted a part of the work of this Commission, I submit that the Republic of Mexico is foreclosed forever so far as the La Abra matter is concerned and can not come now and claim a rehearing of the work of that Commission, of which it has received the benefit.

These are the facts: A committee, and an intelligent committee, the gentlemen composing the Committee on Foreign Affairs in the Forty-ninth Congress, gave patient and careful attention to this matter. The thing was fresher then than it is now. They took testimony; they heard proof, and by an overwhelming majority that committee rejected this bill and reported it adversely.

The Senate of the United States has refused to open this matter by the appointment of a new commission. And these adverse acts are founded in justice and equity. Many of the claimant's witnesses have died in the intervening time and their testimony can not be used in rebuttal of any "newly discovered" evidence that may be submitted.

My friend from Georgia [Mr. BLOUNT] has said that three Secretaries of State have advocated governmental intervention, so far as this claim is concerned.

Why, Mr. Speaker, when this matter was brought first—when it was a great deal newer than it is now—to the attention of Mr. Secretary Fish, he rejected all attempts to open the matter, and refused to pass upon it. When the matter was brought to the attention of Mr. Secretary Evarts—I quote the substance of his statement, even if I do not quote the exact words, that able and accomplished jurist and supremely great statesman, said that if there was anything about the claim that was made, anything to support the claim for the reopening of this matter, it went only to the question of the amount of damages involved. Upon the abstract proposition of wrong, of gross wrong, inflicted by the governmental authorities of Mexico upon and against the citizens of the United States, Mr. Secretary Evarts seemed to think that there was absolutely no question. When the matter was followed up and was brought to the attention of Mr. Secretary Bayard, he adopted the reasoning and the conclusions reached by Mr. Secretary Evarts. He said that all that was involved in this case was a question of damages. There was no question seemingly in his mind as to the abstract proposition of the wrongs inflicted upon American citizens, wrongs for which full and ample redress should be made.

And that is not all. The accomplished chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs of the present Congress [Senator SHERMAN] was not in the Senate when this bill was put upon its passage at the other side of the Capitol. But he wrote a letter in connection with this matter which has been printed somewhere and is part of these proceedings. This letter, which is very brief, I desire to read to this House:

SENATE CHAMBER, Washington, April 8, 1889.

GENTLEMEN: In answer to your note of the 6th, I have to advise you that I have not been able to read the minority report by Senator Brown in the matter of the La Abra award, as my time is so constantly occupied by pressing immediate duties. I have not been able to give to the subject-matter the consideration necessary to say whether I should approve either the majority or the minority report.

Only this I can say, that I have always regarded the arbitration of this case as final and conclusive, not to be reopened, and that it is better, in any aspect of the real facts in respect to the claim, that the award should be exactly carried out. I have thought, and still think, that it is more important to give force and effect to an award solemnly made than to scratch over the ashes to find imperfections or insufficiency of proof upon which the award was founded. Unless convinced otherwise, I will vote for insisting upon the award.

Very truly, yours,

JOHN SHERMAN.

And what Senator SHERMAN so tersely says in this letter I desire, in my own weak way, to repeat upon the floor of this House. The time, it had been hoped, was rapidly coming when through the agency of international conventions all disputes between nations should be forever and finally settled. It had been hoped that, so far as the Republic of America was concerned the echo of the last gun had been heard in deadly conflict. It had been hoped that the smoke of battle would never again be seen rising heavenward from any field of carnage in any warfare waged either by or against this Republic. It had been hoped that through the intervention of able and impartial men, representatives of other nations through the agency of international commissions, whatever disputes, whatever controversies, might arise, wars should forever cease so far as the Republic of America was concerned.

Mr. Speaker, if this bill shall pass, a blow, and a deadly blow, will be struck against the binding force of the work of international conventions; a blow the effect of which may be felt for a hundred years to come. In view of this fact, in view of the fact that the rights and interests of citizens of the United States are involved and deeply involved here, I respectfully submit that this bill should be voted down, and the solemn, deliberate judgment of an impartial international commission be upheld and sustained. [Applause.]

Mr. GEARY. Mr. Speaker, I agree fully with the gentleman who has just closed as to the necessity for this Government exercising a jealous care in protecting the rights of Americans in foreign countries. But while doing that it is just as important that we should exercise a jealous care in preventing American citizens from using this Government as a means of imposing frauds upon foreign governments. If the only question involved in this case was as to the amount of the damages awarded by the umpire, I would not be in favor of reviewing the decision; but, as my friend [Mr. COVERT] has said, this case was investigated by a joint commission consisting of one representative of Mexico and one representative of the United States, and they failing to agree, the matter was submitted to Sir Edward Thornton, who rendered a judgment in favor of this La Abra Company.

At the time that judgment was made neither the authorities of the United States nor the authorities of Mexico had any notice of the testimony now presented to our committee, and not until two years after the making of that award was the correspondence between the home company in New York and the manager of the mine in Mexico discovered by any of the parties outside of that company.

Now, this testimony, newly discovered and presented, does not go to the question of the amount of damages, but it shows that the entire claim was founded on fraud and was made out only by the rankest perjury. This testimony discloses the fact that instead of these people being compelled to abandon that mine by reason of the interference of the Mexican authorities, they had in fact abandoned it long before the time when they charge they were expelled—had abandoned it because they had no further money to invest. Mr. Garth, the treasurer of the mining company, testifying before the Senate committee last year, in answer to a question of the chairman of that committee, said:

As early as 1867 I made up my mind that we would not invest any more money in that mine, and we discovered that we had been imposed upon at the time we invested our original money.

The fact of the matter was that some gentlemen out West, knowing a great deal about mines, met some gentlemen from New York and Missouri who knew very little about mines, and the usual result followed. [Laughter.] The gentlemen from the West took in the money of the New York miners and left them "the experience." These men were sold a mine in Durango, Mexico, for $72,000. They sent down a gentleman named Garth, who had never seen a mine. He was taken into a room and shown some piles of silver bullion. It appears that he did not even ascertain whether it had come from this mine or not, but, carried away by the magnificent showing, he parted with his money and went home and organized his company. They raised $150,000, bought largely of machinery in San Francisco and had it hauled to the mine. They ran that mine for two years and took out one piece of silver valued at $300.

Never in their experience did they get from that mine one single cent's worth of silver beyond that first piece. In 1867 Garth notified the manager that he would not advance any more money, and the correspondence of the manager with Garth, as contained in this record, is replete with instructions and advice that unless he would forward some more money to enable them to employ more help they would be compelled to abandon the mine entirely.

Mr. BOATNER. Will it interrupt the gentleman if I ask him a question?

Mr. GEARY. No, sir.

Mr. BOATNER. What suggestion does the Mexican Government make by way of explanation for not furnishing the evidence which the gentleman is now reciting to the Commission that investigated this subject?

Mr. GEARY. This is not a question between the Mexican Government and the United States. The finality of that award as between the two governments is not questioned, but the clear duty of this Government, when she discovers at any time that her citizens by perjury have entrapped her into the presentation of an unjust claim, is to try to do whatever is right in order to undo the evil she has done.

Mr. BOATNER. But if the fact be that this claim was pending before the Commission for eighteen months, and these men operated in the way you have stated, and that only $300 in silver had been taken out of the mine, what explanation does the Mexican Government give for the fact that this testimony was not furnished to the Commission that was called on to decide the question?

Mr. GEARY. When the matter was presented to the Commission, testimony was taken by deposition without the privilege of cross-examination. A great mass of testimony was gathered throughout the North in support of the claim; and on the other side the Mexican Government had the testimony of a few laborers and people living in the vicinity of the mines. Now, as a lawyer, supposing I present to you the affidavits of bankers and merchants of New York on the one side, and the affidavits of an equal number of poor "greasers" on the other, where would the verdict go?

Mr. MAGNER. Was not this testimony subsequently presented to Sir Edward Thornton, the umpire, when he was considering the motion for a rehearing?

Mr. GEARY. Yes, sir.

Mr. MAGNER. What were his reasons, then, for deciding as he did?

Mr. GEARY. He denied the rehearing because the convention provided that the judgment of the Commission should be final, and made no provision for a reëxamination; but in rendering his decision——

Mr. BLOUNT. Will the gentleman allow me a single remark?

Mr. GEARY. Yes, sir.

Mr. BLOUNT. As to the question raised by the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. BOATNER] why this letter book was not introduced in the hearing——

Mr. BOATNER. No; my question was not as to the letter book; but why were not the facts which have been referred to—that the mine was an unproductive venture, producing nothing, and that it was abandoned—brought out by the Mexican Government? It seems to me that, according to all principles of law, the Government of Mexico ought to have established those facts before the tribunal authorized to determine the question.

Mr. BLOUNT. I was about to suggest that this letter book disclosed the condition of the business of the company, and contradicted the allegations and statements made on which the award was rendered; but the Mexican Government did not come into possession of this information for two years after the case was closed.

Mr. BOATNER. Is the letter book the only evidence by which the additional facts stated could have been established?

Mr. BLOUNT. I have not so stated; but the letter book does disclose the official action of the company; it is the record of its business transactions as carried on by correspondence, and it reveals facts which are utterly contradictory of the evidence on which that Commission acted.

Mr. MAGNER. Will the gentleman from California please repeat the statement he made as to the position taken by Sir Edward Thornton?

Mr. GEARY. Sir Edwin Thornton refused a new hearing because the convention under which the Commission was established made no provision for a rehearing, but contemplated that the finding of the Commission should be final. In rendering his opinion, however, he said:

In the case No. 477, "Benj. Weil vs. Mexico," the agent of Mexico has produced circumstantial evidence which, if not refuted by the claimant, would certainly contribute to the suspicion that perjury has been committed, and that the whole claim is a fraud. For the reason already given, it is not in the power of the umpire to take that evidence into consideration, but if perjury shall be proved hereafter no one would rejoice more than the umpire himself that his decision should be reversed, and that justice should be done.

* * * * * * *

"He (the umpire) doubts whether the Government of either country would insist upon the payment of claims founded upon perjury."

But because there was no provision for a rehearing, Sir Edward Thornton was obliged to refuse the review.

A MEMBER. He was functus officio.

Mr. GEARY. Yes, sir.

Now, as I was saying, in the original presentation of the case two men named Exall and Garth furnished depositions to establish the validity of the claim; and it was not until the letter book containing their correspondence was discovered that the Mexican authorities were in possession of the facts to rebut those depositions. These letters proved conclusively that in 1867 the parties contemplated the abandonment of the mine because there was not any ore in it; and yet Mr. Exall claimed that he was driven from the mine by the Mexican people.

We find here his own letter dated at Mazatlan in which he says he is on his way to New York because there is no longer any use of his remaining, there not being any means at his command to enable him to work the mine. And in every one of these letters is disclosed the uniform kindly and considerate treatment they had received from the Mexican Government and the Mexican people, and that no officer of the company resident within the Mexican Territory ever made any charge against any of the Mexican authorities that the company had been in any way interfered with in its management or property. Time and again they were compelled to ask favors from the Mexican authorities, and in no instance was there a refusal or a failure on the part of the Mexican people to accede to their wishes, and no talk anywhere of any impositions practiced upon the company by the authorities.

Now, the charge to establish this unfairness is, first, that a man named Grove, an employé of the mining company was assassinated because he was an American, and that the Mexican authorities refused to interfere for his protection or for the protection of the other employés of the mine. Mr. Bartholow, the original locater of the mine, the first superintendent, the gentleman who went to Mexico from Missouri in connection with the mine, says in his correspondence that Mr. Grove was killed not because he was an American citizen, but because of his own incautious action; that he went to the house of a man who was known to be a criminal and an outlaw, stopped there over night, and told him that he was possessed of a large sum of money, with which he was going to a neighboring village for the purpose of buying mules, and the next morning he was killed by this party presumably because of his declaration of the possession of this money, and the proof shows that thereafter when the matter was brought to the notice of the Mexican authorities the criminal was pursued, apprehended, and executed.

Mr. BLOUNT. If my friend from California will allow me, he was an employé of the company.

Mr. GEARY. He was in the employ of the company; and Mr. Bartholow, in his letter, copies of which are in the letter-press book, and admitted to be genuine by all parties, explained how he came to his death, and completely exonerates the Mexican Government from any liability whatever in connection with it. And yet, notwithstanding all of the testimony and the facts which have been established in reference to Grove's death, that matter has been built upon and made the foundation for a magnificent story of the intimidation of this company, the violation of its rights and the acts of violence to its employés.

Now, Mr. Speaker, in regard to the matter of the abandonment of this mine the facts are as I have already stated them. It was abandoned because of a want of money; and we poor old Californians are in evidence again, by this record, as victims of this same company. In 1867, after the treasurer in New York had refused to contribute another dollar to the working of the mine on the ground that it was a failure, the superintendent drew his draft on the New York company and had it cashed in the Bank of California in San Francisco. That draft went to protest, and from that day to this has never been paid by the company. At the same time proceedings were instituted in the city of New York and the company sued for $50,000 of debts, admitted to be insolvent, by the same claimants; and the reason given for their going out of business was because they got into a bad investment.

There was never a time when any superintendent of the company actually in charge of its property in Mexico had any reason to complain of the treatment of the Mexican people or authorities. But when the Commission was organized in 1868, after the abandonment of the mine, recognizing the desperate condition prevailing on the Mexican frontier, knowing the excitement and turmoil that the people had passed through for the purpose of maintaining a republican government, they took advantage of that situation, prepared this claim in fraud, and bolstered it up with perjury, imposed on the representatives of the United States, and the Government of the United States now merely asks that she shall have the right, not to cite Mexico to the Court of Claims, but to bring in her own citizens and ask them, in the light of later evidence, whether the claim was right or wrong.

I do not think that any gentleman with any regard for the honor of this Republic, desiring this Government to maintain her proud position among the nations of the earth, and to command the respect of all of the other peoples of the world, ought to make objection to such action as is proposed in this case and allow this investigation. For if you can not trust your Government in your own tribunals to do right with you, what right have you to complain of the grievances visited upon you by the people of foreign governments? I believe the claim to be fraudulent, and I think it is only justice to ourselves that before we pay over the money we should remove every particle of doubt. If the claim is right and just, let these people establish it without possibility of contradiction.

Now, my friend says that this thing is final, that we can not go behind it. But we have gone behind claims like this in the past in our history under circumstances of a similar character. We have recognized the finality of the award as between us and a foreign nation; but we have always reserved the right to cite our citizens into the court whenever we had a suspicion of the case, in order that we might make them demonstrate the correctness of their position and claims.

After the act of 1878 was passed, providing for the distribution of these moneys, the Congress of the United States expressly excepted these two claims, La Abra and the Weil claims, from the operations of that law, and directed that the State Department should make investigation as to the correctness of the claims. Those moneys now remain in the hands of the Secretary of State undistributed. Afterward an appeal was made to the Supreme Court of the United States, asking that a writ of mandate run compelling the Secretary of State to pay this money to the claimant, and the opinion of that court, found in 110 U. S. and again in 139 U. S., the opinion of Chief Justice Fuller epitomizes as follows. Referring to the former opinion of Mr. Chief Justice Waite, Mr. Fuller says:

> It was there ruled, Mr. Chief Justice Waite delivering the opinion, that there was no doubt as to the conclusiveness of the awards under the convention of July 4, 1868, but that the language of the treaty was to be construed as used in a compact between two nations for the adjustment of the claims of the citizens of either against the other; that citizens of the United States having claims against Mexico were not parties to the convention—

And that the proposition that this matter is res judicata as between the claimant and this Government does not lie in this particular case. That—> while the claims of individual citizens were to be considered by the commission in determining amounts, the whole purpose of the convention was to ascertain how much was due from one Government to the other on account of the demands of their respective citizens; that, as between the United States and Mexico, the awards were final and conclusive until set aside by agreement between the two Governments or otherwise; that each Government, when it entered into the compact under which the awards were made, relied on the honor and good faith of the other for protection, as far as possible, against frauds and impositions by the individual claimants; "and that where a fraudulent claim or false testimony was presented by a citizen for reference to the commission, this was an imposition on his own Government and it would be not only its right but its duty to repudiate the act, if it afterward discovered that it had in this way been made an instrument of wrong towards a friendly power." And the Chief Justice said: "International arbitration must always proceed on the highest principles of national honor and integrity. Claims presented and evidence submitted to such a tribunal must necessarily bear the impress of the entire good faith of the government from which they come, and it is not to be presumed that any government will for a moment allow itself knowingly to be made the instrument of wrong in any such proceeding. No technical rules of pleading, as applied in municipal courts, ought ever to be allowed to stand in the way of the national power to do what is right under all circumstances. Every citizen who asks the intervention of his own government against another for the redress of his personal grievances must necessarily subject himself and his claim to these requirements of international comity." And it was added that, "as between the United States and the claimants, the honesty of the claim is always open to inquiry for the purposes of fair dealing with the government against which, through the United States, a claim has been made."

The foregoing opinion of Chief Justice Waite of 1884, as cited, was unanimously affirmed by the Supreme Court in 1891, and, on the point under consideration, Chief Justice Fuller used this language:

> The principle of res adjudicata could not be invoked against the United States by individual claimants while the controversy raised as to them remained in fieri.
>
> In Frelinghuysen vs. Key, while conceding the essential value of international arbitration to be dependent upon the certainty and finality of the decision, the court adjudged that this Government need not, therefore, close its doors against an investigation into the question whether its influence had been lent in favor of a fraudulent claim. It was held that no applicable rule was so rigid as not to be sufficiently flexible to do justice, and that the extent and character of any obligation to individuals, growing out of a treaty, an award, and the receipt of money thereon, were necessarily subject to such modification as circumstances might require.

Now, we have four cases exactly like this in the history of this Government, opened up by the authorities of the United States; two resulting from the claims commission between this country and Venezuela, one with the Government of China, and one with the Government of Mexico, arising out of the first claims commission established. In one of these cases, even after all the money had been paid by the Government of the United States to the claimants, years afterward, the wrong was discovered and suit was brought by the Attorney-General of the United States and more than one-half of that money was reconverted into the Treasury of the United States and repaid to the foreign government from which it was wrongfully taken.

I think it is our duty, just as much for the Government as it would be the duty of an honorable man, when he found that by any act founded on fraud or crime he had been made the recipient of a benefit, if he was to maintain his standing as a man of honor, to reconvey the thing so wrongfully acquired to the innocent parties from whom it had been taken; and I think that same standard of honor that ought to prevail among men must prevail among nations, must be the rule of conduct for this Government, if we are at all times to command a respect of all other nationalities on earth.

If through imposition practiced on our commissioners, we have taken from the Republic of Mexico this sum of $600,000, which Mexico had no right to pay to us and would not have paid but for the fraud and criminal conduct of our citizens, we owe it to our own sense of honor to permit no kindly feeling for our own people, merely because they are Americans, to shut our eyes to the enormity of the crime and prevent us from doing full and ample justice to the other people. Let this case go to the Court of Claims, where our own Government will investigate your conduct; and if you are afraid to submit yourselves to that tribunal, then we have a right to argue that there must be something very bad in the claim you advocate. [Applause.]

Mr. BLOUNT. Mr. Speaker, I yield fifteen or twenty minutes to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HITT].

Mr. HITT. Mr. Speaker, this case of the La Abra claim on Mexico or these two La Abra and Weil cases—for they are twins, born about the same time and very akin in nature—is a fine illustration of how easy it is to make a great deal of money out of nothing or next to nothing when you have all the instrumentalities and agents that grow up around one of these international commissions in Washington. This suggestion will perhaps explain the reluctance of Mr. Evarts to have another mixed commission created to retry these claims. When the International Commission between the United States and Mexico, before which these two cases were presented, was held there were claims amounting to more than $500,000,000 presented, and nine-tenths of them—yes, far more than that—were exposed and rejected as worthless or false and fraudulent. Two of them, for vast sums of money, the Weil and La Abra claims, located far away, in time of confusion, when no official evidence existed, were most cunningly contrived, falsehood wonderfully pieced together, and succeeded in passing the Commission.

The Weil claim was as marvelous an invention as anything ever found in Dumas's novels. It was a claim on Mexico for 1,914 bales of cotton, captured by the Mexican Government troops from American citizens on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande at the exact moment of the greatest confusion, near the close of our war, and the subsidence of the tumults in Mexico after the French invasion. The adroit conspirators framed such a complete body of proofs that it deceived the very elect, and $487,000 was awarded for these 1,914 bales drawn by 119 six-mule teams, hauling this imaginary cotton. Not one bale of it ever existed. Weil lived in Ohio, never was there, nor any other of the pretended witnesses. It was all perjury and invention from first to last.

With the Weil claim, coupled under that statute of 1878, which first marked them out as fraudulent, was this La Abra claim. What is it? Some speculative adventurers came from Mexico to New York selling old mining claims.

Some of you gentlemen have heard of wondrous old mines from which the Spaniards had taken uncounted millions long ago to be reopened and for sale cheap in New York. They succeeded in this case in duping New York capitalists and selling them an old and worthless mine. The New York company sent machinery and men there and expended money, until it became evident that the ore was worthless; that the more of it they worked the more money they lost, and the company failed. After they had failed—after their money was all swallowed up, and long after the whole matter was abandoned—occurred the idea of getting up a claim against Mexico and putting it through the International Commission then organized. This came out only recently from their treasurer, when he was brought before a committee in this Capitol, and under oath was, for the first, subjected to the crucial test of cross-examination. After the venture was all over, and had ended in bankruptcy, and they had gladly left the mine to solitude, they contrived a claim to reimburse themselves. And they succeeded. It was sworn through with such skill and fullness that they got an award of $683,000.

Thus these two vast sums of money were compassed about. Was ever so neat, prompt, and complete a way seen of making a great deal of money out of nothing? The awards had been made: the treaty declared that they were final and absolutely binding on Mexico; and Mexico did faithfully pay over to the United States Government the whole of the money, both claims, in all $1,170,000.

But falsehood is never secure. The publication of the awards brought out letters from Confederate, Union, and Mexican officers and citizens exposing the Weil romance. A letter-press book, left at La Abra, containing daily reports and letters of the superintendent, fell into hands that disclosed it, and all the truth came out. Then Mexico, still faithfully paying each installment as it fell due, in accordance with the treaty, accompanied it with evidence and solemnly called our Government's attention to the fact that it was made an instrument of fraud and perjury in collecting false claims.

Yet such is the sanctity of international agreement that Secretary after Secretary, as proof arose upon every hand exposing first the Weil and last the La Abra claim, still dared not depart from the strict letter of the awards, but paid installment after installment, as it came in from Mexico, to this corps of adventurers and plunderers. In the Weil claim the conspirators received $171,000 before Secretary Blaine, in 1881, set his foot down and stopped it. In the La Abra claim, in which their own treasurer has since sworn that the whole amount that had been invested was only $152,000, they had already, in 1881, been paid $240,000. But that is not all. Remember there was still $690,000 coming to them when a resolute Secretary determined to stop paying it over to them, believing that the awards might be binding on Mexico, but could not bind us to aid individuals to swindle another government. This view, which Secretary Blaine ventured upon on his own opinion of justice and duty, has since been confirmed and sustained by a unanimous decision of the Supreme Court.

Meantime, Mexico, that has been spoken of so harshly here to-day, has paid to the last cent the whole $1,170,000 of these shameful awards. You say the State Department knew that it was fraud. Yes, but it did not learn it, nor did the Mexican Government, until after the awards. Then suspicion arose. When the act was passed providing for the distribution of the awards generally, these two claims had already taken so dark and criminal a hue that Congress provided that the President should investigate them and see whether they should be retried; if retried, to hold up the payments. That was in 1878. And President Hayes did so. Secretary Evarts recommended that there should be a further investigation. The matter looked dark and disgraceful, but he did not recommend a new international commission. He might naturally hesitate to create an international commission, but he did not hesitate to recommend that deeper investigation be made. The Houses differed about the way of doing it; delay upon delay ensued. Powerful interests were working to prevent action by Congress that would keep them from the great pile of money lying at the State Department, paid in by Mexico, and for which they were panting. Eminent counsel and powerful friends were enlisted. There were 690,000 reasons for being opposed to having new light thrown upon this miserable and shameful business.

Then in 1888 Mr. Cleveland sent a message urging that these two cases be sent for investigation to the Court of Claims. That is just what this bill does. Mr. Bayard tried to have an investigation by the courts in 1888 under the law of March 3, 1887, but when he tried to get the consent of the claimants they of course declined. So we are no nearer to investigation to-day. Delay upon delay has succeeded.

It is easy to divine the influences. Why, when the subcommittee of the Committee on Foreign Affairs heard this case, I was one of the subcommittee, and we could not find any space for the public, so great was the swarm of counsel and distinguished people who were interested in the claims, and filled that large committee room.

Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE. Will the gentleman permit a question?

Mr. HITT. Certainly.

Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE. I understand that the money which was awarded to these claimants is in possession of this Government, and that this bill proposes to have an inquiry to determine whether the allegation of fraud is founded in fact. If it is proven to be founded in fact, the portion of the money that has not been paid over to the claimants is to be returned to the Mexican Government——

Mr. HITT. That is the bill.

Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE. But if the allegation proves not to be founded on fact, then the balance of the award is to be divided among the claimants in the proportions to which they are entitled?

Mr. HITT. Yes; all that they are entitled to they shall receive.

Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE. Then what objection is there to the passage of this bill, or to the proposed inquiry?

Mr. HITT. None, I think.

Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE. The money is now tied up, is it not?

Mr. HITT. It is.

Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE. Why, then, is not this bill equally as advantageous to the claimants as to the Government, and what is the reason the claimants object to it?

Mr. HITT. The hope of immediate possession by failure of legislation and fear of exposure if this goes to the court.

Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE. But can they get it without some legislation?

Mr. HITT. I am not Secretary of State. [Laughter.] Secretaries have differed. But I think they can not.

Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE. If you were it would not be necessary to pass this bill.

Mr. HITT. A Secretary of State, in view of the doubtful questions of law in these cases, allowed the first payments to be made and handed over to the claimants. Another Secretary of State, not yet justified by the memorable decision of the Supreme Court, stopped these payments. Subsequently the Supreme Court, by Chief-Justice Waite and still later by Chief-Justice Fuller, the court unanimously sustaining him, decided that while the award of the Commission was final and conclusive upon Mexico, as were its findings against us absolutely binding upon the United States, that did not tie up the United States Government in dealing with its own citizens, but if it appeared that this Government had been made the instrument of perpetrating a fraud upon a friendly power, it was not merely its right but its duty to repudiate that action and do what was right.

That was the decision as delivered by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

This bill provides that these stained claims shall be investigated by a court, and if the stain is found to have been, as the gentleman from New York says, unjustly put upon them, it will all be cleared away, for the truth will be brought out, and these claimants will get their money; but if it be found true, as alleged by the Mexican Government, as shown by the testimony taken by the Senate committee, and as appears by the tell-tale press-book which came to light in such a strange, dramatic manner, disclosing all this fraud, and all this invention supplementing it—if it be found that these claims are baseless, then the claimants can not get any more of this money, and the gentlemen who invested $152,000 in the worthless La Abra mine will have to be content with the pitiful $240,000 that they have already "got away with." [Laughter.]

Mr. BOATNER. Is the gentleman able to account for the fact that the Mexican Government permitted a claim of six hundred and odd thousand dollars to be adjudged against them without discovering or putting in any of the evidence which is said to exist and upon which it is now asked that this claim be reopened?

Mr. HITT. That Government did not know of the evidence then. Anyone who is familiar with that Commission knows that it sat when the Mexican Government was in a state of embarrassment and poverty, and that its defenses were prepared with difficulty. On the other hand, the machinery by which these cases were put together was most ingenious. The Weil case was one of the most perfectly artistic structures ever invented by man, and the La Abra case was not negligently put together.

The representatives of the Mexican Government had to go far for testimony. They had to hunt here and there. They had but few counsel. They could not resist the powerful body of concerted and prepared "evidence" that was placed before the Commission. They had to get their counter evidence within a limited time. In the Weil case the clew came from statements made by the conspirators about each other after one died. In the La Abra case the letter book that exposed everything was not found till after the hearing. With reference to this case it was very imperfect, but they took it as soon as possible, on appeal, to Sir Edward Thornton, and he, convinced apparently but unwilling to state broadly that the claim was fraudulent (for he was the umpire), said that the new testimony was excluded by the rule that he could not consider anything that had not been before the Commission.

Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa. Allow me to ask a single question in order to reach an understanding of this matter. As I understand it, those who are in doubt as to the validity of these claims and who would like to have them analyzed and sifted will vote for this bill.

Mr. HITT. Yes, that was the intention of the committee—that there should be a fair and judicial examination of claims which the world believes, which all those who have examined the matter, including committees of both Houses, believe to be thoroughly suspicious, and most of us believe to be thoroughly wicked.

Mr. BLOUNT. Mr. Speaker, I propose in two or three minutes to ask the previous question.

Mr. COVERT. Will the gentleman yield in order to allow me to submit and have pending an amendment by way of a substitute? I do not propose to occupy further time.

Mr. BLOUNT. I can not yield now.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from New York [Mr. COVERT] in his closing speech appealed to this House to stand by the award of this Commission because, as he urged, it is of the very highest importance to establish the principle that awards in such cases are to be regarded as fixed and final. Why, sir, the gentleman would ask us to reverse the whole history of the action of the Government in matters of this kind.

Cases after cases, awards after awards, where the language of the convention was just as strong as that in this case, and almost identical with it, have been attended with fraudulent incidents calculated to make this Republic blush and which induced Congress and the Executive and the courts to make haste to review the decision and correct the error. I trust the time will never come when there will obtain in the American Congress or among the American people a sentiment which will permit the Government of this country to be used by perjurers and robbers for the purpose of enforcing unfair claims against a sister republic.

Why, sir, this letter book which was discovered years after this award had been made and of which the Mexican minister has declared to the Secretary of State that the Mexican Government had no knowledge at the time of the hearing—this letter book, containing the correspondence between the superintendent of the mine and the treasurer and other officers of the company in New York, gives the lie to almost every statement upon which this award was claimed.

I have not time, the House has not time, to go into this question further. A committee of the United States Senate, which was authorized to examine and sift this whole question, brought out a record reeking with the shame of these claimants. It is in the light of this action, and with such testimony as we have before us, that I appeal in behalf of Mexico, in behalf of our own Government, in behalf of common decency and honor, that we shall let this matter go before our own court that the evidence may be examined, and that it may be determined whether this award ought to stand.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the previous question.

Mr. COVERT. I again ask my friend from Georgia to allow the introduction of the substitute which I hold in my hand. It is very brief; and there will be no discussion upon it.

Mr. BLOUNT. Mr. Speaker, desiring to treat my friend with perfect fairness, I consent to his proposition that the amendment be received.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DOCKERY). The gentleman from Georgia, as the Chair understands, withdraws the demand for the previous question, and yields to the gentleman from New York [Mr. COVERT] for the offering of an amendment.

Mr. COVERT. I offer as a substitute for the pending bill the proposition which I send to the Clerk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"That the question whether the Mexican Government in its representations to the Government of the United States has made such a case as, upon established principles of public law or equity, jurisprudence and practice, applicable to bills of review or suits to set aside decrees for fraud, requires that the award rendered in favor of La Abra Mining Company by the United States and Mexican Commission under the convention of July 4, 1868, between the United States and Mexico, should be reopened and the original claim reëxamined and decided anew, shall be referred to the Court of Claims of the United States; and all the so-called 'new evidence' submitted by the Mexican Government to the Department of State, together with the record of the claim under the said convention and the testimony taken in the years 1888-1889 by a subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, as contained in Report No. 2705, parts 1 and 2, Senate, Fiftieth Congress, second session, shall be examined and considered by the said Court in deciding the said question.

"That, in case the said question shall be decided by the said Court in the affirmative, the President of the United States shall then take such proceedings in the matter as may seem to him proper for reopening the said award and reëxamining the original claim; and, in case the said question shall be decided by the said Court in the negative, the funds remaining undistributed to the credit of the said award shall be distributed among the persons entitled thereto."

Mr. BLOUNT. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say that the bill before the House, and for which this substitute is offered, has been most carefully prepared, has been passed by the Senate, and approved by the House Committee; it is almost identical in form with measures heretofore passed in similar cases, and if it be passed it will be a conclusion of this whole matter. I trust the substitute will not be adopted. I renew the demand for the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

The question being taken on agreeing to the substitute submitted by Mr. COVERT, it was rejected.

The bill was then ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. BLOUNT, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

CLAIM OF BENJAMIN WEIL.

Mr. BLOUNT. I now call up the other bill included in the special order, Senate bill No. 606.

The bill was read as follows:

A bill (S. 606) to amend and enlarge the act approved June 18, 1878, entitled "An act to provide for the distribution of the awards made under the convention between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico, concluded on the 4th day of July, 1868."

Whereas the Secretary of State, after investigating the charge of fraud presented by the Mexican Government as to the case of Benjamin Weil, has heretofore reported that the "honor of the United States requires" that said case "should be further investigated by the United States, to ascertain whether this Government has been made the means of enforcing upon a friendly power claims of our citizens based upon or exaggerated by fraud," but that "the executive government is not furnished with the means of instituting and pursuing methods of investigation which can coerce the production of evidence or compel the investigation of parties and witnesses," and that "the authority for such an examination must proceed from Congress:" Therefore,

Be it enacted, etc., That in further execution of the purpose of said act of June 18, 1878, the Attorney-General of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to bring a suit or suits, in the name of the United States, in the Court of Claims, against Benjamin Weil, or his legal representatives or assigns, to determine whether the award made by the United States and Mexican Mixed Commission in respect to the claim of the said Benjamin Weil was obtained, as to the whole sum included therein or as to any part thereof, by fraud effectuated by means of false swearing, or other false and fraudulent practices on the part of said Benjamin Weil, or his agents, attorneys, or assigns; and, in case it be so determined, to bar and foreclose all claim in law or equity on the part of said Weil, his legal representatives or assigns, to the money, or any such part thereof, received from the Republic of Mexico for or on account of such award; and any defendant to such suit not served with process and who can not be found in the District of Columbia shall be notified and required to appear in such suit by such publication as the court may direct, in accordance with law, as applicable to cases in equity.

SEC. 2. That full jurisdiction is hereby conferred on the Court of Claims to hear and determine such suit, and to make all interlocutory and final decrees therein as the evidence may warrant, according to the principles of equity and justice, and to enforce the same by injunction or any proper final process, and in all respects to proceed in said cause according to law and the rules of said court, so far as the same are applicable. And the Secretary of State shall certify to the said court copies of all proofs admitted by the said Mixed Commission on the original trial of said claim, and the said court shall receive and consider the same in connection with such competent evidence as may be offered by either party to said suit.

SEC. 3. That an appeal from any final decision in such cause to the Supreme Court of the United States may be taken by either party, within ninety days from the rendition of such final decree, under the rules of practice which govern appeals from said court; and the Supreme Court of the United States is hereby authorized to take jurisdiction thereof and decide the same.

SEC. 4. That in case it shall be finally adjudged in said cause, either in the Court of Claims or in the Supreme Court of the United States, that the award made by said Mixed Commission, so far as it relates to the claim of Benjamin Weil, was effectuated by means of fraud, false swearing, or other false and fraudulent practices of said Benjamin Weil, or his assigns, or by their procurement, and that the said Weil, his legal representatives or assigns, be barred and foreclosed of all claim to the money or any part thereof so paid by the Republic of Mexico for or on account of such award, the President of the United States is hereby authorized to return to said Government any money paid by the Government of Mexico on account of said award remaining in the custody of the United States that has not been heretofore distributed to said Benjamin Weil, his legal representatives or assigns, which such court shall decide that such persons are not entitled, in justice and equity, to receive out of said fund.

SEC. 5. That during the pendency of said suit and until the same is decided it shall not be lawful for the Secretary of State to make any further payments out of said fund, on account of said award, to Benjamin Weil, or his legal representatives, attorneys, or assigns; and in case it shall be finally adjudged in said cause, either in the Court of Claims or in the Supreme Court of the United States, that the award made by said Mixed Commission, so far as it relates to the claim of Benjamin Weil, or any definable and severable part thereof, was not obtained through fraud as aforesaid, then the Secretary of State shall proceed to distribute so much of the said award as shall be found not so obtained through fraud, or the proceeds thereof remaining for distribution, if any, to the persons entitled thereto.

Mr. BLOUNT. I yield to the gentleman from California [Mr. GEARY] who reported this bill.

Mr. GEARY. Mr. Speaker, I do not think any argument is needed in support of this bill. This claim is worse than the other, because the testimony taken in the case shows that, while the claim was for a large quantity of cotton, the claimant never had any cotton at the time referred to; in other words, that the whole case was a fabrication. I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered; and under the operation thereof the bill was ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. GEARY a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE HUDSON RIVER.

Mr. COVERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to introduce at this time memorials from bankers, railroad presidents, and business men of New York, in relation to the construction of a bridge across the Hudson River, and also ask that the memorial be printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DOCKERY). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Are the petitions long enough to reach across the river?

Mr. COVERT. No, sir; they are quite brief.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from New York desire to have the names printed with the petitions?

Mr. COVERT. Yes, sir.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the absence of objection the request of the gentleman from New York will be considered as granted.

There was no objection.

The petitions are as follows:

Memorial of bankers and presidents of railroads.

To the honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States:

GENTLEMEN: The undersigned, bankers and business men residing or doing business in the city of New York, respectfully represent that we are informed that there is pending before Congress a bill introduced in the Senate of the United States by the Hon. JOSEPH C. S. BLACKBURN, Senator from Kentucky, entitled "A bill to authorize the New York and New Jersey Bridge Companies to construct and maintain a bridge across the Hudson River between New York City and the State of New Jersey," being Senate bill No. 2626, and a bill introduced in the House of Representatives of the United States by the Hon. JAMES W. COVERT, of New York, entitled in the same manner, being House of Representatives bill No. 7585,

We are informed that the subject of these bills is to give the consent of Congress to the bridging of the Hudson River at New York City by the New York and New Jersey Bridge Companies of New York and New Jersey, corporations given full power to do so under the legislation of the States of New York and New Jersey.

The Legislatures of the two States having determined the propriety and necessity of such bridge over the waters separating them, all that is asked for is the exercise by Congress, as a matter of comity, of a power given under the Constitution, and which has been granted in over two hundred instances during the course of the Forty-ninth, Fiftieth, and Fifty-first Congresses.

To add a route or a railroad is to increase commerce.

The Brooklyn Bridge has been of incalculable benefit.

Millions of people annually cross the Hudson River, suffering and complaining under the annoyances and delays of ferry travel.

Freight to the amount of millions of tons annually moving from the North, West, and South to New York and New England is compelled to be towed on flatboats across the river or aroun i the island at a great disadvantage. This bridge will give unbroken wheel communication for this enormous volume of traffic to and from all parts of the country.

As business men of said city we consider the building of this bridge of the greatest importance and benefit not only to this section but to the whole country, and respectfully petition that said bill receive the approval of your honorable bodies. And your petitioners will ever pray.

George S. Coe, 128 Broadway; Arthur Leary, 90 Fifty avenue; Ebenezer W. Wright, 172 West Fifty-eighth street; George S. Hickock, 214 Broadway; Wm. Dowd, 25 Nassau street; Warner Van Norden, 25 Nassau street; Jas. T. Woodard, 11 Nassau street; James Stillman, 52 Wall street; Andrew Mills, 50 Wall street; Joseph F. Blout, 202 Fifth avenue; Eugene Dutilh, 49 Wall street; R. Bayles, 81 Fulton street; G. Montague, 190 Fifth avenue; F. M. Breese, Fourtenth street and Eighth avenue; A. E. Colson, 1232 Broadway; Jno. B. Woodard, 26 Nassau street; Jas. E. Granniss, 291 Broadway; C. G. Williams, 270 Broadway; Thos. C. Acton, Thirty-ninth street and Broadway; J. Edward Simmons, 14 Nassau street; F. D. Tappen, 36 Wall street; D. C. Hays, 40 Wall street; C. V. Banta, 42 Wall street; R. M. Galloway, 42 Wall street; E. W. Pullen, 2 Wall street; John McAnerney, 184 Broadway; Edmund D. Randolph, 7 Nassau street; Wm. H. Carter, 15 Nassau street; Geo. M. Hall, 192 Broadway; H. P. Doremus, 192 Broadway; John M. Fry, 48 Wall street; H. P. De Graff, 62 Bowery; C. W. Starkey, 122 Bowery; E. C. Shaefer, 115 Bowery; Robert Schell, 29 Union Square; Frederick Wagner, 8 Union Square; Francis L. Wine, 23 Astor Place; M. J. Adrian; G. G. Brinckerhoff, 124 Bowery; F. A. Palmer; A. S. Apgar, 257 Broadway; W. S. Strong, 320 Broadway; W. H. Oakley, 401 Broadway; Charles B. Fosdick, 88 Gold street; D. B. Halstead, 136 Chambers street; J. K. Cilley, 407 Broadway; Antonio Rasines, 206 Canal street; Charles Jenkins, 682 Broadway; William A. Darling, 760 Third avenue; E. C. Hinckley, 2007 Third avenue; Charles W. Bogart, 2771 Third avenue; Isaac Anderson, 153 East One hundred and twenty-fifth street; Jos. M. De Veau, 85 East One hundred and twenty-fifth street; David F. Porter, 143 West One hundred and twenty-first street; H. C. Copeland, 962 Eighth avenue; Walter Westervelt, 481 Eighth avenue; E. Stephenson, 303 West Forty-second street; John Loughran; Richard Kelley, 300 Third avenue; Samuel H. Rathbonne, 953 Third avenue; T. R. Manners, 489 Grand street; J. H. Rosenbaum, 296 Grand street; F. E. Pitkin, 87 Hudson street; Charles H. Paul, 356 West Fourteenth street; Jos. Fox, 501 Fifth avenue; A. S. Frissell, 530 Fifth avenue; Thomas P. Fowler, president New York, Ohio and Western Railroad Company, 56 Beaver street; John King, president New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad Company; Samuel Sloan, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company; R. S. Hayes, president New York and Northern Railroad; F. K. Hain, 71 Broadway; Charles M. Vail, 168 Chambers street; Evan Thomas, president Produce Exchange, 426 Produce Exchange; A. E. Orr, Produce Exchange Building.

Memorial of merchants, bankers, and members of the Produce and Cotton Exchange.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States:

GENTLEMEN: The undersigned, bankers and business men residing or doing business in the city of New York, respectfully represent that we are informed that there is pending before Congress a bill, introduced in the Senate of the United States by Hon. JOSEPH C. S. BLACKBURN, Senator from Kentucky, entitled "A bill to authorize the New York and New Jersey Bridge Companies to construct and maintain a bridge across the Hudson River between New York City and the State of New Jersey," being Senate bill No. 2626, and a bill introduced in the House of Representatives of the United States by the Hon. JAMES W. COVERT of New York, entitled in the same manner, being House of Representatives bill No. 7585.

We are informed that the object of these bills is to give the consent of Congress to the bridging of the Hudson River at New York City by the New York and New Jersey Bridge Companies, of New York and New Jersey, corporations given full power so to do under the legislation of the States of New York and New Jersey.

The Legislatures of the two States having determined the propriety and necessity of such bridge over the waters separating them, all that is asked for is the exercise by Congress, as a matter of comity, of a power given under the Constitution, and which has been granted in over two hundred instances during the course of the Forty-ninth, Fiftieth, and Fifty-first Congresses.

To add a route or railroad is to increase commerce.

The Brooklyn bridge has been of incalculable benefit.

Millions of people annually cross the Hudson River, suffering and complaining under the annoyances and delays of ferry travel.

Freight to the amount of millions of tons annually moving from the North, West, and South to New York and to New England is compelled to be towed on flatboats across the river or around the island at a great disadvantage. This bridge will give unbroken wheel communication for this enormous volume of traffic to and from all parts of the country.

As business men of said city we consider the building of this bridge of the greatest importance and benefit, not only to this section, but to the whole country, and respectfully petition that said bill receive the approval of your honorable bodies. And your petitioners will ever pray.

Evan Thomas, Produce Exchange; A. H. Kepper, 426 Produce Exchange; Jas. H. Gibney, New York Produce Exchange; Wetthire B. Thomas, New York Produce Exchange; A. J. Ahern, 20 South street; Jas. W. Raynor, 419 Produce Exchange; Ernest M. Munn, 412–414 Produce Exchange; Wm. L. Watson, 410 Produce Exchange; Fredk. F. Lockwood, 460 Produce Exchange; Francis E. Pinto, 459 Produce Exchange; Louis Strauss, Produce Exchange; E. L. Gridley, 454 Produce Exchange; Wells Finch, 505 Produce Exchange; Grenville Perrin, 457 Produce Exchange; E. S. Whitman, 202 Produce Exchange; J. B. Carberry, 220 Produce Exchange; J. H. Pratty, attorney, 322 Produce Exchange; P. R. Robinson, 322 Produce Exchange; S. A. Wadiet, 323 Produce Exchange; G. M. Popham, 323 Produce Exchange; Geo. L. Lyon, 323 Produce Exchange; Chas. F. Buxton, 329 Produce Exchange; Chas. C. Fuller, 337 Produce Exchange; S. B. Low, 342 Produce Exchange; Wm. Jarot, 342 Produce Exchange; Wm. S. Hallett, 342 Produce Exchange; Valentine Bros., 345 Produce Exchange; Paul Worth, 350 Produce Exchange; W. W. Mott, 350 Produce Exchange; Edwd. W. Hickcox, 350 Produce Exchange; Janvier Le Due, 351 Produce Exchange; Jas. S. Wood, 351 Produce Exchange; Walter Brad, 351 Produce Exchange; Henry Fisher, 359 Produce Exchange; J. L. Roe, 360 Produce Exchange; Otto Newstadt, 358 Produce Exchange; G. T. Van Duzen, 356 Produce Exchange; Jno. M. McIntyre, 216 Produce Exchange; Consider Parrish, Produce Exchange; James H. Welch & Co., Produce Exchange; C. E. Bennett, Produce Exchange; J. O. Wade, Produce Exchange; George W. Smith, Produce Exchange; Geo. W. Collord, Produce Exchange; F. Woodruff, 218 Produce Exchange; W. P. Callaghan, 219 Produce Exchange; Wm. Knight, 219 Produce Exchange; Dan'l T. Wade, 220 Produce Exchange; C. S. Hallett, 220 Produce Exchange; H. T. Finch, 221 Produce Exchange; James R. Turner, 222 Produce Exchange; James M. Martin, 223 Produce Exchange; John B. Nayton, 223 Produce Exchange; Edwin L. Adams, 212 Produce Exchange; S. Taylor, jr., 212 Produce Exchange; McIntyre Wardwell, 212 Produce Exchange; John Duryea, 225 Produce Exchange; F. K. Fox, 225 Produce Exchange; S. K. Lauer, 225 Produce Exchange; T. M. Hyatt, 225 Produce Exchange; Jno. F. Shaw, 225 Produce Exchange; R. L. Dicks, 225 Produce Exchange; Wm. P. Cook, 226 Produce Exchange; L. W. Forbell, 227 Produce Exchange; Perkins & Co., 228 Produce Exchange.

Franklin Edson, 433 Produce Exchange; John T. Truesnet, 427 Produce Exchange; F. Alcott, 430 Produce Exchange; David S. White, 428 Produce Exchange; Benjamin Logan, 124 Produce Exchange; W. T Irwin, 124 Produce Exchange; Wm. E. Fergueson, 127 Produce Exchange; Edw. M. Timmins, 127 Produce Exchange; Wm. W. Avery, 127 Produce Exchange; Robert Bantry, 127 Produce Exchange; Fred L. Herbert, 117 Produce Exchange; F. M. Carney, 116 Produce Exchange; I. W. Nightengale, 110 Produce Exchange; I. H. Emanuel, 111 Produce Exchange; J. J. Gantzer, 111 Produce Exchange; R. L. Scoles, 111 Produce Exchange; F. E. Knuland, 104 Produce Exchange; W. J. Finn, 103 Produce Exchange; Geo. D. Puffer, 101 Produce Exchange; Wm. Underwood, 101 Produce Exchange; E. G. Burgess, 101 Produce Exchange; F. T. Eldridge, 101 Produce Exchange; Jas. E. Hayneb, 127 Produce Exchange; Franklin Quinby, 114 Produce Exchange; Edwd. C. Rice, 114 Produce Exchange; Edwd. Bailey, 114 Produce Exchange; Reuben Anderson, jr., 115 Produce Exchange; Edwd. Broughan, 120 Produce Exchange; J. F. Fenby, 120 Produce Exchange; Geo. L. Stebbins, 150 Produce Exchange; R. T. Murray, 349 Produce Exchange; C. G. Schofield, 354 Produce Exchange; W. Hamilton, 357 Produce Exchange; E. Meyers, 436 Produce Exchange; R. H. Parks, 435 Produce Exchange; Pistehard M. Zouskey, 435 Produce Exchange; A. D. Fisse, 502 Produce Exchange; N. H. Wolfe, 1 State street; Wm. H. Freeman, 501 Produce Exchange; Jas. M. Benham, 445 Produce Exchange; Joseph C. Willetts, 69 Cotton Exchange; Edward Hincken, 3 William street; J. W. Ahles, 284 Stone street; Louis I. Van Alstyne, 52 Produce Exchange; Samuel Goodhue, 2-4 Stone street; L. B. Howe, Produce Exchange; R. O. Sherwood, 333 Produce Exchange; W. C. Hawk, Jas. B. Mount, 126 Franklin street; J. H. Moore, Produce Exchange; H. H. Moore, Produce Exchange; D. S. Jones, 15 Whitehall street; Geo. W. Copeland, 44 Water street; L. E. Roberts, 416 Produce Exchange; A. L. Holmes, 90 Broad street; Wm. Cochran, 45 Front street; W. H. Jones, 95 Broad street; D. A. Eldredge, 95 Broad street; S. B. Joseph, 434 Produce Exchange; John C. Klatzi, 11 Moore street; Milton B. Phillips, 15 Whitehall street; Warren H. Houghton, 29 Moore street; A. R. Bradley, 71 Murray street; John Magor, sr., 408 Produce Exchange; M. R. Halladay, 337 Produce Exchange; F. J. Conorer, 48 Pearl street; W. R. Clarkson, 5 South street; T. E. Stanley, 19 Whitehall street; E. R. Freeman, 24 State street; Jas. L. James, 511 West Twentieth street; Chas. A. Barner, 2-4 Stone street; E. B. Freman, jr., 46 Front street; J. E. Davidson, 46 Front street; Wilbur Baker, Produce Exchange; A. F. Roberts, 21 State street; Chas. Muns, 55 North Moore street; Charles L. Weeks, 4 State street; W. H. Fleeman, Brooklyn and New York; E. B. Houghton, 95 Broad street; Chas. A. Morse, Produce Exchange; Chas. F. Berg, 118 Kemble Building.

Wm. H. Donaldson, 104 Kemble Building; J. M. Hawkins, Produce Exchange; Isaac T. Frost, 305 Madison avenue, New York; Jacob C. Ott, 229 East Fourteenth street, New York; C. C. Sweet, Produce Exchange; John R. Doscher, 163 West street, New York; J. Lathrop, jr., 15 Whitehall street; F. L. Youmans, 67 Broad street; A. G. Foomly, 95 Broad street; Samuel Bauer, 55 Front street; W. O. Meyer, 65 Dey street; W. Wallace, jr., 48 Pearl street; G. P. Moller, 95 Broad street; W. M. Ellsworth, 20 South street; W. B. Shotwell, 29 Whitehall street; G. B.

Morrison, Mount Clair, N. J.; G. C. Halstead, 75 Pearl street; W. H. Bromley, 224 Produce Exchange; A. P. Donovan, 25 Whitehall street; Sweeting Miles, 54 West street; A. H. Cropsey, 88 Kent avenue, Brooklyn; Daniel B. Smith, 74 Warren street; W. H. Smith, 110 Pavonia avenue; W. M. Manwaring, 248-250 Front street; P. Leneret & Bro., 306 West street; J. L. Crams, 78-80 Beech street; E. B. Robinson, 38 Water street; W. Straus, 4 South street; Horace Ingersoll, 640 West Thirty-fourth street; Henry Dusenbery, 90 West street; Jesse B. Young, Thirty-fourth street and Eleventh avenue; John Ferguson, New York Produce Exchange; C. E. McLauren, New York Produce Exchange; D. B. Mangam & Co., 93 Broad street; A. P. Rutay, 108 West One hundred and third street; P. C. Bloom, 74 Cortland street; W. C. Meyer, 91 West street; F. A. McKoom, 4 South street; David W. Manwaring, 248-250 Front street; Andrew Spence, jr., 137 Reade street; W. Will Merrill, 419 Produce Exchange; J. S. Brewster, 74 Beaver street; John Goggin, 437 Produce Exchange; Bernard Cockee, 411 Produce Exchange; Wm. Bell, commission merchant, Produce Exchange; H. R. Tifft, commission merchant, Produce Exchange; A. H. Tifft, commission merchant, Produce Exchange; I. F. Whipple, New York; M. R. Couley, New York; W. A. Stagg, New York; Richard Sim, New York; Chas. H. Clayton, New York; Geo. F. Nesbitt & Co., New York; Charles W. Beebee, New York; Schroeder H. Bunn, New York; William G. Moffett, New York; S. Berendwher, New York; N. A. Boynton, New York; Barclay & Co., New York; Abm. Allard, jr., Brooklyn; J. A. Boylan, Orange; Thomas A. Perkins, Brooklyn; B. Mumm, Brooklyn; James F. Wenman, New York; Edward R. Powers, New York; Phd. Liedenburg, New York; Otto Magner, New York; James O. Bloss, New York; J. S. Gwathnay, New York; R. P. McDougal, New York; George W. Bailey, New York; Henry Hunter & Co., New York; A. Norden & Co., New York; C. Mayhoff; Frank I. Speck, New York; A. H. Papa, New York; S. F. Russell, jr., New York; John F. Black, New York; William W. Wendler, New York.

Peter Hodge, New York; D. Lehman, New York; William E. Smith, New York; R. H. Rountree & Co., Cotton Exchange; Frederick H. Wills, Cotton Exchange; Thos. Halbert, Cotton Exchange; K. Mcissuce, Cotton Exchange; J. M. Kimbland, Cotton Exchange; Fred. J. Stokes, Cotton Exchange; Ambrose F. McCabe, Cotton Exchange; Oscar F. Heath, 97-99 Water street; Oscar F. Morton, Cotton Exchange; Alfred B. Shepperson, Cotton Exchange; Lorenzo & Cello, Cotton Exchange; Herman E. Ruebsame, Cotton Exchange; Kenneth Hugh Ferguson, Cotton Exchange; J. Campbell Thompson, Cotton Exchange; A. P. Ketchum, Cotton Exchange; Mumfehy & McCormack, Cotton Exchange; P. Catchin & Co., Delmonico Building; E. O. Gavette, 61 Broadway, New York; E. H. Ebbets, 61 Broadway, New York; Leggatt Bros., 81 Chambers street; John Gulitte & Bro., 75 Chambers street; H. S. Dewey & Askew, 98 Reade street; Kearney, Foot & Co, 100-102 Reade street; A. D. Rohrer, 106-108 Reade street.

E. H. Kidder, 10 Warren street; O. H. Wilmarth, 40 Nassau street; C. A. Sturia, 81 New street; Geo. Farquhar & Sons, 31 New street; Geo. K. Heyl, 26 Broadway; John F. Gibbons, 26 Broadway; Wm. E. Fisk, 26 Broadway; Anderson E. Barr, 439 Produce Exchange; Isaac B. Mills, 19 Whitehall street; Charles H. Gastle, 48 Broad street; Wm. Capleas, 15 Whitehall street; John G. Robbins, 15 Whitehall street; S. F. Jenkins, 74 Wall street; W. S. Benson, 12 Broadway; A. D. Burton, 12 Broadway; Sam. F. Brown, 12 Broadway; J. Tenkuile, 33 Broadway; Hugo C. Menzel, jr., 54 Beaver street; Saml. St. Dollard, Exchange Place, Post B; G. E. Sathelo, 195 Broadway; Wm. M. Washington, 145 Broadway; Chas. E. Clarke, 145 Broadway; J. J. Maguire, 145 Broadway; Wm. H. Mallon, 145 Broadway; Albert Cromwell, 52 Broadway; J. C. Saxton, 52 Broadway; L. L. Ellsworth, 52 Broadway.

P. S. Swain, 52 Broadway; Michl. Egolf, 61 Broadway; N. L. Newcomb, 61 Broadway; Geo. F. Holton, 61 Broadway; John W. Russell, 200 Broadway; Dennison Manufacturing Company, 198 Broadway; H. Cotter, 198 Broadway; H. H. Todd, 198 Broadway; D. Tomkins, 198 Broadway; E. H. Bouton, 198 Broadway; W. B. Woberemachn, 198 Broadway; D. W. Sayre, 198 Broadway; E. W. Ketcham, 198 Broadway; J. W. Ackerman, 198 Broadway; Thos. Greason, 198 Broadway; Jas. J. Davis, 198 Broadway; H. J. Hildebrand, 198 Broadway; Frank O. Benerman, 198 Broadway; Geo. A. Schaeffer, 198 Broadway; B. F. Snow, 198 Broadway; E. L. Hayes, 198 Broadway; Hegeman & Co., 198 Broadway; Humphrey Medical Company, 111-113 William street; John W. Carter, New York; George Mellett, 81 New street, New York; Henry Dawson, 54 New street, New York; William T. Meredith, Dowd Building.

Hatch & Foot, 7 Pine street; Sidney Gale, 11 Pine street; Cammams & Co., 11 Pine street; Donald Mackay, 16-18 Nassau street; L. A. Fish, 16 Nassau street; H. Amyer, 31 Nassau street; Henry Clews & Co., 15 Broad street; Boody, McLellan & Co., 57 Broadway; A. S. Hatch, 15 Cortland street; Henry Plugger, 15 Whitehall street; C. C. Abel, 15 Whitehall street; Louis Monjo, 15 Whitehall street; W. H. Wand, 15 Whitehall street; S. W. Shone, 15 Whitehall street; C. J. Bradist, 15 Whitehall street.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. McCOOK, its Secretary, announced that the Senate had disagreed to the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 1549) providing for the public printing and binding and the distribution of public documents, had asked a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and had appointed Mr. MANDERSON, Mr. HAWLEY, and Mr. GORMAN as the conferees on the part of the Senate.

It also announced that the Senate had passed bills of the following titles; in which the concurrence of the House was requested:

A bill (S. 2625) to provide for the punishment of offenses on the high seas; and

A bill (S. 3184) to provide for allotments to Indians on White Earth Reservation, in Minnesota.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

Mr. SCOTT, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that they had examined and found truly enrolled bills of the following titles; when the Speaker signed the same:

A bill (S. 139) terminating the reduction in the numbers of the Engineer Corps of the Navy;

A bill (S. 1940) for the relief of R. B. Woodson; and

A bill (S. 2612) granting a pension to Tendoy, chief of the Bannocks, Shoshones, and Sheepeaters tribe of Indians.

SUPPLEMENTAL REPORT, TIMBER-CULTURE ACT.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. PICKLER] asks unanimous consent that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union be discharged from the further consideration of the supplemental report on the bill (H. R. 7691) to amend an act entitled "An act to repeal the timber-culture laws," and that the same be referred to the House Calendar. If there be no objection, the order will be made.

There was no objection.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to Mr. COWLES, indefinitely, on account of important business.

And then, on motion of Mr. KILGORE (at 3 o'clock and 46 minutes p. m.), the House adjourned.

BILLS, MEMORIALS, AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. CAMPBELL: A bill (H. R. 9850) regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. PEEL: A bill (H. R. 9851) to exempt the counties of Benton, Boone, Carroll, Newton, Washington, Marion, Baxter, Izard, and Fulton, in the State of Arkansas, from quarantine regulations—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. HERMANN (by request): A bill (H. R. 9852) to provide for a final settlement with the Nehalem band of the Tillamook tribe of Indians of Oregon, in accordance with a certain agreement between the United States and the said Indians, dated the 6th day of August, 1851—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. HARTER: A joint resolution (H. Res. 169) extending the powers of the United States Government Exhibit Board—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. BULLOCK: A concurrent resolution calling on the Secretary of War to ascertain and report the present condition of Fernandina Harbor, Florida—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. CULBERSON: A resolution to fix a day for the consideration of bills reported from the Committee on the Judiciary—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas: A resolution directing the Committee on Ways and Means and the Committee on Appropriations to inquire into the condition of the Treasury and the form of debt statement—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. ENLOE: A resolution setting apart Tuesday, December 20, 1892, for the consideration of the report from the Special Committee on Management of the Pension Bureau—to the Committee on Rules.

PRIVATE BILLS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XII, private bills of the following titles were presented and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. BARWIG: A bill (H. R. 9853) for the relief of Elmina A. Dewry, widow of Warren H. Dewry, formerly private in Company B, First Regiment Mounted Riflemen, United States Army—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BELTZHOOVER: A bill (H. R. 9854) granting a pension to William O. Lyman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CARUTH: A bill (H. R. 9855) for the allowance of certain claims for stores and supplies, etc.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. COX of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 9856) for the relief of William M. Anderson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. CROSBY: A bill (H. R. 9857) for the relief of Josiah Pickett—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. ENOCHS: A bill (H. R. 9858) for the relief of John McMahan for services in the Mexican war as a volunteer from Ohio in that war—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. GEARY: A bill (H. R. 9859) granting a pension to John York, of the California Volunteers, in the war with Mexico—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9860) for the relief of James Joyes, late lieutenant, United States Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. GROUT: A bill (H. R. 9861) granting a pension to Pasiphae J. Howe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 9862) for the relief of George W. Jones—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 9863) for the relief of Merrick & Son—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. PAGE: A bill (H. R. 9864) granting a pension to Margaret McTighe, mother of Michael McTighe, alias John Smith, late boatswain's mate on the United States ship C. P. Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9865) granting a pension to Isabella Powers, widow of William Powers, late of Company C, Seventh Regiment Massachusetts Infantry Volunteers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9866) to correct the military record of John M. Knowles, Company D, First Rhode Island Cavalry—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SCOTT: A bill (H. R. 9867) for the relief of Moses M. Longley—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. STUMP: A bill (H. R. 9868) for the relief of Thomas Buckingham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STORER: A bill (H. R. 9869) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Nelson Barrett—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. STONE of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 9870) for the relief of Mrs. Artilla Hoppers—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. TERRY: A bill (H. R. 9871) to grant a pension to Ira Tritt, teamster, Quartermaster's Department, United States Army, 1846—to the Committee on Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk, and referred as follows:

By Mr. BURROWS: Petition of William Trumble, for honorable discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey: Resolution of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union, in favor of closing the World's Fair on the Sabbath—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, petition of the Synod of New Jersey Presbyterian Church, in favor of Sunday closing of the World's Exposition—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, petition of Democratic voters of Summit, N. J., against free silver—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

By Mr. CLARK of Wyoming: Protest of A. A. McGuire, Mrs. H. Rogers, and 7 others, protesting against Sunday legislation in connection with the World's Columbian Exposition—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. DALZELL: Protest of the Referee Bureau and of the American Sabbath Union of Pittsburg, Pa., against opening the World's Fair on the Sabbath—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, protest of the Sunday school class of Eighth Street Reformed Presbyterian Church of Pittsburg, Pa., against opening the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. ENOCHS: Petition of Charles B. Taylor and others, against the repeal of the law closing the World's Fair on Sundays—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. FELLOWS: Petition of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, to continue in force the law to close the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. GEARY: Petition of James Joyes, asking to be placed on the retired list as first lieutenant—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HARTER: Petition of Dr. Theodore Sterling and others, for the adoption of the metric system—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

By Mr. JOHNSON of Indiana: Petition of W. E. Driscott and other physicians of Muncie, Delaware County, Ind., asking Congress to make appropriations for the Pan-American Medical Congress—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. KEM: Papers to accompany bill granting a pension to I. D. Gregg, of St. Paul, Nebr.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MORSE: Memorial of the Boston Chamber of Commerce against the passage of the Hatch antioption bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. O'FERRALL: Petition of Norfolk and Portsmouth Cotton Exchange, against the passage of the Hatch antioption bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. PEEL: Memorial of the Choctaw Nation through the delegate for an appropriation of arrears of interest on Choctaw orphan reservation fund—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. SIPE: Resolutions of the Young People's Christian Union of Taylorstown, Pa., commending Congress for closing the Columbian Exposition on Sunday, and for the passage of the anti-lottery law, etc.—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. CHARLES W. STONE: Petition of Waterloo Grange, No. 448, of Pennsylvania, in favor of free-mail delivery in rural districts—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. STORER: Petition of T. K. Galloway and sundry citizens of Montgomery, Ohio, for restriction of immigration, closing the Columbian Exposition on Sunday, and other objects—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. TERRY (by request): Petition of colored citizens of Little Rock, Ark., asking that the Board of Managers of the World's Columbian Exposition collect and compile statistics pertaining to the moral, industrial, and intellectual development of colored people from January, 1863, to January, 1893—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: Evidence and papers in claim of Edward Bell, late Company L, Tenth Regiment Illinois Cavalry Volunteers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WARNER: Petition of certain citizens of New York for repeal of the Geary bill, etc.—to the Select Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. WHEELER of Michigan: Petition of the survivors of the First Regiment of Michigan Sharpshooters, in reference to Confederate flag of Thirty-fifth Regiment of North Carolina Infantry—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of L. W. Willett and others, concerning the pension claim of Franklin Wright and Joseph L. Ashalter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Henry Wittie Post, Grand Army Republic, concerning the pension claim of Franklin Wright and Joseph L. Ashalter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, December 14, 1892.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of State, transmitting, in pursuance of the provisions of the act of Congress approved February 3, 1887, a certified copy of the final ascertainment of the electors for President and Vice-President appointed in the State of Florida at the election held therein on the 8th of November, 1892, as certified to him by the governor of that State; which, with the accompanying papers, was ordered to lie on the table.

SCHOOLS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, in accordance with law, a report of the Commissioner of Education on the schools of the District of Columbia as respects their organization, efficiency, methods, and cost, etc.; which was read.

Mr. COCKRELL. I move that the communication, with the accompanying papers, be printed, and referred to the Committee on Appropriations. I think the provision of law referred to was inserted in an appropriation bill.

The motion was agreed to.

INTRODUCTION OF CHOLERA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting, in response to a resolution of the Senate of the 12th instant, a copy of a communication made to the Philadelphia Board of Health, concerning the suspension of immigration during the existence of cholera in Europe, by the port physician at Philadelphia, Pa., December 5, 1892; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Immigration, and ordered to be printed.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented memorials of the New York Mercantile Exchange and of T. B. Stewart, jr., of Campobello, S. C., remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. HARRIS presented the petition of Napoleon Hill and other cotton factors and merchants of Memphis, Tenn., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. WILSON presented a petition of the Board of Managers of the National Temperance Association, praying that the sale of intoxicating liquors be prohibited on the grounds of the World's Columbian Exposition; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. PADDOCK presented the petition of John J. Mitchell, of New York City, praying for the speedy passage of the bill limiting to $100 the amount of wearing apparel that may be imported free of duty; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of the National Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Washington, D. C., praying for the speedy passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petition of William O. McDowell, of Newark, N. J., praying for the passage of such legislation as will so amend the election laws as to extend the franchise to those 18 years of age and older; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas presented the memorial of R. A. Little and other citizens of Little Rock, Ark., remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. HAWLEY presented petitions of the Journeymen Tailors' Unions of New Haven, Danbury, and Hartford, all in the State of Connecticut, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. VILAS. I am directed by the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 3804) to confer jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims to hear and determine the claim of David Ryan against the United States, to submit an adverse report thereon.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the bill go on the Calendar until we can have an opportunity to look at it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar with the adverse report of the committee.

Mr. DAWES, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 3146) authorizing the removal of the Indians of the Papago or Gila Bend Reservation in Maricopa County, Ariz., to the Papago Reservation in Pima County, or to one of the Pima and Maricopa Reservations known as the Gila River and Salt River Indian Reservations, reported it with amendments.

Mr. McPHERSON, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 8760) to provide for the sale of navy-yard lands in the city of Brooklyn, reported it without amendment.

BILL RECOMMITTED.

Mr. PEFFER. A week ago to-day, by direction of the Committee on Claims, I presented an adverse report on the bill (S. 1447) for the relief of Secor & Co., Perine, Secor & Co., and the executors of Zeno Secor. The bill was placed on the Calendar with the adverse report. Upon further consideration I ask that the report, the bill, and the accompanying papers may be recommitted to the committee for further consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be recommitted if there be no objection. The Chair hears none.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. VEST introduced a bill (S. 3582) for the relief of Robert McGee; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Select Committee on Indian Depredations.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced a bill (S. 3583) to place John F. Adams on the pension roll; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 3584) to prohibit the interment of bodies in Graceland Cemetery, in the District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 3585) to amend and modify section 3480 of the Revised Statutes of the United States; which was read twice by its title.

Mr. PERKINS. I am not quite sure whether the bill should be referred to the Committee on Pensions or the Judiciary Committee. It proposes to amend a section of the statutes which confers certain rights upon the soldiers of the Indian and Mexican wars in regard to bounty-land warrants. I think perhaps it should be referred to the Judiciary Committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. HANSBROUGH introduced a bill (S. 3586) to establish a military post at or near the city of Grand Forks, in Grand Forks County, in the State of North Dakota; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PADDOCK introduced a bill (S. 3587) to amend section 1514 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, in relation to the appointment of cadets at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, in the State of Maryland; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. CHANDLER introduced a bill (S. 3588) to amend an act entitled "An act to perfect the quarantine service of the United States;" which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Epidemic Diseases.

Mr. McMILLAN introduced a bill (S. 3589) to amend an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

MRS. DORA MARSHALL.

Mr. DAWES submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay out of the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the Senate to Mrs. Dora Marshall, widow of James H. Marshall, deceased, late a messenger of the United States Senate, the sum of $720, being an amount equal to six months' salary at the rate per annum allowed by law to the messenger aforesaid, said sum to be considered as including the funeral expenses and all allowances.

SAFETY OF METZEROTT HALL.

Mr. HAWLEY. I submit a resolution which I wish to have adopted now. I think when it is read there will be no objection to it.

The resolution was read, considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to, as follows:

Whereas many complaints have been publicly made concerning the safety of Metzerott Hall:

Resolved, That the Committee on the District of Columbia be, and it hereby is, instructed to report to the Senate whatever information it may have received relating to that subject.

COMMITTEE ON IMMIGRATION.

Mr. CHANDLER submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Committee on Immigration be authorized to continue during the present session the inquiries directed by resolution of the Senate of July 16, 1892, with all the powers conferred by said resolution.

COMMITTEE ON FAILED NATIONAL BANKS.

Mr. CHANDLER submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Committee on Failed National Banks be authorized to continue during the present session the inquiries directed by resolutions of the Senate of June 2, 1892, and July 19, 1892, with all the powers conferred by said resolutions.

CIVIL-SERVICE POSITIONS.

Mr. DANIEL. Yesterday I submitted a resolution calling for information from the Civil Service Commission, and requested that it might lay on the table. I ask now that the resolution be taken up and passed. I will state that I have consulted the chairman of the committee on the subject and he said he does not desire to have the resolution referred, and has no objection to it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The resolution was read, and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Civil Service Commission be, and it is hereby, requested to furnish the Senate with a succinct statement of the positions in the Government service now embraced under civil-service regulations, including their number and kind and of the methods and application and examination; the said statement also to specify the quota of each State, whether filled or vacant, and what positions in number and kind are open to appointment outside of civil-service regulations, with their number and kind, the design of this resolution being to procure in a compact form information for the use of those desiring to enter the service of the Government.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills:

A bill (S. 539) to amend and enlarge the act approved June 18, 1878, entitled "An act to provide for the distribution of the awards made under the convention between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico, concluded on the 4th day of July, 1868;" and

A bill (S. 606) to amend and enlarge the act approved June 18, 1878, entitled "An act to provide for the distribution of the awards made under the convention between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico, concluded on the 4th day of July, 1868."

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

The message also announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills; and they were thereupon signed by the Vice-President:

A bill (S. 139) terminating the reduction in the numbers of the Engineer Corps of the Navy;

A bill (S. 1940) for the relief of R. B. Woodson; and

A bill (S. 2612) granting a pension to Tendoy, chief of the Bannocks, Shoshones, and Sheepeaters tribe of Indians.

WILLIAM M'GARRAHAN—VETO MESSAGE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there further morning business? If not, that order is closed.

Mr. TELLER. I ask that the special order be laid before the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The special order will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (S. 1958) to submit to the Court of Private Land Claims, established by an act of Congress approved March 3, 1891, the title of William McGarrahan to the Rancho Panoche Grande, in the State of California, and for other purposes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is, Shall the bill pass, the objections of the President of the United States to the contrary notwithstanding? Is the Senate ready for the question? [A pause.] The roll will be called by the Secretary.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. McPHERSON. Let the bill be read.

Mr. PASCO. What is the question before the Senate?

Mr. SANDERS. I should like to inquire what bill is being voted upon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The title of the bill will be read.

The title of the bill was again read.

Mr. HOAR. I think the bill on its passage should be read.

Mr. SANDERS. I should like to have the bill explained.

Mr. PLATT. Let the Senator ask unanimous consent. The roll call was commenced, but that may be waived for the present.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. No response had been made. The Senator from Montana is entitled to the floor.

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. President, the bill involves liability for a large sum of money, and I think that before voting upon it, if it is not too late, somebody in charge of it ought to state on what grounds of public justice or liability the bill stands. I do not myself know enough about it to justify me in voting for it, and there are some circumstances connected with it that seem to me to make it improper that a bill which probably will visit upon the United States a liability for a number of million dollars should be passed without some explanation that will satisfy the public judgment.

The bill was passed, I believe, at the last session of the Senate without observation by anybody, without any calling of yeas and nays, and the message of the President may very appropriately be entitled to such consideration as to call for a statement of the reasons upon which the liability of the Government stands for so considerable a sum of money. If anybody in charge of the bill or familiar with the circumstances can give us any explanation I shall be glad.

I understand that the bill contemplates a grant of public lands, practically a new grant of public lands never before made; and that it provides by legislation for vesting, so far as there is authority in the United States to so vest it, a very valuable mine in the beneficiary of the bill; but inasmuch as that mine has heretofore been granted away under laws of the United States to persons entitled to it by virtue of the laws of the United States, and therefore as the United States can not fulfill the obligations which the bill imposes, the United States proposes to step in and give to the beneficiary of the bill an amount equal to the proceeds of that mine taken out of it by the owners heretofore, or liable to be taken out of it by the owners of it hereafter.

I understand, as I read the bill, that it is an attempt legislatively to assert a liability of the United States for a tort and to compensate in damages for that tort; that the United States shall legislatively respond in damages for the tort so committed; and the worst of the proposition is the character of the tort alleged. It is, that coördinate and coequal branches of the Government, not subordinate to the legislative department, but its equal, have perpetrated a wrong upon this beneficiary; that the Supreme Court of the United States has made a decision with reference to the disposition of certain property and with reference to the ascertainment of certain rights which is wrong; that the executive department of the Government has granted the title to this property to individuals not entitled to it, and therefore it is proposed by this legislation to place upon the Supreme Court of the United States and upon the executive department of the Government the imputation of wrongdoing and to respond legislatively in damages therefor. If I comprehend the significance of the bill it has no foundation that is not based upon that abstract proposition of liability.

For one I am unwilling in any official vote cast to place upon either one of those Departments of the Government an imputation so grave as that. I do not pretend that in the administration of human affairs divine and absolute justice can always be done; but everybody must submit to those tribunals and authorities that the wit and wisdom of man have devised for the determination of individual rights.

But I have another objection to the bill, if I understand it rightly. The foundation upon which it is based (and I do not stop to inquire whether that foundation is a fact or not) is a petition filed by a former citizen of Mexico, resident in Alta California, then a province of Mexico, for a grant of land, to the end that he might pursue "the beautiful industry of agriculture;" and all subsequent events upon which this pyramid of literature and this struggle are based rest upon that application and the events and circumstances that followed with reference to it.

If it be true that that petition was filed, of which I suppose there is no doubt, and that grant was made, of which I suppose there is doubt, I want to submit a proposition which no person can deny, that by virtue of that grant no right under any combination of circumstances vested in that grantee the ownership of mines or the right to pursue the exploitation of mining upon the premises granted. It had been decided in Mexico, and in all civilized countries, for that matter, I think I may say, at the time that this circumstance occurred, and it has been decided by the Supreme Court of the United States time and time again, once in the case of the United States vs. Castillero, 2 Black's Reports, page 17, and in a dozen cases, I believe, of our State courts, following this most well-considered opinion, that a grant of Mexican lands by Mexico did not carry with it a right to the mines thereon, but that two titles were recognized in the lands, one a mining title and the other an agricultural title; that the mining title could not be obtained except upon specific and definite application therefor, and that a grant of lands for agricultural uses, or without specifying for what use they were granted, did not carry with it a grant of the land for the purpose of mining nor any interest in the mines thereon.

The question as to the validity of this grant occupies the literature of our executive, judicial, and legislative departments, I think it is no exaggeration to say, to the extent of 5,000 pages. Many years ago, in this Capitol, my attention was called to it as then a very remarkable case, and I have followed it only casually and as a matter of public interest from that time to this.

I was somewhat surprised that when this bill came up nobody arose to explain its provisions or vindicate the justice of the enactment. At least on two occasions, by the Supreme Court of the United States, by a unanimous decision in each case, this grant has been declared to be invalid. Imputations of the gravest character upon the integrity of the original claim and upon the processes by which it was sought to be confirmed are found in every page of its history. I do not desire myself to recite them; indeed, I am not sufficiently familiar with them to give, with the exactness that I could desire, every detail, if it were useful so to do.

But I rest this case upon the proposition that, having been examined by the executive department it has been rejected, and having been examined by the judicial department it has been declared invalid and fraudulent: and that if both of those departments should have declared it to be a valid grant it still would not have formed the remotest justification for such legislation as is provided in the bill now before the Senate.

I think, therefore, we should be grateful to the President that he has recalled our attention to this legislation, that we may proceed to inquire why if that grant had been originally a valid one and had conveyed the three or four leagues of land involved to the grantee or his assigns, what right or authority it would have vested in him to this most remarkable and phenomenal mine that exists upon it, and why as a matter of fact the United States should respond in damages for a tort perpetrated by the Supreme Court and by the executive department of the Government, why the Congress of the United States should put the stain of infidelity or ignorance upon those two great tribunals of our Government, coequal with us, and who in respect of those matters have given it a more painstaking investigation, with better facilities for ascertaining the truth than we can hope to have before us, for if that patent had been issued for this piece of ground there would have remained in the United States the mine thereon; and it would have been just as competent for the United States to have granted that mine to some other person in fee simple under our law of 1866 as it was to grant it when, by virtue of the decision of the Supreme Court, the land involved in this bill became a part of the public domain and was entered by various parties.

Now, I say that this legislation is not unprecedented, so far as the mere proposition is concerned to refer it to the Court of Claims. Further than that, it is an imputation upon the Supreme Court and upon the executive department, it has embarrassed and annoyed public officers and delayed the public business since 1855, and that it prescribes arbitrary rules of evidence there could be no objection, but these are adequate.

I say this case has been before the Supreme Court, and is reported in 23 Howard, page 356; in 1 Wallace, 690; in 3 Wallace, 752; in 9 Wallace, 298; in 6 Otto, 316, and in 28 Cal. Reports, page 75. In a majority of those cases there is a consensus of opinion and decision that the claim itself has no lawful foundation upon which to stand.

Wiping out, then, from under the feet of it the claim itself, we propose here and now, by specific and definite legislation, to create and make a new claim and provide that that claim shall not only include all that the former claim would have included, but provide that it shall carry with it what is ninety-nine one-hundredths of the value of the claim itself, namely, the mine it would not have included provided this grant had been originally confirmed. But inasmuch as the United States has sold that mine under its laws in conformity to legislation of the two Houses of Congress, we propose here, because the Supreme Court had not the sagacity or the wisdom rightly to determine it, to hold ourselves responsible in damages to the individuals who they found were not entitled to the mine, and to provide that they may go to the Treasury of the United States and there indemnify themselves for the proceeds of a mine which they would not have owned if their grant had been given to them.

I should like to inquire where legislation of this character is going to lead us? Is the Congress of the United States to go around and wherever importunity shall induce it to believe that a coequal and coördinate branch of this Government has wrongly decided as to the administration of our laws, and under them, as it has administered them, has awarded property to individuals not entitled to it, whose ownership of that property by reason of that award becomes absolute and impregnable—that to those who failed in their litigation and are yet eager and hungry we shall toss into the whirlpool the Treasury of the United States and give to the contestant who is defeated an amount equal to what he would have obtained had the decision been the other way? That is with precision a statement of what this law proposes to do. You will have such swarms of clamoring and importunate claimants in this city as that you can not walk these streets if that proposition of law is to be laid down deliberately by Congress.

What kind of an example are you setting to the coördinate and coequal branches of the Government that are just exactly as competent to judge of our fidelity to public trusts and of our capacity and purpose to execute them as we are of theirs, and whose constitutional right to so judge is reciprocal? If it shall be laid down as a proposition of law that whenever in the opinion of the United States Congress the Supreme Court has not appropriately decided a case we shall legislate so as to make up to the defeated litigant what he would have had if he had succeeded, I submit that we thereby justify the Supreme Court of the United States in saying, "Inasmuch as the Congress of the United States has not passed a law for the benefit of an individual who, in our opinion, stands upon principles of public justice, by a decision of ours we can do justice to the person whose rights are thus denied;" and the Executive Department of the Government will be justified in saying, "Inasmuch as Congress has been negligent and unmindful of its duty in passing appropriate legislation, the Executive Department of the Government may make up for its shortcomings by muscularly taking out, not of the statutes of the country, but out of our views of public justice, such property and such transactions as will right the wrong that by its action or nonaction in our judgment Congress has perpetrated."

Mr. PEFFER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Montana yield to the Senator from Kansas?

Mr. SANDERS. Certainly.

Mr. PEFFER. I should like to ask the Senator from Montana, as he appears to have examined this bill carefully, what would be the status of the land involved in case the President's veto should be sustained?

Mr. SANDERS. A large portion of the land has been patented by the United States. I will say that in 1851 a law was passed whereby it was provided that there should be commissioners appointed to examine into, and pass upon, the validity of alleged pretended and actual Mexican grants in the State of California, or in that portion of the United States that was known as California and was brought into the United States as a part of it by the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo. That law provided that there might be an appeal from those commissioners to the district court of the United States for the district in which the land was situated and a further appeal, if either party should desire it, from the district court to the Supreme Court. It was provided in that law that if the United States Supreme Court should find that the land so claimed was not rightly claimed, was not granted by the Mexican authorities according to Mexican law, upon such an adjudication the land should become the public domain of the United States and subject to the law of the United States with reference to the public domain.

An appeal in this case from the decision of the commissioners adverse to the claim was taken to the district court of the United States, and after perambulating from one district to another finally, upon the application of a lawyer who seems to have represented himself and the United States—I will not say that it is absolutely so, but anybody who is desirous of getting at the literature of this case can read the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States upon that subject—upon the application of a lawyer living in the district and by the express consent of the United States district attorney, the decision of the land commissioners was reversed and the district court, by his consent, affirmed the validity of this grant.

Mr. TELLER. The statement as made by the Senator may lead to a misunderstanding. I wish to ask him if that reversal was not on the ruling of the Supreme Court, made ad interim, that the land commission decided that Mr. Gomez did not have possession of the land and that that was essential to maintain his title. After that decision the Supreme Court of the United States decided that that was not necessary to title; and thereupon the district court reversed the action of the commission.

Mr. SANDERS. The question addressed to me by the Senator from Colorado is not an inappropriate one, but I wish to say that it has been answered, in my view, amply and satisfactorily by reports of one or the other of the Houses of Congress in the negative. It is true that in the case involving Gen. Frémont's grant in the State of California it was decided that absolute possession of the lands granted was not essential to the validity of the claim, which, I believe, was the ground upon which the commissioners rejected it; but in one of the reports of the committee it is stated that that case stood upon grounds peculiar to itself, there being an abounding number of decisions that under Mexican law one of the grounds upon which the validity of the grant must stand was the possession by the applicant or grantee. So that I am not satisfied that the reversal by the district court of the findings of the commissioners was actually based upon that proposition, and I wish to say right here that the attorney of the United States for that district in the State of California subsequently did aver, and possibly even then stated, that that was the ground why he withdrew his opposition to the confirmation of the grant, but the testimony shows conclusively that at that time he himself was a half owner of this grant, that he had simulated a representative of himself and his coöwners as applicants for the confirmation of the grant, and being the owner of one-half of the property, he arose in court and may have made the statement suggested by the Senator from Colorado. I am not satisfied from the reading of that case that if furnishes the basis for the pretended change of front, but I have here before me the reports.

In one of these reports the suggestion of the Senator from Colorado is answered at length. On the 28th day of March, 1884, in the House of Representatives, Mr. Tucker, from the Committee on the Judiciary, submitted the report of a majority of that committee, somewhat exhaustive in its character, and I believe it is in that report the answer to the Senator's question is made. Asking the question if the terms and conditions of the grant "require possession to perfect title or approval of the departmental assembly" the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives says:

> It is true that in Frémont vs. The United States (17 How., 542) not taking possession was held not to forfeit the grant. But that case was peculiar. The grant was for services, not for colonization only, and the court relied on it in its interpretation of the grant, and said that, "taking the conditions all together," there was nothing which would justify a decree of forfeiture.
>
> In this case there is nothing to show the grant was for meritorious services, nor what the conditions were.
>
> In the absence of all proof of the contents of the grant, the proof of its existence would not necessarily sustain the claim.

But the question addressed to me by the Senator from Colorado has already had an answer, and it had an answer in the tribunal in which the circumstance itself occurred. The reversal of the findings of the Commissioners was in the judicial department of this Government, and it was obtained by a United States attorney who owned one-half of the ground that, by virtue of the confirmation, was to be granted to himself, and from court to court that action was traced, exposed, and annulled. The Supreme Court of the United States has set aside that confirmation and has declared with reference to it that upon a decree so obtained such a confirmation ought not, in the interests of the integrity of judicial proceedings, to be permitted to stand.

Mr. TELLER. The Senator will allow me to ask him a question, as he is now assailing the memory of the United States attorney. I ask if it is not a fact that the records of the country show that the gentleman who was the United States attorney reported to the Attorney-General that he had an interest in the grant, that he declined to have anything to do with the case, and asked the Attorney-General to appoint somebody to look after it, which the Attorney-General declined to do, leaving the matter to the Commission?

Mr. SANDERS. I believe the attorney of the United States for the southern district of California at that time is now living, and de mortuis nil nisi bonum will not really apply. I have no disposition to say anything further than what appears of record, but I can not say all that appears of record in the time which I prescribed to myself.

Mr. TELLER. Does the Senator deny the statement that I make?

Mr. SANDERS. He certainly subsequently stated that he did so report; and I am not certain but that the records of the United States show that he did so report.

But mind, Mr. President, this was back in the year 1855, when California was more remote from the seat of Government than is the remotest corner of Alaska to-day, and the United States Attorney-General, confronted with a great many things and having very little information of affairs in the State of California, and who was then Hon. Jeremiah S. Black, known to us all in his lifetime, had sent to the State of California as his assistant, Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, who I believe at that time was on his way there, or immediately after that time, and possibly as a result of the information which he obtained from the United States attorney had been appointed to go there and look into these matters; and to the end either that no right of the United States might be lost or to the end that the rights of the United States might be foreclosed—one of the two, and I will not undertake to suggest which—the United States attorney filed a motion in the court for an appeal. The court took that motion under advisement and the attorney for the United States wrote out an order for an appeal, which he seems to have left somewhere, so that it subsequently was found among the papers of the case, although I believe not signed by the judge or by the clerk.

In that condition of affairs Mr. Stanton was in the State of California, and ascertaining that the United States attorney upon whose consent this grant had been confirmed and the decision of the commissioners reversed, he filed a motion to set the decree aside; and he came from the State of California here leaving that motion pending. The grantee in the case obtained a transcript of the record and it contained a copy of the order allowing an appeal. He came from California to Washington, and in the subsequent year he presented the transcript of the case in the Supreme Court of the United States and obtained an order from the court dismissing the appeal, which made the adjudication of the district court res adjudicata. The mandate of the Supreme Court went to the district court of Southern California, directing it to proceed in that case as if no appeal had been taken, and when it came there the judge who had taken under advisement the question whether he would allow an appeal, who had not granted the appeal, refused to allow the mandate to be filed and refused to obey the mandate. He said the appeal had not been allowed and that he yet had it under advisement.

This excited a large controversy. Applications to the Supreme Court of the United States for mandate after mandate of one kind and character were made by the claimant. But the appeal was finally allowed. The Attorney-General appeared here, and, as a result of it all, after great tribulation, by the memory of officers of the court, or by some process or other, copies of papers in the case sufficient were obtained and certified to by the district attorney to make up what the Supreme Court of the United States was willing to accept as a transcript of the record; and they proceeded to set aside their mandate, and withdrew their order dismissing the appeal, which had never been taken. They finally heard the case on its merits.

It is reported in 23 Howard, and the opinion is I believe by Mr. Justice Wayne. Subsequently the case came before the Supreme Court again in another shape. I presume that these cases are almost as familiar to the Senate as they are to me. A list of them can be obtained. I wish to call the names of the judges who have passed upon the validity of this claim. Justices Taney, Wayne, Catron, Nelson, Grier, Clifford, Miller, Davis, and Field, and again Chief Justice Chase, Justices Wayne, Nelson, Clifford, Miller, Davis, and Field. Still earlier that case was in the court before Justices Davis, Miller, or Field were on the Supreme Bench. There have been fourteen of the most eminent justices of the Supreme Court who have passed upon the validity of this claim, and there has not been a solitary dissent from the proposition that the claim itself was invalid.

Mr. PEFFER. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HARRIS in the chair). Does the Senator from Montana yield to the Senator from Kansas?

Mr. SANDERS. Certainly.

Mr. PEFFER. When I submitted a question a few minutes ago to the Senator he set out to answer it, but his attention was called away from the gist of my question. I wish to suggest to him that what I desire to know of him is, who would own the land, where would the ownership be, and who would be entitled to control it in future in case the message of the President of the United States should be sustained?

Mr. SANDERS. I must beg pardon of the Senator from Kansas. The interrogatory addressed to me by the Senator from Colorado presented to me the question whether it was impolite to discontinue my answer to him or to answer at once the Senator from Colorado. I probably made a mistake. If the message of the President of the United States shall be sustained the ownership of the land will remain as it now is. In eighteen hundred and the fifties somewhere it became public domain. Some portions of it were entered by citizens of the United States as mines and some portion of it under other laws of the United States, I can not state what laws, whereby divers and sundry settlers, if I am rightly advised, have become the owners of it; and a very considerable portion of it still remains, if I understand it rightly, public domain of the United States.

Not long after the application for this grant by the grantor of the present beneficiary upon a portion of the public domain said by the beneficiary himself, and probably by his grantor and others interested with him, to be upon the grant applied for, and said by others with equal positiveness and with official indorsement to have been upon another piece of ground, a mine was discovered of very considerable value. I do not know but that it might be said to have been as valuable a mine as has been found in the United States. It was applied for as a mine, or rather possession of the ground was taken in the the first instance by divers and sundry parties; but it was finally applied for as a mine.

There is no occasion to discuss that question, however, for this substantial reason: The grant to Gomez, which was the name of the original grantee, if grantee there was, would not have conveyed to him the mine. That ends that matter. It would have been just as competent for those citizens of the United States to have gone to that mine and to have obtained the possession of it, and to have obtained a patent for it, if the grant were valid as if it were invalid. No question can arise about that. I took occasion in the Senate a couple of years ago to show by decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States the clear exception arising out of Mexican and Spanish law of all mines within the limits of grants, and that the only way by those laws to obtain possession or a right to enter a mine was by applying for it as a mine, and obtaining a right to it upon terms such as the Mexican Government granted mines to be worked by its citizens. That controversy is settled.

If the veto of the President of the United States shall be sustained here the land will remain as it was. If it shall be overruled and the bill shall be passed, the objections of the President to the contrary notwithstanding, the mine will remain the property of the persons who possess and work it, who have taken out of it a large amount of mineral and divided it among their stockholders, and no liability in any shape or form on the part of any one of them, either for that which they have heretofore taken out or that which they shall hereafter take out, will or can under any combination of circumstances arise.

Mr. PEFFER. I will inquire further of the Senator whether all the land involved is now occupied or claimed by settlers, or whatever class they may be?

Mr. SANDERS. I was at the mine but once and I can not answer as to the ownership of it. I did not suppose that there was land in that part of the State of California which was not owned by somebody, but there is in the vicinity, and I presume upon the 4 leagues mentioned, a large amount of ground at least unoccupied. I have understood (but the Senator's sources of information are as good as mine) that there is some portion of this ground that is still public domain, and by the terms of the bill any such portion of it would be vested in the beneficiary of the bill. But that is wholly immaterial. That is not a tithe, a thousandth part of what is involved in the bill.

The bill assumes, in the first place, to foreclose several controversies. The first controversy is whether there was a grant or not, and after a half dozen decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States that there never was, the bill proposes to affirm it as a grant, to throw into the teeth of the Supreme Court of the United States the fact that they decided that question wrongfully. Then it undertakes to reverse the action of the Interior Department in refusing this grant. Then it undertakes legislatively to set aside the rule of the law that obtains in Mexico, Spain, Germany, and in the United States, and that I trust will obtain resolutely and forever, that in places where there are mines of gold and silver and cinnabar, until somebody shall go and apply for them as mines under laws providing for the granting of mines they shall remain the property and possession of the Government. We have that question in a conspicuous form before the Supreme Court of the United States to-day, and there is more involved in it than gentlemen seem to imagine.

Now, by a sheer act of inconsiderate legislation with reference to this claim, we propose to reverse that wise principle of law, born of the experience of all civilized nations and of all ages, and to legislate that this grant thus stamped under the feet of the Supreme Court is not only valid but shall carry with it what no grant ever before could carry that was based upon such an application as it is alleged this one was. And inasmuch as we have, under well defined principles of law and under statutes which have been passed by Congress, conveyed away those mines and have taken pay for them at the rate of $2.50 an acre, or some other petty sum, the United States proposes to put into the breach the Treasury of the United States and allow it to be looted to the extent of giving to the grantees of the mines what they have taken out of them, because they got their title under forms of law and by processes that make them the owners of that land impregnably, and to give to those who contested for those lands also a sum of money equal to their value.

I do not know how many men contested for that mine aside from the beneficiary of the bill. I can only say that if the bill shall pass they will be clamoring at the doors of the Congress of the United States for their reward, for the Treasury must not be held for the relief and use of favorites. We are laying down abstract principles of governmental liability, and if the Treasury is to be looted it must be opened to all persons in like manner bringing like situations to the attention of Congress. It will involve the necessity of our going up and down the land and examining the proceedings of every judicial tribunal created by our authority. It will make the Congress of the United States a court of review of executive and judicial wrongs wherever the cupidity of litigants shall be able to make a showing ex parte or prima facie, with testimony of events and circumstances going back thirty-five years at least, and where the Government can not hope to stand as to procuring evidence on equal terms, and shall always be required to vindicate the integrity of past judicial transactions.

It will involve the necessity of our making up to the defeated litigants the amount of money that they would have obtained from other persons if the wrong which was perpetrated upon them by the courts had not been so perpetrated. It will involve the necessity of our going into our Executive Departments and inquiring whether, under all the circumstances of the case, decisions that have been made there were not made wrongfully; and if they have put the United States beyond the power of redress in specific articles or property then to open the doors of the Treasury and make up in money the amount of damages to our applicants, our litigants, our contestants, our citizens. In other words, it creates a liability that, being abstractly stated, is that the United States is responsible as for a tort for every wrong decision that its wisest and highest and most honorable tribunals may render.

Now, when our fathers formed this Government they did not assume that it was perfect. They did not undertake to contract that those who administered it should be beyond the reach of errors of judgment. They did not even agree as a matter of contract that they should be men of integrity. They simply said, "human affairs at most are infirm; we will give you such a framework of government as that to the extent that human foresight and wisdom can extort just decisions you shall have the opportunity to extort them; we do not doubt but that wrongs will now and then be done; they must be abided by and accepted as the inevitable consequence of living in this world and not having our justice administered by the Divine Mind."

The former committee of this body examining this question, after summoning everybody who was interested in it and listening to testimony, setting aside other business that was pressing in the Senate, and allowing the most eminent gentlemen of the country connected with the profession of the law to argue it in every aspect in which it was viewed, and having witnesses before them and all the original testimony, unanimously came to a conclusion adverse to this grant. Mr. Oglesby was chairman of that committee. Mr. PADDOCK, yet happily a member of this body, was also a member. Mr. Booth, of California, was another member. Mr. Chaffee, of Colorado, was another; Mr. Plumb, of Kansas, was another; Mr. McDonald, who made the report, was another; Mr. Jones, of Florida, Mr. Grover, of Oregon, and Mr. Garland, of Arkansas, were the remaining members of the committee. I have their report before me, and I do not think it improper if, without reading it, I shall ask it be made a part of my speech. I ask the consent of the Senate that it be inserted in my remarks. I do not wish to delay the Senate to read it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It will be so ordered if there be no objection.

The report, submitted by Mr. McDonald, from the Committee on Public Lands of the United States Senate, January 15, 1879, is as follows:

On the 28th of January, 1878, the following memorial was referred to the Committee on Public Lands:

"Memorial of William McGarrahan, praying the passage of a law to authorize the perfecting of a patent issued to him by the United States for certain lands in California.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

The memorial of William McGarrahan respectfully showeth:

That the United States, by its letters patent duly executed and recorded in the office of the Commissioner of the General Land Office March 14, 1863, conveyed to your memorialist, as the assignee of Vicente P. Gomez, that certain grant of land known as the rancho "Panoche Grande," in the State of California.

That, as said record shows, the said grant was by the courts of the United States finally confirmed; and, after said final confirmation, a survey of said grant was made and approved by the surveyor-general of the United States for California, and the same was duly forwarded to and received and filed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office; which proceedings were the bases for a patent.

The said patent is of record in the office of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, on pages 312 to 321, inclusive, of volume 4 of confirmed California Mexican land grants, and a copy thereof is hereto annexed, marked Exhibit A, and made part of this memorial.

That the then Commissioner of the General Land Office refused to issue the patent, and an appeal was taken from his decision to Hon. Caleb B. Smith, who was at that time Secretary of the Interior, and who, having heard full arguments, on the 29th December, 1862, decided that the said patent should issue to your memorialist, and directed the said Commissioner to that effect. A copy of that decision is hereto affixed, and marked Exhibit B.

That within a few days thereafter Secretary Smith resigned his office, and the Commissioner refused to obey his decision.

That the case was brought before the Hon. John P. Usher, who succeeded Hon. Caleb B. Smith as Secretary of the Interior, and Secretary Usher, after full arguments, affirmed the decision of Secretary Smith, and ordered said patent to issue. A copy of Secretary Usher's decision is hereto annexed, marked Exhibit C. That, in compliance with those decisions of two Secretaries of the Interior, the said patent was duly executed and recorded as aforesaid, with the President's name, the seal of said General Land Office, and the official mark "Ex'd," showing it had been compared with the parchment patent and found correct, all appearing in said record, but the copyist omitted the name of the recorder therefrom.

That in a recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, in a cause wherein the sufficiency or legality of said patent was involved, that court held that although the signatures of the President and his secretary for signing land patents appear thereon, together with the seal of the General Land Office, yet because of the clerical omission aforesaid to insert the name of the recorder in the record, the said record was fatally defective, notwithstanding the act of 1843, 5 Statutes at Large, page 627, enacts as follows:

"That literal exemplifications of any such records which have been or may be granted in virtue of the provisions of the seventh section of the act approved on the 4th day of July, 1836, entitled 'An act to reorganize the General Land Office,' shall be deemed and held to be of the same validity in all proceedings, whether at law or in equity, wherein such exemplifications are adduced in evidence, as if the names of the officers signing and countersigning the same had been fully inserted in such record." See also section 891 and section 2470 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

A copy of said decision is hereto annexed, marked "Exhibit D."

That your memorialist has thereby suffered great wrong and injustice, and, as it appears, from the said decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, solely by reason of a mere clerical omission in a copyist in the General Land Office.

That said grant and no part thereof has been granted or conveyed by the United States to any one except your memorialist.

In consideration of the premises, your memorialist respectfully prays your honorable bodies, by act or otherwise, to direct that said record be perfected, or that the record, or an exemplification thereof, be received in all courts and places as evidence of title in your memorialist, with the same effect as though said omission had not been made, or that your memorialist will have such other or further relief in the premises as the wisdom of Congress may suggest, to remedy the wrong and injustice aforesaid.

And your memorialist will ever pray, etc.

Meantime I have to respectfully ask of your honorable committee that you will request the honorable Secretary of the Interior to allow no action to be taken in his Department that will in any way affect the title to the land embraced in said patent until Congress has finally disposed of the case

Respectfully,

WILLIAM McGARRAHAN.

The committee have given the subjects embraced in the memorial a very full consideration, even to the postponement of other important business before them.

Understanding that adverse interests existed, the parties supposed to represent those interests were notified of the pendency of the case before the committee, and appeared by counsel, so that the case assumed the character of an adversary proceeding.

The testimony taken and submitted, both documentary and oral, has already been printed, and forms miscellaneous document No. 85, second session Forty-fifth Congress, making nearly one thousand pages of printed matter.

It will be seen by the memorial that the memorialist, William McGarrahan, claims to be the assignee and owner of a Mexican grant of four leagues of land in the State of California, which it is alleged the courts of the United States had affirmed to Vicente P. Gomez, his grantor.

The first and most important question for the examination of the committee, therefore, was the legal history of the claim, and if it should appear that the courts of the United States had confirmed it, then any want of formality in the title ought to be cured; but on examination it did not so appear. On the contrary, the judicial proceedings in the case terminated in the final rejection of the claim by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Gomez was a Mexican citizen and claimed to have received a grant in 1844 of the land in question from Micheltorena, the then governor of Upper California, which grant it was claimed had been made under the authority of the Mexican colonization decree of August 23, 1824, and in pursuance of the regulations of November 21, 1828, and the right of property as acquired by him, it was claimed, is protected and secured by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, ratified May 30, 1848. All rights of property of Mexican citizens held or acquired before the Territory came under the dominion of the United States were fully guaranteed by the treaty, and the faith of the United States pledged for their protection.

On the 3d of March, 1851 (pursuant to said treaty), Congress passed an act entitled "An act to ascertain and settle private land claims in California." This act was amended August 3, 1852, as to the manner of taking appeals to the circuit courts of the United States for the proper districts, and also authorizing such courts to take further testimony.

Under these acts Gomez, by his attorney Pacificus Ord, filed his petition before the board of land commissioners provided for in them, in which he claimed that some time in the year 1844, Micheltorena, then governor of Upper California, granted to him (Gomez) a certain tract of land called Panoche Grande, to the extent of four leagues, lying and being in the then county of San Joaquin, and bounded as follows; "On the south by the lands of Francisco Arias, on the north by the lands of Julian Ursua and the low hills, and on the west by the barren hills, as explained by the map annexed" to the said petition. The map referred to was produced and attached to the petition, and will be found in the printed testimony at page 568, with date of its filing. This was all the paper proof of title whatever produced: all other papers and records pertaining to it, it was claimed, had been lost or destroyed. But this paper, the petitioner states, had been obtained by him from the proper officers, and is averred to be the map which accompanied the original expediente.

The testimony taken and filed before the board of land commissioners was all oral, and consisted of the depositions of James L. Ord, José Castro, J Abrigo, and Oscar De Grand Barque. The testimony of Ord related simply to the probable loss of part of the Mexican archives. The testimony of the other three witnesses was intended to supply the place of missing papers. The map or deseño filed with the petition was made an exhibit in the deposition of Castro, and is referred to in the deposition of Abrigo as the map seen by him in the possession of Gomez. Before the final decision of the case by the land commissioners a certified copy of a petition signed by Vicente Gomez, with the official indorsement thereon, was filed with the land commissioners. That certified copy is as follows:

English translation of expediente.

Seal fourth, two reals.

Provided provisonally for the maritime custom-house of the port of Monterey, in the Department of the Californias, for the year 1844 and 1845.

PABLO DE LA GUERRA.

MICHELTORENA:

[SEAL.] Vicente Gomez, a Mexican by birth, and a resident of this capital, before your excellency and in due form of law, represents that, desiring to dedicate himself to the beautiful branch of agriculture, which is so vital in this department, solicits of the goodness of your excellency that he may be pleased to grant him ownership in the place known by the name of "Panoche Grande," bounded on the north by Don Julian Ursua, on the south by the ridge of hills, on the east by the valley of the Tulares, and on the west by Don Francisco Arias, which land is of the extent of three square leagues, a little more or less, accordingly as explained by the map,* which, in a reasonable time, I will present more correctly than the one which now accompanies the petition.

Wherefore, I pray your excellency may be pleased to take into consideration my present petition, so that by this means I may obtain the necessary means of support for my growing family.

Wherefore, I humbly supplicate that your excellency may grant what I have indicated, hoping to receive grace and mercy, swearing what is necessary, etc.

VICENTE GOMEZ.

MONTEREY, March 14, 1844.

Let the secretary of state report, making the necessary investigations.

MICHELTORENA.

MONTEREY, March 14, 1844.

As ordered by the most excellent governor, let the preceding instance pass to the first judge of San Juan, in order that he may report what may be just, and return this to the secretary's office for its approbation.

MAN'L JIMENO.

MONTEREY, March 14, 1844.

In compliance with the superior order of your excellency, in which you ask me for information whether the land solicited in this instance is vacant, I report that it is vacant, and there is no reason why it should not be granted. San Juan, March 20, 1844.

JOSÉ ANTO. RODIG'Z.

OFFICE OF THE SURVEYOR-GENERAL of the United States for California:

I, John C. Hayes, surveyor-general of the United States for the State of California, and, as such, having in my office and in my charge and custody a portion of the archives of the former Spanish and Mexican territory, or department of Upper California, by virtue of the power vested in me by law, do hereby certify that the four preceding and hereunto annexed pages of tracing paper, numbered from 1 to 4 inclusive, entitled a true and accurate copy of a certain document now on file and forming a portion of the said archives in this office, the same being the only documents in the archives in relation to the tract called "Panoche Grande," petitioned by Vicente Gomez.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto signed my name officially and caused my seal of office to be affixed, at the city of San Francisco, this 31st day of October, 1853.

JOHN C. HAYES,
United States Surveyor-General, California.

Filed in office November 3, 1863.

GEORGE FISHER, Secretary.

The map found in this incomplete expediente, as shown by the testimony of R. C. Hopkins, keeper of the Mexican archives, and printed on pages 578 and 579 of the testimony, formed no part of the expediente. It was not identified by Gomez or any of his witnesses as belonging to him, and had evidently been placed in the papers containing his petition by mistake. There was evidence given tending directly to show that it was the borrador or rough draft of a diseño accompanying the application or petition of Bernardo Yorba, and described lands lying some two hundred miles south of the lands petitioned for by Gomez.

On the 6th of March, 1855, the board of land commissioners passed a decree rejecting the claim, and certified their proceedings to the district court of the United States for the northern district of California, on the supposition that the lands thereby adjudicated were situated in that district.

The following are the proceedings and decree of the board of land commissioners in the premises:

Extract from transcript.—Opinion of the board of land commissioners.

V. Gomez vs. The United States. Number 569.

Claim for a place called Panoche Grande, containing four square leagues, situated in the county of Monterey.

The petitioner in this case states in his petition that he had a grant for the above-named place, issued in the year A. D. 1844, by Governor Micheltorena, and that the grant was among the archives of state in Monterey at the time that the archives fell into the hands of the Americans in July, 1846, and that it was either lost or destroyed.

He has also given satisfactory proof of the existence and loss of the grant, but has failed entirely to offer any proof whatever going to ho that he ever occupied, improved, or cultivated any part of the land, or that anyone ever did for him, or that he ever saw the land. We are therefore of the opinion that the claim is invalid, and a decree rejecting the same will be entered.

Rejected.

Filed in office March 6, 1855.

GEO. FISHER, Secretary.

Recorded in Record of Decisions, No. 2, p. 552.

GEO. FISHER, Secretary.

* Note by printer: The map here alluded to will be found facing page 578 of S. Mis. Doc. No. 85, second session Forty-fifth Congress.

Decree.

V. Gomez vs. United States. Number 559.

In this case, on hearing the proofs and allegations, it is adjudged by the commissioners that the claim of the petitioner is not valid, and it is therefore decreed that his application for a confirmation thereof be denied.

ALPHEUS FELCH,
R. AUG. THOMPSON,
S. B. FARWELL,
Commissioners.

Filed in office March 6, 1855.

GEORGE FISHER, Secretary.

Recorded in Record of Decisions, vol. 2, p. 553.

GEORGE FISHER, Secretary.

And it appearing to the satisfaction of the board that the land hereby adjudicated is situated in the northern district of California, it is hereby ordered that the transcript of the proceedings and of the decisions in this case, and of the papers and evidence upon which the same was founded, be made out and duly certified to by the secretary, one of which transcripts shall be filed with the clerk of the United States district court of the northern district of California, and the other transmitted to the Attorney-General of the United States.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS TO ASCERTAIN AND SETTLE THE PRIVATE LAND CLAIMS IN THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

I, George Fisher, secretary of the board of commissioners to ascertain and settle the private land claims in the State of California, do hereby certify the foregoing 20 pages, numbered from 1 to 20, to the inclusives, to contain a true, correct, and full transcript of the record of the proceedings and of the decision of said board, of the documentary evidence, and of the testimony of the witnesses upon which the same is founded, on file in this office, in case No. 569, on the docket of the said board, wherein Vicente Gomez is the claimant against the United States for the place known by the name of Panoche Grande.

In testimony whereof I hereunto set my hand and affix my private seal (not having a seal of office), at San Francisco, Cal., this 21st day of August, A. D. 1855, and of the Independence of the United States of America the eightieth.

GEORGE FISHER, Secretary.

It afterwards appearing that the lands were in the southern district of California, on the 9th March, 1857, on the application of Gomez, by E. W. F. Sloan, acting as his attorney, it was ordered that the clerk of the said court for the northern district transmit to the clerk of the court for the southern district of California the transcript and proceedings in said cause, Gomez having given notice of his intention of prosecuting an appeal from the decision of the land commissioners; and on the 4th of June, 1857, the transcript was accordingly filed in the southern district; and on the next day a petition for confirmation of the grant having been filed on behalf of Gomez, signed by Sloan & Hartman as attorneys, the following order was entered:

Decision of confirmation.—(Record.)

United States district court, southern district California. Regular June term, A. D. 1857. Hon. Isaac S. K. Ogier, judge. June 5, A. D. 1857.

Vicente Gomez, appellant, vs. The United States, appellee. No. 393.

Now, on this day, this cause coming on to be heard, the parties appearing by their respective attorneys, the appellant by Sloan and Hartman, esqrs., and the appellee by P. Ord, United States district attorney, and after argument of counsel aforesaid, the same is submitted to the court for final adjudication.

Whereupon the court, being fully advised in the premises, delivered its opinion, confirming the claim of the appellant to the extent called for in the transcript and papers, three leagues or sitios de ganado mayor, and a decree was ordered to be entered up in conformity to said opinion.

But no formal decree was entered at that time. January 7, 1858, the following formal decree was enrolled and signed by the judge:

Decree filed January 7, 1858, as of June 5, 1857.

In the district court of the United States, southern district of California.

Vicente P. Gomez, appellant, vs. The United States, appellee. Case No. 393. "Panoche Grande." Trans. 569.

This cause coming on to be heard, on appeal from the decision of the United States board of land commissioners to ascertain and settle the private land claims in the State of California, under the act of Congress approved March 3, 1851, on a transcript of the decision and proceedings of said board, and the papers and evidence upon which said decision was founded, and the other evidence adduced by the appellant before this court, and it appearing to the court that said transcript and the notice of appeal have been duly filed according to law, and counsel for respective parties having been heard, it is ordered, adjudged, and decreed that the decision of said board of land commissioners be, and the same is hereby, reversed, and that the claim of appellant is good and valid, and the same is hereby confirmed to him as follows, to wit: Three leagues of land, more or less, situate in the county of Monterey, State of California, bounded on the north by lands of Julian Ursua, on the south by the hills, on the east by the valley of the Tulares, and on the west by the lands of Francisco Arias, as is more fully set forth and described by the title issued for the same, and the diseño accompanying the same.

And it appearing to the court that on the 5th day of June, A. D. 1857, the lands in this case described had been confirmed by the court to said claimant and appellant, and it having been omitted to sign and enter a decree therefor at the date last aforesaid, it is ordered that the same be done now for then.

ISAAC S. K. OGIER,
U. S. District Judge.

Filed this 7th day of January, A. D. 1858, nunc pro tunc 5th June A. D. 1857.

C. SIMS, Clerk.
Per J. H. COLEMAN, Deputy.

And February 5, of the same year, as appears, on the motion of Sloan and Hartman, a second formal decree, as substitute for the last above quoted, was entered, as follows:

Order to amend and sub. decree.—(Record.)

United States district court, southern district of California.—Regular December term, 1857.—Hon. Isaac S. K. Ogier, judge.—February 4, 1858.

Vicente Gomez, appellant, vs. The United States, appellees. No. 393—"Panoche Grande."

On motion of Sloan and Hartman it is ordered that the appellant have leave to amend the decree filed in this case by substituting another in its stead.

In the district court of the United States, southern district of California.

Decree filed February 5, 1858, as of June 5, 1857.

Vicente P. Gomez, appellant, vs. The United States, appellees. Case No. 393—"Panoche Grande." Transcript No. 569.

This cause came on to be heard on appeal from the decision of the United States board of land commissioners to ascertain and settle the private land claims in the State of California, under an act of Congress approved March 3, 1851, on a transcript of the decision and proceedings of said board, and the papers and evidence upon which said decision was made, and the other evidence adduced by the appellant before this court; and it appearing to the court that said transcript and notice of intention to appeal have been duly filed according to law, and counsel for the respective parties having been heard, it is ordered, adjudged, and decreed that decision of said board of land commissioners be, and the same is hereby, reversed, and that the claim of said appellant is good and valid, and the same is hereby confirmed to him as follows, to wit: The tract of land situate in the county of Fresno, State of California, known by the name of "Panoche Grande," bounded northerly by the lands of Don Julian Ursua; southerly by the hills; easterly by the valley of the Tulares, and westerly by the lands of Don Francisco Arias, containing 4 square leagues of land and no more, provided that quantity is contained within the boundaries aforesaid; that confirmation of such less quantity is hereby made to said claimant, and for a more particular description of which said land reference is hereby made to the map contained in the transcript in this case; and it also appearing to this court that heretofore, to wit, on the 5th day of June, A. D. 1857, at a regular term of this court holden in the town of Monterey, State of California, the claim of the appellant in this case had been confirmed by this court, but that it had been omitted by the court to sign the decree of confirmation at the time the same was made, it is therefore further ordered by this court that the same be signed now as for then.

Given under my hand in open court, 5th day of February, A. D. 1858.

ISAAC S. K. OGIER,
U. S. District Judge for the Southern District of California.

Filed this 5th February, 1858, for the 5th June, 1858.

C. SIMS, Clerk.
Per J. H. COLEMAN, Deputy.

Before these proceedings took place in the courts Pacificus Ord had been appointed district attorney for the United States for the southern district of California, and was acting as such at the time those proceedings were entered. It also appeared in testimony that on the 24th day of November, 1856, Vicente Gomez had conveyed to Ord all his right, title, and interest, in law and in equity, in and to the undivided one-half of the property embraced in his claim; which deed, however, was not placed on record until November 26, 1857, and was unknown to the court at the time said decrees of confirmation were entered. At the time they were entered Ord still retained his interest and employment as counsel for Gomez and at the same time represented and was the only representative of the interests of the United States, as will appear from the following extract from his testimony taken before the committee:

"By Senator MCDONALD:

"Q. In this case there was no one represented the United States but yourself?

"A. No, sir.

"Q. At that time did you understand that you were retaining your interest as attorney for Gomez?

"A. Yes, sir; I certainly did.

"Q. At that time and in that case you were representing both sides?

"A. No, sir, not wholly; I was representing a half for the United States. I was half interested, as before stated.

"Q. Do I understand you to say tnat you regarded yourself as retaining your interest as attorney under your original employment for Gomez at the time of the confirmation?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. And you at the same time represented the United States?

"A. Simply for the purpose of passing the matter to the Supreme Court."

After the order of confirmation, but before any decree had been entered, on the 22d of December, 1857, Gomez conveyed his remaining interest in the property in controversy to the present claimant, William McGarrahan, by a deed which recited the former conveyance to Ord, and from that time forth the memorialist has been connected with the history of the case.

A protracted contest ensued between the claimant and the officers representing the United States, in which the claimant endeavored to establish and maintain the decree last entered as the final decree in the case, and the attorneys representing the Government were seeking to procure its vacation in the court below or its review in the Supreme Court by appeal, which finally terminated in an appeal being filed and perfected in the Supreme Court, and the case docketed in February, 1864.

At the same term of the Supreme Court a motion was made by the counsel of Gomez to dismiss the case, and after a very full argument the court overruled the motion to dismiss in an opinion that will be found in 23 Howard, page 326.

Afterward, in December, 1865, the court entered a final decree in the case reversing the decree of the district court confirming the grant, and ordered the case to be remanded to that court with direction to dismiss the petition.

The opinion delivered in that case was by Justice Clifford, and as it gives a brief history of the case in its progress through the Supreme Court, as well as a clear statement of the grounds upon which the decree of the district court was reversed, we incorporate it at length in this report. (3 Wallace, page 733.)

Mr. Justice Clifford delivered the opinion of the court:

"Claim of the appellee, as described in his petition to the land commissioners, was for a tract of land situated in California, called Panoche Grande, of the extent of 4 square leagues, and he alleged that the tract was granted to him, in the year 1844, by Governor Manuel Micheltorena. Unable to exhibit his title-papers, as required by the act of Congress upon the subject, he relied upon parol proof to show their existence, loss, and contents. Commissioners rejected the claim, and the claimant appealed to the district court, where the claim for the whole tract was confirmed. Final decree, as amended, was entered on the 5th day of February, 1858; and on the 25th day of August, 1862, the appeal of the United States was allowed.

"1. Appellants insist that the claim is utterly without merit, and that the decree of the district court should be reversed. On the other hand, the claimant denies that this court has jurisdiction of the cause, and contends that the appeal should be dismissed. Principal difficulty in this case grows out of certain proceedings in the cause, which have taken place since it first made its appearance in this court. Docket entries for the December term, 1858, show that the case was first presented here at that term by the claimant, as an appeal not prosecuted, and that it was, on the production of the record, on his motion dismissed in conformity to the rules of the court for the want of prosecution. Mandate of the court dismissing the appeal was, on the 18th day of March following, delivered to the assignee of the claimant.

"2. Nothing further was done in the cause in this court until the December term, 1859, when the Attorney-General filed a motion to rescind the decree dismissing the cause and to revoke the mandate, basing the motion upon ground that the decree and mandate had both been procured by misrepresentation and fraud. Minutes of the clerk also show that he filed his motion on the 27th day of January, 1860, and that the claimant, on the 2d day of March following, filed three other motions. First motion of the claimant was for mandamus to the district court, to compel the judge to file the mandate and permit the execution of the decree confirming the claim. Second motion was for mandamus to compel the district court to dismiss an application before it to open the decree and grant a rehearing. Third motion was for a mandamus to compel the surveyor-general to survey the land confirmed by the decree. All those motions were heard at the same time, and the court overruled the several motions of the claimant, and entered a decree rescinding the decree dismissing the appeal, and revoked and canceled the mandate as moved by the Attorney-General. (United States vs. Gomez, 23 Howard, 326.) Affidavits offered show that no appeal had been taken by the United States, and that the statement that such an order had been made as was exhibited in the transcript and filed in the case was false. They showed not only that the United States had not appealed, but that a motion filed by their special counsel for a rehearing was still pending in the district court. Decision of the court, therefore, was, that the appeal was not before the court when the cause was docketed and dismissed.

"3. Next appearance of the cause here was at the December term, 1863, which is the appeal now before the court. Record was filed, and the cause docketed on the 29th day of February, 1864, and on the 31st day of March following the claimant filed a motion to dismiss the appeal, because, as therein alleged, this court had no jurisdiction 'to hear and determine the same.' 1. Because the five years within which an appeal can be taken had expired before the appeal was claimed and allowed. 2. Because the entry of the appeal was made without authority, and had been set aside. 3. Because there was no citation. 4. Because the appeal was not seasonably prosecuted. 5. Because the transcript of the record was incomplete. Parties were heard upon that motion, and on the 18th day of April of the same year it was unanimously overruled. (United States vs. Gomez, 1 Wallace, 698.)

"4. Coming to the present term of court, the docket entries show that the motion under consideration was filed by the claimant on the 9th day of February last. He moved the court to strike out certain matters printed in the record, and requested the court to determine the fourth cause assigned in the motion of the preceding term for the dismissal of the cause, which, as he alleges, was not noticed, considered, or decided when the motion was overruled and denied. Both branches of the motion were subsequently argued by counsel, and on the 26th day of February last the motion was overruled; but the Chief Justice, in announcing the result, remarked that the question of jurisdiction would be open when the cause should be argued upon the merits.

"Since that time the cause has been reached in the regular call of the docket, and has been fully argued on both sides. Claimant still denies the jurisdiction of the court, and the counsel have reargued all the questions of jurisdiction presented for decision in the original motion to dismiss.

"5. Three of those questions, to wit, the first, third, and fifth, were carefully examined and decided by this court during the same term in which the motion was filed, and it is only necessary to refer to that decision as the final determination of the court. (United States vs. Gomez, 1 Wallace, 698.) Special mention was not made of the second question presented in the motion, because what was said by the court in disposing of the first question rendered any further remarks upon that subject unnecessary. Express statement of the opinion is that the appeal to this court was allowed on the day therein specified. But the suggestion is that the court did not decide the fourth question presented for decision, and the suggestion, so far as it applies to the opinion of the court, is certainly well founded.

"Fourth objection to the jurisdiction of the court was, that the appeal, even if legally taken and allowed, became null and void for the want of seasonable prosecution. General rule, as established by repeated decisions, undoubtedly is, that the transcript must be filed here, and the case docketed at the term next succeeding the appeal, in order to give this court jurisdiction. (Steamer Virginia vs. West, 19 Howard, 182.) Argument upon that subject is unnecessary, as the rule has been reaffirmed at this term in an opinion delivered by the Chief Justice. (Castro vs. The United States, supra, page 46, 3 Wallace.) Unless the case, therefore, falls within some exception to the general rule of practice, as derived from the act of Congress allowing appeals, the motion of the claimant must prevail.

"6. Certain exceptions to that general rule are recognized and allowed, which are as well established as the rule itself. They are admitted as indispensable limitations to guard against fraud and circumvention, and to prevent a failure of justice. Where the appellant, having seasonably procured the allowance of the appeal, is prevented from obtaining the transcript by the fraud of the other party, or by the order of the court, or by the contumacy of the clerk, the rule does not apply, provided it appears that the appellant was guilty of no laches or want of diligence in his efforts to prosecute the appeal. (United States vs. Booth, 21 Howard, 512.) Order allowing the appeal in this case was entered on the 25th day of August, 1862, but on the 6th day of October following a stipulation was entered in the minutes that the transcript should be withheld until the next term of that court, in order to give the claimant an opportunity to move the court to set aside the order of appeal. Such a motion was accordingly made by the claimant on the 1st day of the succeeding December, and on the 4th day of the same month the court directed that the order allowing the appeal should be vacated and set aside. Reason for vacating the appeal as assigned was that the five years had expired before it was allowed, which is directly contrary to the decision of this court and consequently must be considered as overruled. (United States vs. Gomez, 1 Wallace, 699.) Although the decision of the court was erroneous, still, the proceedings under the motion had the effect to prevent the appellants in the mean time from obtaining a copy of the transcript.

"Session of this court for that term commenced four days before the order of the district court was announced, vacating the appeal. Suppose the explanatory facts stopped here it might well be assumed that it was the conduct of the claimant and the action of the court which prevented the appellants from seasonably perfecting the appeal; but they do not, by any means, stop at that point. Appellants demanded the transcript on the 10th day of October next after the appeal was allowed, and the clerk agreed that it should be prepared and delivered. Failing to obtain it they, on the 2d day of December following, again demanded it, and then, for the first time, were informed by the clerk that he would not furnish the document. Present claimant, on the 6th day of April, 1863, instituted a proceeding in the district court to enjoin the clerk and district attorney from making out and certifying the transcript of the record, upon the ground that the order allowing the appeal was entered without authority of law, and that the appeal had been properly revoked and set aside. Result was that the judge refused to grant the injunction; but he reiterated his opinion that no appeal was pending, and remarked that the procuring copies for the United States, in such a case, was a fraud upon the Government, and was not to be tolerated.

"Six times the demand was made of the clerk for the transcript, and the request, as often as it was made, was refused. Such demand was made by the special counsel of the United States, and by the district attorney, and by the Attorney-General. Throughout the clerk refused to furnish the transcript; but finally consented to furnish the Attorney-General a copy of each paper in the case; and those separate papers, it is understood, were appended together and duly certified by the district attorney, as appears in the record. (12 Statutes at Large, 320.)

"7. Assuming the facts to be as stated, it is obvious that the case falls within the exception to the general rule, as recognized and established in the case of United States vs. Booth, to which reference has already been made. Writ of error in that case was returnable at the December term, 1855, and it was accompanied by a citation requiring the defendant to appear on the first day of that term. No return, however, was made at that time, and on the 1st day of February following, the Attorney-General filed affidavits, showing that the writ of error and citation had been duly served, and that the State court had directed the clerk to make no return. Whereupon this court passed an order commanding the clerk of the State court to make the required return, and the cause was continued; but none such was ever made. Unable to procure any such return, the Attorney-General was allowed, on the 27th day of February, 1857, to file the copy of the record produced when the application was made for the writ of error, and on the 6th day of March following, the court ordered that it should have the same effect as if it had been regularly filed by the clerk. Evidently the power to retain jurisdiction in the case before the court is even better supported than it was in that case, because the transcript in this case is duly certified under a new provision in a subsequent act of Congress. (12 Statutes at Large, 320.)

"8. Mandamus, unquestionably, is the proper remedy where the appeal is refused, and it is an appropriate remedy to compel the production of the transcript. Strong doubts are entertained, however, whether it would have been an adequate remedy in this case, because it is more than probable that, if the motion had been made, the affidavits showing the refusal of the clerk to furnish a copy would have been met by counter-affidavits, showing that the appeal had been vacated; and in that state of the case it would have been difficult for the court to have decided what was right and proper between the parties, without the opportunity of inspecting the record.

"Grant, however, that the appellants might have had an adequate remedy in a motion to this court for a mandamus, still it is clear that they had a right, under the circumstances of this case, to invoke the benefit of the special provision of the act of Congress referred to as a cumulative means of securing their rights Application was accordingly made to the district attorney, and he, without delay, made the certificate exhibited in the record. Conclusion, therefore, is that the case, in either point of view, is regularly before the court, and all the motions to dismiss are overruled.

"9. Regarding the case as regularly before the court, it becomes necessary to examine the merits of the claim. Some suspicion attaches to the claim because it is made for four leagues of land, whereas the only document introduced in support of it which is of the least probative force, represents the original claimant as having asked for but three leagues. Document referred to purports to be the petition of the claimant to the governor, and there is appended to it the usual informe, but there is no concession or grant, nor is there any satisfactory evidence that any title of any kind was ever issued by the governor to the claimant. He states in his petition to the land commissioners that he obtained the map in the record from the proper officers of the department; but the alleged fact is not satisfactorily proved. Four witnesses were examined by the claimant before the land commissioners, but only one of the number pretended that he had ever seen the grant, and his statements are quite too indefinite to be received as satisfactory proof.

"Instead of proving possession under the grant, it is satisfactorily shown that he never occupied it at all; and it is doubtful if he ever saw the premises during the Mexican rule. Land commissioners rejected the claim, but before it came up for a hearing in the district court, his attorney had been appointed district attorney of the United States; and the proofs show that he conveyed two leagues of the land to the district attorney. Circumstances of the confirmation of the claim in the district court are fully stated in the opinion of this court given when the mandate was revoked and recalled (United States v. Gomez, 23 Howard, 339). Comment upon those circumstances is unnecessary, except to say that the confirmation was fraudulently obtained.

"Although the decree was fraudulently obtained, still, inasmuch as it is correct in form, it is sufficient to sustain the appeal for the purpose of correcting the error. Party who procured it can not be allowed to object to its validity as a means of perpetuating the fraud, especially as he did not appeal from the decree.

"The decree of the district court is therefore reversed, and the cause remanded, with directions to dismiss the petition."

It will be seen from this opinion that the Supreme Court reversed the decree of confirmation on the ground that there is not sufficient evidence that any concession or grant was ever made by the Mexican authorities to Gomez. The language of the Supreme Court upon that point is as follows:

"Document referred to purports to be the petition of the claimant to the governor, and there is appended to it the usual informe, but there is no concession or grant, nor is there any satisfactory evidence that any title of any kind was ever issued by the governor to the claimant."

This would seem to put an end to this case, as by the acts of March 3, 1851, and August 3, 1852, above referred to, a patent could only be issued upon the final order or decree of confirmation.

It has been contended before this committee that the Supreme Court took jurisdiction of this appeal after the time limited for appeals had expired, and that the case of the claimant had been prejudiced by the misconduct of Ord and others in securing the confirmatory order of the circuit court for the southern district of California, to which misconduct he had been in no manner a party, and ought not to have been injuriously affected by it; and that if the claimant could have an opportunity he could still show, notwithstanding the decision of the Supreme Court, that his grantor, Gomez, had obtained the grant which the proceedings referred to by the committee resulted in failing to establish. And, therefore, to give the memorialist the fullest opportunity of making good his claim, the committee, upon the motion of Senator Garland, adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, The committee having received the testimony relating to all the judicial proceedings in this cause, in the form of records submitted, that the testimony hereafter be limited to such proofs as may be offered touching the questions of a grant claimed to have been made by the Mexican Government to Vincent P. Gomez, and testimony in rebuttal thereof; and also evidence that may be submitted touching the execution or issuance of a patent by the United States to said Gomez or his assigns."

The additional proofs in support of the claim of Gomez will be found on pages 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 214, 215, 216, and 217 of the printed testimony, consisting of certificates of the official character of Gomez, and the ex parte affidavits of W. A. T. Maddox, Mauricio Gonzales, Gabriel De La Torre, Joaq'n S. Escamilla, J. Mar'no Bonilla, José Antonio Alviso, José Fernandez, and Nicanor Castillo; also R. C. Hopkins, keeper of the Spanish archives, as to the nature and character of the archives and records relating to land titles in California.

This additional testimony, so far as it relates to the grant, is very much of the same character of that taken and submitted to the land commissioners, and embraced in the record passed upon by the Supreme Court, but does not, in the opinion of the committee, remove the difficulties in the way of establishing the grant so pointedly commented upon by the Supreme Court in its decision.

It is unquestionably the duty of the United States, when passing upon the rights or claimed rights of property of Mexican citizens under the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, to consider them in the light of the broadest principles of equity, being governed by the law of nations and laws, usages, and customs of the government from which the claim is derived, applying to them such rules of property as the Supreme Court of the United States may have established with respect to them. And the committee have endeavored in this investigation to be governed by those principles.

Looking to the rules established by the Supreme Court in such cases, we find that the usages and customs of the Mexican Government, as ascertained by the Supreme Court, with respect to such grants, vested in the governor the sole power to grant lands, subject to the approval of the departmental assembly or, finally, of the supreme government on appeal; that the power of the governor to make such grants was not unlimited, but that he could only make them where certain formalities were complied with; that these formalities consisted of a petition by the party seeking the grant, and reference of the petition to some proper magistrate to ascertain whether the land was subject to grant, and whether the party petitioning was an acceptable and proper person to receive it. The report or informe of the officer to whom this reference was made, the concession or decree of the governor granting the land, and the formal grant drawn out reciting the proceedings which led to the grant were attached to the papers termed the expediente, and were filed in the archives of the department. A título or title paper, being a copy of these proceedings, was then made out and delivered to the grantor, and constituted his patent for the lands.

The regulations above referred to required that there should be a record kept of these grants, and for a time this seems to have been complied with; but in later years of the Mexican supremacy in California the record of grants consisted of an entry in a record book entitled "Toma de Razon," with the additional record evidence furnished by the secretary in an index book, styled "Jimeno Index," in which latter book was entered simply a memorandum of the expediente, closing usually with a statement that it had been conceded or rejected.

These last-named books, covering the period within which it is claimed this grant was made, are still extant and in possession of the United States, under the custody of the surveyor-general of the United States for the State of California, and neither of them make any mention of the claim of Gomez. The certificate of the surveyor-general attached to the copy of the petition of Gomez, heretofore incorporated in this report, states the same to be the only documents in the archives relating to said tract called "Panoche Grande."

In the United States against Garcia, reported in 22 Howard, page 274, the Supreme Court decided that a petition to the governor for a grant, referred to the alcalde or proper officer, together with the informe, or report, of that officer favoring the grant, does not constitute any interest or title in the property petitioned for; but that to give any title or claim there must be a decree of concession or formal grant made.

So that it will be seen in this case that the documentary evidence offered in support of the claim falls short of establishing any claim or interest in favor of the claimant in the property.

In cases of this kind it has been repeatedly held by the Supreme Court that, before secondary evidence can be given in support of the title, it must appear by the clearest proof that a concession or grant had actually been made and the record of it had been lost or destroyed. The testimony submitted to your committee upon this point certainly falls very far short of these requirements.

The committee is not inclined to question the authenticity of the papers filed with the land commissioners showing the petition and preliminary proceedings in behalf of Gomez, and it may be said that there does not appear to be any particular reason why the governor might not have made the grant to him which he sought. On the other hand, it may be said with equal fairness that if such a grant had been in point of fact made, it would have been found attached to the papers to which it properly belonged. It is difficult to see why the preliminary papers were preserved and the more important part (being the grant itself) should have been lost.

Again, the petition of Gomez is for a tract containing 3 leagues, a little more or less, while his petition to the land commissioners, and parol proof submitted by him in support of it, claims a grant for 4 leagues. The petition to Micheltorena bounded it "on the north by Don Julian Ursua, on the south with the hills, on the east by the valley of the Tulares, and on the west by Don Francisco Arias," as explained by the map which he attaches to his petition, being the same that is afterwards identified by Abrigo as the map seen by him in the possession of Gomez; while in his petition to the land commissioners he says that the lands claimed by him are bounded "on the south by the land of Francisco Arias, on the north by the lands of Julian Ursua and the low hills, and to the west by the barren hills, as explained by the map hereto annexed," being undoubtedly the same map referred to in his petition for the grant.

The papers found among the Mexican archives and certified to the board of land commissioners, with the map attached to the petition of Gomez, constituted an incomplete expediente, and as such should have been noted in the Jimeno index; but unless a grant had actually been issued, no notice of it was necessary in the "Toma de Razon," but its nonappearance in either register, together with the fact that when these papers were found no order of concession or grant was attached to them, certainly raises a strong presumption that no grant had been made. This presumption should be overcome by very clear proof before any tribunal would be at liberty to receive secondary proof, and the secondary proof offered ought to be of the most satisfactory kind.

These are the elemental rules of evidence in cases of this class, and have been repeatedly applied by the Supreme Court with respect to Mexican titles in California. As a noted case of this kind, the committee cites the United States vs. Teschmaker (22 Howard), opinion by Justice Nelson (page 401). In this case no satisfactory evidence was given of the grant. The documentary evidence, which is certainly the most to be relied on, as far as it goes, being the petition of Gomez to the governor of California and the official indorsements upon it, shows an application for 3 leagues of land, a little more or less, within certain outlying boundaries, circumscribed by certain calls, while the petition filed by Gomez before the land commission and the parol proof given in support of it, claim 4 leagues of land, with boundaries quite different from those named in the unfinished expediente; and yet both the petition and the expediente refer to the same map in support of the boundaries claimed in each. In the first decree confirmatory of the title, enrolled by the district court, the amount of land confirmed was 3 leagues, and in the second it was 4 leagues. This fact caused the Supreme Court to say, in the opinion quoted at length by the committee:

"Some suspicion attaches to the claim, because it is made for 4 leagues of land, whereas the only document introduced in support of it, which is of the least probative force, represents the original claimant as asking for but 3 leagues."

When, however, you add to this the change of calls and outlying boundaries, as shown above, the suspicion grows stronger, and the unsatisfactory character of the parol evidence, which proves, if it proves anything, that a grant was made of a different quantity than the quantity petitioned for, and with different boundaries, is made quite manifest. In commenting on the testimony in the record, which contained all of the evidence submitted to the land commissioners, the Supreme Court say:

"Document referred to purports to be the petition of the claimant to the governor, and there is appended to it the usual informe, but there is no concession or grant, nor any satisfactory evidence that any title of any kind was ever issued by the governor to the claimant."

After a full review of the same evidence, together with the affidavits that have been filed as containing additional evidence, we can say no less than the Supreme Court has said. The probative force of the testimony in support of the grant ends with the documentary evidence, and that terminated with the informe. This only laid the foundation for a grant, but furnishes no proof that in point of fact the grant was made.

But it is claimed by the memorialist that, pursuant to the decision of Secretary of the Interior Caleb B. Smith, reaffirmed by his successor, Mr. Usher, a patent was issued to him as the assignee of Gomez, duly executed, of the date of March 14, 1863, and that said patent was recorded in the records of the office of the General Land Office of the United States, except that by mistake the name of the recorder of the Land Office was omitted in the record of the patent. And while, if such patent had actually issued, its legal effect would, in the opinion of the committee, have been annulled by the final decree of the Supreme Court of the United States, entered in the case after the date of the alleged patent, yet, as the claim of the memorialist for relief rested mainly on the ground that such a patent had in point of fact been issued, and that its probative force had been denied by the Supreme Court because of the omission aforesaid, the committee, as indicated in the resolution adopted to govern its action in hearing the case, received and considered all of the testimony submitted to it bearing on this question.

The certified copy of the record of the alleged patent, made an exhibit in the memorial of the claimant, was presented to and inspected by the committee. It had all of the signatures attached which the law requires, except the signature of the recorder. It was dated, as will be seen by the copy attached to the memorial, on the 14th day of March, 1863. The committee also examined the record and found that it corresponded with the copy, except that the date and signatures appear to have been erased by drawing red lines across them. This the testimony showed had been done some time subsequent to the making of the record.

There was evidence taken tending to show that President Lincoln, or his clerk Stoddard, had signed the instrument from which this record was made. There was no evidence that the recorder or acting recorder of the Land Office had signed it. An instrument purporting to be an incomplete patent was produced from the files of the General Land Office, and upon examination proved to be an exact copy of the certified copy of the record attached to the memorial, except that there were no signatures to it and it was without date. It is not claimed that that instrument, or that any instrument of the kind had ever been delivered to the claimant McGarrahan or to any authorized agent, but it was claimed that the last sheets of the completed patent signed by the President, by his countersigning clerk, and dated of the date of the record, had been surreptitiously removed and another sheet without date or signature substituted in its stead. The committee have examined with great care the proof submitted and do not find that it supports the charge. On the contrary, the committee is of opinion that the instrument is now in the exact condition it was when the order of Acting Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Otto, suspended the issuance of the patent. This order bears date the 14th day of March, 1863, being the same date that is written in the record of the patent.

It seems that, on the 29th of December, 1862, the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Smith, had held that the decree of confirmation of the circuit court of the United States for the southern district of California had become final, and, in the opinion of the Secretary, no appeal could then be prosecuted from it to the Supreme Court, as more than five years had elapsed since the entry of the decretal order of said circuit court, being the order of June 5, 1857, although the decree under which the memorialist claimed was not entered until February 5, 1858. Yet, as this decree was entered under a nunc pro tunc order of the court, it was held by the Secretary that it related back for all purposes to the date of the decretal order of June 5, 1857. Thus reasoning, he ordered a patent to be issued. This order was affirmed by his successor, Mr. Usher, but some delay took place in executing these orders.

It turned out that both Mr. Smith and Mr. Usher had been misinformed as to the facts, and that an appeal had been allowed on the 25th of August, 1862, which was afterward perfected in the Supreme Court, as shown by the decision of that court hereinbefore quoted at length. It is true that the judge who allowed the appeal, taking the same view of the question stated in the decision of Mr. Smith as to the effect of the nunc pro tunc order on the right of appeal, attempted at a subsequent time to vacate the order allowing the appeal, but as the Supreme Court disregarded the vacating order of the judge, it can not be claimed that the decision of the Secretary on the point is of any higher authority than the void order of the judge. Indeed, it seems strange that any one having even a moderate knowledge of the law should so hold.

No appeal could by any possibility have been prayed until after the decree had been entered, and the first degree was not entered until the 7th of January, 1858. The decree under which the memorialist claims was not entered until February 5, 1858, and if by saying "now for then" the court could make the right of appeal relate back to the 5th of June, 1857, when the court intended to enter the decree, but did not, so as to make the statute of limitations on the right of appeal begin to run, the committee does not see but that if the claimant had quietly waited until after five years had expired from the date of the decretal order and then had a decree enrolled nunc pro tunc, he could have cut off the right of appeal entirely.

But as this question was put at rest by the action of the Supreme Court in taking cognizance of the appeal, it is only necessary to refer to it as one of the strange phases of this strange case. Before the orders of the Secretaries had been carried into effect, the then Attorney-General, Mr. Bates, perceiving that a patent was about to issue, sent a written request, dated March 12, 1863, to the Secretary of the Interior to withhold the patent. This came to the Acting Secretary, Mr. Otto, and on the 14th of the same month, having first sent a clerk to the Commissioner of the Land Office with a verbal request to withhold the patent, he, in writing, countermanded the order for its issuance, and thus ended the question of the patent.

The letters of Attorney-General Bates and Acting Secretary of the Interior Otto will be found on pages 736 and 737 of the printed record, and are as follows:

"ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
"Washington, March 12, 1863.

"SIR: I have been informed that an application has been made to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for the issue of a patent for a tract of land in the State of California, called Panoche Grande, claimed by Vicente P. Gomez.

"I have the honor to request that you will forbid the issuing of a patent for this tract of land for the following reasons:

"The claim of Gomez to this tract of land was rejected by the board of land commissioners, and, having been removed from the district court of the northern district of California to that of the southern district, a decree of confirmation was obtained from that court under circumstances which exhibit strong evidence of collusion and fraud, as will be seen by the history of the case, as reported in 23d How., 326. The judge from whom that decree was obtained, having reason to believe that imposition had been practiced on him, and that the decree was improvidently made, entertained a motion for a rehearing of the case, which motion was continued from time to time.

"Having been informed that the successor of that judge had overruled that motion, I wrote to the United States district attorney for that district calling his attention to the general order to obtain an appeal in all land cases decided against the United States, and directing him to appeal this case to the Supreme Court of the United States. For some unexplained reason this appeal, if taken, has not yet reached that court. But I desire and intend to have the case brought before the Supreme Court for review. I understand that the claim is alleged to cover a most valuable mine of quicksilver. It is also alleged to be utterly fraudulent and invalid. It ought to be adjudicated by the Supreme Court, so that the United States may have what it has not yet had, a fair chance to test its validity. Under these circumstances it is hardly necessary to say that to grant the claimants a patent before the Government has had that chance would be improper. I therefore beg to ask that you will make known these facts to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, to the end that the application of the claimant or his assignees may not be granted.

"I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
"EDW. BATES, Attorney-General.

"Hon. J. P. USHER,
"Secretary of the Interior."

"DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
"Washington, March 14, 1863.

"SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 12th instant, requesting me to forbid the issuing of a patent for the tract of land in California called Panoche Grande, claimed by Vicente P. Gomez: and to inform you that, in accordance with your desire, I have directed the Commissioner of the General Land Office to suspend the issuing of a patent until further advised on the subject.

"I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
"W. T. OTTO, Acting Secretary.

"Hon. EDWARD BATES,
"Attorney-General of the United States."

This transaction is fully explained by Mr. Otto in his testimony found on pages 611 and 612 of the testimony:

"By Mr. ELLIOT:

"Q. State whether you took any action after you received that letter.

"A. I received the letter the day after it bears date.

"It was the 13th.

"I directed one of the clerks of the Department, and I believe it was Mr. Henry Beard, who then had charge of the land desk of the Department of the Interior, immediately to go to the Land Office and ascertain whether the patent referred to in the letter had been issued, and if not, to delay the issuing of the patent, and I would send a formal order directing the suspension of the issuing of the patent until the Commissioner of the General Land Office should be further advised by the Secretary of the Interior. Mr. Beard, or the clerk to whom I gave the order, took the letter of the Attorney-General with him, and went to the Commissioner of the General Land Office or started to go there. He returned shortly afterward and informed me that the patent had not been executed, and thereupon I addressed, as Acting Secretary of the Interior, an official communication upon the subject to the Commissioner of the General Land Office."

The testimony of the clerk who prepared the patent and the clerk who recorded it fully explain the apparent discrepancy between the record and the instrument recorded, and although much testimony was taken in the effort to throw doubt upon the genuineness of the instrument now on the files of the General Land Office, the committee take pleasure in saying the testimony falls far short of proving that so bold a forgery as the alleged alteration of it suggests has taken place in one of the most important bureaus of the Government: the most important so far as private rights are concerned.

The conclusion to which the committee has come on the question of the patent, therefore, is, that it did not in fact issue; and that, therefore, the claimant never had any such evidence of title as its issuance would have furnished to him even for the brief time that intervened between its alleged date and the decrees of the Supreme Court, by which a final end was put to all claim on the part of the memorialist to the lands in question.

There was much testimony submitted to the committee that was wholly foreign to the inquiries before it, but so intermingled with that which was deemed to be relevant as to make it difficult for the committee to exclude it. The only office that it performed was to lay the foundation for crimination and recrimination between the claimant and his adversaries, the New Idria Mining Company. In the review of the testimony the committee have studiously left out of view all of this irrelevant matter, and have sought to consider the questions submitted on their merits.

If the claim of the memorialist is just, and such as the Government ought to protect, no misconduct on his part in the manner of prosecuting it, if any such occurred, ought to debar him of the proper relief; and if the claim is one that can not be sustained on its merits, then no belief of the claimant as to its justness should compel a decision in his favor.

Nor can the claimant occupy the position of an innocent purchaser of an apparently good title without notice of its defects. He bought his first interest in it pendente lite, and before any decree had been enrolled. He took a deed from Pacificus Ord for the remaining interest after he had fully connected himself with the litigation pending to establish the title. He took such title as his grantors had and no other or better title, and by such title he must stand or fall. As to the truth of these propositions there can be no question.

In conclusion, the committee find:

First. That there was no patent from the United States to Vicente P. Gomez prepared and duly signed by the President, or his secretary acting for him, and complete in all its parts excepting only the attesting signature of the recorder of the General Land Office.

Second. That there was no grant made by Micheltorena, the Mexican governor of California, to Vicente P. Gomez, of the land known as the Rancho Panoche Grande.

Third. That the memorialist is entitled to no further relief.

Mr. SANDERS. In the House of Representatives the validity of this claim was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, a very eminent committee. The name of John Randolph Tucker is an appropriate and formal introduction of that committee to this body. They gave to it there the same supreme consideration that our committee did in this body. They set aside other business, they listened to these pitiful and plaintive appeals, they went over all these thousands of pages of literature, that I have avoided because they are the most nauseous chapter in our legislative history, and a majority of that committee, not the whole of it, come to the conclusion that there was no merit in this case.

The minority of the committee, however, which consisted of Mr. Patrick A. Collins, of Massachusetts, and Messrs. Maybury and Bisbee, arrived at a conclusion not that the bill ought to pass, not that any such bill as this ought to pass—such a proposition as this is an anomaly in all of our legislative history—but they recognize the fact that the United States in respect to this piece of ground was a trustee, if this claim was good for anything, and that the only duty that that trustee was charged with was the duty of seeing that it again was examined on a correct basis and determined intelligently. At that time the ground had not been patented so far as I know to these citizens of the United States who were striving to obtain a patent to it.

I speak of the mine. The majority of that committee said that the duties of the United States as a trustee had been fully and completely and honorably performed, and that as a result of that performance no right or title in any shape or form vested in this beneficiary, and that all his suggestions of reason based upon the infidelity of coördinate and coequal tribunals to the trusts confided to them formed no sufficient excuse why it should be again examined and again be subjected to the determination of these tribunals. The passage of that bill would not have been vicious like this; it would not have been an anomaly like this; it would not have been fraught with consequences so grave as those that would follow the passage of this bill. It would not have been an example so flagitious as this.

I must say that so far as this bill is concerned I think the President wisely refused to yield to it his assent when it was presented to him, without the amplest opportunity to investigate all the circumstances of it. I must say that in my judgment if he had examined it he would have arrived at a conclusion that under no circumstances could the Treasury of the United States be approached for indemnity for wrongs done to this beneficiary by the Supreme Court of the United States or by the former officers of the Executive Departments; that he would have ascertained that the approaches to our tribunals of justice in behalf of this claim have been through the sewers instead of boldly in the face of day; that the claim itself was covered by processes of action and suggestions of motives that stamped it as one not entitled to occupy the attention of Congress longer; and that he would have been able to convince every gentleman upon this floor that every right of this beneficiary, with the most painstaking and conscientious intelligence, had been examined and annihilated by men whose names for all that they have done, and particularly for this great service, will be renowned in the annals of the Republic so long as claims against the Treasury endure.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. President, this claim has been before Congress and before the Departments for very many years and there is no excuse for any man in public life not thoroughly understanding the question. It has been presented to Congress a great number of times. There have been fifteen reports made by either the House of Representatives or the Senate recognizing the validity and the equity of this claim. There have been some, a very much less number, made in favor of the rejection of the claim. The claim was before the Interior Department for many years before it came here. It was fully recognized in the Department by at least two Secretaries of the Interior as a valid and legal claim. It had the recognition of the President of the United States, who signed a patent, which by some fraudulent contrivance (of which I am not at liberty to speak and which is not necessary for our consideration) was concealed and kept from the knowledge of the petitioner in this case until very many years after it could have done him any good. The fact that such a patent was signed by Mr. Lincoln is not denied, I believe, to-day by anybody, or if anybody does deny it he denies it in the face of unquestioned evidence.

In the first place, the Senator from Montana has either not read the bill or he does not deal fairly with the Senate. He lays down the proposition that Mr. McGarrahan, if entitled to the land, is not entitled to the mineral. That is one of the questions submitted to the court in express language, so that the Senator can have no possible excuse for rejecting the bill on that ground. The bill provides that if in law or equity (and it is a pure question of law, a question of law, as the Senator said, that is still pending, and pending now in the United States Supreme Court) it shall be found that the petitioner is entitled to the mineral, then the court shall find accordingly. So there are two questions——

Mr. McPHERSON. Will the Senator from Colorado permit me to ask him a question in order to throw a little light on this subject?

Mr. TELLER. Certainly.

Mr. McPHERSON. I understood the Senator to say that the patent had been signed by Mr. Lincoln when President of the United States. Will the Senator inform me what the practice of the Government is with respect to such patents? Does the title vest in the claimant before the patent is delivered to him, and, if not, what is the reason why the patent was not delivered after having been signed by the President of the United States?

Mr. TELLER. The Supreme Court of the United States has held within the last fifteen years that the signing of a patent by the President without the delivery created a title in the patentee.

Mr. SANDERS. Has it not been decided by the Supreme Court of the United States that what is requisite is not the signing of a patent by the President or his secretary, but the recording of it and the signing of it by the recorder?

Mr. TELLER. Perhaps technically that is correct. In this case the record was made, as was positively proved, and it is not disputed. It subsequently disappeared from the record by a mutilation of the files of the Interior Department.

Mr. SANDERS. Do I understand the Senator to say it is not disputed that the recorder signed the record of the patent or the patent?

Mr. TELLER. I do not think it can be disputed, although I can see that anything may be disputed. The proof is clear, I think—it was clear to my mind both when I examined the case as a Senator and when I examined it in another capacity—that it had been accepted by the recorder and approved and entered of record, and a patent is never entered of record until it is approved by the recorder. That it was entered of record I say can not be disputed, and that knowledge was concealed from Mr. McGarrahan and his friends until 1870. If he had had that knowledge when he went into the court there would have been an end of this controversy.

It may be, Mr. President, that our action in passing the bill would be a reflection upon one department of the Government or another. The facts will justify us in that reflection. This case was first before the land commission. The land commission decided that Mr. Gomez was entitled to the land under all the proof except that he had not entered into actual possession. The land commission, a commission created by the Government of the United States, its own tribunal, decided everything in his favor except a question of law which they decided against him. Subsequently the Supreme Court declared in a case that is not distinguished from this, and which has been the law of the case ever since, that it was not necessary that there should be possession. An appeal had been taken by Mr. Gomez, as he might under the law, to the district court. Thereupon the district court for the southern district of California reversed the action of the commissioners and sent the case back, and the commissioners confirmed their action, and practically and legally adjudicated the title to be in Mr. McGarrahan.

Now, I wish to touch upon the question of the action of the United States attorney. I do not know whether he is still living, but I do not think it is fair to leave the impression the Senator from Montana intended the Senate should get, that this man had by corrupt practices accepted this title when it was not a proper title. He notified the Attorney-General that he was a partner in this property and asked that somebody should be appointed to look after the interests of the United States. If nobody was appointed it is no reflection upon him. Nobody was appointed.

The question of facts before the commissioners has never been disputed that I know of, neither have many of the points. It was determined that Mr. Gomez was the owner. Then Mr. McGarrahan's connection comes into this case. Not until after the tribunals of the United States created for the purpose of determining the title had determined that Mr. Gomez, the original grantee from the Mexican Government, was the owner did Mr. McGarrahan buy. He bought then as any citizen of the United States had a right to buy. He bought when, I say as a lawyer, in my judgment, the case had become final against the United States. An examination of the report made by Senator WILSON of this body in 1868, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the other House, will, I think, convince any one that I have not made a misstatement with reference thereto.

This being the case, Mr. McGarrahan having come into the property, it having become final, apparently, before the Commission in accordance with the then practice and in accordance with the law, he came to the Department of the Interior for his patent. Caleb B. Smith, who was Mr. Lincoln's Secretary of the Interior, declared (and it is in the report which has been made and is on the files of the Department) that under the law Mr. McGarrahan was entitled to the patent. The patent was not issued during Mr. Smith's administration; and when John P. Usher came in he again examined the matter and affirmed what Mr. Smith had declared. Thereupon Mr. Lincoln issued the patent, after, I think it will be shown by an examination of the report and the record, an examination of the case himself. How much examination the President could give the case under those circumstances of course I do not know, but the evidence warrants me in stating that Mr. Lincoln himself did give some personal attention to this case and the patent was issued.

Why the patent was not delivered nobody can tell, except the fact is known that about or before this time there came into existence a great, strong, financial corporation known as the New Idria Mining Company, a company mining quicksilver on this particular grant. The New Idria Mining Company became the real legal contestant, not the Government of the United States.

The Senator from Montana spoke of this case as a nauseating case. Mr. President, I think a careful examination of the records of the case will show that it is a nauseating case, but not a nauseating case on the part of the petitioner here. It is a nauseating case owing to the conduct of many men who were in official position in those days.

The case is too voluminous for me to go over it in detail. First, the Commission charged with this duty practically decided in favor of the grantee, but refused to give the certificate on a question of law, which the Supreme Court declared was erroneous. Then the district court reversed the action of the commissioners, and the commissioners acquiesed in the decision of the court, because the question of fact they had found in his favor. Subsequently, in an irregular manner an appeal was taken, undoubtedly at the instigation of this corporation, not by the United States, to the Supreme Court of the United States. On a proper representation to the then Attorney-General, Jeremiah S. Black, the appeal was ordered to be dismissed, and the appeal was dismissed. A mandate went from the Supreme Court of the United States to the district court of California that the case should be affirmed, and it was affirmed.

Long after, by some jugglery, by some proceedings that neither I nor any other man has ever been able to understand, there was an erasure of the records in the district court of Southern California. The case then got again into the Supreme Court of the United States, long after the term for which the mandate had been issued had expired. The Supreme Court of the United States then took it upon itself to reverse its own mandate, and in that way took jurisdiction of the case.

If there is any one principle of law settled better than another in this country amongst lawyers it is that a court has no power after the term has adjourned, unless a statute gives the power to it, to interfere with its records; they become final and complete. The Supreme Court of the United States is on record in a great number of cases, cases that I need not cite to a body of lawyers, to the effect that that was a finality, and that they could not reverse and review their own decision unless there was a statute authorizing them so to do. Nobody claims that there was such a statute in this case. Upon that action there was a finding in 1866 against the petitioner in this case, and that is the finding we seek to remove.

Now, what is sought here? Is it anything very strange? We say that this land court shall try first the question, was there a legal grant to Mr. Gomez? That is the first question that this court is to find, and not, as the Senator from Montana suggests, that it is accepted as a fact. That is to be proved. First the inquiry is, was there a valid grant made to Gomez by the Mexican Government? If they decide that there was, then that settles the question as to the right of McGarrahan to the land that is still in the possession of the United States; and that is all it settles. Then the next inquiry ex industria in the bill is that the court shall then determine whether in law or in equity he is entitled to compensation for the minerals. If the law is as the Senator from Montana says it is, that quicksilver is a royal mineral and does not go with the grant, the court will so find. Then all this bill carries is simply the few dozen acres of valueless land for which he has been contending for many years from the State of California.

Mr. WHITE. Will the Senator allow me to ask him a question? Will it disturb him if I do?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Colorado yield to the Senator from Louisiana?

Mr. TELLER. Certainly.

Mr. WHITE. I call the Senator's attention to section 4 of the proposed act. I ask the Senator whether, under section 4 of the bill, there is any submission to the court of the legal question of McGarrahan's right to compensation from the United States for use and occupation, and whether the bill does not simply submit to the court the amount of the use and occupation.

Mr. TELLER. The third section provides:

> That if said court shall find and adjudge that the said grant from the said Governor Manuel Micheltorena to said Vicente P. Gomez was valid and protected under and by virtue of the treaty, etc.—

then they shall give to him the land. The fourth section says:

> That if the court shall adjudge in favor of said William McGarrahan as provided in section 3, the United States shall indemnify the said William McGarrahan for such portion of land as may have been heretofore and may hereafter be disposed of.

It is to be taken as a matter of course that if it was his land and the Government has disposed of it the Government shall compensate him for it. I suppose he will get the magnificent sum of $5 an acre, for which this mine was sold by the United States, and a dollar and a quarter an acre for the remainder of the land that the Government has sold.

The other point, which is the great objection of the Senator from Montana to the bill, is that there will be a great claim made against the United States. These are the words of the bill—> and for any mineral or valuable substance whatever extracted from said lands by any person or corporation other than the said William McGarrahan, and if the said court shall find that the said William McGarrahan is or was entitled in law or equity to the minerals or valuable substances, etc.

I say it does not make any difference what the amount is if the Government of the United States has by its strong hand taken away from him that which is his. It ill becomes this body or any member of it to stand here and say we will not do justice in this case because the magnitude is too great. Small justice we will mete out to citizens of the United States, but not adequate and complete justice. If it is a little affair we will do what is right, but if it is a big affair we will not do it.

Mr. FAULKNER. Will the Senator from Colorado permit me to interrupt him?

Mr. TELLER. Certainly.

Mr. FAULKNER. In reading the ninth line on page 6, if I caught the words of the Senator correctly, he left out the word "and" after the word "McGarrahan." How would he construe the clause in the fourth section commencing on line 6, "and for any mineral or valuable substance," down to "lands" in line 12, by the use of the words "and if" after the word "McGarrahan," following the clause as to mineral or valuable substance?

Mr. TELLER. The whole of it must be construed together. There can be no question about that. The question is left to the court to determine whether he was entitled to it under the law. If he was entitled to it under the law, if the patent of the United States would have given him property in that mineral, then the United States is to compensate him for it, otherwise not.

Mr. WHITE. I beg the Senator's pardon. The question which I asked him was about the use and occupation. He has answered by referring to the clause in the bill as to minerals.

Mr. TELLER. "Use" and "occupation" are terms that might have been left out. Everybody knows that the use and occupation of the land would amount to practically nothing. The real question here, and what this party seeks, there is no use in disguising. He seeks to recover from the United States, if he has been wrongfully deprived of it by the United States, something more than simply the small amount of rental for the occupation of the land by somebody, or more than the $1.25, or the $2.50, or the $5 an acre for which the land may have been sold.

Mr. FAULKNER. If the Senator will permit me, I wish to see whether he construes the words "and if" in line 9 as though it read "provided?"

Mr. TELLER. I do.

Mr. FAULKNER. That is what I wanted to understand.

Mr. TELLER. Otherwise the words are absolutely meaningless.

Mr. President, I am not going into the details of this transaction, because the Senator from Iowa [Mr. WILSON], who has been more connected with the examination of it than I have, although I have had considerable to do with it, desires, I believe, to be heard on the question. I do not want to take up too much time.

Mr. FRYE. Will the Senator from Colorado pardon me a moment?

Mr. TELLER. Certainly.

Mr. FRYE. I see the President in his message makes the point that if it is found by the court that the title is in Gomez, the court is not required to find that he made any assignment to McGarrahan.

Mr. TELLER. I will speak of that. It was not put in the bill because there never has been any controversy as to the assignment by Mr. Gomez to Mr. McGarrahan. That has everywhere and always gone as a matter of course. There would have been no objection if such a clause had been put in the bill.

Mr. MITCHELL. It was shown in the courts that the assignment had been made.

Mr. TELLER. That was shown in the courts and repeatedly in the controversies which have arisen, and no question has been raised on that point. The question was the bona fide title of Gomez himself, and that is the very first question that is submitted by the bill to the court.

It is a case simply where the United States has had a verdict against a man under circumstances that we believe to be inequitable and unjust, and the bill simply remits the whole question to a tribunal created by the United States itself, to be defended by United States agents and attorneys, with the right of examination not only by this court but by the court of appeals and the Supreme Court of the United States. If there is no title in this man, as the Senator from Montana insists, neither he nor anybody need be afraid to submit this question to a court of that kind. In the first place, if there is no title, this court, created for the purpose of adjudicating land titles in the United States between the Government of the United States and its citizens, will determine that question properly. If they fail to determine it properly, the Supreme Court of the United States has an opportunity to determine it.

Mr. President, the objection to this bill does not lie there. The objection that is being made to the bill, whether Senators are brave enough to own it or not, is that they think the United States may be compelled to pay for the misconduct of its officials more than they think they can afford to pay to do justice between the Government of the United States and one of its citizens.

Mr. President, this case has attracted national attention, and if in the annals of legislation and judicial inquiry where the English language is spoken or written there is a case that calls for more severe condemnation and criticism than this I have never seen it. I think that I will be borne out in that statement by nearly everybody who has gone to the bottom of this case.

If the Senate of the United States and the people of the United States are not willing to do justice, let them say that it is too big a sum of money and they can not afford to do it. How much will it be? Whatever the court shall declare it to be, and whatever this body and the other House of Congress are willing, after the declaration, to appropriate money for. When the decision has been rendered and the amount has been calculated and found, it still has to come before the legislative department of the country for the appropriation. I do not think that anybody need to be afraid of it. It has been a standing scandal for twenty-five years, and if we can get it off of our record and have the people of the United States say at last the Government of the United States is willing to do justice to one of its citizens who has been wronged through the official agency and machinery of the Government, I think it will redound to the interest of good government everywhere and strengthen the people in their attachment to this Government of ours.

If Senators will take the report made by Mr. WILSON in 1868, and practically followed by me in my report on behalf of the committee in the present Congress, they will see that injustice has been done: and the only question is now whether we are willing to submit to our own tribunals, including the court that did have this case before it once, an opportunity to say now, Did you or did you not wrong this individual?

Mr. President, our plighted faith went out when we made the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo that we would maintain intact all the titles that the Mexican Government had given to its citizens. When our own tribunal had declared, after several years of examination and attention, that the title was in this Mexican grantee, then and only then a citizen of the United States became the purchaser of the land in good faith, as he had a right. The bill does not open the door to any improper conduct here, unless the Senator from Montana believes that it is improper for the Government of the United States to do justice to the humblest citizen as well as to its greatest.

Mr. HUNTON. Mr. President, before I enter upon the subject-matter of discussion I desire to make a statement somewhat personal to myself. For a good many years I was counsel for the claimant in this case, but I will state that never in my life have I received one dollar of compensation for my services. I will state further that before the present session began, the relations between Mr. McGarrahan and myself as client and attorney were entirely severed, and I stand on the floor to-day having no more interest in the claim of William McGarrahan to the Panoche Grande than any other Senator here. But I have examined this case time and again. I am probably more familiar with the details of it than almost any other member of this body, and I beg the pardon of the Senate while I go somewhat more into details than the Senators who have preceded me.

The claim of William McGarrahan to the Panoche Grande arises under the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo between the United States on the one part and Mexico on the other. One stipulation in that treaty was that all the rights of Mexicans to any property in the lands ceded by the Government of Mexico to the United States should be protected by the United States and guaranteed to the parties who had rights under the Mexican Government.

In obedience to that treaty obligation of the United States a land court was appointed in 1851, consisting of three very distinguished lawyers of the United States. The act organizing the court was passed by the Congress of the United States on the 3d of February, 1851. That court was charged with the duty of carrying out the provisions of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo and confirming the grants made by the Government of Mexico to any Mexicans before the treaty of peace was concluded.

This land commission assembled in the State of California, and among other claims brought before that court was that of the applicant assignor, Vicente P. Gomez. At that time, by reason of the fact that the American arms had taken possession of the archives of the government of California and the papers were all scattered in every direction, when Gomez filed his petition to the land court he was unable to file with it any of the papers connected with the grant, except one. It turned out that in the progress of the investigation of this case the court sent to examine all the archives. Frémont had taken possession of Monterey, where the archives of that government were located, and had turned them over pell mell to some custodian in the State of California. The land court directed that those papers should be examined to see if any of the papers connected with the grant to Gomez were still in existence. They fortunately found a good many. They found every paper connected with the grant of the governor of California, Micheltorena by name, to Gomez, except the grant itself, which, in the progress of war between the United States and Mexico, was unfortunately destroyed.

When the case came up before the land commissioners there was no grant, but there was proof before the commission that the grant had been given by Governor Micheltorena to Vicente P. Gomez, and upon that evidence, documentary and oral, the land commission found that Gomez had obtained a grant. The grant was proven to the satisfaction of the commission, but there was no proof that Gomez had ever occupied the place, and for that reason the commission found against Gomez.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia will please suspend. The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, it is the duty of the Chair to lay before the Senate the unfinished business, which is the bill (H. R. 7845) defining "options" and "futures," imposing special taxes on dealers therein, and requiring such dealers and persons engaged in selling certain products to obtain license, and for other purposes.

Mr. TELLER. The Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WASHBURN], who has the unfinished business in charge, is not quite willing that we shall go on with the pending bill. I ask that it may go over and come up again after the routine business to-morrow morning, and that the Senator from Virginia [Mr. HUNTON] may have the floor when its consideration is resumed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Colorado? The Chair hears none.

PUYALLUP INDIAN RESERVATION LANDS.

Mr. ALLEN. I wish to make an inquiry of the Chair. The bill (S. 3056) giving consent of Congress to the removal by the Legislature of the State of Washington of the restrictions upon the power of alienation of a portion of the lands in the Puyallup Indian Reservation, upon certain conditions therein contained, was made the special order for 2 o'clock to-day. Other matters having been specially assigned and occupying the attention of the Senate, I wish to inquire whether that bill will retain its place on the Calendar of Special Orders and be heard after the cases before it have been disposed of?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The unfinished business takes precedence of all special orders; and special orders, in respect to which the time for which they were set has passed, will hereafter take precedence of each other in the order in which they were made special. The bill indicated by the Senator from Washington will remain a special order and will take precedence of other special orders made a subsequent date.

PRINTING AND DISTRIBUTING OF DOCUMENTS.

Mr. COCKRELL. I notice that what is known as the printing bill was not ordered to be printed yesterday as it was passed by the House of Representatives. I ask that the bill may be printed as it was passed by the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. An order will be made to print the bill (S. 1549) providing for the public printing and binding and distribution of public documents if there be no objection. The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE SERVICE.

Mr. MORGAN. I desire to be relieved from further service upon the Committee on Public Lands.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama asks to be excused from further service on the Committee on Public Lands. Is there objection? The Chair hears none. The Senator from Alabama is excused, and the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. VILAS] is appointed to fill the vacancy.

ABANDONED MILITARY RESERVATIONS IN WYOMING.

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2093) to provide for the disposal of certain abandoned military reservations in the State of Wyoming.

The amendments of the House of Representatives were: On page 1, line 15, to strike out the words "either of the;" and on page 1, line 15, after the word "laws" to insert "if qualified."

Mr. CAREY. As the amendments are simply corrections of clerical errors, I move that the Senate concur in them.

The motion was agreed to.

DEALING IN "OPTIONS" AND "FUTURES."

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7845) defining "options" and "futures," imposing special taxes on dealers therein, and requiring such dealers and persons engaged in selling certain products to obtain license, and for other purposes; the pending question being on the amendment of Mr. DANIEL, to strike out section 10.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE] is entitled to the floor.

Mr. GEORGE. Mr. President, my purpose this morning is to continue the discussion of the bill to prevent dealings in "futures" and "options;" and I think it a proper preliminary remark to say that I see it stated in the New York papers that because the Senate yesterday dared to exercise and to perform its constitutional function and duty of considering this bill, cotton was made to fall two or three or four or five points, thereby undertaking to force this body to cease the performance of a grave, constitutional duty. To show that this action on the part of the New York Cotton Exchange and the speculators therein was purely factitious, purely in the spirit of bravado, I have but to call the attention of the Senate to the fact that whilst cotton goes down because the Senate dares to consider this bill, corn and provisions, also embraced in this bill, in the city of Chicago go up. I take it that Senators will treat such threats, such menaces, with that proper degree of contempt to which they are entitled.

I was speaking yesterday evening when I gave up the floor of the character of the New York Cotton Exchange. I called the very remarkable provisions of the charter and by-laws of that exchange to the attention of the Senate. This morning I desire to make another observation or two upon that subject.

It was shown yesterday—and I desire to call the attention of Senators to it—that that exchange, through one of its organs, assumes to be the controlling market of the world on cotton, that it assumes to have the power, and actually exercises it, of fixing the price of cotton to suit its own views of what is right and proper. I have shown that it had extraordinary powers, legislative and executive, and now I desire to call the attention of the Senate to the fact that it is really an imperium in imperio; it also has judicial powers. Let me explain to the Senate, so that we may know with what sort of an institution we are dealing.

By the provisions of the charter granted by the Legislature of the State of New York the judicial power is granted to the New York Cotton Exchange of summoning witnesses, a thing unheard of before, except by a regularly organized court. Bear that in mind; then bear in mind, Mr. President, that all this immense trading in futures, amounting during the last year to 40,000,000 bales of cotton on the floor of the exchange of the city of New York, can only be transacted by members of that exchange. No producer of cotton, no citizen of the United States who is not a member of the exchange, which fixes the price of its membership at $10,000, can go on the floor of that exchange and deal in the agricultural products whose prices that exchange assumes to fix.

How is it done? How are outsiders to deal with this thing? Everybody knows that outsiders do deal in futures. How do they do it? Their names are never known on the records of the cotton exchange. There are certain men who are members of that exchange, and who are on that account amenable to its jurisdiction, who are called "future brokers," and a man who is not a member of the exchange is obliged to employ them. The contracts are made not in the name of the outsider who gives the order. I want the Senate to understand that, because this is a very important point. A citizen of Mississippi desires to make a purchase or a sale of futures; he is not a member of the New York Exchange; he gives his order to Mr. A, who is a member. Mr. A makes that contract of purchase or sale in his own name with Mr. B, who is also a broker of that exchange, and he also always contracts in his own name. The Mississippian is never known except upon the books of the broker. That produces this state of facts, that that contract, however valuable it may be to the outsider, to the Mississippian, is absolutely subject to the jurisdiction of the New York Cotton Exchange. There is a provision in the by-laws which I will read, so that Senators may understand with what they are dealing. Section 19 of article 2 of the rules and by-laws of the New York Cotton Exchange reads as follows:

> SEC. 19. All claims, disputes, differences, and controversies between members of the exchange, arising out of any transactions in cotton or print cloths—

But that may be left out on the present occasion—

> unless such transactions shall have been negotiated through a broker or brokers not members of the exchange—

And then it could not have been negotiated upon the floor of the exchange and would not be noticed in the report of the exchange.

> Shall be subjects of and determined by arbitration as hereinafter provided, if notice in writing of such claim, dispute, difference, or controversy, and of the intention to demand an arbitration thereon, be served by either party upon the opposite party or parties thereto within thirty days from the discovery thereof, but not otherwise.
>
> SEC. 20. Either party to such claim, dispute, difference, or controversy, or if there be apparently more than two members of the exchange interested therein, any two of the parties thereto shall have the right to demand an arbitration thereon, if notice thereof be given as required in the last preceding section.

So that every contract involved in the purchase and sale of 40,000,000 bales of cotton, every dispute concerning it can only be adjudicated by the arbitration committee of the exchange. The members of the exchange are subject to its jurisdiction, and they allow no man who is not a member of the exchange, be he a broker or otherwise, to trade in the exchange except in the name of a broker or member of the exchange. So that the New York Cotton Exchange as to all the immense transactions passing through it is as fully exempt from the operation of a writ emanating from the State courts of New York or the United States courts sitting in New York as if the exchange and its members were located in the city of Liverpool. In other words, these men have created in that exchange the right of sanctuary, by which and through which every transaction connected with the immense business of that exchange is taken away from the courts of the country and left to the determination of the exchange itself.

Taking in view what I said yesterday, its immense powers, the enormous number of contracts made, the effects which the contracts have upon the cotton trade of this country, and then, Mr. President, you see that this exchange really dominates that trade not only in its transactions but in the settlement of all disputes connected with them. More than that, by the terms of the charter the award of the arbitration committee can be filed in the supreme court of New York, and ipso facto upon its filing it becomes the judgment of the court and the court is bound to enforce it.

Something was said yesterday about the membership of the exchange. It was claimed that the farmers of the country were represented in it.

Now, sir, I desire to read to the Senate some information on that subject which I did not present yesterday. I do not regard that as a very material point, and am only reading it for the purpose of showing that I was substantially right last session when I spoke on this subject. I read to the Senate yesterday and commented upon the report made by the superintendent of the exchange, in which he gave a list of all the members and their occupations, and nobody was put down as a planter or a farmer. Then I called the attention of the Senate to the supplementary report, in which I believe sixteen men were reported as cotton-planters.

I addressed this letter to a gentleman living in the city of New York, of fine character, and who has such relations with the Cotton Exchange of that city that he is authorized to communicate with its officers. I said this:

> I see it is claimed by Latham, Alexander & Co. in their reply to me that there are several planters or raisers of cotton among the membership of the Cotton Exchange of New York. I do not doubt their statement; but I suspect that it is true only in the sense that some persons (like Mr. Latham), engaged principally as bankers or in some other mercantile pursuit, have an interest in planting cotton.
>
> I want to get a list of all the members of the Cotton Exchange of New York, with their residence and occupation; I want as to those stated to be planters of cotton, the following:—

To which I call the attention of the Senate—

> 1. The extent of the business of each in some other occupation; 2. the place where they spend most of their time, whether on their farms or somewhere else, and, if elsewhere, the place; 3, the location of their plantations, etc.

The gentleman to whom this letter was addressed, Mr. A. B. Shepperson, writes that he read that letter to Mr. Bloss, the president of the Cotton Exchange, and asked for the information therein requested. In the reply I got a list of men, with their residences, who are said to be cotton-planters, without a single statement as to the very important and essential fact what other business they are engaged in, where do they principally stay, and to what business do they principally give their attention. All that important matter is wholly omitted, because it would have turned out, as I stated yesterday, that these farmers were mere amateurs.

Mr. HARRIS. Does it give the residences of the farmers?

Mr. GEORGE. It gives the residences.

Mr. HARRIS. Do they live upon their farms?

Mr. GEORGE. Not one of them. I will tell the Senator where they are. They all live in New York with the exception of two who live in Memphis, one in Galveston, and one in New Orleans, none living on plantations, and none stated in this report to be engaged in any other business except farming, which was the very point I made in the inquiry.

I propose now to consider somewhat the performances of that exchange with reference to cotton, and now I wish to state while it controls the cotton market of the country and, as claimed by Latham, Alexander & Co., the price of cotton throughout the world, New York only received in the last commercial year, 1891–'92, the amount of 165,576 bales of cotton. It received about the same in the year before, upon which I commented in my speech made at the last session of Congress. I was replied to by the statement that I knew nothing about the business of the great city of New York, that over 784,000 bales of cotton were exported from the city of New York to Europe, and those 784,000 bales of cotton were added up as a part of the business of New York in cotton. I quote from their paper:

The following are the official figures showing business done in New York for the cotton year of 1890–'91:

Cotton exported to Europe	bales..	784,058
Cotton sold from table	bales..	146,805
Actual cotton delivered on contract	bales..	144,703
Total	bales..	1,075,566

This does not include the large receipts of cotton that pass through this city and remain unsold in this market.

To show that I was right and that the representatives of the Cotton Exchange of New York have made a very serious mistake as to the importance of New York as a cotton market, I propose to read something to the Senate, which I presume will not be controverted. In the first place I will read the "report of the board of managers, treasurer, executive committee, warehouse and delivery committee, and trustees of the gratuity fund" of the New York Cotton Exchange, an official paper sent out to the world as containing a truthful account of the transactions in cotton in the city of New York. On page 5 of that report I find the following:

The reported sales of spot cotton, compared with the two previous seasons, are as follows—

I am not going to make the comparison now, but I am merely going to show that I was right as to the last one—

1891, for export, 96,666 bales; spinning, 99,956 bales; speculation—

I ask Senators to keep this in mind, as it will be very important before I get through—

1,026 bales.

Not a word said about the 784,000 bales of cotton which these men, representatives of the New York Cotton Exchange, claim to be a part of the cotton business of New York.

I addressed a letter to the same gentleman to whom I have referred, Mr. Shepperson, who was introduced to me by the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. WHITE] as being a very reliable gentleman. He is the highest cotton authority in the United States; he annually publishes a book on cotton, which is recognized in all cotton circles as high authority. I called his attention to the large claim made by these parties as a part of the commerce of New York, and he says:

Of the 784,058 bales of cotton exported from New York in 1890–'91, by far the greatest part was shipped from the South upon through bills of lading to Europe via New York, and no cotton merchant or broker or sampler had anything to do with it. Doubtless some of it was shipped from the South upon orders sent from New York. No one can tell how much this was, but it is safe to say it was a very small proportion of the quantity exported.

Exports to Europe of cotton shipped from the South upon through bills of lading via New York can not properly be claimed as any part of the business of the New York Cotton Exchange. Exports of cotton were made through New York before the New York Cotton Exchange was established, and their volume would not be diminished if the exchange should go out of existence to-morrow.

So I have established by their own report that the business of the Cotton Exchange of New York, in reference to exports, amounts to ninety-nine thousand and some hundred bales, and then I have established by this authority that the claim set up of 784,000 bales exported from New York as being part of the business of New York is wholly unfounded.

Now I want to call the attention of the Senate to another very important fact, and that is, as the sales of futures increase in quantity the real transactions in real cotton in New York decrease in quantity, I read from their own report submitted by the New York Cotton Exchange:

In 1889 there were 218,429 bales of cotton sold for export; in 1890, 163,932; in 1891—

The very figures which I gave—

96,666 bales.

The New York Cotton Exchange have become so enamored with trading in "futures" that year by year they pay less and less attention to real transactions. Now let us examine as to spinning.

In 1889, 200,550 bales were sold for spinning; in 1890, 151,938; in 1891, the amount for spinning was 99,956 bales.

Then, "for speculation." Before I get through I shall have something to say about speculation, but it is as well to read that part of it here. "In 1889, 9,045 bales of spot cotton"—real cotton, genuine cotton—were sold for speculation in New York. In 1890 the enormous sum of 573 bales was sold; in 1891, 1,026 bales were sold for speculation. Now let us see how the "futures" ran in those years. Here it is in their own book:

The transactions of cotton for future delivery have aggregated 26,389,500 bales—

That is for the year 1890–'91—

against 21,084,100 bales last year, and 20,184,400 bales in 1889.

So that as the transactions in "futures" go up the transactions in real cotton go down.

Mr. MCPHERSON. Will the Senator please inform the Senate——

Mr. GEORGE. I will inform the Senator of anything I know.

Mr. MCPHERSON. In what manner does that affect the price of cotton?

Mr. GEORGE. If the Senator will wait I will show him. I do not wish to be drawn off from the line of my argument, but I will give all the information the Senator desires before I get through.

I have authority for the statement that for the year ending August 31 last, the future sales in the Cotton Exchange in New York amounted to 40,000,000 bales. Let me tell the Senator from New Jersey another thing. It not only happens that as the future sales go up the number of the transactions in real cotton go down in number, but it also happens that as the future sales go up in number the price of cotton goes down.

Mr. MCPHERSON. If the Senator will bear with me, and if I am not interfering with him——

Mr. GEORGE. I trust the Senator will let me get through with the argument on the point I am making. If the Senator does not understand my views upon it, then he may interrupt me.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PADDOCK in the chair). The Senator from Mississippi declines to yield.

Mr. MCPHERSON. Very well.

Mr. GEORGE. I am perfectly willing to be interrupted at any point, but I do not wish at this stage of the proceeding to have my attention attracted to something else. I wish to make my speech in an orderly way.

Mr. MCPHERSON. It was exactly on that point I wished to interrogate the Senator.

Mr. GEORGE. What is the question?

Mr. MCPHERSON. The inquiry which I wish to make of the Senator, which he says he will answer later in his remarks, is simply this: I ask in what way fictitious sales of cotton in New York affect the cotton market, if at all? As I take into consideration the exports of cotton, I find that 5,600,000 bales of cotton were exported—sent away. I find that about 2,500,000 bales of cotton are consumed in this country——

Mr. GEORGE. I do not give way for the Senator to make a speech. I will answer his question before I get through.

Mr. MCPHERSON. Just one sentence to complete it.

Mr. GEORGE. I do not wish to be interrupted by that kind of a statement. I will answer the Senator's question; I will show him how the price of cotton is affected, and I will show him what is more important than that, that the price of cotton is affected.

Mr. MCPHERSON. I shall be glad to hear it.

Mr. GEORGE. Now, I am going to tell the Senator. While I am on this future-delivery question I have some very recent information concerning it. Everybody who has paid any attention to the cotton statistics of the present year knows that the crop is disastrously short. The best and most conservative estimates are that it will not exceed 6,500,000 bales, while the consumption is over 8,000,000 bales; in other words, the crop is 1,500,000 bales short. The natural effect of that would be to raise the price of cotton, and it has raised it. It ran up as much, I believe, as 3 cents a pound; but that did not suit the speculators; it did not suit the members of the New York Cotton Exchange; and they did exactly what Latham, Alexander & Co. said they could do. If Memphis, Galveston, and other little towns had exchanges as New Orleans has, and they undertook to sell cotton above the New York quotations, New York had an unlimited supply of money and of cotton; the New York Cotton Exchange was not limited to the 165,000 bales which were received in New York, not limited to the 9,000,000 bales of cotton raised last year in the United States and this year to the 6,500,000 bales raised in the United States; their only limit was their insatiate greed. They would sell and pour out on this market 40,000,000 bales of cotton as they did, with what effect? They said they could sell it down, and they did.

Now, let us see what they did when they broke cotton down; when they made it fall a cent or a cent and a half a pound; I do not recollect the amount now. I hold in my hand a telegram from the city of New York dated December 13, addressed to Mr. C. Wood Davis, who handed it to me, giving the future sales in New York.

Future sales last week were 1,938,800.

One million nine hundred and thirty-eight thousand eight hundred bales in one week! If there had been an average of that sort for fifty-two weeks in the year it would have been about 100,000,000. What was the effect? Cotton fell. What Latham, Alexander & Co., said could be done was done. Drawing on an illimitable supply of phantom, fictitious, inexhaustible cotton, they sold cotton down. How many "spot" sales of cotton, that is, real transactions in this great cotton market exporting 784,000 bales of cotton, falsely claimed to be a part of the commerce of New York, were there in that week? Four thousand and forty bales. Mr. Davis has made a calculation here of how that thing went along, which I will read to the Senate:

The attached telegram, this moment received, shows that the sales of actual bales during the last week upon the same exchange were 4,040, while the sales of phantom bales reached an aggregate of 1,938,800, the ratio being as 1 is to 480. As to the regular rates for buying and selling—12½ cents per bale each way—the brokerage on the sham contracts would have been $484,500 The value of the real cotton at the current price would be but $198,000.

The brokerage on phantom sales $484,000; the total of actual sales $198,000, about 2½ to 1. I shall speak about this a little more here after, but I put in the idea now, so that Senators who have not given as much attention to this matter as I have may think of it.

The value of the real cotton at the current price would be $198,000; the brokerage on the fiat bales being two and one-half times the value of all the cotton marketed.

Mr. Davis asked a question, which I shall read so that the Senator from New Jersey, who seems to be in love with this kind of trading, may at his leisure revolve it in his mind and give an answer to the Senate and to the country. Here is the question:

Is not the community paying too high a price for distributing cotton through the instrumentality of futures when it takes the gross value of two and one-half bales to market one?

That is what it cost in the Cotton Exchange of New York, the great regulator of prices for this country.

And yet, sir, we are told by these dear lovers of the farmers that if the Senate dares, in the exercise of its constitutional powers, to touch one hair of the head of this New York Cotton Exchange cotton shall go down to nothing, or to use a phrase of the Memphis Cotton Exchange "threatening cotton production with utter annihilation." They have put it down, and have created a sort of panic throughout the South by their dealings, with a view of preventing action by the Senate. I get telegrams every day from home asking me not to vote against a bill to suppress futures, because they believe such suppression to be right, but to postpone action, so that the helpless farmers may market their cotton before the dreaded blow shall fall upon them which these men have threatened.

Mr. President, right on that point I desire to say, so that my constituents in Mississippi who have telegraphed to me upon that subject may understand my position, that it is impossible to postpone action on this bill without giving up all chance to pass a bill suppressing "futures." I have already seen an editorial from a leading paper sent to me in which dilatory tactics were suggested as a means of defeating the bill during this short session. Another reason why I oppose postponement is, which is a blessing in disguise, the short crop with which Providence has afflicted the Southern people. That blessing is this, that whilst gamblers and speculators in cotton may temporarily depress it, yet at last there is a deficiency for consumption, and the consumers will be obliged to come forward and to take it at proper prices. So this of all times is the time when we can pass a bill to suppress "futures" with a better prospect of escaping the damnation which the speculators threaten us with if we undertake to pass it.

Now, I begin to get on the territory to which the Senator from New Jersey called my attention, and I think by the time he has traveled with me over this territory he will begin to see that speculations in "futures" depress the prices of agricultural products in which the speculations take place.

Recurring to a thought which has been expressed by the advocates of this future dealing, emphasized over and over again, and to a thought which they are endeavoring now every day to express in disastrous action to the cotton farmer—that thought being that by the agencies of these exchanges the trading, the marketing of the cotton crop has become so interlocked and interwoven with the future system, that if you touch the future system you disorganize the real business of the country—recurring to that, I want to put this proposition to the Senate, I want to put it to the country, I want to put it to every thoughtful man.

If it is part of the cotton trade, if you can not carry on the cotton trade, if it is not carried on except through the intervention of futures, then what follows? If these interloping middlemen have made the traffic in 40,000,000 bales of cotton a year a necessary and essential part of marketing six or eight million bales of actual cotton, need I argue to the Senate that the actual cotton must pay the expenses of the marketing? If the actual cotton does not pay the expenses of the marketing, who does? The expense must be paid. These men do not live on air; they do not trade on air; they come and say, and I fear with some plausibility, too, as things now stand, that we can not market our six million bales of cotton or our eight million bales of cotton without the future system.

If that be so, and, as they claim, it is a part of the necessary agency of marketing the cotton, is that necessary agency furnished to us free? Are these men great philanthropists, and do they propose, having already by trade or other means, which I will not say are otherwise than proper and legal, acquired immense fortunes, to give up not only the fortunes which they have acquired, but their time and talents free of interest for the money involved, free of charge for the services rendered, and devote all this to enabling the cotton-planter to market his crop? I suppose nobody will assert that proposition; and yet that must be asserted unless we apply the ordinary rules of political economy to the trading in "futures." That being an agency actually used for the purpose of marketing the crop, that crop must pay the expenses of the use of this agency. If there is any answer to that I should like to know what it is.

When the Senator from New Jersey comes to reply, as I have no doubt he will, enamored as he is with the beautiful system by which 40,000,000 bales of phantom cotton are transferred hither and thither, from this man to that man, at a brokerage of 12½ cents, at margins of from $1 to $5 a bale—with all that, when he comes to reply, I should like him to tell the Senate how all that is paid for if it does not come out of the cotton crop.

I read to the Senate at the last session what Mr. Bloss said about the commissions. He is president of the New York Cotton Exchange. Mr. MOSES, who is a member of Congress from the State of Georgia, representing a cotton constituency, and who has an idea as I have, and as I think most men have, that all the expenses of these sales of phantom cotton come out of the crop, asked Mr. Bloss this question:

Now, ultimately all these commissions—

He was only talking about commissions—for these wind sales come out of the crop; the world pays them out to these brokers to carry on the cotton business, do they not?

What did Mr. Bloss say? He said:

Yes, they are obliged to.

A pretty good reason for paying them; they could not help it; but Mr. Bloss thought that would not do. When he was asked if the poor cotton farmer, bound hand and foot, paid these commissions, he thought it would not do to turn him loose under a statement of that sort, that he is obliged to pay them, and so he amended his statement, and that emendation was this:

But they do it of their own free will.

Then he thought that would not do, and then he put in another, and that was that they not only did it of their own free will, when they were obliged to do it, but they had become so enamored of the low prices of cotton created, as I shall show before I get through, by the action of these future brokers, that, to use the language of Mr. Bloss, "they desired to do it." They were anxious, hungry, waiting, pushing to pay out of their little earnings on the low price of cotton the commission on these wind sales. If anybody can tell me why the commission should come out of the cotton crop, and why all the other expenses attendant on the future business shall come from somewhere else, I should like to hear the explanation.

Let us stop and think about that a little. The New York Cotton Exchange and its little sister, the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, are composed of men engaged every day in mercantile pursuits for the purpose of bettering their fortunes; of increasing their store and provision for old age. Is it a fact that these men, every one of them coming here and saying that it will ruin the poor farmer if we touch the business in which they are engaged, only want the commissions? What do they put up the margins for? According to the New York Cotton Exchange they are to put up from $1 to $5 a bale. Are they to put the margins up just for the fun of seeing the money pass out of their hands and go into a trust company for deposit?

Do they build a magnificent temple, as they have done both in New Orleans and in New York, to Mammon, and dub it "The Cotton Exchange," just for the poor privilege of doing this business to the amount of 40,000,000 of bales of cotton a year in order to enable the poor farmer to market his crops? Have they done all that just out of a pure spirit of charity and philanthropy? Do they fix in their by-laws that the initiation fee to this eleemosynary society shall be $10,000 just out of pure love of doing good, to prevent other persons from interfering with their monopoly of charity? Oh, sir, it seems to me if these men were doing all this business from a pure love of the poor farmer they would have thrown wide open the doors of the exchanges and said, "Come, come, every one of you who wants to enlist under the banner of charity and benevolence and let us help the farmer."

Oh, no; they do not do that. They charge a person $10,000 to get in, and then he must also be elected. The applicant's name must go before a committee or a board of managers for examination, and I suppose when they get it before them, according to the theory which I am now combating, the first questions they will ask of the applicant are: How much money have you given away to the farmers during the last twelve months? How much time have you spent in concocting schemes and carrying them out to elevate the American farmer? How much money have you got now which you are willing to devote to the advancement of the welfare of the American farmer?

Those would seem to be the questions they would ask according to the theory under which they were working; but they do not ask those questions. They claim they want to find out whether the applicant is a man of fair financial standing; that is, whether he pays up his bets on the price of cotton, etc. That excuse will not do.

These exchanges are what other business associations are. They are associations to make money. I do not blame them if they want to make money, provided they make it in a legitimate way, but I blame them when they are trying to persuade the American people, the American Senate, not to touch this unhallowed traffic, which they pretend is all for charity, all for the love of the farmer.

Mr. President, I suppose that nobody doubts that this scheme of marketing the crops, the scheme of future dealing, is just like transportation, just like storage, just like insurance, brokerage, and interest, charges to be reimbursed. Can anybody tell me how they are to be reimbursed and kept up from year to year unless they are reimbursed out of the crop? These people must have somebody to pay these charges. I heard a wise man once say that if it were not for the greenhorns, men who worked and labored part of their time and then for amusement occasionally engaged in the delectable and profitable business of gaming, the whole gambling fraternity would freeze out or starve out in a very short time. They must have some producer to refill the coffers which are being continually emptied by their extravagance and wasteful living.

Let us see what the commissions are. Here I find again that the representatives of the New York Cotton Exchange are disingenuous or ignorant of their own rules. When I made a calculation upon that subject to show how much commission was paid and had to be paid on these wind and phantom sales, I was replied to by the statement of the alleged fact that the brokerage is not charged both ways. I said if there were 35,000,000 or 36,000,000 bales of cotton sold there was 10 cents charged for the selling and 10 cents for the buying. They disputed that. Let us see how that stands. Here is the book, the charter, rules, and by-laws of the New York Cotton Exchange, and I shall read it:

COMMISSIONS ON COTTON CONTRACTS.

Commission shall be charged and paid—

Notice the next three words—

under all circumstances—

Upon what?—

both upon the purchase and sale of contracts for future delivery of cotton,—

Now, mark—

and where a turn involves two transactions,—

I did not know what "turn" meant, but they have defined what it does mean here—

viz: A purchase and sale, a commission must be charged on both, this rule being equally applicable to extension or transfer of contracts from one month to another.

You see that the New York Exchange, through its representatives who undertook to reply to me, and had their reply published, paying for it, in the leading papers in every cotton State of the country, made a slight mistake, or else they have solemnly published to the world a falsehood.

The rates of commission shall be as follows:

Twelve and a half cents per bale for each and every bale bought or sold, when the transaction is made for any party not a member of this exchange.

Oh, Mr. President, this charitable and eleemosynary society, these 454 gentlemen who have associated themselves together in the New York Cotton Exchange for charitable purposes in order that the poor farmers of this country shall not be sacrificed in the way of depressed prices of cotton, when it is all benevolence, all charity, all love for the human race, would you think that a society which was thus organized and carried on to do business for the good of the public would make a distinction between the poor outsider who did not have $10,000 to pay the initiation fee, the poor cotton farmer or the little merchant or the small business man in any sort of business—do you think they would make a distinction between them and the members of the exchange? Sad it is, but it is true. They charge all outsiders who have not the $10,000 to pay for going in 12½ cents commission each way. See what they charge somebody else:

Seven and one-half cents per bale for each and every bale bought or sold, when the transaction is made for any member of the exchange.

But they do not even stop there. They make a distinction between the resident members, and those who are farmers living in South Carolina and Texas and Tennessee, and they do it in the nicest way in the world. Let us see how they do it:

Seven and one-half cents per bale for each and every bale bought or sold, when the transaction is made for any member of the exchange who has not a permanent office established in the city of New York within half a mile of the exchange, as prescribed by article VIII, section 108 of these by-laws.

If a man lives within half a mile from the exchange he then begins to tread upon sacred ground. The temple erected, worth over a million dollars, as shown by their report, for the transaction of this business, casts its beneficent and saving influences for half a mile around. All within that charmed and sacred circle can get their cotton bought and sold for 2½ cents; but if he is outside of it, although he may be a member of the exchange, he must pay 7½ cents, and if he be a man who has not the character to enable him to get into this exchange, and the money, $10,000, he has to pay 12½ cents. It does not seem as if there was very much philanthrophy in that.

I should like to read something as to the margins, but I have taken so much time of the Senate that I shall not detain it, but will state that the by-laws require the margin to be from one to five dollars a bale, and then more money if there should be any greater rise or fall requiring more money to make the margin good. I will average these margins, I will be liberal; I will assume there is not much variation in prices, although I will show that there is a great variation before I get through. I will assume that only half of the highest sum is charged, that is, two and one-half dollars a bale each way. That would be $130,000,000 on 26,000,000 of bales; but now they have got it up to 40,000,000 bales, which is about a third more, and so you will have to add one-third to the $130,000,000 of margins. Interest must be paid for the use of this money.

Let us see what is the cost of running this eleemosynary institution called the New York Cotton Exchange. I take my figures from the report made, to which I have called the attention of the Senate before. I find the inspection bureau in one year cost $54,143; the expenses of the building, although they own it, were $48,000; other expenses, on page 13, $25,950; fixed charges, see page 16, $36,311. This is the expense of running the exchange, without anything about margins, or brokerage, or anything of that sort, and it amounts to $165,204.34, which comes out of the cotton crop, and amounts to $1 per bale for all the real cotton received and sold in New York.

What else? Then there are the profits. There is the money which these middlemen have reaped by their interloping and intermeddling between the producer and the consumer. How much? I do not know; no man knows; but there are some indicia, indefinite it is true, which point to the fact that there are enormous profits. Would men pay $10,000 a year, as fixed by the rules of the Cotton Exchange, for an initiation fee into a society where they can not make any money or can make but very little money? Will men put up $130,000,000, add a third to it, about one hundred and sixty or one hundred and eighty million dollars in the way of margins, just for fun? Will they do all these things when no profit, no reward is expected? That question answers itself, Mr. President. Jerome Hill, of St. Louis, one of the most extensive and intelligent cotton factors in the United States, estimates the loss of the farmer by these future dealings at $100,000,000 a year.

Where does all that come from? The profits of the middleman, as these men have made themselves in this case, must come from the article in which he deals. That is a clear proposition. That on general principles looks like cotton is taxed for the benefit of these middlemen. But all the men who insist on the perpetuation of this system of future dealing explain, as they think, how it is beneficial. Of course with these great institutions in New Orleans and New York, with the millions and millions of dollars which are made out of them, when all that money comes out of the cotton crop, the men who insist that this thing shall go on must furnish a pretext for it, and what is that pretext? They all fall on the same thing, though they work it out in different ways, as you will see if you will give me your attention. They say the crop is marketed by the system called hedging, and I will read what the protest of the New York Cotton Exchange, or the substance of it, is on that subject.

This is the modus operandi of hedging: Exporters in the early season contract for large quantities of cotton to be delivered later in Europe. They make contracts based upon future prices in New York for the month of delivery, plus freight and charges; that is, they contract to deliver in Europe so much cotton, say in the future month of April, to take that month, at a price which they determine in this way: They look at the quotations of the Cotton Exchange of New York and see what the prices of "futures" are for April. They charge that for the cotton. Then they charge freight, commissions, profits, etc.

That is a sale. They make the sale, but they are not satisfied with that and are unwilling to risk that the price of cotton in April next will be what the figures of the New York Cotton Exchange say it will be, although it is claimed by this paper from which I have read so often that you can always ascertain the value of cotton by inspecting the quotation marks of the Cotton Exchange of New York. They are not willing to risk that. So the man who wants to sell cotton in Europe wants to hedge; he is afraid that cotton may be higher in April than he has contracted to deliver it for; so he makes a purchase of "futures" for April; but this purchase of "futures" does not give him any cotton. He has a contract to deliver so many bales of middling, or good middling, or middling fair, or any other grade of cotton.

When he makes a purchase in the Cotton Exchange of New York he may get anything of thirty grades—I counted them over this morning—he may get all the cotton in any one of thirty grades or he may get a part of it in one grade and a part of it in another, not as he chooses, but as the seller chooses to deliver. So when he makes his future purchase he can not rely on that to fill his contract in Europe. Then, what does he do? He has made two contracts. He has sold cotton in Europe deliverable in April, and he has bought "futures" in New York. I will not call it deliverable in April, because it is not to be delivered but to be settled for in April. If they were to deliver the cotton to him he would be ruined, because he could not send it to Europe to his purchaser and so he wants to settle and everybody else wants to settle without a delivery. The man who sells it has not got the cotton, and the man who buys it would not know what to do with it if he got it. So he is not any nearer now to the end than he was when he first started.

I am following the New York Cotton Exchange in their protest against this bill. After a while, along about March, just in time to get his cotton delivered in Europe in April, he wants to buy real cotton of a specified grade. He buys it. Then, what? He is not satisfied with that. That would seem to end the transaction, but, no, he goes after buying the cotton, according to the New York Exchange, and sells a similar quantity deliverable at the same time. That is settled for. What have you got? You have got two real contracts, one by which the exporter acquires the cotton in the country, one by which he binds himself to deliver that cotton in Europe, and you have two sham contracts, as I have explained to you. As he does not want and probably could not pay for the future cotton which he purchased, he has to sell that.

He has to pay his 12½ cents a bale on the contract which he made to hedge first, and then on the contract which he made to hedge second, and then on the disposition of the cotton which he bought and did not want. That is three brokerages.

How will that work out? Suppose that he has sold 1,000 bales of cotton in Europe and that cotton is worth $50 a bale. He will get $50,000. That is a real contract. Then he has to buy 1,000 bales of cotton in order to hedge, and has to put up his margin on that; he does not put up the money on that, but he puts up his margins. He has to pay 12½ cents commission on that. That is $125. He then buys the actual cotton in the South. He may buy that himself and not pay any brokerage. That is a legitimate transaction, not charging him anything for brokerage. To hedge against that he sells 1,000 bales of cotton and pays 12½ cents on that.

That is another $125. He does not want the 1,000 bales of cotton "futures" he bought, and he must sell, and he pays according to the New York Cotton Exchange $125 for selling that. He puts up his margin; he has got to do that at, say, the highest allowed, viz, $5 on each side. He puts his up and the other fellow puts up his. That is $5,000. He puts up his $5,000 and the other fellow puts up his. The interest on that $10,000 is $600. Then add the brokerage, $375, and you get $975 for dealing in "futures," in hedging, while there is not a bale of cotton ever seen or ever delivered. He pays $975 or 97½ cents a bale for marketing that. The crop last year was about 9,000,000 bales. This they say is marketed by futures in the way suggested. If you add to the 97½ cents per bale the contingent losses, say 2½ cents a bale, it will take $1 per bale for the 9,000,000 bales, or $9,000,000. Then add the brokerage each way on the 40,000,000 bales, we would have $10,000,000 more. Who pays that? I should like to know when the Senator from New Jersey comes to reply to me, as I hope he will, because I do not want to be deceived about this matter myself, and if this thing is to go on, I should like to know that it is right. If it is right and best for the people of the South I do not want to interfere with it. I should like the Senator to tell me who pays that $19,000,000. Of course that is paid, as they all say now, in order to market the crops, and the Memphis Exchange really called it insurance, as I shall explain when I get to that remarkable production. Who pays the insurance on cotton and on everything? Is it not a tax upon the product marketed? So is this.

Then there is another tax. I will deal with this rather on the idea they suggest themselves, yet I will modify it so as to bring it within reasonable proportions. They claim now, and every one of the witnesses who was examined before the committee of which my friend, the Senator from Alabama [Mr. PUGH] was a member, swore to it, that all this cotton was to be delivered, that every contract was made upon the idea that the cotton would be delivered. Of course that is not so; we know that is not so; but these speculators are compelled to have a small lot of cotton in New York and in New Orleans, so that if they should happen to deal with a man who should insist upon the terms of his contract and demand a delivery, they could make a delivery.

I will now read from the letter of Atwood, Violett & Co., of New Orleans, dated November 22, in which they say:

The dealings in contracts are larger now than they have been at any time for ten years—

Yes, and the farmer grows poorer as the cords of financial disaster are drawn tighter and tighter around his limbs—

So large a short interest—

This firm are "future" brokers, and have written more than any other firm I know of against this antioption bill—

So large a short interest as is represented to-day in the three future markets requires, therefore, a corresponding increase of stock in those markets to protect that interest.

* * * * * * *

The stock of America in Liverpool last Friday was 1,096,000; in New York to-day it is 319,000; and in New Orleans to-day it is 193,000 bales, an aggregate of 1,518,000 bales.

They are arguing to show, which I will repel directly, that this stock is an actual benefit to the producer.

These stocks might as well be at the North Pole, so far as there being a pressure or weight on the market, because we show that in New York and Liverpool it practically is not for sale.

Let us see. They must hold a million of bales of cotton. That, at $50 a bale, would be $50,000,000 worth of cotton. These writers, are, as I understand, a very respectable firm of "future" brokers in New Orleans, who are earnestly urging not only upon the American Congress but upon the American people the benefit of the "future" system. This million bales of cotton has to be bought, and might as well be stored away at the North Pole, as these men say, so far as its going on the market is concerned. The interest on the $50,000,000 invested in this cotton, and, more, the risk of the falling in the price that they paid has to be paid for. The interest would be $3,000,000. What they would charge for the risk of a fall in the price of cotton I do not know.

Taking all these charges and countercharges, these hedgings and counterhedgings, this insurance against loss, this newfangled invention by which men can go into the marts of the world and speculate on the farmers' crop without a single chance of losing a dollar, being guaranteed by the "future" system, and all that is done, and who pays the expense? It has to come out of the cotton.

Mr. President, I think I have made an argument that can not be answered as to who pays these expenses. Now, I want to set forth one fact, not an argument but a fact, and then I will give way for an executive session.

This is the actual working. These are figures, and these figures condemn the "future" system. I wish to make a statement of fact, and I am sorry the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. MCPHERSON] is not here, because I want it answered. I state the fact that in New York, without a single exception (I have the prices here for every day for three months), that the price of "futures" sold on the basis of middling cotton on any named day is from one-tenth to one-half a cent lower than spots on the same day.

To make myself understood, if the quotation in New York for spots, say on the 10th day of November, was 10 cents (I am not certain it was 10 cents, but I will assume it was), then the price of futures deliverable in the month of November will be 9.50, 9.60, or 9.70 cents. They are never at the same price. I have a table here, which will show the difference on the 1st, the 15th, and the 28th days of the month. I took the days at random without knowing how they were going to work out. I took the first of the month, the middle of the month, and the last of the month for September, October, and November, and noted the difference between spots and futures on the same day, the futures being deliverable in the same month.

On the 1st of September there were 30 points, or about one-third of a cent, difference; that is, futures deliverable in September were that much lower than spots. On the 15th it was 33 points, just about a third of a cent. On the 28th it was 8 points. That is, in September. In October, on the 1st it was 13 points; on the 15th it was 36 points; on the 28th it was 34 points, over a third of a cent. In November, on the 1st day it was 44 points; that is, forty-four one-hundredths of a cent. On the 15th it was 35 points. On the 29th—I took that instead of the 28th—it was 48 points, the difference being as stated. These differences all relate to the price on the days named in a particular month and future contracts for the same month.

Mr. President, I say that where the system of selling down cotton prevails like this it lowers the price of cotton; and why? You go to the city of New York on the 1st day of a month or the 15th day of a month. You want to speculate; you do not want the cotton for consumption, and the choice is left to you whether you will buy spot cotton or futures. The market offers you futures of the same grade deliverable in the same month without any money to put up except $1 to $5 margin. It offers it to you for 35 points, or one-half a cent lower than you can buy spot cotton for.

Now, what are you going to do? If you want to consume the cotton you will not go to the exchange at all, because you can not buy what you want. If you want to speculate, what will you do? Will you pay out $50 a bale for spot cotton and then pay interest and storage and all that sort of thing until you want to sell it, or will you buy a contract one-third to one-fourth of a cent cheaper than you can buy the spot? Why, to ask the question is to answer it. I want Senators to bear in mind that the system of dealing in futures prevents speculators—men who buy and sell again—from investing in spots. It leaves the business only to the consumer.

Now, to prove that fact I will go back to something I read a little while ago and which probably escaped the attention of the Senate because it was not applied. I say that this continual, universal system, without a single break, in the city of New York of selling futures at from one-tenth to one-half a cent lower than spots of the same quality can be bought for, prevents the marketing of the cotton crop to anybody except to consumers. Let us see whether that is true or not. I read from a report of the New York Cotton Exchange made for the year 1891.

Let us see how much cotton was sold in New York in that year and for what purposes. I read it to you before. Ninety-six thousand six hundred and sixty-six bales of cotton were sold for export. That was for consumption in Europe. Ninety-nine thousand nine hundred and fifty-six bales were sold to spinners, actual consumers. How much was sold to speculators? I wish I had the time to go through it all this evening. Do they, induced and fortified and hedged by the future system, invest their money in cotton on speculation? Ninety-six thousand bales for export, 99,000 bales for spinning, and 1,026 bales for speculation. That is the way it works out; and everybody knows it is obliged to result that way. These speculators will not buy, and if it is left to consumers, I should like to know how, even with the enormous tax which the future system imposes upon the cotton crop, a partial benefit can be derived in the way of marketing the cotton crop. There is no answer to that.

Mr. SAWYER. I ask the Senator from Mississippi to yield for an executive session.

Mr. GEORGE. I see that my friend from Wisconsin is impatient. I yield to him, with the understanding that I am to have the floor at 2 o'clock to-morrow.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. SAWYER. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After eight minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 4 o'clock and 20 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Thursday, December 15, 1892, at 12 o'clock m.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate December 14, 1892.

PROMOTIONS IN THE ARMY.

Quartermaster's Department.

Lieut. Col. John G. Chandler, Deputy Quartermaster-General, to be Assistant Quartermaster-General with the rank of colonel, December 11, 1892, vice Perry, retired from active service.

Maj. James G. C. Lee, quartermaster, to be Deputy Quartermaster-General with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, December 11, 1892, vice Chandler, promoted.

Capt. Charles F. Humphrey, assistant quartermaster, to be quartermaster with the rank of major, December 11, 1892, vice Lee, promoted.

Medical Department.

Capt. Louis M. Maus, assistant surgeon, to be surgeon with the rank of major, December 4, 1892, vice Hartsuff, promoted.

TRANSFERS IN THE NAVY.

Ensign Walter S. Burke, of the Navy, to be an assistant engineer in the Navy from the 12th of December, 1892, to take rank next after Assistant Engineer William W. Bush, United States Navy.

Assistant Engineer Victor Blue, of the Navy, to be an ensign in the Navy from the 12th of December, 1892, to take rank next after Guy H. Burrage, United States Navy.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate December 14, 1892.

CONSUL.

John H. Drake, of Aberdeen, S. Dak., to be consul of the United States at Kehl.

INDIAN AGENT.

Edwin Eells, of Tacoma, Wash., to be agent for the Indians of the Puyallup Agency (consolidated) in Washington.

POSTMASTERS.

George H. Bell, to be postmaster at Carson City, in the county of Ormsby and State of Nevada.

Charles E. Slate, to be postmaster at Winchester, in the county of Cheshire and State of New Hampshire.

Nathaniel S. Lane, to be postmaster at North St. Paul, in the county of Ramsey and State of Minnesota.

Gustave A. Schulze, to be postmaster at Two Harbors, in the county of Lake and State of Minnesota.

Frederick C. Walther, to be postmaster at Minto, in the county of Walsh and State of North Dakota.

James S. Hart, to be postmaster at Saltsburg, in the county of Indiana and State of Pennsylvania.

George Pfaff, to be postmaster at Boulder Valley, in the county of Jefferson and State of Montana.

Mrs. Nettie J. Van Inwegen, to be postmaster at Ortonville, in the county of Big Stone and State of Minnesota.

William E. Mills, to be postmaster at Rose Hill, in the county of Onondaga and State of New York.

Frank Cunningham, jr., to be postmaster at Forest City, in the county of Susquehanna and State of Pennsylvania.

Jacob B. Gable, to be postmaster at Lititz, in the county of Lancaster and State of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Julia A. Caney, to be postmaster at Amsterdam, in the county of Montgomery and State of New York.

William H. Stickles, to be postmaster at Philmont, in the county of Columbia and State of New York.

William B. Barker, to be postmaster at Fredonia, in the county of Chautauqua and State of New York.

Leman D. Herrick, to be postmaster at Scranton, in the county of Jackson and State of Mississippi.

Emmett C. Grant, to be postmaster at Farmer, in the county of Seneca and State of New York.

Jacob Schmahl, to be postmaster at Woodhaven, in the county of Queens and State of New York.

William T. Greemann, to be postmaster at Batesville, in the county of Ripley and State of Indiana.

Henry A. Snepp, to be postmaster at Bourbon, in the county of Marshall and State of Indiana.

Anna Durham, to be postmaster at Clarksdale, in the county of Coahoma and State of Mississippi.

William H. Rich, to be postmaster at Berwick, in the county of York and State of Maine.

Albert L. Norris, to be postmaster at North Bend, in the county of Dodge and State of Nebraska.

Jesse M. Littleton, to be postmaster at Winchester, in the county of Franklin and State of Tennessee.

Mrs. Mary P. Dixon, to be postmaster at West Point, in the county of Troup and State of Georgia.

Martha E. Cowgill, to be postmaster at Baldwin, in the county of Douglas and State of Kansas.

William E. Cropper, to be postmaster at Midway, in the county of Woodford and State of Kentucky.

James W. Samphier, to be postmaster at Omro, in the county of Winnebago and State of Wisconsin.

Jacob Shaul, to be postmaster at Marianna, in the county of Lee and State of Arkansas.

Asa Crocker, to be postmaster at Suisun City, in the county of Solano and State of California.

Hugh L. Witcher, to be postmaster at Rockdale, in the county of Milam and State of Texas.

Albert H. Nash, to be postmaster at Salt Lake City, in the county of Salt Lake and Territory of Utah.

Byron Fairbanks, to be postmaster at West Bend, in the county of Washington and State of Wisconsin.

Franklin L. Cleaves, to be postmaster at Gainesville, in the county of Cooke and State of Texas.

Alonzo L. Steele, to be postmaster at Groesbeck, in the county of Limestone and State of Texas.

William M. Ward, to be postmaster at Oak Cliff, in the county of Dallas and State of Texas.

Ruben R. Hickox, to be postmaster at El Reno, in the county of Canadian and Territory of Oklahoma.

Robert H. Hayes, to be postmaster at Lewisburg, in the county of Marshall and State of Tennessee.

George W. Ashton, to be postmaster at Iowa Park, in the county of Wichita and State of Texas.

Mary J. Cun Iffe, to be postmaster at Las Cruces, in the county of Donna Ana and Territory of New Mexico.

Lemuel P. Bissell, to be postmaster at Louisville, in the county of Stark and State of Ohio.

Henry J. Saxton, to be postmaster at Madison, in the county of Lake and State of Ohio.

Pitt W. Kent, to be postmaster at Weir, in the county of Cherokee and State of Kansas.

Samuel Atkinson, to be postmaster at Cozad, in the county of Dawson and State of Nebraska.

James L. McDonald, to be postmaster at Atkinson, in the county of Holt and State of Nebraska.

Pete H. Norris, to be postmaster at Metropolis City, in the county of Massac and State of Illinois.

Charles Voris, to be postmaster at Windsor, in the county of Shelby and State of Illinois.

Wallace H. Johnson, to be postmaster at Salina, in the county of Saline and State of Kansas.

William E. Goodman, to be postmaster at South Evanston, in the county of Cook and State of Illinois.

Samuel S. Gray, to be postmaster at Hamilton, in the county of Hancock and State of Illinois.

Henry E. Kingsland, to be postmaster at Central Park, in the county of Cook and State of Illinois.

John R. Nease, to be postmaster at Humansville, in the county of Polk and State of Missouri.

Watson S. Menefee, to be postmaster at Union Springs, in the county of Bullock and State of Alabama.

John G. Pritchard, to be postmaster at Bisbee, in the county of Cochise and Territory of Arizona.

George B. Faxon, to be postmaster at Ovid, in the county of Clinton and State of Michigan.

Solomon D. Hollister, jr., to be postmaster at Crystal Falls, in the county of Iron and State of Michigan.

Green B. Atterbury, to be postmaster at Maysville, in the county of Dekalb and State of Missouri.

Leonard H. Mohr, to be postmaster at Troy, in the county of Lincoln and State of Missouri.

William F. Schuler, to be postmaster at Woodbine, in the county of Harrison and State of Iowa.

William Thero, to be postmaster at Farmington, in the county of Van Buren and State of Iowa.

Lyna Whited, to be postmaster at Belmond, in the county of Wright and State of Iowa.

Oscar Cramer, to be postmaster at Cape Girardeau, in the county of Cape Girardeau and State of Missouri.

David P. Dobyns, to be postmaster at Oregon, in the county of Holt and State of Missouri.

James B. Parsons, to be postmaster at Attleboro Falls, in the county of Bristol and State of Massachusetts.

Joseph Pettee, jr., to be postmaster at South Abington Station, in the county of Plymouth and State of Massachusetts.

Winfred A. Torrey, to be postmaster at South Braintree, in the county of Norfolk and State of Massachusetts.

Almon K. Goodwin, to be postmaster at Pawtucket, in the county of Providence and State of Rhode Island.

Hubert Carpenter, to be postmaster at East Hampton, in the county of Middlesex and State of Connecticut.

James C. Cooper, to be postmaster at Chester, in the county of Hampden and State of Massachusetts.

Charles H. Riley, to be postmaster at Dedham, in the county of Norfolk and State of Massachusetts.

Velette P. Townsend, to be postmaster at Quinsigamond, county of Worcester and State of Massachusetts.

Charles N. Brown, to be postmaster at Woonsocket, in the county of Providence and State of Rhode Island.

Bennett C. Atwood, to be postmaster at Watertown, in the county of Lichfield and State of Connecticut.

William C. Hinman, to be postmaster at Great Barrington, in the county of Berkshire and State of Massachusetts.

Henry H. Johnson, to be postmaster at Haverhill, in the county of Essex and State of Massachusetts.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, December 14, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

REPORT COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a special report from the Commissioner of Education.

Mr. DOCKERY. Mr. Speaker, the report just transmitted is a special report, and should go to the Committee on Appropriations.

The SPEAKER. The report will be so referred.

FINDINGS, COURT OF CLAIMS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House communications from the Court of Claims, transmitting the findings of the court in the following cases: I. T. Leneave, deceased, vs. The United States; and in the case of Dent S. Pash vs. The United States; which were severally referred to the Committee on War Claims.

ANNUAL REPORT, SECRETARY OF THE NAVY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the annual report of the Secretary of the Navy for the year 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

PURCHASES, QUARTERMASTER'S DEPARTMENT.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting report submitted by the Quartermaster-General of the Army, showing purchases made by the Quartermaster's Department during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department.

IMPROVEMENT LYNCH RIVER, SOUTH CAROLINA.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a communication from the Chief of Engineers, together with report of examination and survey of Lynch River, in South Carolina; which was referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

ELECTORAL VOTE OF FLORIDA.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a certificate, forwarded by the Secretary of State, showing the ascertainment of the electoral vote in the State of Florida; which was laid on the table.

PUBLIC PRINTING AND BINDING.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (S. 1549) providing for the public printing and binding and the distribution of public documents.

The SPEAKER. This Senate bill was amended by the House, and the Senate nonconcur in the amendment and ask for a conference on the disagreeing votes thereon.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I move that the House insist upon its amendment, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER announced the appointment of Mr. RICHARDSON, Mr. MCKAIG, and Mr. BRODERICK as conferees on the part of the House.

REFERENCE OF SENATE BILLS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House bills of the Senate of the following titles; which were referred as indicated, namely:

The bill (S. 2625) to provide for the punishment of offenses on the high seas—to the Committee on the Judiciary; and

The bill (S. 3184) to provide for allotment to Indians on the White Earth Reservation in Minnesota—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

SECOND LIEUT. GILMAN L. JOHNSON.

Mr. HAYES of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 3184) correcting the muster of Second Lieut. Gilman L. Johnson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of War be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to correct the record of Lieut. Gilman L. Johnson, late of the One hundred and forty-second Regiment of New York Infantry, so as to make his muster as said lieutenant date from the date of his enlistment in said regiment and that he have all rights and emoluments due him thereby or by reason thereof.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HAYES] asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of this bill. Is there objection?

Mr. MCMILLIN. Let us have the report read.

Mr. HAYES of Iowa. The report is quite long. It may be read, or I can state the facts.

Mr. MCMILLIN. Very well, if the gentleman will make a statement, that will be satisfactory. I will direct the gentleman's attention to the fact that this bill provides for emoluments to flow from the reinstatement. What is the reason for that?

Mr. HAYES of Iowa. The facts are simply these: Lieut. Johnson had a commission as second lieutenant in one of the New York regiments, but could not be mustered by reason of the roll of the company being below the minimum. He immediately enlisted as a private, at the suggestion of Gen. CURTIS, who is now a member of this House, and upon whose staff he was; but performed the duties of a commissioned officer from the very date of his enlistment, and while performing those duties he lost an arm in the service. When the company got to the proper number he was commissioned. This is simply to put his commission from the date of his enlistment and from the date of his actual service.

This is not one of those cases that the Military Committee in the House have sometimes refused to act upon, where there was a commission but no service. He served as a second lieutenant from the very day of the issuance of his commission, so that there is no reason for refusing to grant the relief asked.

Mr. McMILLIN. What increase does this make in his pension?

Mr. HAYES of Iowa. I do not know about the pension, but the increase is very slight, so far as the compensation is concerned.

Mr. McMILLIN. I understand as to the compensation, but it has not been the custom of the House to pass private pension claims that carried arrears of pensions.

Mr. HAYES of Iowa. Oh, no; it is not for that purpose. It is for the purpose of correcting his muster.

Mr. McMILLIN. The gentleman, then, would not object to a proviso in the bill that it should not entitle him to arrears of pensions?

Mr. HAYES of Iowa. Oh, certainly; I should have no objection to that amendment.

Mr. McMILLIN. I move that amendment:

Provided, That this act shall not carry the right to arrears of pension.

Mr. HAYES of Iowa. That is entirely satisfactory.

Mr. McMILLIN. That has been so long the custom of the House that I think it is eminently proper that that action should be taken.

Mr. HAYES of Iowa. That is entirely satisfactory. The bill was not introduced with any such intention.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. There is a committee amendment which will first be submitted.

The amendment was read, as follows:

In line 4, after the word "of," insert the word "second."

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The amendment submitted by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. McMILLIN] will now be read.

The Clerk read as follows:

In line 9, after the word "thereof," insert: "Provided, That this bill shall not carry the right to arrears of pension."

Mr. McMILLIN. I move the adoption of that amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read the third time; and being engrossed, was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. HAYES of Iowa, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid upon the table.

The SPEAKER. Without objection the title will be amended so as to conform with the body of the bill, so as to read "Correcting the muster of Second Lieut. Gilman L. Johnson."

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

THE BARGE SEA BIRD.

Mr. GEISSENHAINER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill which I send to the Clerk's desk, being the bill (S. 869) to provide an American register for the barge Sea Bird, of Perth Amboy, N. J.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Commissioner of Navigation is hereby authorized and directed to cause the wrecked barge Sea Bird, purchased and rebuilt by John Scully, a citizen of the United States at the port of Perth Amboy, N. J., to be registered as a vessel of the United States under the name of the barge Canary.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this bill?

There was no objection.

The bill was ordered to a third reading, and was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. GEISSENHAINER, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

Mr. KILGORE. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the regular order.

PRINTING THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to submit a privileged report.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. RICHARDSON] presents a privileged report, which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That there be printed for the use of the House —— copies of the annual message of the President, second session Fifty-second Congress.

With an amendment, as follows:

Amend by filling the blank with the words "ten thousand."

Mr. RICHARDSON. I ask for the reading of the report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. RICHARDSON, from the Committee on Printing, submitted the following report:

The committee have considered the House resolution to print extra copies of the annual message of the President of the United States, and direct me to report the same with the recommendation that it do pass, with an amendment filling the blank therein with the words "ten thousand," so that it will read, "that there be printed ten thousand copies," etc.

The estimate cost of same is $200.

The amendment recommended by the committee was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that on the 5th instant an estimate in relation to the expense of the Pan-American Medical Congress, 1893, in the District of Columbia, was referred by mistake to the Committee on the District of Columbia. That Committee will be discharged from the further consideration of the matter, and it will be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

CALL OF STANDING AND SELECT COMMITTEES.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will now proceed to call the standing and select committees for reports.

BUSINESS OF COMMITTEE ON WAR CLAIMS.

Mr. BELTZHOOVER. Mr. Speaker, I am directed by the Committee on War Claims to report the following resolution; and for the better consideration of it, I ask unanimous consent that it be read and printed in the Record.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, the 12th, 13th, and 14th of January, 1893, be set apart for the consideration of bills on the Private Calendar. During said days, after the reading of the Journal, the roll of the House shall be called in alphabetical order, and each member, as his name is called, shall have the right to call up any bill on said Calendar, authorizing the sending of a claim to the Court of Claims or making an appropriation not exceeding $5,000.

Mr. BELTZHOOVER. I ask unanimous consent that that resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Pennsylvania asks unanimous consent that this resolution be printed in the RECORD. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The call of the committees for reports was resumed and concluded.

The SPEAKER. The morning hour begins at nineteen minutes past 12.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, I ask that the Speaker return to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce in the call of committees.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Virginia asks that the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce be called. It was passed over without prejudice, and the Chair will call the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE ALABAMA RIVER.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (H. R. 5752) to amend an act approved August 6, 1888, entitled "An act to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Alabama River."

The bill was read at length.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SQUAN INLET LIGHT STATION, NEW JERSEY.

Mr. WISE. I now call up for consideration the bill (S. 2451) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to reconvey to Lucius U. Maltby and Louise W. Maltby, his wife, Margaret Elizabeth Lucas, and the Sea Girt Land Improvement Company a piece of land selected as a site for the Squan Inlet light station, New Jersey, but found to be unsuitable for the purpose of said station.

The bill was read at length.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE WARRIOR RIVER.

Mr. WISE. I now call up for consideration the bill (H. R. 6798) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Warrior River by the Montgomery, Tuscaloosa and Memphis Railway Company.

The bill was read at length.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

PUNTA GORDA A SUBPORT OF ENTRY.

Mr. WISE. I now call up for consideration the bill (S. 1956) to make Punta Gorda a subport of entry.

The bill was read at length.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE MOBILE RIVER.

Mr. WISE. I now call up for consideration the bill (H. R. 8602) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mobile River by the Chicago, Mobile and Gulf Ports Railroad Company.

The Clerk proceeded to read the bill.

During the reading of the bill

Mr. LIND said: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the further reading of the bill. It is in the usual form, properly guarded.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Minnesota asks unanimous consent to dispense with the further reading of the bill. Is there objection?

Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE. I object. [After further reading of the bill.] I withdraw my objection.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think the bill had better be read.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana objects.

Mr. HOLMAN (after further reading of the bill). I withdraw my objection.

Mr. DUNPHY. I object.

After further reading of the bill

Mr. WISE said: I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the further reading of the bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Virginia asks unanimous consent to dispense with the further reading of this bridge bill. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, there are some committee amendments. The committee moved to strike out the whole of section 9, and to renumber the succeeding sections accordingly.

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The renumbering will be done by the Clerk.

Mr. WISE. The next amendment offered by the committee is in section 13, line 5, after the word "Congress," insert the words "or the Secretary of War."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

TRANSPORTATION OF DUTIABLE GOODS, DULUTH.

Mr. LIND. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (S. 3188) to extend to Duluth, Minn., the privileges of the first section of an act entitled "An act to amend the statutes in relation to immediate transportation of dutiable goods, and for other purposes," approved June 10, 1888.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the provisions of the first section of an act entitled "An act to amend the statutes in relation to immediate transportation of dutiable goods, and for other purposes," approved June 10, 1880, be, and the same are hereby, extended to the port of Duluth, Minn.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

In accordance with the recommendation of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce the title of the bill was amended so as to read: "An act to extend to Duluth, Minn., the privileges of the first section of an act entitled 'An act to amend the statutes in relation to immediate transportation of dutiable goods, and for other purposes,' approved June 10, 1880."

Mr. LIND moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

BRIDGE ACROSS RED RIVER, LOUISIANA.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (H. R. 9488) to amend an act approved March 2, 1891, authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Red River, Louisiana, by the Rapides Bridge Company, limited.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the act approved March 2, 1891, entitled "An act authorizing the Rapides Bridge Company, limited, to construct and maintain a bridge across the Red River at or near Alexandria, La.," be, and is hereby, amended so that the time within which the actual construction of said bridge may be commenced is hereby extended for the period of one year from the date of the approval of this act.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Mr. WISE moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

BRIDGE ACROSS CANE RIVER, LOUISIANA.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (H. R. 9487) to amend an act approved April 22, 1890, authorizing the Natchitoches Cane River Bridge Company to construct and maintain a bridge across Cane River, in Louisiana.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the act approved April 22, 1890, entitled "An act to authorize the Natchitoches Cane River Bridge Company to construct and maintain a bridge across Cane River, in Louisiana," be, and is hereby, amended so that the time within which the actual construction of said bridge may be commenced is hereby extended for the period of one year from the date of the approval of this act.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Mr. WISE moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

BRIDGE ACROSS TALLAPOOSA AND COOSA RIVERS.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (S. 1647) to authorize the Alabama and Grand Trunk Railroad Company to bridge across the Tallapoosa and Coosa Rivers.

The Clerk proceeded to read the bill.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, this bill is somewhat long, and I ask unanimous consent that its further reading be dispensed with.

Mr. TRACEY. I think the bill ought to be read once, Mr. Speaker.

The Clerk resumed and completed the reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Mr. WISE moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

COMMON CARRIERS.

Mr. LIND. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (H. R. 9176) relating to contracts of common carriers and to certain obligations, duties and rights in connection with the carriage of property.

The bill was read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That it shall not be lawful for any common carrier or manager, agent, master, or owner of any common carrier, whether by land or water, to insert in any bill of lading or shipping document any clause, covenant, or agreement whereby it, he, or they shall be relieved from liability for loss or damage arising from negligence, fault, or failure in proper loading, stowage, custody, care in transport, or proper delivery of any and all lawful merchandise or property committed to its or their charge, nor shall it be lawful to limit its or their liability to less than a full indemnity to the legal claimant for any loss or damage therefrom, and any and all words or clauses of such import inserted in bills of lading or shipping receipts shall be null and void and of no effect.

SEC. 2. That it shall not be lawful for any vessel transporting merchandise or property from or between ports of the United States of America and foreign ports, her owner, master, agent, or manager, to insert in any bill of lading or shipping document any covenant or agreement whereby the obligations of the owner or owners of said vessel to properly equip, man, provision, and outfit said vessel, and make said vessel seaworthy and capable of performing her intended voyage, or any convenant or agreement whereby the obligations of the master, officers, agents, or servants to carefully handle and stow her cargo and to care for and properly deliver same, shall in any wise be lessened, weakened, or avoided.

SEC. 3. That if any vessel transporting merchandise or property between ports in the United States of America and foreign ports shall, on starting on her voyage, be in all respects seaworthy and properly manned, equipped, and supplied, neither the vessel, her owner or owners, agent, or master shall become or be held responsible for damage or loss resulting from error of judgment in navigation or in the management of said vessel, if navigated with ordinary skill and care, from the time of her leaving her usual place of loading on her intended voyage until her arrival at the usual place of discharge at her port of delivery, nor shall the owner or owners, the vessel, or master be held liable for losses arising from dangers of the sea, acts of God, or public enemies, or in saving life, and it may be stipulated in bills of lading and shipping receipts that the vessel may render services to property in distress afloat and tow same to the nearest and most convenient port of safety without incurring penalties from deviation in rendering such service.

SEC. 4. That it shall be the duty of the owner or owners, agent, manager, or other authorized person to issue to shippers of any lawful merchandise a bill of lading or shipping document stating the marks, packages, or quantity and apparent condition of such merchandise or property delivered to and received by the owner, master, or agent of the vessel for transportation, and the voyage, or ports at which such vessel is intended to touch, and such document shall be evidence of the responsibility of the vessel for the merchandise therein described.

SEC. 5. That it shall be the duty of the collector of the port in which the vessel is lying to refuse clearance to a vessel from said port if he is informed and is satisfied that the owner, master, agent, or other person representing such vessel has issued bills of lading for merchandise or property containing clauses that are declared not lawful by section 1 or section 2 of this act, or if he is informed and is satisfied that the owner, agent, master, or other person representing such vessel will not issue bills of lading, as required by section 4 of this act, for merchandise or property delivered to and received by the vessel for transportation; and the said collector shall withhold clearance papers to said vessel until bills of lading or shipping documents are issued to conform to the said first, second, and fourth sections of this act, or if documents have been previously issued until they are modified to conform to the requirements of said sections.

SEC. 6. That this act shall be subservient to sections 4281, 4282, and 4283 of the Revised Statutes of the United States of America, and that said sections of the Revised Statutes af the United States shall not be modified or changed by this act.

SEC. 7. That this act shall take effect from and after the 1st day of September, 1892.

The following amendments recommended by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce were agreed to:

Section 1, lines 4 and 5, strike out the words "common carrier whether by land or water" and insert "vessel transporting merchandise or property from or between ports of the United States and foreign ports."

Page 3, section 5, after the word "agent" insert the words "connecting carrier," so as to make the provision read: "That it shall be the duty of the collector of the port in which the vessel is lying to refuse clearance to a vessel from said port if he is informed and is satisfied that the owner, master, agent, connecting carrier, or other person," etc.

Page 4, section 6, line 1, strike out the words "be subservient to sections 4281, 4282, and 4283 of the Revised Statutes of the United States of America, and that said sections of the Revised Statutes of the United States shall not be modified or changed by this act," and insert "not be held to modify or repeal sections 4281, 4282, and 4283 of the Revised Statutes of the United States."

Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, is there a report upon this bill?

Mr. LIND. There is a report, but it is somewhat long. The bill simply relates to vessels engaged in the foreign trade and does not in any manner concern or touch inland or coastwise commerce.

Mr. DINGLEY. It relates to a very important matter if it relates to all vessels engaged in the foreign trade.

Mr. LIND. Yes, sir. I can state very briefly what the import of the bill is.

Mr. DINGLEY. Is it the intention to have debate upon this bill?

Mr. LIND. I do not think that when gentlemen understand what the purpose of the bill is they will desire debate.

Mr. DINGLEY. Can we understand it without debate?

Mr. LIND. I have not moved the previous question. I will state briefly the purpose of the bill.

As the gentleman is aware nearly all the carrying of flour and other Western commodities from this country to Europe is done by foreign steamships. These steamship companies have in recent years exacted the most unreasonable bills of lading that can be imagined—bills of lading in which they exempt themselves, not only from risk of every character incident to transportation, but from every liability on account of their own negligence. More than that, they stipulate in their bills of lading that the American shipper shall have his rights or his claims whatever they may be, adjudicated according to the laws of Great Britain and only in the courts of that country. This bill simply provides that it shall not be lawful for vessels engaged in foreign commerce to exact bills of lading of that character.

Mr. BOUTELLE. How far do you propose to regulate that?

Mr. LIND. Only to the extent of providing that these shipping companies shall not exact such bills of lading; further than that the bill does not go. I will ask the reading of the report which explains the bill fully.

Mr. REED. How is it possible for those shipping companies to enforce such bills of lading?

Mr. LIND. By refusing to carry.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Let me ask a question. Suppose it is proposed by an American shipper to put on board a vessel for transportation across the ocean some goods which are packed, we will say, in bottles, and the bottles in baskets or barrels. Does the gentleman mean to say that Congress is asked to pass a law which shall prevent the owners of a vessel in such a case from putting in their bill of lading a clause providing that they shall not be responsible for leakage, breakage, etc.?

Mr. LIND. Not at all. It is simply provided that they shall not exempt themselves from the results of their own negligence.

Mr. REED. How can they exempt themselves from the results of their own negligence?

Mr. LIND. They so provide in the bill of lading.

Mr. REED. But they can not exempt themselves when the matter comes before a court of law.

Mr. LIND. The courts have held all over the country that if a shipper in a bill of lading releases the railroad company or vessel or other common carrier from all responsibility on account of negligence it is his contract, and he is bound by it.

Mr. DALZELL. What court ever held that?

Mr. LIND. The courts of our State and of many of the States and of England have so held.

Mr. DALZELL. I never knew of any such decision.

Mr. LIND. I wish to say in answer to the gentleman from Maine——

Mr. BOUTELLE. Let me put my inquiry a little more distinctly. Does the bill propose to deny to shippers the right to make different conditions in regard to the shipment of different classes of goods.

Mr. LIND. Not at all.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Then I do not understand the bill.

Mr. LIND. Let me call the gentleman's attention to this state of facts: In one case a miller shipped a quantity of flour abroad. This flour was stowed next to a lot of kerosene. As a matter of course the natural evaporation and leakage of the kerosene damaged the flour so as to make it utterly valueless. In that case the courts of Great Britain, where this man was compelled to go under his bill of lading for a remedy, held that inasmuch as he had released the carrying company from liability on account of their own negligence he had no claim for this, I might say, maliciously negligent destruction of his property.

The bill is not designed to hamper commerce; it is not designed to interfere with the shipment of any commodities to Europe; but it seeks to give our citizens some protection as against foreign shipowners, so long as we have not vessels of our own to carry on this traffic.

Mr. BOUTELLE. The protection it seems to me which your people ought to get is the protection which they secure to themselves in the contracts they make when they ship their goods.

Mr. LIND. But the gentleman will understand that these steamships have an absolute monopoly of this business; there are no steam vessels of our own carrying these commodities; so that these foreign shipowners are enabled to say, "You must carry with us on our terms or go without transportation."

The SPEAKER. The morning hour has expired; and this bill will go over until the next morning hour.

Mr. LIND. I ask that the report accompanying this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There was no objection.

The report (by Mr. LIND) is as follows:

The Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 9176) relating to contracts of common carriers and to certain obligations, duties, and rights in connection with the carriage of property submit the following report:

Our exports of domestic grain and flour during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, were as follows:

Articles.	Quantity.	Value.
Barley ..... bushels..	2,800,075	$1,751,445
Corn ..... do....	75,449,849	41,590,460
Cornmeal ..... barrels..	287,607	919,961
Oats ..... bushels..	9,435,078	3,842,559
Oatmeal ..... pounds..	20,907,662	555,957
Rye ..... bushels..	12,040,716	11,433,160
Rye flour ..... barrels..	4,543	22,461
Wheat ..... bushels..	157,280,351	161,399,132
Wheat flour ..... barrels..	15,196,869	75,362,283
Total	.....	296,877,418

Constituting, as it does, our great staple of export by the side of cotton, an imperative duty rests upon Congress to pass such legislation as may be necessary to remove from this trade all unnecessary burdens and restrictions. In former times grain and flour were carried by sailing vessels, the masters of which never refused to grant bills of lading acknowledging that the goods intrusted to them for transportation were received in good order and condition, if such was the case, and undertaking to deliver them at the port of destination in the like condition unless prevented from so doing by losses arising from dangers of the sea, acts of God, or public enemies. Such exceptions are fair and reasonable, and can not be complained of.

But latterly almost the entire carrying of grain and flour from the United States to Europe has been absorbed by steam vessels belonging to a few large and powerful corporations, and it is not overstating the facts when we say that these steamship companies have now as complete a monopoly of this trade—at least from the Atlantic seaboard—as if there were no other craft afloat.

The manner in which they impose upon our shippers and the unreasonable conditions which the companies compel them to agree to are so tersely and graphically set out in a petition recently addressed by the Glasgow Corn Trade Association to the Marquis of Salisbury that we quote from it as follows:

"That, taking advantage of this practical monopoly, the owners of the steamship lines combined to adopt clauses in their bills of lading very seriously and unduly limiting their obligations as carriers of the goods, and refused to accept consignments for carriage on any other terms than those dictated by themselves.

"That this policy has been gradually extended by the steamship owners, until at the present time their bills of lading are so unreasonable and unjust in their terms as to exempt them from almost every conceivable risk and responsibility as carriers of goods.

"For example, many of these bills of lading provide, in addition to the usual and reasonable exceptions, that the carriers shall not be liable for loss or damage occasioned by negligence of the master, pilot, stevedores, crew, or others in their employment; nor for bad stowage; nor for defect or insufficiency of the hull, machinery, or fittings of a vessel, whether occurring before or after receiving the goods on board; nor for the admission of water into the vessel by any cause, and whether for the purpose of extinguishing fire or for any other purpose, and whether occurring previously or subsequently to the vessel's sailing; nor for the differences between the quality, marks, or brands of flour or other goods shipped and those of the goods actually found to be on board of the steamer (the marks, numbers, or description in the bill of lading notwithstanding); nor for loss of weight; nor for detention, delay, or deviation.

"Such bills of lading also frequently exempt the carrier from any claim not intimated before delivery of the goods, and at the same time provide that the master porterage of the goods on arrival of the steamer shall be done by the steamship owners or their agents at the expense and risk of the receivers, so that the receivers have no opportunity before the delivery of their goods of ascertaining whether they are damaged or not, or how or in what part of the hold of the vessel they may have been stowed.

"That bills of lading have thus become so lengthened, complex, and involved that in the ordinary course of business it is almost impossible for shippers of goods to read or check their various conditions, even if objections would be listened to, and the hardship is aggravated by the fact that new and more stringent conditions are constantly being added by the shipowners to provide for new questions or claims that may have arisen.

"That a striking illustration of this is the fact that recently a clause has been added to certain steamship forms of bill of lading actually giving the ship owners a right of lien over, and the right to sell the goods entrusted to them for carriage, not only for the freight upon the goods themselves, but for all debts due, either by the shippers or the consignees of such goods, to the carriers or their agents, though these debts may have arisen on contracts unconnected with the carriage of such goods. The effect of this clause is to render the bill of lading, which has been of such essential service on account of its negotiable character in promoting the commercial prosperity of Great Britain, a document unfit for negotiation, as bankers, merchants, and others can not safely rely upon it as a clear title to the goods; and, in consequence, your memoralists are daily finding themselves more and more hampered in the conduct of their business."

In addition to the exactions referred to above, we call attention to others so humiliating to an American citizen that the mere mention of them ought to be sufficient ground for the passage of this act: For instance, the Erie Despatch Company issues a bill of lading containing a clause as follows:

"XVI. Also, in case of property carried by any vessel destined to a British port, or to any other port by a British vessel, this contract shall be governed, so far as regards the responsibility of the transoceanic vessel and her owners, by the law of England, with reference to which law this part of the contract is made."

The International Navigation Company general agents, Philadelphia, appearing for the American line and others, submitted to the writer of this an argument in opposition to the passage of this bill, to which is attached a blank bill of lading to show the form of those issued by them. It contains the following provision:

"The liability of the carrier, under this bill of lading, shall be governed by the law of England, with reference to which law this contract is made."

To instance the hardships and losses which shippers have to submit to without remedy, we call attention to the statement made by one of the leading exporters of flour. That in one instance the master of an English Atlantic steamer had caused kerosene to be loaded next to a quantity of flour in such a careless manner that all the flour was utterly ruined. The English courts held that under the provisions of the bill of lading which the shipper had signed he had no remedy.

The bill herewith reported is extremely liberal in its provisions. It permits carriers to insert in bills of lading all the reasonable exemptions from liability that they can justly demand. But it prohibits them from inserting provisions such as those cited and others equally onerous.

The committee recommend the following amendments:

In lines 4 and 5, on page 1, strike out the words "common carriers whether by land or water," and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Vessels transporting merchandise or property from or between ports of the United States and foreign ports."

Amend in line 4, on page 3, by inserting after the word "agent," the following: "Connecting carrier."

Strike out all of section 6 and insert in lieu thereof:

"SEC. 6. This act shall not be held to modify or repeal the provisions of sections 4281, 4282, and 4283 of the Revised Statutes of the United States."

As thus amended the bill relates solely to cargoes of vessels in the foreign trade, and the committee recommends its passage.

ARMY APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the consideration of general appropriation bills.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union (Mr. DEARMOND in the chair); and proceeded to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 9825) making appropriation for the support of the Army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, and for other purposes.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I ask unanimous consent that the first reading of this bill be dispensed with.

There being no objection, it was ordered accordingly.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Chairman, before proceeding to the second reading of the bill I will submit a brief statement concerning the appropriations it contains.

It will be observed that the estimates for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, amount to $25,922,955.42. This bill proposes to appropriate the sum of $24,202,739.78; that is, $1,720,215.64 less than the estimates of the War Department. It carries $85,760.04 less than the appropriation for the year ending June 30, 1893, the current appropriation bill. It carries less than the average of the appropriations of bills for the military establishment during each of the fiscal years for the last six years. There is but one year, within the six years preceding this, in which the appropriation is less than that carried by the pending bill; that was made up by an increase in the appropriation in subsequent years, however.

The amount carried in this bill is $410,789.41 less than was appropriated in the Army bill for 1892. For pay of the Army this bill appropriates $13,256,889.78, while the law for the present year provides for $13,299,149.82 for the same purpose. Increases arise in the pay of the Army from what may be termed natural reasons or rather legal reasons. That is to say in the pay of officers on the active and retired list, for length of service and from the expected increases in the number of officers on the retired list or who will be placed there during the current year and also from the increased numbers of enlisted men on the retired list, or who will be placed thereon within a year. These numbers have been increasing right along since these two retired lists were established.

We have not yet reached the maximum, but it is quite probable that within a year or two we shall have reached the maximum expenditure required for this purpose. There is also an increase in the pay of the Hospital Corps. This corps was established but a few years ago—in fact, this organization has grown up within the last six years, and it has about reached the maximum of cost. The increase for the pay of retired enlisted men is $33,611.79, and that for the Hospital Corps $25,000. For the mileage of officers when traveling on duty without troops, there is an increase of $5,000. To this item I will address myself for a few minutes later on.

The chief reduction in this part of the bill, that is the part pertaining to the pay of the Army proper, as compared with the law of 1893, is in the item for pay of officers of the line $25,000, and for pay of officers in the Pay Department $13,250. For pay of officers for length of service the reduction is $67,330. Taking the increases and the decreases, the amount given in this part of the bill shows a net reduction of $42,260.04.

Let me call the attention of the committee to the fact that this is not, in truth, a saving of that amount. The only actual saving in the reductions is that of $13,250 in the Pay Department, where there has been, on account of an amendment of the law made at the last session of Congress, a reduction in the officers of the Pay Department. The other apparent reductions in the pay are reductions simply as to the amount appropriated, the committee believing that there was sufficient margin in the balances heretofore allowed the Pay Department for these items to admit of this reduction.

There is at the close of the report a comparison between the items in the law of 1891–'92 and in this bill. It gives in one column the amounts appropriated in the year 1891–'92, in another column the amounts of this bill, in another the increases, and in another the decrease of appropriations.

Mr. KILGORE. Will the gentleman permit me to interrupt him to inquire if there is any appropriation in this bill that is not authorized by law; any new legislation, new items?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. There may be some items, and to these I will call the attention of the gentleman or of the committee as we reach them. They are small, very small items. They can not be said to be insignificant or they would not be in the bill.

The first five items of decreases in the column to which I have just referred, and to which I now call the attention of the committee, are decreases of the character I have just been mentioning, not really decreases, but reductions of the amount appropriated for the Pay Department. Then there are certain increases and decreases in the pay of the officers of the different departments. These items result chiefly from increased rank of some officers in instances where there is an increase, or from an increase in the length of service of the officers, and in the other the death of some of the officers, or the general average of the increased pay being less.

There are several items which are pure decreases from the amounts appropriated in 1892, to which I wish to call attention. The first is allowance for travel for officers traveling without troops. This item has been reduced $24,104.87.

In the item of the subsistence of the Army there has been a reduction of $45,000.

In the Quartermaster's Department, for regular supplies for that Department, there is a reduction of $153,000.

For incidental expenses there is a reduction of $25,000.

For horses for cavalry there is a reduction of $15,000, and for army transportation a reduction of $150,000.

For barracks and quarters there is a reduction of $25,000.

For purchases of buildings there is a reduction of $50,000.

For construction and repairs of hospitals there is a reduction of $25,000, and for quarters for hospital stewards there is a reduction of $45,000.

The largest increase in this bill will be found in the appropriation for the Ordnance Department.

In the manufacture of metallic ammunition for small arms there is an increase of $30,000.

For the purchase of ordnance, stores, etc., there is an increase of $15,000, and for infantry, cavalry, and artillery equipment there is an increase of $90,000.

Accompanying the report is a statement of Gen. Flagler, Chief of the Ordnance Department, showing the necessity for these increases. He states the purposes for which these appropriations are required, and then he gives substantial reasons for an increase in such appropriations of this kind. He mentions this fact in one part of his statement, speaking of the increase required for the purchase and manufacture of ordnance stores, etc.:

The appropriation for the last four years has been $100,000 for each year. Now, to show you some of the troubles I labor under in regard to that item in not being able to supply what is called for: Our fortifications are getting ready to place our new armament, are making requisitions for what they require, that is, for machinery to mount the guns.

It is well known to this House that great appropriations have been made to construct large guns of the latest patterns and models, at great expense. These guns have been provided for our fortifications, and yet no appropriation has been made for machinery suitable to place these guns in position. Requisitions are being made upon the Ordnance Department for that kind of machinery. Continuing, Gen. Flagler says:

That one item for handling and mounting guns itself calls for more than one hundred items.

In addition to the machinery they require for executing mechanical maneuvers, there are fifteen posts mentioned by the engineering department where provisions must be made for mounting guns and gun carriages on the various emplacements now being prepared; such emplacements as at Portland, Me., Boston, Mass., Long Island Head, N. Y., Fort Hamilton, Fort Tompkins, Fort Barrancas, Fort Rankin, etc. Now we have but one complete set of machines for mounting and handling guns, I mean one complete set in San Francisco Harbor and two in New York Harbor, whereas we should be prepared to issue next year nine complete sets of these machines, one to each harbor and one to each post, and one in addition. A complete set of these machines costs $879.90. It consists of a gin, a gun-lifting sling, and many smaller items. The fifteen sets required would cost $13,198.50, and extra parts for keeping them in order $500, making a total of $13,698.50. This is one of the items I can not do anything with, with the amount that is now appropriated. I make this statement to illustrate one of the things that give us trouble.

In another part of his statement the Chief of Ordnance says:

We had left over in the artillery department after the war a large amount of material, which, although not of regulation pattern and which could not be used by the Army in the condition in which it was found, was available for working over and saving very considerable amounts in the cost of manufacturing our supplies. I mention one important item under this—saddletrees. We had enough saddletrees, so that we were not compelled to purchase any until about a year and a half ago. We were able to work over our large stock of artillery harness and utilize considerable portions of it. Small-arm ammunition we had enough left over so that it enabled us to save cost, and so with many similar items. These supplies are entirely exhausted, and this saving is no longer possible. Under most of the items I find it impossible to supply the Army with what law and regulation require. We have almost none of these supplies on hand. We are compelled to manufacture in small lots as they are called for from time to time, which is not as economical as it would be if we could manufacture in large quantities and hold supplies over from year to year.

Now concerning the item as to the manufacture of metallic ammunition for small arms, manufacture of and reloading cartridges and tools for the same, he says:

I find under that head that the amount that has been appropriated for the last two or three years was not sufficient to furnish all the ammunition required by the Army. The War Department requires the expenditure for target practice, cartridges, and reloading materials of $4 per man per annum, and about $1.93 per man per annum for gallery practice. This makes $5.93 per man per annum, and about 23,000 men receive this, making $136,400 for the one item of target practice alone.

Now that is required of him, and yet he was not able during the last year to comply with the requisition. He has been able to do so when he could use up this other material left over from the war supply.

He goes on to say:

Not only does law and regulation require me to expend this amount, but every military man is agreed upon the necessity of it. If, then, the whole amount, $200,000, asked for is appropriated, it will leave $63,600 for providing ammunition for hostile purposes, blanks for drills, etc., and for the accumulation of a small stock to meet emergencies which may arise at any moment, and is a very small allowance for these purposes.

To that extent the committee did not go. They have recommended an appropriation of $180,000, instead of the $200,000 asked for in the estimates submitted.

In the examination of this gentleman before the committee, he was asked as to the balances that he had over of the money appropriated for some of these purposes, and his reply was that it would not exceed $5. I examined the report and found that there were two or three of those items in which the balances he had then on hand were so closely used up, that all three together in his hands did not reach $50. It is not so in some other departments of the Government, and some other bureaus of the War Department. They have larger balances—sometimes $200,000 or $300,000—and that has enabled us to make some of these cuts we have suggested.

Now, I desire to call the attention of the House a few moments to the Quartermaster's Department. The appropriation for regular supplies is $50,000 less than it is for the current year, and $103,000 less than it is for each of the three preceding years. It is $191,479.42 less than the estimate. The amount in the bill for incidental expenses is the same as that for the current year. For the purchase of horses for cavalry, artillery, and other army uses, there is no reduction of the amount, but there is a reduction below the estimates of $46,625.46

Mr. LONG. Forty-eight.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I thank the gentleman, $48,625.46. The letter of estimate contains this note—

The amount called for is $46,025.46—

That is an error. It should be $48,625.46—

in excess of the sum appropriated for the current fiscal year. This increase is required to supply horses for mounting the hospital corps of the Army, the act of July 16, 1892, having provided that the same should be borne from the appropriations for the Quartermaster's Department.—R. N. Batchelder, Quartermaster-General.

The committee did not take that view of the situation. The committee have limited the number of horses which shall be purchased, so that they shall not exceed the number of enlisted men and Indian scouts in the mounted service, believing for the present the Hospital Corps can be supplied with horses, so far as there may be necessity for their immediate use, from the horses purchased under this general supply.

For army transportation the bill provides $2,600,000, which is believed will be ample for that purpose. The improved facilities of travel should enable those having control of the troops and supplies to make a considerable reduction in this large item, and there can not be the same necessity for moving troops as there was before some of the remote posts were abandoned a few years ago, and when Indian troubles were more frequent than they are now.

The amount estimated for is $2,750,000. The reduction from this item in the bill amounts to $100,000 below the appropriations for the current year, and $150,000 below the estimates, believing that greater economy can be exercised in this direction.

There is another item to which I will call the attention of this committee when we come to that part of the bill in considering it by paragraphs.

Unless some gentleman wishes to speak in general debate, I will ask unanimous consent that general debate be closed upon the bill. No gentleman has signified a wish to debate the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Ohio asks unanimous consent that all general debate on the bill shall be closed, and that the bill be now read by paragraphs for amendment.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

The Clerk read as follows:

For pay of not exceeding thirty-five paymasters' clerks, at $1,400 each; not exceeding thirty paymasters' messengers, and traveling expenses of paymasters' clerks and expert accountant of the Inspector-General's Department, $84,200: Provided, That hereafter the number of paymasters' clerks shall be reduced one for every paymaster reduced under the operations of this act: Provided further, That hereafter the maximum sum to be allowed paymasters' clerks and the expert accountant of the Inspector-General's Department, when traveling on duty, shall be 4 cents per mile, and in addition thereto, when transportation can not be furnished by the Quartermaster's Department, the cost of the same actually paid by them, exclusive of parlor-car or sleeping-car fare and transfers.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I desire at this point to call the attention of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. KILGORE] to the new legislation in the bill. There is in this paragraph the insertion of the word "hereafter" in two instances in the provisos to the paragraph.

Mr. KILGORE. Which paragraph is that?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. It is the paragraph at the bottom of page 6.

Mr. KILGORE. The effect of that would be to make this a permanent appropriation.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. No; not to make it a permanent appropriation. This proviso makes it a permanent law:

Provided, That hereafter the number of paymasters' clerks shall be reduced one for every paymaster reduced under the operations of this act.

In the paragraph above the gentleman will see that there is a proviso:

That hereafter no appointment shall be made to the grade of major in the Pay Department of the Army until the number is reduced below twenty-five.

And instead of repeating that in the annual appropriation bills we put the word "hereafter" in. That occurs again at the bottom of the page and paragraph. I suppose there is no objection to that.

Mr. KILGORE. None at all.

The Clerk read as follows:

For pay of the enlisted men of the Army on the retired list, $320,000.

Mr. ANTONY. Mr. Chairman, I offer the amendment which I send to the desk.

The amendment was read, as follows:

Amend by inserting at the end of line 11, page 6: "Provided, That before any retired officer or retired enlisted man shall be paid any part of his pay as such retired officer or retired enlisted man the Secretary of War shall ascertain if such person receives pay from the Government of the United States in any other official capacity, and if such is the case, he shall not receive any pay under this act."

Mr. ANTONY. I offer this amendment, Mr. Chairman, because it has been understood for a long time and is generally regarded as a fact, that the postmaster at Austin, Tex., is receiving pay as a retired colonel of the Army, while at the same time he is holding the position of postmaster and enjoying the emoluments of that office. Only a few years ago he was elected mayor of the city of Austin while he was receiving pay as a retired colonel. The case was investigated by the courts, and he was removed from the office of mayor because he was a retired Army colonel and could not, under the Constitution, hold both offices at the same time. I do not think it right that the money of the United States should be squandered in any such way.

If a gentleman is receiving pay as a retired colonel of the Army, thus holding one do-nothing office under the Government of the United States, he ought not to receive pay for performing the duties of any other Government office, nor ought he to be permitted to hold the two offices at the same time. There are enough people in the United States to fill all the offices under the Government, without any one of them holding two at a time, and if any man does hold two offices I think his pay for the one or the other ought to be stopped.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Will the gentleman permit a question?

Mr. ANTONY. Yes, sir.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Does not the gentleman know that in the ordinary course of human events that postmaster is likely to go out of office pretty soon, so that a Democratic member of Congress on the retired list of the Army can come in? [Laughter.]

Mr. ANTONY. It does not make any difference, Mr. Chairman, whether a gentleman is a Democrat or a Republican. It is dishonest, in my opinion, and ought not to be permitted.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I hope you will tell the colonel so.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, a position on the retired list of the Army comes, as I understand it, either by virtue of the statute by the officer reaching a certain age, or by a certain length of continuous service, or by incapacity for military service.

The fact of a man being able to fill a local office satisfactorily should not, in my opinion, in anywise detract from a military service which has been honorable and distinguished, and which, under the statutes of the United States, entitles the officer to recognition and consideration. Gen. Sickles is elected to the next American Congress, and is fully able to perform, as a representative of his people, the duties of that great public service in this body, yet he stands distinguished upon the retired list of the Army, not because he is incapacitated for civil administration, but because by reason of years, as well as by the loss of a limb in the service, he is incapacitated for the command of troops.

Gen. Rosecrans to-day is in a like situation. There is no comparison, no relation, between the two kinds of service. There is nothing in the fact that a man is holding a local or a state office that should in anywise detract from that which is due to him under the statutes for the services which he has rendered to the Government of the United States. I do not think the gentleman's proposition is fair to the individual. My record in the service perhaps may entitle me to recognition under the law. My fitness for civil employment may be such as to excite the admiration of a constituency who may elect and send me to the place where they think I can be most useful. I do not think the gentleman's proposition is a consistent one, for usefulness in the Army and fitness for a place upon the retired list are defined by statute, but when a man is called to fill a civil office he is called by the people, who are the best judges of his fitness for that office.

Mr. ANTONY. I do not think the gentleman's remarks apply to this question in anywise. The case is that of a gentleman who is receiving pay as a retired officer of the Army. If he sees fit to abandon the position for which the Government may be holding him in readiness in the capacity of a retired officer, or if the Government sees fit to pension him by reason of his having become old or unfit for service, or if he were retired with honor on account of age, that is no reason why we should donate to him the amount he is receiving in that capacity, if he is also receiving as a representative of the people on this floor as much as any of the rest of us. That is an unfair distribution of the patronage of the Government among the people. More than that, it is a fraud upon the people's rights; it is a robbery of them by taking their money for purposes not justified by the Constitution and by our system of government. Here is an appropriation of $1,750,000 for this purpose. Shall the retired officer receive as much more in other capacities from the same source? Mr. Chairman, let us stop this fraud upon our people. Let us protect their rights.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Chairman, this amendment is rather too far-reaching, it seems to me, to be adopted as an amendment to a provision in the Army bill. It goes considerably further than it would appear to go at the first blush. If it is the purpose of Congress to say that hereafter no army officer upon the retired list, and no army officer or private soldier receiving a pension, shall be permitted to hold civil employment at the hands of the Government, it presents a question which should be referred for consideration to some committee having such matters in charge. There should be a distinct understanding as to how far we are to go in that direction.

I, for one, am willing to go somewhat in that direction, but I am not willing that so sweeping a clause should be inserted in the Army bill without an opportunity to consider how far it reaches, whom it strikes, what officers of the Government it may affect. The general principle of the gentleman's proposition is certainly a good one, the principle that officers on the retired list should not be permitted to hold other offices under the General Government. It is a principle embodied generally in the law. In the case which the gentleman mentions, as I understand, as soon as the matter was brought to the attention of the proper authorities the man was removed. Am I mistaken about that?

Mr. ANTONY. He was removed from the position of mayor of the city of Austin by the State authorities; but he is at present holding the office of postmaster while drawing pay as a retired colonel, as I understand. There are doubtless many other cases equally as bad.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Then, in order to reach such a case as that, if it be necessary, if the present law is not sufficient to cover such a case, there should be an amendment attached to the Post-Office appropriation bill, not to the Army bill. There are certain cases in which it may be advisable and wise that officers upon the retired list should be employed in matters pertaining to the National Government; but we have not had time to consider carefully in what instance an exception should be made. This provision is so sweeping that it makes no exception whatever. Therefore I hope that the Committee of the Whole will vote it down, and let the subject go in some shape or other to a proper committee. The question presented by the gentleman from Texas ought to go to the Post-Office Committee; it ought not to go to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. ANTONY. Mr. Chairman, I disagree with the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OUTHWAITE] on this proposition. I think the time to settle this question is now while we have it before us. This amendment simply provides that the Secretary of War in cases of this kind shall make investigation to ascertain the facts, and if it be true that the man is receiving from the Government pay in any other capacity than as a retired officer, that then he shall receive no pay as such retired officer. Of course the man may exercise his choice; he may decide to remain on the retired list, or, if he prefer it, he may exercise his right as an American citizen and hold any office under the Government which he may be able to get. But let him not be permitted to hold two offices at once. I hope Democrats will begin reform now and here—begin at once. I trust the committee will adopt the amendment in the interest of economy and Democratic reform. As it is, it is legalized plunder of the people.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I ask that the amendment of the gentleman from Texas be again read.

The Clerk again read the amendment of Mr. ANTONY.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that this amendment, whatever may be its motive, is defective in construction. As I understand, these salaries are paid monthly, and if this amendment were adopted it would be necessary for the War Department to inquire each month before the warrants are sent out whether any gentleman on the retired pay roll is receiving other pay from the United States. This could be determined, I suppose, by trusting to the honor of the incumbents for proper answer, or by sending out missives to every other department of the United States Government.

Whatever may be the motive of the amendment, I think the amendment itself impossible of execution without great additional expense. I myself rather favor the principle of one man for one office. One of the leading Democrats in my State holds somewhere about a dozen separate and distinct offices, and it is not because we have not Democrats enough to go around either. Two of the most lucrative offices in my county and city are held by one gentleman, and two of the next in point of salary are held by another gentleman. There seems to be a process of doubling up going on among the Democracy there which I should like to see rebuked by the Democracy in the House of Representatives. We do not seem to be able to have it rebuked at home.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. A word further, Mr. Chairman, before the vote is taken upon the amendment.

This is a very sweeping proposition, as I stated at the beginning; but now, upon hearing it read the second time, I believe it contains a provision that the gentleman himself would hardly be inclined to press when his attention is called to it. It is provided that no retired enlisted man or retired officer shall be permitted to receive pay for services rendered to the Government in any other direction while drawing such enlisted pay.

A retired enlisted man receives, probably, $12 per month, and this amendment, if adopted, would prevent his acting as a janitor, sweeper, doorkeeper, or anything else, no matter how menial the capacity, in any Department of the Government, or in any post office of the country, or in any place whatever where the General Government may be willing to employ him. He may have a family to support; he may have reached that age at which he would be no longer available for service in the Army; he has been retired from the service and receives his retired pay for long, faithful, patriotic services to the Government, and gets this pittance of $12 or $15 per month. If this provision is enacted he could not be hired by the Government to perform any other labor or receive any compensation to assist him in supporting his family.

Mr. DAVIS. Ought not the same rule to apply to those persons receiving pensions?

Mr. ANTONY. The proposition, if the gentleman will permit me, is not to prevent a retired man from receiving compensation from the Government, but to require him to surrender the $12 a month if he receives any other employment from the Government which is more profitable or pays him better.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. But the wages he may receive might be based on the fact that he is getting this monthly compensation on the retired list—this stipend from the Government; and besides that he may be incapacitated to such an extent as to unfit him to earn as much as an able-bodied man, and therefore he would not get the same compensation. The amendment ought to be rejected.

I ask for a vote.

The question being taken on the amendment of Mr. ANTONY, the committee divided; and there were—ayes 17, noes 60.

Mr. ANTONY. Mr. Chairman, I make the point that no quorum has voted.

The Chairman appointed Mr. ANTONY and Mr. OUTHWAITE as tellers.

The committee proceeded to divide. Before the result was announced

Mr. ANTONY said: I withdraw the point of order.

So (no further count being demanded) the amendment was rejected.

The Clerk read as follows:

For the purchase of horses for the cavalry and artillery, and for the Indian scouts, and for such infantry and members of the Hospital Corps as may be mounted, and the expenses incident thereto, $135,000: Provided, that the number of horses purchased under the appropriation, added to the number on hand, shall not at any time exceed the number of enlisted men and Indian scouts in the mounted service; and that no part of this appropriation shall be paid out for horses not purchased by contract, after competition duly invited by the Quartermaster's Department, and an inspection by such department, all under the direction and authority of the Secretary of War.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Chairman, I offer the amendment I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend, on page 14, line 6, by striking out "35" and inserting "25;" so that it will read "$125,000."

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that this appropriation for the purchase of horses for the cavalry and artillery of the Army is excessively large, in view of the fact that the claim has been made that the purpose of this large appropriation of money to buy cavalry horses is to fit out Indian scouts and to equip the Army largely in case of Indian wars in the West. Many members present will doubtless remember that at the last session of Congress a number of new military posts were established under the plea that there was no more necessity for the troops being held in the Western territory, the reason assigned being the fact that there would be no more Indian outbreaks.

Another reason for the reduction proposed here is that I understand this appropriation is made on the basis of the price paid for horses several years ago. Now, it is a well known fact that the price of horses, along with other agricultural products, has declined in this country at least 30 per cent. The horses to be bought for the military services will be largely taken from the Western States. In Colorado, in Oregon and Kansas are the fields where they will be mainly bought for the cavalry service. The best horses are raised in Kansas that can be found in any other State in the Union for this particular purpose, and to my personal knowledge horses can be purchased there fit for this service at least 30 per cent cheaper than they could have been bought a year or two ago.

I believe that this reduction of $10,000 is necessary for that reason as well as for others. The members present will remember another thing, that the Army appropriation and the Navy appropriation, and the expense of conducting the Pension Department, run up in the aggregate to an enormous sum that reaches one-half of the total expenditures of this Government; and I think we ought to be, wherever the chance is found, careful in doing all in our power to cut down the expenses and the cost of these numerous establishments to our people. We have no need in fact for an Army to-day; but inasmuch as we have one and want to equip it, let us go about it in a careful, painstaking manner, in a way to prevent any extravagant expenditures in its equipment, and in a way that will commend itself to the business judgment of men who consider the matter.

It is well known that in every government where there are large appropriations for such purposes temptation is afforded for lavish expenditures; but it is our duty, the duty of every member here, to see that everything possible is done to prevent lavish or wasteful expenditures of the money of the people in the equipment of the Army or Navy or in any other branch of the public service.

Therefore I think the amendment ought to prevail.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Chairman, the estimate for this item is $183,625.46. There was a reduction made by the committee, as I mentioned in my remarks awhile ago, of about $48,000, resulting from the fact that the committee concluded it was not wise or necessary at this time to make an appropriation sufficient to purchase horses for all of the Hospital Corps. Since this appropriation was reported to the House I have had a conversation with the Quartermaster-General, and from what he stated to me I can safely accept this amendment. In fact, I thought of offering an amendment to reduce the amount $5,000. If the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. SIMPSON] will modify his amendment so as to reduce the amount $5,000 there will be no question about it.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Chairman, I will agree to that modification, making the reduction $5,000 instead of $10,000, on condition that that is accepted.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend, on page 14, line 6, by striking out the word "thirty-five" and inserting the word "thirty;" so that it will read "$130,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

Barracks and quarters: For barracks and quarters for troops, storehouses for the safe-keeping of military stores, for offices, and for the hire of buildings and grounds for summer cantonments, and for temporary buildings at frontier stations, for the construction of temporary buildings and stables and for repairing public buildings at established posts, $700,000: Provided, That hereafter no expenditures exceeding $500 shall be made upon any building or military post, or grounds about the same, without the approval of the Secretary of War for the same, upon detailed estimates by the Quartermaster's Department; and the erection, construction, and repair of all buildings and other public structures in the Quartermaster's Department shall, as far may be practicable, be made by contract, after due legal advertisement.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Chairman, on page 17, line 16, I wish to make a verbal correction. The word "as" is omitted at the beginning of line 16, and I move to amend by inserting the word "as" before the word "may," in that line.

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

For the purchase of needful material to be used in the art of teaching cookery to the enlisted men in the two companies of the Hospital Corps, $500.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Chairman, I promised to call the attention of the Committee to the items in this bill which contained appropriations not authorized by law. This is one of these items, an appropriation of $500 to permit the Medical Department to purchase materials and supplies with which to teach the men in the Hospital Corps the art of cooking, or the method of cooking, so far as it may be necessary for them to do so, in taking care of the sick. The amount is only $500.

The Clerk resumed and completed the reading of the bill.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I move that the committee do now rise and report the bill with amendments to the House, with a favorable recommendation.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. ANTONY. Mr. Chairman, I have a resolution to present.

The CHAIRMAN. It will be read for information. The Chair does not know what it is.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the pending bill (H. R. 9825) be recommitted, with instructions to investigate the question of "retired officers" and "retired enlisted men" receiving pay in capacities other than such "retired" officers or men, and to make such provision as may be necessary to prevent any such person receiving pay from the Government while he is also receiving pay in any other capacity; under such restrictions and limitations as shall be deemed just.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I make the point of order that this comes too late, the motion for the committee to rise and report the bill to the House with a favorable recommendation having been agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair thinks that the proposition offered by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. ANTONY] is one which can only be properly offered in the House, and not in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I make that point of order also.

The committee then rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. DE ARMOND, chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that committee had had under consideration the bill (H. R. 9825) making appropriations for the support of the Army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, and for other purposes, and had instructed him to report the same back to the House with sundry amendments and with the recommendation that, as amended, it do pass.

Mr. ANTONY. Mr. Speaker, I have a resolution on the desk I should like to submit.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will indicate to the gentleman when that point comes up a little later on in the proceedings.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I move the previous question on the bill and pending amendments to the engrossment and third reading.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. If a separate vote is not desired on the amendments, the Chair will take the vote upon them as a whole.

The amendments were agreed to in gross.

The bill, as amended, was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Texas presents a motion to recommit

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the pending bill (H. R. 9825) be recommitted, with instructions to investigate the question of "retired officers" and "retired enlisted men" receiving pay in capacities other than such "retired officers or men," and to make such provision as may be necessary to prevent any such person receiving pay from the Government while he is also receiving pay in any other capacity, under such restrictions and limitations as shall be deemed just.

The SPEAKER. The Chair supposes that the gentleman means to recommit the bill to the Committee on Military Affairs?

Mr. ANTONY. Yes, sir.

The question was taken on the motion to recommit; and it was rejected.

The bill was then passed.

On motion of Mr. OUTHWAITE, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

FRANCISCO ALCANTARA.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to consider a resolution, coming from the Committee on Military Affairs, to permit a citizen of Venezuela to enter the Military Academy. It costs nothing.

The resolution was read, as follows:

A joint resolution (S. R. 73) authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the Military Academy at West Point Francisco Alcantara, of Venezuela.

Resolved by the Senate, etc., That the Secretary of War be, and he hereby is, authorized to permit Francisco Alcantara, of Venezuela, to receive instructions at the Military Academy at West Point: Provided, That no expense shall be caused to the United States thereby: And provided further, That in the case of the said Alcantara the provisions of sections 1320 and 1321 of the Revised Statutes shall be suspended.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The resolution was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

Mr. SCOTT, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that that committee had examined and found truly enrolled bills of the following titles; when the Speaker signed the same:

A bill (S. 2275) for the relief of purchasers of timber and stone lands under the act of June 3, 1878; and

A bill (S. 3418) making Saturday a half holiday for banking and trust company purposes in the District of Columbia.

LEAVE TO PRINT.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York [Mr. FITCH], chairman of the Special Committee to Investigate the Operation of the Federal Election Laws, asks that an order be made to have printed the testimony taken. Without objection the order will be made.

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and accordingly (at 2 o'clock and 42 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, private bills and resolutions were severally reported from committees, delivered to the Clerk, and referred to the Committee of the Whole House, as follows:

By Mr. COBB of Missouri, from the Committee on War Claims:

The bill (H. R. 9875) for the relief of Henry J. Hewitt, in lieu of the bill (H. R. 4096) of the same title. (Report No. 2157.)

The bill (H. R. 9798) for the relief of the heirs of the late Mrs. Mary Ann Randolph Custis Lee, of Fairfax County, Virginia. (Report No. 2155.)

By Mr. WINN, from the same committee: The bill (H. R. 3334) for the relief of Mrs. Sarah H. Wood. (Report No. 2156.)

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, committee was discharged from the consideration of the following bills; which were referred as follows:

The bill (H. R. 9842) for the correction of the record of James A. Smith, deceased—the Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

The bill (S. 2042) granting an increase of pension to Mrs. Helen G. Heiner—the Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

BILLS, MEMORIALS, AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills and a resolution of the following titles were introduced and severally referred, as follows:

By Mr. McALEER: A bill (H. R. 9872) to authorize the sale to the Schuylkill River East Side Railroad Company of a lot of ground belonging to the United States Naval Asylum, in the city of Philadelphia, Pa.—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. HEMPHILL: A bill (H. R. 9873) to create a board of charities, etc., in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9874) to prohibit the interment of bodies in Graceland Cemetery—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HENDERSON of North Carolina: A bill (H. R. 9877) to amend the proviso to be found in connection with the free-delivery service, page 569, 24th volume Statutes at Large—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. BELTZHOOVER: A resolution requesting that Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, the 12th, 13th, and 14th days of January, 1893, be set apart for the consideration of bills on the Private Calendar—to the Committee on Rules.

PRIVATE BILLS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills of the following titles were presented and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. ARNOLD (by request): A bill (H. R. 9878) for the relief Washington A. McMinn, of Bollinger County, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also (by request), a bill (H. R. 9879) for the relief of John S. Yount, of Bollinger County, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also (by request), a bill (H. R. 9880) for the relief of Elizabeth Baker, widow of Joseph Baker, late of Bollinger County, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. ATKINSON (by request): A bill (H. R. 9881) for the relief of Abby J. Decker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also (by request), a bill (H. R. 9882) for the relief of Almon Springsteen—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BELKNAP: A bill (H. R. 9883) restoring Elmira B. Rice to the pension roll—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BYNUM (by request): A bill (H. R. 9884) to increase the pension of Mary E. Bentley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COVERT: A bill (H. R. 9885) granting a pension to Mrs. M. Belle Houk—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ENOCHS: A bill (H. R. 9886) granting an honorable discharge to John Herrity—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9887) for the relief of William H. Sprinkle—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9888) authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay the city of Portsmouth the cost of constructing pavements around the public building owned by the United States Government in said city—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: A bill (H. R. 9889) to remove the charge of desertion against Frank A. Land, late of Company C, Third Maryland Regiment—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MARTIN: A bill (H. R. 9890) to restore the pension of Cynthia Redding—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUSK: A bill (H. R. 9891) granting a pension to Mrs. Elizabeth Wooden—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SIMPSON: A bill (H. R. 9892) to increase the pension of Mrs. Sarah M. Hadly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILLIAMS of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 9893) for the relief of William H. Blades—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9894) for the relief of James C. McQuay—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By Mr. ALDERSON: Eight petitions of citizens of West Virginia, as follows: Of P. O. Caldwell, administrator of Joseph Caldwell, deceased, late of Raleigh County; of Charles Walker, of the same county; of Hiram Johnson, of Fayette County; of Owen Snuffer, of Raleigh County; of M. J. Jones, of Fayette County; of John Rogers, of the same county; of John J. Lilly and Christopher Lilly, heirs of Pleasant Lilly, deceased, late of Raleigh County, and Alexander Cavendish, of Nicholas County, each praying that his war claim be referred to the Court of Claims under the provisions of the Bowman act—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BELTZHOOVER: Petition of 3,641 citizens of Carlisle and other portions of Cumberland and York Counties, Pa., earnestly protesting against opening the Columbian Exposition on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, papers to accompany House bill 9854 in the matter of William O. Lyman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CUMMINGS: Petition of Thomas J. Murrey for relief—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. ENGLISH: Petition of the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey, inclosing a resolution against the opening of the World's Exposition on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. ENOCHS: Resolutions of members of the medical profession of the city of Portsmouth, Ohio, urging the appropriation of $43,983, to assist in paying the expenses of the Pan-American Medical Congress—to the Committee on Appropriations.

Also, petition of citizens of Rutland, Meigs County, Ohio, against the repeal of the law closing the gates of the Columbian Exposition on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. GEARY: Petition of John York for pension for services in the Mexican war—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HENDERSON of Illinois: Petition of the Rt. Rev. Bishop Hennessy, priests, and students of theology, in behalf of George W. Jones, of Dubuque, Iowa—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa: Paper from Wilbur F. Crafts, corresponding secretary of the Reformed Bureau of Pittsburg, urging that the World's Fair be closed on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, paper from S. F. Smith, of Davenport, Iowa, urging that a day be fixed by the Committee on Rules for considering the bankrupt bill—to the Committee on Rules.

Also, paper from D. B. Nash, of Davenport, Iowa, urging the passage of the Torrey bankrupt bill—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MARTIN: Petition of citizens of Montpelier, Ind., gainst selling intoxicating liquor on the grounds of the World's Fair and against opening said grounds on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, affidavits and letters to accompany House bill to restore the pension of Cynthia Redding—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. OHLIGER: Seven petitions of citizens of Ohio, as follows: Of citizens of Canton, of the Reformed Church of Orrville, of citizens of Wooster, and of four petitions of citizens of Fredericksburg; all against the repeal of the Sunday-closing law for the Columbian Exposition—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. PARRETT: Petition of Abraham M. Owen and other physicians of Evansville, Vanderburg County, Ind., asking Congress to make an appropriation for the Pan-American Medical Congress—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. REED: Petition of ex-Governor Frederick Robie, Judge Symonds, and others, citizens of Portland, for the opening of the Chicago Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. SCOTT: Petition of Moses M. Longley, of Bloomington, McLean County, Ill., for relief—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. STAHLNECKER: Three petitions of citizens of New York, as follows: Of residents of Westchester County; of residents of Mount Vernon; of A. B. Tetaz and others, residents of Mount Vernon, all favoring the opening of the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, three petitions of citizens of New York, as follows: Of parents, teachers, and physicians of Steuben County; of parents, teachers, and physicians of Delhi, Delaware County, and of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Olean, Cattaraugus County, all asking for the passage of a law prohibiting the sale, manufacture, or importation of cigarettes in the United States—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, eight petitions of citizens of Yonkers, N. Y., as follows: Of Ancient Order of Hibernians No. 2; of Division 3, Ancient Order of Hibernians; of citizens of Yonkers; of Montgomery Club; of Palisade Hose Company No. 4; of Iroquois Club; of Enterprise Pleasure Club, and of building laborers, all requesting that action be taken in regard to the release of Dr. Thomas Gallagher, imprisoned in London—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. STUMP: Petition of George S. Browning and Alphonso Gibbs, clerks in the folding room, for relief—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. EZRA B. TAYLOR: Petition of Prof. George. H. Colton and others of the faculty of Hiram College, Ohio, in favor of the metric system of weights and measures—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: Petition to accompany bill to remove the charge of desertion against Frank A. Sand—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, affidavits accompanying bill to remove the charge of desertion against Frank A. Sand—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. TUCKER: Petition of Rev. John McVerry and others, relative to the World's Fair—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. WILLIAMS of Illinois: Affidavits of John W. Todd and Lewis F. Flater, in the matter of the removal of the charge of desertion from the record of John A. Jack—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of physicians of Marion County, Ill., for an appropriation to pay the expenses of the Pan-American Medical Congress to be held in Washington, September, 1893—to the Committee on Appropriations.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Calculations as to the expense of the Pan-American Congress—Committee on the District of Columbia discharged, and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Copy of evidence on file in the War Department in the application of Frank Bruno for an honorable discharge—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Petition of William S. Pierce, of Frenchburg, Ky., for increase of pension—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

SENATE.

THURSDAY, December 15, 1892.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. J. G. BUTLER, D. D.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of State, transmitting, in pursuance of the provisions of the act of Congress approved February 3, 1887, a certified copy of the final ascertainment of the electors for President and Vice-President appointed in the State of Delaware at the election held therein on the 8th of November, 1892, as certified to him by the governor of that State; which, with the accompanying papers, was ordered to lie on the table.

WAR CLAIM OF BALTIMORE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of State, transmitting, in response to a resolution of the 8th instant, copies of correspondence between the Third Auditor of the Treasury and the mayor of Baltimore, Md., relative to the claim of the city of Baltimore for advances in the war of 1812, between the United States and Great Britain; which was read.

Mr. COCKRELL. That is in response to a resolution introduced by the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN], who is not in the Chamber at this moment. I move that the communication, with the accompanying papers, be referred to the Committee on Claims, and printed.

The motion was agreed to.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. COCKRELL. I present the petition of J. C. Todd and 23 other citizens of Platte County, Mo., praying for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the combine formed to depreciate the price of grain, and now existing between elevators, millers, and railroads at Minneapolis, Minn., and St. Louis, Mo., and asking for the postponement of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill until that committee reports.

I also present a like petition from Dr. E McD. Coffey and 19 other citizens of Platte County, Mo., praying for the same object.

I move that the petitions be referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. COCKRELL presented the memorial of Robert Gibb and other members of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church of Armstrong and Fayette, Howard County, Mo., remonstrating against Congress committing the United States to a union of religion and the state in the passage of any bill to close the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a memorial of citizens of various churches of Centerview, Johnson County, Mo., remonstrating against any modification of the law in regard to the closing of the World's Fair at Chicago on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. COCKRELL. I present a resolution unanimously adopted by a large union meeting of the people of Tarkio, Mo., at the Presbyterian Church on Thanksgiving Day, November 24, 1892, resolving that they "rejoice and thank God and our President and Congress for the Sabbath closing of the World's Fair," and remonstrating against any change in the law. This resolution is signed by Rev. J. A. Thompson, president of the Tarkio College, and W. P. McNary, pastor of the Union Presbyterian Church at that place. I move that the memorial be referred to the Select Committee on the Quadro-Centennial.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. COCKRELL. I also present a petition of the Interstate Convention of Cattlemen, praying for the establishment of a bureau of information and statistics in live stock, with an explanation of the proposed system, and letters of indorsement from over thirty States. I apprehend that the petition should be referred to the select committee of which my colleague [Mr. VEST] is chairman.

Mr. VEST. Yes, a bill on the subject is pending.

Mr. COCKRELL. I move that the petition be referred to the Select Committee on the Transportation and Sale of Meat Products.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. VEST presented a petition of citizens of Tarkio, Mo., praying for the passage of legislation closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. QUAY presented petitions of the United Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal Churches of Prospect, Pa., and of the United Presbyterian Church of Mount Nebo, Pa., praying for legislation to close the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday, to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors thereat, for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill, for the restriction of immigration, and for the submission of the proposed sixteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. PADDOCK presented the petition of J. A. Cosby and other citizens of Benkleman, Nebr., and of 100 members of the United Presbyterian Church of Parks, Nebr., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill, and for adequate legislation restricting immigration, etc.; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Federation of Labor Unions of Washington, D. C., praying for the passage of House bill 8537, providing for an effective eight-hour law for workingmen; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. SANDERS presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union, of Great Falls, Mont., praying for the passage of House bill 8535, prohibiting smuggling into the United States under the guise of wearing apparel; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. HISCOCK presented a memorial of the New York Mercantile Exchange, remonstrating against the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petition of Thomas B. Keel and 58 other citizens of New York, praying for the passage of legislation authorizing the publication of certain statistics relating to the labor product and intellectual development of people of African descent residing in the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. HISCOCK. I present three memorials of citizens of New York, bankers and business men of New York City, remonstrating against the passage of Senate bill 2626, providing for the construction of a bridge across the Hudson River between that city and the State of New Jersey, and I ask that the memorials be printed in the RECORD. I make this request because a petition on the same question was printed in the RECORD a few days ago.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request made by the Senator from New York?

Mr. HARRIS. There is.

Mr. HISCOCK. I state that I ask to have the memorials printed in the RECORD for the reason that a petition on the other side of the question was allowed to be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. PLATT. I thought the petition to which the Senator refers was not allowed to be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. HARRIS. I know of none of those general petitions that have been allowed to be printed in the RECORD, and certainly none of them would have been allowed if my attention had been called to it. I object to encumbering the RECORD with petitions on any subject.

Mr. HISCOCK. I withdraw the request.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The petition to which the Senator from New York refers was not printed in the RECORD. Objection was made to that, and it was ordered printed as a document.

Mr. HISCOCK. Very well; let the memorials be printed as a document.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The memorials will lie on the table and be printed as a document.

Mr. SHERMAN presented a petition of the First Presbyterian Church of Toledo, Ohio, and a petition of 285 citizens of Ohio, praying Congress not to repeal the law closing the World's Columbian Fair on Sunday; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. ALLEN presented the petition of O. O. Wright and 60 other citizens of Douglass County, Wash., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of the Ladies' Missionary Society of the United Presbyterian Congregation of Henderson, Ill., praying for the passage of legislation closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday, and that the sale of intoxicating liquors be prohibited thereat; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. FRYE presented a petition of 23 citizens of Piscataquis County, Me., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. BATE presented a memorial of the Memphis (Tenn.) Cotton Exchange, remonstrating against the action taken by that exchange on the 26th of November, in opposition to the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill, and praying for the passage of that or some similar measure; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. BRICE presented a petition of the State Grange of Delaware, Ohio, and a petition of the Farmers' Institute of Leetonia, Ohio, praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Unions of Tiffin, Findlay, Youngstown, Delaware, Zanesville, and Toledo, all in the State of Ohio, praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented memorials of the Preachers' Union of Toledo, Ohio; of L. M. Hoffman and 30 other citizens of Newton Falls, Ohio; of W. F. McCauley and other members of the Christian Endeavor Union and of the Ministerial Association of Findlay, Ohio, remonstrating against the passage of any legislation authorizing the opening of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday; which were referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

He also presented a memorial of citizens of Hamilton County, Ohio, remonstrating against the passage of any legislation authorizing the opening of the World's Columbian Exposition on Sunday: the sale of intoxicating liquors thereat; praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill, and advocating the submission of the proposed sixteenth amendment to unite church and state; which was referred to the Committee on the Quadro-Centennial (Select).

Mr. TELLER presented a petition of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of Colorado Springs, Colo., praying for the passage of House bill 8535, limiting the free entry of wearing apparel of foreign manufacture; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. MORRILL presented the petition of Willis Roberts, of Strafford, Vt., praying to be allowed a pension as a dependent father; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PERKINS presented a petition of the heirs of Miguel Salinas, deceased, of Kansas, praying to be reimbursed for rents and houses and other property appropriated by the Government for the use of the United States Army; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas presented a memorial of citizens of Monticello, Ark., remonstrating against any further consideration of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. WHITE presented a petition of members of the city council and various commercial bodies of the city of New Orleans, La., praying for the passage of legislation placing the Nicaragua Canal solely and exclusively under the control of the Government; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. HARRIS presented a petition of citizens of Shelby County, Tenn., praying for the passage of the Washburn-Hatch antioption bill; which was ordered to lie on the table.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. TURPIE, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 6737) granting a pension to Delzell R. Bradford, Twenty-fourth Michigan Volunteers, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. FRYE, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 3533) to amend sections 4488 and 4489, Revised Statutes, for the greater safety to navigation, reported adversely thereon, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

He also, from the same committee, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment:

A bill (H. R. 8956) establishing a fog signal at Tibbets Point, Lake Ontario, New York; and

A bill (S. 3510) to amend section 4347 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

Mr. VOORHEES, from the Committee on the Library, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2089) to purchase the portrait of Daniel D. Tompkins, late Vice-President of the United States, painted by Jarvis in 1812, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. MCPHERSON, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, submitted a report to accompany the bill (H. R. 8760) providing for the sale of navy-yard lands in the city of Brooklyn, heretofore reported by him.

WILLIAM H. TAYLOR.

Mr. TURPIE. I am directed by the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 6024) for the relief of William H. Taylor, to report it without amendment. The bill is one of great merit, and as there is a present emergency for its passage, I ask the courtesy of the Senate for its present consideration.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to place on the pension roll, at the rate of $12 per month, the name of William H. Taylor, a crippled and dependent son of Uriah Taylor, deceased, late a member of Company A, Forty-ninth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, during the late civil war, and who died from disease contracted in said war while in line of duty soon after the close of the war in 1865.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EULOGIES ON THE LATE REPRESENTATIVE SPINOLA.

Mr. MANDERSON, from the Committee on Printing, to whom was referred the following concurrent resolution of the House of Representatives, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That there be printed of the eulogies delivered in Congress upon the Hon. Francis B. Spinola, late a Representative from the State of New York; 8,000 copies, which shall include 50 copies to be bound in full morocco, to be delivered to the family of the deceased; and of those remaining, 2,600 copies shall be for the use of the Senate and 5,350 copies for the use of the House of Representatives; and the Secretary of the Treasury is directed to have engraved and printed a portrait of the said Francis B. Spinola to accompany said eulogies.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION REPORT.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am directed by the Committee on Printing, to whom was referred a concurrent resolution of the Senate to print copies of the ninth annual report of the United States Civil Service Commission, to report it without amendment; and I ask for its present consideration.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution; which was read, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That 23,000 copies of the ninth annual report of the United States Civil Service Commission with appendices be printed, of which 1,000 copies shall be for the use of the Senate, 2,000 copies for the use of the House of Representatives, and 20,000 copies for the use of the United States Civil Service Commission.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the resolution be read again.

Mr. MANDERSON. The resolution is exactly as it was introduced by the Senator from Missouri. There is no change proposed by the committee and the number is the same as is provided for in the general printing bill.

Mr. COCKRELL. Very well.

The resolution was agreed to.

REPORT ON IMMIGRATION.

Mr. MANDERSON, from the Committee on Printing, to whom was referred the following concurrent resolution, submitted by Mr. CHANDLER on the 12th instant, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the Public Printer be, and he is hereby, directed to print, with a title page, 12,000 additional copies of the report of Immigrant Commissioner H. J. Schulteis, contained in Part I, House Executive Document No. 235, first session Fifty-first Congress, pages 263 to 323, inclusive; 2,000 to be for the use of the Treasury Department, 2,000 for the use of the House Committee on Immigration, 2,000 for the use of the Senate Committee on Immigration, 2,000 for the use of the Senate, and 4,000 for the use of the House.

MRS. DORA MARSHALL.

Mr. PADDOCK, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the following resolution, submitted yesterday by Mr. DAWES, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay out of the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the Senate to Mrs. Dora Marshall, widow of James H. Marshall, deceased, late a messenger of the United States Senate, the sum of $720, being an amount equal to six months' salary at the rate per annum allowed by law to the messenger aforesaid, said sum to be considered as including the funeral expenses and all allowances.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. CARLISLE introduced a bill (S. 3590) for the benefit of Mrs. Anna C. Supplee, of Harrison, Ohio; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Patents.

Mr. CAMERON introduced a bill (S. 3591) to authorize the allowance of commutation for quarters to officers of the Navy on shore duty; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. QUAY introduced a bill (S. 3592) to provide an American register for the steamer Oceano, of Philadelphia, Pa.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3593) granting a pension to Veronica McGuire; which was read twice by its title, and, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MCMILLAN (by request) introduced a bill (S. 3594) to confirm title to lots 13 and 14, in square 959, in Washington, D. C.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. CASEY introduced a bill (S. 3595) to amend an act entitled "An act for the relief of settlers upon certain lands in the States of North Dakota and South Dakota," approved August 5, 1882; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. POWER introduced a bill (S. 3596) to provide for the examination and classification of certain mineral lands in the States of Montana and Idaho; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. PROCTOR introduced a bill (S. 3597) to establish companies of the Hospital Corps, United States Army, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 3598) to discontinue the Signal Corps and devolve the duties thereof upon other branches of the Army; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PUGH (by request) introduced a bill (S. 3599) for the relief of John A. Rollings, and James Gilfillan; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. TELLER introduced a bill (S. 3600) granting an honorable discharge to Cyrus Payne; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 3601) granting to the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company the use of certain lands at Chickasha Station, in the Indian Territory; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3602) granting to the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company a right of way through the Indian Territory, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. HISCOCK introduced a bill (S. 3603) for the relief of B. J. Van Vleck, administrator of Henry Van Vleck, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3604) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to adjust and settle the account of the heirs of Alfred G. Benson with the United States; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3605) in relation to refunding certain sums to port wardens; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 3606) for the relief of Ira Doane; which was read twice by its title, and, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CULLOM introduced a bill (S. 3607) granting a pension to Mrs. Johanna Cashman; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. COCKRELL (by request) introduced a bill (S. 3608) granting a pension to Herbert Vanderberg; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SAWYER introduced a bill (S. 3609) to punish robbery upon or wrecking of trains engaged in interstate commerce; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. PUGH (by request) introduced a bill (S. 3610) regulating the sale of paints, white lead, colors, and linseed oil; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Manufactures.

Mr. HUNTON introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 121) authorizing payment, under act of August 30, 1890, to the State of Virginia, upon the assent of the governor, heretofore given, till adjournment of next session of the Legislature thereof; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

He also introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 122) to receive drawback certificates in payment of arrears of general taxes under act of June 2, 1890; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

AMENDMENT TO ANTIOPTION BILL.

Mr. POWER submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill (H. R. 7845) defining "options" and "futures," imposing special taxes on dealers therein, and requiring such dealers and persons engaged in selling certain products to obtain license, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table and be printed.

INDIAN TRUST FUNDS.

Mr. PLATT. I submit a resolution, and ask for its adoption. The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, directed to inform the Senate:

First. Of the amounts of the different funds held in trust by the United States for the benefit of the Indian tribes.

Second. Of the amount of Indian depredation claims which has hitherto received the approval of the Department of the Interior.

Third. If within his knowledge, the whole amount of Indian depredation claims which have been presented to the Court of Claims.

Fourth. Whether any judgments rendered by the Court of Claims against Indian tribes for depredations have yet been paid out of funds held in trust by the United States for the benefit of Indian tribes.

Fifth. To what extent the funds held in trust for Indian tribes by the United States are likely to be depleted by the payment of judgments rendered or to be rendered by the Court of Claims for Indian depredations.

Mr. FAULKNER. I should like to have the resolution go over until to-morrow. There is an amendment to it which I will suggest to the Senator from Connecticut. It may be that later in the day he can call it up.

Mr. PLATT. Let the resolution be printed.

Mr. FAULKNER. I will suggest the amendment to the Senator, and the resolution can then be acted upon with the amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will go over.

REPORT ON FOREIGN STREETS AND HIGHWAYS.

Mr. MANDERSON submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Printing:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That there be printed —— thousand copies of the special consular report relating to streets and highways in foreign countries, heretofore published by the Department of State; of which —— thousand copies shall be for the use of the Senate and —— thousand copies for the use of the House of Representatives.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY.

Mr. CAMERON. I move that when the Senate adjourns to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

Mr. WASHBURN. I hope that motion will not prevail.

Mr. PLATT. It is not debatable.

Mr. WASHBURN. I call for the yeas and nays.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Pennsylvania moves that when the Senate adjourns to-day it be to meet on Monday next, on which the yeas and nays are demanded.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CULLOM (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY]. As he is not present, I withhold my vote.

Mr. HANSBROUGH (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER]. Were he present, I should vote "nay."

Mr. TURPIE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. DAVIS].

Mr. WILSON (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. COLQUITT]. Not knowing how he would vote, I withhold my vote.

The roll call having been concluded, the result was announced—yeas 27, nays 27; as follows:

YEAS—27.

Blackburn,	Gordon,	McMillan,	Vance,
Blodgett,	Gorman,	Manderson,	Vest,
Cameron,	Harris,	Mills,	Vilas,
Carlisle,	Hawley,	Morrill,	Voorhees,
Dixon,	Hiscock,	Pasco,	White,
Dolph,	Hoar,	Platt,	Wolcott.
Faulkner,	Jones, Ark.	Quay,

NAYS—27.

Allen,	Coke,	Peffer,	Sawyer,
Bate,	Dawes,	Perkins,	Sherman,
Berry,	Gallinger,	Pettigrew,	Teller,
Butler,	George,	Power,	Walthall,
Call,	Hunton,	Proctor,	Warren,
Carey,	Kyle,	Pugh,	Washburn.
Casey,	Paddock,	Sanders,

NOT VOTING—34.

Aldrich,	Dubois,	Hill,	Shoup,
Allison,	Felton,	Irby,	Squire,
Brice,	Frye,	Jones, Nev.	Stanford,
Chandler,	Gibson, La.	Kenna,	Stewart,
Cockrell,	Gibson, Md.	McPherson,	Stockbridge,
Colquitt,	Gray,	Mitchell,	Turpie,
Cullom,	Hale,	Morgan,	Wilson.
Daniel,	Hansbrough,	Palmer,
Davis,	Higgins,	Ransom,

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senate being evenly divided, the Vice-President votes "yea," and the motion of the Senator from Pennsylvania is agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House insisted upon its amendments to the bill (S. 1549) providing for the public printing and binding and the distribution of public documents; agreed to the conference asked by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and had appointed Mr. RICHARDSON, Mr. MCKAIG, and Mr. BRODERICK managers at the conference on the part of the House.

The message also announced that the House had passed the following bills and joint resolution:

A bill (S. 869) to provide an American register for the barge Sea Bird, of Perth Amboy, N. J.;

A bill (S. 1647) to authorize the Alabama Grand Trunk Railroad Company to bridge across the Tallapoosa and Coosa Rivers;

A bill (S. 1956) to make Punta Gorda a subport of entry;

A bill (S. 2451) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to reconvey to Lucius U. Maltby and Louise W. Maltby, his wife, Margaret Elizabeth Lucus, and the Sea Girt Land Improvement Company a piece of land selected as a site for the Squan Inlet light-station, New Jersey, but found to be unsuitable for the purposes of said station; and

A joint resolution (S. R. 73) authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the Military Academy at West Point, Francisco Alcantara, of Venezuela.

The message also announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 3188) to extend to Duluth, Minn., the privileges of the first section of an act entitled "An act to amend the statutes in relation to immediate transportation of dutiable goods, and for other purposes," approved June 10, 1888, with an amendment to the title; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

The message further announced that the House had passed the following bills and joint resolution; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 3184) correcting the muster of Second Lieut. Gilman L. Johnson;

A bill (H. R. 5752) to amend an act approved August 6, 1888, entitled "An act to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Alabama River;"

A bill (H. R. 8602) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mobile River by the Chicago, Mobile and Gulf Ports Railroad Company;

A bill (H. R. 9487) to amend an act approved April 22, 1890, authorizing the Natchitoches Cane River Bridge Company to construct and maintain a bridge across Cane River, in Louisiana;

A bill (H. R. 9488) to amend an act approved March 2, 1891, authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Red River, Louisiana, by the Rapides Bridge Company, limited; and

A joint resolution (H. Res. 170) to pay the officers and employés of the Senate and House of Representatives their respective salaries for the month of December, 1892, on the 21st day of said month.

The message also announced that the House had passed a concurrent resolution providing that when the two Houses adjourn on Thursday, December 22, they shall stand adjourned until Wednesday, January 4, 1893; in which the concurrence of the Senate was requested.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

The message also announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills; and they were thereupon signed by the Vice-President:

A bill (S. 2275) for the relief of purchasers of timber and stone lands under the act of June 3, 1878; and

A bill (S. 3418) making Saturday a half holiday for banking and trust company purposes in the District of Columbia.

WILLIAM M'GARRAHAN—VETO MESSAGE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there is no further morning business that order is closed, and the Senate resumes the consideration of the special order, which will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (S. 1958) to submit to the Court of Private Land Claims, established by an act of Congress approved March 3, 1891, the title of William McGarrahan to the Rancho Panoche Grande, in the State of California, and for other purposes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is, Shall the bill pass, the objections of the President of the United States to the contrary notwithstanding? On which the Senator from Virginia [Mr. HUNTON] is entitled to the floor.

Mr. HUNTON. Mr. President, when my remarks were suspended yesterday by the expiration of the morning hour, I had gotten in the discussion of the bill under consideration as far as the finding of the court of land claims in the State of California. The finding of that court was that they were satisfied from the evidence that the grant to Gomez by Governor Micheltorena had been given and was lost in the accidents of war, but that there was no evidence before that court to show that Gomez had ever taken possession of this land under the grant. For that reason they found against the grant and dismissed the petition of Gomez. As the law provided, Gomez took his case to the district court of California on appeal.

Before that case was reached on the docket of the district court, the Supreme Court of the United States had decided the Frémont case, and in that decision laid down the doctrine that possession of a grant was not necessary to its validity, that it was a condition subsequent to the grant, and therefore a noncompliance with that subsequent condition did not invalidate the grant. After this decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Frémont case, which was followed in all other cases before that court, the district court for the southern district of California had this case up by appeal from the land commissioners in the State of California. As that land court had found that there was satisfactory evidence that a grant had been made, and only found against the grant by reason of failure to prove possession, the Supreme Court having decided that point adverse to the opinion of the land court, there was nothing left for the district court but to confirm the grant of Gomez to the Rancho Panoche Grande.

I beg to say here that there has been no case which has been before that district court in which has not been adopted the ruling of the Supreme Court in that case, that possession under a Mexican grant was a condition subsequent, and failure to comply with that condition did not invalidate the grant. So that the decision of the district court upon that point followed the decision of the Supreme Court in the Frémont case.

After this decision was made confirming the grant of Gomez, the claimant here, Mr. McGarrahan, bought the title of Gomez to that property; bought it for a valuable consideration, and obtained from Gomez a deed, the original of which I have in my possession. Mr. McGarrahan had every reason on earth to believe that the title of Gomez had been confirmed and was good, and he purchased in good faith the title of Gomez to the Rancho Panoche Grande.

Before the land court Pacificus Ord had been the attorney for the grantee, Gomez, upon a contingent fee in case of success. By the time this case was reached in the district court Pacificus Ord had been made district attorney for that district. When the case came up he reported that fact to the Attorney-General in the city of Washington, and requested that somebody else might be appointed to represent the Government in that and several other cases in which he was similarly situated. No attention was paid to that request in the city of Washington, and when this case came up the attorney who had been employed by Gomez in the case after it reached the district court moved, in accordance with the decision in the Frémont case, that the grant to Gomez should be confirmed, Pacificus Ord saying that the land court had found that a grant had been given, that it was lost in the exigencies of the war, and the Supreme Court having decided the question of possession, he saw no reason against its confirmation. Thereupon, on the 5th day of June, 1857, the district court of California reversed the decision of the land court and confirmed the grant to Gomez. That decision of the court, although rendered by the judge and signed by him, was not entered upon the records of that court. So that it was a decision rendered but not entered upon its records.

Mr. COCKRELL. What was the cause of the failure to enter it?

Mr. HUNTON. It was just an accidental failure on the part of the clerk to enter the decree. The claimant, finding that this omission had occurred, on the 5th day of February, 1858, brought to the attention of the court the fact that the decree had not been entered, and on that day in 1858 a decree was entered nunc pro tunc, dating back to the original date of the 5th of June, 1857, when the judgment of the court was rendered in the case. From that decree Pacificus Ord appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States.

A good deal has been said about Pacificus Ord in this case; but I beg to say that the conduct of Pacificus Ord in the case was in every respect fair, in every respect bona fide, because when this claim, in which he had had a contingent interest, was confirmed, instead of allowing that judgment of the court to stand, he took an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Upon that point a good deal depends in this case, and I beg the attention of the Senate to it for a moment. That order granting an appeal in the Gomez case was in an order of the same court entered on the same motion in six other cases, 20, 153, 187, 231, 274, 288, and 393—393 being the case of Gomez. When that appeal was taken the transcript was sent to the city of Washington and docketed in the office of the Attorney-General of the United States.

Mr. WHITE. Will it disturb the Senator if I ask him a question?

Mr. HUNTON. Not at all.

Mr. WHITE. Before that transcript was made out is it true that a motion to review that opinion had been filed in that court in chambers by the special counsel of the United States?

Mr. HUNTON. No, sir; it was done long afterwards.

Mr. WHITE. On what day was that motion filed?

Mr. HUNTON. I do not know that I can give the Senator the date, but it was long afterwards.

Mr. WHITE. I can give the Senator the date.

Mr. HUNTON. What is it?

Mr. WHITE. Is there not a letter from the clerk in the record saying that when he made up the transcript he was directed by Mr. Ord not to include the motion which was filed in chambers in the transcript?

Mr. HUNTON. I should be glad to see it if it is in the record.

Mr. WHITE. I ask the Senator that question.

Mr. HUNTON. I do not recollect it.

When the appeals were taken in these seven cases from the decision of the district court in California, those appeals were sent to the city of Washington, docketed in the office of the Attorney-General of the United States, and the transcript of the record was in the course of human events brought up to the Attorney-General. When that transcript was brought here, an appearance on the part of McGarrahan by counsel was made before the Attorney-General, who was then Jeremiah S. Black, of the State of Pennsylvania. The case was argued, and he was asked to enter the appeal upon the dockets of the Supreme Court of the United States and dismiss the appeal. After hearing argument Mr. Black declined to go into court and make the motion, but authorized the counsel for McGarrahan to appear in that court and make that motion. Thereupon this transcript of the record was filed in the court, McGarrahan's counsel moved to dismiss the appeal, and the Supreme Court of the United States granted the petition. Thereupon a mandate was sent down from the Supreme Court of the United States, which I have before me at this moment, stating that that appeal had been dismissed and directing the court below to carry out its original decree.

About this time there appeared in this case a company known as the New Idria Mining Company, which had its origin in connection with some squatters upon this land, and that New Idria Mining Company finally ousted the squatters with whom they had united, and took possession of a portion of this grant to Gomez. From that day down to the present time, as far as I know, the fight of McGarrahan has not been continued with the United States, but with that New Idria Mining Company, which was coining quicksilver out of his own mines, converting it into money, and with that money fighting McGarrahan through the courts and through the Congress of the United States.

Mr. President, a good deal depends upon the fact whether this appeal was taken, because if it was taken and the appeal was dismissed by the Supreme Court of the United States and a mandate sent down in the term of December, 1859, there is not a lawyer upon this floor who will not admit that when that term ended the Supreme Court was as powerless over that case as any Senator on this floor.

Mr. FAULKNER. Would it interrupt the Senator if I should ask him a question?

Mr. HUNTON. Not at all.

Mr. FAULKNER. Has not the entire legal question to which the Senator is now directing his argument been passed upon unanimously by the Supreme Court at a subsequent term as between the United States and McGarrahan?

Mr. HUNTON. I beg to inform my friend from West Virginia that I never undertake to pass a bridge until I get to it. I shall endeavor, before I close my remarks, to address myself to that question; but it is not in order at this time, and I hope he will excuse me.

Mr. FAULKNER. If the Senator will permit me, I understood him to say that the question depended upon whether that appeal had been properly granted and a mandate had been sent down by the court.

Mr. HUNTON. Yes, sir.

Mr. FAULKNER. I understand, if I am correct in my recollection, that that question was argued, submitted to, and decided by the court.

Mr. HUNTON. Very well, sir, suppose it was; yet I say if it was argued and decided by the Supreme Court forty times, if the court had no jurisdiction, it is not worth any more than blank paper.

Mr. FAULKNER. Then I will ask the Senator for information, if he will permit me, whether or not a court of last resort, such as the Supreme Court of the United States, had the jurisdiction it assumed in passing upon that question, is not its action conclusive on the question of jurisdiction so far as the Congress of the United States is concerned?

Mr. HUNTON. I beg pardon. It is a principle of law too well understood by my learned friend to need authority on the subject, that when a court acts without jurisdiction the lowest court in the land can assail it, whether the court assuming such jurisdiction be the highest in the land or not. If it acts without jurisdiction the action of the court amounts to a mere nullity, and any court or any tribunal may disregard it at its pleasure. That is law, sir.

Mr. WHITE. Will the Senator allow me to ask a question?

Mr. HUNTON. These repeated interruptions destroy the line of my argument.

Mr. WHITE. I beg the Senator's pardon.

Mr. HUNTON. I am desirous of proceeding in an orderly way.

Mr. WHITE. I desire to ask upon a question of fact.

Mr. HUNTON. Will the Senator state it?

Mr. WHITE. I find that the motion to review the judgment, which the Senator says was filed long afterward, was filed on the 7th day of July, 1858, and I find in the transcript this letter of the clerk addressed to the Attorney-General:

The above motion—

Speaking of this motion—

at the request of the party who applied for the transcript in the said case—

And the proof in this transcript is that Mr. Ord applied for it—was omitted. But having since been informed that the said transcript has been forwarded to Washington to be filed in the Supreme Court, I deem it my duty to inform you of the above facts.

The question I should like the Senator to meet in his argument is this: A judgment was rendered in favor of Mr. Gomez. Mr. Ord was a party in interest. He owned one-half of the claim, and therefore it was a judgment in his favor. Now, being an interested party, he steps in and takes an appeal. After he has taken that appeal, he not being able to move in the matter because he was a party in interest, the United States sends a special counsel there, who files a motion before the transcript was made for a review of the judgment.

Mr. HUNTON. I do not know——

Mr. WHITE. That is stated here, and it was made on the 7th day of July, 1858.

Mr. HUNTON. Not before the appeal was granted.

Mr. WHITE. Not before the appeal, because the United States did not have a chance, he being an interested party. Now, here comes the motion for an appeal. He is an interested party, owning a part of the claim. That cuts off, according to the Senator's view, the motion for a new trial. The United States sends its special counsel there and files a motion for a new trial. Then Mr. Ord, this interested party, makes up a transcript for the Supreme Court of the United States, as the clerk certifies, and orders him to leave out from that transcript, so that the Supreme Court of the United States can not see it, the motion for a new trial pending.

Mr. HUNTON. It is very true that the motion for a new trial was made, and the district attorney for the United States, in a letter to the Attorney-General, which is on file in the evidence before me (he having become the attorney of the New Idria Mining Company), stating that "I make a suggestion to Judge Ogier (who was then the district judge in California), by which he of his own motion will set aside that judgment and grant a new trial." What the suggestion was I leave my friends on the other side to find out; but it was upon a suggestion, which the counsel there for the New Idria Mining Company said he would make to the judge, that the judge of his own motion set aside the judgment that he rendered and granted a new trial.

In the mean time an appeal had been taken to the Supreme Court of the United States, and I beg the attention of the Senate one moment to the fact of these appeals. As I stated awhile ago, there were seven appeals in the same order. It was not for the interest of Pacificus Ord to appeal that judgment; but as the district attorney, acting in good faith to the United States, he felt bound to do it, and he did appeal that case with six others of a like character. You will find by an examination of the records of the court that all seven of those cases—the six others as well as the Gomez case—were passed upon and disposed of by the Supreme Court of the United States upon the appeal taken at the moment and under the same circumstances in which the Gomez appeal was taken by Pacificus Ord.

It will be found that in No. 153, which was one of the seven cases appealed, the Supreme Court of the United States affirmed the decision of the court below; in the next case it dismissed the appeal on the motion of the Attorney-General; in the next case the decree of the district court was affirmed: in the next case the cause was dismissed on motion of Attorney-General Bates, and in the next case the cause was also dismissed on motion of Attorney-General Bates. All these cases in which the appeal was taken by Pacificus Ord in the very same motion and in the very same way, went on the docket of the Supreme Court of the United States and were disposed of in the manner I have just stated.

If the appeal in these cases was properly taken, I beg Senators to state why the appeal in the Gomez case was not as well taken as the appeal in the case of the others? The others were all well taken, and they appeared upon the docket of the Attorney-General of the United States in the city of Washington. I beg to say here that I state no fact that is not proved in the history of this cause, if I am aware of it. Mr. Hudson examined that docket, and the appeal of the United States against the decision of the district court in California was one of the seven cases in which appeals had been taken at the same time and noted upon the docket of the Attorney-General in the city of Washington.

Now, how can it be maintained that there was no appeal taken in the Gomez case, when six other cases in very like condition, situated identically as the Gomez case was situated, were at the same time and under identically the same circumstances taken jurisdiction of by the Supreme Court here in the city of Washington and disposed of just as the McGarrahan or Gomez case was disposed of? Some of them were affirmed, some dismissed, and this is one of the seven cases which were docketed and dismissed by the consent and approbation of the Attorney-General after hearing argument upon it. He heard both sides. When he had heard argument upon the case, finding that this nunc pro tunc decree was entered in 1857 and there was nothing in the judgment of the district court of California, Judge Black agreed, according to the testimony in this case, that the appeal from the district court of California might be docketed and dismissed.

Now, I ask my friend from West Virginia [Mr. FAULKNER], if this be true—and it is shown by the record, because the record of the district court in California, the docket of the Attorney-General of the United States, and the action of the Supreme Court in the city of Washington all confirm the fact that this appeal taken by Pacificus Ord from the decision of the district court was passed upon by the Supreme Court and the appeal dismissed—if that be so (and there is no escape from it according to my mind), then, when that term of the Supreme Court ended the court was as thoroughly functus officio in regard to that appeal as any gentleman on the floor of this Chamber, because it is settled by I do not know how many decisions that the Supreme Court has no more power than a justice of the peace who sits in your county to interfere with the judgment of that court except to correct errors apparent on the record.

I say, therefore, Mr. President, that when this appeal was taken, when it was docketed and dismissed in the Supreme Court, just as the other six cases were docketed and dismissed or affirmed, the title of McGarrahan, as the assignee of Gomez, was as perfect as the court could make it.

After this occurrence the mandate was sent down to the court below, in which Judge Ogier presided. He had received a "suggestion" from the district attorney, who had become the attorney of the New Idria Mining Company. What was that suggestion? He had received "a suggestion" that he wanted him to set aside the judgment he had rendered in this case, and when the mandate of the court went down to that judge it was entered as a mandate from the Supreme Court of the United States, and an order rendered by Judge Ogier before the "suggestion" was made that the original judgment of that court should be carried into execution. Will anybody suppose that there was the slightest room to doubt the bona fides and the perfection of the title of Gomez to that tract of land after that had occurred? If there was, I can not see it, and I think I have studied this case very carefully.

When this mandate from the Supreme Court of the United States reached the court of the judge in California, the "suggestion" had been made by Mr. Goold. The New Idria Mining Company had a meeting and they determined to fight McGarrahan. Subsequently they determined that they would abandon the fight and try to compromise, but they could not compromise with Mr. McGarrahan. Mr. McGarrahan is a man who if he believes he is honestly entitled to a piece of property must have that property or lose it. This mandate went down there and was entered up as a judgment of the court, received by the court, and eight months afterwards the clerk of that court, a man by the name of Sims, erased the order. Why was that order of the court erased? There was no order of that court authorizing its erasure; but without authority from any quarter whatever that man Sims, the clerk of that court, erased the order from the Supreme Court of the United States of his own motion, and entered the mandate upon the order book of that court. Had he received "a suggestion"? It looked very much as though, like the judge, he had received "a suggestion."

Then came in Judge Ogier—I believe nearly four years after his original decree, at any rate it was several years after the original decree of Ogier confirming this grant to Gomez—upon suggestion from this Attorney Goold, upon his motion, without any evidence, without any motion of counsel, and he set aside the order which he had rendered in June, 1857, and gave a new trial. Just at that period Judge Ogier died and was succeeded by Judge Haight. When he came upon the bench a motion was made by the attorney of McGarrahan, who then owned the claim, to vacate that order as a nullity, because you know, and everybody whom I am addressing here to-day knows, that when Judge Ogier entered up that judgment, affirming the grant and four years had elapsed he was as powerless to change that judgment as a tramp who walks the streets of the city of Washington, and yet he did it. When he came upon the bench he had received no "suggestion," and I thank the Lord the evidence shows that he was above any "suggestion" from Mr. Goold, and he said "this order of Judge Ogier is a nullity" and set it aside. When that order of Judge Ogier was set aside, the case stood as a case decided by the district court of California carried to the Supreme Court of the United States, where the case was docketed and dismissed, and a mandate sent down to put in execution the original decree of the district court of California.

I beg to ask any Senator here when this thing had occurred if it was not absolutely certain in the mind of any man who examined that record that the title of Gomez and his assignee, McGarrahan, was as perfect as litigation and decision could make it?

Acting upon that idea, Mr. McGarrahan asked for a survey, which was necessary in order that he might get a patent from the Land Department here in Washington. The survey was made; it was reported here to the Land Department, and approved by that Department as a correct survey of the Rancho Ponoche Grande, that had been the subject of this litigation about which I have been speaking.

Some persons have said, and I believe the Senator from Montana [Mr. SANDERS] said yesterday, that there was doubt whether this was the location of the original grant; but upon that subject the evidence in the cause shows that the Commissioner of the General Land Office, Mr. S. S. Burdett, who afterwards became counsel for the New Idria Mining Company, sent a special agent to the State of California to know whether this was the land embraced in the grant to Gomez. His report constitutes one of the documents of this body, and in that report the agent states that it was the location; and I supposed forever and ever the question of boundary and location was settled.

Mr. FAULKNER. If the Senator will permit me——

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HARRIS in the chair). Does the Senator from Virginia yield to the Senator from West Virginia?

Mr. HUNTON. Yes, sir.

Mr. FAULKNER. I wish to ask the Senator whether or not that survey of the surveyor-general of California, which has been a subject of dispute between the contending parties ever since this case has been before Congress, was a binding survey upon the Government?

Mr. HUNTON. I answer with a great deal of pleasure, and with all the candor I can command, and that ought to be satisfactory. When I first had knowledge of this case it was argued by me on the one side and by Mr. S. S. Burdett, formerly a member of Congress from the State of Missouri on the other. Mr. Burdett then raised the question of location in his argument, and I drew upon him his own document, according to which he sent an agent out to determine the question of location, and I never heard a word from him in argument afterwards about the proper location of that land. From that day to this, so far as I know, there has been no dispute that the land claimed and surveyed by Gen. Beale, who was surveyor-general of the State of California, is the true land patented to Gomez and confirmed to him by the court in California.

Mr. FAULKNER. The Senator does not seem to catch my point. My way of presenting it may have been such as not to enable him to see the point to which I wished to call his attention. I wish to know whether it has not been a disputed proposition as to whether or not this survey was a public survey binding upon all the parties and upon the Government, and whether it has not been decided judicially that this survey was merely a private survey not binding upon the Government?

Mr. HUNTON. I am perfectly able to answer my friend on that subject. Up to the time of the decision of this court in California, the view of my friend from West Virginia was correct, but about that time a law was passed by the Congress of the United States authorizing these claimants to have a survey by the surveyor-general of the State where the land was located, and that survey took the place of a survey made by the surveyor-general at the command of the land department. That is a full answer.

A little mud was thrown at my excellent friend, Mr. McGarrahan, by saying that he had procured the passage of that law for his own private purposes. It turned out by the testimony of a gentleman that at the session of Congress when that law was passed Mr. McGarrahan was in the State of California, and that he, the affiant, procured the passage of that law. I thank the Lord that wherever any slur has been attempted to be put upon this honest man, Mr. McGarrahan, he has met it and come out always with flying colors. If you knew him as well as I do, you would know that.

Mr. FAULKNER. I wish to say that no one could be further than I from throwing any aspersions upon Mr. McGarrahan. I know him well, and appreciate his sterling qualities as much as the Senator from Virginia; but I should like to ask further, whether the survey referred to in this bill is not the survey involved in the suit in California of McGarrahan vs. Mitchell, I think, which was passed upon, the court declaring it to be a private survey?

Mr. HUNTON. I can not answer that; but I do not think so. I know, however, that when the survey of Gen. Beale, the surveyor-general of California was returned to the Land Department here in Washington, it was approved and adopted by it. I care not what occurred before, it is a survey of this land, adopted by the Land Department here as a true survey of the Rancho Panoche Grande.

When that survey came to the Land Department and was approved by the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. McGarrahan said, "I want my patent." It is a curious piece of history, but it is nevertheless as true as it is curious, that every person about that time who occupied a position high or low in the Land Department seemed to be utterly opposed to any step being taken by which McGarrahan or Gomez was to get a title to this grant, which had been confirmed by the district court of California and by the Supreme Court of the United States. Whether they had received any "suggestion" or not I can not say; but so it is. We know the fact that the Attorney-General's Office became hostile to McGarrahan, the Land Department became hostile to McGarrahan, and many persons employed in the two Departments left them to become counsel for the New Idria Mining Company. The offices of those two Departments would seem to be a training school for counsel for the New Idria Mining Company.

When this case came up the Land Department would not issue the patent, and McGarrahan went to the Secretary of the Interior at the time, who was Mr. Caleb B. Smith, himself a lawyer of the very highest distinction. The case was elaborately argued by counsel on both sides before this Secretary of the Interior. He gave an opinion in the case, from which I quote the following:

> My conclusion is that the decree of the district court of the southern district of California, confirming the grant, has become final. The United States has no longer any interest in the controversy. No claim of third parties has been interposed. The suggestion of fraud in the grant, or in the manner of procuring its confirmation, are res adjudicata, and I am unable to discover any reason why a patent should not be issued in conformity with the decree of the court and the survey.
>
> You will therefore issue a patent for the land in accordance with the survey as reported by the surveyor-general.

That is the second time that McGarrahan's title to this property had been confirmed, once when the Supreme Court of the United States decided, and then when Caleb B. Smith, at the head of the Department of the Interior, decided that McGarrahan or Gomez was entitled to it.

Just here allow me to say to my friend from West Virginia—and he will not dispute the truth of the proposition—that when the head of a Department, authorized to act in the premises, decides a question like this, it is as binding upon courts and everybody else as a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States; and the Supreme Court of the United States has said so. So when Caleb B. Smith, after full argument, decided that Gomez was entitled to his patent, it was a decision of that Executive Department as binding upon the people of the country and all the courts thereof as if it had been a judgment of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mr. Smith ordered the patent issued. It went to the Land Department, but some "suggestion" may have been made, and the Land Department did not issue the patent. Mr. Smith went out of office very soon, and Mr. Usher succeeded him. The fight was made again before Usher. The case was fully argued on both sides, and Mr. Usher decided the case just as Caleb B.

Smith had decided it, and ordered a patent to issue. There was another decision that was binding upon everybody and another confirmation of the title to this land, as high and as potent as if it had been decided by the Supreme Court of the United States; but still the Land Department would not issue the patent. The "suggestion" must have been very strong. They would not issue the patent, and then the counsel of McGarrahan determined on an appeal to the President of the United States, Mr. Lincoln.

Mr. Lincoln had his hands full. We people down South were bothering him at that time very much. War was raging, and Mr. Lincoln did not want to take up anything of that sort, but he said to Mr. Thad. Stevens on one occasion that they were bothering him very much on both sides of this question, and he did not know what to do. Mr. Stevens said: "Mr. Lincoln, satisfy yourself that the claim is right and sign the damned thing and get it out of the way." In a few days Mr. Lincoln sent word to Mr. Stevens that "the damned thing was signed." You hardly want any better evidence of the signature of the patent by the President of the United States than that.

But I do not stop there. We have examined five or six witnesses, whose testimony is all in a Senate document here, and they prove beyond peradventure that the patent granting this land to Vicente Gomez was signed by the President of the United States, through his private secretary to sign land patents, and communicated to the Land Department. We took the testimony of the private secretary himself, and he testified that he, as the secretary for that particular duty, did sign the patent which perfected the title of Gomez to the Rancho Panoche Grande. I state here to my friends on both sides of the Chamber that the testimony is perfectly overwhelming and complete that that patent was signed by the President of the United States and by the private secretary and transmitted to the Land Department.

That is not all. We prove by parties from the General Land Office that it was the invariable custom of the Department when a patent was made out to go to the President that it should be put upon the record and a space left for the date of the patent, the signature of the President, the seal of the General Land Office, and the counter signature of the Recorder of that office. When we examined these experts we asked: "What occurs after the patent is signed?" They said: "It is brought back to the General Land Office, the patent is issued, and the skeleton as put upon the record is filled out. Then it is marked in red ink 'ex'd,' meaning examined, and that marking of that patent on the record invariably signifies a perfect copy of a perfect patent."

It was in 1863 that the President of the United States signed this patent and sent it back for execution. We could not find any evidence in the Land Department that Mr. Lincoln had sent this patent to the Interior Department. We asked how that was known; what sort of a communication the Secretary of the Interior made to the Department when he received the patent signed by the President, and the answer was that he wrote a letter, stating substantially, "I inclose herewith a patent for the Rancho Panoche Grande, signed by the President."

Where are those letters? There comes in another suggestion, and the proof is that the drawer, in which were the letters for the nine months embracing the period of 1863, when this patent was sent by Abraham Lincoln to the Interior Department, had been broken open, and the letters stolen. Who received the "suggestion" there, and exactly what that suggestion was I do not know and am not able to tell the Senate, but the fact is that the evidence that Mr. Lincoln had signed the patent, that the Secretary of the Interior had signed it and had sent it to the Land Department to be issued to the party, is destroyed by somebody who broke the lock and took from the drawer the letters for that period.

Mr. FAULKNER. It is sometime since I have examined this case fully, but am I correct in stating that at the time of the claim of the signature of the patent by the President the appeal, which was finally decided by the Supreme Court, was pending before that court?

Mr. HUNTON. I can not tell the Senator.

Mr. FAULKNER. Was the appeal not taken in 1862?

Mr. HUNTON. I believe it was.

Mr. FAULKNER. This patent was claimed to have been signed in 1863?

Mr. HUNTON. Yes, sir.

Mr. FAULKNER. Is it not a fact that the President had no power or authority whatever, provided the court had jurisdiction to determine that question, to sign a patent for lands until a final adjudication of the question by the court before which it was pending?

Mr. HUNTON. I think President Abraham Lincoln was as good a lawyer as the Senator or myself.

Mr. FAULKNER. I know that, but I ask the Senator what his opinion is.

Mr. HUNTON. I am going to tell you what Abraham Lincoln said. The case was argued before him by counsel for the New Idria Mining Company and by counsel for McGarrahan. It was not done in the dark, and we have a right to suppose, and must suppose, that all these questions came up before the President, and the President was lawyer enough to know that if there was an appeal pending in the Supreme Court at that moment it was nothing more than a blank piece of paper.

Mr. TELLER. If the Senator from Virginia will allow me to interrupt him, an examination of the record will show that the appeal was not pending at that time. The testimony shows that Mr. Lincoln stated to Gen. Sickles that he had signed the patent, and that was before the appeal was taken.

Mr. HUNTON. I am obliged to the Senator.

Mr. FAULKNER. I ask the Senator from Colorado whether an appeal was not taken in 1862?

Mr. TELLER. It is a little difficult to tell when that appeal was taken, if taken at all, but it was not taken until December, 1863, if it can be called an appeal.

Mr. FAULKNER. My recollection is the reverse; but I desire the Senator to answer my question, and not to try to strengthen his case by bringing in the memory of our deceased President. The question I ask is whether it is not a settled principle of law that the Executive has not the authority to sign a patent binding upon the Government and settling title as to lands while the subject is pending and undecided in the courts?

Mr. HUNTON. I will answer with entire candor. If I had looked into that case or if the Senator had looked into that case—I speak for myself and venture to speak for him—he and I would have said that that appeal, not having reached the Supreme Court—the second appeal I am talking about—it was not in the power of the United States to take an appeal; and it was not.

Mr. TELLER. The Senator from Virginia will allow me to call the attention of the Senator from West Virginia to the fact that during the discussion of this case by the two Secretaries of the Interior, Mr. Smith and Mr. Usher, there is no allusion to an appeal, and there could have been no appeal pending at that time. The testimony shows that the transcript upon which the appeal was taken was gotten up in December, 1863. The patent was signed before the 22d day of August, 1863.

Mr. HUNTON. The Senator from Colorado might have gone a step further and stated that both of these Secretaries said it was too late for an appeal.

Mr. TELLER. They both stated it.

Mr. HUNTON. They both stated it, and they stated it because the decree was rendered in this case on the 5th of June, 1857, and five years had elapsed before there was any protest and a second appeal taken.

Now, there is some difficulty attempted to be raised by my friends on the other side just at that point by ignoring the fact that this was a nunc pro tunc decree; that it related back to the 5th of June, 1857, when the decree was rendered by Judge Ogier; and that when in 1858 he ordered a decree entered the order was to be entered as a nunc pro tunc decree.

My friend from West Virginia is too good a lawyer not to know that when a court enters a decree nunc pro tunc the judge has a right to do it, it is within his discretion to do it, and that discretion is not revisable by a higher court; but when he enters a decree nunc pro tunc it is that the decree now entered shall date back to the time when the decree was rendered by him, on the 5th of June, 1857. That fact is not noticed by Judge Clifford in his last decision of the case, I believe.

The books are full of authorities upon the subject of a nunc pro tunc decree. If I am right in that, then in the opinion of everybody the time had elapsed when an appeal could be taken, and these two Secretaries and the President of the United States, after full authority, so decided and determined that the patent should issue.

I ask Senators if that was not the fourth confirmation of the title of William McGarrahan to the Rancho Panoche Grande; first by the Supreme Court docketing and dismissing the appeal, second by Caleb B. Smith, third by Mr. Usher, both of them good lawyers, and the fourth time by the President of the United States, who after full argument decided that a patent should issue, and that there was nothing to gainsay the right of William McGarrahan to a patent. Four times over the title of McGarrahan had been passed upon by persons authorized by law to pass upon it, and each time the parties authorized by law to pass upon patents decided that the patent should issue to Gomez as the assignor of McGarrahan.

But somebody had received a suggestion, and that suggestion seems to be potent all the way through this case. Another effort was made by the New Idria Mining Company after they had failed to compromise this case with Mr. McGarrahan, and they determined to try something else. I will come to that presently. I shall first pursue the line of argument that I was on just now.

When that patent went to the Department of the Interior and was sent down to the Land Office, Gen. Sickles, who was the counsel of William McGarrahan, was at that moment ordered to his command, which was doing a good deal of hard fighting down South, and no human being knew until long afterwards that the President of the United States had signed the patent and ordered it to be issued to William McGarrahan as the assignee of Gomez, and not until 1870 did Mr. McGarrahan ever hear that the President of the United States had signed his patent. McGarrahan was in California; war was raging; communication was cut off, and he did not hear it; and it was more due to the distinguished Senator from Iowa [Mr. WILSON] than to any other gentleman connected with this case that the facts about the suppression of the patent were unearthed.

What occurred then? They called upon the Secretary of the Interior to furnish the patent, and he sent up a skeleton, with no signature of the President, no date, no seal. That skeleton of a patent came before the committee of which the distinguished Senator from Iowa was chairman in the House of Representatives, and it became so apparent that nobody dared doubt it, that two leaves of the original patent had been taken off and two others inserted in their place, and that the signature of the President was left off, and the seal of the Department. Sir, it was so apparent that nobody could controvert it. Up to the last two leaves the patent had thirty-eight lines. Upon the last two leaves it had thirty-one. There were punctures upon the regular patent that did not appear upon the last two leaves.

The two leaves added did not appear to be exactly like the other leaves; it was the outside of the patent; and Mr. Stoddard, the private secretary of the President, who signed the land patent, said the words "Panoche Grande" written on that patent are not like the words "Panoche Grande" written on the patent I signed. So it became apparent, and nobody can read the evidence without coming to the conclusion, absolutely certain in regard to it, that when the patent was called for the last two leaves of the patent were taken from it and two others placed upon it without the signature of the President and the seal of the Department.

That is borne out by the fact that all the experts in the Land Office swear, and the testimony is here in a Senate document open to the inspection of everybody, that whenever "e'x'd." in red ink is put upon the record of a patent its only meaning is that it is the perfect record of a perfect patent, with the signature of the President, the seal, the date, and the signature of the recording officer.

Mr. FAULKNER. That was in California?

Mr. HUNTON. I believe it was in California, probably here; and the court there decided that because the proof was not satisfactory about the recorder signing it, they could not regard it as a perfect patent. That is my recollection of it, although I may be wrong.

Mr. President, this is the way Mr. McGarrahan has been treated in the Attorney-General's office and in the Land Department. When he was knocking at the doors of the two Houses of Congress, if he had only known it, his title had been made perfect and complete by the patent signed by the President and recorded in the Land Department as a perfect copy of a perfect patent.

Now, somebody must have had a suggestion there. Who it was I do not know, but when this record was called for—I believe I am right in this statement, and if I am wrong I shall be glad to be corrected—it was sent up as a mutilated copy, and the testimony shows that the Secretary of the Interior ordered it to be issued, and the parties who made the mutilation made it and he did not know anything about it.

I say four times this grant had been before parties authorized to pass upon it, as much so as the Supreme Court of the United States in their particular sphere, and four times over the title of McGarrahan, or Gomez, was confirmed. But it was kept there in the Land Department. Sickles had gone to the war; McGarrahan was in California; Lincoln was assassinated; and no human being knew of the existence of that patent signed by the President until it was unearthed by the Senator from Iowa in the Land Department. I believe Mr. McGarrahan had a good deal to do with unearthing it, because where his rights are concerned he is one of the most vigilant and diligent prosecutors of a claim I ever knew. Senators will agree to that.

I might stop here and say that the title of McGarrahan was so perfect to the Rancho Panoche Grande that the man who runs might read the perfection of his title. But the New Idria Mining Company were not ready to give up yet. They went before Judge Ogier, in California, and got him, upon a suggestion of proof, to set aside his former decree confirming the title on his own motion, nearly four years after the final record of it had been entered up by the same judge. I say it shows a depravity on the part of the judge if he did it knowingly, and an ignorance on his part if he did it ignorantly, that is disgraceful to the judicial history of this country.

On his own motion, on the suggestion of Goold, he set aside his order made four years before and ordered a new trial. Providence removed him hence just at that particular moment and Judge Haight was appointed in his place. Judge Haight went there and looked at the case, and found that it was confirmed by his predecessor, taken to the Supreme Court of the United States, and the appeal docketed and dismissed and the mandate sent down to his predecessor, and the mandate entered upon the orders of the court; and though the entry was erased eight months after it was made, Judge Haight said that that was the end of the litigation in that appeal.

Well, they wanted an appeal from Judge Haight's decision. He set aside Ogier's judgment as a nullity. It was given without any authority, without any jurisdiction in the case, and he set it aside as a perfect nullity. Then they asked Judge Haight for an appeal. The motion was made against the provisions of a stipulation entered into by the counsel on both sides that no step was to be taken except in the presence of the counsel on both sides. In the absence of McGarrahan and his counsel a motion was made to Judge Haight to allow an appeal. Judge Haight, without considering the matter, granted the appeal. As soon as McGarrahan's counsel heard of it the judge was reminded of the stipulation. He agreed to hear counsel upon the subject. Both sides argued it, and Judge Haight set aside his order granting the appeal, and he denied the right of the United States to any appeal from that decision.

Now, I want my friends on the other side, who appear to be very well posted in this case, to understand that that was the decision of Judge Haight. If it was an appeal from that decision, it was an appeal from his order setting aside the order of Judge Ogier opening the case, was it not? There can not be any two opinions about that. If it was an appeal from that, then all that came to the Supreme Court of the United States under that appeal was whether Judge Haight did right or wrong in setting aside Judge Ogier's order. If the court had to decide that he did wrong, all they had to do would be to send it back, and that would leave the order of Judge Ogier for a new trial in full force and the new trial would be had.

But the United States Government, or rather the New Idria Mining Company, because the United States Government was not a party in this matter—it has been the New Idria Mining Company all the way through—the New Idria Mining Company chose to treat that as an appeal from the judgment originally rendered by Judge Ogier in 1857 and a nunc pro tunc decree in 1858 entered as an appeal at that time from Judge Haight's decision. How an appeal at that time from Judge Haight's decision could carry the original decision of Judge Ogier made five years and more before the decision of Judge Haight passes my comprehension. But the Supreme Court of the United States treated it as an appeal from the decision of the case by Judge Ogier, confirming the grant to Gomez. We will consider the question in that light for a moment and see what the result ought to have been.

The distinguished Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] reminds me that Judge Usher testifies in the case that the patent was not issued because the Attorney-General intervened. He made no point that there was an appeal pending, but asked that the patent should not be issued at that moment. That is conclusive testimony to prove that at the moment when Usher and Smith and the President of the United States decided that a patent should issue there was no appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

As I was about to say, this appeal which they said they took from Judge Haight's opinion, and which Judge Haight overruled himself at the same term of the court and denied all appeal, they chose to take as an appeal from the decision originally rendered by Judge Ogier in 1857 and entered nunc pro tunc in 1858. How could that be done? If it was an appeal from Judge Haight's opinion, then if it was reversed all the effect of it was to send the case back and reopen the judgment which Judge Ogier had made upon a suggestion. But the New Idria Mining Company did not want that, because if there had been a new trial McGarrahan could have satisfied the court, as he did in the first instance, that his title was as complete and honest as anybody's. So they took the original opinion up.

The opinion of Judge Ogier confirming the title in McGarrahan, or in Gomez, was rendered, we say, in 1857. Judge Clifford puts it in 1858, and takes great pains not to allude to the nunc pro tunc character of the decree of 1858. The appeal goes up. Now, what is the result of that? It was a decree that had been rendered, according to their own statement, more than four years, according to our understanding more than five years. If we are right, then the time had elapsed in which an appeal could be taken. If they were right as to the period of 1858 then a citation was necessary, because it was not taken at the term of the court in which the decision was rendered, and whenever that is the case a citation is absolutely necessary. I need not trouble the Senate with authorities upon that subject, because they are multitudinous. Whenever an appeal is taken, unless the party is present in court when taken at the term at which the decree is entered, there must be a citation issued; and unless the citation is issued the Supreme Court, in a hundred cases, for just that defect have dismissed the appeal.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia will please suspend. The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, it is the duty of the Chair to lay before the Senate the unfinished business, which is the bill (H. R. 7845) defining "options" and "futures," imposing special taxes on dealers therein, and requiring such dealers and persons engaged in selling certain products to obtain license, and for other purposes, upon which the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE] is entitled to the floor.

Mr. TELLER. I ask that the bill which has been pending may be continued to-morrow morning after the regular routine business.

Mr. SANDERS. To-morrow we do not meet.

Mr. TELLER. Monday morning.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The next legislative day.

Mr. TELLER. The next legislative day.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado asks unanimous consent that the consideration of the McGarrahan bill, so called, be continued immediately after the routine morning business upon the next legislative day. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

SUPERVISORS AND SPECIAL DEPUTIES OF ELECTIONS.

Mr. BATE. I wish to give notice that on Tuesday morning, after the conclusion of the morning business, I shall ask permission of the Senate to call up a bill introduced by me, the bill (S. 3504) to repeal all statutes relating to supervisors of elections and special deputies, for the purpose of submitting some remarks upon it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The notice of the Senator from Tennessee will be noted in the RECORD, which is the usual course.

DEALING IN "OPTIONS" AND "FUTURES."

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7845) defining "options" and "futures," imposing special taxes on dealers therein, and requiring such dealers and persons engaged in selling certain products to obtain license, and for other purposes, the pending question being on the amendment of Mr. DANIEL to strike out section 10.

Mr. GEORGE. Mr. President, I feel a satisfaction in announcing that notwithstanding the Hatch bill caused a decline in cotton day before yesterday it failed to have that effect yesterday; though it was a little disastrous to wheat and provisions in Chicago.

When I yielded the floor yesterday I was on the point that uniformly in the market of New York cotton futures were sold from one-tenth to one-half of a cent per pound lower than spots on the same day; that is, spots were sold, say, on the 15th day of November at a certain price; futures deliverable in November, in the same month, within the next fifteen days, would sell in many instances for about one-half a cent per pound less than spots.

I wish to mention here a very remarkable instance of the effect of the transactions of dealers in futures on the price of cotton. On the 29th day of November last, in the city of New York, futures deliverable in November, which was on the very next day, the 30th, that being the last day of the month, were sold at the rate of $2.40 per bale lower than the price for spots on the 29th day of November.

I desire to call the attention of the Senate to the remarkable fact that whilst future sales were uniformly lower than the spot sales on the same day, it took several months, according to the course of the market of the New York Cotton Exchange, for futures to catch up with the prices of spots. I will read some memoranda on this subject.

On the 1st day of September last in New York spots were worth 7.12 cents. In September futures were worth 7.08 cents, and in November only did futures catch up with the price of spots on the 1st day of September. On the 15th day of September spots were worth 7.19 cents. They reached 7.13 in November, and only got even with the price of spots in December following. For September 28 spots were worth 7.63 cents. They reached 7.65 cents in November in New York. I have taken the 1st, 15th, and 28th of each month and they represent fairly the business for the whole month. On the 1st day of October spot cotton in New York was worth 7.69 cents. Futures reached 7.63 cents in November and 7.75 cents in December.

On October 15 it was worth 8 cents in New York. It reached 8.02 cents in February, about four months afterwards. October 28 spots in New York were worth 8.63 They were as low as 8.38 cents in February, and reached 8.63 cents only in March. November 1, spot cotton was 8.31. It reached 8.19 cents in January, three months afterwards. November 15 spots were worth 9 cents in New York. It reached 8.91 cents only in January, 9.11 cents in March, and so on. It is thus shown, by reference to the account of sales of cotton of spots and futures in New York, that uniformly, without a single exception in the city of New York, futures ranged from one-tenth to one-half a cent lower for the same day of the same month, and reached a parity with that day only from two to three months afterwards. As I explained yesterday evening, the effect of that was that persons who bought for speculation would not buy spot cotton, but would buy future cotton alone on account of its being lower in price.

Mr. President, I have shown the facts with reference to these sales. I have shown, first, that the necessary result of transactions in futures is to depress the price. I have shown, second, that by the market quotations in New York they did depress the price. I wish to show from the admission of friends of the future system that future selling does depress the prices, and I will read a few evidences of that to the Senate. I read from the report of the New York Herald of July 14, 1892:

Liverpool moved up and New York followed. The spot demand at Liverpool was larger. Later on Liverpool lost part of the improvement, doubtless owing to long liquidation and this together with European and local selling caused a reaction and the early advance was lost.

Long selling, for the information of those who are not acquainted with the technique and appellatives of the Cotton Exchange, I will state is a sale by men who have bought cotton futures and when they get tired of holding it they put the futures on the market, which they frequently do in such quantities as to produce the result which I have read from the New York Herald.

I read now from a letter of Atwood, Violett & Co. to the Memphis Commercial, dated September 28. Atwood, Violett & Co. are reputable cotton-future brokers in the city of New Orleans and write a daily letter to the Memphis papers, also to the papers in the city of Jackson, in the State of Mississippi, and probably in other places. They say, referring to Liverpool:

Our cables say there was very large selling by the long interest. The spot business there has improved; sales, 14,000 bales. We think the decline there yesterday and in New York, as well as here, was premeditated and done to shake out the long interest by influential parties.

There is where the result was accomplished by the predetermined action of speculators in futures. I quote again from the Memphis Commercial:

NEW YORK, September 27.

Schwartz, Dupee & McCormick furnish the following review of the New York cotton market: "The market declined on account of nearly all the outside interest being on the long side and the short interest covered up. There has not been sufficient new buying at the advance to cause a further rise."

I read again from the market report of September 30, in the Memphis Commercial:

The weakness in the several domestic markets occurred late in the day, and was due—

I have been talking about longs; they had caused the depression—was due to shorts realizing and an expected increase in receipts close ahead.

So it goes down by the action of the longs or by the action of the shorts, just as each one sees proper to depress the market.

I read now from the market report of Hubbard, Price & Co., of New York, who are reputable dealers in cotton:

Liverpool advices this morning were not regarded as a satisfactory response to the advance in New York yesterday, and the result was many realizing orders. Under the liquidation the market eased away 3 to 5 points.

From the same parties, to the Memphis Avalanche and Appeal on October 8:

Our market opened at 10 points decline for the immediate and 5 to 6 points for the more distant positions, caused entirely by the selling of the local long interest.

I read again from Atwood, Violett & Co., strong opponents of this bill:

The decline to-day of 20 points from last night's closing, from which there was a recovery of 4, indicates a heavy realizing by the longs, and selling on stop orders.

From the same parties, New Orleans, October 14:

The long interest closing out to-day at the opening on stop orders and otherwise caused a drop of 8 points here, January selling at 55. Later on, after reports of rain at a number of points in Texas, there was a recovery of 15, January advancing to 71, but selling orders again came on and January closed at 62.

From Hubbard, Price & Co. again, the New York men:

A liquidation ensued, causing large sales by holders as stop orders were reached, and with only slight reaction the market declined 14 points by 1 o'clock.

From Atwood, Violett & Co. again, October 27:

As long as the idea prevails that there is an interest in the market that will be forced to liquidate on a declining market, just so long will there be timidity about increasing the long interest.

That is, by persons buying.

From the same parties, on October 27:

The situation seems to be about as follows: The bears in all three markets have for the last week been endeavoring to create the impression that by holding off and feeding the market with short sales slowly—and feeding the market with short sales slowly the longs would be gradually forced to cover and all that the shorts had to do was to wait. Liverpool has been flooded with information about expected large increase in movement. Frost news has been discredited, although the Government has given its official indorsement as follows for yesterday morning: Atlanta district, minimum temperature, 26°; Augusta, 33°; Charleston, 38°; Little Rock, 34°; Memphis, 32°; Mobile, 34°; Montgomery, 36°; New Orleans, 36°; Vicksburg, 36°. Whether this low temperature has a beneficial effect upon the cotton crop those bearishly inclined must decide. Our own impression is that the market will be one-half cent higher inside of thirty days. Whether it will go lower in the mean time depends upon the influence we have mentioned as to what extent present cotton labors in England will be carried.

Slowly!

Now I read from another very reputable firm in New Orleans, cotton brokers:

We attribute the weakness almost entirely to the fact of the selling out of long cotton and not to any other cause.

I read from Hubbard, Price & Co., again:

The New York market opened firm at 13 to 14 points advance, and became easy under continued realizing. On the decline the South and West came into the market as large buyers and the decline was recovered, January touching 9.01, though freely offered at 9 when the sale was made. During the afternoon the supply proved too much for prices, breaking the market to 8.86 for January.

All these quotations are from persons who are the enemies of this bill, who are reputable cotton brokers, regularly reporting the condition of the markets in New Orleans and New York.

Now, I read from a firm that is on the other side, The Jerome Hill Cotton Company. I am authorized to say with reference to that firm that it has handled within the last twenty-five years in the Southern markets, Memphis and St. Louis, more cotton than any other factoring house in the country. They close up by saying:

While the situation really is growing stronger each day by reduction of the surplus and bad reports from the crop, cotton is being forced down by illegal methods.

Now, Mr. President, we have the facts. We have the declaration of the representatives of the New York Cotton Exchange, Latham, Alexander & Co., that this can be done. We have the further fact that they uniformly in New York sell futures for from one-tenth to one-half cent lower than spots. We have the declaration of these men, which I have read in the hearing of the Senate, showing that on certain days the market was depressed solely by the action of the dealers in futures. Now, what more do you want? First, we have the actual transactions of the market continued through three months without a single exception on any day to the fact that there was a continual selling of futures against the spot market and lower than the spot market. Then we have the declaration of these parties above quoted that on certain days, without reference to anything else, the market was depressed by the action of future dealers.

Mr. President, I now approach another part of this controversy. I have shown the natural, usual, ordinary effect of these sales upon the spot market. I now go to another point and show that falsehood, chicanery, trickery are used by the members of the Cotton Exchange and all the other exchanges in New York for the purpose of influencing the price of cotton, wheat, etc. The Senate will be astonished when I read what I am going to read, a most remarkable concession made in the testimony of one of the representatives of the Produce Exchange of the city of New York, given before the Senate committee of which my friend who sits behind me, the Senator from Alabama [Mr. PUGH], was a member. Mr. Kneeland, a prominent member of the Produce Exchange of the city of New York (so prominent that he was sent by that exchange to the city of Washington to represent it in the hearing before the subcommittee to which I have just alluded in opposition to this bill) was asked the following question:

Mr. YOUMANS. Now, in these various transactions of the kind you have just explained, do not these men in making these transactions make an effort to depress the market of the actual grain?

Mr. KNEELAND. No more than the men who buy it make an effort to put it up. It is opposing and contending forces all the time.

Now, I wish to call the attention of the Senate to the next sentence. Mr. Kneeland says:

They can not get up a bear lie that I can not get up a bull lie equal to it.

So there is the confession of this prominent member of the New York Produce Exchange that lies are used on both sides for the purpose of raising and depressing prices. I have some examples of that to show you that this man was not mistaken on that subject.

Mr. GRAY. Honors seem to be easy between the high and low prices.

Mr. GEORGE. It is affected by lies, however.

Mr. GRAY. Yes, but it does not affect the price.

Mr. GEORGE. It does affect the price.

Mr. GRAY. No, not according to your statement.

Mr. GEORGE. I have made no statement so far. Now, I am going to make a statement. I have only read the statement of Mr. Kneeland. I read what Hubbard, Price & Co. say October 29:

In Liverpool the arrival market declined 2 to 3 points. This decline exceeded the anticipation of the trade and our market opened barely steady under heavy selling by local operators. After these offerings were absorbed it became known that the decline in Liverpool was accentuated by a rumor that Neill Bros. had issued an estimate of a crop of 8,000,000 bales. This was afterward denied from New Orleans.

It turned out to be false. Mr. Kneeland would call it a lie. Mr. Neill, it seems, is a gentleman who has great character for being an accurate calculator as to the amount of a crop before it is gathered. On that occasion a decline was forced in the market by a falsehood as to his statement as to the extent of the crop. October 13 they dealt with him again:

Our Liverpool cable of this morning said there was an uneasy feeling in that market and large selling, which latter, we ascertained, was attributable to a rumor, so our correspondent there informs us, that Neill had issued an estimate of 8,250,000 bales for this crop.

That turned out to be a mistake, and there was a decline in the market. They use Mr. Neill again, and there was another decline in the market. That was in the same month. Then comes a very remarkable statement, which I might as well bring in here as I have it before me. It did not affect the market at all, but it was one of those untruths or rather nontruths which were circulated, not for the purpose of affecting the market exactly, but to affect men here. There was a decline in Liverpool July 5 of several points. At that time the pending antioption bill was before the Senate and was being considered. There was an attempt to manufacture a sentiment against it. There was an attempt to prejudice in the public mind the public men who were advocating it, and so this firm of Atwood, Violett & Co., in reporting the decline in Liverpool, say:

We think the weakness in Liverpool after 12 o'clock was due to the amended antioption bill to be introduced by Senator GEORGE, of Mississippi.

A most remarkable circumstance, Mr. President, that the price of cotton in Liverpool should be affected adversely by an amendment not offered, but proposed to be offered, by so humble an individual as I am! Of course that was a mistake, a nontruth, intended simply to prejudice the minds of the people of Mississippi against me and my action. That was published in the leading Democratic paper in the State of Mississippi, July 6.

Then comes another very remarkable thing among the capacities of these people, according to Mr. Kneeland, to make representations. This is from Hubbard, Price & Co.'s circular of November 17, New York:

During the afternoon January declined to 17, closing easy at 18 and 19. The principal cause of the decline is a dispatch from Chicago, reporting an interview with Senator WASHBURN, in which he said that the antioption bill will certainly pass the Senate as soon as it has been convened, unless there should prove to be a great change of sentiment.

Yet whilst cotton declined in New York, or these traders in New York forced a decline, upon the reported interview from Chicago with the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WASHBURN], it appears that all the other articles embraced in the bill, and which are principally dealt with in Chicago, were not effected by the declaration that the bill would pass. I thought when I ascertained that fact that my friend from Minnesota had invented a kind of machine which would have the effect of destroying the interests of the people of the South, and not affecting the interests of the people of the West; but upon further investigation I find it frequently happens that when reports go into the markets with reference to the passage or the nonpassage of the pending bill in the Senate sometimes cotton goes up when the bill is reported as being about to pass, or having a good chance to pass, and wheat goes down. So I take it that there is nothing in that except that as these speculators desire to affect Representatives and Senators from one section or the other they report these alleged effects upon the market. As they have got up a considerable agitation against the antioption bill down South, when they want to increase that agitation they report that the Hatch bill is destroying cotton, and when they want to perform a similar operation in the West, they report that it is destroying corn, wheat, and provisions.

The next point to which I desire to call the attention of the Senate is one of the alleged benefits to come from the pending bill. It is claimed all along that it steadies operations; that we do not have under the operation of the future dealing violent fluctuations. Now, I want to call the attention of the Senate to a little of the proceedings of the market upon that point. Cotton has risen and fallen, as everybody knows, since the 1st of September. I wish to quote from the market in New Orleans, which is the principal spot market in this country. There is very little spot business done in New York, as we have seen.

On September 1 the spots in New Orleans were worth 7 cents; on the 12th it fell to 6 5/8 cents; on the 13th it went back to 7 cents; on the 14th it went back to 6 7/8 cents; on the 21st it went up to 7 1/16; on the 23d to 7 1/8; on the 26th to 7 1/16; or, in other words, in the month of September there was a variation of one-half cent per pound from the highest to the lowest. Take October. October 1 cotton in New Orleans was worth 7 7/16 cents; on the 3d it was worth 7 9/16; on the 4th, 7 9/16; on the 6th, 7 11/16; on the 12th, 7 11/16; on the 13th, 7 11/16; on the 14th, 7 9/16; on the 19th, 7 11/16; on the 21st, 7 11/16; on the 22d, 7 13/16; on the 26th, back to 7 13/16 cents; on the 28th, up again to 7 13/16; on the 29th, back to 7 11/16; and on the 31st, 7 11/16. There was a variation in the price nearly every day, and the variation in that month was ten-sixteenths of a cent, over half a cent.

Take the month of November at New Orleans. On the 1st day of November cotton was worth 7 11/16 cents; on the 2d it was worth 7 13/16; on the 5th it was worth 7 13/16; on the 7th it was worth 7 15/16; on the 9th it was worth 8 1/16; on the 10th, 8 1/16; on the 11th, 8 1/16; on the 12th, 8 1/16; on the 14th, 8 1/16; on the 15th, 9 cents; on the 16th, 9 1/16; on the 17th, 9 1/16, a fall again; on the 18th, 9 1/16; on the 19th, 9 1/16; on the 21st, 9 1/16; on the 22d, 9 1/16; on the 25th, 9 1/16; on the 26th, 9 1/16; on the 29th, 9 1/16, there being a variation during the month of 2 3/16 cents. So I do not see much steadiness in the market occasioned by future delay.

Now, I will make some quotations. Atwood, Violett & Co., to whom I have just alluded as prominent cotton men in New Orleans, in their letter to the Memphis Commercial of October 26, say:

Liverpool vacillated considerably to-day.

I, E. Glenny & Co., in the Appeal-Avalanche, November 12, say:

New York opened 13 points higher and closed 4 points higher, with sales of 514,100 bales. New Orleans opened irregular, 13 to 18 points higher, declined 16 to 17 points, and closed 8 points higher than yesterday; sales 174,000 bales.

There were four or five variations on the same day, and large variations up and down. The same letter goes on to say:

We have had another day of very large business and considerable fluctuations. The advance in Liverpool had to a certain extent been discounted yesterday, but it nevertheless brought in large buying orders for the opening of the market, which was at about the highest of the day. We fluctuated frequently and sharply, at one time being very weak, with sales of January as low as 8.60.

I read from the New York Herald of September 26:

Cotton was more active than on any day for a long time, and the fluctuations were feverish and within a wide range of prices. Early in the day there was an advance of 15 points. Later on a part of this was lost. Still later the market ran back to the best prices of the day, November and December showing a net rise of 16 points compared with Saturday closing figures. Still later there was a reaction, and the final prices were about 10 points higher than the closing official quotations on Saturday.

That looks like a steady market, when there are four or five rises and falls during the same day! I quote now from the letter of I. E. Glenny & Co., who are prominent cotton men of New Orleans, to the Memphis Appeal-Avalanche in November:

New York opened 2 points lower and closed 14 points higher. New Orleans opened 1 point lower, declined 2 points, advanced, closing 12 points higher.

That looks like being steady. In the same article the same men say:

But we nevertheless opened easy, and after the first call the market looked rather weak, sales being made at 2 to 3 points decline. The further advance of 1/64d. at the close in Liverpool and the predictions of lighter receipts at our ports to-morrow imparted greater confidence and led to considerable buying, the market improving steadily as the day advanced, until January was sold as high as 8.20. From this we reacted, and sales were made as low as 8.12, but it improved again toward the close, the last sales being at 8.17 to 8.18.

Hubbard, Price & Co. report from New York October 15 as follows:

Market unsettled and erratic.

Atwood, Violett & Co., New Orleans, November 26, say:

There must have been very considerable excitement in Liverpool to-day, where the market opened 1/64d. to 1/32d. higher than yesterday and closed 1/64 lower.

A difference of seven sixty-fourths.

Our cables say there was large dealing by longs.

Now I wish to read from the commercial article of the New York Herald on the 9th day of the present month:

Cotton advanced 1 to 2 points, lost this and declined 5 to 6 points, recovered this and in some cases advanced 1 point over last night's prices, lost this and declined 10 to 11 points, recovered this and advanced 1 point, and then lost this and fell 18 to 19 points, this being the net decline for the day, closing barely steady, with sales of 352,300 bales.

The article goes on further to say:

There were six movements of prices distinctly noticeable in to-day's fluctuations—first an advance, owing to an unexpected rise in Liverpool, then a decline on long selling and a fall in Liverpool, then a rally on light arrivals at a few interior towns, then a decline on an estimate that New Orleans would receive 15,000 bales to-morrow, and actual receipts at Baltimore to-day of 7,557 bales; then a rally, owing to a reduction in the New Orleans estimated arrivals to-morrow to 10,000 bales, and then a final and precipitate decline, owing to unexpectedly large receipts at the ports and interior towns and an increase in interior stocks, as well as a report that the Hatch bill will come up in Congress.

Mr. President, with these facts before the Senate, I think the claim is not made out, and can not be made out, that we have any steadier market now than we had before; so that that alleged benefit of trading in futures is not made out.

I come now to the great benefit, that which they all rely upon as the great good thing to come to the Southern planter from dealing in futures, that it consumes the surplus and markets the crops. Right here I wish to read the protest of the Memphis Cotton Exchange against the passage of the pending bill and to make some comments upon it; and when I have done that, I believe I will have discharged my duty as I understand it in the discussion of the bill before the Senate. The Memphis Cotton Exchange, I understand—I appeal to my friend who sits behind me [Mr. BATE] whether I am correct or not—joined with some other exchange some time ago in petitioning the New Orleans Cotton Exchange and the New York Cotton Exchange to change the grades of cotton which they were to receive on future contracts, and that exchange declined. I ask either of the Senators from Tennessee to answer whether they remember such action to have been taken?

Mr. HARRIS. In respect to the changing of grades?

Mr. GEORGE. Yes, which were to be delivered on cotton contract.

Mr. HARRIS. I do not remember that any action was taken.

Mr. GEORGE. Very well; my recollection is a little defective, and I will not make that assertion. The point to which I desire to call the attention of the Senate, and they all go upon that, is that if it was not for the speculators buying cotton there would be a congested market and the prices would fall; that there would be a large portion of the time when there would be no sale for cotton, and that future dealings prevent that. Now, let us see. I answered that at the last session of Congress. It came then in one shape, and I wish to call the attention of the Senate to the different shape in which it appears now.

Mr. Bloss, the vice-president of the New York Cotton Exchange, alleged in his testimony before the Senate committee that capital must take care of the surplus, and he reasoned out that future dealing was a good thing for the farmers of the country in this way, that it induced capitalists to purchase cotton. Mr. Bloss said, speaking of futures:

How is it that it prevents this extreme depression? It is prevented because human nature is always hopeful. Human nature is disposed the world over to be "bullish," notwithstanding the fact that it is widely claimed that there are more "bears" than "bulls." The result of it is that after the article has made a moderate decline there are scores of people who believe that it is time for an advance. These men constitute a buying power. They come into the various markets and buy these articles for future delivery at a price that enables the capitalist to make the contract with them and buy the actual stuff and hold it against the day of maturity.

At that time the plea of the men who advocated future dealing was that capital was timid; that it would not buy spot cotton unless a market was fixed for it by the future dealings of other persons. I exposed that then, and I said that I intended to expose it so effectually that I would never hear of it again. So now it comes in a new shape, not less absurd than that. It comes in the protest of the Memphis Cotton Exchange, which altogether is a very remarkable document.

The Memphis Cotton Exchange, constituted of merchants and planters—

They always put "planters" in. How many planters are in it is not stated. I guess they are about the same sort of planters that we found out upon investigation to be members of the New York and of the New Orleans Cotton Exchanges. But, however that may be, I have made no investigation as to Memphis—begs leave herewith to protest against the passage of the antioption bill when it comes up for consideration by the United States Senate, in December next, and earnestly requests every member of the Senate that has the best interest of the planting and commercial element at heart to vote against it.

The next proposition is as follows:

We believe, indeed we know, that the passage of the bill would not only hamper and restrict trade, but would largely curtail the business of the whole country, and tend especially to the detriment and disadvantage of the grain and cotton growers of the United States.

Mr. President, of course I like confidence. I like men who really have the courage of their convictions. These men do not stand on a mere belief; they say, "We know it will be injurious." Now, let us see how they work it out.

The passage of the bill would simply mean the commercial ostracism of the dealers of the world and the monopoly of its products by manufacturers and actual consumers.

Mr. President, who are the dealers of the world? They say it will ruin the producer and benefit only the consumer. You might say that a farmer is a dealer in cotton to some extent; that is, he raises cotton and sells it. The manufacturer is a dealer in cotton to some extent; he buys cotton and manufactures it and sells the cloth. But these men are excluded by the terms of the proposition from the meaning of the word "dealer." Dealer must here mean trader in cotton, who is neither a raiser of cotton nor a manufacturer of cotton, and who is he? As he is neither a producer nor a consumer he must be a person who stands between the producer and consumer and buys cotton.

What does he buy cotton for? He must buy to sell again. Certainly men do not buy for the mere purposes of preventing a glut in the market. They buy in order to sell again, and what do they buy to sell again for except to make a profit? We well understand that. No man invests his money in cotton or any other article for speculation or to sell again without the hope, without the expectation of making a profit. That is settled. I presume there will be no dispute about that. Let us see what the protest says. They say:

In order to illustrate our position and to emphasize the facts herein stated we beg leave to cite a point in case for your consideration.

On February the 26th, 1892, the visible supply of American cotton in the world amounted to the enormous total of 4,248,372 bales. Of this amount Liverpool held 1,445,000, the continent 475,000; the amount afloat for Europe was 553,000; the stock at New York was 403,000, making the large sum of 2,876,000 out of the total visible supply, which was practically owned by dealers.

They had taken, according to the statement of this paper, 2,876,000 bales and held it. What did they hold it for? They held it for higher prices. They held it for speculation. They held it in order to sell for a profit. Now, let us go on and see what they say further:

And which had been hedged by the sale of future contracts. Should we add to this amount that portion of the New Orleans stock held against contracts it would give at least 3,000,000 bales held by dealers at that time, who, through the agency of future sales, had been enabled to relieve the producers of the South of that enormous amount of cotton and to lighten the load, which was even then depressing price and threatening cotton production with utter annihilation.

Let us analyze that statement and see how much of real force there is in it. Recollect that these dealers are not consumers. They are speculators; they have bought simply for the purpose of making a profit on their money, as they had a right to do. The Memphis Cotton Exchange allege that they would not have bought unless they had hedged on their contract by the sale or purchase of "futures."

What is "hedging?" Let us see. A man buys, for instance, a thousand bales of cotton; he pays the money for it, and, as I explained and as they all explain here, as I have read in the hearing of the Senate, for fear that cotton will rise or fall if he is a purchaser he buys a future contract for that, whereby he hedges. So, as they all say, if cotton rises when he sells his contract will rise when he buys. Therefore, there will be neither gain nor loss when the two transactions are put together. It is exactly like a man betting $500 on horse A, and for fear he will lose his money betting $500 more on the opposing horse. The result is when the race is run he is bound to lose one bet, but he is bound to win the other; and so he comes out even. So with this hedging all the way through.

These men have bought 3,000,000 bales of cotton, according to the statement of the Memphis Cotton Exchange, and have hedged against it, not hedged afterward upon seeing some change in the market which made them fearful that they might lose, but hedged as a condition of purchase. What does that mean? Here are speculators investing their money in cotton, buying 3,000,000 of bales of cotton which, at $40 a bale, would make $120,000,000—investing $120,000,000 on a speculation, holding the cotton from the market, preventing the glut which would depress, as they say, annihilate cotton. What do they do? At the very same time they make the purchase they go and hedge by selling 3,000,000 bales of cotton at the same price. That is the argument of the Memphis Cotton Exchange.

I say such a transaction as that never occurred; I say no man ever did a thing of that sort; I say that when speculators buy cotton they do not hedge, because, if they hedge, they will pay just as much as they would receive, and the transaction would end just where it commenced, except the risk that the speculator takes in his cotton being burned up and the insurance company not being able to pay, and other accidents of that sort. But, supposing everything to go on all right and smooth, it ends exactly where it commences, the purchaser pays out so much and receives so much.

Mr. HARRIS. He loses all the commission he pays, does he not?

Mr. GEORGE. Exactly, but would that be any inducement, I ask my learned friend, for him to invest in 3,000,000 bales of cotton?

Mr. HARRIS. I do not think so, but I think it strengthens the Senator's argument very much if he will emphasize it.

Mr. GEORGE. I do emphasize it. I am very glad of the suggestion. They lose the commission, as suggested by my friend, of 12½ cents a bale, and all for what? It is a very singular argument. I suppose the members of the Memphis Cotton Exchange are very reputable people; certainly I have no complaint to make against them. Memphis is a very nice town, and it has the good fortune, as I believe, to be located within 12 miles of the line of the State of Mississippi. I think that is a considerable advantage to the town.

Mr. HARRIS. Or to Mississippi.

Mr. GEORGE. But how these men, sensible men, men who conduct the cotton business, could come to the Senate of the United States and appeal, in their own earnest language, to "every member of the Senate who has the best interests of the planting and commercial element at heart to vote against the bill," and then suggest to us, as a reason why we should do it, that if this bill passes the future business would be broken down and there would be no purchase of the 3,000,000 bales of cotton, which heretofore have been purchased and held for speculation, and purchased because they could be hedged against and were hedged against, and sold by being hedged against, they not being able to make a single dollar out of the transaction, but, as my friend from Tennessee very properly suggested to me, which I was about to forget, would lose 12½ cents on every bale in the operation. Now we are expected to surrender our judgment on an absurdity of that sort.

Our Memphis friends have not kept up with the literature on this subject. A year ago the cotton-exchange men came before us with the proposition that the speculators in cotton would not themselves hedge, but they would wait until men without capital and without means should establish a future market by buying and selling futures, and on the strength of the market created by men without capital these men with capital would invest. That, absurd as it was, was less absurd than the proposition which they have put before the American Senate.

I should like to call the attention of the Senate to that again. They say that "these 3,000,000 bales are practically owned by dealers, and had been hedged against by the sale of future contracts." Suppose, for instance, the antioption bill had been in effect at that time, what would be the result?

The dealers would have been unable to sell contracts against purchases—

Of course, because it was prohibited by the bill—

hence could not and would not have bought the cotton.

That is the argument which the Memphis Exchange presents to the American Senate. I wish it understood that it is not a change of opinion by a man who had already bought actual cotton upon some change in the market with certain loss to him, and then going into the "future" market and undertaking to make purchases in order to lessen the loss that might happen. I might buy a thousand bales, intending to hold it for six months; cotton might commence to go down, and I might get scared. I might then go into the "future" market and hedge against it in order to lessen my loss.

But that is not the case put by the Memphis Cotton Exchange. They say that it was hedged, and if they could not have hedged they would not have purchased. Yet that is the kind of argument upon which we are expected to vote against this bill, provided always we happen, in the language of the Memphis Cotton Exchange, to "have the best interests of the planting and commercial element at heart."

I do not know that I should have noticed that argument, as it is so plainly absurd, if I had not heard a gentleman of intelligence, upon a casual reading of it, suggest that the petition of the Memphis Cotton Exchange had rather unsettled his mind in reference to the propriety of passing a bill to suppress dealing in futures.

Mr. President, I believe I have about discharged my duty as best I could in reference to the question of future dealing in cotton. I will not recapitulate what I have said. I have taken already more of the time of the Senate than I wished, and I will close, merely adding that if the Memphis Cotton Exchange expects men to buy cotton on speculation in order that there shall be no glut in the market, I want to call the attention of that body of men to the report made, which I read yesterday to the Senate, from the Cotton Exchange of the City of New York, where, out of 197,648 bales of cotton disposed of in one year, only 1,026 bales were taken by speculators and over 26,000,000 of futures were sold.

The truth is, as I showed yesterday, that the dealings in "futures" prevent men from taking spot cotton for speculation. "Future" cotton is offered to speculators at prices always lower than "spots." There is no inducement for a man to buy "spots" when he wants to speculate, and when he can get the cotton generally half a cent cheaper on contracts for "futures" than he can get "spots." The truth is, that the whole system prevents speculators from buying. They have got it fixed, they leave it alone to the consumer, and nobody buys except consumers or persons acting for consumers, and who have already made contracts to deliver to consumers.

But, Mr. President, if this were even wrong and men would buy spot cotton for speculation at a higher price than they can buy futures, and then go to the expense of hedging against their purchases, it would not have the effect supposed by the Memphis exchange. The temporary withdrawing from market of even a considerable quantity of cotton could have but little effect. The cotton is not consumed nor destroyed; it is still held for sale, to be put on the market at any moment that the owner deems proper. It still constitutes part of the crop yet to be marketed—yet to be paid for by the money devoted by commerce for the final marketing of the cotton crop.

Just one more word before I conclude. The cotton-raisers of this country, the wheat-raisers of this country, the corn-raisers of this country are entitled to some consideration at the hands of the American Senate. They have complained in their conventions, in their public meetings, in their granges, in their lodges, and in every mode in which good citizens may make complaint, of what they conceive to be evils which ought to be remedied by legislation. They have complained of the "future" system. They feel it; the truth is, there is no concealing this great fact; they know, they feel that there has been great depression, that there has been a great lowering of prices; they know, they feel that their business has not only become unprofitable, but that it is prosecuted positively at a loss; the mortgage is on the homestead; debt is pressing; they have tried again and again to emancipate themselves from the shackles of this system; they find their cotton going lower and lower; they find that the dealers in these two exchanges are increasing year by year their purchases of "futures" and decreasing their purchases of real cotton. I think their voice ought to be potential with us. I think if the American people are to be considered as fit for self-government, and if they are to be considered as fit to determine what they want, we ought to conclude that this measure is a proper one for them, and we ought to give it them.

With these remarks, I submit the argument so far as I am concerned.

HOLIDAY RECESS.

Mr. HAWLEY. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Will the Senator withdraw the motion to enable the Chair to lay certain matters before the Senate?

Mr. HAWLEY. Certainly.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a concurrent resolution from the House of Representatives; which will be read:

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That when the two Houses adjourn on Thursday, December 22, they will stand adjourned until Wednesday, January 4, 1893.

Mr. HALE. I move that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

The motion was agreed to.

PORT OF DULUTH, MINN.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 3183) to extend to Duluth, Minn., the privileges of the first section of an act entitled "An act to amend the statutes in relation to immediate transportation of dutiable goods, and for other purposes," approved June 10, 1888, which was to amend the title by striking out the date "1888" and inserting "1880."

The amendment was concurred in.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

The bill (H. R. 3184) correcting the muster of Second Lieut. Gilman L. Johnson, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Commerce:

A bill (H. R. 5752) to amend an act approved August 6, 1888, entitled "An act to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Alabama River;"

A bill (H. R. 8602) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mobile River by the Chicago, Mobile and Gulf Ports Railroad Company;

A bill (H. R. 9487) to amend an act approved April 22, 1890, authorizing the Natchitoches Cane River Bridge Company to construct and maintain a bridge across Cane River, in Louisiana; and

A bill (H. R. 9488) to amend an act approved March 2, 1891, authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Red River, Louisiana, by the Rapides Bridge Company (limited).

The joint resolution (H. Res. 170) to pay the officers and employés of the Senate and House of Representatives their respective salaries for the month of December, 1892, on the 21st day of said month, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bill and joint resolution; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 9825) making appropriations for the support of the Army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, and for other purposes; and

A joint resolution (H. Res. 166) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to cover back into the Treasury $48,800 of the appropriation to Choctaw and Chikcasaw Indians.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

The message also announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills; and they were thereupon signed by the Vice-President:

A bill (S. 539) to amend and enlarge the act approved June 18, 1878, entitled "An act to provide for the distribution of the awards made under the convention between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico, concluded on the 4th day of July, 1868;"

A bill (S. 606) to amend and enlarge the act approved June 18, 1878, entitled "An act to provide for the distribution of the awards made under the convention between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico, concluded on the 4th day of July, 1868;" and

A bill (S. 2093) to provide for the disposal of certain abandoned military reservations in the State of Wyoming.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. WASHBURN. Mr. President, unless other Senators desire to submit remarks on the antioption bill, I suggest that we now proceed to vote on the bill and amendments.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I rise to a question of order. I understood that a motion was made by the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. HAWLEY] that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of executive business, and that that motion was withdrawn for a moment at the request of the President of the Senate in order that certain business might be laid before the Senate. I suppose on the disposition of that business the question recurs on the motion of the Senator from Connecticut. I ask the Chair if that is not so?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair so understood.

Mr. WASHBURN. I understood the Senator from Connecticut to withdraw his motion.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I did not so understand.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair understood the Senator from Connecticut to withdraw the motion for the purpose stated by the Senator from Colorado.

Mr. WOLCOTT. And that business having been completed, I submit that the question now is on the motion of the Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. WASHBURN. I understand the Senator from Connecticut did not withdraw his motion with any such intention.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I am asking what was the understanding of the Chair?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That was the understanding of the Chair.

Mr. HAWLEY. I think I did withdraw the motion. I understood there was some casual business to be transacted. I only wish the Senate to go into executive session before adjourning.

Mr. WASHBURN. That we can do without difficulty. There is an unusually full Senate now present, and it seems to me that this is a good opportunity to proceed, if there is to be further discussion of the bill, and, if not, that we should proceed to vote on the bill and amendments, as we shall adjourn over for two days and a holiday recess is proposed. It seems to me that no more time should be lost in connection with the consideration of this bill.

Mr. WHITE. The Senator from New York [Mr. HISCOCK], who was in the Chamber a few moments ago, told me that he desired to speak on the bill. I desire to reply to the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE], but I do not wish to do so until I have an opportunity to see his remarks in the RECORD. I understand that there are other Senators who desire to speak on the bill, and therefore I object to a motion fixing a time for the vote. If I am obliged to, of course, in the unprepared state in which I am, I shall take the floor now in reply to the Senator from Mississippi; but I say that I am anxious to examine his remarks critically in the RECORD, where they have not yet appeared.

Mr. PALMER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Louisiana yield to the Senator from Illinois?

Mr. WHITE. Certainly.

Mr. PALMER. I shall ask the Senate, before the final vote is taken, to listen to me for a very short time on the pending bill.

Mr. WASHBURN. If Senators who desire to speak will agree upon some time next week when we shall vote on the bill and amendments I shall have no objection.

Mr. HARRIS. No time can be agreed upon to-day for this week or next week at which the vote shall be taken.

Mr. WASHBURN. I suppose that some time in the future may be agreed upon.

Mr. HARRIS. At some time in the future, I take it for granted, the vote will be taken; but the time when it shall be taken can not be agreed upon to-day.

Mr. WASHBURN. Of course not, except by unanimous consent. I understand that.

Mr. HARRIS. Of course that can not be obtained.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, can not a vote of the Senate be taken and a day designated notwithstanding one objection? A majority of the Senate can settle any question, it seems to me. If the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WASHBURN] desires to make a test, I submit he has the right to do it notwithstanding the objection. There is no rule against that of which I have knowledge.

Mr. VILAS. I desire to say that at some time before the vote is taken I shall ask the indulgence of the Senate to make some observations in respect to the bill.

Mr. HARRIS. I shall want ten minutes myself.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Pending this discussion, I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Colorado, that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. WASHBURN. As no other Senator seems prepared to go on with the discussion, I shall interpose no objection to the motion of the Senator from Colorado.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Debate is not in order. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Colorado [Mr. WOLCOTT].

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After ten minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 3 o'clock and 40 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until Monday, December 19, 1892, at 12 o'clock m.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate December 15, 1892.

PENSION AGENT.

Charles A. Orr, of Buffalo, N. Y., to be pension agent at Buffalo, N. Y., vice Jacob Schenkelberger, term expired.

POSTMASTERS.

James W. Garrison, to be postmaster at Sac City, in the county of Sac and State of Iowa, in the place of James N. Miller, resigned.

Mrs. Elizabeth W. Smart, to be postmaster at Merrimac, in the county of Essex and State of Massachusetts, in the place of Alexander Smart, deceased.

Richard H. Fesperman, to be postmaster at Seneca, in the county of Newton and State of Missouri, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after April 1, 1892.

Mrs. Jennie T. Mister, to be postmaster at Grenada, in the county of Grenada and State of Mississippi, in the place of Matthew K. Mister, deceased.

Michael J. Mulrihill, to be postmaster at Vicksburg, in the county of Warren and State of Mississippi, in the place of William Groome, whose commission expired February 28, 1891; James Hill, who was appointed by the President April 2, 1891, and subsequently nominated to the Senate, not having been confirmed.

Hiram Lewis, to be postmaster at Genoa, in the county of Nance and State of Nebraska, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

Augusta B. Berard, to be postmaster at West Point, in the county of Orange and State of New York, in the place of Augusta B. Berard, whose commission expires December 19, 1892.

Frank P. Emmons, to be postmaster at Manlius, in the county of Onondaga and State of New York, the appointment of a postmaster for the said office having, by law, become vested in the President on and after October 1, 1892.

William H. Merten, to be postmaster at Guthrie, in the county of Logan and Territory of Oklahoma, in the place of Dennis T. Flynn, resigned.

John B. Tobias, to be postmaster at Everett, in the county of Bedford and State of Pennsylvania, in the place of Simon States, whose commission expired August 22, 1892.

McDonald Campbell, to be postmaster at Jefferson, in the county of Marion and State of Texas, in the place of Levin Perry, whose commission expired July 18, 1892.

William Drawe, to be postmaster at Cuero, in the county of De Witt and State of Texas, in the place of John C. Woodworth, whose commission expired June 25, 1892.

Edward A. Robertson, to be postmaster at Taylor, in the county of Williamson and State of Texas, in the place of John H. Hutchinson, deceased.

William F. Washburn, to be postmaster at Sturgeon Bay, in the county of Door and State of Wisconsin, in the place of Joseph Harris, jr., removed.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate, December 15, 1892.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSIONER.

James W. McDill, of Iowa, to be an Interstate Commerce Commissioner.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE ARMY.

Medical Department.

To be assistant surgeons with the rank of first lieutenant.
Henry R. Stiles, of Connecticut.
Harry M. Hallock, of New Jersey.
George J. Newgarden, of Pennsylvania.
Paul F. Straub, of Iowa.

PROMOTIONS IN THE ARMY.

Medical Department.

Lieut. Col. Charles H. Alden, deputy surgeon-general, to be assistant surgeon-general, with the rank of colonel.

Maj. Albert Hartsuff, deputy surgeon-general, to be assistant surgeon-general, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Quartermaster's Department.

Lieut. Col. John G. Chandler, deputy quartermaster-general, to be assistant quartermaster-general, with the rank of colonel.

Maj. James G. C. Lee, quartermaster, to be deputy quartermaster-general, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Capt. Charles F. Humphrey, assistant quartermaster, to be quartermaster with the rank of major.

Medical Department.

Capt. Louis M. Maus, assistant surgeon, to be surgeon with the rank of major.

To be professor at the Military Academy.

Capt. Edward E. Wood, Eighth Cavalry, to be professor of modern languages.

Cavalry arm.

Second Lieut. George W. Kirkpatrick, Tenth Infantry, to be second lieutenant.

Second Lieut. Gordon Voorhies, Twenth-fifth Infantry, to be second lieutenant.

First Sergt. Cornelius C. Smith, Troop K, Sixth Cavalry, to be second lieutentant.

Corpl. Joseph E. Cusack, Troop C, Fifth Cavalry, to be second lieutenant.

Infantry arm.

Sergt. Maj. James Ronayne, Tenth Infantry, to be second lieutenant.

Sergt. William J. Lutz, Battery F, First Artillery, to be second lieutenant.

Sergt. Henry L. Kinnison, Company B, Seventh Infantry, to be second lieutenant.

Sergt. Warren B. Fox, Company A, Twentieth Infantry, to be second lieutenant.

Sergt. Guy G. Palmer, Company H, Eighth Infantry, to be second lieutenant.

Corpl. Williamson Markland, Company B, Ninth Infantry, to be second lieutenant.

Corps of Engineers.

Capt. Clinton B. Sears, to be major.
First Lieut. John Millis, to be captain.
First Lieut. John Biddle, to be captain.
Second Lieut. James J. Meyler, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. Charles H. McKinstry, to be first lieutenant.

Cavalry arm.

Lieut. Col. Anson Mills, Fourth Cavalry, to be colonel.

Maj. Samuel B. M. Young, Third Cavalry, to be lieutenant-colonel.

Maj. George A. Purington, Third Cavalry, to be lieutenant-colonel.

Capt. Henry W. Wessells, jr., Third Cavalry, to be major.
Capt. Alexander S. B. Keyes, Tenth Cavalry, to be major.
First Lieut. James N. Allison, Second Cavalry, to be captain.
First Lieut. William D. Beach, Third Cavalry, to be captain.
First Lieut. William A. Shunk, Eighth Cavalry, to be captain.
First Lieut. George H. Evans, Tenth Cavalry, to be captain.
Second Lieut. Floyd W. Harris, Fourth Cavalry, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. John T. Nance, Second Cavalry, to be first lieutenant.

Second Lieut. Charles C. Walcutt, jr., Eighth Cavalry, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. William H. Bean, Second Cavalry, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. John J. Pershing, Sixth Cavalry, to be first lieutenant.

Artillery arm.

Maj. Alexander C. M. Pennington, Fourth Artillery, to be lieutenant-colonel.
Capt. George B. Rodney, Fourth Artillery, to be major.
First Lieut. Elbridge R. Hills, Fifth Artillery, to be captain.
First Lieut. James E. Eastman, Second Artillery, to be captain.
First Lieut. Sydney W. Taylor, Fourth Artillery, to be captain.
Second Lieut. John A. Towers, First Artillery, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. Lucien G. Berry, Fourth Artillery, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. John E. McMahon, Fourth Artillery, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. Avery D. Andrews, Fifth Artillery, to be first lieutenant.

Infantry arm.

Lieut. Col. Simon Snyder, Tenth Infantry, to be colonel.
Major Edgar R. Kellogg, Eighth Infantry, to be lieutenant-colonel.
Major Edward W. Whittemore, Tenth Infantry, to be lieutenant-colonel.
Capt. Francis E. Lacey, Tenth Infantry, to be major.
Capt. Augustus H. Bainbridge, Fourteenth Infantry, to be major.
First Lieut. John J. O'Brien, regimental quartermaster, Fourth Infantry, to be captain.
First Lieut. William Paulding, Tenth Infantry, to be captain.
First Lieut. George Andrews, Twenty-fifth Infantry, to be captain.
First Lieut. George T. T. Patterson, Fourteenth Infantry, to be captain.
First Lieut. Lorenzo W. Cooke, Third Infantry, to be captain.
First Lieut Oliver B. Warwick, Eighteenth Infantry, to be captain.
First Lieut. Theodore H. Eckerson, Nineteenth Infantry, to be captain.
Second Lieut. Benjamin A. Poore, Twelfth Infantry, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. Edward W. McCaskey, Twenty-first Infantry, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. Chauncey B. Baker, Seventh Infantry, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. James H. McRae, Third Infantry, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. Amos B. Shattuck, Sixth Infantry, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. William M. Swaine, Twenty-second Infantry, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. Walter H. Gordon, Twelfth Infantry, to be first lieutenant.
Second Lieut. James L. Druien, Seventeenth Infantry, to be first lieutenant.

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY.

Assistant Engineer Edward H. Scribner, to be a passed assistant engineer in the Navy.
Assistant Engineer Andrew M. Hunt, to be a passed assistant engineer in the Navy.
Assistant Engineer Frank M. Bennett, to be a passed assistant engineer in the Navy.
Passed Assistant Engineer Robert W. Mulligan, to be a chief engineer in the Navy.
Passed Assistant Engineer George W. Baird, to be a chief engineer in the Navy.
Passed Assistant Engineer Richard Inch, to be a chief engineer in the Navy.
Passed Assistant Engineer Harrie Webster, to be a chief engineer in the Navy.
First Lieut. Otway C. Berryman, United States Marine Corps, to be a captain.
Second Lieut. Bertram S. Newmann, United States Marine Corps, to be a first lieutenant.
Capt. Robert L. Meade, United States Marine Corps, to be a major in that Corps.
First Lieut. William F. Spicer, United States Marine Corps, to be a captain.
Second Lieut. Charles G. Long, United States Marine Corps, to be a first lieutenant.
Passed Assistant Surgeon William R. Du Bose, to be a surgeon.
John Miller Moore, a resident of South Carolina, to be an assistant surgeon.
Lieut. (junior grade) Thomas M. Brumby, to be a lieutenant.
Lieut. Commander Andrew J. Iverson, to be a commander.
Lieut. William H. Reeder, to be a lieutenant-commander.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, December 15, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

DEFICIENCIES IN THE POSTAL SERVICE.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting estimate of deficiencies in the appropriations on account of the postal service; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

CLAIMS ALLOWED BY THE ACCOUNTING OFFICERS OF THE TREASURY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a list of the claims allowed by the accounting officers of the Treasury for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

ELECTORAL VOTE OF DELAWARE.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a certificate, forwarded by the Secretary of State, showing the ascertainment of the electoral vote in the State of Delaware; which was laid on the table.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted to Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi, for two days, on account of important business.

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.

Mr. SPRINGER. Mr. Speaker, the Committee on Ways and Means have requested me to submit the following resolution, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

House Resolution 170.

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That when the two Houses adjourn on Thursday, December 22, they shall stand adjourned until Wednesday, January 4, 1893.

The resolution was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. SPRINGER, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the concurrent resolution was passed was laid on the table.

EXPENSES INCURRED BY NEBRASKA IN REPELLING THREATENED INDIAN INVASION.

Mr. BRYAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The SPEAKER. The bill will be read, after which the Chair will ask if there be objection.

The bill was read, as follows:

A bill (S. 2476) to reimburse the State of Nebraska the expenses incurred by that State in repelling a threatened invasion and raid by the Sioux in 1890 and 1891.

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby directed, through the proper accounting officers of the Treasury, to audit and pay the actual and necessary expenses incurred by and for the National Guard of the State of Nebraska, called into the service of that State by Governor Thayer in the year 1890 and 1891, to repel a threatened invasion and raid, then imminent, by the Sioux, on presentation by the governor or other proper authorities of said State of statements of the actual and necessary expenses incurred by said State for said purpose, accompanied, so far as possible, with the proper vouchers and satisfactory proof of the correctness thereof; and that the sum of $42,000 be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to carry out the provisions of this act: Provided, That the pay and allowances to the officers and enlisted men of said National Guard shall not exceed the pay and allowances of the Army of the United States.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this bill?

Mr. FITHIAN. I would like to have the bill explained.

Mr. BRYAN. About two years ago there was an Indian outbreak in Southern Dakota and on the northern borders of Nebraska. The State militia was called out to assist in suppressing the outbreak, and this is to refund the amount that was advanced by the State for that purpose. The bill has already passed the Senate and has been unanimously reported by the Committee on Claims. The money is to be paid only upon vouchers to be furnished to the Treasury Department.

Mr. FITHIAN. What is the amount that the State paid out?

Mr. BRYAN. About $42,000.
Mr. FITHIAN. How much does the bill carry?
Mr. BRYAN. Forty-two thousand dollars.
Mr. FITHIAN. Do you know how much the State actually paid?
Mr. BRYAN. The State appropriated $38,000, but that did not quite cover the amount.
Mr. FITHIAN. Then why do you want to appropriate $42,000?
Mr. BRYAN. Because the $38,000 was not sufficient. The State advanced that much by an appropriation, but it was not enough. The Adjutant-General has prepared the vouchers, and the money can only be drawn on vouchers furnished to the Treasury.
Mr. FITHIAN. Has there been a report from a committee of the House?
Mr. BRYAN. Yes, sir. Here is the report. There is no question at all about the merits of the bill.
Mr. KILGORE. Will the gentleman from Nebraska permit me to ask him a question before unanimous consent is given?
Mr. BRYAN. Certainly.
Mr. KILGORE. Is it not a fact that these Indians have a large fund in the hands of the Government out of which they are supported?
Mr. BRYAN. I do not know as to that.
Mr. KILGORE. There is no provision in this bill to tax that fund with this amount?
Mr. BRYAN. No, sir.
Mr. KILGORE. Do you not think there ought to be?
Mr. BRYAN. I do not think so. This comes under the same head as the expenses of the War Department incurred in putting down Indian outbreaks.
Mr. KILGORE. But these Indians were on a reservation and they revolted and committed these depredations, and if they have got this fund I think they ought to be made pay for what they have done.
Mr. BRYAN. That may be true, but I think the Indians have not been taxed with the expenses of the Federal Government in the suppression of Indian outbreaks.
Mr. PICKLER. The States could not get the money out of the Indians, anyway.
Mr. BRYAN. No; the State has nothing to do with the question raised by the gentleman from Texas.
Mr. KILGORE. But the State has paid the bill, it seems.
Mr. BRYAN. The State simply advanced the money for the General Government.
The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this bill?
Mr. BELTZHOOVER. Mr. Speaker, I think we had better have the regular order.
The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Pennsylvania calls for the regular order, which is equivalent to an objection.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. CATCHINGS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to present a report from the Committee on Rules for present consideration.
The report was read, as follows:

The Committee on Rules, to whom were referred resolutions Nos. 70, 112, 80, and 65, report the same back with the accompanying resolutions as a substitute therefor, with the recommendation that the said substitute be adopted:
Resolved, That Thursday, the 15th instant, beginning after the second morning hour, be set apart for the consideration of such business as may be called up by the Committee on Indian Affairs.
Resolved, That Saturday, the 17th instant, beginning after the second morning hour, be set apart for the consideration of Senate bill (S. 1391) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to settle the account stated between the General Government and the State of Florida, etc.
Resolved, That Tuesday, the 20th instant, commencing after the second morning hour, be set apart for the consideration of such business as may be called up by the Committee on Public Lands.
Resolved, That Wednesday, the 21st instant, beginning after the second morning hour, be set apart for the consideration of such business as may be called up by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.
Nothing in this order to interfere with the right to consider revenue and appropriation bills.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, this report embraces a number of propositions. I shall call for a division of the question on the resolution with reference to the account of the State of Florida. I desire a separate vote on that if the question is divisible.
The SPEAKER. The Chair thinks the report may be divided.
Mr. REED. It seems to me the proper way to get at that would be by amendment.
The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New Jersey, as the Chair understands, asks for a separate vote on the proposition he has indicated.
Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I do.
Mr. HOLMAN. These propositions are, I believe, divisible in such a way as to have a separate vote on each; are they not?
The SPEAKER. They are.
Mr. HOLMAN. I call for a division of the question in that way.
The SPEAKER. A division of the question is called for, and the question will first be taken on the first resolution, which the Clerk will read.
The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That Thursday, the 15th instant, beginning immediately after the second morning hour, be set apart for the consideration of such business as may be called up by the Committee on Indian Affairs.

The resolution was agreed to.
The next resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That Saturday, the 17th instant, beginning after the second morning hour, be set apart for the consideration of Senate bill No. 1391, to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to settle the account stated between the General Government and the State of Florida, etc.

Mr. DINGLEY. Before the question on this resolution is put I would like the gentleman from Mississippi to explain the nature of this claim.
Mr. CATCHINGS. My friend from Maine I think must fully understand what this claim of the State of Florida is. It is hardly necessary for me to go into that at all.
Mr. DINGLEY. I do not understand it.
Mr. CATCHINGS. It has been repeatedly considered by previous Congresses. The resolution simply provides for its consideration by the House on the day named.
Mr. DINGLEY. Is it a claim arising out of the Indian war?
Mr. CATCHINGS. Yes, sir. As I have just stated, it has been repeatedly considered heretofore. At times the measure has been passed by the House and at times by the Senate.
The SPEAKER (having put the question). The ayes seem to have it.
Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. I call for a division.
The question being again taken, there were—ayes 70, noes 9.
So the resolution was agreed to.
The next resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That Tuesday, the 20th instant, beginning after the second morning hour, be set apart for the considerati on of such business as may be called up by the Committee on Public Lands.

The resolution was adopted.
The next resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That Wednesday, the 21st instant, beginning after the second morning hour, be set apart for the consideration of such business as may be called up by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce; nothing in this order to interfere with the right to consider revenue and appropriation bills.

The SPEAKER (having put the question). The ayes seem to have it.
Mr. COCKRAN. I call for a division.
The question being again taken, there were—ayes 99, noes 6.
Mr. COCKRAN. No quorum.
Tellers were ordered; and Mr. COCKRAN and Mr. CATCHINGS were appointed.
Mr. COCKRAN (before the count by tellers was concluded). Mr. Speaker, in view of explanations made to me by the chairman of the committee I withdraw the point of no quorum.
The SPEAKER. The point of no quorum being withdrawn, the resolution is agreed to.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

The SPEAKER. A communication from the Secretary of the Treasury in reference to the purchase of Virginia military land-warrants was erroneously referred to the Committee on Military Affairs. That reference will be corrected, if there be no objection, and the communication will be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.
There was no objection, and it was ordered accordingly.

PAY OF CONGRESSIONAL EMPLOYÉS FOR THE MONTH OF DECEMBER.

Mr. MCMILLIN. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the joint resolution which I send to the desk.
The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives, etc., That the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives be, and they are hereby, authorized and instructed to pay the officers and employés of the Senate and House of Representatives, including the Capitol police, their respective salaries for the month of December, 1892, on the 21st day of said month.

Mr. MCMILLIN. This resolution is in the customary form. It does not provide for any increased expenditure, but simply contemplates, in view of the holidays, paying to Congressional employés their salaries for the present month at an earlier day than the close of the month.
There being no objection, the House proceeded to consider the joint resolution (H. Res. 170) to pay the officers and employés of the Senate and House of Representatives their respective salaries for December, 1892, on the 21st day of said month; which was read three times, and passed.

PROPOSED ADJOURNMENT TO SATURDAY.

Mr. WILLIAM A. STONE. I offer the resolution which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That when the House adjourns to-day it shall be until Saturday, December 17, 1892, at 12 o'clock.

The question being taken, the resolution was rejected.

REFERENCE OF THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Mr. McMILLIN. I am instructed by the Committee on Ways and Means to report the resolution which I send to the desk relative to distributing to the appropriate committees the various subjects embraced in the President's message.

The SPEAKER. The resolution will be read.

Mr. McMILLIN. I do not think that the reading is necessary at this time unless some gentleman demands it, as it is the purpose of the committee to have the resolution referred to the Committee of the Whole, to which the message has been referred, and to ask the consideration of the resolution in Committee of the Whole at once.

The SPEAKER. In the absence of objection, the resolution will be referred to the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, and ordered to be printed.

There was no objection, and it was ordered accordingly.

Mr. McMILLIN. I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, for the consideration of the resolution just reported, for the distribution of the President's message.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, Mr. DOCKERY in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The House is now in Committee of the Whole to consider the resolution reported from the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. McMILLIN. I ask that the resolution be read, Mr. Chairman.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That so much of the annual message of the President of the United States to the two Houses of Congress at the present session as relates to our foreign relations, together with the accompanying correspondence and documents, to the International Monetary Conference, to the controversy as to tolls on the Welland Canal, and to the improvement of the harbor of Pearl River, in the Hawaiian Islands, be referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

That so much as relates to the national finances, the public debt, and the public revenues, to treaties with foreign countries relating to revenue questions, and to the wants and conditions of the Treasury, be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

That so much as relates to the appropriation of the public revenue for the support of the Government, as herein provided, namely, for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses, for sundry civil expenses, for fortifications and coast defenses, for pensions, for the District of Columbia, and for all deficiencies, be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

That so much as relates to the judiciary of the United States, to international copyright, to the administration of justice, and the organization of courts, be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

That so much as relates to the mints of the United States and to the purchase and coinage of gold and silver bullion be referred to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

That so much as relates to the merchant marine and fisheries and to tonnage dues be referred to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

That so much as relates to the commerce of the United States, domestic and foreign; intercolonial railways, and to the Nicaragua Canal, be referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

That so much as relates to agriculture and forestry, to the destruction and eradication of diseases of domestic animals, and to the inspection of cattle and pork products intended for shipment to foreign countries, be referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

That so much as relates to the military establishment be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

That so much as relates to the naval establishment and to the construction of additional vessels for the Navy be referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

That so much as relates to the post-offices and post-roads, and to the carrying of the foreign mails, be referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

That so much as relates to the public domain be referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

That so much as relates to the relations of the United States with the Indian tribes be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

That so much as relates to the civil service be referred to the Committee on Civil Service.

That so much as relates to pensions for service in the civil war be referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

That so much as relates to Federal elections be referred to the Committee on the Election of the President and Vice-President and Representatives in Congress.

That so much as relates to the manufacturing industries of the United States be referred to the Committee on Manufactures.

That so much as relates to the District of Columbia, other than appropriations therefor, be referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

That so much as relates to the Pacific railroads be referred to the Committee on the Pacific Railroads.

That so much as relates to the Territories be referred to the Committee on the Territories.

That so much as relates to the census be referred to the Committee on the Eleventh Census.

That so much as relates to the protection of life on railways be referred to the Committee on Railways and Canals.

That so much as relates to quarantine regulations and foreign immigration be referred to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Mr. McMILLIN. This provides for the distribution that is usually made of the various matters treated of in the message of the President; and unless some gentleman wishes to occupy time in discussion I will ask the committee to rise and report the resolution favorably to the House.

The motion of Mr. McMILLIN was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. DOCKERY reported that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, having had under consideration the resolution providing for the distribution of the President's message to the committees of the House, had directed him to report the same with favorable recommendation.

Mr. McMILLIN. I ask the previous question on the adoption of the resolution.

The previous question was ordered, under the operation of which the resolution was adopted.

On motion of Mr. McMILLIN, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

COMMON CARRIERS.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will call the standing and select committees for reports.

The committees were called at length, no reports being submitted.

The SPEAKER. The morning hour begins at 12 o'clock and 35 minutes p. m., and the Clerk will report the title of the bill coming over from yesterday.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 1976) relating to contracts of common carriers, and to certain obligations, duties, and rights in connection with the carriage of property.

Mr. LIND. Mr. Speaker, I desire to yield ten minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. COOMBS].

Mr. COOMBS. Mr. Speaker, the remarks that I make upon this bill will be confined to that portion of the question which relates to ocean carriers, or the bills of lading which are issued by them to shippers of merchandise. I shall not refer to the first section of the bill which relates to land carriers, for the reason that I am not as familiar with that branch of the subject as others who are present.

Mr. LIND. If the gentleman will permit me, this bill as amended by the committee relates only to vessels engaged in foreign trade.

Mr. COOMBS. Everyone engaged in foreign commerce is aware of the important part that bills of lading play in all business operations.

When the merchant has shipped his goods to a foreign port he receives from the agent of the vessel a bill of lading. That document is his evidence of ownership, and his only evidence. He uses it as a basis of his exchange, attached to his bills of exchange. It serves as a guarantee of their payment. It passes from hand to hand as the representative of property.

In olden times they were simple in form and easily understood. The shipper and the shipowner alike understood that the property having been received on board was to be delivered at the foreign port in like good order and condition, with certain well understood exceptions which the shipper could cover at his underwriter's. Within the last few years these exceptions have been increased in number until to-day a modern bill of lading is so complicated that the ordinary merchant can not construe it, and when it is construed he finds that he is virtually without any security.

This evil has grown to such proportions that there are loud complaints from shippers on both sides of the ocean. I have had communications from English shippers and bankers, as well as from bankers in our own country, praying that some action may be taken by Congress whereby a bill of lading shall entail some responsibility on the part of the vessel. I will point to one of the exceptions now embodied in many, if not all of the modern bills, that in which they disclaim any responsibility for damage arising from defective stowage of cargo. The shipper does not stow the cargo or have anything to do with it—neither as to the manner of stowing it, or its position in the vessel, he can not influence or direct it, but it is done by the employé of the owner of the vessel, and he certainly should shoulder the responsibility and not evade it by forcing the acceptance of a bill of lading whereby he is relieved of penalty for any error that he may make.

I find in carefully reading over this bill that the list of exceptions which the carrier is allowed to make on the bill of lading that he can issue are ample, and cover everything that should be excepted. These exceptions being plain and well understood can be covered by the shipper at his underwriters, so when he delivers his bill of lading or insurance policy to his bankers he has made a complete and satisfactory conveyance, and is relieved of responsibility.

There is one provision which shipowners have of late insisted upon inserting in their bills of lading that is very unjust and should appeal to every American citizen, namely, they have found some difficulty in construing their clauses in the courts of this country and have added another whereby they provide that any claim under the instrument must be prosecuted before English courts. We certainly must rebel against this overriding of our laws.

I am convinced, Mr. Speaker, that this bill does not do any injustice to shipowners, it simply recalls them to their old-time responsibility, while to the shipper and banker it brings a needed relief. I am sure, sir, that all interests will be considered by the passage of this bill.

Mr. LIND. Mr. Speaker, I yield ten minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. HARTER].

Mr. HARTER. Mr. Speaker, the bill before the House is in no sense a partisan measure, nor does it carry any appropriation with it. It is a measure which deprives nobody of any right, but which will by its operation deprive some foreign steamship companies of certain privileges which for many years they have exercised, to the great disadvantage of American commerce. That is all there is in it. It does not affect one one-hundredth of 1 per cent of American shipping. Sailing vessels and craft of that kind are always willing to give any reasonable form of bill of lading which the consignor may demand; but, on the contrary, the great steamship companies, almost universally controlled by Englishmen, invariably force the consignor to take the form of bill of lading which they desire; and as time is the great element in shipment, we are compelled to accept what they give us or ship by slower lines, which means the loss of part of our foreign customers.

This is a bill which wrongs nobody, but which conserves the rights, not only of the millers here, but, through the millers, the interests of all of the farmers in the country; and it goes much farther than the millers. It affects every manufacturer in America who is seeking a foreign market, and through the manufacturer it affects those who work for him and those who supply him with his raw material. It would be a difficult thing indeed to discover where in the whole of the United States there is a single important element which is not interested in the passage of this bill.

If it only affected the right of a solitary American citizen it would be a proper thing to pass it; but as it affects the rights of sixty-three millions of American citizens, there are no less than sixty-three millions of reasons why this bill ought to become law, and every one a good and sufficient reason, too.

Those living in Europe who receive their goods from us over these steamship lines, and who are the coadjutors, the helpers, and aids of our American export trade, are a unit with us. The Boards of Trade of Glasgow, the Chambers of Commerce of London and Liverpool, unite with the American shipper and exporter in the demand that this bill shall become law; and it would have long ago become the law in Great Britain had it not been for the opposition sitting on the benches of Parliament, an opposition controlled by British manufacturers, by British millers, and by British farmers, who look with jealousy upon every encroachment of America upon their market.

Mr. DINGLEY. That is a good protection speech.

Mr. HARTER. It is an excellent protection speech for the American farmer, the American manufacturer, and the American merchant, because it gives him bona fide protection without taxing any American or foreign interest either to the extent of a penny. The trouble is simply this: most of these bills of lading expressly provide that they shall be interpreted, if cases are brought, under the English law; and under such circumstances the American shipper is helpless, and the man who stands on this floor, and who is in favor of his country where his country is right, will have to rack his brain a long while before he can find a single reason, however weak, for opposing this bill.

And at this time, gentlemen, when gold is going out of the country by every steamer, and every man here engaged in commercial life is shaking in his boots, so to speak, because he hears that $2,900,000 of gold went to-day and another million goes to-morrow, and so (etc.) on, no delay should be allowed in altering bills of lading so as to insure larger exports of our productions. Immediate action is necessary. If you make it difficult for foreign consignees to secure the goods that we ship them, in good order, they in turn will prefer to buy over there. They will naturally buy of almost any foreign country rather than of the American producer. The existence of the present unreasonable form of bill of lading, therefore, is a continual stab at American interests, and we are asking this legislation for the whole people of the country as well as for those people in Europe who are friendly to American interests. As we are asking no appropriation and no special privileges, but simply and only the rights guaranteed to all domestic commerce by our American common law, it seems to me opposition to the bill will come with very poor grace from either side of this House. A measure at once so reasonable, so necessary, so important as this should receive every vote on this floor.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I understood the gentleman to say that these onerous provisions which he mentioned tend to the purchase of certain kinds of goods elsewhere than at home?

Mr. HARTER. You entirely misunderstood me. I said that unless there was such security afforded in the bills of lading as would be an inducement for our foreign customer to buy, he ceases to buy American goods, and purchases foreign goods in preference to ours.

Mr. BOUTELLE. You think it is desirable that there should be some inducement for foreign purchasers of our goods?

Mr. HARTER. I do.

Mr. BOUTELLE. How is that with our own citizens?

Mr. HARTER. I think that when our citizens are able to buy as well here as elsewhere that they should and will buy here instead of buying in the foreign market. But we must pass no law that forces an American citizen to buy in any particular market.

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is exactly the point I was making.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. How does that affect American vessels engaged in the foreign trade?

Mr. HARTER. We have no American vessels that it affects. It affects the steamship lines altogether. So far as the American vessels are concerned you can go to the American shipowners, that is, the owners of any of the wooden vessels made in the State which my friend from Maine represents, and dictate a bill of lading that you want him to sign. American shipping interests are not unfavorably affected, for they are already under control of one common law which we very properly seek to extend to foreign shipping. It is the great British shipping interests which will be affected. Let me make another suggestion. When it comes to giving British merchants a bill of lading they frequently give him a cheaper and more just bill of lading.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I want to ask the gentleman about one other matter. I see it stated, either in one section of the bill or in the report—and I am not sure whether it is incorporated in the bill, but presume it is—a complaint is made that the bills of lading provides that the vessel shall not be liable "for the difference between the qualities, marks, or brands of flour, or other goods shipped than those of the goods actually found to be on board of the steamer." Now, does the gentleman propose by this bill to prohibit vessel-owners from providing that they shall not be held responsible for the quality of the goods that are inclosed in packages?

Mr. HARTER. Oh, no.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Because that has been the universal custom. When the common carrier takes a package, he does not assume any responsibility for the character of the goods.

Mr. HARTER. This is what I mean to say: That if the gentleman from Maine should ship ottar of roses to Liverpool, this bill would prevent them from turning over phosphate as a fulfillment of the contract.

Mr. BOUTELLE. The law is, that if they are put in inclosed packages the vessel shall be made to assume the responsibility that that package shall be delivered, and delivered unbroken.

Mr. WISE. That is exactly what this does.

Mr. LIND. I demand the previous question on the bill and pending amendments.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I submit that the bill has not been read by sections.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman from New Jersey that the bill is in the House, and not in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. DINGLEY. It carries no appropriation.

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I would like to submit a parliamentary inquiry. When does this hour expire?

The SPEAKER. The hour expires at 1 o'clock and 35 minutes, the Chair is informed.

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. I should like to say something about the provisions of this bill.

Mr. LIND. We must finish this bill in the hour.

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. Very well.

Mr. LIND. Mr. Speaker, I must insist upon the motion.

The question was taken, and the previous question was ordered; and under the operation thereof the amendments recommended by the committee were agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I understand the gentleman who has charge of the bill has no objection to my offering an amendment by which the bill shall be limited simply to vessels propelled wholly or in part by steam.

The SPEAKER. That can only be done by unanimous consent.

Mr. COCKRAN. Just one moment, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New Jersey asks unanimous consent to offer an amendment.

Mr. COCKRAN and Mr. PATTERSON of Tennessee. I object.

The SPEAKER. Of course, the previous question having been ordered, an amendment can not be offered except by unanimous consent.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. LIND, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

Mr. LIND. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that members of the committee may be permitted to print remarks upon this bill in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Minnesota asks unanimous consent that members of the committee may be allowed to print remarks on this bill in the RECORD. Is there objection?

Mr. BURROWS. Mr. Speaker, I do not think that ought to be done.

Mr. LIND. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. O'NEILL] desired to speak when the previous question was moved. I ask unanimous consent that he be permitted to print remarks on the bill?

Mr. O'NEILL of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Minnesota (my colleague on the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce) need not on my account get the leave of the House for members to print such remarks upon the bill as they may desire to present. That is not my way of doing, Mr. Speaker. When I present my views I choose to do it by word of mouth. And on this occasion I only wished to state my doubts, I differing from my colleague on the committee as to the propriety of such legislation, the enactment of this law being in my opinion a restriction upon shipping and commercial transactions which may be regretted. Other legislation upon bills of lading more against business interests may follow this;

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. MCCOOK, its Secretary, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment the bill (H. R. 6024) for the relief of William H. Taylor.

It also announced that the Senate had passed the following concurrent resolutions:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That there be printed 20,000 copies of the Statistical Abstract of the United States for the year 1892, prepared by the Bureau of Statistics, Treasury Department; 6,000 copies for the use of the members of the Senate, 12,000 copies for the use of the members of the House of Representatives, and 2,000 for the use of the Bureau of Statistics, Treasury Department.

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the Public Printer be, and he is hereby, directed to print, with a title page, 12,000 additional copies of the report of the immigrant commissioner, H. J. Schulteis, contained in part 1, House Executive Document No. 235, first session Fifty-second Congress, pages 263 to 323, inclusive; 2,000 to be for the use of the Treasury Department, 2,000 for the use of the House Committee on Immigration, 2,000 for the use of the Senate Committee on Immigration, 2,000 for the use of the Senate, and 4,000 for the use of the House.

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That 23,000 copies of the ninth annual report of the United States Civil Service Commission, with appendices, be printed; of which 1,000 copies shall be for the use of the Senate, 2,000 copies for the use of the House of Representatives, and 20,000 copies for the use of the United States Civil Service Commission.

It also announced that the Senate had agreed to the resolution relative to printing copies of eulogies delivered in Congress upon the Hon. Francis B. Spinola, late a Representative from the State of New York.

It also announced that the Senate had agreed to the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2093) to provide for the disposal of certain abandoned military reservations in the State of Wyoming.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

Mr. SCOTT, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that they had examined and found truly enrolled bills of the following titles; when the Speaker signed the same:

A bill (S. 539) to amend and enlarge the act approved June 18, 1878, entitled "An act to provide for the distribution of the awards made under the convention between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico, concluded on the 4th day of July, 1868;

A bill (S. 606) to amend and enlarge the act approved June 18, 1878, entitled "An act to provide for the distribution of the awards made under the convention between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico, concluded on the 4th day of July, 1868;" and

A bill (S. 2093) to provide for the disposal of certain abandoned military reservations in the State of Wyoming.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Speaker, I demand the regular order.

The SPEAKER. The regular call rests with the Committee on Indian Affairs. One or two other committees have been passed over without prejudice, and unless some of them desire to occupy the time, the Chair will call the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Speaker, I understood that some of the other committees that have been passed over would occupy the balance of this morning hour. If none of them desire to do so, I do not care to enter upon the fragment of the hour that remains, and therefore I will ask unanimous consent that the morning hour be considered as exhausted.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arkansas?

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, Mr. LAGAN obtained indefinite leave of absence, on account of sickness in his family.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the special order.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That Thursday, the 15th instant, beginning after the second morning hour, be set apart for the consideration of such business as may be called up by the Committee on Indian Affairs.

REFUND OF APPROPRIATION TO CHOCTAWS AND CHICKASAWS.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Speaker, I am directed by the committee to call up for present consideration the joint resolution (H. Res. 166) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to cover back into the Treasury $48,800 of the appropriation to Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians.

The joint resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, directed to retain and cover back into the Treasury $48,800 of the appropriation made by Congress to pay the Choctaw and Chickasaw tribes of Indians for their interest in lands of the Cheyenne and Arapaho Reservation, dated March 3, 1891; which amount has been ascertained, by a recount of the allottees of said Cheyennes and Arapahoes, to be by that amount more than is due the said Choctaws and Chickasaws upon the purchase and settlement for their said interest.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and it was accordingly read the third time.

Mr. KILGORE. Mr. Speaker, never before within my knowledge has there been any disposition shown here to put any money back into the Treasury [laughter], and I would like to have this case explained by the gentleman from Arkansas.

Mr. PEEL. I supposed that the gentleman understood it.

Mr. KILGORE. How does it happen that there is this surplus?

Mr. PEEL. It occurred in this way: In making the appropriation to pay the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians for their interest in the lands of the Cheyennes and Arapahoes, which we desired for the purpose of opening them to settlement, the basis was obtained from the agent; but after the law was passed, it appeared that the delegates of the Choctaws and Chickasaws claimed that some persons living on the north bank of the Canadian River, not upon these lands, crossed over and took their allotments there.

The joint resolution was passed.

Mr. PEEL moved to reconsider the vote by which the joint resolution was passed, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

PAYMENT TO CHOCTAWS AND CHICKASAWS.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Speaker, I am instructed by the committee to ask for the present consideration of the House resolution which I send to the desk.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That for reasons set forth in the report of the Committee on Indian Affairs upon the President's message of February 17, 1892, upon the appropriation of March 3, 1891, for payment to the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations for their interest in the Cheyenne and Arapaho Reservation, submitted with this resolution, it is the opinion of the House of Representatives that there is no sufficient reason for interference in the due execution of the law referred to.

Mr. PEEL. Unless some gentleman desires to ask a question I do not think it necessary to say anything about the resolution. It passed the Senate at the last session after full debate.

The SPEAKER. Is this a Senate resolution?

Mr. PEEL. It is an exact copy of the Senate resolution.

Mr. MCMILLIN. Mr. Speaker, there was some confusion when the resolution was read, and I ask that the Clerk again report it.

The Clerk again read the resolution.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I raise the question of order, whether this resolution should not be first considered in Committee of the Whole. It applies to an appropriation already made, but it makes it effective.

Mr. PEEL. It is already effective.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will ask the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] to indicate how this resolution comes under the rule to which he refers.

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, the money has not been paid. It has been only appropriated, and this resolution makes the appropriation effectual by providing for the payment of the money. If the resolution is of any value whatever it is simply to make effectual an appropriation already made.

Mr. PEEL. It does not interfere with the appropriation at all. It simply lets it alone.

Mr. BLAND. Mr. Speaker, this is a matter affecting an appropriation of money from the Treasury, and also affecting the property of the Government, and therefore I think it comes under both clauses of the rule. As I understand the rule, every proposition in relation to the disposition of the property of the Government or making a charge upon the Treasury must receive its first consideration in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. BURROWS. But, Mr. Speaker, this resolution does not make an appropriation; it is simply a declaration as to the meaning of the statute.

Mr. WILSON of Washington. What does the resolution do?

Mr. McRAE. It removes executive doubts.

The SPEAKER. This resolution expresses the opinion of the House that there is no sufficient reason for failing to execute an existing law. Now, the Chair would be glad to have the gentleman from Indiana explain how that affects any question of appropriation.

Mr HOLMAN. As the Chair is aware, the President has declined to proceed with the execution of this provision of law and has invited an expression of opinion by Congress on the subject. The effect of this resolution would be practically to direct the payment of the money.

The SPEAKER. If the effect of the resolution was such as to direct the President to pay money, of course it would touch an appropriation; but the House has no authority to direct the President to pay money. As the Chair understands, there has been a request from the President for an expression of opinion on the part of the House, or rather an expression on the part of Congress has been invited as to whether this law should be executed.

Mr. BLAND. I call the attention of the Chair to clause 3, of Rule XXIII, which provides—

All motions or propositions involving a tax or charge upon the people—

This certainly involves a charge upon the people—

The SPEAKER. How?

Mr. BLAND (continuing the reading)—

All proceedings touching appropriations of money—

This is certainly a proceeding touching an appropriation of money already made.

Mr. PEEL. I will ask the gentleman from Missouri how a House resolution can appropriate money?

Mr. BLAND. We may practically appropriate millions of dollars by a House resolution.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, this subject is already on the Union Calendar. It has already been referred to the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that this is a House resolution, not a joint resolution, not a concurrent resolution; and it is well understood that a House resolution can not appropriate money.

Mr. McMILLIN. But, Mr. Speaker, if an expression of opinion on the part of the House has been sought by the President, the result of which would be to take money from the Treasury which otherwise would not be paid, does not the proposition come under the third paragraph of Rule XXIII?

Mr. BLAND. If the gentleman from Tennessee will permit me, I will read the language of the rule.

All motions or propositions involving a tax or charge upon the people; all proceedings touching appropriations of money, or bills making appropriations of money or property, or requiring such appropriations to be made, or authorizing payments out of appropriations already made, or releasing any liability to the United States for money or property, shall be first considered in a Committee of the Whole.

Mr. PEEL. My friend from Missouri entirely misunderstands, I think, the scope of the resolution.

Mr. BLAND. Well, the effect of the resolution, as I understand it, is to authorize the President to pay money already appropriated; and the clause of the rule which I have read covers the case.

Mr. PEEL. There is nothing in this resolution about paying money—not a word; it has nothing to do with that subject.

Mr. BLAND. As I understand, the President has refused to pay certain money until the two Houses of Congress shall, by resolution, authorize or direct such payment or express some opinion upon the subject. Now, the rule provides that all propositions relating to the payment of money out of appropriations already made shall go to the Committee of the Whole. Certainly that language covers a proposition of this kind.

Mr. PEEL. This does not authorize any such thing.

The SPEAKER. It does not appear that this resolution involves any charge upon the Treasury at all. The House can not by simple resolution appropriate money.

Mr. PEEL. Of course not.

The SPEAKER. As the Chair understands the situation it is this: A certain provision in an act passed by the Fifty-first Congress remains unexecuted for reasons which the President has stated in a special message to Congress. Now, this resolution proposes to declare that in the opinion of the House there is no sufficient reason for interfering in the due execution of the law referred to.

Mr. BLAND. The provision of the third clause of Rule XXIII is that all motions, propositions, or proceedings touching appropriations already made must be considered in Committee of the Whole. This is a proposition that has reference to an appropriation heretofore made; and it is, it seems to me, within the very language of the rule, which is not confined to a joint resolution or any act of the two Houses, but applies to all motions or propositions touching or relating to a charge upon the Treasury or to appropriations already made. That language certainly covers this case.

I would like to read this rule, Mr. Speaker, if the Chair has any doubt upon the question:

All motions—

Now this is undoubtedly a motion with reference to an appropriation, or a proposition to appropriate money—or propositions involving a tax or charge upon the people; all proceedings touching appropriations of money—

This certainly touches an appropriation of money—or bills making appropriations of money or property, or requiring such appropriation to be made, or authorizing payments out of appropriations already made, or releasing any liability to the United States for money or property, shall be first considered in the Committee of the Whole.

That seems to contemplate that any motion and proposition or proceeding whatever of any character relating to appropriations of money or relating to the releasing of any property of the United States Government, or referring to appropriations which have been already made, as well as appropriations which are proposed to be made, shall be first considered in the Committee of the Whole.

I do not see, Mr. Speaker, how this motion or proposition, answering, as it does, the President's message touching an appropriation of money, can, under the terms of the rule, be considered otherwise than in the Committee of the Whole when the point is made, as in this case.

Mr. HOLMAN. And if the Speaker will permit me, if he will examine the message of the President, it will be obvious that that is the mode of procedure, as suggested by the gentleman from Missouri. The President declines to spend the money, except in the exent that there shall be an express opinion on the part of Congress to that effect.

Mr. DINGLEY. This resolution, Mr. Speaker, if the Chair will permit an additional word, appears to have been reported last July, and by an indorsement upon the resolution itself seems to have been sent to the Calendar of the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, and is now in Committee of the Whole, if the indorsement is correct upon the resolution. Therefore, that question appears to have been determined and this matter sent to the committee at the time it was presented.

Mr. PEEL. In order that gentlemen may understand the point more clearly, if they will give me their attention for a moment, and as it may have a bearing on the point of order suggested by the gentleman from Indiana, I wish to state that if they will go back it will be found that a law was enacted, which is referred to in the resolution, appropriating a certain amount of money to pay the interest of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nation of Indians for their interest in the Cheyenne and Arapaho lands, the law providing that the money should be paid to them whenever the tribes executed a deed of conveyance relinquishing all right, title, claim, and interest in the lands embraced in said reservation, which said deed should be satisfactory to the President of the United States.

Nothing was remitted to the President save and except to pass on the sufficiency of the conveyance made by the Indians. For some reason set out in the message of the President he declines to approve the deed which was executed. He does not raise any question except to the sufficiency of the conveyance itself, but sends a special message to Congress stating that he has not approved of the deed and calls the attention of Congress to that fact. The Senate took up the message and reported a resolution of a similar character, precisely like this in all respects, reported from its Committee on Indian Affairs unanimously I think, and after a long discussion, consuming twelve hours it passed that body by an almost unanimous vote. I do not see any reason, therefore, for the gentleman insisting on the point of order at this time. It would not have any effect upon the main question presented. It does not appropriate any money, but simply says that we see no reason to interfere with the former legislation.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is ready to rule upon the question presented by the gentleman from Indiana.

The rule on this subject, clause 3 of Rule XXIII, seems to be very broad and to have been designed to provide for the consideration in Committee of the Whole of any matter that is directly an appropriation, or any proceeding touching an appropriation of the public money. And while this seems to the Chair to be a somewhat anomalous proceeding, based perhaps on an anomalous condition of affairs, still it is a proceeding touching the appropriation of money.

Mr. PEEL. But this is an appropriation already made.

The SPEAKER. The Chair understands that; but the same principle applies, and the rule provides further:

Bills making appropriations of money or property, or requiring such appropriation to be made, or authorizing payments out of appropriations already made, or releasing any liability to the United States for money or property—shall have their first consideration in a Committee of the Whole. The purpose and scope of the rule seems to be that any question that directly involves a charge on the Treasury, or, as expressed in the rule—touching appropriations of money—

shall be considered in a Committee of the Whole.

This resolution, as the Chair understands it, is an expression of opinion by the House that the reasons given by the President in his special message for failing to pay out certain moneys in accordance with law are insufficient in the judgment of the House. To that extent the Chair thinks that the resolution is one touching the appropriation of money.

The Chair will hold, therefore, that the resolution must be considered in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. PEEL. I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole to consider the resolution reported from the Committee on Indian Affairs.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, Mr. OUTHWAITE in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That for reasons set forth in the report of the Committee on Indian Affairs upon the President's message of February 17, 1892, upon the appropriation of March 3, 1891, for payment to the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations for their interest in the Cheyenne and Arapaho Reservation, submitted with this resolution, it is the opinion of the House of Representatives that there is no sufficient reason for interference in the due execution of the law referred to.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] desires to debate this matter, I would like to come to an agreement as to the amount of time to be consumed?

Mr. DOLLIVER. I would like to ask the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL] to state what reasons the President gave in his message?

Mr. PEEL. I will do so as soon as the order of debate is arranged.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I will suggest to the gentleman that he have the message of the President read. I believe it is a short document.

Mr. PEEL. My suggestion was, that if gentlemen desire to go into a debate upon this resolution, I would like to have an understanding as to time. I do not think it is necessary to debate it very long.

Mr. HOLMAN. I hope there will be time enough to read the President's message, to begin with, and those statutes bearing upon the subject.

Mr. PEEL. I suppose the gentleman means the part of the message relating to this matter? He does not want the whole message read, I suppose?

Mr. HOLMAN. I mean that part relating to this matter.

Mr. PEEL. That can be done in the time of gentlemen on the other side.

Mr. HOLMAN. I suppose two hours ought to be allowed.

Mr. PEEL. I do not think it is necessary to take two hours. I should think an hour ought to be sufficient. It has been thoroughly discussed in the Senate, and the proceedings are all in the RECORD. If gentlemen have given the matter any attention, they have read it there. It was thoroughly exhausted in the Senate. I think thirty minutes on a side ought to be satisfactory.

Mr. HOLMAN. There are some $3,000,000 involved, and I think two hours would be a very moderate time.

Mr. PEEL. But the resolution does not affect the $3,000,000 very much.

Mr. HOLMAN. This money will not be expended unless Congress expresses an opinion upon the subject?

Mr. PEEL. It will be paid some time, if the law is executed, whether Congress expresses an opinion or not. The law is not affected by the resolution one way or the other. I will suggest to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] that we occupy three-quarters of an hour on a side.

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, then, an hour and a half—forty-five minutes on a side.

Mr. PEEL. Then I ask unanimous consent that debate be limited to forty-five minutes on a side.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL] asks that all debate on this resolution be limited to an hour and a half.

Mr. HOLMAN. The time to be equally divided.

The CHAIRMAN. The time to be equally divided between those in favor of the resolution and those against it. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. PEEL. Now, Mr. Chairman, I desire, if I can get attention, to make a brief statement about this matter.

Mr. HOLMAN. Before my friend proceeds, I think that the message of the President ought to be read.

Mr. PEEL. You can have the message read in your own time. We will not have time, I think, to have the whole message read.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think an hour and a half ought to be allowed in addition to the time consumed in reading the message.

Mr. PEEL. I can not afford to have it read in my time. It has been published in the RECORD. Mr. Chairman, if the committee will give me attention, I think I can make this reasonably clear to the minds of all.

During the last session of Congress there was a contract pending between the Government of the United States and the Cheyenne and Arapaho Indians for a reservation which they occupied in the Territory of Oklahoma. It was an executive reservation, the title coming from the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations in a former treaty.

There were a series of treaties made with the five tribes conveying all their surplus lands in trust to the Government for the purpose of putting other Indians upon those lands. The policy of the Government was changed, and therefore they negotiated with these five civilized tribes to take allotments on these executive-order reservations and open the balance to settlement to the people of the United States. Under these treaties we have heretofore paid the Creeks and Seminoles for their interest in what is known as Oklahoma. In this last contract I referred to, in the last Congress, it was negotiated with the Cheyennes and Arapahoes that they should take allotments on their part and surrender the balance to the Government.

In that bill—which was ratified upon the Indian appropriation bill, along with various other contracts which were ratified by unanimous consent upon that bill—some compensation was given by Congress to pay the Choctaws and Chickasaws for their interests in the surplus land that grew out of this contract. That land has since been opened to settlement to the white people under the homestead law at one dollar and a half an acre. So the land for which this appropriation is made has already been appropriated by the Government, and is in the hands of settlers, and they are to pay to the Government a dollar and a half an acre, which is far more money than we have agreed to give the Choctaws and Chickasaws for their title.

That appropriation simply recited that it appropriates this money, and that it should be paid to the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations in their respective proportions according to their respective interests when they execute a release; in other words, a deed of conveyance of all their right, title, and claim in this country to the Government satisfactory to the President. Therefore, there was nothing remitted to the President but to pass upon the legal effect of the title that they tendered him. They proceeded under the law to prepare their release and tendered it to the President in two or three different forms.

Old members who were members of the then House, and members of this House will remember that the President and the Secretary of the Interior differed with the Senate and the House as to the extent of the title of the Choctaws and Chickasaws (and he opposed the appropriation). The President has seen proper, very correctly, no doubt, from his standpoint, and I have no criticism to offer upon that, to withhold his approval upon this deed until he could submit this matter back to this Congress for their consideration, to say whether or not there was any reason why this matter should be reopened and reinvestigated.

Now, members of the last House will remember that this whole subject-matter of the title as well as other points was most exhaustively discussed in the Senate when the appropriation was made, because it was started in the Senate, and by a very decisive vote was decided by a large majority of the Senate that their title was good, and they ought to be paid this money. The matter came to the House, and we reinvestigated and thoroughly exhausted the subject, argument being indulged by very distinguished gentlemen, then members of this House, and by a very decisive vote they agreed with the Senate.

Now, when this special message reached this Congress, the subject-matter was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs of the Senate and of the House, and we thought it was just to the President that the Senate should take it up first as the Senate had first taken up the question. The Senate Committee reported exactly this same resolution, with only this difference, that after a thorough investigation they found no good reason why the appropriation made by the former Congress, under the law created by them, should be changed. That was reported to the Senate in the first session of this Congress, and discussed very extensively. Gentlemen will find it in the RECORD, and will see that the debate was participated in by several very distinguished Senators, some of the best lawyers in the Senate, and when the vote was taken there were but 13 votes against it in that august body.

The Committee on Indian Affairs of the House took up the same subject-matter then, and we adopted the Senate report, and this is the result.

We do not now believe, as we have always believed, that there was any reason given in that message that would justify Congress in changing a law that had been so thoroughly discussed, and passed after due and deliberate consideration.

The title is the main question. That, Mr. Chairman, was passed on soon after this treaty was made by three different Secretaries of the Interior—Mr. Secretary Schurz, Mr. Secretary Kirkwood, and Mr. Secretary Teller. It has been passed on by several Commissioners of Indian Affairs, passed upon by several Commissioners of the General Land Office, and by Judge Parker of the Federal court at Fort Smith, all of whom, in an unbroken line of decisions, without a single exception, held that we held those lands in trust for the purpose of putting Indians upon it, and nothing else. Therefore, if we open it to white settlement we must pay for it.

Mr. HEARD. I desire to ask the gentleman if the report made by the House committee, after the action had been taken in the Senate, was a unanimous report?

Mr. PEEL. Yes, sir; it was a unanimous report.

Now, that is the substance of the whole question; and if gentlemen will go back to the discussion in the Senate and take up the very able report made by the Senate committee on this resolution, they will find the subject thoroughly exhausted, including every single solitary item suggested in the President's special message. I am satisfied, though I am not speaking from any authority for the President, for I have not conferred with him on the subject, but I undertake to say that if he had at the time investigated the matter as thoroughly as the Senate and House have investigated it, there never would have been any question about it.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, I will occupy but a few minutes, except I shall request that the message of the President be read.

The whole of this trouble grows out of a misapprehension, I think, by a former Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Schurz, in regard to the nature of this treaty of 1866. I concede that he is one of the ablest gentlemen who ever occupied that office. He filled it with very distinguished ability, but he certainly misapprehended the effect of this treaty of 1866. There were quite a number of treaties made with the Indian tribes in the Indian Territory in 1866; and it will be observed that all the treaties—notably the treaty with the Creek and Seminole Indians—contained a provision that the land ceded to the United States should be for the purpose of settling friendly Indians upon it, under the old policy.

All those treaties contain that provision except the treaty now in question. All the other treaties of that year contain the same clause except this. We therefore have always agreed that those lands acquired under the other treaties came to us from the Indians upon those specific terms as to Indian settlement, and were not absolutely ours except for a single purpose, for the occupation of friendly Indians. Accordingly we have paid the Creeks and Seminoles for the absolute title to their lands, ceded to us in 1866, so that we might open them to white settlement.

But this particular treaty of 1866 with the Choctaws and Chickasaws contains no such provision, for the United States already had exactly that right; that is to say, the right to settle friendly Indians upon the land west of the ninety-eighth degree of west longitude, and in fact friendly Indians were already settled upon those lands. I call special attention to the language of the first treaty, that of 1855, from which gentlemen will see that the right there conferred upon the United States was exactly the same as that which was conferred in 1866 by the Creeks and Seminoles to their lands upon which we desired to settle friendly Indians.

The Choctaw Indians do hereby absolutely and forever quitclaim and relinquish to the United States all their right, title, and interest in and to any and all lands west of the one-hundredth degree of west longitude (the western boundary of the Indian Territory), and the Choctaws and Chickasaws do hereby lease to the United States all that portion of their common country west of the ninety-eighth degree of west longitude for the permanent settlement of the Wichita and such other tribes or bands of Indians as the Government may desire to locate therein.

That is the treaty of 1855.

Mr. PEEL. Will the gentleman please read the remainder of it?

Mr. HOLMAN. It is too long. I have read all that is pertinent to this discussion.

Mr. PEEL. They reserve the right to locate their own Indians on those lands.

Mr. HOLMAN. I know that. Now, Mr. Speaker, that was the lease, a perpetual lease, for which $800,000 was paid to those two tribes for the purpose of getting lands to settle friendly Indians upon. That was the first step. Then comes the treaty of 1866 in which it is provided that—

ART. 3. The Choctaws and Chickasaws, in consideration of the sum of $300,000, hereby cede to the United States the territory west of the ninety-eighth degree of west longitude known as the "leased district," provided, etc.

So, in the first place, here was an absolute lease made in 1855 of these lands to the United States for the purpose of settling friendly Indians upon them, and also their own Indians for Indian purposes, consideration $800,000. Then comes the absolute cession of the lands in consideration of the payment of $300,000 by the treaty of 1866. Yet now it is proposed to pay these Indians very nearly $3,000,000 more for the very lands which we have already acquired twice, the first time for a specific object and the second for general purposes.

Now, Mr. Speaker, having stated this much of the history of this matter and desiring to have read the President's special message on this subject, I ask that it be read in my time, and I hope gentlemen will give strict attention to the reading, because the message is a very strong document. It presents this subject very ably and absolutely conclusive.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. OUTHWAITE). Does the gentleman from Indiana desire to have the whole of the message read?

Mr. HOLMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. BLANCHARD. Let me suggest to the gentleman from Indiana that he does not desire to have the provision from the Indian appropriation bill which is incorporated in the message.

Mr. HOLMAN. No; that is quite long, and the Clerk may omit it, but I desire to have the rest of the message read.

The Clerk read as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

The Indian appropriation bill, which was approved March 3, 1891, contains the following provision:

"And the sum of $2,951,450 be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to pay the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations of Indians for all the right, title, interest, and claim which said nations of Indians may have in and to certain lands now occupied by the Cheyenne and Arapaho Indians under executive order, said lands lying south of the Canadian River, and now occupied by the said Cheyenne and Arapaho Indians; said lands have been ceded in trust by article 3 of the treaty between the United States and said Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations of Indians, which was concluded April 28, 1866, and proclaimed on the 10th day of August of the same year, and whereof there remains, after deducting allotments, as provided by said agreement, a residue ascertained by survey to contain 2,393,160 acres; three-fourths of this appropriation to be paid to such person or persons as are or shall be duly authorized by the laws of said Choctaw Nation to receive the same, at such time and in such sums as directed and required by the legislative authority of said Choctaw Nation, and one-fourth of this appropriation to be paid to such person or persons as are or shall be duly authorized by the laws of said Chickasaw Nation to receive the same, at such times and in such sums as directed and required by the legislative authority of said Chickasaw Nation. This appropriation to be immediately available and to become operative upon the execution, by the duly appointed delegates of said respective nations specially authorized thereto by law, of releases and conveyances to the United States of all the right, title, interest, and claim of said respective nations of Indians in and to said land (not including Grier County, which is now in dispute), in manner and form satisfactory to the President of the United States; and said releases and conveyances, when fully executed and delivered, shall operate to extinguish all claim of every kind and character of said Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations of Indians in and to the tract of country to which said releases and conveyances shall apply."

If this section had been submitted to me as a separate measure, especially during the closing hours of the session, I should have disapproved it; but as the Congress was then in its last hours a disapproval of the general Indian appropriation bill of which it was a part would have resulted in consequences so far-reaching and disastrous that I felt it my duty to approve the bill. But as a duty was devolved upon me by the section quoted, viz, the acceptance and approval of the conveyances provided for, I have felt bound to look into the whole matter, and, in view of the facts which I shall presently mention, to postpone any executive action until these facts could be submitted to Congress.

Very soon after the passage of the law it came to my knowledge that the Choctaw Legislature had entered into an agreement with three citizens of that tribe to pay to them as compensation for procuring this legislation 25 per cent of any appropriation that might be made by Congress. The amount to be secured by these three agents, under this agreement, out of the three-fourths interest in the appropriation of the Choctaw Nation, is $560,896. I have information that a contract was made by the Chickasaws to pay about 10 per cent of their one-fourth interest to the agents and attorneys who represented them.

Within a month after the passage of the law, R. J. Ward, one of the agents who was to divide with his two associates the enormous sum to be paid by the Choctaws, presented to me an affidavit dated April 4, 1891, which is herewith submitted. It appears from his statement that the action of the Choctaw council in this matter was corruptly influenced by the execution of certain notes signed by Ward for himself and his associates in sums varying from $2,500 to $15,000. His associates deny any knowledge of this, but the giving and existence of these notes is not refuted. The statement of the two associates of Ward, denying any knowledge of or participation in this fraud, are also submitted, together with other papers relating to the matter.

Whatever may be the fact as to the use or nonuse of corrupt methods to secure this legislation from the Choctaw council, I do not think the Congress of the United States should so legislate upon this matter as to give effect to such a contract, which I am sure must have been unnoticed when the measure was pending. If the relations of these Indians to the United States are those of a ward, Congress should protect them from such extortionate exactions. We can not assume that the expenses and services of a committee of three persons to represent this claim before Congress could justly assume such proportions. The making of such a contract seems to convey implications which, I am sure, are wholly unjust.

After the passage of the appropriation bill, legislation was had by the Choctaw Nation looking to the completion of the contract made with their delegates as to the payment of this money, but subsequently, when it was supposed that this extraordinary arrangement might require me to bring the matter to the attention of Congress, an act was passed by the Choctaw general council, approved October 19, 1891, declaring all contracts made by the Choctaw delegates with any attorneys in connection with this appropriation void and of no effect. A copy of this law will be found with the papers submitted. There has also been submitted to me an unofficial copy of the opinion of the attorney-general of the Choctaw Nation holding that this last legislation is unconstitutional and void. I am of the opinion that, if this appropriation is to stand, provision should be made for protecting these tribes against extortionate claims for compensation in procuring action by Congress.

Copies of the several laws passed by the Choctaw Nation with reference to this matter will be found in the accompanying papers. It will be noticed that the distribution proposed is limited to Choctaws by blood, excluding the freedmen and the white men who have been given full citizenship from any participation. A protest against this method of distribution has been filed by a white citizen of the tribe, and also a representation by Hon. Thomas C. Fletcher, their attorney, on behalf of the freedmen. In view of the fact that the stipulations of the treaty of 1866, in behalf of the freedmen of these tribes, have not, especially in the case of the Chickasaws, been complied with, it would seem that the United States should, in a distribution of this money, have made suitable provision in their behalf. The Chickasaws have steadfastly refused to admit the freedmen to citizenship, as they stipulated to do in the treaty referred to, and their condition in that tribe, and in a lesser degree in the other, strongly calls for the protective intervention of Congress.

After a somewhat careful examination of the question, I do not believe that the lands for which this money is to be paid were, to quote the language of section 15 of the Indian appropriation bill, already set out, "ceded in trust by article 3 of the treaty between the United States and said Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations of Indians, which was concluded April 28, 1866," etc. It is agreed that that treaty contained no express limitation upon the uses to which the United States might put the territory known as the leased district. The lands were ceded by terms sufficiently comprehensive to have passed the full title of the Indians. The limitation upon the use to which the Government might put them is sought to be found in a provision of the treaty by which the United States undertook to exclude white settlers, and in the expressions found in the treaties made at the same time with the Creeks and other tribes of the purpose of the United States to use the lands ceded by those tribes for the settlement of friendly Indians.

The stipulation as to the exclusion of white settlers might well have reference solely to the national lands retained by the Choctaw and Chickasaw tribes, and the reason for the nonincorporation in the treaty with them of a statement of the purpose of the Government in connection with the use of the lands is well accounted for by the fact that as to these lands the Government had already, under the treaty of 1855, secured the right to use them perpetually for the settlement of friendly Indians. This was not true as to the lands of the other tribes referred to. The United States paid to the Choctaws and Chickasaws $300,000, and the failure to insert the words that are called words of limitation in this treaty points, I think, clearly to the conclusion that the commissioners on the part of the Government, and the Indians themselves, must have understood that this Government was acquiring something more than a mere right to settle friendly Indians, which is already possessed, and something more than the mere release of the right which the Choctaws and Chickasaws had under the treaty of 1855 to select locations on these lands if they chose.

Undoubtedly it was the policy of this Government for the time to hold these and the adjacent lands as Indian country, and many of the expressions in the proclamations of my predecessors and in the reports of the Indian Bureau and of the Secretary of the Interior mean this and nothing more. This is quite different from a conditional title which limits the grant to a particular use and works a reinvestment of full title in the Indian grantors when that use ceases. But those who hold most strictly that a use for Indian purposes, where it is expressed, is a limitation of title seem to agree that the United States might pass a fee absolute to other Indian tribes in the lands ceded for their occupancy. Certainly it was not intended that in settling friendly Indians upon these lands the Government was to be restrained in its policy of allotment and individual ownership. If, for an adequate consideration by treaty, the United States placed upon these lands other Indian tribes, it was competent to give them patents in fee for a certain and agreed reservation. This being so, when the policy of allotment is put into force the compensation for the unused lands should certainly go to the occupying tribe, which, in the case supposed, had paid a full consideration for the whole reservation.

It will hardly be contended that in such case this Government should pay twice for the lands. In the appropriation under discussion this principle is in part recognized, for no claim is made by the Choctaws and Chickasaws for the lands allotted to the Cheyennes and Arapahoes. The claim is for unallotted or surplus lands. The case of the Cheyennes and Arapahoes is this: In consideration of other lands the Government gave them a treaty reservation in the Cherokee Outlet, but never perfected it by paying the Cherokees the stipulated price and placing these Indians upon it. The Cheyennes and Arapahoes declined to go upon the strip and located themselves further south, where they now are.

The Government subsequently recognized their right to remain there, and set apart the lands now being allotted to members of that tribe, and the lands for which payment is now claimed by the Choctaws and Chickasaws, as the Cheyenne and Arapaho Reservation. I think the United States must be held to have assented to the substitution of these lands for the treaty lands in the Cherokee Strip, and that being true, when the reservation is broken up, as now, by allotments, it would seem that the Cheyennes and Arapahoes were entitled to be compensated for these surplus lands. In fact, a commission which has been dealing with the tribes in the Indian Territory has concluded an arrangement with them by which the Government pays $1,500,000 for these surplus lands and for the release of any claim to the Cherokee Strip, so that, in fact, in this agreement with the Cheyennes and Arapahoes, the Government has paid for the lands for which payment is now claimed by the Choctaws and Chickasaws.

It should not be forgotten, also, that the allotment to the Cheyennes and Arapahoes is still incomplete. The method of calculation which resulted in stating the claim of the Choctaws and Chickasaws at $2,991,460 is explained by a letter of Mr. J. S. Standley, one of the Choctaw delegates, dated April 6, 1891. The agent for the Cheyennes and Arapahoes wrote Mr. Standley that there were 600 Indians residing upon the lands south of the Canadian River, and who it was supposed would take allotments there, and upon this statement the legislation was based. Now, it must be borne in mind that the Cheyennes and Arapahoes have the right to locate anywhere within their reservation, and that instead of 600, double that number might have taken their allotments south of the Canadian River upon these lands. This is not probable, but a later report indicates that the number will certainly be in excess of 600. If the sum to be paid to the Choctaws and Chickasaws depended upon a knowledge of the number of acres of unallotted land south of the Canadian River, it would seem to have been reasonable that the appropriation should have been delayed until the exact number of acres taken for allotment had been officially ascertained. This has not yet been done.

It is right also, I think, that Congress in dealing with this matter should have the whole question before it; for the declaration of Indian title contained in this item of appropriation extends to a very large body of land and will involve very large future appropriations. The Choctaw and Chickasaw leased district, embracing the lands in the Indian Territory between the ninety-eighth and one hundredth degrees of west longitude and extending north and south from the main Canadian River to the Red River, including Greer County, contains, according to the public surveys, 7,713,239 acres, or, excluding Greer County, 6,201,663 acres. This leased district is occupied as follows: Greer County, by white citizens of Texas, 1,511,576 acres. The United States is now prosecuting a case in the courts to obtain a judicial declaration that this county is part of the Indian country. If a decision should be rendered in its favor, the claim of the Choctaws and Chickasaws to be paid for these lands at the rate named in this appropriation would at once be presented.

The Wichita Reservation is also upon the leased lands and is occupied by the Wichitas, Caddoes, Delawares, and remnants of other tribes, by Department orders made to depend upon the treaty with the Delawares in 1866 and some other unratified agreements with tribes or fragments of tribes in 1872. This reservation contains 743,610 acres.

The Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Reservation is occupied by those Indians under a treaty proclaimed August 25, 1868, which provides that said district of country "shall be, and the same is hereby, set apart for the absolute and undisturbed use and occupation of the tribes herein named, and for such friendly tribes or individual Indians as from time to time they may be willing (with the consent of the United States) to admit among them." This reservation contains 2,968,893 acres.

The Cheyennes and Arapahoes, whose surplus lands are to be paid for by this appropriation, have occupied the country between the Washita and Canadian Rivers extending west to the one hundredth degree of longitude. This reservation contains 2,489,160 acres.

I have stated these facts in order that it may be seen what further appropriations are involved in a settlement for all these lands upon the basis which Congress has adopted. It does not seem to me to be a wise policy to deal with this question piecemeal. It would have been better, if a remnant of title remains in the Choctaws and Chickasaws to the lands in the leased district to have settled the whole matter at once. Under the treaty of 1855 the Choctaws and Chickasaws quitclaimed any supposed interest of theirs in the lands west of the one hundredth degree. The boundary between the Louisiana purchase and the Spanish possessions by our treaty of 1819 with Spain was as to these lands fixed upon the one hundredth degree of west longitude.

Our treaty with the Choctaws and Chickasaws, made in 1820, extended their grant to the limit of our possessions. It followed, of course, that these lands were included within the boundaries of the State of Texas when that State was admitted to the Union, and the release of the Choctaws and Chickasaws, whatever it was worth, operated for the benefit of the State of Texas and not of the United States. The lands became public lands of that State. For the release of this claim and for the lease of the lands west of the ninety-eighth degree the Government of the United States paid the sum of $800,000. In the calculations which have been made to arrive at the basis of the appropriation under discussion, no part of this sum is treated as having been paid for the lease. I do not think that is just to the United States.

It seems probable that a very considerable part of this consideration must have related to the leased lands, because these were the lands in which the Indian title was recognized and the treaty gave to the United States a permanent right of occupation by friendly Indians. The sum of $300,000, paid under the treaty of 1866, is deducted, as I understand, in arriving at the sum appropriated. It seems to me that a considerable proportion of the sum of $800,000 previously paid should have been deducted, in the same manner.

I have felt it to be my duty to bring these matters to the attention of Congress for such action as may be thought advisable.

BENJ. HARRISON.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
February 17, 1892.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, I wish simply to call attention to three facts, and for one I thank the President of the United States for bringing this subject again to the attention of Congress, whatever may be the action of the House upon it. Of these three facts to which I wish to call attention the first is of the least importance, and yet it is of sufficient importance to call upon this House to stop until this matter is thoroughly understood. I refer to the fact stated by the President in the following paragraph:

> Very soon after the passage of the law it came to my knowledge that the Choctaw Legislature had entered into an agreement with three citizens of that tribe to pay to them as compensation for procuring this legislation 25 per cent of any appropriation that might be made by Congress. The amount to be secured by these three agents, under this agreement, out of the three-fourths interest in the appropriation of the Choctaw Nation, is $560,895. I have information that a contract was made by the Chickasaws to pay about 10 per cent of their one-fourth interest to the agents and attorneys who represented them—

Making in all 35 per cent of this enormous sum of nearly $3,000,000.

Having called attention to that matter, which does not go to the root of the controversy at all, as I admit, but which this House certainly should consider, I desire to call attention again to the clear manner in which the President presents the facts; for, as I have sought to show, the whole of this controversy grew out of an incidental remark made by Hon. Carl Shcurz when holding the office of Secretary of the Interior, that this treaty was intended to be upon the same footing as the treaty with the Seminoles and the Creeks.

The President shows clearly that that interpretation could not possibly be correct for the reason that we had already exactly the same right to the land west of the ninety-eighth parallel as to those acquired from the Seminoles and the Creeks—the right to the land for the purpose of settling friendly Indians upon it. Then we made the treaty of 1866, by which we acquired the land absolutely, in fee simple, and paid for it without any reference whatever to its use. Yet as the President points out we are deliberately proposing now to pay $3,000,000 more for lands which we have already purchased without any limitation or condition whatever.

There is another matter to which I wish to call the attention of the committee. Even if this were possibly a just claim it would be a drain upon our Treasury which at this hour we may well hesitate to make. It is barely possible that your revenues may be sufficient to meet your expenditures up to the 30th of June next, but there will be scarcely anything in addition. I only mention this last matter and the first as going to the question of the expediency of acting upon this matter now. But the other point I press strongly upon the attention of the committee, that having first leased this land for a given purpose, that of settling friendly Indians upon it, we then purchased it outright and paid for it, and now it is proposed to pay $3,000,000 more.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Chairman, there are some things which the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] has said which I can not afford to leave unanswered. He has made statements as to matters which he formerly examined himself and as to which he held a different opinion from what he has expressed to-day. I challenge him or any other man to put his finger upon a single word of the treaty of 1855 under which these Indians received a solitary cent for these lands. In that treaty we paid them $800,000 for their interest in the lands west of the one hundredth meridian, embracing over 6,000,000 acres; and the lease he speaks of was given in the treaty of 1855 without any objection, in order that we might put upon those lands the Wichitas and other specified Indians, excluding all other Indians, and reserving the right to the Indians themselves to settle their own people upon it. In the Senate report will be found the proposition specifically laid down by the chairman of the commission that made the contract.

The then Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Mr. Cooley, in convention with these Indians, said to them that the land was wanted for no other purpose than to put friendly Indians upon it; and upon that basis the treaty was made. And not one cent did the Government give for that cession. The $300,000 that the gentleman speaks of was given in consideration of the agreement that the Choctaws and Chickasaws would incorporate into their communities as citizens the three thousand ex-slaves that they had among them, giving to each 40 acres as a home tract, and giving them also the right of suffrage. Two years were allowed to those Indians in which to do this, and if they failed to do it the negroes were to receive $100 apiece if they would voluntarily go into a different part of the country, and if they did not want to go, the last dollar of the money was to go back to the Government. And in point of fact the Choctaws and Chickasaws never received one cent from the Government for these lands. At no time have they ever received one single cent for this purpose, and to-day the lands, for the payment of which this appropriation was made in the last Congress, are being sold to the settlers of this country at $1.50 an acre, or 25 cents more than the amount appropriated to pay for them.

These people have been kept out of their money for two years. Oh, but they are Indians! it does not matter about them! Take their money out of the Treasury and do as you please with it, but do not pay them anything! Is it possible that a great government like this will stand, after a law that has been thoroughly discussed and considered by both Houses and the money appropriated, on a subterfuge of this kind and let them lie out of their money for years longer without interest! Why, they have already lost, if you but allow them the same rate of interest that is paid to other Indians of this country on their trust funds, about $300,000.

How much longer do you propose to keep them out of it? I do think it would be an outrage perpetrated on these helpless people to further withhold their money; and if gentlemen will examine the last message of the President of the United States, which I now hold in my hand, and read his language on this subject, they will find that the only objection he makes is to this excess of $48,800—which he puts in round numbers at $50,000—an excess arising because of the fact that the appropriation was necessarily changed because the allotments took more than was expected; and this very fund has been covered back into the Treasury by the resolution just passed.

Mr. HEARD. If I understand the statement of the gentleman from Arkansas, the lands acquired by this purchase from the Indians are to be disposed of for cash?

Mr. PEEL. That is the provision of the law.

Mr. HEARD. And that the proceeds will more than reimburse the amount appropriated from the Treasury?

Mr. PEEL. Yes, sir; 25 cents an acre more than it costs the Government.

Now, I know it is a great scarecrow to talk of these outside contracts with people for doing services of this character. I would like the gentleman to tell us why it was, after this matter was sifted to the very bottom by the Senate committee, and by the Senate itself, when this whole matter was thoroughly examined in the Senate of the United States, they found no such provision as the gentleman from Indiana refers to except contracts between the Choctaws and their own people, which were made openly and fairly and without corruption. It has been thoroughly purged and settled as far as that question is concerned, and the President's annual message of a few days ago never intimates such a thing as the gentleman from Indiana suggests. The evidence filed with the Department, and all the investigations covering the transaction, show that it was a fair and square business. It may be a large contract, but I ask the gentleman from Indiana what the Congress of the United States has to do with the contracts that these people choose to make?

We passed a law in the Fiftieth Congress remitting to the various States of the Union the direct taxes which had been paid by them. Agents were paid by these various States, in almost every one of them, a large percentage of the money collected from the Government. Who objected to that payment on the part of the General Government because the States agreed to pay out a part of it to their own agents?

I would like to know what authority we have for dealing with the funds of the five civilized tribes in the manner the gentleman from Indiana would deal with them. Here is a people thoroughly organized, as far as a government is concerned. They have had a local government for fifty years, with a governor, a Legislature, senate and house, lower courts and supreme court, attorney-general, and treasurer; as perfect as the organization of the State of Indiana. They have been carrying on their own local affairs all these years, and I repeat now that we are bound, under our treaties with them, to allow them local self-government, and to control matters belonging to their own community in their own way. It is their own money, and if they saw proper to throw every single dollar of it into the Arkansas River the next day after they received it, Congress has nothing to say in opposition to it. The contract that they made with their own people with regard to this matter is a subject with which they alone have a right to deal. We pay the money, in the language of the appropriation, and that is the end of it as far as Congress is concerned. They may do just what they please with it.

I repeat, Mr. Chairman, the Senate discussed this matter in every phase of the question. Is it to be believed by this committee that that great body, with able men on both sides of its Chamber, made a mistake when they took up this matter in the last session, and with the special message of the President before them, just read by the Clerk of this House, after an intelligent and exhaustive discussion of twelve hours, almost unanimously adopted this identical resolution and thereby set up their judgment that there was nothing in the message warranting Congress to change the law? I say, after that was done can it be claimed, as is claimed by the gentleman from Indiana, that there was wrong and fraud back of it, and that Congress should retrace its steps?

I will yield five minutes of my time to my colleague, Mr. BRECKINRIDGE.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN], in speaking of the amount of the payment that the tribes agreed to make to their special agents for prosecuting their claim through Congress, said it was 25 per cent and 10 per cent, making a total of 35 per cent of the total amount of the award. I call the attention of the committee to that as a striking inaccuracy on the part of the gentleman from Indiana. There is, according to the agreement, 25 per cent to be paid out of one portion and 10 per cent out of the other portion.

Mr. HOLMAN. That is true.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. Then your other statement was inaccurate.

Mr. HOLMAN. My attention was engaged at the time and I made an error in the figures. I see the President states it as 25 per cent out of three-quarters of the sum and 10 per cent out of the other quarter.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. That corrects the statement of the gentleman, and consequently that will end what I have to say upon that point, because the gentleman now ceases his contention in that regard. The gentleman states that we acquired an absolute title to this property at the time that the Government paid $800,000 to these Indians.

Mr. HOLMAN. No, $300,000. The other was only a lease. The perpetual lease was for $800,000 and the $300,000 was for the final title.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. Then it stands in this form, that we consider land worth a rental of $800,000, and that it is proper for us to buy outright for $300,000. That is rather an extraordinary proposition, Mr. Chairman, that property that will rent for $800,000, renting fairly and equitably, nobody charging any unfairness, can yet be fairly disposed of outright for $300,000. Why, as a matter of course any one can tell, in looking at a proposition of that sort, that there is a serious infirmity in it somewhere.

What was that $300,000 given for? The gentleman does not read from the treaty. He has some time left, and I wish he would read that portion of the treaty.

Mr. HOLMAN. I did read section 3 of the treaty.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. I will read something out of the treaty.

Mr. HOLMAN. It is the third article of the treaty of 1866. I will furnish the gentleman with the treaty itself if he wishes it.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. I have an extract here that I used on a former occasion. Unless I have the marked copy that I then used I could not refer to it readily. This is the language of the treaty:

Until the Legislatures of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations, respectively, shall have made such laws, rules, and regulations as may be necessary to give all persons of African descent, resident in the said nations at the date of the treaty of Fort Smith and their descendants, heretofore held in slavery among said nations, all the rights, privileges, and immunities, including the right of suffrage, of citizens of said nations, except in the annuities, moneys, and public domain claimed by or belonging to said nations respectively, and also to give to such persons who were residents as aforesaid and their descendants 40 acres each of the land of said nations on the same terms as the Choctaws and Chickasaws and Kansas Indians have made their selections, as herein provided.

It was to pay these nations for parting with 40 acres of land to each one of their former slaves. That was the purpose.

Mr. HOLMAN. Read the third section.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. I will read some more directly, and the gentleman, in his own time can read all he wishes. These nations were to part with a portion of their land for the benefit and for the individual ownership of people of African descent who had formerly been their slaves, and the Government of the United States was paying them for those respective parcels of 40 acres of land.

Now, suppose they did not give these 40-acre tracts of land, what then was to be done with this $300,000? First, if they do it, then says the treaty:

And immediately on the enactment of such laws, rules, and regulations the said sum of $300,000 shall be paid to the said Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations in the proportion of three-fourths to the former and one-fourth to the latter.

And if they do not give these 40-acre tracts of land, then, says the treaty:

It shall be held for the use and benefit of such persons of African descent as the United States shall remove from the said territory in such manner as the United States shall deem proper.

The pending resolution does not relate to the 40-acre tracts of land which were bought for the former slaves of the Indian tribes, but it relates to the other part of this land. And the Government here shows that it could not acquire even 40 acres of it without paying for it. It was not embraced under that allotment.

Now I trust the gentleman will try to substantiate anything to the contrary out of that treaty.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Chairman, I will yield five minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BURROWS] if he is present, and if not, I will yield five minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. CULBERSON], or ten minutes if he wishes that much time.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. Chairman, when this measure was before the last Congress I made a slight investigation of the facts and the law as I understood it, and I came to the conclusion that this cession by the Choctaw Indians to the Government of the United States ought to be construed along with and in reference to the proposition submitted by the officers of the United States Government when this treaty was made.

Now, if I recollect aright, and I have not had an opportunity to gather up the facts in the case, there were seven propositions submitted to the council which negotiated this treaty. The seventh proposition made to the council by the officers of the Government of the United States was to the effect that all the lands acquired by the United States from the Indians by virtue of these treaties which were then to be made, should be used and held in trust by the Government of the United States for the purpose of settling friendly Indians upon it. Now, it is true, Mr. Chairman, that all the treaties made at that time with reference to the cession of lands carry along with them in express terms this trust, except the treaty made by the Choctaw tribes. But this proposition was distinctly made to the representatives of the Choctaw Nation, and by reference to the report of the Commissioner who negotiated this treaty for the Government of the United States it will be seen, if I recollect correctly, that he expressly notifies the Government that this treaty was made by the representatives of the Choctaw Nation upon the terms of these seven propositions.

Now, every officer of the Government, from 1866 down to a year or so ago, when this controversy arose, has construed this treaty in that way. Not a single Secretary of the Interior, not a single Commissioner of the Land Office, has ever construed this treaty except as carrying along with it this implied trust; and the Supreme Court of the United States, in declaring upon the effect of treaties made with the Indians, have declared that these treaties are to be construed, and must be construed, not with reference to the literal language of the treaty, but with reference to the propositions and assurances given the Indians when these treaties were made.

Now, Mr. Chairman, no less a distinguished Secretary than Mr. Schurz first made a construction of this treaty, and he held plainly that the Government was certainly bound by the implied trust not to settle any persons upon this Territory except friendly Indians, and in accordance with the terms of the treaty. That construction has been acquiesced in ever since that time, and the Government of the United States has uniformly declared that it had no power, no authority, nor any right whatever to settle any other persons upon these lands except friendly Indians and freedmen; and it has never been considered a part of the public domain subject to settlement under the homestead act, or otherwise to open the Territory; but they expressly refused to open or admit these lands to settlement under the homestead act.

Again, Mr. Chairman, if I may be permitted, the consideration of $300,000 mentioned in this treaty forms no consideration whatever, as I understand it, for the cession of this land. The $300,000 was agreed to be paid by the Government for the purpose of facilitating the removal of the freedmen out of the national lands of the Choctaw Nation into the leased lands, and to provide them with homes. Now, these people had received $800,000 for the land in 1855 from the Government of the United States in consideration of a lease for an indefinite time, in order that the Government of the United States might settle friendly Indians upon this territory.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. If the gentleman will permit me, I desire to state that it was not that, but only for certain friendly Indians, and a very limited number?

Mr. CULBERSON. I have not time to specify the friendly Indians who were to be settled on it, but "friendly Indians" covers the suggestion of the gentleman.

When this treaty was made with the Indians, they were expressly assured that the only object the Government had for this land was to carry out its Indian policy. If gentlemen will get the seventh proposition submitted to the council, they will see exactly what was intended.

Mr. PEEL. The fifth, sixth, and seventh.

Mr. CULBERSON. Now, Mr. Chairman, the $300,000 was never paid for the purchase and in consideration for these lands, and only $800,000 has been received by these people for it. I think, on the whole, the United States is making a very good bargain with these people in getting these lands for the price agreed upon.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Chairman, I will ask the Clerk to read the fifth, sixth, and seventh propositions, which the gentleman from Texas alluded to, in order to show the object and purpose of the Government; and I will further ask the Clerk to read that portion of the decision of Secretary Schurz to which the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] has alluded as a mere incidental remark. It is an official decision.

The Clerk read as follows:

Fifth. A part of the Indian country to be set apart to be purchased for the use of such Indians from Kansas and elsewhere as the Government may desire to colonize therein.

Sixth. That the policy of the Government to unite all the tribes of this region into one consolidated government should be accepted.

Seventh. No white person, except officers, agents, and employés of the Government, or of any internal improvement company authorized by the Government, will be permitted to reside in the Territory unless formally incorporated with some tribe according to the usage of the band.

The Secretary of the Interior, in an official communication to the Secretary of War, dated May 1, 1879, said:

"The lands ceded by the Choctaws and Chickasaws were, by article 9 of the treaty of June 22, 1855, leased to the United States for the permanent settlement of the Wichitas, and such other tribes or bands of Indians as the Government may desire to locate therein. The treaty of 1866 substituted a direct purchase for the lease, but did not extinguish or alter the trust."

Mr. PEEL. Now, Mr. Chairman, if no other gentleman desires to take part in the debate, I shall move that the committee rise.

Mr. HOLMAN. I believe I have a few minutes left.

Mr. PEEL. I did not know whether the gentleman desired to occupy the time he had left.

Mr. HOLMAN. I believe I have thirteen minutes left.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Indiana has thirteen minutes left.

Mr. HOLMAN. I yield four minutes to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. SMITH of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I think there is enough involved in this case to demand a careful consideration from this House.

One reason assigned why we should adopt the resolution offered by the gentleman from Arkansas is that after a long and labored debate in the Senate that body agreed that this ought to be done. While I have great respect for the opinion of the gentlemen at the other end of this Capitol, I am not disposed always to accept their decisions in every matter, and especially do I feel in this case that we ought to give the pending question a little more consideration than has been given to it. In addition to the suggestions offered by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] in opposition to this resolution, I desire to call the attention of the House to a reference made to the same subject by the President in his last annual message, which I think we ought to consider in connection with this resolution. The President says:

In a special message to this Congress at the last session I stated the reasons why I had not approved the deed for the release to the United States by the Choctaws and Chickasaws of the lands formerly embraced in the Cheyenne and Arapaho Reservation and remaining after allotments to that tribe. A resolution of the Senate expressing the opinion of that body that, notwithstanding the facts stated in my special message, the deed should be approved and the money, $2,991,450, paid over, was presented to me May 10, 1892. My special message was intended to call the attention of Congress to the subject, and in view of the fact that it is conceded that the appropriation proceeded upon a false basis as to the amount of lands to be paid for, and is by $50,000 in excess of the amount they are entitled to (even if their claim to the land is given full recognition at the rate agreed upon), I have not felt willing to approve the deed, and shall not do so, at least until both Houses of Congress have acted upon the subject. It has been informally proposed by the claimants to release this sum of $50,000, but I have no power to demand or accept such a release, and such an agreement would be without consideration and void.

Now, Mr. Chairman, if these are the facts and if the amount appropriated is $50,000 in excess of what ought to be paid to these Indians, even if their title is good, it certainly seems to me that we ought to take time to properly consider this matter before acting upon it finally.

Mr. PEEL. Is my friend aware that we have already this morning passed a joint resolution covering that excess into the Treasury?

Mr. SMITH of Illinois. I was not aware of that, although I have been in the House nearly all the morning. But even if that be the case, yet, from the discussion here this morning, as well as on the passage of the appropriation bill, and from the discussion in the Senate, it seems that there is a wide difference of opinion among members of the House as to the rights of these Indians in this matter, and therefore I think the subject should be fully considered before we act finally upon it.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I wish to occupy a few moments more. My friend from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL] made the statement, I think, that even the $300,000 had not been paid. Now, the President says in distinct terms:

The United States paid to the Choctaws and Chickasaws, $300,000.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Speaker, I did not make the statement which my friend attributes to me. I said that no part of that money went for the land.

Mr. HOLMAN. Now, Mr. Speaker, I admit the plausibility of the argument of my friend from Texas [Mr. CULBERSON]—he always argues well—but I must insist that the preliminary proposition made to the Indians or by the Indians can not properly be considered in this matter. It is the final treaty that must govern, and I do not think the House should go back of that treaty. I hope there will be no misunderstanding about this matter. The first treaty is too clear to talk about. It says:

The Choctaw Indians do hereby absolutely and forever quitclaim and relinquish to the United States all their right, title, and interest in and to any and all lands west of the one hundredth degree of west longitude, and the Choctaws and Chickasaws do hereby lease to the United States all that portion of their common territory west of the ninety-eighth degree of west longitude for the permanent settlement of the Wichitas and such other tribes or bands of Indians as the Government may desire to locate thereon

What could be more specific than that? We acquired this lease, as expressly declared here, for the purpose of settling upon these lands the Wichitas and such other tribes as the United States might think proper to settle there.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Arkansas. But there is a further limitation, if the gentleman will read on—such other tribes within certain limits.

Mr. HOLMAN. My friend ought to have read this in his own time. Here is a clear lease of these lands for the purpose of settling friendly Indians upon them, yet gentlemen are now claiming that the subsequent treaty of 1866 had exactly the same object in view, namely, to provide for the settlement of friendly Indians upon these lands, and now we are called upon to pay nearly $3,000,000 more for a right which we had absolutely acquired by the treaty of 1866.

Notwithstanding the plausible argument of my friend from Texas this treaty of 1866 could not possibly have any meaning if it was designed to confirm a right we had already acquired. The President of the United States in his special message has stated this matter very well.

I understand my friend from Arkansas to state in regard to the $800,000 payment under the treaty of 1855 that the Indians did not get that money for the land. Now, let me refer to the language of article 10 of that treaty.

In consideration of the foregoing relinquishment and lease and as soon as practicable after the ratification of this convention, the United States shall pay to the Choctaws the sum of $600,000, and to the Chickasaws the sum of $200,000, in such manner as their general councils shall respectively direct.

We paid $800,000 for the lease of the land upon which to settle friendly Indians; and subsequently, according to the statement of the President in his message, and according to the terms of the treaty, we paid the $300,000 for the absolute property in the land.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Does the provision which the gentleman has just read relate to this same land?

Mr. HOLMAN. Of course it does.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Lands west of the one hundredth meridian?

Mr. HOLMAN. There were no Indian lands west of the one hundredth meridian; they were claiming certain rights which were never conceded. The land involved was between the ninety-eighth meridian and the one hundredth. We leased the land in the first place for the purpose of settling friendly Indians upon it; then we extinguished the title of the Indian absolutely; and now it is proposed that we pay $3,000,000 more for this land which is already ours.

I am content, Mr. Speaker, to leave the matter right here. I hope this Committee of the Whole will sustain the message of the President, and not take action which will operate to direct the payment of this money.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Chairman, I have no doubt the gentleman would be glad to let the matter rest right here if he could induce this Committee of the Whole to accept his statement as correct. I do not mean to imply that he has intentionally misstated the facts. But with the provision right before his eyes declaring that the $800,000 paid under that treaty of 1855 was in consideration of the relinquishment of all right, title, and claim of the Choctaws and Chickasaws to lands west of the one hundredth meridian, he says, in reply to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR], that we did not have any such lands. Why, sir, we had over 6,000,000 acres, and the sum named was not 6 cents an acre.

Mr. HOLMAN. Will my friend allow me a moment?

Mr. PEEL. I ask my friend to wait and not speak in my time.

Mr. HOLMAN. I ask the gentleman to read the tenth article of the treaty, so that the House may not be misled.

Mr. PEEL. If we did not have any land west of the one hundredth meridian, we had covenanted with those Indians on that basis; we had issued to them patents for that land; and I presume that when a man makes a deed for certain land which he does not own he is answerable as if he had owned it?

Mr. HOLMAN. Did we not have the land?

Mr. PEEL. I say we did, and the gentleman says we did not. I now say that it does not make any difference whether we did or did not have the land. We had, in 1820, executed the treaty with these Indians providing for a conveyance to them of 6,000,000 acres of land west of the one hundredth meridian. If we did not have the land, then the Indians were to that extent the losers, and I presume we ought to make good their loss. But we did have the land. As I have said, the $800,000 mentioned in that treaty was absolutely not 6 cents an acre for the 6,000,000 acres. And now the gentleman from Indiana wants to make this Committee of the Whole believe that the money paid under that treaty was a part of the consideration for the lease of the district west of the ninety-eighth meridian.

Mr. HOLMAN. I refer the gentleman to what the treaty says.

Mr. PEEL. The lease was with the object of putting certain specified Indians on the lands, reserving to the Indians making the lease the right to put their own people there also. As Secretary Schurz has said, the cession of 1866 superseded the lease which was made in 1855, but the purpose of the Government continued the same; the trust was not changed. The official report made by the Secretary of the Interior on this subject a few years after the making of the treaty has been read by the Clerk.

I am surprised to hear gentlemen who have investigated this question make here such statements as have been made. I challenge any gentleman to establish the contrary of what I have stated. I have investigated this question from beginning to end, and it has been investigated by men far the superiors of my friend from Indiana or myself in legal ability. Judge Parker, of the Federal court at Fort Smith, has gone over this whole question in a judicial judgment and has declared from the bench that these lands were held in trust by the Government, every single foot of them, under the treaty of 1866. Secretary Schurz, as the gentleman from Texas has said, decided this question officially.

Secretary Kirkwood followed in his footsteps, and decided the same way. Secretary Teller followed in the same line and gave identically the same decision. And as the gentleman from Texas has said, no officer of this Government, judicial or otherwise, ever questioned that decision until this matter arose in the last Congress.

Mr. Chairman, how much time have I remaining?

The CHAIRMAN. Five minutes.

Mr. PEEL. If the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] has anything more to say, I reserve the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Indiana has four minutes.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, I wish to read again the tenth article of the treaty of 1855, and to call the attention of my friend from Arkansas again to the misapprehension into which he has fallen:

In consideration of the foregoing relinquishment—

That is the relinquishment of lands west of the one hundredth meridian—

In consideration of the foregoing relinquishment and lease—

Lease of what? Lease of lands west of the ninety-eighth meridian.

And as soon as practicable after the ratification of this convention the United States shall pay to the Choctaws the sum of $600,000, and to the Chickasaws the sum of $200,000, in such manner as their general councils shall respectively direct.

In consideration of the foregoing relinquishment and lease—

And yet my friend from Arkansas thinks we never paid for this land at all.

I reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. PEEL. Well, I do not care to conclude until the gentleman exhausts the time on his side. I think I have the closing. If the gentleman does not choose to continue his remarks, I will close the debate. [Cries of "Vote!" "Vote!"]

Mr. HOLMAN. I shall not occupy further time.

Mr. PEEL. I will only say that if the gentleman would carefully examine the matter he will find that so far as the cession of land west of the one hundredth meridian was concerned it came from the Choctaws alone.

Mr. HOLMAN. Why, then, were the Chickasaws paid $200,000?

Mr. PEEL. Why were they paid that sum? Why, because we got over 6,000,000 acres of land for the $800,000, and conceded that much to the Chickasaws.

I move now that the committee rise and report the resolution favorably to the House.

Mr. DINGLEY. I desire, Mr. Chairman, to take the floor for a few minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. There remains but two minutes on the side of the gentleman from Indiana, which the Chair understood was relinquished, and three on the other side.

Mr. DINGLEY. I would like about five minutes.

Mr. HOLMAN. I hope the gentleman from Maine will be allowed that time.

Mr. PEEL. I think the debate, Mr. Chairman, has been ample. We have agreed as to the time, and I do not want to reopen this discussion.

Mr. DINGLEY. But I understood the time had not expired.

Mr. PEEL. I believe the gentleman from Indiana has two minutes remaining.

Mr. HOLMAN. I will yield that to the gentleman if it will be of any service to him.

Mr. DINGLEY. It would be hardly worth while to undertake to say anything in that time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question then is on the motion of the gentleman from Arkansas, that the committee rise and report the resolution favorably to the House.

The question was taken; and on a division there were—ayes 98, noes 18.

Mr. HOLMAN. There is no quorum; but with the understanding that there may be a yea-and-nay vote in the House that point will not be insisted upon.

Mr. PEEL. The gentleman from Indiana has a right to ask for the yeas and nays in the House.

Mr. HOLMAN. I know; but I want it to be agreed in committee——

Mr. KILGORE. I make the point that no quorum has voted.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will appoint as tellers the gentleman from Texas [Mr. KILGORE] and the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL].

Mr. PEEL. I have no objection, Mr. Chairman, to agreeing that there shall be a yea-and-nay vote in the House.

Mr. KILGORE. But that does not meet the proposition.

Mr. PEEL. I agree to his request for a yea-and-nay vote.

Mr. KILGORE. Mr. Chairman, as that was the proposition of the gentleman from Indiana, I will be content with that understanding myself and withdraw the point.

Mr. HOLMAN. Let it be agreed that there shall be a yea-and-nay vote in the House.

The CHAIRMAN. Of course such an agreement does not bind the House.

Mr. HOLMAN. Certainly not, but it binds the honor of gentlemen.

Mr. PEEL. There will be no doubt about that in the House.

Mr. HOLMAN. If the gentleman himself will favor it——

Mr. PEEL. Certainly.

Mr. HOLMAN. Then of course it will be carried out in good faith.

Mr. KILGORE. I withdraw the point of order.

So (no further count being demanded) the motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. OUTHWAITE reported that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, having had under consideration a resolution relating to the awards of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians, had directed him to report the same to the House with a favorable recommendation.

Mr. PEEL. I ask the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the adoption of the resolution just reported from the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. HOLMAN. On that it was understood that the yeas and nays were to be taken.

Mr. PEEL. That was the agreement.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 163, nays 47, not voting 119; as follows:

YEAS—163.

Alderson,	Clark, Wyo.	Houk, Tenn.	Pierce,
Alexander,	Clover,	Johnson, Ind.	Post,
Allen,	Cobb, Mo.	Johnson, N. Dak.	Powers,
Amerman,	Coburn,	Jolley,	Price,
Andrew,	Cockran,	Kem,	Randall,
Antony,	Coolidge,	Kribbs,	Reyburn,
Arnold,	Cooper,	Lagan,	Richardson,
Atkinson,	Covert,	Lanham,	Robertson, La.
Babbitt,	Cox, N. Y.	Lapham,	Rockwell,
Barwig,	Crosby,	Lawson, Va.	Scott,
Belden,	Culberson,	Lawson, Ga.	Scull,
Belknap,	Cummings,	Layton,	Seerley,
Bentley,	Cutting,	Long,	Shonk,
Boatner,	Daniell,	Loud,	Simpson,
Bowers,	De Armond,	Lynch,	Sperry,
Bowman,	Dixon,	Mallory,	Springer,
Branch,	Doan,	McKaig,	Stewart, Tex.
Brawley,	Dockery,	McKeighan,	Stockdale,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Donovan,	McKinney,	Stone, C. W.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Durborow,	McLaurin,	Stone, Ky.
Bretz,	English,	McRae,	Stump,
Brickner,	Enloe,	Meyer,	Tarsney,
Broderick,	Enochs,	Miller	Taylor, J. D.
Brookshire,	Epes,	Mitchell,	Taylor, V. A.
Brown, Ind.	Everett,	Moore,	Terry,
Brunner,	Forman,	Mutchler,	Tillman,
Buchanan, Va.	Funston,	Newberry,	Townsend,
Bullock,	Fyan,	Oates,	Tracey,
Burrows,	Gantz,	O'Ferrall,	Tucker,
Busey,	Geary,	Ohliger,	Turpin,
Byrns,	Geissenhainer,	O'Neill, Pa.	Van Horn,
Cable,	Gillespie,	Otis,	Warner,
Campbell,	Gorman,	Outhwaite,	Wheeler, Ala.
Caruth,	Grady,	Owens,	White,
Castle,	Greenleaf,	Page,	Wike,
Catchings,	Haynes, Ohio	Parrett,	Williams, N. C.
Cate,	Heard,	Pattison, Ohio	Wilson, Wash.
Causey,	Hilborn,	Peel,	Wilson, Mo.
Cheatham,	Hoar,	Pendleton,	Wilson, W. Va.
Chipman,	Hooker, N. Y.	Perkins,	Winn.
Clancy,	Houk, Ohio	Pickler,

NAYS—47.

Abbott,	Capehart,	Halvorson,	Pearson,
Bacon,	Cobb, Ala.	Hamilton,	Robinson, Pa.
Bankhead,	Cox, Tenn.	Hare,	Smith,
Beltzhoover,	Crawford,	Harries,	Snodgrass,
Bergen,	Davis,	Henderson, N. C.	Snow,
Blanchard,	Dingley,	Holman,	Stephenson,
Bland,	Dunphy,	Kilgore,	Steward, Ill.
Blount,	Elliott,	Kyle,	Stone, W. A.
Broslus,	Fitch,	Lane,	Stout,
Buchanan, N. J.	Forney,	Mansur,	Turner,
Butler,	Griswold,	O'Donnell,	Williams, Ill.
Bynum,	Hall,	Patton,

NOT VOTING—119.

Bailey,	Flick,	Little,	Russell,
Baker,	Fowler,	Livingston,	Sanford,
Bartine,	Goodnight,	Lockwood,	Sayers,
Beeman,	Grout,	Lodge,	Shell,
Bingham,	Hallowell,	Magner,	Shively,
Boutelle,	Harmer,	Martin,	Sipe,
Brown, Md.	Harter,	McAleer,	Stahlnecker,
Bryan,	Hatch,	McClellan,	Stevens,
Bunn,	Haugen,	McCreary,	Storer,
Bunting,	Hayes, Iowa	McGann,	Sweet,
Bushnell,	Hemphill,	McMillin,	Taylor, Ill.
Cadmus,	Henderson, Iowa	Meredith,	Taylor, Tenn.
Caldwell,	Henderson, Ill.	Milliken,	Taylor, E. B.
Caminetti,	Herbert,	Montgomery,	Wadsworth,
Clarke, Ala.	Hermann,	Morse,	Walker,
Cogswell,	Hitt,	Moses,	Washington,
Compton,	Hooker, Miss.	Norton,	Watson,
Coombs,	Hopkins, Pa.	O'Neil, Mass.	Waugh,
Cowles,	Hopkins, Ill.	O'Neill, Mo.	Weadock,
Crain,	Huff,	Patterson, Tenn.	Wever,
Curtis,	Hull,	Payne,	Wheeler, Mich.
Dalzell,	Johnson, Ohio	Paynter,	Whiting,
De Forest,	Johnstone, S. C.	Quackenbush,	Willcox,
Dickerson,	Jones,	Raines,	Williams, Mass.
Dolliver,	Kendall,	Ray,	Wilson, Ky.
Dungan,	Ketcham,	Rayner,	Wise,
Edmunds,	Lester, Ga.	Reed,	Wolverton,
Ellis,	Lester, Va.	Reilly,	Wright,
Fellows,	Lewis,	Rife,	Youmans.
Fithian,	Lind,	Rusk,

So the resolution was agreed to.

The Clerk announced the following pairs:

Until further notice:

Mr. MCCREARY with Mr. MORSE.

Mr. PAYNTER with Mr. MILLIKEN.

Mr. GOODNIGHT with Mr. KETCHAM.

Mr. MONTGOMERY with Mr. WEVER.

Mr. ELLIS with Mr. HUFF.

Mr. HATCH with Mr. HARMER.

Mr. WILLCOX with Mr. RUSSELL.

Mr. WASHINGTON with Mr. SANFORD.

Mr. FITHIAN with Mr. TAYLOR of Tennessee.

Mr. LESTER of Georgia with Mr. LODGE.

Mr. CLARKE of Alabama with Mr. HOPKINS of Illinois.

For this day:

Mr. DICKERSON with Mr. QUACKENBUSH.

Mr. SAYERS with Mr. BINGHAM.

Mr. MCMILLIN with Mr. COGSWELL.

Mr. CRAIN with Mr. TAYLOR of Illinois.

Mr. HOOKER of Mississippi with Mr. FLICK.

Mr. MOSES with Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa.

Mr. REILLY with Mr. PAYNE.

Mr. HERBERT with Mr. HERMANN.

Mr. JOHNSTONE of South Carolina with Mr. RIFE.

Mr. NORTON with Mr. RAY.

Mr. LIVINGSTON with Mr. GROUT.

Mr. CAMINETTI with Mr. SWEET.

Mr. BRYAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to vote.

The SPEAKER. Was the gentleman in his seat and listening, and did he fail to hear his name?

Mr. BRYAN. I was in during the roll call, but not when my name was passed.

The SPEAKER. Not until it was passed?

Mr. BRYAN. Not until it was passed.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not think he can entertain the request.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

On motion of Mr. PEEL, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

The SPEAKER. The resolution the title of which the Clerk will report was referred to the Committee on Rules.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolution to investigate certain rulings and practices in the Post-Office Department.

The SPEAKER. The Committee on Rules ask to be discharged from the further consideration of the resolution, and that it be referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads. Without objection it will be so referred.

There was no objection.

AGREEMENT WITH THE KICKAPOO INDIANS.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (H. R. 7633) to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Kickapoo Indians in the Oklahoma Territory, and to make appropriations for carrying the same into effect.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will call the attention of the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL] to the fact that this bill is on the Union Calendar and must first be considered in the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. PEEL. I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union for the purpose of considering this bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the purpose of considering the bill H. R. 7633, with Mr. OUTHWAITE in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will proceed with the reading of the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Whereas David H. Jerome, Alfred M. Wilson, and Warren G. Sayre, duly appointed commissioners on the part of the United States, did, on the 9th day of September, 1891, conclude an agreement with the Kickapoo Indians in Oklahoma Territory, formerly a part of the Indian Territory, which said agreement is as follows:

"Articles of agreement made and entered into on the Kickapoo Reservation, in the Indian Territory, on the 21st day of June, A. D. 1891, by and between David H. Jerome, Alfred M. Wilson, and Warren G. Sayre, commissioners on the part of the United States, and the Kickapoo tribe of Indians, in the Indian Territory, and completed at the city of Washington, D. C., on this 9th day of September, 1891.

"ARTICLE I.

"The said Kickapoo tribe of Indians in the Indian Territory hereby cede, convey, transfer, and relinquish, forever and absolutely, without any reservation whatever, all their claim, title, and interest of every kind and character in and to the lands embraced in the following-described tract of country in the Indian Territory, to wit:

"Commencing at the southwest corner of the Sac and Fox Reservation; thence north along the western boundary of said reservation to the Deep Fork of the Canadian River; thence up said Deep Fork to the point where it intersects the Indian meridian; thence south along said Indian meridian to the North Fork of the Canadian River; thence down said river to the place of beginning.

"ARTICLE II.

"In consideration of the cession recited in the foregoing article, the United States agrees that in said tract of country there shall be allotted to each and every member, native and adopted, of said Kickapoo tribe of Indians in the Indian Territory, 80 acres of land, to conform in boundary to the legal surveys of said land. Each and every member of said tribe of Indians over the age of 18 years shall have the right to select for himself or herself 80 acres of land, to be held and owned in severalty; and that the father, or, if he be dead, the mother shall have the right to select a like amount of land, under the same restrictions, for each of his or her children under the age of 18 years; and that the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, or someone appointed by him for the purpose, shall select a like amount of land, under the same restrictions, for each orphan child belonging to said tribe under the age of 18 years.

"It is hereby further expressly agreed that no person shall have the right to make his or her selection of land in any part of said tract of country that is now used or occupied, or that has, or may hereafter be, set apart for military, agency school, school farm, religious, town site, or other public uses, or in sections sixteen (16) and thirty-six (36) in each Congressional township; provided, in cases where any member of said tribe of Indians has heretofore made improvements upon, and now occupies and uses, a part of said sections sixteen (16) and thirty-six (36), such person may make his or her selection, according to the legal subdivisions, so as to include his or her improvements. It is further agreed that wherever, in said tract of country, any one of said Indians has made improvements, and now uses and occupies the land embracing such improvements, such Indian shall have the undisputed right to make his or her selection, to conform to legal subdivisions, however, so as to include such improvements.

"ARTICLE III.

"All allotments hereunder shall be selected within ninety days from the ratification of this agreement by the Congress of the United States, provided the Secretary of the Interior in his discretion may extend the time for making such selections; and should any Indian entitled to allotment hereunder fail or refuse to make his or her selection of land in such time, then the allotting agent in charge of said work of making such allotments, shall, within the next thirty (30) days after said time, make allotments to such Indians, which shall have the same force and effect as if the selections had been made by the Indians themselves.

"ARTICLE IV.

"When said allotments of land shall have been selected and taken as aforesaid, and approved by the Secretary of the Interior, the titles thereto shall be held in trust for the benefit of the allottees, respectively, for a period of twenty-five (25) years, in the manner and to the extent provided for in the act of Congress entitled 'An act to provide for the allotment of land in severalty to Indians on the various reservations, and to extend the protection of the laws of the United States and Territories over the Indians, and for other purposes.' Approved February 8, 1887.

"And at the expiration of the said twenty-five (25) years the title thereto shall be conveyed in fee simple to the allottees or their heirs free from all incumbrances, provided the President may at the end of said period extend the time the land shall be so held, in accordance with the provisions of the above-recited act.

"ARTICLE V.

"In addition to the allotments above provided for and the other benefits to be received under the preceding articles, and as the only further consideration to be paid for the cession and relinquishment of title above recited, the United States agrees to pay the said Kickapoo Indians, to be distributed among them per capita under the direction of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the improvement of their said allotments and for other purposes for their benefit, the sum of $64,650; provided, that the number of allotments of land provided for shall not exceed 300. But if the number of allotments shall exceed 300, then there shall be deducted from the said sum of $64,650 the sum of $50 for each allotment in excess of the 300; provided, however, that should the Kickapoos elect to have any or all of said money in the Treasury of the United States it shall bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum after the ratification by Congress of this contract.

"ARTICLE VI.

"It is hereby further agreed that wherever, in this reservation, any religious society or other organization is now occupying any portion of said reservation for religious or educational work among the Indians the land so occupied may be allotted and confirmed to such society or organization, not however to exceed one hundred and sixty (160) acres of land to any one society or organization, so long as the same shall be so occupied and used, and such land not be subject to homestead entry.

"ARTICLE VII.

"This agreement shall have effect whenever it shall be ratified by the Congress of the United States.

"In witness whereof the said commissioners on the part of the United States have hereunto set their hands and the undersigned, members of the said tribe of Kickapoo Indians in the Indian Territory, have set their hands the day and year first above written.

"DAVID H. JEROME,
"ALFRED M. WILSON,
"WARREN G. SAYRE,
"Commissioners on the part of the United States."

"KICKAPOO VILLAGE, August 16, 1891.

At a special council called to elect delegates to send to Washington to make deals with the Government about our homes, we give Oc qua Noc a Sey and Kee Soc cau mee waw, and John T. Hill full power and authority to deal with the Government or Commission, and they have full power to settle with them or the Government of the United States of America.

During the reading

Mr. PEEL said: Mr. Chairman, this contract is very long, and it will be taken up by sections anyway. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the first reading. Then we can go on and take the bill up by sections.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think we should have it read through.

The Clerk resumed and completed the reading as above stated.

Mr. PEEL. I ask unanimous consent that the Clerk omit the names signed to this agreement. There are a lot of Indian names, and of course it is not necessary to read them.

The CHAIRMAN. If there is no objection, it will be so ordered.

The Chair hears no objection.

Mr. PEEL. I now hope the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] will accept my suggestion as to the first reading of the bill. I want to say in justice to the Committee on Indian Affairs that the contract with the Cherokees is the most important measure we have. I should have called up that bill in preference to this, but this is unfinished business coming over from the last session, and I am directed by the committee to call up this bill. Therefore I am compelled to do so, but I hope to get through with it and to reach the contract with the Cherokees.

Mr. HOLMAN. I hope my friend will not take up the Cherokee contract to-day.

Mr. PEEL. I thought we might get through with this small matter and then we could reach the Cherokee bill and get it in the RECORD.

Mr. HOLMAN. Very few of us have had an opportunity to examine this bill.

Mr. PEEL. The Cherokee bill can be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. HOLMAN. I was not aware that the Committee on Indian Affairs were to have to-day.

Mr. PEEL. It was made a special order for to-day. We want to get the Cherokee bill before the people, and then, when it comes up on another day, gentlemen will be familiar with it.

Mr. HOLMAN. I will consent to waive the first reading of this bill now under consideration, of course with the understanding that it will be read by sections for amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. If there is no objection the first formal reading of the bill will be dispensed with.

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will now read the bill by sections.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 3. That whenever any of the lands acquired by this agreement shall, by operation of law or proclamation of the President of the United States, be open to settlement or entry, they shall be disposed of (except sections 16 and 36 in each township thereof) to actual settlers only, under the provisions of the homestead and town-site laws (except section 2301 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, which shall not apply): Provided, however, That each settler on said lands shall, before making a final proof and receiving a certificate of entry, pay to the United States for the land so taken by him, in addition to the fees provided by law, and within five years from the date of the first original entry, the sum of $1.50 cents an acre; but the rights of honorably discharged Union soldiers and sailors, as defined and described in sections 2304 and 2305 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, shall not be abridged, except as to the sum to be paid as aforesaid, and such person, having complied with all the laws relating to such homestead settlement, may, at his option, receive a patent therefor at the expiration of twelve months from date of settlement upon said homestead; and any person otherwise qualified who has attempted to, but for any cause failed to, secure a title in fee to a homestead under existing law shall be qualified to make a homestead entry upon said lands.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Chairman, I wish to call the attention of my friend from Arkansas to what seems to be an inconsistency in this section. It reads as follows:

SEC. 3. That whenever any of the lands acquired by this agreement shall, by operation of law or proclamation of the President of the United States, be open to settlement or entry, they shall be disposed of (except sections 16 and 36 in each township thereof) to actual settlers only, under the provisions of the homestead and town-site laws (except section 2301 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, which shall not apply).

Now, that is a pure homestead provision; but further on down there is a further modification of the homestead law proposed, which I hope my friend will not insist upon. That the rights of honorably discharged Union soldiers and sailors—shall not be abridged, except as to the sum to be paid as aforesaid, and such person, having complied with all the laws relating to such homestead settlement, may, at his option, receive a patent therefor at the expiration of twelve months from date of settlement upon said homestead.

Mr. PEEL. I will ask my friend if that is not already the law?

Mr. HOLMAN. It is not the law except as to one lot of land. When the original Oklahoma bill was passed there was a provision which was afterwards modified so as to change the period, I believe.

Mr. HARVEY. To twelve months.

Mr. HOLMAN. Now, at the time when that occurred special attention was not called to it, and my observation was, that when that land was opened, and the land still farther west, a large number of persons took advantage of that provision, went there, and settled upon the land simply for the purpose of speculation. This Kickapoo land is one of the best bodies of land in the Indian Territory. It is on the North Fork of the Canadian River, is well watered, heavily timbered, and is very valuable for agricultural purposes. Now, I submit to my friend that the period in which commutation could be made under the homestead law ought not to be cut down.

Mr. HARVEY. It is the same as it is now. They can commute after fourteen months' residence.

Mr. HOLMAN. We repealed the preëmption law, so that if that section 2301 of the Revised Statutes does not apply it would be just as well to leave it there; but since that was put in the original bill we have repealed the preëmption law.

Mr. PICKLER. Anybody can commute after fourteen months' residence under the general homestead law——

Mr. HOLMAN. Oh, no.

Mr. PICKLER. At $1.25 per acre. Under the old law the soldier who served four years must at least have resided one year on the land, as this provides.

Mr. HOLMAN. Do you mean the act of March 3, 1891, provided that?

Mr. PICKLER. Yes, sir. It reduces the commutation to any person to fourteen months' residence and $1.25 per acre. This compels the soldier to live on the land twelve months.

Mr. HOLMAN. My recollection was that that only applied to the land we got from the Sioux Indians.

Mr. PICKLER. That is general with homestead land.

Mr. HOLMAN. Then, Mr. Chairman, I suggest that this be put on the same basis of fourteen months. I think that this is one of the bad features of that bill. When Oklahoma was opened there were hundreds of persons who went into that Territory just simply for the purpose of speculation. I move to strike out the words "twelve months" and insert "fourteen months." And, gentlemen, I think you should, in spite of the precedent which has been set, be more restrictive in this matter, because there is very little land remaining that is subject to homestead settlement; and I warn you that you are opening this land to speculation, in spite even of this limitation of fourteen months.

Mr. HARVEY. This is not for speculation. Farm meets farm, and there is no danger of its not being occupied. We want to make the land taxable as rapidly as possible.

Mr. HOLMAN. It would all be taxed, but it would all be occupied if you apply the homestead law to it. Hundreds of persons would settle on these lands for speculative purposes, remain there fourteen months, and sell them, and then return to their original homes in different States, so that very few actual settlers would have the benefit of it. I move to strike out "twelve" and insert "fourteen," in line 21.

Mr. PEEL. I am perfectly willing to accept that amendment.

Mr. HOLMAN. I am exceedingly reluctant to see the lands thus thrown open to settlement.

Mr. PICKLER. Now, the gentleman from Indiana would not require a different law or change the homestead law in that section of the country and not change it generally?

Mr. HOLMAN. No, sir.

Mr. PICKLER. The general law allows commutation after fourteen months' residence.

Mr. HOLMAN. But the gentleman will remember that we had to get it through in some form or other so as to get a repeal of the preëmption and timber-culture laws.

The question was taken on the amendment, and it was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Will the chairman of the committee suggest what shall be done with the bill?

Mr. MANSUR. The amendments recommended by the committee have not yet been agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 13, strike out all after the words "fifty dollars," in line 5, to the end of the section.

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

In section 3, after the word "that," inline 1, insert: "$55,000, to be deposited in the Treasury of the United States, and to bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, said interest to be expended annually for the benefit of said Indians in such manner as provided in said agreement. Five thousand one hundred and seventy-two dollars shall be paid to John T. Hill, for services rendered said Indians under contract approved by the Secretary of the Interior, and $4,478 shall be paid to said Indians per capita, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior."

The amendment was agreed to.

New sections 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8, recommended by the committee, which are as follows, were severally agreed to, to wit:

SEC. 4. That within ninety days after the approval of this act the President of the United States shall, by proclamation, declare the lands ceded in said contract, except the allotments provided for of said agreement, to be part of the public domain of the United States and open to settlement by actual settlers and citizens of the United States under the homestead laws of the United States only as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 5. That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized and directed to issue a patent to Samuel Eliza Deweese for the northwest quarter of section 14, township 14, range 10 east, upon his paying all fees provided by law, and $1.50 per acre for said land.

SEC. 6. That no person who is the owner, in his or her own right, of 160 acres of land, or who shall be the owner of real estate in any city or town of the United States the aggregate value of which shall exceed $3,000, shall be allowed to enter or hold any of said lands.

SEC. 7. That no person who has had the benefit of the homestead laws of the United States to the extent of procuring title to as much as 160 acres shall be allowed to take or enter any of the lands embraced in the agreement ratified by this act: Provided, That persons who have homesteaded and procured title to less than 160 acres of land shall be allowed to homestead enough of the lands in said agreement to equal 160 acres.

SEC. 8. That no person who has heretofore made homestead entry of any Indian lands heretofore opened to settlement within the limits of the Territory of Oklahoma or who has occupied or set up claim to any of such lands shall be allowed to homestead or otherwise hold any of the lands embraced in the agreement ratified by this act unless he or she, as the case may be, has lost the same by due process of law upon contest or otherwise.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 9. That all homestead entries of the lands embraced in the agreement ratified by this act shall be initiated by actual location and going upon the land in person by the entryman and commencing substantial and lasting improvements thereon, and the occupant shall file formal application in proper land office, under this act, within four months after date of entry by occupancy.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer an amendment, which I send to the desk.

The amendment was read, as follows:

Section 9, line 3, insert after the word "land" the words "and living on same three months."

The amendment was agreed to.

The amendment as amended was adopted.

Section 10 of the committee amendments was read, as follows:

SEC. 10. That the President shall give at least thirty days' notice before said lands shall be thrown open to settlement; he shall fix the time for entering upon said lands for settlement under this act, which time shall be at least thirty days before the date named for persons to enter; and persons entering upon any of said lands before the time fixed in the President's proclamation shall not only forfeit all rights in and to any of said lands, but shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than $200 nor more than $1,000: Provided, That persons entering under authority of law shall be exempt from the fine prescribed in this section.

Mr. MANSUR. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend by striking out the words "at least thirty days," so as to make the provision read that "the President shall give notice before said lands shall be thrown open to settlement." Let the President issue his proclamation opening the lands to settlement, and let every one be free to go in from that moment. This thirty days' notice, as has been demonstrated, simply draws unscrupulous speculators from every State in the Union, who rush in to get title to tracts of land and then sell their claims within a day, or a week, or a month.

The effect of that provision is to concentrate too many people there for speculative purposes, men who go there simply for speculation and with no intention or desire to make homes. There are thousands of people all through that country who have a sincere and honest desire to take up and settle these lands in good faith, but they are generally people with limited means of locomotion, so that when they go in they must go with an ox team or a slow horse team, while these speculators rush in on fast horses and get the best claims.

I think that gentlemen who are familiar with the location of lands in that region will agree with me that of those who first take possession of locations not one-half remain at the end of thirty days, and my idea is that it would be better to simply authorize the President to declare by proclamation the opening of the lands to settlement on and after a certain date and leave him free to give one day's notice or three days' notice as he sees fit. This thirty days' notice seems in practice simply to put a premium on speculation and rascality.

Mr. DINGLEY. Would not the effect of the gentleman's amendment be to deprive every person who did not reside in the immediate neighborhood of an opportunity to take these lands?

Mr. MANSUR. In a certain sense it would have the effect of depriving some persons of that opportunity; but, as I have suggested, the President may give three days' notice if he sees fit. That ought to be enough. Thirty days' notice enables people to come from California, and from Maine, and from the remotest parts of the country.

Mr. DINGLEY. And why should not a poor citizen of Maine who desires to take up a homestead on these lands be permitted to do so?

Mr. MANSUR. I agree with the gentleman that such persons should be permitted to do so, but it is the speculators I object to.

Mr. DINGLEY. Ah, but you assume that all those who come from these distant States are not honest settlers.

Mr. MANSUR. It is not an assumption. We know by actual observation that the great majority of those who come from these distant States come to make money by speculating in these lands.

Mr. PEEL. Mr. Chairman, I hope the committee will not agree to the amendment of the gentleman from Missouri. My experience is, and I suppose that his will agree with mine, that when lands have been opened for settlement without due notice the effect has been to give an unfair advantage to those living in the immediate neighborhood, and many of whom are there, I may say professionally, for the purpose of taking up these lands to the exclusion of people from a distance who wish to acquire homesteads. If the gentleman will examine the other provision of this bill he will find that these professional land speculators are excluded.

Mr. MANSUR. Not wholly.

Mr. PEEL. Whereas if we require the President to give at least thirty days' notice, every man in the remotest part of the country will know what is going on just as well as the men who live in the neighborhood.

Mr. MANSUR. But suppose the President should give three days' or ten days' notice? The amendment does not prescribe how much notice he shall give.

Mr. PEEL. The bill provides that he shall give not less than thirty days' notice.

Mr. MANSUR. I know it does, but I do not think it ought to.

The amendment was rejected—ayes 5, noes 50.

The Clerk read the committee's amendment, new section 11, as follows:

SEC. 11. That every person who may enter upon and set up claim to any lands embraced in the agreement ratified by this act, knowing that he or she, as the case may be, is not entitled to take and hold the same under this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than $200 nor more than $1,000 and be imprisoned not less than six months for each offense.

Mr. PICKLER. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer an amendment to this section, by adding at the close the following:

Provided, That no person who shall be upon said lands within twenty-four hours previous to the time of the opening of said lands to settlement by the President's proclamation shall acquire title to any such lands.

The amendment was adopted.

The section as amended was agreed to.

Section 12 of the committee's amendment was read, as follows:

SEC. 12. That it shall be unlawful for any person, for himself or for any other person or persons, company, association, or corporation, to directly or indirectly procure any other person or persons, company, association, or corporation to settle upon any of the lands opened to settlement under this act with intent of acquiring the title thereto, and any title so procured shall be absolutely void, and all parties, their agents or attorneys, connected in any way, either directly or indirectly, in such fraudulent and unlawful transaction shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined separately and severally in any sum not less than $200 nor more than $1,000, and imprisoned for any period not less than six nor more than twelve months.

The amendment was adopted.

The next section was read and agreed to, as follows:

SEC. 13. That sections numbered 16 and 36 in each township of the lands by this act opened to settlement shall be, and the same are hereby, reserved for the purpose of being applied to the schools, under the provisions of section 18 of the act of Congress entitled "An act to provide a temporary government of the Territory of Oklahoma, to enlarge the jurisdiction of the United States court in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes," approved May 2, 1890.

The Clerk read the following:

SEC. 14. That all lands embraced in the agreement ratified by this act shall be entered under the homestead laws of the United States only: Provided, That each settler shall pay to the United States, as hereinafter provided, in addition to the usual local office fees, $1.50 per acre for each acre: Provided, That the settler in each case may be allowed to pay for the same as follows: One-half of the purchase price at the end of two years from date of entry; the remainder at the end of four years from date of entry: Provided, That in no case shall patent issue until all the purchase money is fully paid.

Mr. HOLMAN. I observe that this provision does not contemplate the payment of any interest.

Mr. PEEL. I do not think we should charge the settler interest. We are charging him more for these lands than the Government pays for them.

The section was agreed to.

Mr. PEEL. I move that the committee rise and report the bill as amended to the House with a favorable recommendation.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. OUTHWAITE reported that the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union having had under consideration the bill (H. R. 7633) to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Kickapoo Indians in Oklahoma Territory, and to make appropriation for carrying the same into effect, had directed him to report the same with amendments, and with the recommendation that it be passed as amended.

Mr. PEEL. I ask the previous question upon the amendments and upon the bill to the engrossment and third reading.

The previous question was ordered.

The question being taken upon agreeing to the amendments (no separate vote being demanded), they were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. PEEL, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

AGREEMENT WITH CHEROKEE INDIANS.

Mr. PEEL. I now call up the bill (H. R. 9190) to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Cherokee Nation of Indians of the Indian Territory, to make appropriation for carrying out the same, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER. This bill is in the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union.

Mr. PEEL. I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the bill.

ADJOURNMENT TILL SATURDAY.

Mr. HOLMAN. Before the question is taken on the motion of the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. PEEL], I desire to submit a motion that when the House adjourns to-day it adjourn to meet on Saturday next.

Mr. PEEL. I have not yielded the floor.

The SPEAKER. The motion of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN] is a privileged motion.

The question was put.

The SPEAKER. The ayes seem to have it.

Mr. BOATNER. I call for a division.

The question being again taken, there were—ayes 88, noes 36.

Mr. BOATNER. No quorum.

Tellers were ordered; and Mr. HOLMAN and Mr. BOATNER were appointed.

Mr. SPRINGER. Let us have the yeas and nays.

Mr. PEEL. I hope the gentleman will not insist on that demand. I am anxious that we shall go into Committee of the Whole on the bill which I have called up, and at least have the bill read.

Mr. SPRINGER. We can not get a quorum except by a call of the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, 57 voting in favor thereof.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 104, nays 66, not voting 159; as follows:

YEAS—104

Alderson,	Cummings,	Kilgore,	Powers,
Allen,	De Armond,	Kribbs,	Price,
Antony,	Dingley,	Lawson, Ga.	Reed,
Babbitt,	Dockery,	Lind,	Reyburn,
Bankhead,	Dolliver,	Livingston,	Robertson, La.
Barwig,	Dunphy,	Long,	Rockwell,
Belden,	Durborow,	Lynch,	Scott,
Belknap,	Forman,	Mallory,	Seerley,
Bentley,	Forney,	McKeighan,	Simpson,
Bland,	Geary,	Miller,	Sipe,
Blount,	Griswold,	Moses,	Smith,
Boatner,	Hallowell,	Newberry,	Springer,
Boutelle,	Halvorson,	O'Donnell,	Stephenson,
Brosius,	Hamilton,	O'Ferrall,	Stockdale,
Bryan,	Harries,	Ohliger,	Stone, C. W.
Bullock,	Harter,	O'Neill, Pa.	Stump,
Burrows,	Hayes, Iowa	Otis,	Tarsney,
Bynum,	Heard,	Outhwaite,	Tracey,
Cable,	Henderson, Ill.	Owens,	Turner,
Cadmus,	Holman,	Patterson, Tenn.	Turpin,
Campbell,	Hooker, N. Y.	Pattison, Ohio	Warner,
Capehart,	Houk, Ohio	Pearson,	Waugh,
Caruth,	Houk, Tenn.	Pendleton,	Wheeler, Ala.
Catchings,	Hull,	Perkins,	White,
Cate,	Johnson, Ind.	Pickler,	Wike,
Coombs,	Jolley,	Post,	Wilson, Wash.

NAYS—66.

Abbott,	Coolidge,	Grady,	Oates,
Alexander,	Cooper,	Hilborn,	Patton,
Amerman,	Covert,	Johnson, N. Dak.	Peel,
Andrew,	Cox, N. Y.	Jones,	Snow,
Atkinson,	Cox, Tenn.	Kem,	Steward, Ill.
Branch,	Crawford,	Kyle,	Stewart, Tex.
Brawley,	Crosby,	Lagan,	Stone, Ky.
Breckinridge, Ky.	Daniell,	Lanham,	Stout,
Bretz,	Davis,	Lapham,	Terry,
Brookshire,	Dixon,	Lawson, Va.	Tillman,
Brunner,	Doan,	Layton,	Tucker,
Busey,	Elliott,	Loud,	Williams, Ill.
Butler,	Enloe,	Mansur,	Wilson, Mo.
Byrns,	Epes,	McKaig,	Winn,
Clark, Wyo.	Everett,	McLaurl	Wise.
Clover,	Gantz,	McRae,
Cobb, Ala.	Gorman,	Meyer,

NOT VOTING—159.

Arnold,	Dalzell,	Kendall,	Robinson, Pa.
Bacon,	DeForest,	Ketcham,	Rusk,
Bailey,	Dickerson,	Lane,	Russell,
Baker,	Donovan,	Lester, Va.	Sanford,
Bartine,	Dungan,	Lester, Ga.	Sayers,
Beeman,	Edmunds,	Lewis,	Scull,
Beltzhoover,	Ellis,	Little,	Shell,
Bergen,	English,	Lockwood,	Shively,
Bingham,	Enochs,	Lodge,	Shonk,
Blanchard,	Fellows,	Magner,	Snodgrass,
Bowers,	Fitch,	Martin,	Sperry,
Bowman,	Fithian,	McAleer,	Stahlnecker,
Breckinridge, Ark.	Flick,	McClellan,	Stevens,
Brickner,	Fowler,	McCreary,	Stone, W. A.
Broderick,	Funston,	McGann,	Storer,
Brown, Ind.	Fyan,	McKinney,	Sweet,
Brown, Md.	Geissenhainer,	McMillin,	Taylor, Ill.
Buchanan, N. J.	Gillespie,	Meredith,	Taylor, Tenn.
Buchanan, Va.	Goodnight,	Milliken,	Taylor, E. B.
Bunn,	Greenleaf,	Mitchell,	Taylor, J. D.
Bunting,	Grout,	Montgomery,	Taylor, V. A.
Bushnell,	Hall,	Moore,	Townsend,
Caldwell,	Hare,	Morse,	Van Horn,
Caminetti,	Harmer,	Mutchler,	Wadsworth,
Castle,	Hatch,	Norton,	Walker,
Causey,	Haugen,	O'Neil, Mass.	Washington,
Cheatham,	Haynes, Ohio	O'Neill, Mo.	Watson,
Chipman,	Hemphill,	Page,	Weadock,
Clancy,	Henderson, Iowa	Parrett,	Wever,
Clarke, Ala.	Henderson, N. C.	Payne,	Wheeler, Mich.
Cobb, Mo.	Herbert,	Paynter,	Whiting,
Coburn,	Hermann,	Pierce,	Willcox,
Cockran,	Hitt,	Quackenbush,	Williams, Mass.
Cogswell,	Hoar,	Raines,	Williams, N. C.
Compton,	Hooker, Miss.	Randall,	Wilson, Ky.
Cowles,	Hopkins, Pa.	Ray,	Wilson, W. Va.
Crain, Tex.	Hopkins, Ill.	Rayner,	Wolverton,
Culberson,	Huff,	Reilly,	Wright,
Curtis,	Johnson, Ohio	Richardson,	Youmans.
Cutting,	Johnstone, S. C.	Rife,

So the motion was agreed to.

The following additional pairs were announced:

Mr. GEISSENHAINER with Mr. BERGEN, until further notice.

Mr. O'NEIL of Massachusetts, with Mr. CURTIS.

Mr. MOORE with Mr. HITT.

Mr. HENDERSON of North Carolina, with Mr. BARTINE.

Mr. STEVENS with Mr. RANDALL, for the rest of this day.

Mr. BOATNER (before the result of the vote was announced). Mr. Speaker, I wish to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

Mr. WILSON of West Virginia. I ask to have my name recorded.

The SPEAKER. The Chair can not entertain the request at this time under the rule.

Mr. BOATNER. I move to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was agreed to.

Mr. SPRINGER. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. BOATNER) there were—ayes 119, noes 9.

So the motion was laid on the table.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted, as follows:

To Mr. BAILEY, indefinitely, on account of sickness in his family.

To Mr. MOSES, indefinitely, on account of sickness in his family.

To Mr. LESTER of Virginia, for the rest of the week, on account of important business.

To Mr. CHEATHAM, indefinitely, on account of sickness.

AGREEMENT WITH THE CHEROKEE INDIANS.

Mr. SPRINGER. I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. PEEL. I hope the gentleman will withdraw that for a moment, as I want to go into Committee of the Whole on the Cherokee bill.

Mr. SPRINGER. Very well.

Mr. PEEL. I want to have the bill printed in the RECORD, and then will move that the committee rise, so that the House can adjourn.

Mr. HOLMAN. I ask unanimous consent to have it printed in the RECORD now.

Mr. PEEL. Then I ask unanimous consent that the bill I sent up recently be printed in the RECORD, and also that the first reading be dispensed with.

Mr. HOLMAN. I think the first reading ought not to be dispensed with; but I do not object to printing the bill in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arkansas that the bill be printed in the RECORD?

There was no objection.

The bill is as follows:

A bill (H. R. 9190) to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Cherokee Nation of Indians of the Indian Territory, to make appropriation for carrying out the same, and for other purposes.

Whereas David H. Jerome, Alfred M. Wilson, and Warren G. Sayre, duly appointed commissioners on the part of the United States, did, on the 19th day of December, 1891, conclude an agreement with Elias C. Boudinot, Joseph A. Scales, George Downing, Roach Young, Thomas Smith, William Triplett, and Joseph Smallwood, duly appointed commissioners on the part of the Cherokee Nation of Indians in the Indian Territory; and

Whereas the Cherokee national council did, by an act approved by the principal chief of the said nation on the 4th day of January, 1892, accept, ratify, and confirm said agreement on behalf of the said Cherokee Nation, which said act of the said national council of the Cherokee Nation is in words and figures as follows, to wit:

An act to ratify and confirm certain articles of agreement by and between the United States and the Cherokee Nation of Indians, in the Indian Territory.

Whereas it is provided by section 14 of the act of Congress entitled "An act making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department, and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes, for the year ending June 30, 1889, and for other purposes," approved March 2, 1889, that—

"SEC. 14. The President is hereby authorized to appoint three commissioners, not more than two of whom shall be members of the same political party, to negotiate with the Cherokee Indians and with all other Indians owning or claiming lands lying west of the ninety-sixth degree of longitude in the Indian Territory, for the cession to the United States of all their title, claim, or interest of every kind or character in and to said lands, and any and all agreements resulting from such negotiation, shall be reported to the President and by him to Congress at its next session, and to the council or councils of the nation or nations, tribe or tribes, agreeing to the same, for ratification, and for this purpose the sum of $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, to be immediately available: Provided, That said commission is further authorized to submit to the Cherokee Nation the proposition that said nation shall cede to the United States, in the manner and with the effect afore-said, all the rights of said nation in said lands upon the same terms as to payment as is provided in the agreement made with the Creek Indians of date January 19, 1889, and ratified by the present Congress; and if said Cherokee Nation shall accept and, by act of its legislative authority duly passed, ratify the same, the said lands shall thereupon become a part of the public domain for the purpose of such disposition as is herein provided, and the President is authorized, as soon thereafter as he may deem advisable, by proclamation, to open said lands to settlement in the same manner and to the same effect as in this act provided concerning the lands acquired from said Creek Indians; but until said lands are opened for settlement by proclamation of the President no person shall be permitted to enter upon and occupy the same, and no person violating this provision shall be permitted to enter any of said lands or acquire any right thereto."

And whereas David H. Jerome, Alfred M. Wilson, and Warren G. Sayre have been duly appointed, qualified, and commissioned as such commissioners; and

Whereas, by an act of the Cherokee national council, approved November 16, 1891, among other things, it is provided:

"That the principal chief is hereby authorized, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint a commission of seven persons, with authority to meet and enter into negotiations with the above-named commission, appointed by the President of the United States, for the cession of the lands of the Cherokee Nation west of the ninety-sixth degree of west longitude, and for the final adjustment of all questions of interest between the United States and the Cherokee Nation which are now unsettled; and it shall be the duty of said commission on the part of the Cherokee Nation to report their proceedings in full to the national council for their approval and ratification, and that of the Cherokee people, in such manner as the national council may decide to be necessary, before the same shall be obligatory and binding on the Cherokee Nation."

And whereas Elias C. Boudinot, Joseph A. Scales, Roach Young, William Triplett, Thomas Smith, Joseph Smallwood, and George Downing have been duly appointed and qualified as such commissioners; and

Whereas said commissioners, so representing the United States upon the one part and the Cherokee Nation upon the other part, have made, concluded, and signed certain articles of agreement in the words and figures following, to wit:

Articles of agreement made and concluded at Tahlequah, in the Indian Territory, on the 19th day of December, A. D. 1891, by and between David H. Jerome, Alfred M. Wilson, and Warren G. Sayre, commissioners on the part of the United States, and Elias C. Boudinot, Joseph A. Scales, George Downing, Roach Young, Thomas Smith, William Triplett, and Joseph Smallwood, commissioners on the part of the Cherokee Nation.

ARTICLE I.

The Cherokee Nation, by act duly passed, shall cede and relinquish all its title, claim, and interest of every kind and character in and to that part of the Indian Territory bounded on the west by the one hundredth degree of west longitude; on the north by the State of Kansas; on the east by the ninety-sixth degree of west longitude, and on the south by the Creek Nation, the Territory of Oklahoma, and the Cheyenne and Arapaho Reservation, created or defined by Executive order dated August 10, 1869. The tract of land embraced within the above boundaries containing 8,144,682.91 acres more or less.

ARTICLE II.

For and in consideration of the above cession and relinquishment the United States agrees:

First. That all persons now residents, or who may hereafter become residents, in the Cherokee Nation, and who are not recognized as citizens of the Cherokee Nation by the constituted authorities thereof, and who are not in the employment of the Cherokee Nation, or in the employment of citizens of the Cherokee Nation, in conformity with the laws thereof, or in the employment of the United States Government, and all citizens of the United States who are not resident in the Cherokee Nation under the provisions of treaty or acts of Congress, shall be deemed and held to be intruders and unauthorized persons within the intent and meaning of section 6 of the treaty of 1835, and sections 26 and 27 of the treaty of July 19, 1866, and shall, together with their personal effects, be removed without delay from the limits of said nation by the United States, as trespassers, upon the demand of the principal chief of the Cherokee Nation. In such removal no houses, barns, outbuildings, fences, orchards, growing crops, or other chattels real, being attached to the soil and belonging to the Cherokee Nation, the owner of the land shall be removed, damaged, or destroyed, unless it shall become necessary in order to effect the removal of such trespassers: Provided always, That nothing in this section shall be so construed as to affect in any manner the rights of any persons in the Cherokee Nation under the ninth article of the treaty of July 19, 1866.

Second. That article 15 of the treaty of July 19, 1866, by and between the United States and the Cherokee Nation, shall be abrogated and held for naught from and after the day that Congress may ratify this agreement providing for such cession and relinquishment of title: Provided, That the rights of any person or persons heretofore acquired under and by virtue of said article 15 shall in no manner, and to no extent whatever, be affected by such abrogation.

Third. The judicial tribunals of the Cherokee Nation shall have exclusive jurisdiction in all civil and criminal cases arising in the Cherokee country, in which members of the Cherokee Nation, by nativity or adoption, shall be the only parties.

Fourth. The United States shall, without delay, render to the Cherokee Nation, through any agent appointed by authority of the national council, a complete account of moneys due the Cherokee Nation under any of the treaties ratified in the years 1817, 1819, 1825, 1828, 1833, 1835-'36, 1846, 1866, and 1868, and any laws passed by the Congress of the United States for the purpose of carrying said treaties, or any of them, into effect; and upon such accounting should the Cherokee Nation, by its national council, conclude and determine that such accounting is incorrect or unjust, then the Cherokee Nation shall have the right within twelve months to enter suit against the United States in the Court of Claims, with the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States by either party, for any alleged or declared amount of money promised but withheld by the United States from the Cherokee Nation, under any of said treaties or laws, which may be claimed to be omitted from, or improperly or unjustly or illegally adjusted in said accounting; and the Congress of the United States shall, at its next session after such case shall be finally decided and certified to Congress according to law, appropriate a sufficient sum of money to pay such judgment to the Cherokee Nation should judgment be rendered in her favor; or if it shall be found upon such accounting that any sum of money has been so withheld, the amount shall be duly appropriated by Congress, payable to the Cherokee Nation, upon the order of its national council, such appropriation to be made by Congress if then in session, and if not, then at the session immediately following such accounting.

Fifth. That any citizen of the Cherokee Nation, who, prior to the 1st day of November, 1891, was a bona fide resident upon and further had, as a farmer and for farming purposes, made permanent and valuable improvements upon any part of the land herein ceded and who has not disposed of the same, but desires to occupy the particular lands so improved as a homestead and for farming purposes, shall have the right to select one-eighth of a section of land, to conform however to the United States surveys; such selection to embrace, as far as the above limitation will admit, such improvements. The wife and children of any such citizen shall have the same right of selection that is above given to the citizen, and they shall have the preference in making selections to take any lands improved by the husband and father that he can not take—until all of his improved land shall be taken.

That any citizen of the Cherokee Nation not a resident within the land herein ceded, who, prior to the 1st day of November, 1891, had for farming purposes made valuable and permanent improvements upon any of the land herein ceded, shall have to select one-eighth of a section of land to conform to the United States surveys; such selection to embrace, as far as the above limitation will admit, such improvements.

It is further agreed and understood that the number of such allotments shall not exceed seventy in number, and the land allotted shall not exceed 5,600 acres; that such allotments shall be made and confirmed under such rules and regulations as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, and when so made and confirmed shall be conveyed to the allottees respectively by the United States in fee simple.

It is further agreed that from the price to be paid to the Cherokee Nation for the cession herein provided for there shall be deducted the sum of $1.40 for each acre so taken in allotment.

Sixth. That in addition to the foregoing enumerated considerations for the cession and relinquishment of title to the lands hereinbefore provided, the United States shall pay to the Cherokee Nation at such time and in such manner as the Cherokee national council shall determine the sum of $8,595,736.12, in excess of the sum of $728,389.46, the aggregate of amounts heretofore appropriated by Congress and charged against the lands of the Cherokees west of the Arkansas River, and also in excess of the amount heretofore paid by the Osage Indians for their reservation. So long as the money, or any part of it, shall remain in the Treasury of the United States after this agreement shall have become effective, such sum so left in the Treasury of the United States shall bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, payable semiannually.

Provided, That the United States may at any time pay to said Cherokee Nation the whole or any part of said sum, and thereupon terminate the obligation of the United States in respect to so much thereof as shall be so paid, and in respect to any further interest upon the same: Provided further, That should the Cherokee Nation determine to distribute said money or any part thereof, principal or interest, to any of its citizens per capita, and should the classes of persons provided for in the ninth and fifteenth articles of the treaty of July 19, 1866, claim that in such distribution they have been unjustly or illegally discriminated against, then, on complaint made by such persons, Congress shall by law authorize a suit in a proper court by and between such classes of persons and the United States and the Cherokee Nation to determine that question, giving to any party thereto the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, and providing that such suit or suits may in proper manner be advanced upon the dockets of such courts to secure a speedy hearing of the same; and the United States shall retain a sufficient sum of such money under its control to adjust and relieve such discrimination, should it be adjudged that such discrimination has been made. It is expressly understood that this agreement ceding and relinquishing the title to the lands herein described shall not be effective for any purpose whatever until it shall in its entirety be ratified by Congress, and the amount of money herein agreed to be paid to the Cherokee Nation for such cession and relinquishment shall have been appropriated by Congress and placed in the Treasury of the United States, subject to the order of the Cherokee national council: Provided further, That nothing contained in this agreement shall have the effect to limit or impair any rights whatever the Cherokee Nation has in or to or over the lands herein ceded until it shall be so ratified by Congress; and Provided further, That if this agreement shall not be ratified by Congress and the appropriation of money, as herein provided for, made on or before March 4, 1893, it shall be utterly void.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands, the day and year first above written.

DAVID H. JEROME,
ALFRED M. WILSON,
WARREN G. SAYRE,
Commissioners on the part of the United States.

ELIAS C. BOUDINOT,
JOSEPH A. SCALES,
ROACH YOUNG,
WILLIAM TRIPLETT,
THOMAS SMITH,
JOSEPH SMALLWOOD,
GEORGE DOWNING.
Commissioners on the part of the Cherokee Nation.

In presence of—

CHAS. S. KING,
W. P. BOUDINOT.

Therefore, be it enacted by the national council, that said agreement be, and the same is hereby, accepted, ratified, and confirmed on the part of the Cherokee Nation, and that the cession and relinquishment of claim, title, and interest recited in the first article of said agreement is hereby made, declared, and enacted to take and have effect in the manner, and at the time, and in accordance with the terms recited in said agreement; and the Cherokee Nation hereby gives its consent that such lands when so ceded and relinquished may be included within the territorial limits and jurisdiction of any State or Territory directed or authorized by Congress of the United Stated: Provided, That the sum of $112 shall be deducted from the per capita share of money of each and every person who may take an allotment of land according to the provisions of said agreement.

Passed the senate January 2, 1892.

T. M. BUFFINGTON,
President of the Senate.

J. L. THOMPSON,
Clerk of Senate.

Concurred in by the council January 4, 1892.

J. B. COBB,
Speaker pro tempore of Council.

W. G. FIELDS,
Clerk of Council.

Approved January 4, 1892.

C. J. HARRIS, Principal Chief.

CHEROKEE NATION, Indian Territory, ss:

I, the undersigned, principal chief of the Cherokee Nation, hereby certify that the foregoing is a full, true, and complete copy of the act of the national council, approved the 4th day of January, 1892, by me as principal chief, as the same appears and remains of record in my office; and I further certify that by the laws of the Cherokee Nation I am the proper person to make such certificate.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed hereto the great seal of the Cherokee Nation, this 7th day of January, 1892.

[SEAL.]

C. J. HARRIS,
Principal Chief, Cherokee Nation.

J. A. SCALES,
Chief Executive Clerk.

Therefore,

Be it enacted, etc., That the agreement recited, accepted, ratified, and confirmed on behalf of the Cherokee Nation in the said act of the national council of that nation be, and the same is hereby, accepted, ratified, and confirmed, subject to the Constitution of the United States.

SEC. 2. That to enable the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, to effect the removal of intruders from within the territory of the Cherokee Nation, as required by the first subdivision of article 2 of said agreement, the sum of $3,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

SEC. 3. That to enable the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, to employ such expert person or persons and assistants as may be necessary to properly render a complete account to the Cherokee Nation of moneys due said nation, as required in the fourth subdivision of article 2 of said agreement, the sum of $5,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

SEC. 4. That for the purpose of making the compensation provided for in said agreement the sum of $8,595,736.12 be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be paid in the manner provided for in article 2 of said agreement.

SEC. 5. That within ninety days after the approval of this act the President of the United States shall, by proclamation, declare the lands ceded in said contract, except the allotments provided for in the fifth article of said agreement, to be part of the public domain of the United States and open to settlement by actual settlers and citizens of the United States under the homestead laws of the United States only, as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 6. That no person who is the owner, in his or her own right, of 160 acres of land, or who shall be the owner of real estate in any city or town of the United States the aggregate value of which shall exceed $3,000, shall be allowed to enter or hold any of said lands.

SEC. 7. That no person who has had the benefit of the homestead laws of the United States to the extent of procuring title to as much as 160 acres shall be allowed to take or enter any of the lands embraced in the agreement ratified by this act: Provided, That persons who have homesteaded and procured title to less than 160 acres of land shall be allowed to homestead enough of the lands in said agreement to equal 160 acres.

SEC. 8. That no person who has heretofore made homestead entry of any Indian lands heretofore opened to settlement within the limits of the Territory of Oklahoma or who has occupied or set up claim to any such lands shall be allowed to homestead or otherwise hold any of the lands embraced in the agreement ratified by this act unless he or she, as the case may be, has lost the same by due process of law upon contest or otherwise.

SEC. 9. That all homestead entries of the lands embraced in the agreement ratified by this act shall be initiated by actual location and going upon the land in person by the entryman and commencing substantial and lasting improvements thereon, and the occupant shall file formal application in proper land office, under this act, within four months after date of entry by occupancy.

SEC. 10. That the President shall give at least thirty day's notice before said lands shall be thrown open to settlement; he shall fix the time for entering upon said lands for settlement under this act, which time shall be at least thirty days before the date named for persons to enter; and persons entering upon any of said lands before the time fixed in the President's proclamation shall not only forfeit all rights in and to any of said lands, but shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than two hundred nor more than one thousand dollars: Provided, That persons entering under authority of law shall be exempt from the fine prescribed in this section.

SEC. 11. That every person who may enter upon and set up claim to any lands embraced in the agreement ratified by this act, knowing that he or she, as the case may be, is not entitled to take and hold the same under this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than $200 nor more than $1,000 and be imprisoned not less than six months for each offense.

SEC. 12. That it shall be unlawful for any person, for himself or for any other person or persons, company, association, or corporation, to directly or indirectly procure any other person or persons, company, association, or corporation to settle upon any of the lands opened to settlement under this act with the intent of acquiring the title thereto, and any title so procured shall be absolutely void, and all parties, their agents or attorneys, connected in any way, either directly or indirectly, in such fraudulent and unlawful transaction shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined separately and severally in any sum not less than $200 nor more than $1,000, and imprisoned for any period not less than six nor more than twelve months.

SEC. 13. That sections numbered 16 and 36 in each township of the lands by this act opened to settlement shall be, and the same are hereby, reserved for the purpose of being applied to the schools, under the provisions of section 18 of the act of Congress entitled "An act to provide a temporary government for the Territory of Oklahoma, to enlarge the jurisdiction of the United States court in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes," approved May 2, 1890.

SEC. 14. That all lands embraced in the agreement ratified by this act shall be entered under the homestead laws of the United States only: Provided, That each settler shall pay to the United States, as hereinafter provided, in addition to the usual local office fees, for all lands lying east of 97½° west longitude, double minimum or $2.50 for each acre; for all lands west of 97½° west longitude and east of 98½° west longitude at $1.50 for each acre; the remainder at $1 for each acre: Provided, That the settler in each case may be allowed to pay for the same as follows: One-half of the purchase price at the end of two years from date of entry; the remainder at the end of four years from date of entry: Provided, That in no case shall patent issue until all the purchase money is fully paid.

SEC. 15. That the money appropriated for the purchase of the lands embraced in this act shall be paid as stipulated in said contract, except a sufficient amount to pay the Delawares their per capita share, which amount shall remain in the Treasury of the United States until the status of said Delaware Indians shall be determined by the courts of the United States before whom their suit is now pending.

SEC. 16. That before the President shall open the lands herein ceded to settlement as provided by this act he shall appoint a commission composed of three competent persons, not more than two of whom shall belong to the same political party, who, after taking usual oath of office, shall, as soon as practicable, lay off said lands into counties, to be numbered 1, 2, 3, etc., said counties not to be less than 20 by 25 miles square, and said counties to be named by the Legislature of the Territory of Oklahoma. When said counties are surveyed and laid off, said commissioners shall proceed to locate a county seat for each county, and when so located the Secretary of the Interior shall direct the amount of lands to be reserved for such county seat, and, when so designated, said commission shall cause said county seat to be surveyed into squares, blocks, lots, streets, and alleys, with such parks as they may think proper, reserving sufficient grounds for the usual county buildings; said commission shall appraise all blocks and lots intended to be sold, and after giving twenty days' notice shall sell the same at public auction to the highest bidder for one-third cash, the remainder on four and eight months' credit, and when all the purchase money has been paid the Secretary of the Interior shall cause patents to issue to the person legally entitled to the same. After all expenses are paid for appraisement and sale of said lots, the remainder shall be paid to the treasurer of the Territory of Oklahoma to the credit of the school fund of the county in which the lots sold are located. In no case shall any town lot be sold for less than the appraised value. The compensation of said commissioners shall be fixed by the Secretary of the Interior.

And then, on motion of Mr. BLAND (at 4 o'clock and 25 minutes p. m.), the House adjourned until Saturday.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, private bills and resolutions were severally reported from committees, delivered to the Clerk, and referred to the Committee of the Whole House, as follows:

By Mr. MOSES, from the Committee on Pensions: A bill (S. 3253) granting a pension to Martha R. Hitchcock. (Report No. 2159.)

By Mr. STONE of Kentucky, from the Committee on War Claims:

A resolution referring the bill (H. R. 4762) for the relief of Adele L. Du Bose, of Hale County, Ala., to the Court of Claims. (Report No. 2160.)

A bill (H. R. 7749) for the relief of Mrs. Margaret Martin. (Report No. 2161.)

A bill (H. R. 9784) for the relief of Joseph W. Parish. (Report No. 2162.)

BILLS, MEMORIALS, AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced, and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. ANTONY: A bill (H. R. 9895) repealing chapter 634, Statutes at Large, on pages 182 and 183, approved June 27, 1890, granting pensions to soldiers and sailors, and to widows, minor children, and dependent parents of soldiers and sailors—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. OUTHWAITE: A bill (H. R. 9896) to reduce the number of officers in and the expenses of the Signal Corps of the Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SIPE: A bill (H. R. 9897) authorizing the construction of a bridge over the Monongahela River at the foot of Main street, in the borough of Belle Vernon, in the State of Pennsylvania—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. DE ARMOND: A bill (H. R. 9898) to appoint a different day for the annual assembling of Congress and to prohibit its meeting or sitting (unless when called in extra session) after the first Monday in November next before the expiration of the term of its members, except to count the vote for President and Vice-President—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BROSIUS: A bill (H. R. 9899) to provide for the improvement of the Federal quarantine service and for the temporary suspension of immigration—to the Select Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. RAYNER: A joint resolution (H. Res. 171) that all drawback certificates outstanding issued by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia under the act of June 2, 1890, shall be receivable for all arrears of general taxes due and unpaid to June 30, 1892—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. DE ARMOND: A joint resolution (H. Res. 172) proposing an amendment to the Constitution for the election of President and Vice-President by the people of the several States, and providing for a judicial determination of Presidential election contest—to the Select Committee on Election of President and Vice-President and Representatives in Congress.

By Mr. BELTZHOOVER: A resolution calling upon the Public Printer for a full and detailed statement of the work of the department, and of names, number, and occupation of all employés therein—to the Committee on Printing.

By Mr. HERBERT: A concurrent resolution to investigate the subject of rank, pay, and other matters relating to the personnel of the United States Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, a resolution to set a day for the consideration of business from the Committee on Naval Affairs—to the Committee on Rules.

PRIVATE BILLS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills of the following titles were presented and referred as indicated below:

By Mr. ANTONY: A bill (H. R. 9900) for the relief of D. P. Gray, M.D.—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. ARNOLD (by request): A bill (H. R. 9901) for the relief of Sarah C. Shell, widow of Philip B. Shell, late of Bollinger County, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also (by request): A bill (H. R. 9902) for the relief of Christian Stamm, of Bollinger County, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also (by request), a bill (H. R. 9903) for the relief of F. M. and Emanuel Hartel, administrators of estate of Jesse Hartel, late of Bollinger County, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also (by request), a bill (H. R. 9904) for the relief of Frank M. Wells, administrator of estate of Joel Bollinger, Bollinger County, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also (by request), a bill (H. R. 9905) for the relief of Millington N. Kinder, of Bollinger County, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9906) for the relief of Napoleon B. Roseann and Augustus Cook, heirs of Jacob L. Cook, late of Bollinger County, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also (by request), a bill (H. R. 9907) for the relief of Jacob M. Kinder, administrator of estate of Israel Kinder, late of Bollinger County, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also (by request), a bill (H. R. 9908) for the relief of William Way, of Stoddard County, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CLANCY: A bill (H. R. 9909) granting increase of pension to Charles F. McFarland, of the United States Navy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9910) for the relief of Robert Swan—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. COMPTON: A bill (H. R. 9911) for the relief of Lemuel J. Mitchell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COX of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 9912) for the benefit of the estate of I. T. Leneave, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CHIPMAN: A bill (H. R. 9913) to remove the charge of desertion against Franklin Benham—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. CRAWFORD: A bill (H. R. 9914) for the relief Samuel M. Tow, of Asheville, N. C.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GROUT: A bill (H. R. 9915) to correct the military record of Ira Holmes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 9916) granting a pension to Jesse Webb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LODGE: A bill (H. R. 9917) to relieve John Hughes of the charge of desertion—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. OHLIGER: A bill (H. R. 9918) granting a pension to Rebecca L. English—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PAYNE: A bill H. R. (9919) granting a pension to Ira Doane—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ROCKWELL: A bill (H. R. 9920) for the relief of Isaac Samuels—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. STEPHENSON: A bill (H. R. 9921) for the relief of Phillip Shell—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. TERRY (by request): A bill (H. R. 9922) authorizing the Secretary of War to place the name of Robert Logan upon the muster rolls of Company K, Second Arkansas Cavalry, and issue an honorable discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By Mr. BABBITT: Petition of Rock County (Wis.) Sunday schools, remonstrating against Congress reconsidering its action relative to the opening of the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. BELTZHOOVER: Resolutions of the Trades' League of Philadelphia, in favor of the enactment of a law encouraging the reciprocal relations and promoting a close commercial union between the United States and other countries—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BERGEN: Petition of the Synod of New Jersey, representing 313 Presbyterian churches, 400 ministers, and 62,000 church members, that Congress will refuse to reverse its action closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sundays—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. BLANCHARD: Resolutions adopted by the Crescent City Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, No. 15, of New Orleans, and the Crescent Harbor, No. 18, American Brotherhood of Steamboat Pilots, opposing legislation admitting foreign vessels to American registration—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. BUCHANAN of New Jersey: Petition of citizens of Trenton, N. J., in favor of an exhibit at the Columbian Centennial of the products of the industry and skill of American citizens of African descent—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, petition of physicians residing at Atlantic City, N. J., in favor of an appropriation to pay the expenses of the Pan-American Congress—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. BULLOCK: An appeal of the Chamber of Commerce of the port of Fernandina, Fla., for an emergency appropriation to protect the north jetty at the entrance to said port from destruction—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. CHIPMAN: Papers to accompany House bill to remove the charge of desertion against Franklin Benham—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. CURTIS: Resolutions adopted at the union Thanksgiving service of the Protestant churches in Rensselaer Falls, rendering thanks to God and Congress for the Sabbath closing of the World's Fair—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. DOLLIVER: Memorial of the Methodist Episcopal Preachers' Meeting of Chicago, against the repeal of the law of Congress requiring the gates of the World's Columbian Exposition to remain closed on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, petition of B. A. Plummer and others, of Forest City, Iowa, in favor of repealing the act closing the World's Columbian Exposition on Sundays—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. ENOCHS: Two petitions, one of T. A. Copland and others, and the other of John Rickitt; both against the repeal of the law closing the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. FITCH: Petition of William F. Meehan, for an honorable discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. GROUT: Papers in the case of Sarah M. Hadley, to accompany House bill 5777—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, statement of the War Department, relative to the case of Private Ira Holmes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, papers in pension claim of Jesse Webb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HARTER: Petition of the faculty and students of Otterbein University of Ohio, asking for the closing of the Chicago Exposition on the Sabbath—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

Also, petition of Rilla Craig and other citizens of the Fourteenth Ohio Congressional district, asking to have the World's Fair kept closed on the Sabbath—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. HAYNES of Ohio: Remonstrance of the First Presbyterian Church of Toledo, Ohio, numbering 375 communicants, against the repeal or modification of the action of Congress requiring the gates of the World's Columbian Exposition to be closed on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa: Resolutions by the Presbyterian Synod of Iowa, protesting against opening the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. LYNCH: Petition of H. W. Dufrane, L. M. Nash, and 60 other residents of Wisconsin, praying for the opening of the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. McCLELLAN: Resolution of Tamarack Lodge, No. 39, of the International Association of Machinists of Garrett, Ind., condemning the action of the officers in charge of the Government works of West Troy, N. Y., in discharging a machinist for refusing to run two lathes at the same time, in violation of one of the cardinal principles of the Order—to the Committee on Labor.

By Mr. MARTIN: Petition of 101 citizens of Jay County, Ind., to accompany House bill for the relief of E. D. Pierce—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. OHLIGER: Petition of Rebecca L. English, widow of Lieut. Samuel A. English, One hundred and twentieth Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry, asking for a pension—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PATTISON of Ohio: Petition of the Rev. R. E. Smith and 62 other citizens of Milford, Ohio, against the repeal of the law closing the World's Fair on Sunday—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. PAYNE: Petition of L. R. Muzzy and others, for a life-saving station at the mouth of Salmon River, on Lake Ontario, N. Y.—to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. RANDALL: Petition of Wm. H. Carney and others, of New Bedford, Mass., asking that the Board of Management of the Government exhibit at the World's Fair be allowed to publish certain parts pertaining to labor products—to the Select Committee on the Columbian Exposition.

By Mr. SCOTT: Petition of citizens of Bloomington, Ill., for an appropriation to assist in defraying the expenses of the Pan-American Medical Congress—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. WHEELER of Alabama: Six papers in reference to war claims of citizens of Alabama, as follows: of Cyrus Jones, of Madison County; Susan B. Garner, administratrix of William F. Garner, deceased; of Benjamin Carter, of Madison County; of F. P. Ward, executor of the estate of William Powers, deceased, of Madison County, and of Rhoda Lawler, executrix of the estate of Benjamin Lawler, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. WILSON of West Virginia: Petition of Bryson Hamilton, of Randolph County, W. Va., praying that his war claim be referred to the Court of Claims, under the provisions of the Bowman act—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of the heirs of J. A. Hatton, deceased, late of Randolph County, W. Va., praying that his war claim be referred to the Court of Claims, under the Bowman act—to the Committee on War Claims.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

SATURDAY, December 17, 1892.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of Thursday was read and approved.

STATE AND TERRITORIAL SOLDIERS' HOMES.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting estimate of deficiency in the appropriation for State or Territorial homes for disabled soldiers and sailors for fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, submitted by the Secretary of War; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

QUARANTINE SERVICE DEFICIENCY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting estimate of deficiency in the appropriation for quarantine service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

OFFICERS' QUARTERS, PORT ROYAL, S. C.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting copy of communication from the Secretary of the Navy, relating to the necessity of an additional appropriation for construction of officers' quarters at Port Royal, S. C.; which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

DRY DOCK, PUGET SOUND, WASHINGTON.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting an estimate of appropriation for construction of the dry dock, Puget Sound, Washington, submitted by the Secretary of the Navy; which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

G. T. LARKIN.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting communication from the Attorney-General in reference to the expenses of G. T. Larkin, late deputy marshal, eastern district of Tennessee; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS, WEST POINT.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting extract from the proceedings of the Academic Board, United States Military Academy, concerning the appointment of associate professor of mathematics at that institution; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

ST. MARYS FALLS CANAL, MICHIGAN.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting copy of the report of Col. O. M. Poe, Corps of Engineers, relating to commerce passing St. Marys Falls Canal, Michigan; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

FRENCH SPOLIATION CLAIM.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House communication from the Court of Claims, transmitting copy of the findings of the court in the French spoliation claim arising out of the seizure of the brig Horatio; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

D. K. TENNY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House communication from the Court of Claims, transmitting copy of the findings of the court in the case of D. K. Tinny vs. The United States; which was referred to the Committee on War Claims.

SENATE RESOLUTIONS REFERRED.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House resolutions of the Senate providing for the printing of 23,000 copies of the ninth annual report of the United States Civil Service Commission and 12,000 additional copies of the report of Immigrant Commissioner H. J. Schulteis; which were severally referred to the Committee on Printing.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted, as follows:

To Mr. WASHINGTON, indefinitely, on account of important business.

To Mr. COOLIDGE, until the 22d instant, on account of important business.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

Mr. SCOTT, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that they had examined and found truly enrolled bills and joint resolution of the following titles; when the Speaker signed the same:

A bill (S. 869) to provide an American register for the barge Sea Bird, of Perth Amboy, N. J.;

A bill (S. 1647) to authorize the Alabama Grand Trunk Railroad Company to bridge across the Tallapoosa and Coosa Rivers;

A bill (S. 1956) to make Punta Gorda a subport of entry;

A bill (S. 2451) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to reconvey to Lucius U. Maltby and Louise W. Maltby, his wife, Margaret Elizabeth Lucas, and the Sea Girt Land Improvement Company a piece of land selected as a site for the Squan Inlet light station, New Jersey, but found to be unsuitable for the purpose of said station;

A bill (S. 3188) to extend to Duluth, Minn., the privileges of the first section of an act entitled "An act to amend the statutes in relation to immediate transportation of dutiable goods, and for other purposes," approved June 10, 1880;

A bill (H. R. 6024) for the relief of William H. Taylor; and Joint resolution (S. R. 73) authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the Military Academy at West Point Francisco Alcantara, of Venezuela.

MRS. MARTHA STIFF.

Mr. FORNEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Private Calendar a resolution agreed to by the Committee on War Claims.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the bill (H. R. 8430) for the relief of Mrs. Martha Stiff, of Cherokee County, Ala., now pending in the House, together with all the accompanying papers, be, and the same is hereby, referred to the Court of Claims, in pursuance of the provisions of an act approved March 3, 1887, entitled "An act to provide for the bringing of suits against the Government of the United States," to find and report to the House the facts bearing upon the merits of the claim and all other facts contemplated by the provisions of said act.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. BURROWS. Mr. Speaker, I think that would better come up in the regular way.

Mr. FORNEY. It is simply a resolution to refer the matter to the Court of Claims. There is no money in it.

Mr. BURROWS. I understand that.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Michigan objects.

NIMROD J. SMITH.

Mr. CRAWFORD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 6753) for the relief of Nimrod J. Smith, ex-chief of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians.

The bill was read, as follows:

Whereas Nimrod J. Smith was duly elected principal chief of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians on the 8th day of July, 1880, in accordance with the constitution of the general council of said Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians; and

Whereas the said Nimrod J. Smith duly qualified and entered upon the duties of the principal chief on the 8th day of July, 1880, and served in that capacity until the 5th day of October, 1891; and

Whereas the constitution and by-laws of the general council of the said Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians fixes the salary of principal chief at $500 per annum; and

Whereas the general council in October, 1886, passed upon and allowed the claim of the said Nimrod J. Smith for six years' service as principal chief, amounting to $3,000, and authorized the same to be paid out of any funds placed to the credit of said Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians in the Treasury of the United States: Therefore,

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, directed to pay Nimrod J. Smith $3,000, out of any funds in the Treasury, or otherwise available, set apart for the use and benefit of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians, in compensation for six years' service as principal chief of said Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians.

With an amendment as follows:

Provided, nevertheless, That said Nimrod J. Smith, on payment of the sum so appropriated, shall execute a release in full of all claims whatsoever against said band of Cherokee Indians up to the date of the passage of this act.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this date?

Mr. KILGORE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire why it is that the Cherokee Indians can not settle their own matters with this gentleman, if he was their principal chief, and why the salary can not be paid to him by the consent of the Cherokee Indians?

Mr. CRAWFORD. That is just what we propose to do—to take the amount out of their own funds.

Mr. KILGORE. Why do not they agree to it without coming to Congress?

Mr. CRAWFORD. They have no control of the fund except by an order of Congress. It is entirely under the control of Congress.

Mr. KILGORE. Does this relate to the North Carolina Cherokee Indians?

Mr. CRAWFORD. Entirely. This is a trust fund set apart and placed to the credit of these Indians in the Treasury of the United States.

Mr. KILGORE. Do they consent to this legislation?

Mr. CRAWFORD. Certainly, by an act of their council.

Mr. KILGORE. Then I do not object to it.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The amendment recommended by the committee was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed, was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. CRAWFORD, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

TIMBER-CULTURE LAWS.

Mr. PICKLER. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the immediate consideration of the bill (H. R. 7691) to amend an act entitled "An act to repeal timber-culture laws, and for other purposes."

The bill was read for information.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this bill?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Has that bill been reported favorably by any committee of the House.

Mr. PICKLER. Yes.

Mr. AMERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I object.

FORTIFICATIONS APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Kentucky, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported a bill (H. R. 9923) making appropriations for fortifications and other works of defense, for the armament thereof, for the procurement of heavy ordnance for trial and service, and for other purposes; which was read a first and second time, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed, and referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I desire to give notice that I will call that bill up on the 5th day of January.

Mr. BURROWS. Mr. Speaker, if it is necessary, I wish to reserve all points of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BURROWS] reserves all points of order on the bill.

INCOME TAX.

Mr. OTIS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk, and I ask unanimous consent for its present consideration.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Ways and Means are hereby instructed to consider and report back to the House at an early date House bill 7200, referred to said committee March 14, 1892, being "A bill to equalize the burdens of taxation by creating graduated income tax."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. SPRINGER. I object to it.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will call the committees for reports.

DISTINGUISHING FLAGS AND SYMBOLS ON UNITED STATES VESSELS.

Mr. COOMBS, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, reported back with an amendment the bill (H. R. 9803) for the protection of distinguishing flags and symbols used on vessels of the United States; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

BOARD OF WATER COMMISSIONERS OF ERIE, PA.

Mr. AMERMAN, from the Committee on the Public Lands, reported back with an amendment the bill (H. R. 9826) granting rights and privileges to the board of water commissioners of the city of Erie, Pa.; which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

LOCATION OF LAND SCRIP BY ACTUAL SETTLERS.

Mr. MCRAE, from the Committee on the Public Lands, reported back favorably the bill (H. R. 5111) supplementary to the act of Congress approved January 28, 1879, entitled "An act defining the manner in which certain land scrip may be assigned and located or applied by actual settlers, and providing for the issue of patents in the name of the locator or his legal representatives;" which was referred to the Union Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

FINAL ADJUSTMENT AND SETTLEMENT OF CLAIMS OF ARKANSAS AND OTHER STATES.

Mr. MCRAE, from the Committee on the Public Lands, reported back with amendments the bill (H. R. 9072) to finally adjust and settle the claims of Arkansas and other States under the swamp-land grants, and for other purposes.

The bill and amendments were ordered to be printed.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE ST. LAWRENCE RIVER.

Mr. GEARY, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, reported back, as a substitute for the bill H. R. 9005, a bill (H. R. 9930) for the construction and maintenance of a bridge accross the St. Lawrence River; which was ordered to be printed.

MASONIC MUTUAL RELIEF ASSOCIATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. HEARD, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, reported back with an amendment the bill (S. 2946) to amend an act entitled "An act to incorporate the Masonic Mutual Relief Association of the District of Columbia," approved March 3, 1869; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

CAPITOL, NORTH O STREET AND SOUTH WASHINGTON RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. HEARD, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, reported back with an amendment the bill (S. 2852) to change the name of the Capitol, North O Street and South Washington Railway Company; which was referred to the House Calendar, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

The call of committees for reports was concluded.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The morning hour begins at twenty-two minutes past 12 o'clock.

APPOINTMENTS, RESIGNATIONS, ETC., IN THE CENSUS OFFICE.

Mr. ALDERSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a privileged question. I desire to call up a resolution, which is entitled to consideration. It is a resolution introduced by myself on June 6.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will send up the resolution.

Mr. ALDERSON. It was referred to the Committee on the Eleventh Census, and has not yet been reported back.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Interior be requested to furnish to this House a statement, showing—

First. The names of all persons who have resigned from service in the Eleventh Census since and before November 4, 1890; the place of residence of each of such persons; when appointed as claimed by him or her; the compensation paid to each while in service; how long each of such persons was in service; when the service began and ended in each case, and who recommended the appointment in each case.

Second. Also a statement showing same facts as to persons discharged from said Bureau before and since November 4, 1890, and the cause of such discharge in each case.

Third. Also a statement showing names of all persons appointed to office or employment in the Census Bureau before and since November 4, 1890; the place of residence of each of such persons when appointed as claimed by him or her; the compensation paid to each; when the appointment was made in each case; upon whose recommendation; which of the appointees are still in service, and the cause of any discharge made of appointee.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from West Virginia calls up this resolution.

Mr. ALDERSON. Mr. Speaker, I am informed by the chairman of the subcommittee investigating the Census Office that the information called for in that resolution is desired by the subcommittee, and I hope the House will adopt the resolution.

Mr. DINGLEY. Is unanimous consent asked for the consideration of this resolution?

The SPEAKER. The Chair understands that this is a resolution of inquiry to a head of a Department which had been referred to a committee—at what date?

Mr. ALDERSON. On June 6.

The SPEAKER. And it is called up because the committee failed to report it within a week under the rule. Clause 4 of Rule XXII provides:

4. All resolutions of inquiry addressed to the heads of Executive Departments shall be reported to the House within one week after presentation.

Mr. DINGLEY. And more than a week has elapsed.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman suggests that the resolution was introduced on the 6th of June.

Mr. ALDERSON. I again desire to say, Mr. Speaker, that I am informed by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. FITHIAN], chairman of the subcommittee having in charge the investigation of the Census Office, that the information called for in that resolution is desired by that subcommittee, and that it is really necessary it should be had.

The resolution was agreed to.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The morning hour begins at twenty-six minutes past 12 o'clock, and the Clerk will call the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, the Committee on Military Affairs comes before the Committee on Indian Affairs, and I desire to call up the business of that committee.

The SPEAKER. The Committee on Military Affairs was passed over without prejudice, and the gentleman from Ohio has the right to call up business of that committee, if he desires to do so.

DRILL REGULATIONS.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, I call up Senate joint resolution No. 112, to print and bind 1,000 copies each of the Drill Regulations for Infantry, Cavalry, and Artillery.

The joint resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives, etc., That the Public Printer be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to print from the stereotype plates and bind 1,000 extra copies each of the Drill Regulations for Infantry, Cavalry, and Artillery, and sell the same at the cost price thereof to such persons connected with the militia or National Guard of the States and others as may require their use.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, this joint resolution is made necessary by the great demand coming up from officers of the militia and of the National Guard for copies of these regulations. We have printed a sufficient number for the use of the Army, but not enough to supply the demand coming from the officers of the militia and the National Guard of the several States. They are adopting the tactics of the regular Army, and it is necessary for them to have these books. The joint resolution provides simply for printing the books from the plates already in existence so that they may be sold to these officers. The House committee have thought proper to recommend that the number be increased to 2,000 copies of each, and I offer that amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The Senate joint resolution as amended was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to conform to the amendment.

MILITARY POST, FORT WAYNE, MICH.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, I call up Senate bill No. 985, to provide for the enlargement of the military post at Fort Wayne, Mich. The bill is on the House Calendar.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That to enable the Secretary of War to enlarge the military post at Fort Wayne, Mich., he is hereby authorized to accept, free of cost to the United States, such tract of land adjoining the post of Fort Wayne as in his judgment shall be well adapted and in all respects suitable for military purposes: Provided, That the title shall have been declared valid by the Attorney-General of the United States.

SEC. 2. That in acquiring land for the enlargement of the military post of Fort Wayne, the Secretary of War is authorized to proceed as provided in acquiring land for the enlargement of the military post at Plattsburg, N. Y., by act approved March 3, 1891.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. This bill explains itself. It proposes to acquire without cost to the Government a tract of land adjacent to the Fort Wayne Post, near Detroit. Certain public-spirited citizens propose to donate land for this purpose, and in order that no expense to the Government may be incurred, I think the amendment which I send to the desk should be added to the second section of the bill.

The amendment was read, as follows:

Add to line 6, on page 2, the following:

"Provided, That said lands shall be acquired without cost to the United States."

Mr. BLAND. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman what is the object of enlarging this military post, and how can it be done without cost to the Government ultimately?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. As I stated before, this bill is simply to accept certain lands adjacent to the Fort Wayne Post, which some public-spirited gentlemen propose to donate, so that in future if the Government desires to enlarge that post it can do so without cost.

The bill does not carry, either directly or indirectly, any appropriation in this Congress.

Mr. BLAND. There is another section of the bill relating to a post in New York, I understand.

Mr. OUTHWAITE: That relates to the method of proceeding by condemnation to acquire certain lands. There happens to be a small piece of land there which would probably interfere with the post, and the bill provides for proceeding by condemnation, but the condemnation money is to be paid by these citizens.

The amendment offered by Mr. OUTHWAITE was agreed to.

The Senate bill as amended was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

FORT BROWN, TEX.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (H. R. 9649) to provide for the purchase of Fort Brown, Tex.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the sum of $50,000 be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to enable the Secretary of War to acquire good and valid title for the United States to the Fort Brown reservation, Texas, and to pay and extinguish all claims for the use and occupancy of said reservation: Provided, That no part of this sum shall be paid until a perfect title is vested in the United States; and the full amount of the price, including rent, shall be paid directly to the owners of the property: Provided further, That the owners of said property shall convey a perfect title of the same to the United States, and also relinquish all claims for the use and occupation of said reservation within ninety days after the passage of this act.

SEC. 2. That all acts or parts of acts in anywise conflicting with or contravening the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

The SPEAKER. This bill is in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole. While upon its face it makes an appropriation, the effect of the bill is really to reduce a former appropriation from $160,000 to $50,000.

Mr. OATES. Is there a unanimous report to the committee in favor of this bill?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. There is no minority report.

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Speaker, this relates to a military post in the Congressional district of my colleague, Mr. CRAIN, and I wish to ask the gentleman from Ohio whether the bill meets the approval of my colleague?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I can not answer that. I do not know that the gentleman's colleague appeared before the committee in relation to it. I have an indistinct recollection that he did say that he had no objection to the bill, but I do not like to undertake to speak for him.

Mr. LANHAM. What is the purport of the bill?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. The purpose of the bill is to reduce an appropriation made some years ago to pay the claimants $160,000 for this property, which appropriation has been held up. The report of the committee shows the reasons for proposing at this time to reduce the amount to $50,000. Not only is this bill reported by the present committee, but the Committees on Military Affairs in two previous Congresses reported in favor of reducing the amount to $50,000.

Mr. LANHAM. Well, I do not know whether my colleague would be willing to have the bill considered in his absence.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I do not know as to that. The bill did not emanate from him, and he never gave the subject any attention before the committee that I am aware of, but I know of no objection on his part to this bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio that this bill be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole?

There was no objection, and it was so ordered.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HOLMAN].

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I hardly think I ought to occupy much time on this question, for my memory is not very fresh in regard to the facts of the transaction. But I may state that some years ago there was made on an appropriation bill—perhaps the sundry civil bill, and perhaps it was in the Forty-eighth Congress, though I am not certain as to that—an appropriation of $160,000 to pay for the lands occupied by the Government at Fort Brown, Tex. It was late in the session when the measure passed, and it was not carefully examined; indeed, it underwent no examination at all at the time it passed the House. I was then a member of the Committee on Appropriations. Soon afterward my attention was called to the fact that it was obvious the appropriation was unreasonably large; that the property was worth a comparatively small sum, and that $40,000 or $50,000 would be fully up to the value of the property and the amount due for occupation from 1847.

Accordingly, at the very next session of Congress, after the making of that appropriation of $160,000, an investigation was set on foot. I believe that in three successive Congresses the subject has been investigated, and that the Committee on Military Affairs in each Congress has uniformly reached the conclusion that an appropriation of the amount I have just stated was entirely unwarranted and unjustifiable; that an appropriation of $50,000, including the amount due for occupation of the ground since the time of the Mexican war, would be very ample.

As I have said, there have been three reports to this effect by the Committee on Military Affairs in three different Congresses. I myself examined the subject very carefully some years ago and reached the conclusion that the amount which should be paid was comparatively small. The bill proposing to appropriate $50,000, and annulling the balance of the judgment was originally reported, I believe, three Congresses ago. I think this bill is a proper one and ought to become a law.

I wish to state further the very important fact that the Secretary of War has not paid out this money. It is very true that the title of the land was in dispute for some two or three years; but since the title has been adjusted the Secretary of War has declined to order the payment of this money—I presume upon the grounds expressed in the reports heretofore made, although I am not certain about that fact. At any rate the money has never been paid, although the appropriation was made many years ago.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I move the previous question.

Mr. CULBERSON. Before the gentleman presses the demand for the previous question I wish to ask him whether this bill covers the claims of the owners of the land for use and occupation.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. This bill is intended to make full payment for the title of the land, if the parties can give a good title, and also for the occupation.

Mr. CULBERSON. My understanding was that the claim for use and occupation was more than $50,000, the ground having been occupied ever since the Mexican war.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Well, the bill, as I have said, covers the claim for occupation as well as compensation for the title. The language is—

That the sum of $50,000 be appropriated out of any money in the Treasury, etc., to enable the Secretary of War to obtain a good and valid title and extinguish all claims for the use and occupancy of said reservation.

The previous question was ordered; and under the operation thereof the bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. OUTHWAITE, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

NUMBER AND EXPENSES OF SIGNAL CORPS.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. The bill (H. R. 9896) to reduce the number of officers in and the expenses of the Signal Corps of the Army has not been reported from the committee; but I ask unanimous consent that I be now permitted to report it and call it up for action.

The SPEAKER. After the bill has been read the gentleman's request will be put to the House.

The bill was read.

Mr. PICKLER. I object.

The SPEAKER. This bill, not having been heretofore reported, can not be considered now without unanimous consent; and the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. PICKLER] objects.

MUSTER AND PAY OF OFFICERS AND ENLISTED MEN.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I call up the bill (H. R. 6649) to extend the provisions of an act to provide for the muster and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer forces.

The SPEAKER. This bill is on the Union Calendar.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. KILGORE. I object.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I move, then, that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, Mr. O'NEIL of Massachusetts in the chair, and proceeded to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 6649) to extend the provisions of an act to provide for the muster and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer forces.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the provisions of an act to provide for the muster and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer forces, approved June 4, 1884, as amended by an act approved February 5, 1887, be, and the same are hereby, revived and extended for a period of three years from the 3d day of June, 1892.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, this bill is designed simply to extend the limitations of an act passed heretofore, and which was in force for a period of five years, I believe. On the 3d of February, 1887, an act to provide for the muster out and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer forces was approved. The first section of said act was amended on the 3d of February, 1887. The second section of that act remains as follows:

That the heirs or legal representatives of any officer whose muster into the service has been or shall be amended hereby shall be entitled to receive the arrears of pay due such officer, and the pension, if any, authorized by law, for the grade into which such officer is mustered under the provisions of this act.

The fourth section remains as follows:

That the pay and allowances of a rank or grade paid to and received by any military or naval officer in good faith for services actually performed by such officer in such rank or grade during the war of the rebellion shall not be charged to or recovered back from any such officer because of any defect in the title of such officer to the office, rank, or grade in which such services were actually so performed.

The act expired by limitation on the 3d day of June, 1892; and it appears that there are still outstanding many claims as just as are those which have been already adjudicated and in many instances have been paid under the law cited. This arises from the fact that persons interested had not heard of the existence of the law giving them relief. Applications are now being made and presented to the Department for its action by those who have recently become acquainted with these conditions.

The claims yet to be presented are as just and meritorious as those which have been already passed upon, and for that reason the committee are of opinion that the act should be extended and the Government not take advantage of the statute of limitations as to this portion of the officers, when it has already recognized claims similar to these and adjudicated and paid them to other officers.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Does the gentleman state that that is the only thing the extension will cover? Is that all that is in it?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. That is all that is in it. It is simply to extend these provisions of that law.

Unless some gentlemen wishes to discuss the bill I will ask unanimous consent to close debate upon it.

There was no objection.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I move that the committee rise and report the bill to the House with a favorable recommendation.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. O'NEIL of Massachusetts reported that the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union having had under consideration the bill (H. R. 6649) had directed him to report it back with a favorable recommendation.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Let us have the report read.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I had intended calling the previous question; but I have no objection to the report being read if the gentleman wishes it.

The report (by Mr. ROCKWELL) was read, as follows:

The Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 6649) to extend the provisions of an act to provide for the muster and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer forces, submit the following:

On February 3, 1887, an act to provide for the muster out and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer forces was approved.

The first section of said act was amended February 3, 1887. The second section remains as follows:

"That the heirs or legal representatives of any officer whose muster into the service has been or shall be amended hereby, shall be entitled to receive the arrears of pay due such officer, and the pension, if any, authorized by law for the grade into which such officer is mustered under the provisions of this act."

The fourth section remains as follows:

"That the pay and allowance of a rank or grade paid to and received by any military or naval officer in good faith for services actually performed by such officer in such rank or grade during the war of the rebellion, shall not be charged to or recovered back from any such officer because of any defect in the title of such officer to the office, rank, or grade in which such services were actually so performed."

The first section, as amended February 3, 1887, as above stated, is as follows:

"That section 1 of an act to provide for the muster and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer forces, approved June 3, 1884, be, and is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"That the joint resolution approved July 11, 1870, entitled 'Joint resolution amendatory of joint resolution for the relief of certain officers of the Army,' approved July 26, 1866, (1) is hereby so amended and shall be so construed that in all cases arising under the same any person who was duly appointed and commissioned, whether his commission was actually received by him or not, shall be considered as commissioned to the grade therein named from the date from which he was to take rank under and by the terms of his said commission, and shall be entitled to all pay and emoluments as if actually mustered at that date:

"Provided, That at the date from which he was to take rank by the terms of his commission there was a vacancy to which he could be so commissioned, and that he was actually performing the duties of the grade to which he was so commissioned, or, if not so performing such duties, then from such time after the date of his commission as he may have actually entered upon such duties:

"And provided further, That any person held as a prisoner of war, or who may have been absent by reason of wounds, or in hospital by reason of disability received in the service in line of duty, at the date of his commission, if a vacancy existed for him in the grade to which so commissioned, shall be entitled to the same pay and emoluments as if actually performing the duties of the grade to which he was commissioned and actually mustered at such date:

"And provided further, That this act and the resolution hereby amended shall be construed to apply only in those cases where the commission bears date prior to June 20, 1863, or after that date when their commands were not below the minimum number required by existing laws and regulations:

"And provided further, That the pay and allowances actually received shall be deducted from the sums to be paid under this act."

This act expires by limitation on the 3d day of June, 1892, by virtue of an act approved August 13, 1888, wherein the date was extended for filing such claims for muster and pay to that date.

It appears that there are still outstanding many just claims under this law for the reason that those interested have not learned of the provisions of the law giving them relief. Applications are now being presented to the Department for its action by those who have but recently become acquainted with its provisions. The claims yet to be presented are equally as just and meritorious as those already passed upon. The committee are of the opinion that the United States Government should not take advantage of a statute of limitation against one portion of a class of just claims when another portion is pending and another portion still has been properly adjusted; and believing the proposed legislation to be both equitable and just, recommend that the bill do pass.

WAR DEPARTMENT, Washington City, March 11, 1892.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 10th instant, requesting "the views and recommendations" of this Department on H. R. bill No. 6659, entitled "A bill to extend the provisions of an act to provide for the muster and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer forces."

The act "to provide for the muster and pay of certain officers and enlisted men of the volunteer forces," approved June 3, 1884, amended by an act approved February 3, 1887 (not February 5, as stated in the pending bill), provided that all claims arising thereunder should be "presented to and filed within the proper Department" within three years from and after its passage, and that "all such claims not so presented and filed within said three years" should be forever barred and "no allowance ever made thereon."

By an act approved August 13, 1888, the provisions of the acts of 1884 and 1887 were revised and extended for a period of five years from the 3d day of June, 1887.

In the bill now under consideration it is proposed to again revive the provisions of the acts referred to and extend the same for a period of three years from the 3d day of June, 1892.

In view of the fact that numerous applications are now being presented to the Department for its action under the law by those who have but recently become acquainted with its provisions, it is evident that there are many claims yet to be presented equally as meritorious as those already passed upon.

The proposed legislation appears to be both equitable and just.

Very respectfully,

L. A. GRANT,
Assistant Secretary of War.

The CHAIRMAN OF THE COMMITTEE ON MILITARY AFFAIRS,
House of Representatives.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I now ask the previous question on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The previous question was ordered, under the operation of which the bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time.

The question being on the passage of the bill,

Mr. LONG said: Mr. Speaker, on a bill of such importance as this I think we ought to have a fuller vote; and I call for a division.

The House accordingly divided; and there were—ayes 70, noes 5.

Mr. LONG. No quorum has voted.

The SPEAKER appointed Mr. LONG and Mr. OUTHWAITE as tellers.

The House proceeded to divide.

Mr. OUTHWAITE (one of the tellers). Mr Speaker it appears that there is not a quorum present, and I ask unanimous consent that this bill go over until the 6th day of January, to be voted upon immediately after the first morning hour.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio that the consideration of the pending bill go over until the 6th day of January, immediately after the first morning hour?

There was no objection.

REDUCTION OF SIGNAL CORPS.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from South Dakota has withdrawn his objection to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 9896) to reduce the number of officers in and the expenses of the Signal Corps of the Army, and I ask to call it up now for consideration.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That whenever the present Chief Signal Officer of the Army shall vacate his office there shall thereafter be a Chief Signal Officer of the Army with the rank, pay, and allowances of a colonel, who shall be selected from the officers of the Signal Corps, and an assistant chief signal officer, with the rank, pay, and allowances of a lieutenant-colonel, which office shall be filled by regular promotion in the Signal Corps: Provided, That thereafter the two offices of first lieutenant in the Signal Corps thus made vacant shall be abolished and discontinued.

The SPEAKER. This bill has not been reported by the committee, and can only be considered by unanimous consent.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. A brief statement as to the purposes of the bill before that question is submitted.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman, without objection, will be permitted to proceed, after which the Chair will submit the question to the House.

Mr. McMILLIN. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the right to make the point that this bill must receive its first consideration in the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Certainly. The bill is properly entitled "A bill to reduce the numbers in and the expense of the Signal Corps of the Army." It provides that when the present Chief Signal Officer of the Army shall vacate his office, for any reason whatever, that there shall be thereafter no brigadier-generalship in this department of the Army, but that there shall be a colonel as Chief of the Signal Office, and a lieutenant-colonel to be his assistant. It also abolishes two first lieutenancies. It is recommended by the Chief Signal Officer. I have a statement of the reduction which it will make in the expenses of the Army. It will reduce the expenses of the Army $3,127.92. This is a reduction of about 10 per cent of the salaries of this branch of the Army, and therefore I ask unanimous consent to consider it.

Mr. McMILLIN. What is the present organization? The gentleman being chairman of the committee undoubtedly knows.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. The present organization is a brigadier-general and a major, four captains, and four first lieutenants. It makes the change of reducing the rank of the Chief Signal Officer from a brigadier-general; that is, taking away the generalship and making it a colonelcy, and changing the major from major to lieutenant-colonel, and doing away with two first lieutenants. That is about the change.

Mr. McMILLIN. It gives, instead of a major and a general, a lieutenant-colonel and a colonel, as I understand it?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. That is it exactly, and cutting off two first lieutenants.

Mr. McMILLIN. And the net saving is $3,000 a year.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. It is over $3,000.

Mr. McMILLIN. And there is no expense anywhere else that makes up for that.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. None whatever. It is a net saving of $3,127.22, according to the statement submitted to me by an officer of the Signal Corps.

Mr. McMILLIN. One other question: Do these promotions of a major to a colonelcy and the provision for a lieutenand-colonelcy take effect at the same time that the law takes effect doing away with the generalship?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Not until that time—not until that vacancy shall occur, and at the same time the two first lieutenants are dispensed with.

Mr. SIMPSON. I would like to ask the gentleman a question. If I understand this bill, under the present law a major-general is appointed to fill that position.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. The Chief Signal Officer holds the rank of brigadier-general.

Mr. SIMPSON. Under this law you can appoint a colonel to this position.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Under the bill the chief of the Signal Office is to be a colonel after the vacation of the office by the present incumbent.

Mr. SIMPSON. It does not make him a colonel because he holds that position, but you merely appoint a colonel of the Army to the position instead of a general?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. That is not it exactly.

Mr. SIMPSON. I wanted to understand if you were making any new colonels.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. Oh, no.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this bill?

Mr. HOLMAN. My friend from Ohio [Mr. OUTHWAITE] has not yet stated the object of this.

Mr. OUTHWAITE. The object, so far as I have any object, is to reduce expenditures in the Army, whenever a vacancy occurs in the office of Chief Signal Officer——

Mr. HOLMAN. And the measure is recommended by the War Department, is it?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. I stated that it is recommended by the Chief Signal Officer in his report.

Mr. HOLMAN. And the only object is to reduce expenditures?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. This is the only object I have. I do not know of any other and can not conceive of any other.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. What reasons were given by the Chief Signal Officer?

Mr. OUTHWAITE. That it was simply to reduce expenditures, as I understand it; but I have no copy of his report here to refer to. There may be other good reasons.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. They do not often make suggestions of that kind.

The SPEAKER. The morning hour has expired. The Clerk will report the special order.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That Saturday, the 17th instant, beginning after the second morning hour, be set apart for the consideration of S. 1391 to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to settle the account stated between the General Government and the State of Florida, etc.

The SPEAKER. This bill is in Committee of the Whole.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE ST. LAWRENCE RIVER.

Mr. BYNUM. I would like to ask my friend to yield for a moment before calling up that bill. I would like to ask unanimous consent to take up a bridge bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BYNUM] asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of a bridge bill. Does the gentleman from Florida [Mr. BULLOCK] yield?

Mr. BULLOCK. With the understanding that it is simply for that purpose, I will yield.

Mr. CURTIS. I have a substitute to offer for the bill.

Mr. BYNUM. I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the substitute. The parties who are in favor of this bridge, as well as those who are opposed to its construction, have agreed to this substitute. I would state that this is an ordinary bridge bill, with all the usual safeguards, and I hope the substitute will be passed.

Mr. BURROWS. It better be read, Mr. Speaker.

The substitute was read.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill which has just been read? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none. Without objection the substitute will be considered in lieu of House bill No. 9005. [After a pause.] The Chair hears no objection.

The substitute was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. BYNUM, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed, was laid on the table.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the special order.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That Saturday, the 17th instant, beginning after the second morning hour, be set apart for the consideration of Senate bill No. 1391, to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to settle the account stated between the General Government and the State of Florida, etc.

The SPEAKER. This bill is in Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union.

Mr. BULLOCK. I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the purpose of considering Senate bill 1391, now upon the Speaker's table.

The question was taken, and the Speaker announced that the ayes seemed to have it.

Mr. BURROWS. Mr. Speaker, this matter involves a little over half a million dollars, and I think a quorum should be present. I demand a division.

The House divided; and there were—ayes 80, noes 2.

Mr. BURROWS. No quorum.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BURROWS] makes the point that no quorum has voted. The Chair will appoint the gentleman from Florida [Mr. BULLOCK] and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BURROWS] to act as tellers.

After some time spent in the count,

Mr. BURROWS said: Mr. Speaker, I understand the gentleman from Florida desires to make some remarks upon this bill, and I will withdraw the point of order; but it is understood that we go into committee for debate only, the bill not to be reported back to the House to-day.

The SPEAKER. The point of no quorum having been withdrawn, the ayes have it, and the motion is agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole House on state of the Union, Mr. CHIPMAN in the Chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The House is in Committee of the Whole on Senate bill 1391 under the special order.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized to settle the account stated between the United States and the State of Florida, under the authority of section 5 of the act approved March 2, 1889, entitled "An act making appropriations to supply deficiencies in the appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889, and for prior years, and for other purposes;" and in making such settlement he is hereby authorized to set off what is found to be due by the State to the day of settlement, on account of principal and interest upon the bonds of the State, in which a portion of the Indian trust funds has been invested, against what is found to be due the State to the same date for moneys expended by her during the Indian hostilities of 1849 and 1856 and 1857, and to surrender such bonds and the coupons thereto to the governor of said State upon making such settlement. And in making the settlement the Secretary is directed to follow the statement of the account as made under the authority of said act, as found in the letter from the Secretary of the Treasury dated December 16, 1889, published as Executive Document No. 68, House of Representatives, Fifty-first Congress, and to adopt the first mode of settlement proposed near the foot of page 3 of said document, containing the computation of interest upon the principal on both sides at the date of settlement. And such sum of money is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, as is necessary to make such settlement.

Mr. BULLOCK. Mr. Chairman, the claim of the State of Florida for reimbursement for the funds expended by that State in the suppression of Indian hostilities in 1855, 1856, and 1857 has been before Congress for a number of years. It has received the most thorough investigation, and it has passed both branches of Congress on several occasions, and is now here before the House on a bill which has passed the Senate, a similar bill having been unanimously reported by the Committee on Claims of the House this session.

I will briefly state the history connected with this claim, and I think that the facts are so plain and the demand is so just that no gentleman who may now be harboring a suspicion that anything improper is designed to be gotten through this House will at once abandon that idea and become a warm and enthusiastic supporter of this claim on its merits. We rely for the success of this claim upon its intrinsic merits; and I am anxious that it should be fully discussed and that no gentleman should be asked to vote upon it who does not thoroughly understand it.

The mutual accounts between the State of Florida and the United States which the Senate bill now under consideration proposes to adjust and settle have been carefully investigated by the War Department by authority of a resolution introduced by Senator Plumb in 1881 and agreed to by both Houses, also by the Treasury Department upon a similar resolution in the deficiency bill of 1889, by committees of the House, and passed by the House; by committees of the Senate, and which also recommended a bill which passed the Senate and is now before the House for final settlement of these advances made by the State to suppress Indian hostilities in Florida during the years 1855, 1856, and 1857.

A similar bill has been unanimously favorably reported during this Congress from the Committee on Claims of the House and is now on the Calendar. There is no contention that the money was not expended by the State of Florida. The two Executive Departments of the General Government have ascertained and reported the amounts due by the Government of the United States to the State of Florida, a full statement of which is found in Executive Document No. 68, Fifty-first Congress, first session, being the reports of the Secretary of War and of the Secretary of the Treasury.

The only question that has ever been raised as to the validity of this claim is—was this Indian war of such character and magnitude as to bring the claim of the State for the suppression of hostilities within the principle and meaning of the Constitution that makes it obligatory upon the United States to protect the States against invasion; and was there such an invasion or threatened invasion by the Indians as to justify the governor in calling into service the State troops to protect the State and its citizens against invasion. That is the emergency question. The War Department having settled the question as to the necessity of the State in calling out her troops as well as having itself sent United States troops to the scene of action there can be no question at this late day as to that emergency existing at that time. In the report of the Secretary of War, which I hold in my hand, will be found all the data relating to the hostilities. From that report I quote:

The Adjutant-General of the United States (see page 3) writes to the commanding officer that "the services of these volunteers having been recognized and approved by the President, the Secretary of War directs that you cause one of the officers of your command to muster into and out of the service" the volunteers. That was an official recognition of the emergency and removes from our consideration all that part of the question, because "the question of authority on the part of the President in such cases is no longer an open one, but has been decided by the Supreme Court in Luther vs. Borden (7 Howard, 43) that the President was the sole and exclusive judge of the fact as to when an emergency calling for Federal aid to repel invasion had arisen and that the State itself must determine what degree of force the crisis demands.

The same was also held in Martin vs. Mott (12 Wheaton, 29). In the case of Florida the State did determine that the employment of the State troops was necessary, and the Secretary of War, whose official acts are those of the President (Wilcox vs. McConnell, 13 Peters, 513), did decide in May, 1858, that the State troops maintained and paid by Florida were essential to the security of the State, and approved and adopted their service and ordered that they be "mustered in and out of the United States service" that they might be paid.

According to these authorities quoted above, the decision of the President was final and conclusive upon all parties, and can not be disturbed or inquired into by Congress or the courts.

The President decided that an emergency had arisen calling for Federal aid to protect Florida. The governor decided that additional force was needed and the President approved his decision, and these troops were employed and paid by the State.

The order of the President approved the calling out of volunteers as well as directed the Secretary of War to muster them in and out of the service of the United States. If there could be any doubt that there was such an emergency as to justify the governor in retaining these troops in the service and the recognition of their services by the Secretary of War, that doubt will be removed by reference to the action of Gen. Harney, who in 1857 was sent to Florida with full authority to overlook the situation and to report such action to the Government as in his judgment of the military operations then going on should be adopted by the Government for the speedy removal of these Indians.

After Gen. Harney had fully acquainted himself with the situation (being one of the most thoroughly acquainted men with the Indian character and their mode of warfare in Florida) he not only approved of the action of the governor in retaining these troops in the service of the State, but at once earnestly recommended to the Government that the force in Florida should be greatly augmented and strengthened. And in addition to the State troops and the regular Army troops then in service that the volunteer State force should be reorganized and increased to a mounted regiment of ten companies, to be commanded by a volunteer officer elected by the volunteers, and also recommending the addition of five foot companies, thus increasing the volunteer force from about 600 to 1,500 men.

Thus it will be seen that the United States Government not only recognized the emergency as grave and urgent, but took prudent steps to investigate the situation, and its officer, Gen. Harney, not only approved the employment of these troops but recommended their increase.

The measure of the emergency is not the number of killed and wounded, nor even the number of Indians engaged in the war. The proper criterion of emergency is the consternation produced in the exposed districts; the alarm and abandonment of homes and settlements; the devastation and destruction of property, and the contempt and derision brought upon the Federal authority by its impotency to protect and guard the people from the unknown number of Indians that remained in the State. That was Gen. Zach. Taylor's idea, who regarded "thirty or forty thousand" troops, and the subdivision of the State into "military districts of twenty square miles," and "in the center of each, or at the most eligible point, a post to be established and occupied by twenty or thirty men, a part of the number mounted," as the best and safest way of protecting the people. (Sprague's History of Florida War.)

Now, gentlemen, if you will recall the fact that the Indian war in Florida, which commenced in 1835, was protracted until 1842, and held at open defiance for seven long years the Government of the United States with its armies and all the volunteers that could be mustered into service, can you question for one moment the alarm and consternation that prevailed in our country when a large portion of these Indians, who had been located temporarily in the southern part of the Territory, opened hostilities and declared the war which commenced in 1855? There was not a citizen in the State of Florida, not a man, woman, or child that did not with nervous alarm and anxiety apply to the executive of the State for protection.

How was this war inaugurated in 1855? Not, as is frequently charged, by citizens upon the frontier provoking unnecessary collisions by trespasses upon the rights of the Indians. There never was a population in any State or upon any frontier who had more at heart the preservation of peace, good will, and kindness with the Indians than the people of Florida.

These Indians occupied the southern territory of Florida, under a temporary arrangement made with them by Gen. Worth in 1842. By treaty stipulation made at Paines Landing these Indians had agreed to remove, and the Government of the United States had assumed the responsibility that these Indians should be removed to their reservation in the then Territory of Kansas. The State of Florida came into existence as a State with the distinct undersianding that these Indians would soon be removed to the place provided for them.

Apprehensive that these Indians would make an outbreak and stop the prosperity and settlement of Florida, our executive was constantly urging upon the Government that these Indians should be removed. Our people were admonished to give no occasion or provocation which would offer to the Indians an excuse for renewing hostilities.

We all felt our exposed and helpless condition. I live in that portion of the country myself, and well do I remember the scenes of suffering and alarm when the women and children collected in my old town, even as far back as 1849, when the Indians, without provocation, made an attack upon the citizens living on the Indian River; and let me relate to you, if you please, some of the atrocious conduct of the Indians on that occasion.

And, by the way, let me remind gentlemen as I go along that in not a single instance of trouble with these Indians have the citizens of Florida been responsible. In every case the Indians have been the aggressors, and the attacks they have made have been first made upon officers of the United States.

In 1849 the United States inspector at the port at the inlet of Indian River, who had previously been in the Navy of the United States, and was given that appointment by President Buchanan on account of his health, was living with his family on the banks of the river, while his neighbor and brother-in-law was living a short distance below him.

The Indians had been in the habit of visiting the family, and the ladies of the family (and there were several) had been accustomed to give them presents, and had exercised toward them the greatest liberality and kindness in the interest of self-preservation, feeling how easily they might at any time be assassinated.

On the occasion to which I am now directing attention the Indians had been there and had spent two days, and when they got ready to leave they were loaded down by this officer and his family with presents and with everything they had asked for, and when they said good-bye it was, as the family believed, with a smile of gratitude upon their countenances.

But those Indians had not been gone more than twenty minutes when the family heard the crack of rifles down at the brother-in-law's house, and not understanding what it meant, they ran to the front of the house and saw the wife of the brother-in-law coming running up the beach screaming, "Get into your boat and get away! The Indians have killed my husband."

The family, including the inspector himself, got into the boat and shoved off into the river, but the Indians pursued them along the bank and got near enough to fire upon them and succeeded in breaking the arm of Maj. Russell in such a manner that amputation afterwards became necessary.

What was the result of this outrage? The whole frontier was abandoned. Everybody took this action of the Indians as a declaration of war, and the governor was appealed to to bring troops into the field. As soon as possible the leaders of the Indians were waited upon and asked what this outrage meant. They disavowed any advance knowledge of it, and said that they had endeavored to arrest the perpetrators, who had resisted, and had been killed, and they exhibited two hands as proof that the offending Indians had been killed.

But what was the effect upon the State of Florida? This happened just at the period when the citizens of that State had taken great pains to publish its resources and advantages, and when a tide of immigration had begun to flow into the State, so that the people of Florida had a gratifying prospect for the settlement of its unsettled lands.

But as a matter of course not only did those who were already there and who had not become permanently fixed to the soil, abandon the State, but almost every man throughout the country who had been considering the idea of moving to Florida at once abandoned it because of the continued presence there of these Indians, who, it must be remembered, were under treaty stipulations since 1831 to move West.

These are some illustrations of the injuries that have been inflicted upon Florida by reason of the presence of these Indians, and the Government of the United States was derelict in its duty in assuming the responsibility of allowing them to remain there contrary to the treaty stipulations, and this neglect entailed upon the State the loss of millions of dollars, of which there is no possibility of reimbursement.

The Indians retreated to what is generally known as the Everglades and Big Cypress country in Florida, a region covering about 24,000 or 25,000 square miles, and supposed to be impenetrable and uninhabitable. Here the Indians felt that they had secreted themselves in safety and they established their little homes and farms, finding the country much more productive and valuable than people generally understood it to be. Being intrenched in these fastnesses, they became again restless for war, and hence the inauguration of hostilities in 1855.

Was any citizen of Florida responsible for that outbreak? What were the circumstances? Lieut. Hartsuff, a lieutenant in the regular Army, who had perhaps done more scouting and reconnoitering on the Indian frontier than any other officer of the United States, was making a reconnoitering tour with eleven men, skirting the Everglades, where he had frequently met Indians. On this occasion, however, he met none; their usual places of resort, where he had often met them in previous expeditions, were abandoned. He could not account for this fact and it aroused his suspicion that something was wrong, but he did not know what.

He encamped in the vicinity of the town of Billy Bowlegs and at daylight the next morning, while his men were preparing breakfast and while he himself was not yet out of bed, an attack was made upon them, killing four, wounding four others, and wounding the lieutenant himself severely. Upon the news of this Indian attack being telegraphed to Washington the Secretary of War sent this reply:

WASHINGTON, January 3, 1855.

SIR: Your note by telegraph of the 23d ultimo was received yesterday. The occurrence of actual hostilities commenced by the Seminole Indians suspends all the instructions heretofore given you with a view to effect the peaceable removal of those Indians.

Ah, Mr. Chairman, if that advice had been given five or six years before the State of Florida would have escaped a most ruinous and exhausting war, because these Indians would have been removed in time, according to the stipulations of the treaty, and that country would have bloomed like a rose, where, for many years afterwards there was nothing but destruction and devastation. The Secretary of War continues:

It is presumed that Col. Monroe has dispatched by mail to this Department a report in relation to Indian affairs in Florida, and on its receipt further instructions will be given for your guidance.

Not until then—in 1855—did the Government give up this unfortunate and foolish idea to which it seems to have been wedded, against the protest of those who knew better, that it could succeed ultimately in effecting a peaceable removal of these Indians. But when the Indians showed their disregard in every instance even of the officers of the United States, when they set upon and killed the party that had been sent to investigate their situation, then it was seen that instructions looking to a peaceful solution of the difficulty with the Indians should be withdrawn.

The Indians, intrenched in their swampy fastnesses, supposed that they could by their predatory expeditions upon the settlements supply themselves with what they wanted, then retreat to their fastnesses and defy pursuit, and at the very juncture referred to they followed up their massacre of this detachment of Federal soldiers by going more than 150 miles into the interior, where they burned the houses of the settlers and killed the settlers themselves; but the citizens on the frontier, knowing the danger they were in, sprang to arms, every man of them, as soon as they could make provision for the care of their families. They went into patriotic pursuit of those Indians. They were incited by that feeling which stirs men as nothing else can—the idea of the preservation of themselves and their families.

Thus in their protection of the frontier they were inspired with an energy such as rarely controls men in warlike operations. On the occasion of the first attack by the Indians these settlers assembled together and pursued them with such vigilance and determination as to bring on one of the bloodiest fights ever known in Indian warfare, and in which great gallantry was shown by our officers and men as well as by the Indians themselves, to do them justice. In one instance one of the Indians was dispatched with a pocketknife in a close personal encounter with one of the officers in command of a detachment. In that engagement several of our officers fell and others were wounded.

Another expedition was undertaken with similar results. The Indians were not prepared for such energetic measures; they did not believe they would meet with such resistance. So they then retired to their fastnesses. And what was at that time the condition of our State? Every frontier settlement was abandoned; every able-bodied man had gone into the service.

The people of the State demanded of the governor that he should quadruple the forces that were in the field. The officers of the United States did not seem to realize even then the magnitude of the undertaking that was before them since pacific methods for the removal of the Indians had been abandoned; the war dragged along with an insufficient force arrayed against the Indians. The governor was not able and the State was not able to meet the emergency as it ought to have been met; but the State did organize and bring into service from four hundred to six hundred men; it equipped and supplied them and has since paid them. These circumstances form the basis, as I will explain directly, of the claim which is now presented.

This condition of things went on from 1855 till the fall of 1856 or the spring of 1857, when the Government saw that something was radically wrong in the conduct of this Indian war and that some more efficient measures must be taken. Gen. Harney was then sent down there by the Government to look over the field and determine what was best to be done. He had served during the previous war and was considered one of the most skillful and successful Indian fighters in the United States Army.

The troops which the governor had brought into service had been tendered to the United States Government and declined; but the State kept them in service at its own expense. It dare not disband them. The citizens would not have submitted to such a step. When Gen. Harney came there in the spring of 1857 and examined the situation, what did he do? After acquainting himself with the situation he rebuked the Federal officers in command. He said to them, in effect, "You do not understand what you have before you. Your forces are entirely inadequate for the purpose of routing and capturing these Indians. The governor has done right to retain these soldiers in the field, and he ought to have had three times as many. It will take that number to meet this situation."

He at once made a requisition on the governor for ten companies of mounted volunteers and five companies of foot soldiers, together with a greatly augmented strength of regular forces; these troops were put at once into the field; and thus the action of the governor of the State in retaining those troops in service from 1855 to 1857 was vindicated.

In order to enable the officers of the United States to obtain control of these ten companies of mounted men and five companies of foot soldiers, the troops that had been in the State service were incorporated, so far as they went in the new organization, with troops brought from other sections of the State and some from Georgia.

Gen. Harney advised that there should be a regimental organization commanded by a colonel and officers that had been in the volunteer service; the conduct of the war was turned over to these officers by his recommendation, and the regular Army was used for protecting the posts in the rear. When these troops were thus organized, put into the field, and turned loose upon the Indians, it was not four months before they had hunted down and routed the Indians, and in 1858 the hostilities were at an end.

I have thus given a short history of these transactions, and I want to impress upon the minds of members that there can be no allegation of provocation by citizens of Florida as the cause of this trouble with the Indians. In every instance the hostilities were provoked by aggressions of the Indians themselves, and by their attacks upon United States officers, for which the people of the State were not responsible.

As I said before, Mr. Chairman, the only question that has ever been raised as to the validity of this claim was the question as to whether this Indian war was a war of such magnitude as to bring the claim of the State for the suppression of the Indian hostilities within the purview and meaning of the provision of the Constitution that makes it a duty, obligatory upon the General Government of the United States to protect the States from invasion. In that connection I submit that the following letter from the United States officer commanding in Florida, followed by the recommendation of Gen. Harney, is conclusive:

HEADQUARTERS TROOPS IN FLORIDA,
Fort Brooke, January 20, 1856.

SIR: By virtue of authority from the War Department, dated Adjutant-General's Office, Washington, January 7, 1856, and received by me on the 19th instant (of which a copy is herewith), I have now the honor to call on your excellency for the following volunteer force, to provide for the protection of the frontier and to coöperate with the United States troops in enforcing the removal of the Indians remaining in the State:

One company of mounted volunteers, to be mustered into service, say, in the neighborhood of Fort Gatlin.

One company of mounted volunteers, to be mustered into service, say, in the neighborhood of Heecheepoksasa, and one company of mounted volunteers, to be mustered into service, say, in the neighborhood of Fort Meade.

Two companies of foot, to be composed exclusively of good woodsmen, familiar with the habits of Indians, to be employed as hunters and trailers in the swamps and morasses, where horsemen can not go, and where alone Indians are to be found and overcome.

As each mounted company will act separately, and the foot companies are to be associated with the regular troops in their operations, no field or staff officers will be required or received with them.

"Companies serving in the peninsula of Florida and at Key West are authorized to be carried up to the maximum legal standard of seventy-four privates." (See Special Order No. 70, dated War Department, Adjutant-General's Office, Washington, April 18, 1855, copy herewith, and second section of act of June 17, 1850, entitled "An act to increase the rank and file of the Army," etc.) The volunteer companies now called for will therefore each be composed as follows, viz: One captain, one first lieutenant, one second lieutenant, four sergeants, four corporals, two musicians, and seventy-four privates.

Gen. Jesse Carter, of this county, has consented to proceed immediately to the capital for the purpose of conferring with your excellency on the details of this business, as my duties here will not allow me to leave.

Most respectfully, your obedient servant,

JOHN MONROE,
Major 2d Regiment Artillery, Brevet Colonel, Commanding Troops in Peninsula of Florida.

To his Excellency JAMES E. BROOME,
Governor of Florida, Tallahassee.

It is now evident to you from all of the facts presented in this case that the State would have been overrun by an eruption of Indians but for the active, energetic, and patriotic interposition of the volunteer troops of the State of Florida, who assembled and volunteered for the protection of their own people, and of whom Maj. Monroe said they discharged their duty "with much credit to themselves" and "they have been spoken of by the United States officers with whom they were associated on their tour in the most favorable manner." These are the troops which have never been paid by the United States, but who the State paid, and now demands repayment, as is the constitutional duty of the United States.

The correspondence that took place between the President of the United States and the governor of Florida shows the recognition on the part of the President of the active part taken by these troops, and also explains why these troops were not mustered and paid as the other troops were mustered and paid. The governor of Florida opened a communication with the General Government, the object being to obtain pay for the troops that the State had maintained so long and so exhaustively to her treasury. What was the State to do? These men had to be paid.

Here is a short correspondence appended in the report, which shows exactly the condition: The governor wrote to the Secretary of War and asked that the services of these troops be approved and that their service be adopted by the General Government. On this letter of Governor Broome was the indorsement of the Paymaster-General and Adjutant General of the Army, reciting the fact that according to the precedents it was only necessary for the President to recognize the troops as having been in the service of the United States—remember, that "it was only necessary to recognize these troops as having been in the service of the United States," and direct that they be mustered in and out of service, when they could be paid upon an appropriation therefor being made by Congress, as all other volunteers were paid. They acted, as I have shown you, in active coöperation with the officer of the Army commanding in Florida during this period; and here is a statement of the officer himself to the War Department setting out the fact that they had rendered most efficient and valued service in coöperating with the officers of the United States and the men who were under his control. He recommended that an officer be sent as soon as possible to muster them in and out of the service of the United States, which recommendation was approved by the Secretary of War, who notified the governor as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT, Washington, D. C., May 21, 1857.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, asking an approval of the services of certain volunteers called out by you, and in reply to inform you that the explanation as to the necessity of their services is satisfactory, and orders have been issued to the officer commanding in Florida to muster them in and out of the service of the United States.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JOHN B. FLOYD,
Secretary of War.

His Excellency JAMES E. BROOME,
Governor of Florida, Washington.

The official order to which reference was made by the Secretary of War in the foregoing letter is in the following words:

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1857.

SIR: I have the honor herewith to transmit a copy of a letter addressed by the governor of Florida, under date of May 8, 1857, to the Secretary of War, respecting volunteers called out by the former to suppress Indian hostilities in Florida, but never regularly mustered into the service of the United States.

The services of these volunteers having been recognized and approved by the President, the Secretary of War directs that you cause one of the officers of your command to muster into and out of the service of the United States, as soon as practicable, the troops indicated by Governor Broome, to the end that they may be paid whenever Congress shall make the necessary appropriation for the purpose. A supply of blank muster rolls will at once be sent to your address.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

S. COOPER,
Adjutant-General.

COMMANDING OFFICER,
Department of Florida, Tampa, Fla.

On the 7th of July following the governor wrote to the Secretary of War, stating that it had been found to be impracticable to muster in those troops as directed by the Secretary, they having long since been disbanded, and it being impossible again to assemble them at any one point.

They were disbanded, as I have already shown you, because they were incorporated into ten companies, as recommended by Gen. Harney. They were incorporated with and absorbed by this command:

The governor suggested that the muster be made from the properly certified rolls of the State. To this the Secretary replied that no officer could make a constructive muster, as suggested, but that to certify the rolls he must have mustered the troops present.

That was the law. The officers could not under the law make a constructive muster. The Secretary adds:

Under the circumstances the only course left for the Department is to receive as official the State rolls, duly certified by the State authorities, and to base upon them a recommendation to Congress for the appropriation necessary to pay off the troops. This course will obviate the difficulties mentioned by you on account of the disbandment of the volunteers in question.

Now, there is the law of the case in a nutshell—simply that the troops were disbanded, otherwise they would have been mustered in and out and would have received their pay through the regular channels. Their services had been recognized and are recognized in these communications. The files of the Department show these facts. There can be no question of them. They were admitted by the President and the Secretary of War as well as the commanding officer, who was instructed to detail an officer to muster them in and out.

The object of this muster was to enable them to be paid, but before that could be done, there being no officer in Florida, he had to come from Texas, as I am informed, for this purpose, and before that these troops had been disbanded or incorporated in the ten companies recommended by Gen. Harney. The Secretary of War says that the only way it could be paid now was upon a certified copy of the rolls of the State on which to base a recommendation for an appropriation by Congress, and that is the very thing that is now before Congress in the claim of the State of Florida, the State coming forward and asking simply that equity and justice shall be done her and this claim allowed, to reimburse the State for payments having been made, and rendered necessary by the fact of this accidental postponement of the mustering in of the troops until it was too late to do so.

Now, has it been just, or generous, or fair, or equitable that the payment of this claim should have been postponed to this day and that the State should now be defeated in securing her rights because there is not a quorum in this House to act upon this claim?

I claim that there never has been a State so wronged, wronged because the case was not understood, perhaps; but to continue it longer is making it absolutely cruel, and it is inflicting a great injustice upon a State whose treasury is depleted, and has been depleted, perhaps, from the most afflicting and pestilential causes that have ever afflicted any State in this Union.

Let me call your attention to the ruinous and expensive epidemic through which that State passed a few years ago; the immense amount of money that was drawn from her treasury, the heavy expenses incurred in calling together an extra session of the Legislature to provide for the health board of the State, the heavy expense it has been to the State ever since the establishment of that board to protect its long and exposed frontier coast from the encroachment of diseases that would not have stopped in Florida, but would have spread perhaps all over the United States.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. May I suggest to the gentleman that there are several States in the Northwest for which this very thing has been done that you are asking to have done?

Mr. BULLOCK. Of course. There are plenty of precedents for this case; but I claim that this stands preëminently high upon equitable grounds. There is no reason why this claim should not be paid, and the only way to defeat it has been to postpone and defer it.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Did we not do the same thing for a Northwestern State last week?

Mr. BULLOCK. I have no doubt we did.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. The RECORD will show it.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I desire to ask the gentleman from Florida a question?

Mr. BULLOCK. I will yield with pleasure.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. This does not affect the justice of the claim; but my inquiry is as to the amount which ought to be paid. This is simply a claim against the General Government, and it has not been the practice for the Government to pay interest on claims of this kind.

Mr. MANSUR. Always, where the State has paid interest herself.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Not in cases of this kind.

Mr. BULLOCK. In answer to the gentleman upon that point, I will say that there are numerous precedents, and in fact there is almost an unbroken line of precedents, where, under similar circumstances the Government has always paid interest.

Mr. MANSUR. If the State borrows money and pays interest, then the Government pays interest.

Mr. BULLOCK. When the gentleman asked that question, perhaps he did not remember that this indebtedness had been paid by the State long ago, by the negotiation of her bonds, upon which she paid interest; and $132,000 of that amount was borrowed from the Government, upon which amount she is paying to-day 7 per cent interest. The Government loaned that money out of the Indian trust fund, with the knowledge that the Government owed this claim to the State.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I understand the State sold bonds and raised money to pay this indebtedness; but still it was not an indebtedness of the General Government. If so, you would not need this kind of legislation. It is because this was simply a claim against the General Government that it has been awaiting the action of Congress all these years and has not been paid. Is not that true?

Mr. BULLOCK. No, sir——

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. But it is a claim which must take its chances, like a thousand others in which parties come here to Congress seeking this kind of legislation. Now, my State has some claims which have never been paid, which ought to have been paid, and other States have claims of a similar nature, which ought to be paid and never have been paid; but when claims are paid they are generally paid without interest. Now, would it not be satisfactory to you to pay the difference between these two claims, which would be $130,000, deducting the $132,000 from $262,000, and pay your claim in full in that way, without paying interest? Would not that be in keeping with the way in which these claims are paid?

Mr. BULLOCK. Not at all, sir. Now I will answer your question by asking you another. Are you willing that this debt, that was unquestionably an obligation of the United States, to pay which the State of Florida borrowed money from the United States, are you willing that Florida should lose the interest which it has paid under those circumstances?

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. The gentleman is assuming, in the question he asks me, that this is an obligation against the General Government.

Mr. BULLOCK. I say it is.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. If it were an obligation against the General Government you would not need to come to Congress to secure its payment.

Mr. BULLOCK. The President and the Secretary of War suggested that only by reason of the nonmuster of troops the executive department could not pay it, but that the State would have to come to Congress to get the money, and recommended that course.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. And therefore it comes to Congress, like a thousand other claims which go to the Court of Claims and are paid in this way without interest.

Mr. BULLOCK. If it was not a claim against the Government we would not come to Congress. But now listen to the opinions of Attorneys-General Wirt, Crittenden, and Brewster, upon analogous cases. They say:

The opinion of Attorney-General Wirt on an analogous case is as follows:

"The expenditure thus incurred forms a debt against the United States which they are bound to reimburse. If the expenditures made for such purpose are supplied from the treasury of the State, the United States reimburse the principal without interest; but if, being unable itself, from the conditions of its own finances, to meet the emergency, such State has been obliged to borrow money for the purpose, and thus to incur a debt on which she herself has had to pay interest, such debt is essentially a debt due by the United States, and both the principal and the interest are to be paid by the United States." (See Opinions of Attorneys-General, vol. 1, p. 174.)

In addition, the opinion of Attorney-General Crittenden, who says:

"The act of 27th of February, 1851, is intended to indemnify the State against loss or damage. Reimbursing means repairing the loss or expenses by an equivalent. If the State of Florida has contracted obligations bearing interest, or has paid money with interest, for the use and benefit, in necessary and proper supplies for the troops called into service in 1849, to refund to the State of Florida the principal sum only, without the interest, would not reimburse the State, would not save the State from loss and damage, would not be an equivalent for the expense the State has incurred for the United States. There is no public policy, no saving to the public treasury, no virtue, no laudable end consulted in order to cut down the claims of the several States in opposition to the intention of Congress and the good faith of the Government."

Also of Attorney-General Brewster, in case of the State of New York, dated July 23, 1883:

"Undoubtedly the interest paid by the State of New York on money borrowed and applied to the objects specified in the act of July 27, 1861, forms a part of the burden borne by that State for general public defense, and constitutes a just charge against the United States, and the obligation to reimburse for payments of that kind, made under similar circumstances, has frequently been recognized by Congress, as appears by statutes above cited."

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. Certainly, I think that is true of all claims against the General Government.

Mr. BULLOCK. If the gentleman will not yield fully to the view of the Attorney-General, he must take his own view.

Mr. MALLORY. I have a list of cases in which the Government has done this, which I can show the gentleman.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I know it has done so in a great many cases.

Mr. MALLORY. The State will get the benefit of the interest, the same as other States have.

Mr. MANSUR. If the gentleman will allow me, I will state that my experience on the Committee on Claims justifies me in saying that while the Court of Claims never allows the interest to individuals and that Congress never allows it, yet there are thirty or forty cases where a State, by reason of an insurrection, has furnished troops, supplies, and munitions of war and been unable to pay the expense that fell upon it, the Government, following out the intent of that article of the Constitution which declares it to be the duty of the Government to protect the States against invasion and insurrection, where the State has borrowed the money and has paid the interest, in every instance the Federal Government has paid the interest.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. There was an invasion in our State, and that claim has never yet been paid by the Government, and we would be willing to accept it without the interest.

Mr. MANSUR. Why do you not bring in your claim?

Mr. BULLOCK. I must decline to yield further.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I simply made the inquiry. I was not against the claim, but simply against the amount.

Mr. BULLOCK. Now, it is that $132,000, borrowed from the State, which constitutes the mutual account between the United States and the State of Florida.

In the second session of the Forty-sixth Congress Mr. Plumb, of the Senate, from the Committee on Military Affairs, submitted a report, from which I quote as follows:

While the committee are satisfied of the justness of this claim of the State of Florida, they are not prepared to recommend the passage of the specific bill referred to them. They think it would be wiser to authorize the Secretary of War to cause this claim to be thoroughly investigated and to report the result to Congress for further consideration.

It is probable that the data on file in the War Department will greatly facilitate the proposed investigation, so that no great delay is likely to result if the recommendation of the committee is adopted by the Senate and be followed by law to the same effect. A similar course was pursued in the case of the State of Kansas, to which reference has been made, and we therefore submit a substitute for the joint resolution and recommend its passage.

The substitute for the joint resolution became a law March 3, 1881, under which the report from the Secretary of War was made. This report of the Secretary of War was again, in 1889, by a provision of the general deficiency bill, referred to the Secretary of the Treasury for examination and report, which report is the basis upon which this Senate bill has been framed for the adjustment of these mutual accounts. This both Executive Departments of the War and of the Treasury have examined and approved these accounts and referred them to Congress for an appropriation to settle up the balance fund due the State by the Secretary of the Treasury on January 1, 1890, which amount is stated as being $567,954.50.

Now, Mr. Chairman, you must excuse me, as a citizen of Florida, for the enthusiasm and interest I manifest in this claim, because I know something of its merits. I participated in some of the hardships incident to that war. I know something of the hardships and sufferings of my people. I know the depleted condition of our treasury, and I appeal to a genereus and rich Government to do justice to a State that is struggling financially for existence. [Applause.]

Mr. MANSUR. Mr. Chairman, if any gentleman desires to be heard on the other side, I prefer to answer something coming from that quarter.

Mr. HOLMAN. Go ahead.

Mr. MANSUR. Mr. Chairman, my connection with this claim is, briefly, as follows: Entering the Fiftieth Congress, I found myself put upon a subcommittee of the Committee on Claims, the chairman of which was Mr. Dougherty, of the State of Florida. He called his subcommittee together and put before us this Florida claim, and said that that subcommittee would never investigate any other claim until that was disposed of. On the theory that I had just entered Congress and on the supposition that a new broom sweeps clean, this being a claim of large dimensions, I gave to it a very close examination, more especially as I found that my other colleague on that committee was paying small attention to it. After three or four days' work upon this claim I reached the conclusion that if there be anything in the constitutional obligation imposing the duty upon the Federal Government to protect its States and the people of a State against servile insurrection or an invasion of any kind, then this was undoubtedly an honest and just claim.

We occasionally hear a great deal in this House about the binding duty on us to obey the Constitution, but it is nearly always from some person or other who invokes it as a defense; when you have a claim based upon the Constitution it is very seldom that you can find a member that seems to think a provision in the Constitution that calls for the enforcement of a right or the payment of a debt is of the same caliber and weight as when it is used to defeat a claim.

Private claims in the six years I have been in this House have received but very little attention, and it looks as if it has been the intention of the House on all occasions to evade their payment rather than to do justice. It seems to me that if there be such a thing as coming before the Congress of the United States with a just and honest claim coming from a person confident of the justice of his claim and relying upon the fact that Congress will do its duty, will investigate and pay, then Congress should meet the just expectation of such individual; but unfortunately the experience of every member of this House knows the reverse of that to be true.

Here, however, we have a claim which is so just, in my opinion, no man who comes to the investigation of it with a mind free from prejudice, either political or otherwise, and will examine its inception and start, its history, can for one instant fail to believe it to be a just claim.

Let us see how this claim originated. The Seminoles had been in Florida from the time of the settlement of this country. With the advance of our civilization the time came when the bulk of them had to retreat before that civilization, trading their lands in Florida and east of the Mississippi for lands in the Indian Territory. They began their removal at an early period, the first band of Indians visiting the lands proposed to be given them west of the Mississippi in about 1819.

Under the treaties which followed, notably the one made in 1828, and again those made in 1833 and 1835, the great bulk of Indians were removed and located in what was known as the Indian Territory, west of the Mississippi River. But there was a small band of two or three hundred of them that refused to go, that would not be removed, and this led to one of the bloodiest of all our Indian wars, known as the Florida war, running all through the thirties, and not completely finished until 1842.

Even then only a small portion of the remaining Indians were removed, leaving in the everglades and in the southern portion of the State a band of Seminoles of somewhat uncertain number, probably 200 to 300, who, with their descendants, are there today; that is to say, there are two to three hundred of these Indians remaining in that State. When we consider the character of the everglades and their lifelong familiarity with the country, it is safe to say that they are in a condition to fight successfully at any time ten times their number.

Gen. BULLOCK has told you the feeling of the people of Florida with regard to the aggressions of these Indians better than I can. Suffice it to state how the war of 1855–1857 began. In 1855 Lieut. Hartsuff, United States Army, with 10 men was sent upon an exploring expedition along the border of the region where the Indians were generally to be found. He visited half a dozen places where he had seen them the year before, but on this occasion he found none. Camping one night, he was attacked before breakfast in the morning, and of the 11 men constituting his command 4 were killed, 4 wounded, and 3 escaped. Thereupon hostilities were resumed, and all attempts at the peaceable removal of the Indians were given up.

This was in 1855, and it took the Federal Government nearly three years to overcome those Seminoles, consisting of from ninety-six to two hundred warriors. By the official reports of the Federal Government we find that if any demand were to be made on the part of the people of Florida for incidental or outside damages resulting from neglect of duty—such a claim as would arise between individuals—for not promptly doing its duty the State of Florida could well come here with a claim for a million dollars more. The Federal Government ought to have known its duty better and been more prompt than it was in suppressing this Indian war. The first year of the war the Government employed only 840 regular troops, with hardly any volunteers.

Here is the report of Adjutant-General Cooper, made May 20, 1858. It shows that the average number of regular troops employed in this war in Florida in 1855 was 840; in the first nine months of 1856 the number was 866, and from October 1, 1856, to September 1, 1857, the number was increased to 1,755. For the remaining four months of the war in 1857 it was only 339. The average number of volunteers employed in 1856 was 321, and in 1857, 1,164. In addition to those who were called into service by the Federal Government, the State authorities of Florida called out, for short terms of service, in 1855, certain other companies of volunteers whose services have never been recognized or paid for by the General Government, and in the calling out of these additional companies and their services the origin and amount of this present claim is to be found.

The Federal Government started in with somewhat over eight hundred men, and it was nearly eighteen months before they got the number up to what was required to crush that little band of Indians and compel peace. Therefore, if there was neglect anywhere it was not on the part of the little State of Florida which then had only a small and parse population, because we are told in this same report that the Indians were so nimble that the scene of hostilities covered 27,400 square miles of territory, as much, I believe, or more than is to be found in the whole State of Ohio. The Indians appeared here, there, everywhere, and they had to be checkmated at all points, and the Government had in 1857, at the least, as many as 2,900 men under arms against these Indians.

The trouble with the claim, and the only trouble, is this: When, in 1857, the war had grown to such large porportions and the Federal Government had failed to furnish the necessary number of troops to bring it to an end, had in fact failed to meet its constitutional obligation to protect the people of Florida, the governor of that State, having raised between 1,100 and 1,200 men they were accepted and sworn into the Federal service and paid by the Federal Government. But there were fifteen other companies, in part, or in whole, that were used, but not mustered in, and the war ended without their being mustered in. When the demand was made by the State authorities for payment of these troops, or that the Federal Government itself should pay them, then came a mustering-in order from the Secretary of War, who was, of course, but the mouthpiece of the President.

The order was that the State authorities should call the men together and that they should be mustered into the service and mustered out all at the one time. This was because of a technicality existing upon the Federal statute books which forbade the Federal Government to pay any troops unless they had been mustered into the service. But the war had ended somewhat suddenly, and these troops had been disbanded and had gone to their homes, so that they could not be got together.

The governor suggested that the muster be made from the properly certified rolls of the State. To this the Secretary replied that no officer could make a constructive muster, as suggested, but that to certify the rolls he must have mustered the troops present. The Secretary adds:

> Under the circumstances the only course left for the Department is to receive as official the State rolls, duly certified by the State authorities, and to base upon them a recommendation to Congress for the appropriation necessary to pay off the troops. This course will obviate the difficulties mentioned by you on account of the disbandment of the volunteers in question

So, Mr. Chairman, the inhibition of the statute which prevents the paying troops that have not been mustered into the service is the technicality that has stood and stands to day as the sole barrier against this claim and the act of Congress required to settle this claim; and, Mr. Chairman, Florida has been trying to get that act of Congress from that day to this, and that is all there is to this claim, and no gentleman can show to the contrary.

Mr. DINGLEY. May I ask the gentleman a question?

Mr. MANSUR. Yes, sir.

Mr. DINGLEY. This war, I believe, terminated nearly forty years ago—in 1856 or 1857?

Mr. MANSUR. Yes, sir.

Mr. DINGLEY. If there was an equitable claim in this matter by the State of Florida, why was it not taken up and pressed before Congress at a time when all these circumstances were fresh? Why is this matter brought up here now after a lapse of forty years or thereabouts?

Mr. MANSUR. Does the gentleman want me to state the reason candidly?

Mr. DINGLEY. Yes, sir.

Mr. MANSUR. When I look around and see who it is that are making the objections now, I am afraid that the payment of this claim has been refused heretofore because Florida was not a Republican State.

Mr. DINGLEY. But this war terminated in 1856 or 1857; at that time the Democratic party controlled both branches of Congress.

Mr. MANSUR. That is true.

Mr. DINGLEY. So there could not have been any objection then on the ground which the gentleman states.

Mr. MANSUR. That would account for a year or two——

Mr. DINGLEY. I make my inquiry in good faith.

Mr. MANSUR. This claim was passed by the House in the Fiftieth Congress when Mr. CARLISLE was Speaker, but it failed in the Senate. Once before it passed in the Senate and failed in the House. Now the bill has been passed in the Senate and comes here for our concurrence. It has been four times favorably reported in the Senate and I do not know how often in the House.

Mr. DINGLEY. The object of my inquiry was simply to satisfy my mind as to why, when all the circumstances were fresh and when of course the political objection suggested by friend from Missouri did not apply, this claim was not settled.

Mr. MANSUR. Would the gentleman plead the statute of limitations?

Mr. DINGLEY. I am anxious to find out why something was not done in 1856, 1857, or 1858, or thereabouts to provide for the payment of this claim when all the facts were fresh—why the claim has been delayed until the present time. I believe about $700,000 was paid on account of this war in 1857–'59.

Mr. MANSUR. Yes, sir.

Mr. DINGLEY. And I believe there were about ninety-eight Seminole Indians engaged in this war, making the expense about $8,000 per Indian. Now, if anything in equity was due to the State on account of this war, why was not this claim satisfied soon after the close of that war when the situation was well known?

Mr. MANSUR. I suppose during the time of the civil war and since there were numbers of things which for the time being those in control of Congress regarded as far more important than this.

Mr. DINGLEY. But this claim is alleged to have accrued in 1856 or 1857—three or four years before the war of the rebellion.

Mr. MANSUR. This claim was before Congress in 1860——

Mr. DINGLEY. At the time to which I have referred the facts were all fresh; yet it seems Congress took no favorable action respecting the matter. The Seminole war, according to the general understanding, was originally precipitated by the fact that fugitive slaves had fled to the country of the Seminole Indians; the Indian war grew out of difficulties arising in that way——

Mr. MANSUR. In the entire record of this case, and in all the reports that I have read, I have yet to find the first word making any such intimation as the gentleman now makes; and I would be glad if he would point out some authority for his statement.

Mr. DINGLEY. This is not important at the present time; but I have here a work by Joshua R. Giddings, detailing all the circumstances of the Seminole war, in which he traces step by step what he characterizes as the wicked proceedings——

Mr. MANSUR. Did he have any partisan bias?

Mr. DINGLEY. I think he was a man of great ability and eminent candor.

Mr. MANSUR. Yes, sir; and most eminent bias, and I am afraid that such is the spirit of the opposition that this claim meets now. In the official reports there is to be found nothing sustaining the objection which the gentleman from Maine has just made, beside the Florida war of which Mr. Giddings writes began in the thirties and ended about 1842. Florida was then a Territory. She became a State in 1845, and this Indian insurrection began in 1855, ten years after Florida became a State.

Now, Mr. Speaker, this brings me down to a point where I shall soon close. There have been four favorable reports in the Senate on this measure and probably an equal number or more in the House. The bill has passed the Senate heretofore. It passed this House in the Fiftieth Congress. While it has thus at different times met favorable action in each House, the two Houses have not concurred in passing it in the same Congress. Hence, the rule of this day was reported to get this Senate bill before the House at the present time.

Now, sir, at the time when Senator Plumb made his report in 1882, he asked that inasmuch as there were divers accounts between the State of Florida and the Federal Government, there should be not an adjustment of this single claim, but a complete account of all matters in controversy between the State and the United States. Therefore he reported a provision to be put upon the deficiency appropriation bill, which subsequently became law, providing that the Secretary of the Treasury, in connection with the Secretary of War, should make a thorough and complete investigation and report of all matters and differences between the Federal Government and the State of Florida. It was specified, especially, that this claim for the payment of all these nonmustered troops of every kind should be fully investigated.

That was done, and the report which I hold in my hand was made—a report by Secretary Lincoln, embraced in House Executive Document No. 68, Fifty-first Congress, first session. That report is submitted in a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury. Those officers in that report go into this account and they give us item by item without one word from the authorities of Florida to control them in any way, the condition of the accounts from their books and by their own calculations. They go into this matter with a fullness and minuteness which ought to satisfy anybody who believes in justice and is open to conviction.

Now, sir, this claim of the State of Florida, after taking up everything between the two Governments—speaking also of the investment or purchase by the Government of $132,000 of the bonds of the State of Florida for the Indian trust fund, which bore 7 per cent interest—taking into consideration all of these questions, the question of interest as well as all other claims, adjudicating the whole matter, summing it up as found near the bottom of page 3 of the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, which gives to the House the amount of dollars and cents prima facie involved in this bill, because the bill itself does not give any amount, but provides that the Treasury officials are to make the settlement of the accounts in the manner indicated in the first computation found in said report, which is in the following words:

First, by computing interest on each side to January 1, 1890, and there striking a balance thus? Credit due the State $261,934.31; interest thereon at 7 per cent, January 1, 1858, to January 1, 1890, $586,732.85; total, $848,667.16.

Principal of bonds held by the United States, $132,000; interest from November 27, 1873 (to which date interest has been paid), to January 1, 1890, $148,712.66; total, $280,712.66; leaving a balance due to the State of Florida of $567,954.50.

Now, that does not come from the State of Florida. That does not come from those interested in its welfare at all. It does not come from their figuring. It is not of their manipulation or from their proof or vouchers, but from a careful investigation by our own accountants (and I will say to the gentleman on the other side they were Republican accountants under a Republican administration), wholly investigated by Republican officers and taken from the books of the Treasury and War Departments alone; and from their data reach the conclusion that this amount I have just cited is found to be due the State of Florida. That being so, who can undertake to gainsay the accuracy of their official statement? I feel myself sufficiently acquainted with the matter to say none can gainsay it. Then why should it not be paid and promptly?

Now, one other view, Mr. Chairman, and I have done. It is whispered—and I went to him awhile ago myself, but he did not say much to me about what his objection was—it is whispered that the very distinguished gentleman from the State of Indiana in charge for the Committee on Approriations should have said, or is understood to have said, that these claims have once been paid. Well, if so, that would be a grave objection to paying them again. If so, and if I believed it to be so, or knew it to be a fact, I would hang my head in shame before I got up here and advocated payment again. But to show that the gentleman is not correct, I want his attention and the attention of the committee for a few moments further. The vouchers, or the documents connected with this matter, are all printed as an addenda to the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, from which I have just quoted, and on page 4 of that Executive Document, No. 68, I find the following:

By act of August 30, 1856 (11 Statutes, 150), an appropriation of $240,667.42 was made for pay and supplies of mounted and foot companies of Florida volunteers; and by act of June 30, 1859 (11 Statutes, 429), an appropriation of $413,600 was made for pay of certain Florida volunteers in 1857 and 1858. The accounts of the United States paymasters and quartermasters by whom these two appropriations were disbursed show that the other payments were exclusively for the periods after the muster of volunteers into the United States service.

The gentleman from Indiana says that these two amounts, aggregating about $700,000, cover the amount of the pending bill. I cite this to show his mistake. This communication goes on to state:

This claim by the State is confined to the period prior to such muster, and for pay and expenses of troops never so mustered, and was not embraced to any extent in those disbursements. The report by the Secretary of War upon this claim was in great detail, and is printed in the executive document above referred to. To avoid needless recapitulation I have taken that report as my basis, examining the items in the order therein observed, and especially commenting upon only a few in respect to which I differ from the conclusions of the War Department.

This is cited by Mr. Hart, the Third Auditor, in making the investigation and findings in regard to this claim. It shows, not by inference, not argumentatively, but absolutely, that these claims have not been paid. It shows affirmatively and positively what was paid and what was not paid; and demonstrates that the two appropriations, aggregating altogether the sum of about $700,000, heretofore made, were made and disbursed to pay those troops who had been mustered into the service of the Federal Government. And I contend that it shows also affirmatively that not a dollar of the payments of $700,000 was paid to any one of the fifteen companies who were not mustered into service, and whose claim is now before the House for services rendered in that Florida war.

This then brings me to the end of my remarks, and in conclusion I must say that if my investigation as a member of the committee is worth anything, if my honest conviction, after careful and deliberate examination of this whole question is worth anything, then I do not know how it is possible for a State to have a more just and equitable claim against the Federal Government than this.

Neither does this case stand alone. There has been, as I have said in the history of the country, an unbroken line of precedents whereby the Federal Government has taken upon itself to pay such claims, on each and every occasion where there were Indian insurrections in a State; when the Federal Government did not have regular troops sufficient at the time, and the governor acting for the State called out troops who were mustered in and put at the disposal of the Federal Government to aid in subduing the insurrection; there is not a case where the Federal Government has not paid the whole bill.

If the 15 companies referred to had been mustered into service they would have been paid heretofore, as the Secretary of War has shown and stated. In this case, in the last year of the war 3,000 troops are used; in the first year 840, and in the second year they used about 1,600. The war ending somewhat suddenly, these 15 companies of troops never had the opportunity to be mustered in, and out of that technicality has come this claim and all its difficulties.

In conclusion, in the light of equity, in the light of the obligations of the Constitution, I would like for any gentleman to show what difference exists, when the Federal Government paid for a number of companies that were raised about the same time, used in the same year, in the same war, against the same foe, which companies were mustered in—what difference exists between the justice of paying troops so raised and used at the same time and for the same purpose with the nonpayment of troops actually used for same purposes, but technically not mustered in and the payment of those who were.

I thank the House for the attention with which it has listened to me, and can only say that I shall cast as cheerful a vote for the payment of this claim, believing it to be just as any vote that I have ever cast in the House.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. As the gentleman seems to have some doubt as to the origin of this war, I wish to have read from the Clerk's desk an extract from a book written by George W. Julian.

The Clerk read as follows:

Giddings proceeded to show by documentary evidence that the people of Florida understood the great object of the war to be the capture of fugitive slaves, and that the Government had lent itself to their service. He quoted an order issued by Gen. Jesup declaring that "all Indian property captured from this date will belong to the corps or detachment making it," and showed by a letter from the general, written a few days later that the word "property," as used in said order, meant "negroes, cattle, and horses." This letter bears date August 3, 1837. In reference to it Giddings said:

"I think that history will record this as the first general order issued by the commander of the American Army in which the catching of slaves is held out as an incentive to military duty. I mention this fact and bring it the consideration of the committee with feelings of deep mortification. As an American I feel humbled at this act, which can not be viewed by the civilized world otherwise than as dishonorable to our arms and nation. That this officer, intrusted with the command of our Army and the honor of our flag, should appeal to the cupidity, the desire of plunder, and the worst of human passions, in order to stimulate his men to effort, is, I think, to be regretted by men of all parties in all sections of our country. Our national flag, which floated in proud triumph at Saratoga, which was enveloped in a blaze of glory at Monmouth and Yorktown, seems to have been prostituted in Florida to the base purpose of leading on an organized company of 'negro-catchers.' Sir, no longer is 'our country' the battle-cry of our Army in their advance to victory, but 'slaves' has become the watchword to inspire them to effort. No longer does the war-worn veteran, amid the battle's rage, think of his country's glory and nerve his arm in behalf of freedom, but with eagle eye he watches the wavering ranks of the enemy, and as they flee before our advancing columns he plunges among them to seize the sable foe and make him his future slave."

Mr. MANSUR. Does this refer to the Florida war of the thirties?

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. That was the inception of this thing.

Mr. MANSUR. This was a little band of 200 that remained there thirty years after.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. These slaves had escaped and gone down there and married and had children, and this was an effort made to capture them.

Mr. MANSUR. These gentlemen knew nothing about the slaves. This was twenty or thirty years after.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. I understood you to say that you had no knowledge that these wars had anything to do with the capture of slaves?

Mr. MANSUR. This war.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. This was the very same war that began while it was Spanish territory.

Mr. MANSUR. No; it was twenty years after. There was an interval of twenty years.

Mr. JOSEPH D. TAYLOR. There was no interval. This war was continued.

